BUSINESS MEN ATTEND MEETING

Few Commodities, Services Exempted in Most Drastic Of U. S. Wartime Measures

Representatives of the majority of Memphis business firms in all lines of merchandising and service attended a meeting in Childress Wednesday night to hear discussions of the Maximum Price Regulation of the Office for Emergency Management.

Two men, working out of the Dallas office, conducted the clinic, answering questions on price provisions and legal aspects of the regulation. The meeting at Childress was one of a series designed especially for the information of retailers.

Rigid government controls for the war's duration over retail and wholesale prices and rents were announced by Price Administrator Leon Henderson following President Roosevelt's call for decisive action to halt the swiftly mounting cost of living.

In a single, sweeping order—the General Maximum Price Regulation—the administrator set the highest prices charged in March, 1942, as an absolute ceiling over virtually everything that Americans eat, wear, and use. The only exemptions are food commodities on a limited list.

Beginning May 18, retail prices, with a few exceptions, must not exceed the highest levels which each individual seller charged during March 1942.

Beginning May 11, manufacturer and wholesale prices and the prices for wholesale and industrial services must not exceed the highest March levels for each seller.

Beginning July 1, no one may charge more for services sold at retail in connection with a commodity than he charged during March.

Effective immediately, all retailers, wholesalers, manufacturers and sellers of services must preserve existing records of sales made during March for maximum price purposes when the ceiling goes into effect.

Other highlights of the order include: The requirements that every retail store must publicly display (Continued on page 5)

Double Purpose Bandages

Ingenuous use of cottons has a double purpose for utility housewives. Because they are the same size as regulation triangular bandanas, first aid bandanas can be used as open hand bandages or as cravat bandages of the eye. A strip of gauze keeps bandage from covering the uninjured eye. The same bandana can be worn as an apron or halter as well as a turban, sash, or scarf. Here is the "apron and dust cap" combination, made with two bandages.

Charity Begins At Home

Sure, every acre's raising more.... Now what's upping the mileage from this oil?

How does prize wheat or corn at the county fair get that way? Sure, man-made soil improvers—modern synthetics—were added to improve on nature.

AND MODERN SYNTHETICS in Conoco Nth motor oil make it yield mileage that outscored all other brands tested in the sensational Death Valley Certified Competition. Five big-name quality brands got every fair chance against Conoco Nth oil. All were run till engines failed and none came closer than 58% of the mileage totaled by Conoco Nth!... the oil you can have for your needed Spring oil change that's now overdue... the oil whose best known man-made extra substance—at no extra premium—gives your engine OIL-PLATING.

... another synthetic... invented to inhibit or restrain the dangerous "jelling" of oil under excess strain. Engine heat and pressure can even gum up oil into something like fly-paper coating—only dirtier, and not much better for mileage. Against this threat, Thialkene inhibitor was created for Conoco Nth (U. S. Pat. 2,218,132). And Conoco Nth out-mileaged the others in the Death Valley Test—from 74% all the way up to 161%. You can get real optimistic about your own mileage. Conoco Nth will come through for you. Change at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Continental Oil Company

OIL-PLATING backs up the familiar fluid type of oil film with a surfacing of lubricant close-bonded to inner engine parts. Every cylinder wall, for instance, becomes a wall of OIL-PLATING that doesn't all drain dry during all the time you use Conoco Nth. Even after all-day parking, the OIL-PLATING is still up to the topmost piston rings, ready to lubricate before any oil can circulate. That's one plain way of foiling excess wear, and keeping up mileage with your engine OIL-PLATED.

Gas Company Men In Armed Service

"To date, 124 employees of the United Gas Corporation have left the company to join the armed forces of their country," said R. W. Lindsey, district manager of the company, in a statement issued this week.

"United Gas Corporation is proud of the patriotic response of these employees to America's call to the colors. When the war is won, and peacetime returns, we will welcome them back.

"This large number of enlistments in the service, however, splendid as they are, is only part of the story. Hundreds of our employees are remaining at home on the job doing their part to see that gas service goes on.

"Our greatest responsibility lies in continuing dependable gas service to war industries in the areas we serve. These war industries are hard at work producing parts for guns, freighters, navy destroyers, and other implements of war. We feel the great need for maintaining uninterrupted gas service to these war industries, and all of our employees, women as well as men, are imbued with the idea that in that way they also serve their country."

NEWS about boys in the Service

Wilfred "Bill" Dunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edith Dunn of the Pliska community, is one of Uncle Sam's boys helping to guard the vital Panama Canal Zone. He writes his mother from Corozal, as follows:

Well, I guess you think I have forgotten you. I haven't written in so long, but I didn't know it was so long until I got to thinking about it. The days do pass fast here and I am pretty busy all the time. I know they are long old days for you, being at home by yourself. Or has Sonnie got back yet?

I got a letter from Sis. She said you were worried about me because of that picture I sent you. It did look like I had been sick, but I haven't felt better in my life. I have gained 12 pounds since I have been here, so guess I am making it alright. If I get any fatter I won't be able to get around."

Sis said the kids were well, so I guess all the rest of the folks are. I have intended to write all of them, but just haven't got around to it.

Mother, if you have time, wish you would send me the Democrat, also the Amarillo paper. I would like to read the news. I guess most of the boys are gone. I know it hurt Mr. and Mrs. Spry for J. T. to go, but it won't hurt him. At least, it hasn't hurt me yet.

Sgt. Freebourn E. Durrett, who is a member of the 72nd Bombardment Squadron, stationed somewhere in the South Pacific, was at Hickam Field, Hawaii, when the Japs bombed it and Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941. Writing to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Durrett of Lakeview, he gives a thrilling account of the bombing:

"Yes, I was at Hickam Field when all the show was going on (but I had rather have been in the south field all by myself). I had gotten up pretty early that morning, even though it was Sunday, and was down at the hangar. I was the only one there besides the guard of the planes. I was talking to the sergeant of the guard about something and we heard planes diving and roaring over at Pearl Harbor, which was very near. I said to the sergeant, 'The Navy is on maneuvers pretty early this morning' and we stepped around the corner to watch them dive. Well, as soon as the first one pulled out of his dive there was a big explosion under him on the ground, and I thought that was a funny way to pull maneuvers.

"About that time all hell broke loose at Hickam and for about an hour there I didn't know what to do. I finally got on a machine gun and felt a little better. 'Did I get nearly hit?' Well, that is pretty easily answered. It seemed like bombs and machine gun bullets were hitting everywhere. Some fun (after it was all over and I wasn't hit)!"

In another letter to his sister, Sgt. Durrett tells of being in a plane crash:

"You said something about suspected sabotage on some of the airplanes there that crack up. Well, of course we have to look out for such, too. As much flying as there is, there are bound to be some crashes. It's lots of 'fun' to crack up in the water, when you can be rescued by the Navy and ride on one of their fast boats. However, I believe the boat ride is rougher than flying in rough weather. Easter Sunday will be one morning I'll never forget."

Lincoln "Dink" Gerlach of Memphis has landed safely in Australia, according to a message to his wife, received last Thursday. The convoy in which he crossed the Pacific was on the water two months. Gerlach is a mechanic in

Business Men

 the ceiling prices for selected "cost of living" commodities on and after May 18.

Immediate licensing of all retailers and wholesalers, effective as of the date the ceiling applies to their articles or services. In other words, each retailer should consider himself licensed as of May 18 and each wholesaler as of May 11. Later, wholesalers and retailers will be required to register in writing on forms which OPA will provide.

Commodities and Services Covered
 The general regulation applies to prices at all levels—manufacturer, wholesale and retail—of every commodity or product, domestic or imported, that is neither covered by a separate OPA regulation or specifically excluded.

All services connected with commodities also come under the ceiling. Prices on literally millions of articles of all sorts are, by the regulation, automatically controlled. Prices on relatively few products are exempt.

Among those controlled are prices of almost every processed food commodity, such as bread, cake and bakery products; beef, pork and their products; sugar, fluid milk and cream sold at retail; ice cream; canned meats, soups, canned fruits and vegetables; canned fish and other canned sea foods; cereals; lard and shortening; coffee, tea, cocoa, salt, and spices.

Also covered by the ceiling are all clothing, shoes, dry goods, and yard goods; soap in all forms; every kind of common fuel—even firewood; pipes, cigars, cigarettes, and prepared smoking and chewing tobacco; drugs, toiletries and sundries; furniture and furnishings; appliances and equipment; and hardware and miscellaneous agricultural supplies.

Specifically mentioned in the regulation are "cost of living" items, including those which are most significant in the budgets of average low and middle income family groups. Ceiling prices on such items must be publicly displayed by retailers, thus giving consumers every possible assurance that they will not be charged more than the highest prices reached last March.

Commodities not covered by the regulation fall generally into three classifications: Those that are exempt because of provisions of the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942 either (A) because they do not fall within the act's definition of a "commodity"—thus excluding advertising, newspapers, books, magazines, motion pictures, wages, common carrier and public utility rates; insurance, real estate and professional fees; or (B) by reason of the act's special treatment of agricultural commodities unless and until they attain a level reflecting a substantial premium over parity.

Commodities which do not have organized markets and for which it would be almost impossible to determine maximum prices either on the basis of previous sales or prices for comparable articles. Examples are: highly seasonal fresh vegetables, fresh fish and game, objects of art and collectors' items.

Primary raw materials—such as timber and mineral ores—all prices for which are substantially controlled by ceilings already in effect at certain levels.

Administrator Henderson explained that many of the commodities which are left free of price regulation at the present time will be covered in the future by supplementary orders. Among other things, he said, it is planned to set maximum prices for certain agricultural products as soon as such action is consistent with present or future legislation.

Specifically listed as "exempted" in the regulation are:

Any raw and unprocessed agricultural commodity or greenhouse commodity while it remains in substantially its original state, except bananas. In general, prices of such commodities are fixed at the state of first processing, although fresh fruits and vegetables, plants, flowers, and the like are excluded entirely.

Eggs and poultry. All milk products, including butter, cheese, condensed and evaporated milk (but not fluid milk sold at retail, cream sold at retail, and ice cream).

Flour (but not packaged cake mixes and other packaged flour mixes). Mutton and lamb. Fresh fish and seafood, and game.

Dried prunes, dried edible beans, leaf tobacco (whether dried or green), nuts (but not peanuts), linseed oil, linseed cake and linseed meal, mixed feed for animals, and manure.

Living animals, whether wild or domestic. Books, magazines, motion pictures, periodicals, newspapers, and materials furnished for publication by any press association or feature service. Used automobiles. Supplementary Regulation No. 1 to the general order, issued at the same time, lists several additional exceptions, including sales of all waste materials up to the level of the industrial consumer; zinc, lead and tin industrial residues; certain machines and parts manufactured in the course of sub-contracting (and the services performed on these sub-contracted materials); antimony ore and concentrates; and instrument jewel bearings.

To make provision for transactions of an individual or special nature, the general regulation exempts the following sales and deliveries:

By hotels, restaurants, soda fountains, bars, cafes, or other similar establishments, or food or beverages prepared and sold for consumption on the premises.

By a farmer of commodities grown and processed on his farm, if the total of such sales or deliveries does not exceed $75 in any one calendar month. (This permits the sale of small farm processing items such as smoked ham, bacon, maple syrup, cider, etc.)

By an owner, of his used personal or household effects or other personal property used by him. By any merchant, farmer, artisan, or person who renders professional service, or his used supplies, or business, farm or professional equipment, not acquired or produced by him for the purpose of sale.

At a bona fide auction, of used household or personal effects. Of commodities sold without private profit in the course of any sale, fair, or bazaar conducted for a period of not more than 15 days by any religious, charitable, or philanthropic organization.

Personal services not connected with commodities, and professional services are excluded from the order. All other retail services having to do with the installation, maintenance, preservation, repair, storage, and distribution of commodities must be priced no higher than the highest levels charged in March, 1942. (The "retail service" ceiling goes into effect July 1.)

Thus the rates charged by automobile repair shops, garages, tailors, laundries, dry cleaners, shoe repair establishments, etc., are covered by the regulation, while the prices set by barbers and beauty shops (services to the person) and the fees of doctors, dentists, and lawyers, etc., (professional services) are not.

MOTHER'S DAY
 We honor you, dear Mother,
 Be you young or old and gray,
 And we will wear a flower
 On Sunday, Mother's Day.

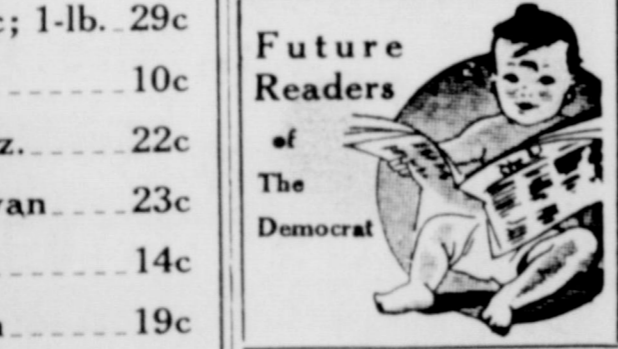

In memory of you, dear Mother,
 At home or gone ahead,
 For you who is gone, the white,
 And those with us, the Red.

You've done your part, Mother
 dear;
 I've heard you pray at night,
 In memory of you, Mother
 The rose I wear is White.

BE CAREFUL—IT ISN'T OURS!

A FRIEND LEFT his automobile with us for a week with permission to use it. We did use it, a few times, with almost ridiculous care. "Not so fast! It isn't ours, you know." "Don't brake so suddenly; you skid the tires. They are not ours, you know."

Mother had a party and borrowed some china. Were we careful in washing and drying that china. It wasn't ours, you know.
Sue and a friend traded "formals" for a night. Each gown received more solicitous care than ever before. Each girl was aware—it wasn't hers.

Only by Grace of Plenty and Postponement is anything mine until this war is won and a just peace mantles the world. Many things are left in my trust to use as need be, or pleasure suggests, and I am not as careful as I should be. My country is too big. I cannot seem to personalize it. But I must.

A boy, in a roaring plane hurtles from the deck of a ship in mid-ocean and is soon lost in the vastness of space. In an hour he may come back and land safely on his carrier. He may come back and find no ship. He may not come back. All I have—is merely in trust for this boy when and where he needs it. I must take care of it. It isn't mine, you know.

A boy, deep in the sea, longing for just one breath of clean air. He may rise to the surface. He may return safely to port.
He may rise and be blown to atoms. He may die deep in the sea for want of a breath of clean air. All I have—is in trust for this boy. I must be careful. It isn't mine, you know.

Millions of boys, millions of men, millions of mothers have left Life—Victory—Peace—in my trust. Ah, I must be careful to not waste, destroy or injure the store of riches in my care, with permission to use as need be. I must be careful. I must guard them and save them for they are not mine, you know.
—Armistead Grady.

Col. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle of the Philadelphia Biddles teaches U. S. Marine recruits at Quantico, Va., the science of knife and bayonet fighting, according to J. P. McEvoy, writing the story of the colonel's life in the erudite American Mercury.
It seems the colonel also teaches a Sunday school class. From a talk purportedly made to this class, it is abundantly evident that the colonel, however informed he may be on the subject of fighting with cold steel, is woefully weak on Texas history.
He told his class that Col. James Bowie, after whom a famous kind of knife was named, "was attacked on his deathbed by Indians with tomahawks, slaying seven of the redskins before they killed him."

Excerpts from the Official OEM Bulletin

Although strict control over sales of new plumbing and heating equipment costing more than $5 has been established by the War Production Board, requiring sales be made only on priority ratings of A-10 or higher, used equipment may be bought and sold without restrictions. For emergency repairs and maintenance of present equipment, priorities assistance is available to installers and suppliers of plumbing and heating fixtures. Such installers and suppliers may apply the A-10 priority rating.

WPB officials considered the nation's fishermen by pointing out that "the stores are chock-full of tackle," when they issued the recent order banning the use of metals, plastic and cork in non-commercial fishing tackle made after May 31. Since most tackle cannot be manufactured without the use of such materials, the order will mean the end of fishing tackle production for the duration. The only exception is fishing hooks, which may be produced for three months, beginning June 1, at a rate of 50 per cent of last year's output.

Maximum manufacturer's prices for hundreds of china and pottery articles used in every American household have been established by the Office of Price Administration. Dinnerware sets, cups, saucers, cooking and baking dishes and refrigerator jars are among the items covered in the new price schedule. Stoneware and art pottery are not included.

High preference rating for repairs of air conditioning and refrigeration equipment have been granted by WPB. The top rating A-1-a is available in case of an actual breakdown of equipment used to process, transport or store food and dairy products for the armed services. Other "A" ratings are provided to maintain existing equipment of all types, except domestic mechanical refrigerators.

Revisions in the WPB conservation order limiting women's styles have been announced, to include lifting of the restrictions on pleated skirts, provided the quality of material used does not exceed the limit; permission to use bias sleeves, except of plaid cloth, and prohibition of cuffs on riding breeches, ski suits, and coveralls, as well as woolen slacks.

Moving to steady the prices consumers must pay for oil paints and varnishes, the OPA has set temporary price maximums on manufacturers' prices for these products, at levels prevailing on April 12 this year. Paints affected include house paint, interior flat paint, enamels, lacquer enamels, barn and roof paint, fillers and varnish.

A limited number of sewing machines and sewing machine attachments may be produced between now and June 15, after which production must cease, WPB has ordered. The order, effective April 25, will result in a substantial saving of critical materials and will make available for war production at least a part of the industry's plant facilities.

Manufacture of crown caps for beverage bottles has been further limited by the War Production Board.

Every person holding a War Ration Book can get a special allotment of not more than five pounds of sugar a year for home canning or preserving fresh fruits and vegetables for home consumption, the OPA announced recently. Application for more sugar for canning will have to be made to local rationing boards on a special form No. R-215, and will have to be presented by an adult member of the family or by an authorized agent. The maximum amount obtainable will be five pounds. For this purpose local boards will issue sugar purchase certificates, not stamps. The certificate will state the total amount of sugar the bearer may purchase.

"War Bonds are your win-sur-surance," Walter Winchell.

WPB has ordered a curtailment of the use of steel and iron in metal signs. The order applies to signs which are 36 inches square or larger in size and of which at least 5 per cent of the weight of the sign consists of metal.

CULLED FROM THE DEMOCRAT'S EXCHANGES

We've Met That Guy
Van Stewart in Ochiltree County Herald: Did you ever notice that the bird who is usually late to work every morning is the same guy who is promptly on the dot when it comes to quitting time?

Reminiscent
E. E. Hayley in St. Jo Tribune: Well, well, so this is May 1. If we were a kid again, we would be thinking of the warm days ahead when we could remove our shoes and subject our winter-softened toes to the hard, sharp stones along the path to the ole fishin'-n-swimmin' hole.

Maybe Susie's Soused!
De Witt Lamb in Castro County News: That psychologist who said a person is sober if he can say, "Susie sits in the 'soup,'" didn't say a word about what became of Susie.

Vegetarian
Virginia Anderson in Shamrock Texan: With everyone growing a Victory garden, the most popular conversational topic is "How high are your beans?" "Do your beans have any tops, mine do," or "Just take a look at these blisters I got last night hoeing corn." You'll quickly find out that everyone has bigger corn, larger blisters and have already had a mess of onions from their gardens and "were they delicious."

Essential Industry
The Seurry County Times: What is an essential industry? This question has been asked numerous times during the past two months, will probably be asked several hundred times during the next 60 days by draft boards in giving those 3-B ratings to family men.

Hungry Hens
The McLean News: Loose chickens, stock and dogs are helping Hitler when they trespass on Victory gardens. This is one year that chicken, stock and dog owners should cooperate with gardeners and keep their animals on their own premises. Gardeners are long-suffering and would rather not offend a neighbor by complaining, but animal owners should take a thought about neighborliness, too. It works both ways.

Isolated
Boyce House in I Give You Texas: A former citizen of San Antonio, who now runs a hotel out on the Pacific coast, says: "California is too far from Texas ever to amount to very much."

Knotty Problem
Homer Steen in Floyd County Hesperian: Einstein is the only person who understands the universe, and even he doesn't know what to do about it.

When a Child Needs a Laxative!

Your child should like this tasty liquid laxative and you should like the gentle way it usually wakes up a youngster's lazy intestines when given by the simple directions.

SYRUP OF BLACK-DRAUGHT contains the same principal ingredient which has enabled its older brother BLACK-DRAUGHT to give so many users such satisfying relief for so many years!

Perhaps that's why it usually gives a child such refreshing relief when the familiar symptoms indicate a laxative is needed.

SYRUP OF BLACK-DRAUGHT comes in 2 sizes. The introductory size is 25c; the economy size is 50c.

Judge Goodpasture Receives Copy of Biography From Friend, Cordell Hull

To the vast majority of Americans, whatever their political allegiance, Cordell Hull, Secretary of State in President Roosevelt's cabinet, is a statesman of more than the usual stature.

The book, "Cordell Hull, a Biography," and subtitled "The story of a man from the Tennessee hills who became a great Secretary of State," was authored by Harold B. Hinton. The copy sent to Judge Goodpasture bears the inscription on the fly leaf which reads "To my friend Judge M. O. Goodpasture in high esteem, Cordell Hull."

The Secretary of State, despite the eminence to which he has risen and the many great accomplishments to his credit, has not forgotten the friends of an earlier day who emphasized recently when Judge Goodpasture received from him an autographed copy of his biography.

The book, "Cordell Hull, a Biography," and subtitled "The story of a man from the Tennessee hills who became a great Secretary of State," was authored by Harold B. Hinton. The copy sent to Judge Goodpasture bears the inscription on the fly leaf which reads "To my friend Judge M. O. Goodpasture in high esteem, Cordell Hull."

The characters, events and scenes covering the earlier part of the life of the Secretary of State are all familiar to Judge Goodpasture, who left Tennessee in 1900 and came to Texas, landing in this section in 1904.

Judge Goodpasture recalls that William Hull, father of the statesman, was accustomed to spend the night at his father's house when rafting logs down Obed's river, which joined the Cumberland river a few miles below the Goodpasture place.

Secretary Hull started law practice in Celina, Tenn., where Judge Goodpasture lived as a young man, and it was there the two became close friends.

Since Tuesday owners and clerks of grocery stores have accustomed themselves to the use of the ration books and customers are rapidly becoming conditioned to the unaccustomed manner of obtaining their "sweetenin".

Store owners report very little complaining, due to the fact that the public has accepted the rationing procedure as necessary and have long expected the system to be put into effect.

chairman, from Secretary of State Wm. J. Lawson. The opinion of the attorney general was asked because some doubt prevailed as to whether the provisions of the act applied to primary elections.

Article 2978a of the act reads: "No persons shall be permitted to have his name appear upon an official ballot as a candidate for any office in this State unless and until he shall file with the Secretary of State, in a form prescribed by the Attorney General, that if elected to the office which he seeks, he will support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States and of Texas."

Candidates are instructed to disregard the requirement as to primary elections only. The attorney general's opinion reads in part:

"It is therefore our opinion that the provisions of said House Bill (Article 2978a) apply to the official ballot in general elections, and in general elections only."
