STOLEN CAR IS FOUND HERE FRIDAY

Man Is Charged With Possession of Car Altered Numbers

Johnnie Brewer, tenant on the Horace Tarver farm, was placed under arrest last Friday by officers from the Sheriff's department, charged with having in his possession an automobile with motor numbers changed, and later released on bond, to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Brewer is alleged to have been in possession of a 1934 Chevrolet Coach which had been stolen from Dr. A. D. Donnelly, of Honey Grove.

Acting on a tip, the officers went to Brewer's place and examined the car, finding the motor numbers had been altered, and the arrest followed.

Brewer claims that he bought the car from his brother, Jack Brewer, whose present whereabouts are unknown. He registered the car as a rebuilt automobile with the local tax collector.

Donnelly was notified that his car had been recovered, and was probably arrive here today to get it.

COTTON CHECKS COMING IN NOW

First Rental Payment on Split and New Contracts

Over $5,000 in government cotton checks was received by James A. Jackson, county agricultural agent, here this morning to be issued Hall County farmers for compliance with the 1934 government cotton reduction program.

The checks are for the first rental payment on the 1934 split contracts and the first rental on new contracts, the county agricultural agent said. Mr. Jackson stated emphatically that no second rental checks were received and were not expected until about October 15.

Eighty-seven checks for split contracts were received and totaled $1,263.76. There were 166 checks on new contracts received, and they amounted to $4,127.83.

The checks are being issued to farmers at the county agent's office in the county court house, and all having first rental payments due them are asked to call at the office within the next few days for the checks.

NEW EQUIPMENT

The Helpy-Selfy Laundry has improved its plant by the addition of water softening equipment, which has been installed within the past few days.

GILES HOME BURNS

The home of Tom Stotts at Giles was completely destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon, about 5:00 o'clock, while the family was away from home. Both house and contents were a total loss.

Polish Liner Beats Schedule

Arriving five hours ahead of schedule, the motorship Patsudski, first trans-Atlantic liner built by the infant Polish merchant marine, is pictured ploughing majestically past the New York skyline at the end of its maiden voyage from Gdynia. This is the ship which was built in Italy and paid for entirely in Polish coal.

$18,905 Grant For Gym Gets Approval

Will Supply Long Needed Facility

As announced briefly in Saturday's issue, the Public Works Administration has approved a grant of $18,905 to the Memphis Independent School District, for the erection of a gymnasium and other school improvements, the balance of the cost to be borne by the school district.

This is the grant that was refused by the administration about two weeks ago, due at that time to excessive man-hour cost. A revision of the project brought it within the allowable limits, and the approval followed.

It is planned by the trustees of the district to erect a gymnasium to house athletic activities of the school with a part of the funds and attend to other needed school improvements with the balance.

The schools have been badly in need of a gymnasium for years. The present gym, in the basement of the High school building, is not large enough to accommodate a regulation size basketball court even, and is totally unsuited for the purpose for which it was intended.

Superintendent Davis and Principal Gore went to Plainview this morning to confer with district PWA officials in regard to the gymnasium grant.

LAWYER IS NOW ON TRIAL FOR BRIBERY

Outgrowth of Incest Case Tried Earlier This Term

District Court reconvened this morning, after a recess over the week-end, with the case of the State of Texas vs. C. Land, local attorney, occupying the attention of the court.

Mr. Land, who was indicted by the Grand Jury this term of court, is charged with bribery. He is being represented by Hamilton & Fitzgerald.

The charge grew out of the Calhoun case which was tried earlier in the court session. Mr. Land is charged with having been instrumental in persuading the prosecuting witness in that case to leave the borders of the state and go to California, from where she later was returned.

The jury for the case was being secured this morning from the regular panel for the week, and testimony in the case was expected to begin by noon today.

GOVERNMENT TO LEND MONEY FARMERS

Funds Available For Owner or Tenants at 5 Per Cent

The Resettlement Administration, federal agency which has taken over the relief work for rural communities from the state, is now ready to take applications for loans to farmers, according to A. N. Crandal, local supervisor.

"The purpose of the Resettlement Administration," said Mr. Crandal, is to enable every present and potential farmer to get on land and stay there. The loans made through this agency to the farmers will not be foreclosed, so long as the farmer evinces the desire to meet the government half way and do his part.

"The administration wants the local office, which has charge of Hall, Donley and Armstrong counties, to handle 400 families during the coming year. We have 100 families on our lists in the three counties now."

Land owners or renters can obtain loans now for feed, implements and grocery bills until crops are harvested in 1936, and in a few days the administration will be in position to make loans to land owners for the improvement of their places, in the way of wells, fencing, barns and other outbuildings. These loans draw 5 per cent interest.

A change in policy which went into effect recently enables the loans to be made in cash instead. (Continued on page 3)

ENROLL 34 FOR EXTENSION COURSE

College Credits Are Offered Students In Class

The extension class offered by West Texas State Teachers College, Canyon, which is English, 401, "Plays of Shakespeare," began at the junior high school building here Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock with 34 students enrolled.

Members of the class voted to hold meetings every Saturday afternoon during the semester from 2 o'clock until 5. The course will run until February 1. Dr. B. F. Fronabarger, instructor, has had Shakespeare's works under seven different professors and has seen all of the plays on the stage. He has taught Shakespeare consecutively for years, and dramatizes section of high interest.

Mrs. Guthrie, secretary, stated that the course offers credit in sophomore, junior, or senior English. To get junior or senior credit, the students have had 12 (Continued on page 3)

51,200 CORPSES

In the eighteen months that ended June 20, 1935, 51,200 persons met death in motor crashes in the United States, and more than 1,300,000 were injured.

The bare statistics, thought provoking as they are, cannot give an adequate picture of the horror of major automobile accidents. Figures cannot express broken bones—mangled bodies—crushed skulls—obliterated features—decapitated bodies—and all the rest of the results of fatal motor crashes. Nor can figures picture the tragedy of parentless children and broken-hearted dependents of the victims of recklessly driven cars.

In a recent article in Reader's Digest, F. C. Furness wrote: "A first class massacre is only a question of scale and numbers—seven corpses are no deader than one. Each shattered man, woman or child who went to make up the 36,000 corpses checked up last year had to die a personal death."

That is worth thinking about the next time you take the wheel of your car. Driving at excessive speeds may, if you get away with it, save you ten minutes in a fifty-mile run. If you don't get away with it, it may mean your death, or the death of an innocent party. Passing on hills and curves, weaving through thick traffic and taking other chances may save you a minute or two more—or it may mean a crushed body on the pavement, its bones twisted and broken, its eyes staring and sightless.

It's up to you—to everyone who drives a car. Is recklessness worth its horrible cost?

The BLUE DOOR

Rachel Mack © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 RUTH WOODSON, pretty, high-spirited girl of 19, in search of work, seeks refuge from a storm in an old stone house with a blue door in the little town of Worthville. The queer old caretaker, BERTHA GIBBS, also known as PENNY, mistakes Ruth for ELAINE CHALMERS, whose grandfather built the house. Ruth falls in love with JOHN McNEILL, the young man next door, and resolves to stay on a while, posing as Elaine.

Elaine Chalmers, at Graycastle College, vows in a sorority meeting to win the love of her childhood hero, John McNeill. She plans to go to Worthville. John receives a letter from her and realizes that the girl in the old Hunter house is a fake. He loves her and decides to tell her so. He is called out of town and leaves a note of explanation for Ruth, but old Bertha does not deliver it. Ruth believes John has gone away in disgust. That night she saves from suicide DUNCAN HUNTER, Elaine's uncle, who has escaped from an asylum where he has been unjustly detained. She persuades him to prove his sanity legally. As Ruth is leaving the house for good, Elaine arrives and discovers that the other girl has been using her name and wearing her cast off clothes. Elaine humiliates Ruth before driving her out.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Elaine's face flushed. "Do you think a man remembers all his episodes with girls and women? With you sort of girls, I mean?" Ruth looked at her, wide-eyed. "So you believe I've had an affair with him! I suppose when a girl's as rich and fashionable as you are it's smart to be evil-minded."

Elaine said, ignoring the thrust, "How did you come to this town and how do you expect to leave—providing I decide to let you leave without turning you over to the police?"

"I came by bus," Ruth told her. "I'll leave by hitch-hiking." She felt defiant and hard and furiously angry.

"One more question; who are you?" Ruth said, "My name doesn't matter. I'm just a girl without a job and without a dollar to my name. My mother was a lady and my father was a brave man—an officer who died in France at the battle of the Argonne."

Elaine's eyes flashed. "Careful there! You've borrowed my name. Don't try to borrow my parents, too!"

"Not until I've left these clothes behind," Ruth said coldly and steadily. "I don't want anything that has ever been yours to touch my body." She turned and went upstairs, carrying the box with her.

Ten minutes later she came down again, dressed in a wrinkled blue suit and matching hat, both of which seemed shrunken from a hard rain. Besides her purse and the two books, she carried a parcel wrapped in paper—the meager extras she had brought with her to his house.

stricken and regretful. She reached for her purse which was lying on the table, opened it quickly and extended a $20 bill. "You'd better take this," she said briskly.

Ruth brushed it away as if it had been an annoying insect. Without looking at Elaine Chalmers she went out of the blue door and down the steps, her eyes still clear of the tears that longed to cloud them utterly.

She was not striving for an effective exit. She only wanted to get away before she broke.

CHAPTER XXVII

Anger that was positively exhilarating carried Ruth through the first stage of her journey. She walked past the McNeill place, unseeing, on out Garfield avenue to where the paving ended and the highway began.

There she became alert for means of transportation other than her already weary feet. Two cars she hailed in succession, but the feminine occupants eyed her suspiciously and sped on. A third car, a large sedan, slowed down to pick her up, but when she saw at close range the two men who rode in the front seat, she quickly shook her head negatively and walked on, looking straight ahead. Those men could have been cast as movie gangsters without even applying make-up—dark-jawled, furtive eyed, heavy-mouthed, too well dressed for cross-country travel.

She thought, "I suppose they're brothers and belong to a notorious gang. I'd have been a fool to step into that car."

Perhaps she was entirely wrong in her estimate of the pair, but at least it gave an interesting edge to her adventure and took her mind off her recent ordeal back there in the Hunter hallway.

Ruth walked on and was dismayed to find the wind much sharper out on the open road. Her suit was too thin for the season and the worn soles of her shoes made her acutely conscious of the miles that lay ahead of her. She soon learned that walking did not warm her, but made her more chilly because of the fatigue she felt. Before discouragement could

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

 WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—President Roosevelt would appreciate a quiet session of Congress later, but Congress is likely to have different ideas.

For it looks as if those who have been commiserating with Congress assert itself and loose from White House are to have their wish. The president did announce "the basic program" reached substantial conclusion the breathing spell is here.

But there will be more bills, and reform bills, too, the White House dictum. It won't be the president's fault. All the reform means in the administration. There are quite enough bills in Congress to assure a lively session without White House stimulation.

Congress, asserting the right of independence of the initiative, passed the Spanish War pension bill and the potato bill, neither of which the administration wanted. In fact, it has consistently held control impossible to administer to boost the price of another staple "poor man's food." It wanted no part of it now, in the face of opposition by some farmers, it must administer the will of Congress best it can.

This winter the War bonus will come to a vote. A vote has been scheduled in January. The administration is against it. But it looks as though Congress will show its independence anyway.

And that will be a bonus they can't lay at the door. Roosevelt's "tap" by vetoing it once, he expected to take it as a lesson. As to reform: the O. P. B. aimed at federal control of interstate business through a system of federal incorporation, practically licensing, was actively pushed by the Federation of Labor.

It's not an administrative matter, but it's going strong backing from those who have declared their independence of all that business jitters that isn't the administration's baby.

The United Textile Workers going to go to bat for the Hogen bill, which does for the textile industry what the G. I. does for soft coal.

Stronger neutrality legislation, a new relief appropriation, subsidy policy, legislation of the perennial railroad food and drug bill, liberalize the social security even before it gets to the Walsh bill to cut NEA in government contracts, manery wages, and long-pending copyright bills—all these have backing from congressmen who are sure that independence of administration direction which so far has been the rule.

Accident Victim

Now Recovering

G. L. Mayfield, Shamrock, who was injured in an automobile accident several miles south of Memphis Thursday night, is improving, according to Dr. R. E. Clark, attending physician.

Mayfield, a brother to S. E. Mayfield of Memphis, still remembers nothing of the accident to which he was hurt, and nothing has been found concerning his companion in the wreck, a Mr. Taylor of Childress.

"The patient is gradually improving, but we are keeping him quiet. We don't want him to work his brain yet," Dr. Clark stated. Mayfield received a severe blow to his head when he was thrown out of his car as it hit a concrete culvert and turned over into a nearby ditch.

It was finally arranged by the easy-going garage owner that his customers should give him a check for the amount. This Mr. Segwick did, writing his Cleveland address below his name at the mechanic's request.

When they were on their way again Ruth said regretfully, "I wish I could have lent you the money till you got home. But I haven't a cent myself."

Mrs. Segwick replied, "That's all right. If you had money to lend you likely wouldn't be hitchhiking. Have you got a job waiting for you in the city?"

"No," Ruth admitted. "Not a sign of a job. I hope to stay at the Salvation Army home till I can find something."

tongue in sympathy and changed the subject. Later she returned to it showing it had been on her mind.

"Ed," she said to her husband, "do you think Miss Woodson would suit your Cousin Ella?"

"I've been wondering that too," replied Mr. Segwick. "In some ways I think she would."

"If she's strong enough," Mrs. Segwick speculated.

"And likes that kind of work," Mr. Segwick contributed.

Ruth sat on the edge of the back seat, listening as they argued it back and forth. She was greatly intrigued. She wished they would speak out plainly about Cousin

Ella, whoever she might be, and be more specific about the mysterious job. She finally interrupted the argument to say "I'm willing to do any honest work to support myself. I wouldn't promise to keep the job, but I'd do my best at it till I could get something that suited me better."

"That's fair enough," Mr. Segwick said. "Tell her, Lou, about what Ella's looking for."

Mrs. Segwick obeyed. "Well, it's this way. Mrs. Ella Jones, Ed's cousin, has a beauty parlor and has to be at work all day. She's a widow and she's got two children. She wishes they would speak out plainly about Cousin blond with a brisk manner, inter- viewed Ruth in a little booth where she was marcelling a customer's hair. As she talked she heated a curling iron over a gas burner and then waved it about in the air—cool it before applying it to the hair. Ruth, whose naturally curly hair had never been treated inside a beauty shop, was fascinated by these rites. It was all she could do to keep her mind on what Mr. Jones was telling her:

"Maude and Grace Louise have to be at school by 8:30, and I've got to be here even earlier. That means the girl and I have to get up at 6 every morning." Ruth divined that by "the girl" Mrs. Jones meant the maid or house-keeper.

Mrs. Jones further explained. "I send all the clothes to the wet wash and the girl's expected to iron them. I've got a good mangle in the basement. Ever run one?"

Ruth said proudly, "Once a demonstrator in a department store let me try one, just for fun. I got along very well with it. I'd need to practice a little with your machine, of course."

Thus, over the patient custom-er's head, Ruth was hired as housekeeper-maid by Mrs. Jones and urged to report for duty at once. Mrs. Segwick agreed to take Ruth to the Jones home, show her room and install her there be-fore the children should arrive home from school.

The 1936 Selection of
INDIRECT
Home Lamps

Fall has arrived and with it comes a greater demand for proper lighting. Children have returned to school and parents spend more evenings reading. Your eyes demand the proper amount of light when human sight is at stake. Be sure that your home is properly lighted.

Scientists have contributed a new lamp to the Better Light—Better Sight Program. Lamps designed by the illuminating engineers of America to protect the eyesight of growing children and provide eye comfort for older people. Lamps that are recommended by your local eye specialist.

For a limited time, terms without additional charge on any of the new INDIRECT LAMPS PRICED FROM $4.95 to $12.95 as low as 45c down and 40c monthly.

You have wanted indirect lighting in your home and by purchasing a large quantity of the lamps we are offering them to you, while the supply lasts, at a price of 35 percent less than the price would be if purchases had been made in small lots.

Don't fail to see the wonderful display of indirect lamps in our stock!

We know every home will want one at the present price.

Lamps received this week; come in and select yours from the entire assortment.

OPEN HOUSE IS BIG SUCCESS SATURDAY

2 Thousand Inspect Plant and Learn About Paper

The Democrat's Open House Saturday was a big success from every angle, and the publisher is well pleased with the way our readers responded to the invitation to come in and see our new equipment and learn how a newspaper is made.

The crowds began coming early in the morning, and by noon they were arriving in scores. All afternoon the office was crowded with folks who wanted to see the wheels go round.

As each visitor arrived, they were greeted by the publisher, given a souvenir budget book, invited to partake of a Coca-Cola or a Growers Orange or Lemon, presented with their name on a linotype slug and given free rein to inspect the plant.

While no accurate count could be made, a minimum estimate of the number who came in during the day would be in the neighborhood of 2000.

In this connection, we wish to thank the Coca-Cola Bottling Company and its genial proprietor, Mr. Frank Phelan, for the cold drinks and the refrigerator to keep them cold. Also Manager Cabiness of the West Texas Utilities Company, who let us use the cold storage vaults at their plant for chilling the drinks.

And our thanks are also extended to W. D. Orr, who brought up a box of good cigars for the staff.

If you failed to visit the Democrat office Saturday, the welcome is extended to drop in any time and inspect our plant and see the new equipment we have installed.

School Officers Asked to Meet

All presidents and secretaries of the rural school boards are asked by County School Superintendent Vera Gilreath to come in either today or tomorrow and sign application blanks for state school aid.

These blanks are to be sent to the district supervisor, J. D. Wilson of Canyon, by October 1, and all rural school board heads must sign them before the blanks can be sent.

J. W. Clark and son, Henry Warren, of Gatesville arrived Friday for a visit with Mr. Clark's Mother, Mrs. H. W. Clark, and his brother, Dr. R. E. Clark.

Now sky-clear... steps out in the evening to formal affairs... as well as to all occasions throughout the day. Exquisitely woven... not a ring in the weave or color tone to mar their beauty... Once you wear sky-clear Airmaids you'll always wear them. Sealed in cellophane for your protection. In smart new shades and in all sizes.

LATE WAR NEWS FROM EUROPE

Mussolini today dispatched 12,000 additional troops to East Africa, as Selassie announced that he was ready to use two million men in the event of war.

It is estimated that Mussolini would have half a million natives and Italians ready to fight when the dry season begins in a fortnight.

Emperor Selassie is awaiting word from the Geneva delegation before mobilizing his forces.

The French and British governments are considering action needed by League of Nations to prevent hostilities, while Geneva diplomats suggest that nothing be done until actual fighting begins.

Sanctions are the chief London subject. Great Britain maintaining that all League members work together in the application of sanctions and other means of averting war which might possibly reach Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Oglesby of Casa Grande, Arizona, and daughter, Miss Rebecca Oglesby, of Los Angeles, Calif., have returned to their homes after visiting here with Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Dickson and family. Hubert Dickson accompanied them home and will visit for some time in California. Boyd Dickson spent yesterday in McLean.

CLEANER COTTON brings a better price

For years we believe we have enjoyed the reputation of taking greater than average ginning care in turning out CLEAN cotton... cotton that brings a better price, not only because it LOOKS better, but because it IS better, and of greater value to the buyer.

Naturally we are proud of this reputation and we intend to guard it zealously. "A better turnout and a better sample" is our watchword this year as in many years past. And it isn't idle talk with us. Your neighbor, who gins with Gerlach, will tell you that the care with which we handle his cotton means extra profits to him at the season's close. Bring YOUR next bale to Gerlach's new, modern gin and let our competent ginners prove our claims.

Machine Paddles Clover

By United Press

XENIA, O. Sept. 28.—Jess A. Garringer and William Pershing have completed a machine for gathering seed from sweetclover. The machine, tractor driven, consists of a revolving paddle which beats against the clover and throws the seed into a large tin container.
