CHARGES FILED IN OPERATION OF MACHINES

Pampa Man Is Jailed Here After 'Slot Machine Raid'

Charges of operating gambling devices were filed on eight separate counts against C. E. Powell, of Pampa, this morning in County Court of Hall county. Bond was set at $300 in each case, making a total of $2,400 bond. At noon today Powell had not made bond, and was being held in the Hall county jail.

Powell is alleged to have been the owner of 13 slot machines and dice machines picked-up by members of the Hall county sheriff's department in a city-wide clean-up yesterday morning. From one to four machines were taken up by officers in the early morning raid on a number of business houses in and near the business section of Memphis. Powell was arrested in Pampa yesterday by Gray county officers. He was brought to Memphis this morning where he is being held until bond is made. Charges are to be heard during the next term of county court in February.

Awaits Word From Girl's Kidnapers

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Stumped but hopeful, Alfred E. Distelhurst today declared he could do nothing but wait for the abductors of his daughter, Dorothy Ann, 6, to make the next move. There has been no development indicating the whereabouts or safety of the child since Distelhurst received a ransom letter which brought him from Nashville, Tenn., home to keep a rendezvous with the kidnapers.

Ben Bernie Dance Tickets on Sale At The Democrat

Dance tickets are on sale at The Democrat office today and the rest of this week to hear Ben Bernie, "the old maestro", and all his lads when they appear in Amarillo Saturday night.

"The Old Maestro" is appearing in Amarillo for both a concert and dance. The dance is to be held at the Nat Dance Palace from 10:30 o'clock until 2 a. m. Saturday night, and the concert is to be held at the City Auditorium from 8:15 to 10. Dance admission tickets are $2.50 per person, while concert tickets range up to $1.50.

The "Yow-sah" man of radio fame and his orchestra are sponsored in their Amarillo appearance by Wilbur C. Hawk.

Red Cross Drive in County Is On Today

Champ Husker

A young Minnesota farmer is the world's champion corn husker. Ted Balko, 29, above, of Redwood Falls, flipped 25.7 bushels of corn against the bangboards in 89 minutes to annex the crown. The national championship contest was held near Fairmount, Minn., with a crowd of 20,000 following the competitors. Balko had placed second, third, fourth and fifth in previous attempts at the title.

FLANDIN SEEKS PARLIAMENT'S SUPPORT

Defense Against Revolution, Dictatorship Promised

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Premier Flandin promised parliament today he and his cabinet would defend the nation against dictatorship and revolution.

The statement was read to parliament soon after the cabinet ordered no parades or assemblages should be permitted during the day.

Even as Flandin made a bid for parliament's support Edouard Herriot, minister, without portfolio, charged the resigned Premier Gaston Doumergue with "admiration" for coup d'etat methods.

Flandin announced his economic policy as freedom of commerce to spur business and to reduce the unemployed.

At noon today a thorough one-day American Red Cross roll-call drive was under full swing in all parts of Hall county. When the canvass has been completed this afternoon it is expected that the quota of 800 members in the local chapter will have been passed, according to Rev. O. K. Webb, county roll-call chairman.

In addition to the personal-contact drive being made today booths will be maintained down-town tomorrow during Trade's Day in order to contact all visitors here for the day who might have been missed in today's drive.

Canvas City The drive in Memphis began with committeemen in conference at the First Baptist church annex. After final instructions from the county roll-call chairman, workers were divided into four divisions for the canvass of the city.

Harry Delaney, Clifford Bumgarner, Frank Phelan and Lyman Robbins were appointed ward commanders over the four wards of the city. Each commander has a group of personal solicitors at work today calling on all individuals in the city.

Estelline Leaders At Estelline the drive is under the direction of Rev. Clarence Bounds and Rev. J. W. Bradshaw. Charlie Russel has charge of the drive at Turkey and Rev. Gattis is directing the roll-call at Lakeview.

Minimum membership in the American Red Cross is one dollar, but many individuals contribute from $5 to $10 each to help carry on this beneficial work all over the nation, it has been pointed out. (Continued on Page 8)

COMPROMISE ON BONUS ISSUE IS TALKED

Some Favor Payment To Ex-Service Men On Relief Rolls

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Some Republicans and Democrats were talking today of a compromise on the soldier bonus issue, but there was no indication that President Roosevelt had changed his opposition to a cash payment now.

Chairman Buchanan (Texas), of the House Appropriations committee, joined the compromise advocates today. He favored the immediate cash payment to veterans on relief rolls, estimating this would cost one-third or one fourth of the total outlay of approximately two billion dollars required if all the exservice men were paid off.

Says Third Blast Victim To Recover

GORMAN, Nov. 13.—Hospital attendants said today that Clifton Koerner, 8, thought fatally burned in a kerosene can explosion at his parents' farm home Sunday, is slightly improved. The boy's two sisters died and his parents were severely burned in the explosion.

LONG ON ROAD TO GREATER POWER

Starts Shooting 44 Special Session Bills Through

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 13.—Senator Huey Long today began shooting his 44 special legislature session bills through the committee as their second step toward enactment in a program whereby the "Kingfish" threatened to increase his political power in Louisiana.

Long's program hits at big cities, principally New Orleans, where he seeks to re-organize the boards controlling police, the fire department and other large employment departments so as to give the governor power to appoint a majority of the board members.

Completes Visits To County's Rural Schools This Week

Mrs. Roy Guthrie, county school superintendent, this week will complete her official visits of the first semester with rural schools in the county. Today Mrs. Guthrie is visiting in the Plaska and Pleasant Valley schools.

After today only seven of the rural schools remain on Mrs. Guthrie's itinerary to visit this week. Her visits are made to assist teachers and principals in working out the major problems in connection with the present term.

In a number of cases Mrs. Guthrie is also meeting with members of the school boards in the various schools. Her visits have been made during the past two weeks.

Eddie Rickenbacker On Dawn-Dusk Flight

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 13.—Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, with a 14-passenger plane, took off here at 6:06 a. m. (Eastern Standard time) today for a dawn to dusk return flight to Miami, Fla., a distance one way of 1,195 miles, air line officials say. He reached Jacksonville at noon.

Happy Kitchen Cooking School This Week-End

Beulah Mackay Yates To Conduct Annual Democrat School at Ritz Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday

No matter what else may be "just around the corner," the Happy Kitchen Cooking School, presented under the auspices of this newspaper, and presenting that national authority on Foods and Home Economics, Beulah Mackay Yates, is there, only awaiting the scheduled dates, Thursday and Friday at 2 p. m. and Saturday at 10 a. m.

The lessons offered at these popular demonstrations will show how to utilize the most pleasant and economical methods of cookery; how to serve the right kind of food at the right seasons as a matter of health, comfort and efficiency; to care for the home and all its necessary equipment; how to have modern labor-saving devices and to become familiar with the products of leading manufacturers and distributors.

More money, more leisure, more comfort, and generally happier lives have resulted from the Happy Kitchen Cooking School wherever they have been held, and now this newspaper is pleased to extend this service to every woman who is willing to receive it.

At the forthcoming Happy Kitchen Cooking School Miss Yates, one of the country's highest authorities on matters pertaining to the home, and especially to the kitchen, will conduct the demonstrations and lectures. She covers every phase of the home and personal well-being. Her long training in American schools, and her long association with civic organizations in various parts of the country, give her complete command of subjects relating to the providing and preparation of foods and the management of the home.

The Happy Kitchen Cooking School will be held at the Ritz Theatre. The public is cordially invited to attend any and all sessions. There is no charge for admittance, and no obligation at any time.

Five Little Dionnes Suddenly Become Ten as Doll Arrives for Each

What's this? Ten little Dionnes instead of the famous five? But look a little closer, and you'll see that five of the figures above are beautiful life-sized dolls, one of which was sent to each of the famous quintuplets. So you see they didn't have to wait until Christmas to get "twin sisters" that would gladden the heart of any little girl. Santa-Claus came early to the little house at Corbeil, Ontario.

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

by CARLETON KENDRAKE

BEGIN HERE TODAY When CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, is found dead DAN BLEEKER, publisher, employs SIDNEY GRIFF, famous criminologist, to solve the murder. Morden had been investigating the affairs of Frank B. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent, following the arrest of an impostor claiming to be Cathay and accompanied by a girl called MARY BRIGGS. The day following Morden's death Cathay dies of poisoning. Griff learns that Morden had visited the apartment of ALICE LORTON who has reported to police the disappearance of her roommate, MRS. BLANCHE MALONE. Griff accuses Alice of being involved in Morden's murder but does not succeed in breaking down her story.

Doctors report Cathay's death was suicide. Griff does not believe this. He tells Bleeker that the key witness—if she can be located—will be the mysterious MRS. BLANCHE MALONE for whom CARL RACINE, detective employed by MRS. CATHAY, is searching. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVII Bleeker's tone of bewilderment matched his expression. "But who is Mrs. Blanche Malone?" he demanded. "What has she got to do with the case? Why is Mrs. Cathay so anxious to get in touch with her?" Griff's smile was enigmatical. "Bleeker," he said, "I'm not going to help you. You've got to figure the thing out for yourself. The facts are in your possession just the same as they're in mine." "No," Bleeker said irritably, "there's something you know that I don't—this big fact that you were talking about." Griff shook his head. "You know it," he said, "just the same as I do." "Why won't you tell me?" "Because we, both of us, overlooked an important bet. If you think it out for yourself you'll feel a lot better than if you let me tell you. I think you'll figure it out for yourself." "For a man who's supposed to be in my employ," Bleeker said, "you certainly seem to give a minimum of co-operation. How about this Thomas Decker? Why don't you give me an opportunity to run his story? You promised me that I'd get a break there." "No, I didn't," Griff said slowly. "I promised you that I'd think it over, but I'm going to give you a break." "Yes," Bleeker remarked sarcastically, "I presume you'll let me use my own mind to think out where he is." "Bleeker," Griff said, "if I take you to him will you promise me that you won't publish anything about it unless I say you can?" "No, I'll publish anything." "Then I can't take you to him." "Then I'll find him by myself." "Go ahead." "If," Bleeker said, "I had given you the promise would you have taken me to him?" "Yes." "Why would you do that and not let me publish what I discovered?" "Because I don't know what we're going to discover. I know what I think we're going to discover. If I'm right, there's no reason why you can't publish it. It's only in case I should be wrong that I wouldn't want the thing made public." "Has Decker told you anything more than he told the police?" "No." "That's straight?" "Absolutely." "Why are you so anxious to keep him hidden then?" "Because," Griff remarked, "I think that he lied both to the police and to me. I think that he got a better look at the murderer than he says he did." "Why don't you cross-examine him a little bit and find out?" "That's what I intend to do now." "And you're going to give me an opportunity to sit in on it?" "Yes." Bleeker sighed. "Oh, well," he said, "I'll give you my word. Come on. Let's go and find him." Griff nodded, extended his index finger and pushed an electric bell button. A minute or so later a door opened and a man clad in livery bowed somewhat obsequiously.

Dramatist Gets Nobel Prize

Luigi Pirandello, Italian dramatist who is best known in America for his "Six Characters in Search of an Author," is the recipient of the Nobel Prize for literature. It was announced in Stockholm. He is the third Italian writer to receive the award.

"Das there something you wanted, sir?" he asked. Griff nodded to Bleeker. "My valet," he said. Bleeker said rather impatiently, "I'm not a detective myself, but even I deduced as much." Griff smiled. "You see," he said, "as soon as the police knew that I was keeping Thomas Decker concealed they tried to locate Decker by checking over all of the hotels and rooming houses, paying particular attention to anyone who had registered on the night of the murder. I anticipated this move on their part. Therefore, I put Decker in a place where they would hardly expect to find him, yet where he would be instantly accessible if I should desire to consult with him." Bleeker's eyes suddenly widened. He opened his mouth to speak, but before he could say a word Griff nodded and said to the man who posed as his valet. "Come in, Decker, and sit down."

I want you to talk with this man." The man in livery hesitated for a moment, then took four swift steps, sat down abruptly in a chair, said nervously, "You've let the cat out of the bag now. Why did you do it?" Griff's tone was not unkindly. "Decker," he said, "you told me and you told the police that you couldn't be certain of the identity of the man that drove TAETET of the man who drove that gray Cadillac car." "That's right," Decker said, "I couldn't." "Then," Griff said, "your testimony wouldn't have helped the police in the least." "That's what I told them," Decker said. "I explained that to the officer." "And," Griff continued, "since your testimony couldn't have hurt anyone, no one would harm you to keep you from giving that testimony." Decker moistened his lips with his tongue, swallowed and said nothing. "Therefore," Bleeker said, "you must know something that you're keeping back." Decker stared at Dan Bleeker, then turned to Griff. "Damn it," he said, "I hired you to protect me. What's the idea of putting me on the grill in front of a witness?" "Because I think you're getting off on the wrong foot," Griff said slowly. He took a picture from his inside coat pocket, the photograph of a man's face—a man with wide cheek bones, sullen eyes, a rather high forehead and a slightly crooked nose. "Look at it," he said. Decker took the photograph and studied it. "Ever see him before?" asked Griff. "No, who is he?" "That," said Griff, "is the latest authentic photograph of Phillip C. Lampson, sometimes known as 'Cincinnati Red'." Decker stared at the picture with wide open eyes. "You're trying to trap me in some way," he said. Griff took a folded newspaper clipping from his pocket. "Look at it for yourself," he said. "The newspaper clipping shows Lampson's photograph. You can compare the two." Decker looked from one to the other. Slowly a look of relief came over his face. "That wasn't the man," he said, "he was driving the gray Cadillac car." Griff nodded. "I thought so," he said. "Now, let's have the truth, Decker." "The man tried to keep me from seeing his face," Decker said, "but a gust of wind blew back his hat and there was enough light for me to see him plainly. I'd know him if I saw him again. I don't know as I could describe him. He's sort of big-featured. I can't tell it exactly, but it isn't this man. The eyes weren't so wide apart and he didn't have those cheek bones."

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

By William Ferguson

Griff nodded to Bleeker. "Get your newspaper on the telephone," he said. "Your reporters can 'discover' Decker. I don't care where they discover him, just so it isn't here. Shown a photograph of Lampson, Decker states positively that Lampson was not the driver of the car." "And then you're going to let me out where the Lampson gang can get me?" Decker asked. "Be your age," Griff retorted sharply. "Lampson would put a bodyguard around you to see that nothing happened to you. You're his best life insurance." "But I thought sure it was Lampson," Decker said. "That's what the police thought," Griff replied. "Why didn't you tell me the truth?" "I don't know. I was afraid, I guess." Bleeker picked up the phone, was talking Sidney Griff opened the drawer of his desk and took out an automatic. "Carry a gun?" he asked casually of Bleeker. Bleeker slipped the receiver back on its hook. "No," he said, eyeing the automatic with frowning distaste, "and I don't want to. I don't be-

TODAY'S KITCHEN

IS A

"Happy Kitchen"

ONE of the red-letter events of the year for women is almost here. A cooking school it is, to be sure, but what a cooking school! This year's cooking is done in a kitchen much different from that of grandmother's day. There are hours and hours less time needed in cooking—there's less work and more fun. Today's kitchen is a real "Happy Kitchen"—or ought to be. If your three-meals-a-day seem just a succession of toast and eggs and potatoes and roast beef and pie, our cooking school is made to order for you! And if you have already found the secret to pleasure and fascination in mixing dainty new dishes and dressing up old stand-bys in colorful new fashions—you will love the cooking school just as much.

There will be romance—mapping of uncharted seas of the kitchen—at the cooking school. Each session will glow with new ideas, appetite thrillers, the simple secrets that make cooking happier and easier. We invite you to hear dozens of practical suggestions that will make kitchen hours more fun and more joy—to see demonstrated before your very eyes those inspired touches that raise the meal and its preparation to the realm of a happy adventure.

Remember—everything shown in our cooking school has been tried and tested by a whole staff of "Happy Kitchen" experts. Months of planning have gone before. There are three days of enjoyment in store for you . . . come as our guest! Don't forget the dates: Thursday, November 15; Friday, November 16; Saturday, November 17.

Cyclone To End Regular Grid Schedule Friday

QUITAQUE WILL BE LAST TITLE OPPONENT

Goes Into District Competition Next Week - End

The Memphis Cyclone breaks the finish-tape of the sectional gridiron race this week-end, coming down the stretch in full stride and far ahead of a field of more or less competent opponents.

Just in front of the Wellington Skyrockets, the Cyclone has one more hurdle to cross, considered a fairly easy barrier on which none of the other contestants have stumbled.

However, after several weeks of keeping up a full stride, Cyclone handlers and trainers are doing all they can to prevent either a let-down or just a plain case of "expanded chests".

'A Fair Eleven'
Although beaten in their individual heat with the Wellington eleven, the Quitaque club was handed as "a fair club, and one that shouldn't be taken lightly".

The Cyclone runs its final heat with this club Friday night at Fair Park stadium, starting at 8 o'clock. The clash ends the Black and Gold's final scheduled game, and from there on they meet championship competition.

If the Cyclone should go all the way, they enter the district clash next week, possibly against Matador or Spur—the title has not been decided—and thence into bi-district competition with the ever-powerful Lamesa eleven.

A Pipe Dream
It is entirely too far ahead to mention the regional clash—and the odds are at least 10 to 1 that the Cyclone will not get to that point in the race. But what could be more attractive than a regional bout between Memphis and Shamrock?

(That's only a pipe dream—it is a possibility.)
Coach Chesty Walker returned to Fair Park field yesterday afternoon to prepare more for next week's title bout than for Friday night's clash with Quitaque. But in so doing, he is keeping his eye on this week's game that will clinch the sectional flag and send the Cyclone into district competition—barring an upset that would shake this stronghold like Florida's interpretation of a California earthquake.

'Another Ball Club'
The team is past the point where any competition can be taken lightly—and the problem now is to get the boys—after all only a group of youngsters who are likely to take sudden presage a little too seriously—to realize that they are "just another ball club" in the eyes of the competition, and that even Stanford lost to the little Columbia Lion.

The Cyclone is expected to brush up on every phase of its attack against Quitaque. The versatile ground game will be combined with every part of the aerial attack for which the club is famed. Kicking a weak spot all season, may be practiced where it is not only really needed in this single contest, and the boys probably will do lots of defensive work—in other words, they are going to crowd every department of play into less than an hour of actual combat.

They're expecting a comparatively easy victory Friday night, but they've got to be prepared for mighty stiff competition from here on out.

Estelline Class In Regular Dinner Meeting

ESTELLINE, Nov. 13.—The Friendly class of the Methodist church had its regular 6 o'clock dinner last Wednesday. Those attending were served cafeteria style.

After dinner, those present enjoyed a delightful evening. Those present were Misses Cleo Fern Bounds, Leora Richberg, Josephine Bounds, Mildred Richburg, Mildred Young and Mrs. H. M. Faulkner.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hughs and son of Pampa spent Sunday here with old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy R. Fuitts and daughter, Betty Frances, spent Saturday and Sunday at Petrolia with relatives.

HARRY GRAYSON

Dixie is quite positive that one of its football teams will be in the Rose bowl on New Year's Day.

The south has four robust candidates in Alabama, Louisiana, State, Tulane, and Rice. And unlike some of their snooty eastern and conference-hindered middle western brethren, each is eager for the great adventure.

Alabama is particularly well-like in California, and barring a slipup between now and the final bell, it would not be surprising if the Tuscaloosa institution drew the invitation.

The Crimson Tide figures to sweep through undefeated, with Clemon, Georgia Tech, and Vanderbilt the remaining obstacles, although the Engineers traditionally do their best against 'Bama, and the Commodores are not round heels in any sense.

Alabama has invaded California four times without a defeat. A Crimson and White array coached by Wallace Wade, now at Duke, came from behind to edge out a Washington outfit that included the great George Wilson, 20-19, at Pasadena on Jan. 1, 1926.

That club, which included the splendid backs, Pooley Hubert and Johnny Mack Brown, made such a hit that Alabama was brought back a year later, when it tied an outstanding Stanford, 7-7.

Current Tide Most Versatile

But an Alabama array reached its greatest height on the Pacific Coast on Jan. 1, 1931, when the last team Wade tutored at Tuscaloosa mopped up Washington State, 24-0.

Frank Thomas, the fat man who played under the immortal Knute Rockne at Notre Dame and who picked up the burden where Wade laid it down, was at the helm when Alabama repelled Saint Mary's in San Francisco in 1932.

Thomas, who has been teaching football south of the Mason and Dixon line since 1923, calls the current tide the most exciting in the history of the school.

Thomas implies that, in his opinion, the 1930 combination which smothered Washington State was the most formidable. It must have been something along the line of the Minnesota machine of this year if it packed more power, speed, and depletion than the 1925 Alabama team that passed its way to victory in the closing minutes against Washington in one of the most thrilling games every played.

The present Tide sounds like one of Rockne's Notre Dame teams with a Demyanovich, an Angelich, and a Riley in the backfield. And they ride like Rockne horsemen, too, as they again demonstrated in cuffing Kentucky around, 34-14, at Lexington.

Howell, Hutson All-Americans

Thomas rates two of his athletes as All-Americans, Millard Howell, halfback, and Hutson, the left end. Hutson is referred to as the fifth back because he packs the pigskin so frequently. It was he who scored the touchdown that topped Tennessee, 13-6.

But as accomplished as Howell is it isn't a case of one man carrying the load at Alabama. Riley, Angelich, Boozier, and other backs fairly roar along in the wide open spaces, and the spaces don't have to be so wide open at that. Joe Demyanovich, a battering fullback, widens these openings to almost any desired width.

Riley and Boozier are getting their baptismal fire this autumn, yet they are close enough to Howell to step into his brogans at any time.

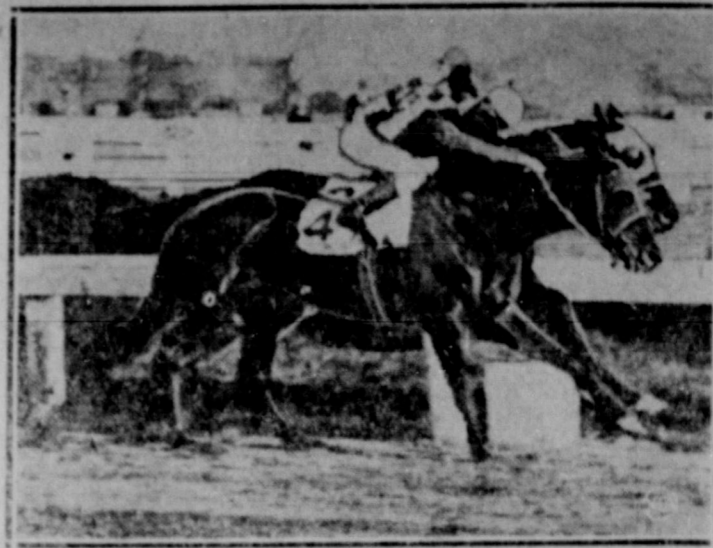

Howell, Angelich, Riley and Boozier operating behind a 200-pound forward wall and the sharp blocking of a pair of 190-pounders, Riley Smith, quarterback, and Demyanovich, offer a problem to the defense of any team in the land.

And that goes for the coast's best, Stanford or Washington, which wouldn't have to extend a second invitation to Alabama to compete in the battle royal in the golden gulch.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Montgomery, Jr., of Altus, Okla., were guests of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Montgomery, here over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Meyers of Merriam, Kan., are here as guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Tarver and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Harrison.

Not a Whisker Apart

Stride for stride, neck and neck, whisker and whisker forged A. G. Vanderbilt's Jester B and Arthur Huicoat's Garden Message down the stretch in the fifth race at Pimlico recently. The two horses finished that way in a dead heat, one of the rarities of racing. The above picture shows the thrilling end with Jester B on the inside.

Navy Mentor Switches System and Turns Out Winner in First Year

BY JIMMY DONAHUE
NEA Service Sports Writer
ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 13—

Completely ignoring the old adage which warns: "Never swap horses while crossing a stream," Lieut. Thomas J. Hamilton swapped football systems at Navy this spring, threw over the Notre Dame system as taught by Rip Miller, established his own, and turned out a winner in his first year as head coach.

In so doing, the new mentor has started out just where he left off as a Middle player in 1926.

The soft-spoken, square-jawed fellow, appearing not a day older than the Midshipmen he coaches in football here, has brought Navy out of the woods of defeat, where it has wandered blindly since he last played for the Sailors, and led his alma mater to a place in the football sun.

Lieutenant Hamilton was quarterback of that great Navy machine of 1926 that went through a season of nine tough games undefeated, only to be held to a 21-21 tie by Army after a nip-and-tuck battle.

Once graduated from the Naval Academy here, a Navy man rarely gets his name in the headlines unless he is a football coach of some major institution. And that is one of the reasons why most of the present generation commenced to palliate Inquire who Lieut. Thomas Hamilton was, shortly after his appointment to succeed Rip Miller as Middle mentor last year.

But Hamilton was no stranger to football. Right after his graduation he took a back seat as backfield coach under Navy Bill Ingram at the Academy, and remained under Bill until his boss was called to the Pacific Coast to take over the guidance of the California Bears.

Then Hamilton was transferred to west coast duty, and while with the fleet there, turned out several teams of enlisted men and officers that met outstanding squads in that section—and generally climaxed their seasons with victory over an Army team of officers and their men stationed in that section.

When the young coach took over the wheel of the Navy ship, all the experts were fearful of the consequences. He assumed charge with the Notre Dame system, as taught by Miller, in vogue, and was faced with the necessity of changing things to suit his own.

It was impossible, the sages and graybeards pointed out, to change systems overnight and expect a winning ball club.

But just take a peek at the records! They speak for themselves. 'Tis true that Lieutenant Hamilton had no bed of elderdown confronting him. 'Twas just a plain old pine bunk, unadorned with any mattress—Chug-Horn, Becht, Rankin, Waikup, Harbold, Murray and Baumberger—had been removed by graduation.

But despite the loss of last year's mainstays, Hamilton took his squad, well-versed in Notre Dame principals, and drilled his own system into their domes so well that they are forging into the fag end of the season with the best chance of any Navy team beating Army since he was graduated.

QUITAQUE FALLS, A STATE PARK

PROGRESSIVE citizens from Memphis to Plainview, and including Turkey, Silvertown, Floydada, Gasoline and other cities, have started a movement to secure a state park site in Quitaque canyon, near the city bearing the same name.

The main attraction of the canyon is the Quitaque falls—as far as we know the only waterfalls of any magnitude in this section of the Panhandle. There is both upper and lower falls over which engineers estimate that 15,000,000 gallons of water flow daily.

Coming down through the beautiful canyon, the stream resembles a mountain current. At one point, it is estimated that a 50-foot dam would put 400 acres of land under water and give the lake a shoreline of approximately eight miles. Stocked with fish and made useful for swimming and boating, such a park would give people of the entire area a playground such as it has never known before.

The location is easily reached, both from below and above the caprock, and the Burlington's South Plains rail branch runs reasonably close to the proposed park site—which, by the way, is in the neighborhood of the long railroad tunnel on this line. The plans include a depot in the vicinity, making the park also accessible by rail.

This makes a beautiful picture. It is the dream of Col. R. P. Smith, long-time civic leader of Plainview, who visited the falls many years ago. He has awaited the time and then instigated the movement that may develop this canyon into one of the really beautiful parks of the Southwest.

It is purely an impartial undertaking on the part of the 64 business men and civic leaders who started the movement recently at a meeting at Quitaque. They are interested, just as every one in the Panhandle should be, in seeing this major park development carried through.

The men are working on the project systematically and in a manner that is likely to bring quick results. First, they plan to obtain title to the canyon. Then it will be turned over to the state if the government will complete the work as a public undertaking, using relief labor. Everyone should interest himself in a quick realization of the dreams.

GLAMOUR OF FOOTBALL DECEIVES CRITICS

ALONG about this time every year, earnest and well-intentioned people are apt to become worried about the status of college football.

Week after week come the reports of gigantic crowds at college football games. The total figures on gate receipts look like payments in the international debts. News of the doings of the young athletes fill the front pages of the newspapers.

All of this, lumped together, comes under the heading of "overemphasis," as it is called. A game devised for the recreation of college students draws so much attention that in the minds of many people it completely overshadows the regular classroom activities. On the face of it, it looks like an extremely unhealthy situation.

Yet there is a great deal of loose talk about this. Critics of big-time football grow just about as mixed in their consideration of values as do the unthinking boosters. For it is not the fact that college football draws big crowds and creates black headlines that is wrong; it is the fact that in some institutions the responsible authorities are carried off their feet by enthusiasm for the sport, and let it take precedence over the regular curriculum, both in their own minds and in the minds of their students.

It needs to be emphasized that youngsters in college, for all their effervescence and high spirits, are a pretty level-headed lot. They are seldom really deceived by the glamor of football.

They enjoy the game, as participants or as spectators; they enjoy the excitement, the thrills and the publicity. But if they get anything approaching the right kind of leadership from their faculty, they aren't apt to be deluded by it all.

It is often true that the football coach draws a higher salary than any professor. But that only parallels the situation in other walks of life. Prize fighters make more money than clergymen, movie actors make more money than scientists, stock promoters outearn doctors.

Our whole system of rewards is askew; football simply gives the college student an object lesson in the fact before he leaves the campus.

HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Everybody knows that sleep is necessary for the human body. It is the time when the cells recuperate from the wear and tear that goes on during the day.

People fail, however, to realize that two of the most necessary factors to sound sleep are exceedingly hard to get in these modern times. One of them is darkness and the other quiet.

So widespread is the use of artificial light for all sorts of purposes, that it is exceedingly difficult to obtain places for sleep in which there is complete darkness. Even a ray of light may in some cases serve as an irritating stimulus to awakening.

Quiet is even more difficult to secure because of the motor car and the radio. We have in this country one motor car for every 4 to 5 people, and at least one radio for every family.

Because of the way in which our large cities are constructed, the rattle of the cars on the street and the sounds of the radio in adjacent apartments and homes are factors which keep people awake. In addition, there are the noises from the railroad trains, elevated trains and of steamers when homes are near navigable waters.

Beside the irritations which come from these sources of noise, there are conditions which have to be overcome, such as the use of bed clothing that is either too heavy or too light.

One specialist mentions the night caps worn by people of a previous generation. These served the useful purposes of keeping the head warm and at the same time shouting out, to a certain extent, the much more infrequent noises with which persons were troubled.

Sometimes sleep is prevented merely by the fear that one won't be able to sleep. This is one of the most difficult cases of insomnia to overcome. It tends to develop a vicious circle leading to greater and greater difficulty in falling asleep.

The best advice to those who find sleeping difficult is, first of all, to develop a regular sleep habit, selecting always a certain

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, The Democrat's Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Extension of the automobile code, with assurance that it was a victory for the industry, labor, NRA, and the White House, should not obscure the fact that the motor car business is headed toward a big strike threat this winter.

The unions are bent on obtaining some genuine collective bargaining, which the industry will fight as you or I would against taking a dose of poison, and on getting rid of the president's automobile labor relations board.

You will begin to read about the strike threat in December, when production picks up, and the situation probably will be red-hot by February, when the code expires again and production will be about at its peak.

Auto Makers Obdurate
But there was a lot of pianissimo accompanied the code extension which wasn't audible in the official announcements.

Leading roles in the plot were played by President Roosevelt, Chairman Clay Williams of the NIRA, and his friend, Walter Chrysler—who represented the industry in secret negotiations with the White House—and Sidney Hillman, labor member of NIRA.

Nobody else counted except Secretary Frances Perkins, who always plays closely with Hillman.

The code was due to expire and the industry insisted that if it were to be continued it must be preserved unchanged. Otherwise, the administration could go chase itself and there'd be no code.

The A. F. of L. demanded public hearings for code reopening, elimination of the "merit clause," and a 30-hour week—or at least revision of the present hour-averaging clause.

Everyone knew Roosevelt, who took the job over from NIRA and certainly added nothing to its prestige when he did so, wouldn't accept the industry's "merit clause." Automobiles are a vital part in such recovery as he can claim and he could afford, for the time being at least, to ignore labor's demands rather than court an open break with a huge industry.

Code Held Costly
NRA hadn't been able to show that the industry had directly benefited from its code. General Motors sent word to the White House that it had made $50,000,000 less this year than it would have made on the same volume of production had there been no NRA codes. Other codes had upped the prices of material for cars.

FAMOUS FOOTBALL FEATS!

COLUMBIA had pointed for the Cornell game all year in 1930, and when Ralph Hewitt stepped back 10 yards from the scrimmage line, with the ball at midfield, and booted a 60-yard drop kick that crossed between the goal posts, cohorts of the Lions were jubilant.

But not for long! Cornell came back with a terrific drive that soon pushed over seven points - and the poor Lion was due to take its annual sock on the chin.

Then occurred one of the most dramatic plays of the season. Hewitt, on his own 10-yard line, caught the Cornell kickoff. On the dead run he sidestepped and stiff-armed his way down the field 90 yards for the Columbia touchdown that won the game, 16-7.

Y'KNOW, MRS HOOPLE WE'VE BEEN NEIGHBORS FOR YEARS, AND I'D BE THE LAST ONE TO COMPLAIN—BUT THE MAJOR WAS TELLING ME ABOUT OWNING A RACE HORSE—AND HE'S PLANNING ON REMODELING YOUR GARAGE INTO A STABLE FOR THE HORSE! I'M AFRAID THE NEIGHBORS WILL PROTEST!

MAKE A STABLE OUT OF MY GARAGE, EH? HM—M—HAVE NO FEAR, MR. BAXTER—I'LL RELEASE THAT BAT FROM HIS PLUG HAT! IF THAT HORSE IS BROUGHT HERE, HIS FIRST RACE WILL BE TAKING THE MAJOR FOR FIRST AID!

Man Dies in Tank Blast; Damage Is Set at $175,000

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—A man identified as Daniel Dunlea, 35, was killed and damage amounting to $175,000 caused when an acetylene gas tank exploded in the Charlestown navy yard here today.

The body of Dunlea, attendant of the building in which the tank was stored, was found in the debris.

Cause of the explosion was undetermined. The tank contained 25,000 cubic feet of gas. Glass was broken in buildings within a quarter of a mile of the scene. The shock was felt six or eight miles away.

Rodeo Is—

This year's rodeo was just that good.

The new lighting system at Fair Park also came in for some wonderful praise Saturday night. Rose Davis Breeden, 1933 world's champion lady bronc rider, stated that they were the best she had ever performed under. "I have appeared almost as many times under flood lights as under sunlight, and the lights in Memphis are the most even and the least glaring I have ever seen," she said.

Mrs. Breeden also paid a tribute to the manner in which she was received in Memphis. "Everyone has been mighty nice to me, and I am looking forward to the time when I can again be with the fine people of this section," she said. Mrs. Breeden made two exhibition bronc rides here, in spite of the fact that her ankle was injured so badly that she could hardly walk. She and her husband, Tom Breeden, another of the leading contestants, left Monday for Tucson, Ariz., where they will appear this week.

Hall county's own juvenile trick-rope artist made his first public appearance here during the three shows of the rodeo. Keith Wells, 13-year-old Lakeview boy, appears to be a "natural" with the lariat. Although he has had only seven lessons and a few weeks practice, Keith handled the lariat admirably and promises to be an outstanding showman with the rope. He assisted in the trick-rope exhibition along with Howard Weatherby, also of Lakeview.

George (Ace) Newton, one of the world's greatest trick ropers, was the feature performer of the roping exhibition. While riding at full speed, Newton let out more than 200 feet of rope in a beautiful loop, as the most spectacular exhibition. The most difficult of his tricks was to spin a loop while standing on his head, and, at the same time, rope a horse and rider as they raced by. Both tricks drew loud applause from the audience.

With thousands of people in town for the rodeo and other Armistice holiday events, Saturday and Sunday everything was orderly and comparatively quiet. A check-up Monday morning with city, county and precinct officials showed that not a single felony charge was filed in any of the courts, and only a small number of misdemeanors. All of those arrested were charged with drunkenness or disturbing the peace, according to law enforcement officers.

Business men reported brisk business Saturday and Saturday night, and with rodeo officials pleased, performers satisfied and spectators thrilled over the events, it is safe for The Democrat to definitely state that the first annual American Legion Rodeo was a decided success.

Mr. and Mrs. Deskins Wells and daughter, Dian, of Wellington, were Memphis visitors yesterday.

Thousands of Women Benefited by Cardui

The benefits many women obtain from Cardui give them great confidence in it. "I have four children," writes Mrs. J. L. Norred, of Lagrange, Ga. "Before the birth of my children, I was weak, nervous and tired. I had a lot of trouble with my back. I took Cardui each time and found it so helpful. Cardui did more to allay the nausea at those times than anything I have ever used. I am in very good health and believe Cardui did a lot of it." Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

What's Flighty About This?

The modern hero isn't honored by a crown of laurel! It was a reward from the heart that Captain Eddie Rickenbacker received when he landed at Newark, N. J., after taking part in the flight that set a 12-hour coast-to-coast record for transport airplanes. Mrs. Rickenbacker is shown in the act of rewarding her hero.

by Rev. Webb. Of the entire membership fee paid in, only 50 cents goes to National Headquarters, while all of the balance, regardless of the amount, remains to help carry on the work in this county, he said.

"In view of the great service of the American Red Cross in Hall County during the past few years, as well as the rest of the nation, every individual should give his full support in the membership drive," Rev. Webb stated.

It has been pointed out by Red Cross officials that if this county should raise its full membership quota for the next ten years, it would not pay for direct benefits received by the people of this county during the past few years. "This is a debt we owe to the suffering people of the United States and we should do our best to help pay this debt," Rev. Webb said.

Although the dates for the annual roll call all over the nation are set for November 11 to Thanksgiving Day, it was recently decided to make the drive in Hall County a one-day affair. "We are asking all citizens to cooperate with us to the fullest extent to complete the drive in record time," the roll-call chairman said.

Mrs. Dwight Newby and Mrs. Tony Chisum of Amarillo visited Mrs. Elizabeth Johnston here Saturday. They were enroute to Dallas.

Founder of Maytag Company in Visit

F. L. Maytag, founder and chairman of the board of the Maytag company, washing manufacturers, stopped over night in Memphis as guest of the Memphis Hotel, last night.

He was enroute to Amarillo where at noon today a regional meeting of Maytag dealers and salesmen and their ladies was to be held.

Mr. Maytag was accompanied by Walter Rogers, Dallas, and J. J. Adams, divisional manager of the Maytag's Southwestern company.

At the Amarillo hotel today, Mr. Maytag, in an address to the 150 Maytag men and their ladies, was to tell the story of his business experience and the development of the Maytag washer.

Mr. Maytag complimented the Thompson Brothers company, local dealers of Maytag washers, for their steadily increasing sales record.

Although 77 years old, Mr. Maytag spends the greater portion of his time visiting his vast organization throughout the United States and foreign countries.
