BONUS IS DEMANDED

MIAMI, Oct. 25.—Raising its voice in a monstrous "aye," the American Legion today demanded immediate cash payment of the veterans' bonus certificates by the government. The vote was 987 to 183.

The payment, Legion officials estimated, would require the outlay of about two billion dollars by the government.

Mrs. A. Carlson of Villmar, Minn., was elected national president of the Legion Auxiliary.

A ready market has been found for all surplus tax exemption certificates, and the government pool last week was short over a half million pounds, according to word received yesterday by County Agent James A. Jackson.

Hall county farmers "who wish to surrender certificates should act immediately" a letter, from Parker D. Hanna, district agricultural agent, to Mr. Jackson, stated. It was first feared that sufficient market could not be found for the surplus certificates, but present indications are that the demand is greater than the supply.

Closes on Nov. 10

In the letter to Mr. Jackson, Mr. Hanna re-emphasized the fact that the closing date for the pool had been set for November 10. "Pool expenses will be less than one dollar per bale and we feel sure the producers will net $19 plus per bale," the letter stated.

The certificates are placed in the government pool to be resold to farmers who produce more than their quota at four cents per pound, less operating expenses. The number sold is to be prorated among the pool members and those unsold are to be returned to the original owners, according to government plans.

Ready To Handle Work

Certificates placed in the pool from Hall county are being forwarded to Washington daily and Mr. Jackson's office crew is ready to list additional certificates as quickly as they come in, he said.

Those who wish to list certificates should do so immediately, he said.

FINDING THE 'MIDDLE GROUND'

SPEAKING to a conference on city, state, regional and national planning, Dr. Charles E. Merriam, professor of political science at the University of Chicago...

"Some may believe," Merriam stated, "there is no middle ground between planning and tyranny and dictatorship as has been exemplified in other countries..."

By planning the course that this nation is to take during coming years, one can paint a beautiful picture—one where everything is perfect, all people contented, employed gainfully and with much leisure time on their hands...

The decentralization of industry is the leading question under discussion by these "planners." They would divide the factories into small branches and place them in small communities, where every family would have a home and "plot of ground" where they might provide part of the necessities of life in some manner other than through weekly pay-rolls.

Dr. Carter Goodrich, professor of economics at Columbia University, cautioned against possible dangers of this movement. He insisted that decentralization should be so slow that "in 15 years it will be perceptible." Imagine taking thousands of factory workers out of the cities, men who have known no life other than on crowded pavements, and placing them, all at once, in small towns, giving them a garden spot and saying, "Here is your home; raise your vegetables and chickens and keep a cow..."

Another problem facing this move is the possible trend of later developments within the small communities. Where the entire life of a town depends upon one factory, what chances have the people to really improve their living conditions, expand their opportunities, if the factory, itself, becomes a tyrant?

National planning may be able to find a middle ground that will work toward liberty for the individual, but first, the willingness to sacrifice the rights of others for personal gain must be replaced by something far more chivalrous.

The Claw of the Forgotten Murder

by CARLETON KENDRAKE

BEGIN HERE TODAY: When DAN BLEEKER, junior publisher of The Blade, learns that CHARLES MORDEN, police reporter, has been mysteriously killed he determines to employ SIDNEY GIFF, famous criminologist, to solve the murder.

Morden has been assigned to earn all he could about FRANK B. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent, who had threatened to sue The Blade because the newspaper reporter Cathay had been arrested. Later it was proved that the man arrested, giving the name of Cathay and accompanied by a girl called MARY BRIGGS, was an imposter. MRS CATHAY assures Bleeker her husband will drop the charges if The Blade publishes a retraction, and this is done.

Bleeker receives a telephone call from the editor of the River-view Chronicle. As he puts down the telephone KENNEY, city editor, asks, "What did you find out?"

A day later Morden is found dead. Shortly afterward comes news that Cathay is dead—possibly of poison.

Griff undertakes the case. He goes to see DR. COOPER, one of two doctors attending Cathay. Dr. Cooper refuses to make any statements.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XI

Chuckling to himself, Sidney Griff went to the office of Dr. Amstead, the physician who signed Frank Cathay's death certificate.

"I pleased Dr. Amstead to surround himself with an air of professional dignity and his appearance was inseparably associated with the insignia of his profession. A round, polished mirror was strapped about the middle of his forehead—a concave mirror with a hole in the center to accommodate the pupil of the doctor's eye when it became necessary to throw reflected light down the throat of some patient.

Dr. Amstead was attired in a white robe and the atmosphere about him was impregnated with the smell of medicinal antiseptics. His eyes were not quite so steady as those of Dr. Cooper and were far less thoughtful. His cheekbones were high. His figure was tall and gaunt and he had a cat-fish mouth.

"What can I do for you, Mr. Griff?" he inquired.

"You can discuss the Cathay case," said Sidney Griff.

"No, I can't," said Dr. Amstead. "There is nothing to discuss. The man died of natural causes. My death certificate is on file. I will refer you to that for any specific information. More than that, I cannot give you."

"Can you tell me," Griff asked, "anything about Mr. Cathay's symptoms?"

"No."

"Anything about the degree of temperature?"

"No."

"May I ask why, Doctor?"

"Those are matters of professional confidence."

"I see. Now can you tell me anything which is not a matter of professional confidence?"

"What do you mean?"

"If I should ask you a question, and it had nothing to do with a professional confidence, would you answer it?"

"I think so, yes."

"Is it true," said Sidney Griff slowly and solemnly, "that in your presence, and in the presence of a newspaper reporter, Dr. P. C. Cooper, who was associated with you on the case, stated that the symptoms were identical to those of luminal poisoning?"

Dr. Amstead flushed. "I'm not responsible for what Dr. Cooper may have said," he remarked.

"What I am asking you is if Dr. Cooper did make such a statement."

"I believe," Dr. Amstead said, "that he . . . I think I shall refuse to answer that question."

"Upon what ground, Doctor?"

Dr. Amstead flushed. "Upon the ground that it is none of your business," he said.

"But it happens," said Griff, smiling urbanely, "that that is very much a part of my business. It is one of the things which has brought me to the city."

Dr. Amstead's mouth was a firm line of lipless rigidity, upon which Sidney Griff's eyes were focused. "I still maintain that it is none of your business," Dr. Amstead said truculently.

Sidney Griff continued to stare at Dr. Amstead's mouth.

"It just happens, Doctor," he said, "that a post-mortem has been ordered in connection with an autopsy. If the post-mortem should show the presence of poison, it would seem to me that it would very much improve your standing in the community for you to at least discuss the possibility of a mistaken diagnosis."

Dr. Amstead's eye wavered for a moment, then stared belligerently at Sidney Griff.

"You are mistaken," he said. "There will be no post-mortem, no autopsy."

He spoke with cold finality, turned abruptly and called over his shoulder, "You will excuse me. I am busy."

The door slammed shut.

The office nurse looked at Sidney Griff with curious eyes. "That is all, Mr. Griff," she said, "Dr. Amstead will not return."

"Bless your heart," he said, "I didn't think he would. I was just waiting to see . . ."

The panel switchboard in the office emitted a buzzing sound. The office nurse raised the receiver to her ear, said, "Yes?" in the tone of voice one uses in asking a question. Then she snapped up a key on the switchboard, dropped the receiver and turned to Sidney Griff.

"You were waiting," she reminded him, "to see . . ."

"To see," said Sidney Griff, smiling, "whether Dr. Amstead made a telephone call as soon as he reached his private office. You might explain to him that my curiosity upon that point has been satisfied and good morning.

He left the office, crossed the street to the First National Bank building, and went to the offices of Fisher, Barr & McReady. He presented his card to the young woman who occupied the desk by the telephone switchboard, and said, "Please tell Mr. Charles Fisher that I wish 10 minutes of his time upon a matter of major importance."

The young woman summoned a boy, gave him the card, and Sidney Griff's message. The boy disappeared, and a moment later the switchboard buzzed into life. The operator listened for a moment, then nodded to Sidney Griff.

"Mr. Fisher," she said, "will see you at once."

The boy appeared once more and beckoned to Sidney Griff. "This way, sir," he said.

Sidney Griff followed the boy into Charles Fisher's private office.

Charles Fisher's manner was one of beaming cordiality. He advanced with outstretched hand.

"Mr. Griff," he said, "I'm mighty glad to know you. I've heard a good deal of you and have followed some of the cases in which you have appeared with a great deal of interest. Do come in and sit down."

Griff shook hands and dropped into a chair by the lawyer's desk.

"What brings you here specifically?" asked Fisher. "Are you here on business, and if so, is there any way in which our office can be of assistance to you?"

Griff, his eyes fastened upon the lawyer's lips, nodded.

"Yes," he said. "I was here making some investigations about the death of Mr. Frank B. Cathay."

Fisher raised his eyebrows. "Indeed," he said.

Griff remained silent.

Fisher pursed his lips, closed his eyes for a moment in thought,

Blowout Protection? Sure! But NON-SKID GRIP

is 5 1/2 times more necessary to safety
Your big worry should be skidding—the cause of 5 1/2 times more accidents than blowouts. Smooth tires skid 77% farther, other new tires skid 14 to 19% farther, than new "G-3" Goodyear All-Weathers (proved by 8400 tests!) Since this "Goodyear Margin of Safety" costs nothing extra, get it now—ride safely during the slippery driving months.

43% More Miles of Real Non-Skid because "G-3" All-Weather Tread is flatter, wider, heavier, tougher. Blowout-Protected in EVERY ply because Patented Supertwist Cord is up to 61% more elastic—absorbs shocks!

A Great Tube for the "G-3"
It's not only heavy duty—there's thicker tougher rubber on rim-side to resist pinching and punctures. Ask for Goodyear Double Service Tube.

98,000 SCOUTS ARE ADDED TO MOVEMENT

Scouting Has Served Six Million Boys, Writer Learns

BY J. CLAUDE WELLS (Democrat Staff Writer)

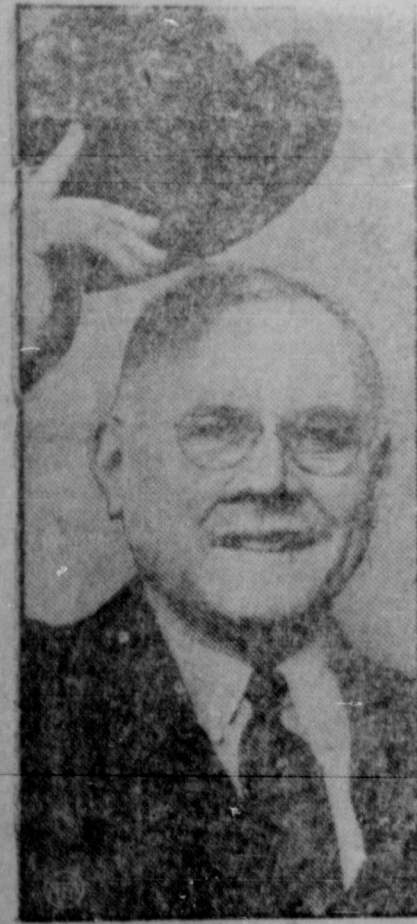

WASHINGTON, — Dr. James E. West, chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America, recently met with local scout officials. Dr. West is one of those men who can inspire all with whom he comes in contact, and makes them realize the importance of the Boy Scout movement in the young life today. Outlining the purposes of scouting he disclosed that in the first seven months of this year 98,000 new members have been enrolled, and that the organization has dealt with more than six million boys in its 24-year existence. Youth has faced a changed social condition in recent years, and many hazards including freedom, due to lack of jobs, are presented to the future American citizens. In urging scout leaders to make their charges civic and socially minded, Dr. West said he was impressed with the movement of youth in some of the foreign nations, although he is not in sympathy with their forms of government.

In a previous article, we attempted to tell how the federal government is beautifying the governmental portion of the District of Columbia. Just this week one of the oldest rows of houses in Washington has fallen under the wrecking tools of workers. They are just west of the Capitol, on lower Pennsylvania avenue, and the squares (blocks) where they stand are to become part of Capitol park. These houses were standing there when the British invaders marched along the avenue in 1814, from the burning Capitol to the White House. One of them was the birthplace, in 1840, of "Marse Henry" Watterson. These old houses in their last dilapidation are the vanishing fragments of Washington's bowery.

President Roosevelt has proclaimed October 12 of each year Columbus Day. This was authorized by Congress April 30, this year. Last Friday, being the first Columbus Day, hundreds of Italians, from the Italian Embassy attaches to the banana peddlers of the streets, of which there are many, gathered at the statue of Columbus, in front of Union Station, and conducted appropriate ceremonies and started the movement that will in the years to come rival the "Juneteenth" celebrated by the colored fraternity in the South. Juneteenth didn't mean anything here, or at least no one heard any celebrating.

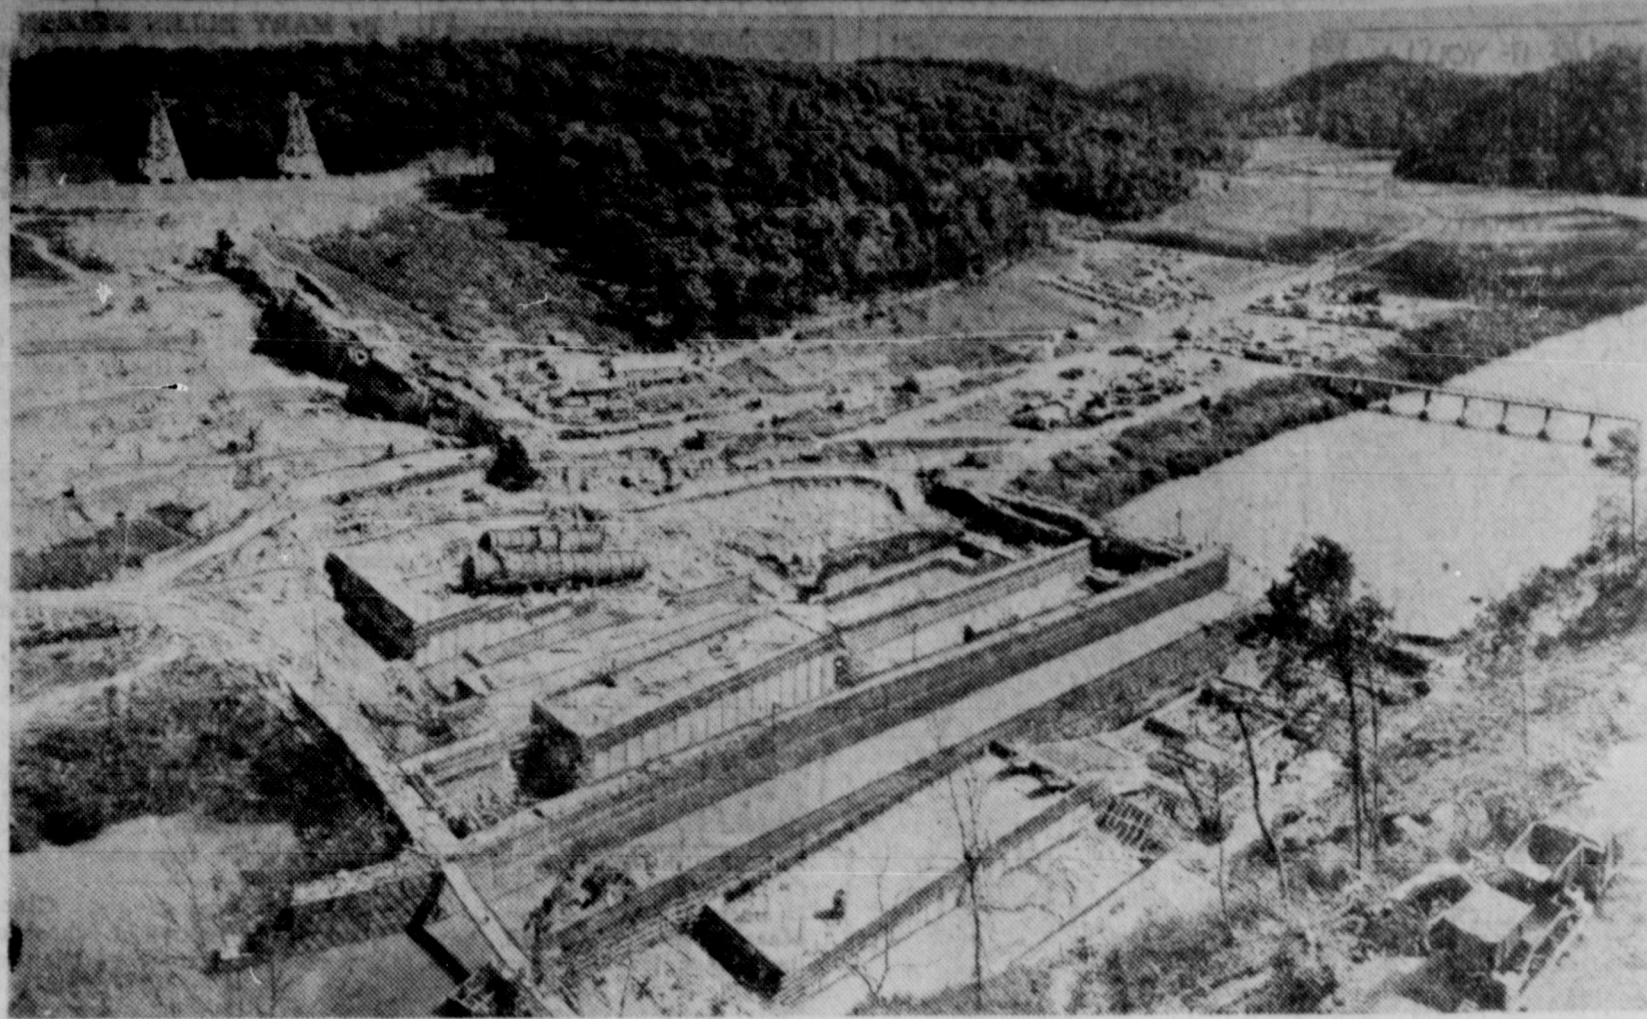

Prof. R. D. W. Connor, American history instructor at University of North Carolina, has been named by the President as the ar-

Green Fit, Gay, Ready for Fray

Smiling and optimistic, but prepared for the battles certain to be waged in the American Federation of Labor annual convention in San Francisco, President William Green is shown here on the conclave scene, where the nation's unions will decide some of the most momentous problems they ever have faced.

Striking Scene of Progress Shown at Norris Dam

With penstocks in place and excavation well under way for the second cofferdam, decided progress in construction of the $37,500,000 Norris dam on the Clinch river in Tennessee is shown in the striking photo at top. Magnitude of the project is illustrated by the vast amount of equipment in the background, the number of buildings reared, and the roads cut through the rolling country in the vicinity of the dam. Below is shown part of the new town of Norris, a permanent community, being built by the Tennessee Valley Authority for dam workers. In the background are some of the new type apartment houses.

chivist of the United States. The salary will be $10,000 a year. All archives or records belonging to the government will be under the charge of Prof. Connor in the new and costly Archives building. Besides its aid to the government and departments, it is possible for the national archives to perform a great service to the country and its intellectual progress, by facilitating and encouraging historical, economic, sociological and statistical studies, it is claimed.

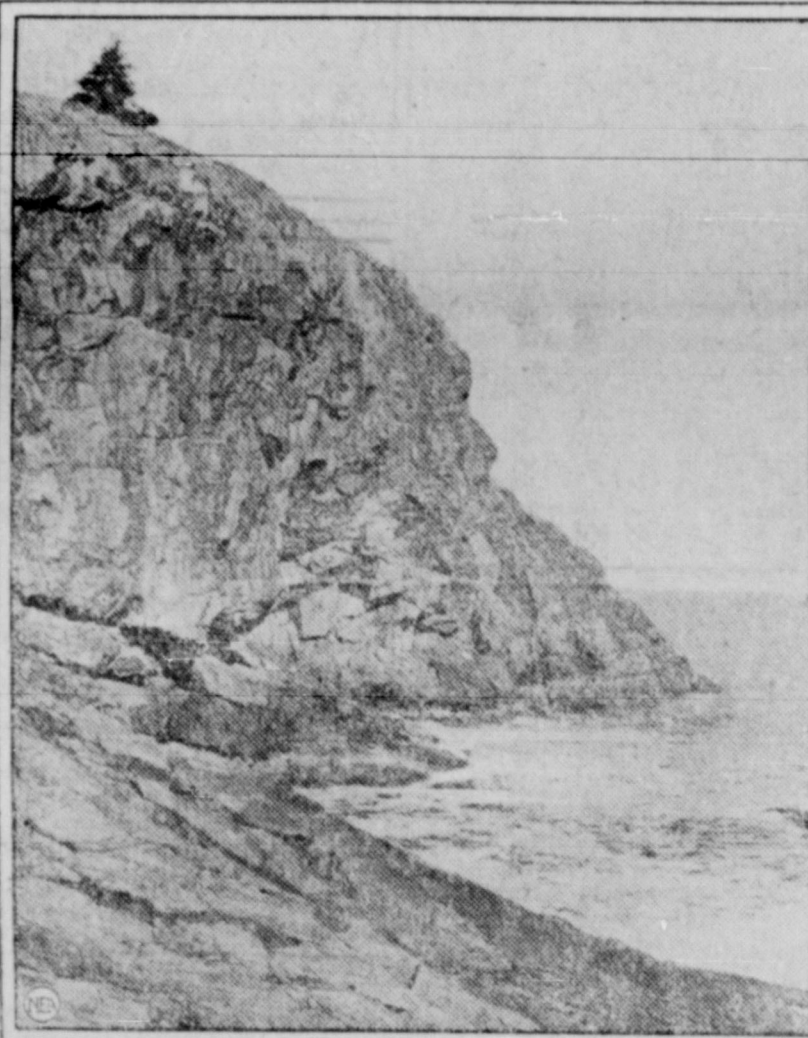

By the way, some of the general committee on the Columbus Day celebration bear such names as: William Amoroso, Federazione, Mrs. Leonina Speciale, Mrs. Oliva Crovoto, Ambasciatrice Maria, Onofrio Carrolo, Unione Fratellanza, Italiana de Umberto Primo, Felice Cavalotti, William Malo, Frank de Nunzio, James Lazzari, Umberto Fontana, Massimiliano Ferzari, and most of them are supposed to be naturalized citizens of America.

The Washington Monument scaffolding has reached the top of the monument—just 555 feet in height. This scaffolding has been erected so that workers may give the monument a good scrubbing and cleaning, but this is not the most important part of the job it is claimed. Workmen are more interested in getting the monument in shape to withstand a century or more of weather wear, patching it up in spots, cleaning out old mortar and putting in new. The cost of the scaffolding alone amounts to about one hundred thousand dollars, and the repair work will be additional. And then the scaffolding will be torn down.

We went to the First Baptist Church of Washington last Sunday morning. First man we met said he was the first graduate of Howard Payne college of Texas. His father was the first president of that institution. This man, Capt. Robbette, is a retired officer from the Navy department. At the Presbyterian church the Sunday before we felt just a little out of place, for there were no announcements, no long sermon, no reference to need for funds for any object, and it made us rather homesick. But at the service Sunday we decided we had stumbled into a church at home. The preacher, Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, a rather scholarly man and deep thinker, started out by making a lot of announcements, passed the plates for incidentals, then passed cards out for subscriptions for several causes, among them being a call for funds to take care of pressing indebtedness on the building. Then the sermon, exceptionally good was so long that we got out at 12:30.

Great Head Rock to Be Shown On New U. S. Postage Stamp

The historic Great Head near Bar Harbor, Me., pictured above, in beautiful Acadia National Park will grace one of the new series of stamps bearing scenes of national parks being issued by the Postoffice Department. The imposing landmark, which has withstood many generations of tourists, served as a stepping stone in 1604 when Champlain landed in Bar Harbor with orders to establish the French dominions in America between the 40th and 46th latitudes.

A Minnesota Congressman says that costly and top-heavy commissions are rapidly undermining the government. He says America is the most commission-ridden country in the world. He says there are more than 200 federal boards, with little responsibility, regulate the lives of the citizens, and that there is not a phase of civil life that does not show the touch of the government's hand or that is not influenced by some regulation of a federal bureau; and when once these bureaus are firmly established and enjoy the support of the public treasury the follow a natural course of expansion, ever asking for increased power and greater appropriations.

Sunday afternoon we had the pleasure of seeing women pilots, a dozen or more, compete in air races, spot landing, bomb dropping, handicap races, and all kinds of stunts with their planes, winding up with two women dropping from planes, and guiding their parachutes toward a white circle in the middle of the field to make spot landings. One of them did not miss the small white circle more than ten feet. The other, however, got her chute all tangled up in the brush and a rescue squad had a time getting her loose. Mr. Beard, who was Lindbergh's first instructor was on hand and was introduced to the public. Also, ambassadors from the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics with their families and attaches were introduced. They looked almost like humans.

This Isn't Just Talk!

For nearly a year, now, rumors have been coming from London regarding the intimate friendship of Gertrude Lawrence, British actress, and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Who can be blamed considering this friendship a serious love affair, when confronted with this photograph?

Keep Marriage Details Secret

Barbara Fritchie, Boston society girl turned actress, eloped with J. Ross Clark, 2d, one of California's wealthiest bachelors, the couple revealed in New York where they are honeymooning. But they tell where the ceremony was performed, saying only it was "where in the East."

Tech Reaches High Of 2,420 Enrolled

LUBBOCK, Oct. 25.—A record enrollment of 2,420 students at Texas Technological college has necessitated the addition of five new faculty members since the regular appointments by the board of directors. "This enrollment," stated Dr. Bradford Knapp, president, "is an approximate increase of 25 per cent over that of last year, and includes registration of students through October 18."

Cyclone Seeks Victory Over Turkey Tomorrow Night

CRIPPLED CLUB MAY BE GIVEN GOOD FIGHT

Turkey Puts Up Its Best Battle With Local Eleven

Going into what apparently amounts to the semi-finals of the sectional football championship race, the Memphis Cyclone clashes with Turkey's Turks under the floodlights of Fair Park stadium tomorrow night.

This game stands in the way of the black and gold gridders going into the tilt that probably will decide the sectional titlist with a clean record, and the charges of Coach Chesty Walker does not intend to let it interfere with that record.

Plays Best Game

From all indications, it is not likely to do so. The Cyclone is favored by a substantial margin, but at the same time, it is generally recognized that the club from the southern section of the county always plays its finest game against the Cyclone.

Next week the local gridders have the toughest battle of the season within the section. They journey to Wellington to clash with the favored Skyrocks, who have run up a record of five consecutive victories this season and are expected to take an easy conference game from Quitaque tomorrow night.

Physical Setback

Facing a physical setback of bruises, charlie horses and sore and stiff muscles, the Cyclone has taken things easy this week so far as physical contact is concerned. They have avoided scrimmages, but at the same time they have worked hard on dummy plays to enforce their defense and have gone through exercises and given special attention in an attempt to rub out the sore spots left by last week's tough battle with the Miami Warriors. The fact that the injuries have not responded greatly, leaving the club in its worst physical shape of several weeks, indicates the club may not have such an easy time against the Turks as the dopsters might figure.

Tomorrow night's game starts at 8 o'clock. Admission is 25 and 50 cents.

25,000 CLIENTS TO GET STATE ASSISTANCE

Eligible for Rural Rehabilitation in Texas

AUSTIN, Oct. 25.—More than 25,000 clients have been certified as eligible for rural rehabilitation in Texas, it has been announced by J. E. Stanford, head of the rural rehabilitation department of the Texas Relief commission.

Field staff of the department has leased from landlords 26,121 acres of land and has caused to be repaired 1,102 houses to be occupied by rehabilitated clients.

Stanford said 666 families already have been placed on the improved farms and are being furnished with the necessary capital goods for making a living.

Community work centers, an important phase of the rural rehabilitation program are being considered at 86 points over the state and approximately 20 are expected to be under construction shortly.

"In addition," Stanford said, "more than 2,000 relief roll families, both tenants and landlords already residing on the farm but who will not occupy leased houses and subsistence plots have been contacted and taken actively into the program by rural supervisors. These families will receive the same consideration as those occupying leased and repaired residences."

Relief Investigation Resolution Is Killed

AUSTIN, Oct. 24.—A resolution to provide for investigation of relief administration by a special legislative committee was killed yesterday in the Texas house despite vigorous pleas that present relief allotments were inadequate
