The President Works Even on His Vacation

It's vacation time for the nation's chief, but his work goes on just the same. Here President Roosevelt transacts some of the country's business while seated in his car at the Warm Springs, Ga., "White House," where he's taking his annual Thanksgiving rest. Marvin McIntyre, presidential secretary, informally clad, leans toward the president as a White House secretary takes notes from Roosevelt's dictation. Back of the chief executive is Gus Gennrich, his bodyguard, and looking on from behind is Marguerite Leland, F. R.'s personal secretary.

ANTI-NEW DEAL LEAD GROWING IN DIGEST POLL

Literary Digest Poll Shows Growth of Anti Sentiment

A slight increase is shown in the majority vote against the New Deal, registered last week in the Literary Digest's ten million ballot nationwide poll, as 167,000 additional returns are reported in the second tabulation of the "straw" referendum.

An analysis of the 207,087 total votes now tallied shows 91,351 votes in support of Roosevelt's acts and policies, to 115,736 opposed to them.

The poll protest against the New Deal rises in percentage from 53.28 per cent of last week's balloting to 55.89 per cent of the current week's votes.

Initial returns are reported

Gobble, gobble, gobble. Darn it, we ate so much turkey yesterday, we gobble every time we open our mouth this morning, but we don't think our typewriter would be affected that way.

Anyway, it was a great day, and we hope that everybody had something to be thankful for, and we believe they have.

Hall County is making three times as much cotton as they did last year, and several times as much feed.

We are getting a splendid fall season in the ground for next year's crops.

There is work for every unemployed man in Hall County who really wants to work.

Business is definitely on the upgrade, and we believe we are at last around that famous corner.

We may not have "a chicken in every pot and two cars in every garage" next year, but there'll at least be a beefsteak once a week and a Model T Ford sitting in the back yard.

But enough of this serious stuff... it belongs in the editorial column.

We saw Durham-Jones come near losing a good coffee cup the other day. Temple Deaver was sampling one of their free cups of coffee when he noticed the birds painted on the cup. Thinking they were storks, he started to throw it outdoors, but discovered they were only swans... and a cup was saved from destruction.

Well, well, well, we see Anette Gerlach has a new sister-in-law. A near-sister-in-law, anyway.

Thanksgiving wasn't so good to several 14-point Amarillo fans of our acquaintance.

Several high school boys last night on south Seventh street apparently debating on whether or not it was safe to steal a quart of milk on a front porch.

Cliff Bumgarner in the office this morning gloating over the fact that he is going to get to see the T. C. U.-S. M. U. football game tomorrow and we aren't.

Nearly all of the grocery dealers yesterday morning waiting on all of the other grocery dealers to close up for the day so they could close. They all apparently don't realize that there has to be a beginning to everything.

Three barrels of dressed turkeys at the CCC camp here.

A natty attire being worn by Roy Forkner, who is here from Texas Tech for Thanksgiving holidays. If he only had a raccoon coat we'd say he had all the earmarks of a higher education.

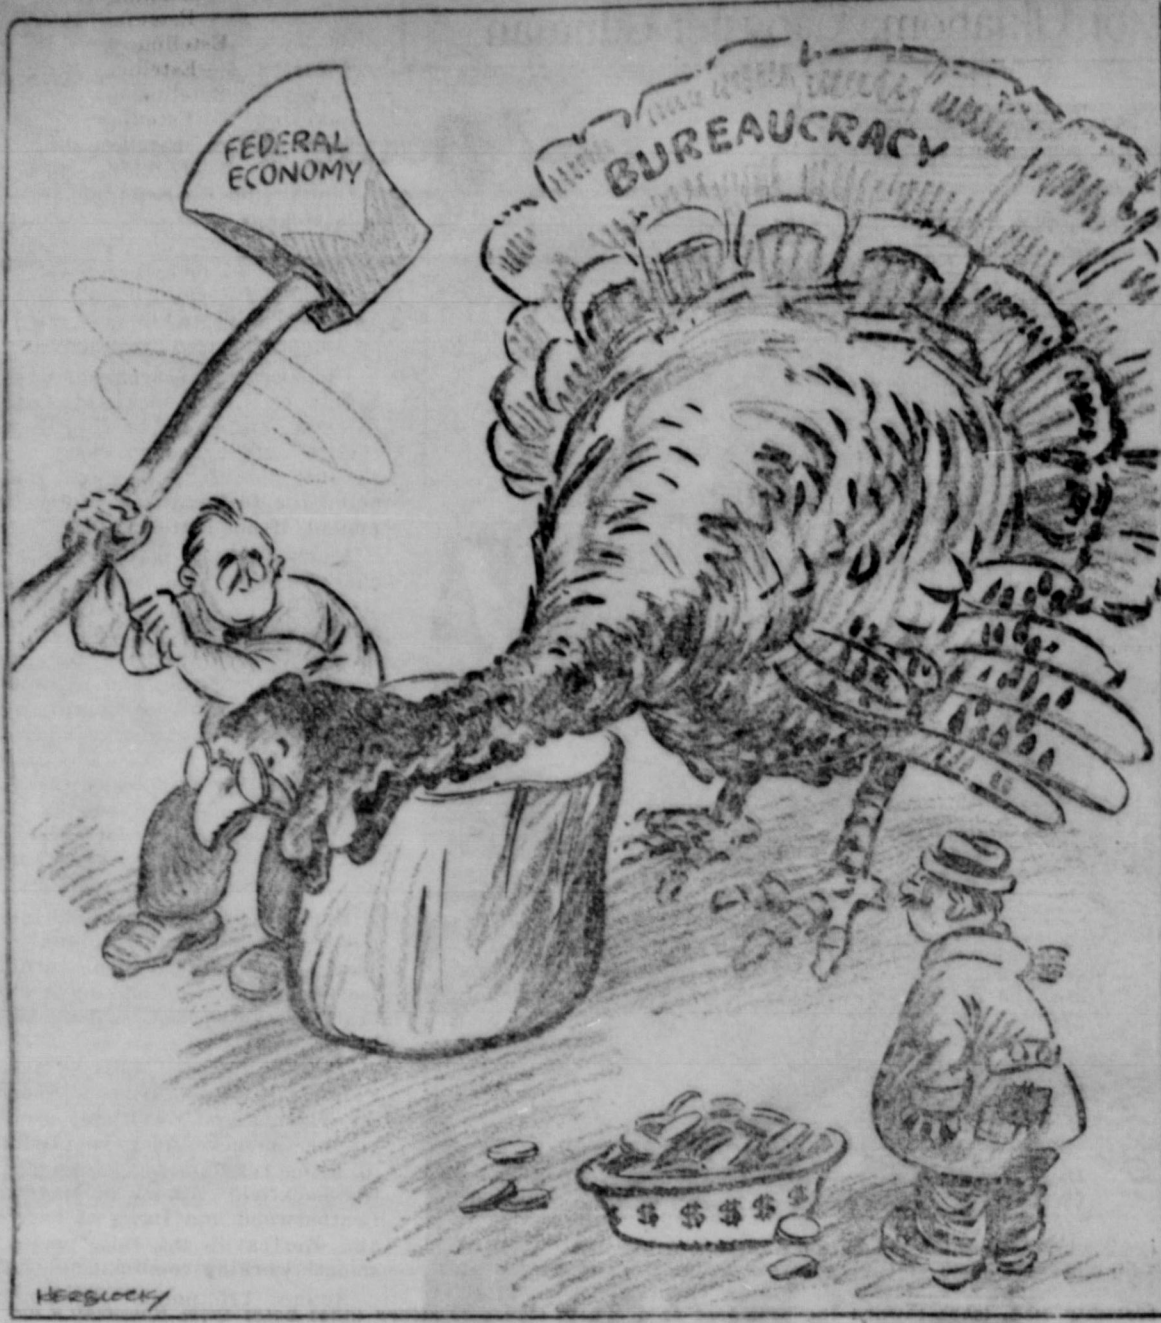

Two beautiful fist fights at the Thanksgiving dance the other night.

Norman Thomas enumerating the things for which he had to be thankful on Thanksgiving.

Our operative covering the west side reports that Dr. Howard has even been sending down and having his cigarettes delivered for fear he'll run into the "We Saw" editor of some of his assistances.

A sign on Durham-Jones' lunch department which read: "Closed for 30 minutes. Gone to eat something to eat." It was signed by Carl Eudy, official thief of the fountain lunch.

The Democrat may not always be right in the stand it takes; it may not always be wise in standing for what it believes; but, right or wrong, wise or unwise, the Democrat will stand for the things it believes are for the welfare of the community.

MEMPHIS SHOULD HAVE "GOOD FELLOWS" CLUB

AS IS customary each year, a movement will be gotten under way soon in this city to establish a fund for Christmas cheer for the needy.

In former years this has taken the form of a "Christmas Stocking" Club, which solicits funds from citizens for supplying the less fortunate with the things which are needed to make Christmas the holiday it should be... food and clothing for the adults, and toys, fruits and candy for the children.

This is a worthy movement, but we believe a more personal and better move would be in the nature of the "Good Fellow" Clubs organized about this time of the year in most of the cities of the nations.

The Goodfellow plan has the same goal as the Christmas Stocking movement, but is much more personal, and brings, we believe a greater degree of satisfaction to both those who give and those who receive.

The plan of the Goodfellow movement is for each citizen who desires to do his part in bringing Christmas cheer to the needy to adopt a needy family. The donor's contribution to the movement goes to this one particular family, and takes the form of what is most needed in the home.

For instance, Mr. Smith adopts the family of Mr. Brown, his less fortunate neighbor. Instead of giving the central fund a donation of $5.00, he takes the same amount of money and invests it in clothing, food and toys, makes up a basket and presents it personally to the family of Mr. Brown.

There is a more personal touch to this kind of Christmas giving, and it engenders a feeling of friendship and good cheer that the other plan does not touch.

The giver feels the glow of satisfaction that never comes from a donation to a fund. He contracts the family which he has adopted and sees the happiness that arises from his gift.

The receiver also gets more satisfaction from the gift. He feels that it is not charity... which it really is not... but a gift from a friend, and accepts it in that spirit.

Let's have a "Good Fellows" Club in Memphis this year, and make Christmas mean something to our less fortunate neighbors.

BEHIND THE SCENE IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Nov. 28
When Mr. Harold Ickes goes the spot, which is where you find him on frequent occasions the show is rather more than likely to be diverting.

Even more fascinating are behind-the-scenes movements, the recent cause celebre of German steel order by subcontractors on a couple of PWA projects. Suddenly your Uncle Harold found himself sore beset by "Steel Trust," the American Federation of Labor, in Hearst papers and the large, motley collection of intra-administration enemies has collected until himself a March 4, 1933.

The odds were heavy. But of you to believe that the Bull Dog of the cabinet was not afraid. If Papa Roosevelt had intervened and told him to get down, you would be seeing Ickes out in the center of the flailing away at all his foes, the most awesome of New Deal to date.

Plain fact: Ickes had been to use the threat of German steel imports in a minor way club (it was more like a club over the "Steel Trust," whose companies had a way of submitting identical bids on PWA jobs suggested the taxpayers were being collusively held up for exorbitant profits.

And Roosevelt had backed him up. But F. I. developed cold feet when the industry, working through the Wolf, persuaded President Bill Green of the A. F. of L. to join the hue and cry against any project.

The tariff on steel (written the industry's good pal, Senator Dave Reed of Pennsylvania runs from 18 to 30 per cent PWA contract regulations. Ickes stated that on top of that tractor must buy American steel unless a 15 per cent could be made otherwise.

Some steel men said the tariff should be 60 or 70 per cent.

Then the Morehead City, N. C. decided they wouldn't pay 100 per cent more for a type of steel which they said they preferred the German product anyway. Ickes insisted on saving $21,000,000 by buying German steel pilings.

Steel propagandists spread word among newspapermen soon there was a terrible commotion especially when it was learned that the borough Bridge in New York was going to use a bit of German steel, too.

Nevertheless, Ickes has $150,000,000 of PWA funds piled out to those few steel companies with their penurious identical bids and seeming stonewall. And he was good enough to let the same companies make a huge storm out of first $100,000 worth of steel which they had had in two years.

The backdown was far from complete. Ickes is submitting "evidence of collusion" to the Federal Trade Commission. The steel industry may be getting publicity as embarrassing as that which gave Mr. Ickes.

ESTELLINE CUBS HAVE SPLENDID FOOTBALL YEAR

Special to The Democrat
ESTELLINE, Nov. 27.—The Bear Cubs turned in one of their most successful seasons in years this year. The Cubs played their regular ten games, eight, losing one and tying one. The Cubs scored 190 points to the opponents' 64. Following are the teams the Cubs played and the score: Flomot 0—Estelline 13.

In answer to Coach Carnuti's call at the first of the season, there were 34 men to report; but during the season the squad dwindled down to 29 men, 25 reporting to practice regularly.

The successful season was largely due to a fast backfield, hard blocking and sure tackling. Although outweighed by every opponent, the forward wall was equal the forward wall of the opponent, if not better.

Eddie Clifton, playing his last year, filled his position at center very well and showed much ability as a line-backer by intercepting passes and smashing in on running plays. Sims and Landers played good ball at guard, and their blocking contributed much to the success of the backfield. Stout and Wright, husky tackles, proved themselves worthy of their positions. They did excellent work rushing the passer and punter and tearing up running plays.

Edmondson and Townsend held down their positions at end by tearing up interference, turning back end runs, and making it miserable for the passers. They also helped make the passing attack more effective. C. Leary, Hood, Phillips, Huckaby, Hinton, Spradlin, Thomas and Ewen ably assisted the linemen and gave promise of being regulars next season. In the backfield, Adams at quarter, Leatherwood and Davis at halves, and Kerchville at full, made a smooth-working combination.

Adams, 115 pound Sophomore quarterback, turned in many big gains for the Cubs and showed ability of being a star his two remaining years. Davis, who held down the right wingback position, did excellent work at passing, blocking and tackling. He was a consistent ground-gainer for the Cubs. Kerchville, hard-driving fullback, deserves praise for his blocking and smashing line drives. Vernon Leatherwood, triple-threat halfback, was the team's leading scorer, scoring 120 points. His end runs, passing, punt returns and line plays were responsible for many Cub victories. Rapp, "Sleepy" Leatherwood, Moore, M. Leary and W. Adams also turned in some creditable playing for the Cubs.

With several lettermen returning, the prospects for the 1936 team look bright.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Bralley of Dumas, and Miss Helen Boswell, student at the W. T. S. T. College at Canyon, arrived in Memphis yesterday to spend Thanksgiving with Mrs. Bralley and Miss Boswell's mother, Mrs. Fred Boswell. They will go to Dallas today and will attend the T. C. U. S. M. U. football game in Fort Worth tomorrow.

J. E. King and J. R. Martin went to Amarillo yesterday to spend Thanksgiving.

A REAL JOURNEY TO TOYLAND

Democrat to Take Kids to See Santa

By W. E. SAW

Hey, Kiddies! We want to tell you all about a great trip we've just made in company with two of our little friends, Bob and Betty . . . a trip that took us through a wonderful country and landed us right smack dab into Santa Claus's workshops in Toyland.

It being the time of year when a magic ball, which granted every wish when rubbed.

It being the time of year when we're all wondering what Santa is going to bring us, we rubbed the ball and wished we could visit Santa Claus in his North Pole workshops.

Quick as a wink there was a rap at the window, and outside we saw the funniest little man with an automobile only about a foot long. He said he had come to make our wish come true, and for us to get in the car. Rubbing the magic ball, we became small enough to get into the tiny car, and with the funny little man at the wheel we were whisked away on the trail of a wonderful adventure.

The strangest things happened. The car became a sleigh, then a boat, later an airplane, and finally a rocket ship.

Among the lands we saw en route to Toyland were many you'll delight to visit. There was Desert Island, where the flowers, trees and bushes were all good to eat, and the rivers ran milk, honey, lemonade and soda pop. There was the Island of Jewels, where you had to be careful that you didn't step on a diamond, where the hills were of solid silver and gold, and where money and jewels grew on the trees and bushes.

And when we reached Toyland, what fun that was. The skyscrapers all were built flat on the ground, and every day was a holiday, with parades of wooden soldiers on every street.

In Toyland we saw Santa's workshop, where the toys for the little boys and girls are made. We reviewed Santa's crack regiment of snow men, who presented arms as we passed. And then we met Santa in person . . . and what a jolly old fellow he was.

Santa showed us all through his workshops. We learned how he read the millions of letters he received from good little boys and girls without even having to open envelopes. We saw hundreds of little Brownies helping Santa load his sleighs. And we learned something that had always bothered us . . . now Santa carried enough presents for all the little folks in the world. But you'll learn about this later yourself.

Having received from old Santa several wonderful presents, we climbed onto a cloud and were whisked back home again.

So delighted were we with the trip, that we tried to get Santa to agree to let us bring all the little boys and girls of this section up to see him, but the dear old fellow was afraid there would be so many they would get in the way just now, while the rush is on in Toyland.

As the next best thing, we took pictures of scenes at all the wonderful places we visited, and, with Santa's permission, we are going to print them in the Democrat every day, beginning Saturday, and we want every little boy and girl whose parents get the Democrat to watch for them.

With All My Love

Dana said, "I've been planning to ask you. I'd like you to receive with me Thursday night."

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Dana WESTBROOK, who was reared abroad comes to America after the death of her mother to make her home with her grandmother, whom she has never seen.
Years before Dana's mother died, leaving her husband and infant daughter, NANCY LACE. After the divorce, she married young Westbrook and later their daughter, Dana, was born.
When Dana arrives at the old home, she is welcomed warmly by her great aunt, EILEEN CAREWE, but is surprised to receive by her grandmother and half sister.
Mr. Cameron shrewdly begins to introduce Dana to society, hoping that Dana will make a brilliant marriage. Nancy hides her belief to be a help-along for RONALD MOORE.
She is disturbed when Dana meets Mr. SCOTT STANLEY meets Dana and is deeply attracted. He is PAULA LONG, who masks her love for him behind a platonic friendship, that he intends to marry.

"That gorgeous gal is Nancy Wallace's half-sister, the one who was born abroad," Grace answered.
Paula said slowly, "It's all rather vague, but it was something disgraceful, wasn't it?"
She has a bona fide ancestry, as far as that goes," Barbara said. "But to think of those two having to live under the same roof! It's tough for Nancy, having this one show up, isn't it?"
"Wonder why she did come," Grace said thoughtfully. "Think of leaving all the glitter and glory of Paris to come to that gloomy old dump where the Camerons live."

"I suppose Paris is less glittery and glorious if you're broke," Barbara said shrewdly. "I suspect that brought her here."
Paula was scarcely listening. She was thinking, nervously, as she accepted a cigarette from Sam Lawrence that, whatever the reason, she wished this girl had stayed away.

Across the pool, Scott had flung himself down beside Jimmy Harris and Andy Wilson. And (which was infinitely of more concern to Paula, besides the girl in the green suit.
Jimmy and Andy were getting to their feet, preparing to meet away. As boys always did when Scott showed especial interest in a girl. There was simply no use trying to compete with Scott's undeniable fascination for women. Given free rein, as he generally was, his enthusiasm wore off quickly. Not that he was unstable. In matters such as getting his professional training Scott had shown the mist dogged persistence, surmounting obstacles — and there had been a lot of them — and coming through with brilliant honors.

vised us not to take her up. What good would that do except give the girl a clear field?"

Scott was saying to Dana "There's just no use snubbing me because I ran those two nice boys away. I mean to do it frequently—as long as it's necessary. Until there isn't a man around. Of course, then, you'll wind up by marrying me."

He smiled at her, and Dana found herself wanting to answer this engaging impudence with a smile of her own.

Instead she frowned a little. "I'm just out of school, so I'm not sure how to answer when I'm proposed to," she said.

"The answer is yes," Scott told her softly. "Just a sweet, simple yes."

"I thought you were supposed to say 'This is so sudden!'"

Scott shook his head. "Not any more. That's what the man says nowadays when the girl says 'You've been camping around here, drinking my father's wine and eating our food and using our car as though it were your own long enough. It's time you went out and bought me a ring!'"

Dana laughed. "I like the way you do that," said Scott. "I like the way you walk, too, and the way you dive and swim. I suspect I'm going to like the way you dance."

Dana said impulsively, "I've had an idea, just this minute."

"Was it a good idea?"

"A perfectly ridiculous one. I was thinking that I might ask my grandmother to send you an invitation to the dance she's giving Nancy and me Thursday. But of course no girl invites a man she's just met."

"Oh, yes they do," Scott protested vehemently. "They invite all the new men whose jokes they don't know and whose footwork on a dance floor they haven't tested yet."

"Well, I'll think about it," Dana said casually. "But it sounds as though you're boasting."

"Thursday," said Scott slowly. "I'll wait for you to telephone until Thursday. All day Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, I'll wait. And even Thursday, if you haven't gotten around to it. If the telephone doesn't ring then, I'll smash the darn thing and come anyway. I wouldn't miss dancing with you—hello, there, Ronnie. I'm on my way."

Scott got up and moved away. "Glad he's gone," Ronnie said frankly. "I don't know what there is about that fellow—yes, I do, too. I'm horribly, insanely jealous of him at this moment. Was he by any chance trying to make love to you?"

"It's nice of you to pretend you'd mind," Dana said. "Everybody is being so nice I don't feel a bit like a stranger any more. Is there a sort of conspiracy to spoil me?"

"I don't like the all-inclusive, one-of-many picture you're giving me," Ronald frowned. "After all, I saw you first. Doesn't priority count for something?"

"It does," Dana smiled at him. "Especially when I've been rescued on a hot day. And brought to the coolest place in town."

"All that," Ronald said slowly, "is just nothing to what I'm going to do for you if you'll let me."

Dana said, almost absently, "Nice of you. Let's swim a while."

She was thinking: "These southern boys all get around to talking about love, when of course they don't mean a word of it."

On the way home Ronnie's big blue car passed the gray roadster Scott Stanley was driving. Scott raised a hand in salute.

"Who's the stunning girl with your friend?" Dana asked.

"That's Scott's girl, Paula Long."

Dana's eyes were sober. Well, she might have known it. He was just an awfully attractive male flirt. He'd probably thought she was silly and gullible.

Dana turned toward Ronnie. "I've been planning to ask you," she said. "I'd like to have you receive with me Thursday night." (To Be Continued)

COLORFUL CEREMONY WEDDING POPULAR YOUNG LOCAL COUPLE

Amid a beautiful setting of rare autumn splendor Miss Shirley Greene became the bride of Ingram Walker Wednesday, November twenty-seventh at the First Methodist Church. At 5 o'clock the service was read by the pastor, Rev. O. W. Carter, before the altar profusely decorated with autumn foliage and fellow and maroon chrysanthemums, flanked on either side by trellises of brilliant oak leaves and greenery and by tall floor baskets filled with chrysanthemums in the autumn shades, while yellow cathedral tapers burned brightly in golden candelabra. Along the chancel rail and at intervals on the rostrum were arranged golden baskets and vases of these regal fall flowers interspersed with yellow lighted tapers, and over door-ways and lights and organ were festooned the autumn leaves.

THE BRIDE

Before the ceremony Mrs. Margaret Morgan played an organ number, Kamennei Ostraw by Rubenstein, also accompanying Mrs. C. L. Sloan Jr., who sang, "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life" by Victor Herbert. As the bridal party entered the church Mrs. Morgan played the Bridal Chorus from Lehengrin.

Gary Tarver, ring bearer, dressed in tan and brown and carrying a dark red rose concealing the ring, preceded the groomsmen. Gale Greene, brother of the bride, Lesley Foxhall, Marcus Rosenwasser and Buster Helm, who also served as ushers. Then entered the bridesmaids, Nell Walker, sister of the groom, Tommy Noel, Maurine Thompson and Cornelia McCanne, followed by the matron of honor, Mrs. J. Emory Barton of Denton, Little Laura Ann Thompson, dressed in a blue velvet Shirley Temple frock, scattered flower petals in the bride's pathway as she came down the church aisle escorted by her father. She was met at the altar by the groom, who had entered from the front of the church attended by Allen Dunbar as best man.

During the ceremony Mrs. Morgan played softly "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" from Sampson and Deliah and for the recession Mendelssohn's Wedding March pealed from the organ.

The matron of honor was very attractively attired in russet brown velvet and the bridesmaids were lovely in dark green velvet costumes. The dresses of the bride's attendants were modeled along Grecian lines and they wore gold sandals, small gold sequins hats and short veils and carried arm bouquets of yellow and gold chrysanthemums.

The bride was beautiful in rich burgundy velvet which fashioned her gown. It was Renaissance model with long close fitting sleeves and its graceful sweeping lines were especially becoming. It was trimmed with rhinestones fastenings from back of neck to below the waist line and the high neck line in front was finished with a handsome rhinestone clip. She wore silver sandals and a burgundy hat and carried an arm bouquet of orchid chrysanthemums tied with wide silver ribbon.

Mrs. Greene, mother of the bride, wore a blue dinner gown, silver trimmed and with silver collar and her sandals were of silver. She wore a small blue hat matching her gown and her shoulder corsage was pink sweet peas.

Mrs. Walker, mother of the groom, wore a floor length afternoon dress of russet color with which she wore a brown hat and her accessories were of brown. Her costume was complete by a shoulder corsage of yellow pompons and baby breath in shades of orange.

The wedding ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Receiving with the bride and groom were the parents and relatives and a few close friends. The spacious home was brilliantly lighted for the occasion with chrysanthemums and ferns and the array of wedding gifts. The dining table was covered with an imported cloth and held the three-tiered confections decorated with an artistic arrangement of autumn flowers, and foliage. Refreshments of bride's cake and coffee were served the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker left by motor for Dallas. The bride chose for traveling a green gabardine suit with red fox collar and her accessories were of brown. After December fifth they will be at home at 408 North Tenth Street.

Mrs. Walker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Greene and was born and reared in Memphis, graduating from High School here. She studied at Lindenwood College at St. Charles, Mo., and attended Kansas University at Lawrence, Kans., where she was a member of the Chi Omega Sorority. The next year she entered the New England Conservatory at Boston, Mass., where she completed her music education. She is an accomplished musician, teaching both piano and violin and is organist at the First Methodist Church.

Mr. Walker is the son of Mrs. R. C. Walker and has always made his home in Memphis. He is a graduate of Memphis High School and attended Colorado University at Boulder, where he pledged Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. He later attended and graduated from the Fort Worth Business College and is now employed at the Memphis Cotton Compress.

Among the out of town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Greene of Clarendon, Mrs. J. Wearing Walker and son, of Plainview; Dr. and Mrs. T. L. Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Ragsdale of Childress; Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson Jr., and daughter, Laura Ann, of Hedley.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Kinslow and son, Billy, returned today from Henrietta, where they spent Thanksgiving as the guests of Mrs. Kinslow's aunt, Mrs. W. H. Chilson.

Mr. and Mrs. John Turlington spent Thanksgiving Day with their daughter, Pauline, at Lubbock.

tense activities of the WPA already in operation here, it will likely be a day or two yet before it is initiated.

Hall County relief workers are to be assigned by F. N. Blevins, head of the National Reemployment Service here, to serve under Mr. Bownds as the tax appraisers.

Several months ago the State Tax Board in Austin made an application to the Works Progress Administration, requesting a grant of two million dollars for the purpose of making a statewide survey of rural property within Texas. The application has been approved and funds are now available.

A letter from the State Tax Board stated in effect that it has been impossible to complete the entire personnel of a tax appraising organization and asked the county tax collector and assessor to serve as head of the organization until a project manager could be named. District supervisors, their assistants and county managers will be named shortly.

Only ad valorem tax assessments will be made, it was said.

It is believed that the survey will benefit the county in the future in regards to the rendition of property, especially that property now on the unknown rolls or not rendered at all.

It is estimated that it will also help 5,000 on the relief roll over Texas that would otherwise soon be without the necessities of life.

Mrs. Lawrence Cummings is in the city visiting friends and relatives.

Only two of the states this week show a majority for the New Deal. These are Georgia and Texas. The former voted 67.55 per cent for the New Deal, and the latter's vote was 61.88 per cent for the President's policies.

Totals for the two weeks to date are: For the New Deal, 91,351; against the New Deal, 115,736.

preme Court ruling. However, other beer gardens and cafes are still dispensing the drink.

The court ruling was handed down in the Childress case which came up first in November, 1933. The city of Childress went wet, with the county being dry. The case was in court since shortly after the election, when an injunction was granted preventing issuance of licenses to Childress beer dealers.

It is believed that the Supreme Court ruling will prohibit precincts in dry counties from voting wet. Memphis is in that class, the city having voted for 3.2 beer after the county had gone dry.

With the exception of approximately 25 second rental payments, which are being held up in Washington for correction and other minor technicalities, and about 50 second rentals on "split contracts," the Hall County complying farmers have received all of their government money for the 1935 program.

This, however, is exclusive of the party payments for this year, which will run close to $100,000. The parity payments, together with the "split contract" and second rental outstanding, are expected to arrive here by Christmas, Mr. Jackson stated.
