PARTY LEADERS SAY VETO WILL BE OVERRIDDEN

President Says His Convictions Are Still Unchanged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—President Roosevelt this morning vetoed the immediate payment of the soldier's bonus, and sent the Baby Bond bonus bill back to Congress disapproved. Breaking all precedents he sent with the disapproved measure a terse handwritten message to the House, returning "without my approval" the bond payment plan.

The President's sudden action faced almost certain overriding. Democratic leaders in both Senate and House flatly

OVERRIDES VETO

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—A hearing House of Representatives this afternoon overrode the President's veto of the Bonus Bill by a vote of 324 to 61, far more than the two-thirds required.

From the House the bill went to the Senate, where a vote will not be possible until Monday, since the Senate is in recess.

predicted that the bill would become a law, since both houses had approved the measure by more than the two-thirds majority of votes needed to override the President's veto.

The President referred the legislators "to every word of what I said" in last year's veto of the currency-expansion bonus bill.

He wrote: "My convictions are as compelling today as they were then, therefore I cannot at this time change them."

Senator Clark, Democrat, of Missouri, one of the authors of the vetoed measure, said: "We'll pass it over his veto."

ACCUSES JAPAN

MOSCOW, Jan. 24.—The Russian war commissariat organ, The Red Star, today accused Japan of preparing for military operations against Russia, through encirclement of Outer Mongolia. The paper said the Japanese commanded the principal approaches to Outer Mongolia, putting them in position to attempt cutting off Russia's Far Eastern army. At Tokyo, reports of new frontier incidents between Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia drove the controversy toward an apparent climax.

glad I brought you along."

Julia turned to him on a sudden impulse. "I wish I could be glad I came."

Woodford's voice held an embarrassed surprise. "Why do you say that, Julia?" He hesitated, then added another question.
"What did Cintra say to you?"

"Nothing," said Julia. "We get along nicely."

"Well . . ." Woodford seemed much relieved, "I was sure you would. But what makes you wish you hadn't come?"

"I don't know," said Julia slowly. "Somehow I feel—well, out of place."

Woodford laughed. "Nonsense, Julia! You belong here as much as any of us. A pretty young woman like you deserves every break in the world. And I've a surprise for you, too."

"Yes?" Her question was frightened with trepidation.

"You don't have to be back at the office Monday. I've wired them it's all right."

"But I—I don't understand."

"You're going to enjoy yourself on a real cruise, Julia. Not just a week-end." He stopped before Julia's frigid silence. "I would have told you earlier," he went on
"But the fact is, we really did plan only a week-end cruise at first. Then the night we came aboard Nash insisted he wanted to get in some hunting. So we decided on the spur of the moment to put in at Evergreen Island.
I've a very decent cabin there.
You'll love the place."

"But suppose I don't care to go?"

"I'm afraid that couldn't change our plans now," Woodford told her. "Surely you wouldn't spoil the fun for the rest of the party
by asking me to turn the Wood Nymph back to the city now?"

Julia did not reply at once. She looked out over the rail for a long moment — then answered Woodford in a quiet, level voice which was only a brittle surface over the anger beneath her words.

"Mr. Woodford, I want one thing understood. I came along as an entertainer—to sing for your guests. At least, that was my understanding of the invitation. Perhaps I'm being a fool but I've got to ask this question. Is it your understanding, too?"

Woodford laughed easily. "Of course it is, Julia! I'm simply extending your engagement. No genuine entertainer ever objected to that!"

Julia nodded, wordless. But she was thinking that never again would she be able to act as George Woodford's secretary. It just wouldn't work out. She had lost her job at Woodford and Brooks as surely as if she had been discharged.

"But," she heard Woodford going on in his easy, persuasive voice, "just because you're an entertainer is no reason why you shouldn't enjoy yourself on this trip. The party's too small for any silly distinctions. As a matter of fact, Julia, the rest of them think that you came along as—well, they think you came along with me."

"I was afraid of that."
Woodford laughed. "Really, there's no reason to be so disturbed about it, Julia. Nash and Royal and the two girls—are broad-minded people. They've been around."

Furiously Julia turned upon him. "Yes," she said quickly, unable to hold her anger any longer. "They—they've been around.
This sort of thing is their racket.
But it's not mine. I've always worked for a living, and I always expect to work for a living. I—I'm not looking for any breaks!"

"Julia . . ." Woodford came

SOUTHWESTERN LIFE RELEASES ITS STATEMENT

Influences of Past Few Years Seen in Annual Figures

Unusual conditions of the past years have had a marked effect on the investment portfolios of life insurance companies. While few companies have increased in size, measured by total insurance in force, changes in the character of assets of some companies are apparent. A brief analysis of the balance sheet of Southwestern Life, the first of the large Texas companies to publish its annual statement, reveals a high degree of liquidity. The net liability to policyholders is less than 27 millions. The Company owns securities valued conservatively at 30 millions. Of this amount 15 millions is represented by U. S. Government bonds, cash, and the highest grade State, county, and municipal obligations, which could be sold on today's market for a million dollars more than the amount at which they are carried in the balance sheet. The remaining 15 millions is invested in first mortgage loans on Texas real estate.

In addition the Company owns real estate, including its home office building, worth about 3 millions.

Five years ago Southwestern Life had only about one-ninth as much invested in bonds, but owned one-third more real estate mortgages than it does today.

The gain in insurance in force for 1935 is approximately the same as for 1934, and the Company is now larger than at any previous time in its history, with a total of 288 millions of insurance on the lives of approximately 140,000 Texas citizens. During recent years the amount of the average policy has decreased slightly. The rate of mortality for 1935 among Southwestern Life policy was almost the same as previous year. Lapses are decreasing and loans against policies have remained at about same level.

Increasing liquidity of has resulted in lower interestings, but the net return was 4 1/2 per cent, which the Company considers highly satisfactory under present conditions.

PIONEER DAY AT CHURCH

Church Service Will Honor Pioneers

The second consecutive pioneer residents of and vicinity are being the guests of honor "Pioneer's Day" service Sunday afternoon, Jan. 24, at 5 o'clock, at the First Church. After the service of last year, according to Dr. Angus MacMillan, one of the pioneers suggested the service be repeated Sunday service was largely out of respect request.

With a Democrat re-out the proposed pro-MacMillan said: "The buildings representing various denominations Memphis stand as a testament to the inherent religious of the pioneers of the city. Whatever else they are, the pioneers believed in the traditional principle of their frontier life. It seems to me a reason that the Presbyterian Church should hold this special service in their honor. It will be held at the Vesper period in order to keep from conflicting with the activities of other churches."

Dr. MacMillan is to speak on the subject, "The Lure of Distant Horizons." He intends to make the sermon reach back into yesterday to find new thoughts and new horizons to intrigue both the pioneers and non-pioneers of today. Personal invitations are being mailed to the pioneers in whose honor the service is to be held. But don't fail to attend if it happens that a personal invitation fails to reach you. Everybody is welcome.

GAS COMPANY PAYS MILLION STATE TAXES

Texas Payment More Than Half Million Dollars

More than $1,000,000 in ad valorem taxes are being paid this week by the United Gas System in Texas, Louisiana, and Mississippi, C. G. Bumgarner, local manager, announced today. Of this amount, Texas will be paid $554,000, Louisiana $423,000, and Mississippi $98,000.

This tax payment is one of the largest of such disbursements ever made by the System. Mr. Bumgarner said, Checks are being made out to counties and parishes, some amounting to as much as $23,000. Those of Southwest Louisiana will receive $101,279.48, the statement shows.

Disbursements of these taxes will be completed early in January, Mr. Bumgarner said.

The growth of the natural gas industry to a point where it pours more than a million dollars a year into tax funds and provides employment for thousands of people in this area has been remarkable, said Mr. Bumgarner, considering the fact that natural gas for commercial purposes was not developed extensively until after 1926.

closer, put his hand on her arm. "Julia, I'm afraid you've got me wrong. I was only trying to avoid embarrassment for you. I'll tell you the truth. If Mrs. Joseph knew you were aboard simply to sing for your supper she'd treat you shamefully."

"I'd prefer she knew," said Julia. "What Mrs. Joseph thinks of me isn't important."

Woodford was about to answer, but at that moment the door of the main cabin opened and Royal Nesbitt joined them. "I owe this young lady an apology," he told Woodford.

"How's that, Royal?" asked the host.

"I promised to put her in touch with someone who'd give her a chance in one of the night clubs."

Julia laughed. "You really shouldn't feel badly about it, Mr. Nesbitt. I've had that happen to me before." She gave Woodford a sidelong glance, was maliciously pleased to note his discomfort.

"I meant it, though," Nesbitt assured her. "The fact is, I've been pretty busy. Then this invitation of George's came along and I couldn't refuse. But the moment we get back in town I'll set the wheels turning." He looked at her. "How's Amy?"

It was the first he had mentioned Amy Sanders. Amused that he was asking now, out of Cintra's hearing, Julia told him that Amy was in excellent health and her usual bright spirits.

"She's a grand girl," said Nesbitt.

"The best there is."

Nesbitt cleared his throat nervously, turned to Woodford and asked him an irrelevant question about the Wood Nymph. Julia slipped into the darkness and made her way toward her stateroom on the other side of the yacht. As she passed the pilot house she caught a glimpse of Bakely at the wheel, his face illuminated eerily in the soft green light from the binnacle. Acting on an impulse, she opened the door.

"May I come in?" Bakely turned his head from the wheel. Touching his cap, he said, "Certainly, Miss Craig."

Julia leaned against the chart

table, watching Captain Bakely. She saw herself reflected in the forward windows of the pilot house. She knew, too, that Bakely could see her there—that although he was ostensibly watching the compass and the dark waters ahead, he could also see how attractive she was in the white satin evening gown which Amy had advised her to take along.

"I understand we're headed for a place called Evergreen Island?"

Bakely nodded. "Yes. That's the course we're on."

"Is it far?"

"About 14 hours from here," Bakely told her. "Evergreen is one of a string of islands, and Mr. Woodford has a hunting lodge there."

"Is there anything else on the island?"

"No . . ." Bakely shook his head. "We'll be pretty well secluded up there."

Julia laughed easily. "Suppose something happened and we wanted to get in touch with the city?"

"That's not likely. But the vessel is equipped with radio-telephone."

"I see . . ." Julia moved from the chart table and nearer to the wheel where Bakely stood. "I'd like to see the radio-telephone."

Bakely looked at her. "That room's always locked, Miss Craig. Mr. Woodford doesn't allow any messages to go through without his permission."

"Well, I suppose I'll have to get his permission." She sighed. "I think I'll drift along to bed now. Good night, Captain Bakely."

"Good night, Miss Craig . . ."

In the privacy of her stateroom Julia wondered whether she had made an impression on Bakely. She doubted if she could count on him against Woodford. Obviously the yacht was under the rigid regimentation of the owner. Slowly she began to realize that Woodford could not have more successfully imprisoned her had he arranged for her incarceration in some isolated castle.

There was nothing for her to do but make the best of what she had. That once she had returned to the city she would leave Woodford Brooks. And when that was done she would face without remorse the problem of doing something with her talent.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

THE problem of serving a hearty noon meal to children, while the rest of the family requires its big meal in the evening is best solved by concocting a nourishing meatless menu.

Cream soups are unsurpassed for children's lunches. A bulky dessert is desirable, providing a sweet and necessary food element to round out the meal satisfactorily.

Cheese dishes are splendid for luncheon, too. Toasted cheese sandwiches, cheese fondue, scalloped cheese, cornmeal bunny and macaroni and cheese are quickly and easily prepared dishes. A bulky dessert with a fruit foundation should follow a main dish rich in cheese. Or a rosy-cheeked, juicy Northern Spy apple is perfect after a cheese dish.

Of course, all hot foods must be appetizingly hot, but do remember that children, can't wait for hot soups to cool and the nervousness caused by the wait may take every bit of appetite. If food is at the right temperature for a child to begin to eat as soon as he is served he will enjoy his luncheon without fretting about the time.

Apple scallop is an excellent dessert to serve with cornmeal bunny.

Cornmeal Bunny

One and one-half cups hot cornmeal mush, 1-2 cup milk, 1 cup diced cheese, 2 hard cooked eggs, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, paprika, tangles of toast. Make mush as usual and add salt. Chop eggs. Add cheese, milk, eggs and butter to mush and cook until cheese is melted. Pour over hot toast, sprinkle with paprika and serve.

Apple Scallop

Two-thirds cup sweetened condensed milk, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 egg, 1-2 cup dry cookie or cake crumbs, 1-2 cup apple sauce (unsweetened).

Beat white and yolk of egg separately. Add lemon juice and yolk of egg to milk and mix thoroughly. Combine crumbs and apple sauce and add to first mixture. Beat white of egg until stiff and fold into mixture. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until a delicate brown, about thirty minutes. Serve warm with whipped cream or lemon sauce.

Lemon Sauce

Two-thirds cup sweetened condensed milk, 1-4 cup lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind.

Blended milk, lemon juice and grated rind thoroughly, stirring until mixture thickens. This may be thinned with water to any desired consistency.

Laundry vs. Industrials

Laundry Takes Two From Band

In last night's games at the bowling alleys, the Laundry team took two of the three games from the Band, climbing a little higher in the standings and leaving the band tied with the Democrat for the bottom berth.

A handicap of 35 pins per game did not suffice to bring the musicians up to the laundrymen. The band won the first game by a close score, but they went down in the last two by decisive scores. Scores of the three games were: Laundry, 647-758-650-2055; Band, 658-680-619-1957.

Monday night's game will be between the Laundry and the Industrials.

"Much Relieved," Says Lady After Taking CARDUI

Although they may be very active and apparently in good health, many women, at certain times, will do well to take Cardui. It may relieve some of the nagging symptoms that are so annoying every month.

Mrs. F. T. Foster of Greensburg, Ky., writes that she has "derived great benefit" from Cardui. "Before taking Cardui, I was weak and extremely nervous, and suffered from sleeplessness. This made me tired and worn in daytime. My back ached continually. Being an active woman, I did not want to continue in this condition. Having heard a great deal about Cardui, I found after just a few bottles, I was much relieved. I continued taking Cardui and was so much helped."

Potts was placed in jail here to await an examining trial within the next few days, when he will be bound over to await the action of the Grand Jury next month. Charges to be filed against him will probably be violation of the Federal Mann Act; stealing an automobile and transporting it across the state line, also a federal offense, and possibly a kidnaping charge will be filed.

Pott's story, as told to the officers, is that he was taking the girl to her mother, McWhorter's former wife, at Amarillo, and that they became lost and ended up at Clovis, where they were taken in charge.

At present, tree planting activities are confined to Hall County, but the work will spread to include Donley, Childress and Collingsworth counties.

Following the band concert, two boxing bouts were staged in an open-air ring on the north side of the square.

The first bout between Watson Tate, of Oklahoma City, and Jake Godfrey of this city, both weighing 165 pounds, was a thriller. Lots of action was packed into the three 2-minute rounds by the boxers. The judges gave the decision to Godfrey.

The second bout, between Raymond Maddox, 144, of Memphis, and Jack Eastland, 134, of Eli, only went one round, but was fast and full of action while it lasted. Eastland's cheek was cut in the first round, and he threw in the towel, leaving the victory to Maddox.

Due to the extreme heat the stunt, and feeling the people would see it on Saturday by Reg Robbins, noted as a V-Eight Ford at 60 mph, was postponed until day afternoon.

The program for today more horseshoe pitching and boxing bouts. The band will play another concert at clock.

Tomorrow, the conclusion of the carnival, in addition to horseshoe pitching, the boxing bouts, the burning wall, a battle royal, a program of elty races will be run.
