MEMPHIAN DIES IN CRASH

THREE ARE HURT IN HEAD-ON COLLISION OF SPEEDING AUTOS

Forrest Power, 38, Dies Shortly After Cars Crash on Highway Near Estelline; Jimmie Bass, Two Others Are Injured

Forrest Power, 38, of Memphis, is dead and three others are in hospitals today as the result of a head-on automobile collision near Estelline last night.

Jimmie Bass, local business man, is in the Memphis Hospital suffering minor injuries, and Charlie Skinner of Tell, and Ernest Skinner of Lakeview, are in Childress hospitals for treatment of injuries that may prove serious.

The accident occurred less than a quarter of a mile south of Estelline on a curve on Highway 5. The two local men were riding in a late model coupe, enroute to Memphis after spending the afternoon in Childress on business. Their car collided head-on with an early model sedan in which the other two men were riding. Both cars were traveling fast, witnesses declared. The accident occurred at about 7:15 o'clock.

Mr. Power died at a local hospital at about 10:30 o'clock after he and Bass were brought here by W. T. Hart, who operates a store on the highway near where the accident occurred. He died of internal injuries, attending physicians stated.

Mr. Bass was reported this morning as "resting nicely." He Ernest Skinner is probably the most seriously injured of the survivors. His left leg is badly crushed and may have to be amputated, according to Troy George, of Estelline, who assisted in pulling the injured men from the wreckage. His nose is broken and possibly other bones are broken, George said this morning. He is about 23 years of age, George said.

Charlie Skinner, who is about 35 years of age, has an arm and several ribs broken and possible internal injuries, Mr. George said.

Shortly after the accident Charlie and Ernest Skinner were taken to Childress hospitals for treatment by Norman Bell, of Estelline, and the two Memphis men were brought to a local hospital by W. T. Hart. Both cars were almost completely demolished in the accident, which is the second to occur near Estelline in the past few days. According to residents of Estelline the sedan is damaged beyond repair. The badly smashed body was driven completely off the chassis, Mr. George told a Democrat reporter this morning.

The late model coupe in which the two local men were riding was also badly damaged in the accident. The entire motor compartment is smashed and the left front wheel and the axle are broken. The steering wheel was bent double, and the entire steering apparatus was forced through the windshield. The gear-shift rod was twisted as if it had been bent around a post, and the entire front seat was jammed against the dash board. All four occupants of both cars were pinned in the wreckage and were unconscious when pulled out by witnesses and those who gathered at the scene shortly after the accident.

Funeral services for Power had not been announced this morning. Forrest Power was reared in Memphis and attended high school here. He had resided here for the past year, moving back to Memphis from Fort Worth where he had resided for the past several years. Mr. Power is employed with the Popular Dry Goods company here. Power is survived by his widow and one daughter, June. The deceased is survived by his mother, Mrs. J. R. Power, who reside here. He is also survived by his mother, Mrs. J. R. Power, of Childress, three brothers, A. Power, of Childress, Wortham Power, of Dallas, and Holly Power, of Arkansas City, Kan., and one sister, Miss Lloyd Power, of Seymour.

Officers in Fight With 'Pretty Boy'

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 13.—State Agent A. G. Haight of the Iowa Bureau of Investigation telephoned headquarters here that he and Sheriff Tollof Johnson of Howard county, Iowa, engaged in a gun battle with Pretty Boy Floyd, Oklahoma outlaw, and two other men near McIntyre yesterday afternoon.

Haight reported that Floyd and his companions escaped in a black light model sedan (Iowa license 41-875) into Minnesota. The car was mud-splashed and contained several bullet holes, scars of the gun fight, Haight reported.

The Bureau of Investigation said that presumably no one was injured in the gun battle, since Haight made no mention of injuries.

Wide Net Spread The agent reported that the outlaws possessed a machine gun and several automatic rifles. He

SUSPECT TAKEN IN KIDNAPING OF WOMAN

Ransom Paid, Stoll Announces After Dash from Home

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—Ransom for Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll has been paid and the family is awaiting instructions, it was announced today by Berry V. Stoll, husband of the young society matron who was snatched from their fashionable country home near here Wednesday.

CHARLESTON, W. V., Oct. 12.—Walter Childers, 29, was taken into custody today for questioning about the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Stoll, after officers said they found tufts of brunette hair and strips of white cloth in an automobile Childers sold to an automobile wrecking company, winter.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—Berry V. Stoll dashed from his home in an automobile today, lending credence to persistent reports that there is reason to believe the family had, or expected soon, to make contact with the man who kidnaped young Mrs. Stoll.

came a renewed request from Stoll through William S. Krammerer, their spokesman, that no airplanes fly over the vicinity of the place. The taking into custody for questioning in Charleston, W. V., today of a suspect named Walter Childers, Charleston, was coincident with Stoll's departure, but there was no announcement whether he might have started for Charleston.

TWO KILLED AS TRAIN HITS COACHES

One Passenger Falls In Path of Another Speeding Train

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Oct. 12.—Two persons were killed, two critically injured and six others less seriously hurt today when a fast Rock Island passenger train derailed six miles east of here and three cars tumbled into an on-rushing passenger train from the opposite direction. The fatal crash was the second train wreck in Iowa within 24 hours, piling up the death toll of six, with over 21 injured.

12 Adult Classes Have 251 Students

Twelve free adult education classes have already been organized in Memphis with 251 students enrolled and efforts are under way this week to complete the organization of at least eight more, according to Supt. H. A. Jackson, chairman of the Central committee for the organization of classes in Hall county.

Classes have already been organized in citizenship, public speaking, woodcraft, literature, music appreciation, art, home-making, handicraft, and sewing. Special attention of local business men is being called by Mr. Jackson to a class in citizenship being sponsored by the Memphis Rotary club. H. A. Finch has been designated as the teacher of this class which will deal with the historical background of civics, the development of the constitution, the study of state government and municipal government, present day economical conditions and modern social trends.

Those interested in taking this free course are urged to get in touch with Mr. Finch immediately in order that the class may be organized at the same time other classes in the city began study. The class is being planned for business and professional men and women and will meet in three one hour classes daily. Times and places for classes to meet is to be determined by those attending.

the last few years of his life to it as a matter in chancery. Recently it was settled, probably for good, Judge Bennett's decision in substance validated the title of persons living on the land. As a result a big development is expected in that tract of fine land at the northern tip of Cameron county. Much citrus and other agricultural development will probably take place along with some oil development in view of the new field in Hidalgo county.

OLDEST SUIT IN STATE GIVEN DECISION

Old Spanish Grant Is Involved in 18-Year-Old Suit

By Associated Press BROWNSVILLE, Oct. 11.—One of the oldest and in many respects most unusual lawsuits in the state has been brought to a close here and as a result a 49,000-acre tract of land valued at $3,000,000 is expected to be opened to development.

The case is known as the Ojo de Agua case. It first came into the courts of Texas in 1916 and for 18 years remained there, at times going up to the supreme court then back to the original scene of action.

All of the 1,300 litigants assume there will be no appeal from the decision which has just been given here by Judge Fred Bennett sitting as special judge.

The tract of land in question was an original Spanish grant. The descendants of the grantee merely moved out a certain distance from their ancestral home and built themselves houses when they married. There was plenty of land for everybody and nobody bothered about partitions.

It is claimed that some persons not members of the family moved on land and lived there peacefully. Early in the present century, however, when the land began to have more value each occupant decided to fence what he thought was his and a sort of partition thus took place.

In 1916 the Browne Land & Cattle company, which had purchased considerable land in the tract, sold some of it. When the purchaser started to take possession he found people living there.

Then the famous suit began. Pilar Villareal filed suit against the Browne Land & Cattle company and others, claiming title to the land.

Eventually all persons living on the tract and all connected with it were cited into court until eventually there were 1,300 parties to the suit.

The late Judge Scott devoted

Tree-Planting To Save Plains From Erosion, Is Claim

Special To The Democrat
DALHART, Oct. 11.—H. H. Finnell director of the Dalhart Wind Erosion Control project of 30,000 acres, said tree-planting would aid plains region agricul- ture.

"A consistent program of tree-planting carried out years ago would have saved the Panhandle from much erosion injury the past two years," Finnell said.

"There have been enough trees planted to have these plains a waving mass of green but the planters have not put the trees in low places where water stands after rain to insure their lives but have wanted them where they wanted them with reference to their house or barn."

Finnell said he plans to set out 30,000 trees in the erosion control project as roadside windbreaks for cultivated fields. The trees will be Russian olive, apricot and Chinese elm.

Built Up Strength By Taking Cardui

Here's her own account of how Mrs. T. W. Hardin, of Greer, S. C., was benefited by taking Cardui: "I suffered a great deal from weakness in my back and pains in my side and felt so miserable," she writes. "I read of Cardui and decided to try it. I felt better after I took my first bottle, so kept on taking it as I felt such a need of strength, and it helped me so much."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

It's Not Hard! -Just Try It!

RULES

- The letters in each of the accompanying ten anagrams when arranged properly will spell the names of ten well-known food and grocery items. You are invited to solve the anagrams, then arrange them in a sentence of not more than 30 words (you may use less if you wish), and try for one of the ten prizes.
- To the persons who send in the best entries in accordance with these rules. The Democrat will give a free basket of groceries and ten tickets to the Ritz Theatre. The basket of groceries will be offered as first prize, two tickets to the Ritz as second prize, and one ticket each to the next eight contestants.
- This offer is open to all except employees of The Democrat and their families. You pay nothing.
- Awards will be made on the basis of the most nearly correct list of anagrams and the cleverest sentence. Simply rearrange the letters in each anagram to spell the name of a food or grocery item. Then check the food and grocery ads in today's Democrat and place a cross mark in the square if you find the item advertised. If the item is NOT advertised make NO mark.

Then arrange the ten grocery items found in the anagrams into a sentence of not more than thirty (30) words. You may use less if you wish.

All entries will be considered by a committee appointed by the Democrat. Contestants agree to accept the decisions of the committee as final. Judgment will be based upon suitability of words inserted, accuracy in checking, cleverness in arranging the sentence, time submitted and neatness. No special consideration will be given elaborate entries. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded to tying contestants.

All entries must be received at the Democrat office by four o'clock Saturday afternoon.

You need not purchase the Democrat to compete. You may use the handy blank submitted here, or you may submit your entry on a separate sheet of paper.

Winners will be announced in Sunday's Democrat.

HANDY ENTRY BLANK

In the blank space below I have rearranged the letters in the anagrams to spell the names of the grocery items which I think to be the solution of today's game. The ones checked with a cross mark thus X are advertised in today's Democrat.

ANAGRAM	SOLUTION
1. RAKO	_____ <input type="checkbox"/>
2. UPRTIGFER	_____ <input type="checkbox"/>
3. HARESDIS	_____ <input type="checkbox"/>
4. DOOCVAAS	_____ <input type="checkbox"/>
5. ONESDOL	_____ <input type="checkbox"/>
6. ITHESWAE	_____ <input type="checkbox"/>
7. YOHNIM	_____ <input type="checkbox"/>
8. RAKESUTUAR	_____ <input type="checkbox"/>
9. REGNIG	_____ <input type="checkbox"/>
10. NURESP	_____ <input type="checkbox"/>

I have used all of today's anagram solutions in the following sentence of not more than 30 words:

My Name _____

I buy my groceries at _____

If awarded a prize, I want my order drawn on the store checked below:

City Grocery () Crawford Grocery ()
Memphis Grocery Co. () 'M' System ()
Chitwood's Market ()

(Place cross mark after name of store you want your order drawn on).

CHAPTER XLVIII (Conclusion)

The three well-dressed people in new traveling clothes rode across the wide, jagged streets of the city. Mrs. Raeburn, smart and flushed in her brown tailored suit, leaned forward to peer out of the taxi.

"Chicago!" she said triumphantly. "Why, it's just like New York—noise and all. But smokier." Mr. Raeburn glanced at him with interest. When he alighted from the cab at the concourse of the other station he dragged his bad leg just a little. Otherwise he was a sturdy enough looking elderly man in a neat grey, with a blue sash on a leather strap in blue with the two elder people was rather silent. She smiled when they spoke to her, but her bright amber-flecked eyes had a far-away look about them.

She went off to buy magazines and her mother said, with some perplexity and dissatisfaction: "Well, I declare, I don't know what we're coming to. One minute she isn't coming with us and the next she is. I haven't yet got over the shock of her having told me she wasn't going to marry Edward Van Seiver."

"Oh, stop fretting, mother. You know you're delighted she's with us, instead of half way across the Atlantic."

"Of course, I am. Of course, I am. But I can't make the child out. She seems to be going around about half awake."

Boots' return interrupted this colloquy. She had two bright-colored periodicals under her arm and the morning edition of a New York newspaper.

"Look, darlings, will wonders never end?"

She showed them the headlines over a smiling photograph of Edward.

"Scion of Wealth Marries His Nurse"

"S. S. Olympic, at Sea," the story read. "Edward Houghton Van Seiver, only son of H. B. Van Seiver of Amalgamated Steel, was married today aboard ship to Miss Veronia Mary Kerrigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kerrigan of Staten Island. Miss Kerrigan has been Mr. Van Seiver's nurse ever since he was injured in a serious motor accident two months ago."

"Well, I never!" Mrs. Raeburn looked indignant. "So that was what he was up to!"

Boots laughed. A cheerful sound it was in the big vaulted room. Two or three people turned to watch her rosy young face with interest.

"Oh, Mums, you know it was nothing of the kind," she protested. "You know we just decided we weren't suited to each other."

Her maternal parent sniffed incredulously. "Looks like it."

thoughts. He was leaner than she remembered him. His dark, odd little blue eyes wore that puzzled little boy frown she knew so well.

"Boots!" He said it again, lingeringly. "It really is you!" Then he was in the little collapsible chair beside hers and his lean, nervous fingers were braced around her own. She was laughing shakily and saying that of course it was. What did he think?

"I thought," he, paused and steadied himself, "I thought you were on the high seas now—and married. . . . You haven't—haven't seen the papers?" "What? No, I haven't." She had the clipping in her bag; Edwards' picture. She put it into his hand.

"But I don't see. He didn't. . . . No, of course." Her clear laugh rang out joyously. "He didn't jilt me, did he—only—only a letter." "It was," she added demurely, in the pages of some book he was reading. "The Murder of Maria"—something like that.

"Ah!" He reddened, comprehension lighting his eyes. He leaned closer. "You—you little devil, you!" "Why didn't you—" she stammered, overcome by the flood of exquisite emotion which threatened to engulf her, "why didn't you mail it to me, Denis?" "You mean—you mean you broke with Edward because of me?"

She nodded. "Oh, my darling!" There was a long, murmurous interlude then during which the men said things for her ear only. Porters ran the length of the cement strip of platform; bells clanged and engines whistled; grimy men hung out of engine

Startled out of her dream, she heard her name spoken in an incredulous undertone. "Boots! Or am I dreaming?" Ecstasy, ecstasy! If I open my eyes, she thought, I'll be awake. His voice has never been so real in a dream before.

But she was awake. The smell of city dust and the smoke from puffing engines, the clangor of the city sounded all about her. Waveringly she opened her eyes. There before he stood the man who had been occupying her cabs and shoted cryptic nothings to oilers below. The train moved. . . . Two or three staid people with novels in their hands came to the door of the observation platform and looked curiously at the young people sitting so close together there. Boots and Denis were oblivious to all of this. Their train ran past factories, past bridges and signals. It ran rhythmically past roundhouses and towers and clicked over the ties past shoddy houses with chicken coops and metal roofed garages. Boots and Denis were in Arcady; their hands linked, their ardent faces close together, they wandered in sweet-scented fields were only bright-faced flowers grew.

"And you're going to California, too," she marveled after a long interval. "I can't believe it." "We'll be married as soon as we get there," he said. "No good wasting more time. We've done enough of that already."

He had a place near San Jose. It was just a small ranch—a mere 50 acres, he told her, deprecatingly. It had a comfortable old house on it. They'd live there half the year while he worked. Then New York the rest of the time. . . .

"I can't give you what Edward would have," he told her. But she had her hands upon his lips, silencing them.

"What I can't understand is how you happen to be on this train just now," she marveled. "I thought you were on the South Seas—"

He had taken a fruit boat, he told her, bound for San Domingo. But he'd been eaten by a fever of restlessness. He'd got off at Charleston and stayed there a few days, trying to play, trying to work. Nothing had seemed right. He had taken a train for Chicago.

"And now—this!" They stared at each other, overcome with the wonder of it all. Mrs. Raeburn, passing through the last car in a rather anxious search for Boots, a deferential trainman in her wake, passed as though suddenly struck dumb.

"See the young lady?" the official prompted cheerfully. "Yes, I—I see her. Sorry to have bothered you. It's quite all right."

The good lady sat down at one of the little baize-covered writing tables. Almost automatically she drew pen and paper toward her and started to write. "Dear Florida: Boots is happy at last"

IF YOU want to buy gasoline CHEAP, by all means get Phillips UNIQUE. It is a good gas at a cut price . . . an excellent value because it more than meets U. S. Government specifications for Motor Grade gasoline. It is equal or superior to other motor fuels sold at a similar cut price.

But if you want the MOST ECONOMICAL gasoline, we frankly do not recommend this cut-price grade. We sincerely say that you will save more money and get more pleasure out of motoring with Phillips 66 . . . the greater gasoline.

It contains Lead Tetraethyl to give it the highest possible anti-knock at its price. Its high test rating (gravity) is always at the highest point possible under our process of CONTROLLED VOLATILITY, which matches Phillips 66 to your location and weather . . . "100% custom-tailored gasoline."

It starts cold motors with split second speed. Needs less choke and hence delivers more miles per gallon. Reduces vibration, increases power. Cuts down and steps up speed. Cuts down on other gas even at this price. These are the reasons why there is a difference in money-saving facts for getting a Phillips 66 at any Black 66.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT MOTION PICTURES

RITZ
 A tender romance that stirs the heart with its depth of human feeling is offered in "Have a Heart," first starring vehicle for Jean Parker, whose vivid talents have raised her to the highest Hollywood rating. The picture opened last night at the Ritz Theater.

As "Sally," the crippled doll maker, who finds love in spite of her handicap, Miss Parker plays a complete range of feeling from depths of pathos to sparkling comedy.

James Dunn, in the male lead as Jimmie Flaherty, vendor of "Have a Heart" ice cream, is warmly sympathetic and makes an ideal romantic partner.

Notable for their contributions in the supporting cast are Una Merkel, as Joan, Miss Parker's friend, who sense of humor saves many a difficult situation, and Stuart Erwin in the role of Gus, a would-be millionaire who finally settles for two hundred dollars a month.

PALACE
 Chester Morris and Mae Clark are showing at the Palace theater in the fast-moving comedy-drama "Let's Talk It Over."

The picture is entirely "in fun" and it is filled with plenty of that type of action. It is the story of a number of sailors who get "shipwrecked" on society's smartest beach at Newport, and one of the gobs falls for an heiress. He wants to marry her—and he has a real time of it attempting to reach this objective.

The picture is filled with entertaining circumstances that any lover of comedy will enjoy.

Stock Market Is Shut Down Today

All stock markets are closed today in observance of Columbus Day, and no cotton or grain markets or New York stock reports will be given in today's Democrat.

When the New York and New Orleans cotton exchanges closed yesterday afternoon, cotton futures were up from 23 to 25 points or approximately $1.25 a bale. The jump in markets was unexpected and trading throughout the day was so brisk that yesterday's high, in a number of cases, was more than 30 points above the high of the previous day.

OCCASION—Fourth game on Cyclone schedule, seeking third straight victory on new home field.

With their most powerful line-up on the field at the opening gun, the Memphis Cyclone goes against the Claude Mustangs in what appears to be its toughest game thus far here, tonight under the floodlights of Fair Park stadium.

Prepared to keep its slowly increasing record of no defeats on the new gridiron intact, the Cyclone is ready to show more strength and cunning tonight than ever before.

OHIO STATE AT TOP OF BIG TEN PLAY

Starting with 32-0 Win Over Indiana, Head for Illini

By RED GRANGE
CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—With a startling 33 to 0 victory over Indiana Saturday, Ohio State shouldered its way into the front rank of Big Ten contenders, thereby increasing the importance of the impending brush with the fighting Illini Oct. 20.

In his inaugural, Francis Schmidt of Ohio gave emphatic notice that he will get along all right in Western Conference competition.

Illinois had a close call against Washington University of St. Louis and the experience should prove valuable. To be pressed clear up to the final gun by an good mental message for the Illini, and should show results in the Ohio game.

Against Northwestern Saturday, Iowa showed as fine a running attack as these old eyes have seen in many a day.

In Oze Simmons, 177-pound negro sophomore from Fort Worth, Texas, Ossie Solem has the flashiest and shiftest back in the Big Ten.

With Dick Crayne, the hard-running 190-pound Hawk full-back, Simmons will continue to give opponents a tough defensive problem. They must strike a happy medium between tightening up to stop Crayne's terrific drives into the line and back to the weak side, and spreading to stop wide sprints by Simmons.

Iowa disclosed no passing attack, an essential for consistent winning in the Big Ten. The success of their running plays made it hardly necessary for the Hawks to take to the air. What Solem has been kept under cover for use when needed.

Iowa has shown a weakness in pass defense, and must improve in this department before facing Nebraska.

The 19 first downs and 431 yards from scrimmage which the Minnesota powerhouse rolled up against the perennially strong Nebraska bodes no good for Pittsburgh, the Gophers' next opponent. Minnesota loafs next Saturday, and the rest will be beneficial before the Gophers meet the Panthers Oct. 20.

Some of the edge has been taken off the impending Purdue-Notre Dame game as a result of the defeats handed the two teams by Rice Institute and the University of Texas, respectively.

Purdue will look like a different team, however, when Duane Purvis gets back in there. He was out of the Rice game with a bad ankle.

Notre Dame should pick up power as it fights its way up the comeback trail.

It should occasion no great surprise if Chicago comes through with a victory over the deflated Michigan Wolverines, although you can count on Harry Kipke to bounce right up throwing punches. Northwestern makes a long journey out to Palo Alto, Calif., where the Wildcats will spend a busy afternoon trying to halt the threats of Bobby Grayson, Stanford's fullback, who is of All-America caliber.

BATTLE OPENS RIVALRY OF ELEVENS

Much Interest Displayed Over Tilt At Lakeview

Special to The Democrat
LAKEVIEW, Oct. 12.—Football rivalry with all its color and excitement comes to this city for the first time this afternoon as the High school gridders clash with the Hedley Owls here.

The game was slated to begin at 2:30 o'clock. With interest high, several hundred fans were expected to be on hand at that time.

Although defeated at the hands of the Turkey Turks, the locals have made a commendable start upon their first football venture. Coach Clark has some fine, hefty material, and under his tutelage, the club has progressed rapidly, what with every man on the team new to the game as it is played by high school elevens.

Today's battle is expected to start a rivalry between the two clubs that will become one of the leading lights in the teams' schedules, and probably that will later spread to include other elevens of this section.

Whatever the outcome, the spirit displayed here before the game indicated that the game is here to stay.

RICKY CORALS CASTOFFS AND CARDS CLICK MERRILY ON

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12.—The astuteness of Branch Rickey, curator of rare ivory in the country, by the St. Louis Cardinals, is vindicated once more—by the mere analysis of the lineup with which the Crimson Canaries entered the world series.

Rickey may befuddle the average ball player on the field with correct English and high-powered fords, but it has been many years since he trusted himself to mingle with athletes on the hoof.

The idea persists that Branch theorized the Cardinals out of a couple of pennants back in the good old days when the Red Birds still had that first one to win, but everybody knows how the reformed psychology professor gave himself one of his own treatments and put Rogers Hornsby in charge of the athletes.

That date, June 1, 1925, marked the beginning of the real success of the Cardinal enterprise of corralling the best ivory available—and jockeying the market.

Ten baseball seasons have gone by since that memorable date, but the Cardinal system still is clicking—better and better every year. And the system does not consist merely of buying up all of the hungry young ivory running at large.

Mr. Rickey is Canny
A large part of the success is due to the canniness of Rickey in choosing the precise moment at which it will do the Cardinals the most good to exchange one bit of ivory which is on the verge of becoming shopworn for another and better bit which somebody else owns.

The knack lies in picking out the exact approach of the "verge."

Now look at that lineup! Several important members of it are products not of the vaunted system of trapping all the good young players while they really are young, but of Rickey's equally efficient system of grabbing off somebody else's player. Rickey always has something valuable to trade you.

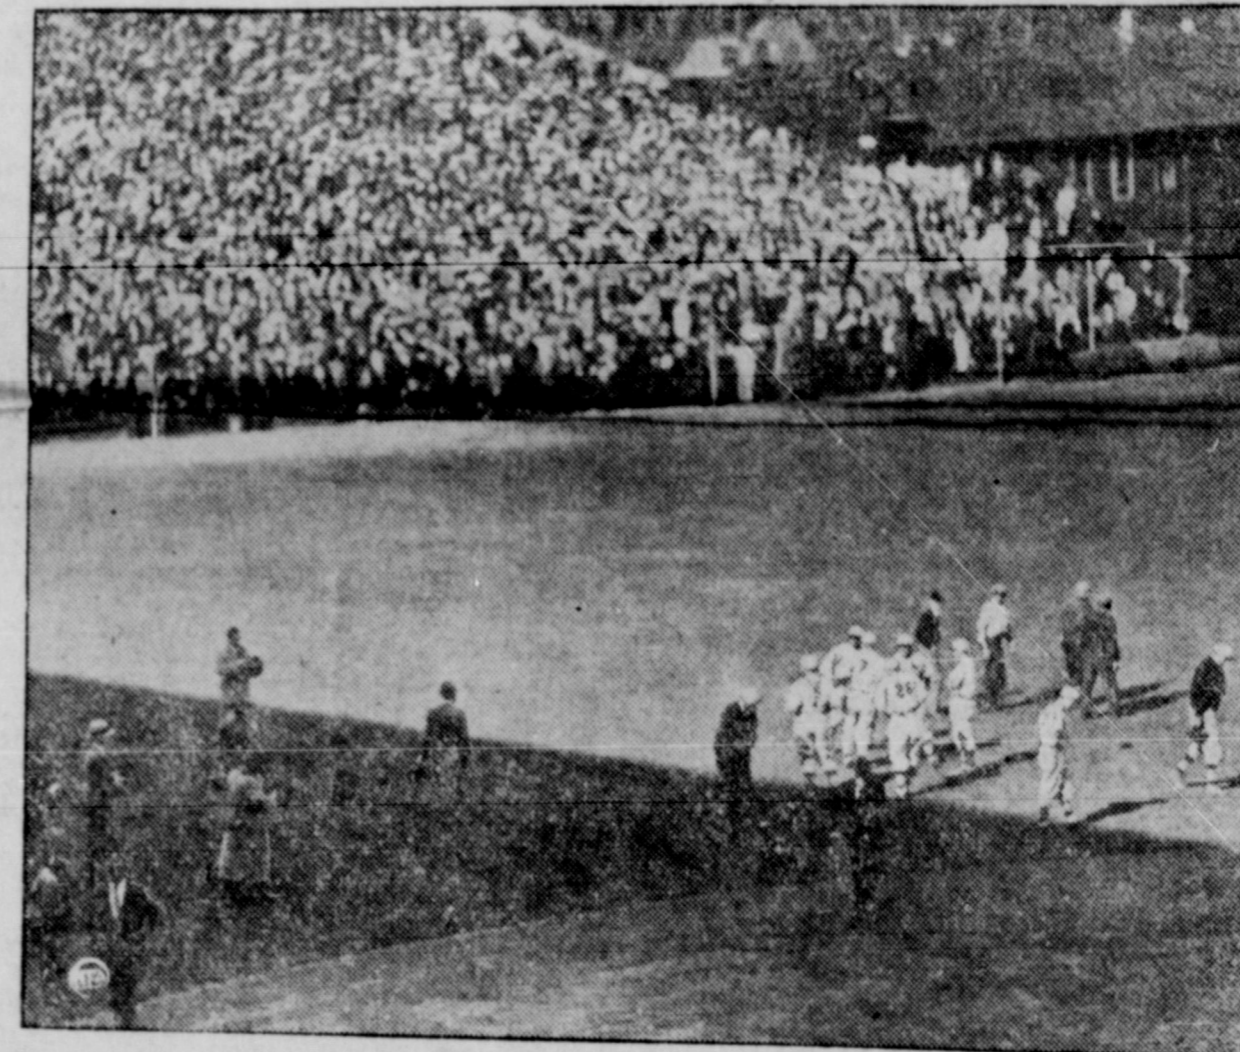

Rickey obtained Frankie Frisch by catching the late John McGraw in an avaricious mood just when Hornsby had passed the peak of his value to the Cards. Hornsby watched the 1934 world series from a choice box. Frisch, you doubtless will recall, had a hand in one or two important plays.

Jack Rothrock, turned down by the despised Red Sox, was shifted back to Columbus (a Cardinal rookery) by the White Sox in a

As Cardinals Win World Series

Back to the home plate boxes moved the parade, and Judge Landis, indicated by arrow, went into conference with Manager Frisch, shown before him right, and Medwick, left. Back of them were arrayed the photographers and behind the cameramen Owen, No. 8, waited. After mulling over the situation, Medwick went to the dugout, Owen back to the third sack, the other players resumed their positions, Fullis going to left field, play went on, and peace descended over the battleground.

The fans in the left field stands clamored for vengeance, when Ducky strolled out to take up his position in the left garden for the last half of the sixth stanza. Pop bottles sang through the air, vegetables and fruit came in a shower. Ducky was signaled back to the infield. He went in, then came back to the pasture, but once more the irate fans showered him. Umpires, players, photographers, and groundkeepers rushed out and went into a huddle, so—minor trade—all because he once had been known to have a broken ankle—Rothrock comes back and plays a strong hand for the Cards through their fight for the pennant and in the world series.

The White Sox obtained for him one Evar Swanson, who is not likely to be in the American League in 1935.

Generous Mr. McGraw
The same McGraw, who so kindly presented Frisch to the Cardinals, may be blamed for Rickey's possession of one William Walker, a better-than-average left-hander in anybody's league. The Giants got for him—who remembers? It was Gus Mancuso, a pretty fair country catcher and a couple other guys.

Leo Durocher hit the Yankees back around 1928, but that's all he did hit. With seven or eight .350 hitters on the club, Durocher faced an impossible task. He was kept around only because he was a master "jockey," and kept the great batters amused. Other big league clubs also decided Leo couldn't hit the Atlantic Ocean with an oar.

Only Rickey seemed inclined to charge the young man with being a predatory shortstop of a most dangerous variety.

Once Durocher landed in Cincinnati, he was as good as in Rickey's clutches. Leo moved up

Returns to Conference Play One Set

Special to The Democrat
TURKEY, Oct. 12.—The key Turks are in a conference today to make their plans for the 1934 season. B high school football season.

Although there were some optimistic reports on the part of one here who was expected to have a hard, tough season, many fans followed the battle.

Turkey made its conference honor, but out success, falling to left Wellington School as the most plucky in the section, 34-0, having turned in two victories.

The club was reported today, intent upon the Silverton crew on making it as best on other champions.

The game was to be at 8 o'clock this afternoon, but left Turkey this morning to be at the scene good while before tapered off on the day, with the main ready for the start.

OUR ONLY HOPE IS TO GET RID OF ELY

THE Democrat was amazed at a news dispatch from Quannah a few days ago which stated the chamber of commerce of that neighboring city has gone on record as favoring the reappointment of Judge W. R. Ely of Abilene to the highway commission.

It is surprising to us how anyone who lives in the Panhandle or close by could favor Judge Ely's continuation in office. This newspaper sincerely hopes that Governor-Elect Allred will realize that sentiment of a majority of Panhandle people is bitterly against Judge Ely, and that our now famous highway "gaps" will likely never be filled in while Ely holds office.

For years we, like hundreds of others, were of the opinion that Ely was "a friend of the Panhandle." But it was all apple sauce and soft soap. He posed as sympathizing with us in our highway problems, but when the showdown came he only made fun of us.

"You don't have enough traffic up there," Judge Ely told a delegation of Panhandle road boosters in Austin a short time ago, "and if you got paved roads in proportion to the taxes you pay you wouldn't have any."

And that's the kind of man we have on the highway commission from West Texas. How can we expect to close the gaps in our highways up here as long as Judge Ely has that antagonistic attitude. The safest plan, The Democrat believes, is to get rid of Judge Ely.

Farther north in the Panhandle, where unpaved highway gaps are even more annoying than they are to us here in Hall county, the people are sure enough solution is to have someone from the Panhandle appointed to the highway commission in Judge Ely's place—someone who knows the road situation in this country and will fight to the last ditch for the Panhandle's just dues.

Friends of T. E. Johnson, managing editor of the Amarillo Daily News, are grooming him for the appointment. Many Memphis people know Johnson, who grew up in this part of the country. The Democrat knows that no other man has done as much to promote road building in the Panhandle as Johnson, and surely no other man is as familiar with our present road situation.

We would like to see a connected system of roads in the Panhandle by Centennial year, and we believe the appointment of T. E. Johnson to the highway commission is a most important step in this direction. Otherwise, we may stay in the dirt and mud indefinitely.

GEN. MITCHELL AGAIN GIVES US THOUGHT

YOU can always count on Gen. William E. Mitchell to say something that will start an argument. His most recent outburst—in which he told the Federal Aviation Commission, among other things, that the United States should proceed to build at least 50 dirigibles along the lines of the Macon—ought to provoke discussion that will last for many days.

Laying aside the general's fondness for saying startling things just to roil the tempers of military bigwigs, it ought to be added that where aviation is concerned he has a pretty good knowledge of what he is talking about.

That is to say, if General Mitchell still believes in the dirigible as a military weapon, it might be worth our while to re-examine the question thoroughly—in spite of the disillusionment which the loss of the Akron brought to us.

For General Mitchell goes on to say that the loss of the Akron reflects on the competence of the navy's lighter-than-air experts rather than on the capabilities of the dirigible itself. Given proper handling, he says, the Akron should not have been lost; its loss, in other words, is not a prima facie evidence that giant dirigibles are too fragile for military use.

It's General Mitchell's idea that aircraft have completely revolutionized strategy. Navies and armies take a back seat, as he sees the military art; the side that can strike the hardest blow in the air will win because it will demoralize its foe before the fleets and the troops can swing into action.

1492—And Today We Worry About 'Lack of Confidence'

HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The superstition, that there is something wrong with people who are left-handed, dies hard. In fact, left-handedness seems to be appreciated most in baseball pitchers, but hardly in any other form of sport.

The trouble is that the dictionary does not take into account the fact that left hand may have been superior at birth, but that somebody's notions insisted on right-handedness and, therefore, the result was marked inferiority on both sides.

In a previous generation attempts were made to make every child right-handed, regardless of the tendencies which it betrayed toward the left. The child who is born left-handed comes into a world which is right-handed.

Of course, left-handedness is not a sign of inferiority or abnormality any more than blue eyes or blond hair is a sign of inferiority or abnormality.

The motions of our hands and legs are controlled by our brains. There are two sides to the brain. The left side of the brain controls the left hand and right leg, and the right side of the brain controls the right hand and left leg. In most cases one side or the other dominates, and this is dependent on years of hereditary development.

When we try to change left-handed children to right-handedness, we are really trying to change the complete organization of a switchboard, a network of wires and switches that we do not actually control. If it were a telephone system, we could connect and disconnect wires. In the human being, all we can do is endeavor to train the system into a form of operation which may be against its natural tendencies.

As a result of this forced training, awkwardness develops. There may also be blocking, so that stammering and difficulties of speech follow. Disturbances of thinking are usually associated with blocking of this type.

If the mental machinery is adjusted to a certain system of operations and we try to force it into some other system, the new system is naturally slower. It is felt that many disorders of behavior are also brought about by this attempt to force right-handedness on left-handed people.

The Vanderbilts and Whitneys are still fighting over the custody of little Gloria. Perhaps they could settle the argument by consulting her.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY WILLIS THORNTON

WASHINGTON — Does the Washington picture seem confused to you?

Never mind, it does to most people in Washington.

But if one beacon could be set up in all the welter of things here, one thing on which the eye of leadership is fixed, it is this: The unemployed must be put back to work.

Everything fades, beside this. Whatever tends to make jobs is important. Everything else is secondary.

That's a composite view gained from talks with a good many of the people who count down here. The administration is rapidly coming to a point of view, these insiders indicate, something like that reached by Lincoln when critics began badgering him about freeing the slaves in the dark days of the Civil War.

You remember he said the one thing was to save the Union. If he could do it by freeing all the slaves, he would do that. If by freeing none of the slaves, all right, or if by freeing some and leaving others chained, then be it so; but the Union must be saved.

Unemployment Like Slavery Many New Dealers are swinging to this view of unemployment: it must be destroyed. If by turning to the industrialists, all right; if by turning to the near-socialism of the production relief and EPIC plans, all right. Or by socializing part and leaving part of it to individualism, no matter—it must be done.

Everything else depends on that one thing—the budget, the federal credit, relief, the labor problem, the farm problem (indirectly)—everything.

Note the concentration of organized labor on the 30-hour week. Note Relief Director Hopkins' insistence that only relief employment can lift the relief burden. Note Secretary Ickes' statement that he's entirely ready to curtail or drop public works spending "whenever private industry offers men the opportunity to be employed."

Note President Roosevelt's uncompromising stand, "I stand or fall by my refusal to accept... a permanent army of unemployed."

We will arrange our national economy to end our present unemployment as soon as we can.

Despite undeniable progress after a two-year fight, unemployment remains the only problem that really counts. Every pending problem must be measured by that one focal point of the Washington picture.
