"Remembrance Parks" for Italy's Dead

"Remembrance Parks" are being established throughout Italy wherein are planted trees named for every soldier of Italy who died in the World War. Not a single fallen hero is forgotten. The movement is fostered by Prince Umberto, heir to the throne, who has personally supervised the dedication of the memorial trees. The photograph shows one of the remembrance parks.

GAMMAGE DISTRICT VOTES BONDS FOR BRICK BUILDING

Gammage Votes Bonds For Brick Building; Friendship To Hold Similar Election June 23.

The Gammage school district, located about seven miles south and east of Memphis, in an election last Saturday, June 2, voted bonds to the amount of $5,000 for the purpose of erecting and equipping a two-room brick school building in that district. The bond election carried by a vote of 15 to 11.

The new building will replace a one-room frame structure.

An election has been called in the Friendship district, about five miles south and west of Memphis, for June 23, to vote $6,000 in bonds to be used in erecting and equipping a brick building of three rooms. Only two teachers will be used at this place another year and possibly longer, but the people are building for the future and will add the third room.

These buildings, when erected, will bring the total of permanent school buildings in Hall County up to 22, which is probably a record when compared with other counties in the state in proportion to the number of districts. There are only 25 independent and rural districts in the county but some of the independent districts have more than one building. Only nine districts in the county are left with frame buildings and three of these will file petitions for bond elections during this year. Three of the remaining six have good substantial frame buildings.

Another thing that speaks of advancement in the Hall County schools is the demand being made by the school boards for strictly first-class teachers, and the effort on the part of the teachers to meet these requirements.

Some twenty applicants wrote the examinations here last Friday and Saturday and most all of them applied for either first grade or permanent certificates. An effort will be made by the school boards this year to not employ teachers who hold only county certificates, and teachers with second grade State certificates will be in the minority.

Most of the teachers in the county will be in summer normals for the next ten or twelve weeks as a preparation for the ensuing term.

Mrs. John Newman of Lakeview returned Sunday morning from a two months' visit with her mother at Illinois Bend.

TARLETON BAND WILL GIVE FREE CONCERT HERE

The John Tarleton College Cadet Band, winners of the first prize in Class C at San Angelo, will give a concert on our streets Friday morning, June 8, 10:30 a. m. The hour has been changed from 3:00 p. m. as was announced last week. They will play at Lakeview in the afternoon.

ENTZMINGER EVANGELISTS IN GREAT SUMMER REVIVAL AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Evangelist Louis Entzinger (at left), who will conduct a series of services at the First Baptist Church here, beginning to-morrow, and his brother, James E. Entzinger, who is choir director and manager of the Entzinger Evangelistic Party.

The Rev. Louis Entzinger, evangelist and Sunday school builder, who is in a campaign with the First Baptist Church of Memphis is an unique character. In 1905 he was an active business man. He was on a committee of young business men to put a man in the field in Florida for the Baptist Convention of that State. The salary was so small that no one capable could be secured, so Entzinger sold out his business and took the job himself. He undertook it only temporarily, but became such a marked success that he was never able to get back into business life again. Soon Kentucky Baptists called him to their Sunday school work in three years, Kentucky went from foot to the head of the list of States in the Southern Baptist Convention in Sunday school work. He was called to the First Baptist Church, Fort Worth, Texas, as co-pastor with the pastor of that church, taking charge of the Sunday school and young people's work. In four years, the Sunday school attendance had grown from 249 to 2,500. This was not a Rally Day attendance, but a regular average attendance. That Sunday school is easily the largest Sunday school in the world in actual attendance, and Entzinger built it up and Dr. J. Frank Norris, the pastor, gladly gives him credit for this great accomplishment. He was later called back to the joint pastorate at a salary of $10,000 a year, but declined it for his present field of labor. His first pastorate was at First Baptist Church, Lakeland, Fla., where he was in business when he took up the Sunday school work.

This is a real tribute to the man, and shows the esteem and confidence of his former business associates and neighbors. There he led in the building of a great Sunday school building, doubled the Sunday school attendance and added over 600 members to the church, making it the second largest in the State. He was, without being consulted, called to the pastorate of the First Baptist Church in New Orleans, where in one year he actually doubled the church membership and trebled the Sunday school attendance. The demands became so pressing for his services he could not resist the calls, and he entered the evangelistic and Sunday school building field. He has doubled and in some places more than trebled the attendance of scores Sunday schools all over the United States. His engagements this fall, which give an idea of the calls that come to him, are September—the great Wealthy Street Baptist Church, Dr. Van Osdale, pastor, Grand Rapids, Mich., October—Calvary Baptist Church New York City, of which Dr. John Roach Stratton is pastor. November—First Baptist Church, Birmingham, Ala., of which Dr. John R. Hobbs is pastor, and First Baptist Church, Minneapolis, Minn., Dr. W. E. Riley, pastor.

Mr. Entzinger is a forceful, earnest speaker and those who know him acclaim him a great preacher of the plain, simple Gospel of Christ. He is a great soul winner as evidenced by the fact that hundreds are converted under his ministry.

He is the author of a Sunday school record system that is being extensively used by all denominations all over the United States and even in Canada.

Mr. Entzinger was born and reared in South Carolina, his home being near Columbia, but has spent his life in service in other States, and only those in Sunday schools who read widely are familiar with the really great work he has done.

BAPTIST BUILD TABERNACLE FOR SUMMER REVIVAL

Large Tabernacle, Which Will Be Completed To-Morrow, Will Seat About 1,000 People.

The large tabernacle which is being erected by the Baptist congregation, between the church building and parsonage is hoped to be completed and ready for use by to-morrow. Immediate use of the tabernacle will be made for the Summer revival which is now in progress. The work was begun on the building last Friday.

The Rev. Louis Entzinger will arrive to-morrow to begin his evangelistic work of two weeks. Jas. E. Entzinger, choir director and business manager, has been here since last Sunday making preparations for the revival campaign. Large crowds are expected at every service and the open air tabernacle will be very inviting during the warm weather.

The structure is a spacious one costing, not including the labor which has been donated, about $1,500. Good material and workmanship have been used in its construction, and the Baptist people have reason to be duly proud of the edifice.

The building is sixty feet wide and eighty feet long, and will easily accommodate 1,000 people. It is so constructed that it may easily be enclosed and used during the winter months.

The tabernacle will also be used to house some of the Sunday school classes. The Baptist people have for some time been in need of Sunday school class rooms to accommodate their increasing enrollment. They have, at present, two large classes of young men and women who use the band room for class work and some of the older men meet at the Hattenbach & McKelvy Undertaking Parlor. It is planned to remove these classes to the tabernacle.

GOOD RAIN FALLS OVER COUNTY MONDAY NIGHT

A general rain fell Monday night, measuring about one and one-half inches and reaching every section of the county. Some hail fell but not enough to cause any great damage.

The farmers were badly in need of rain, but they are now in good spirits over the prospects for a crop.

FORMER HALL COUNTY NURSE IS MADE STATE DIRECTOR OF NURSING

Miss Anne Pritchett, Red Cross nurse for Hall County during 1920 and 1921, assumed her duties on June 1, as Director of Public Health Nursing in accordance with her recent appointment to that position.

Miss Pritchett has a record of experience and efficiency, having secured the degrees of F. F. V., also having been affiliated in the Red Cross work. The State Board of Health feel themselves complimented for having secured one of her ability to direct the department.

ESTELLINE PEOPLE PLAN PICNIC FOR FOURTH OF JULY

Big Barbecue Is Important Feature of Fourth of July Picnic to Be Held at Estelline.

The people of Estelline are now active, making preparations for a big two-day picnic to be held July 3 and 4. They are seeking the cooperation of the American Legion in the county and are making an effort to arrange an extensive program.

If their present plans develop they will be able to offer practically everything free to the public. No carnival companies will participate, but similar attractions will be arranged by the local people.

One of the most important features of the program will be a barbecue on July 4. Some ten or fifteen calves will be barbecued for the occasion, and the multitudes who are expected to attend will be fed.

A negro minstrel show will be arranged of home county talent, the characters including Memphis and Estelline people. It is also thought that the American Legion members in the county will present a play.

The most important feature of the entertainment will be the athletic events, which will be announced later.

As no similar event has been announced in the county for this date, Estelline is expecting to entertain all of Hall County and a large number of people from adjoining counties.

The Estelline people are known to be splendid entertainers and the Fourth of July picnic is likely to be made an annual event.

In a called business meeting of officers and advisory council of Memphis Chapter Order of De Molay, it was decided that regular meetings will be held on the second and fourth Tuesdays, 7:30 p. m., in each month. The first meeting will be held Tuesday, June 18.

Postmaster Gatlin of Lakeview was a business visitor here Wednesday.

PLASKA PEOPLE ENTERTAIN WITH ALL DAY SINGING

The people of Plaska and surrounding community entertained the singers of the county with an all day singing convention last Sunday. Two calves were barbecued and the crowd, estimated at 1,000, was well fed and highly entertained.

These conventions are being held most every Sunday in different communities of the county, the one Sunday before last being at Brice, where everyone reported a splendid time.

These rallies invigorate the community spirit, tending to bring the people closer together.

DR. WHITE SPEAKS ON NEAR EAST RELIEF

Dr. White of Dallas, Field Director of the Near East Relief Campaign, delivered an appealing address Sunday morning at the First Methodist Church, and spoke again at the First Baptist Church in the afternoon and at the evening hour.

These addresses were a revelation of startling facts, which bring us face to face with the horrible, yet true, conditions that exist among the Christian people of the Near East countries. Probably we have never before realized the plight of these people as nearly so dreadful as it was pictured to us by this man who has studied and understands their conditions.

An earnest appeal was made for support in the raising of money and clothing for these half-clad, half-starved women and children.

The County Weekly

By Phebe K. Warner

Piled up around me at this moment is a stack of County Weekly newspapers. I have been wading through them for hours and studying them intelligently trying to find something in them to find fault of. You hear so many folks criticizing their home papers that one is often lead to doubt if there can be anything good in the home paper. So we decided to make a real study of the County Weekly publication and find out what it is if anything.

These papers range in size from eight to twenty pages of six columns each. They range in price all the way from $1.50 to $2.00 per year. Let's see. 52 copies at $1.50 a year is 23-26 cents each and 52 copies at $2.00 a year is 32-26 cents a copy. At this price is there anybody in your county who does not take a home paper? Surely the price is not in the way. It is worth that for wrapping paper and to use on the pantry shelves if you never read a word in it.

Picking up the first one in the pile we are giving a summary of the items of interest on the first page: at the top of the first column the first thing is a good write-up on the Methodist revival. And we happen to know that the editor of this particular paper is a real all over Baptist. But he is not running the revival. He is running the county paper. The next item is a wedding. The next an item of interest to the medical profession. And then they follow like this: Somebody has come from another town, big community meeting in the country with lots of music, preaching and eating. Next a base ball game followed by a big business exchange. More visitors and more base ball. Interscholastic district meet, giving all the winners as well as those who defeated them. Pie supper to light a school house in the country. $1-20,000 ranch sale. Old-time family gets tired of their new home and goes back to the old home town. Business house in town being enlarged. Oil news next. Accident and broken arm for somebody. Home boy leaves to take charge of big business somewhere. Old resident improving after long illness. But what, that is just half the items on the first page of this country weekly.

Turning on through that country weekly we found it chock full of good things about the home town, the home county and the home people. There was not one word of gossip or scandal or slander in it from river to river. And we have gone through the whole pile and we find the same quality to the home town, the home county and all the people. And we wonder if the home paper should talk about folks likesome folks talk about it what would some folks do? We know of no other person or situation that goes on boosting its backers like the home editor and the home paper. It is one of the cleanest papers printed. Pick up your daily paper and no matter how conservative the publishers try to be as a rule the front pages are filled with the happy and the unclean things in the world. Why anybody puts such things on the front page of anything we do not understand. It seems they are afraid everybody may not see the bad unless it is on the front page. Oh, of course, they do not get all the bad on the front page. There is not room for it there. But the county weekly paper does not get room for it anywhere. True the big dailies cover the nation and the world. Too bad they do. There is a lot of stuff that would have a better influence if it was put where the editor acted like he was ashamed to publish it.

Then there is all the school news and church news and farm news and business news and the home news in general. Suppose your child plays part well in the school play, the paper has no room to let the world know how well your child did. The home paper gives him room to give him a boost that nothing else could give. And then how many of us would be remembered when we are dead and gone? The big city papers might say we were born and died on a certain day if somebody was willing to send the item in. Not so the home paper. It will give the best write up you ever had and run in a whole page of nice things about you whether they are or not, realizing that this is their chance to do you a favor.

From an educational viewpoint the county weekly newspaper is the greatest next-book in America. It is great because it tells the most truth about the most people. It comes the nearest to covering the news of the nation. It has the fewest duplications. You might take a dozen of the great daily publications but most of the news in them would be the same. Same storms, same accidents, same murders, same divorces, same features to a large degree. The county weekly culls the cream of such news and gives all the rest of its space to the home people and their special interest.

Have you ever noticed the difference in the spiritual effect of the great daily paper and the home county weekly paper in your own life and that of your family? Where do most of us get the idea that the world is going to the bow-wows and everything is growing worse every day? You get it from the big headlines of the big city papers. And it does look like it sometimes, when the crime of the whole world is crowded into a few pages of a single paper. Then is the time to pick up your own home paper and note the crime in its columns. Your county paper is by far a more normal reflection of the crime conditions than the big city papers. The world is more like your home county than it is like the picture you see in the front pages of the city paper. You see crime collected and condensed in the big papers. You see it as it really is in the home paper. And you have a far better understanding as to its cause there and can pass a more rational and just verdict.

One of the best and most far reaching educational moves at this time would be a campaign to put the home paper in every home in this nation. It is the only transportation of thought that is within the reach of all the people. What would it mean in our nation in a few years if the information contained in the county weekly could reach every home in the county every week? Think how it would inspire the county weekly itself to be the best possible piece of literature on the market.

POULTRY

FEEDING POULTRY FOR EGGS

Profitable Returns From Laying Hens Are Largely Result of Feeding Balanced Ration.

Leghorns Do Not Consume as Much Feed as Heavier Breeds.

sary amount of nutrients to produce the highest and most economical egg yields.

In some experiments recently made, general-purpose pullets produced a dozen eggs from 6.7 pounds of feed, and Leghorn pullets from 4.8 pounds of feed. Old hens required a much larger amount of feed than pullets in producing a dozen eggs.

To get the most profitable results, feed simple mixtures composed of home-grown grains and their by-products, supplemented with meat or fish scrap or milk, such as a scratch mixture of two parts cracked corn and one part oats, and a mash of three parts cornmeal and one part meat scrap. Raise all the green feed and as much grain feed as possible.

LIMBERNECK AMONG POULTRY

Trouble Is Brought About by Fowl Eating Decayed Animal Matter—Castor Oil Helps.

Limberneck is recognized by the fact that the fowl seems to lose control of its neck muscles, thereby allowing the head to hang down and touch the ground. The fowl seems powerless to raise the head or have any control of it.

The trouble, according to Harry Embleton, professor of poultry husbandry at Oklahoma A. and M. college, is brought about by the eating of some decayed animal matter. "The best means, therefore, of preventing further trouble is to look the premises over for a carcass of some kind," Embleton says. "In some cases we have found it to be rabbits; in others, snakes or carcasses of fowls. Castor oil given by means of a small funnel and rubber tube inserted in the food passage, seems to help somewhat in restoring the affected birds to health."

GREEN FEED HELPS POULTRY

One of Most Common Feeds During Cold Months Is Sprouted Oats—Right Amount to Feed.

Poultry relish a green feed during the winter months, and one of the most commonly fed is sprouted oats. Fed at the rate of one to two square inches of oats to a fowl, two quarts of oats soaked in two quarts of water, and sprouted to proper length, two to four inches, will be sufficient for 150 birds.

POULTRY NOTES

A hen egg contains 70 to 75 per cent water.

The mother turkey is the best nurse to brood young poults.

It is best to have ground feed or dry mash before the birds all the time.

May chicks are not as apt to go into a winter molt as the March and April chicks.

Sprouted barley is sometimes used in place of oats. Other good greens are cabbages and mangels.

Put chicks on range as soon as weather is suitable. At this age the lighter breeds will be feathered out, and the medium and heavy breeds partially so.

Clean out the litter every two weeks, or, at the most, every three, and bring in fresh scratching material.

Where the hen is the machine, the eggs the product, feed and labor the costs, it remains for management to be the economy.

The health of the layers is directly dependent upon the purity of the air which they breathe during both day and night in the laying houses. Therefore, ventilators are absolutely essential to every laying house.

Colonial Wedding.

At the home of Mrs. W. W. Clower on Monday night, June 4, was solemnized the uniting of Willie L. Clower and Frank K. Fore in holy wedlock. One was carried back to other days as the setting of the wedding scene—colonial costumes in rainbow colors—was typified.

The living room, representing a rose garden, was beautifully decorated with white colonial pedestals arranged about the room, on which were placed prettily decorated baskets filled with white rosebuds, connected to the cluster of bells under the chandelier in the center of the room by streamers of white ribbon and tulle.

At nine o'clock was heard the soft strains of the violin in a solo, "A Dream," by J. C. Bartlett, played by Mr. A. F. Sommer of Quanah, with Mrs. Sommer at the piano. Miss Sue Green of Miami and Miss Loraine Noel of Memphis so beautifully sang Carman's "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly," by Bond.

Mr. and Mrs. Sommer then played the wedding march from Lohengrin and announcing the bride and her attendants came the junior bridesmaids, Shirley Greene in orange and Ruth Harrison in pale blue carrying white wands. As Rev. J. T. Hicks took his place in front of the altar the bridesmaids appeared, Mrs. A. J. Clower in dainty green and Miss Annegene Specht of Quanah in electric blue, followed by the maid of honor, Miss Evelyn Hill of Lake Providence, Louisiana, who was resplendent in yellow. She preceded the matron of honor, Mrs. H. Watthewson of Mangum, Oklahoma, who was gowned in orchid over silver.

The groom entered with his best man, Elbert Kittenger, preceded by the little ring bearer, Charlotte Fore in snowy white.

Accompanying the bride were the dainty flower girls, Dorothy Dunbar and Geraldine Kinard, dressed in green. The colors of the rainbow were indeed dazzling and beautiful and seemed to be complete until we beheld a vision of the bride on the arm of her brother, A. J. Clower, who presented her to the groom at the altar. The bride was adorned in the loveliest of shimmering materials in palest pink, a wonderful creation of the colonial style with dainty lace and ribbon; and with her bridal veil as a halo was typical of the fact that Frank had indeed found his wealth "at the end of the rainbow."

While "O, Promise Me" was played softly the impressive ring ceremony was spoken that made them husband and wife.

Frank and Willie grew to young manhood and womanhood in Memphis. Both are highly appreciated in church and social circles. The bride completed her education in Ward-Belmont, Nashville, Tenn., and S. M. U., Dallas. The groom, who is in the electrical business in this city, studied in that capacity in New York City.

Their host of friends and relatives wish for them a happy life.

Those out of town guests not included in the wedding party were: Mrs. D. G. Smith and Mrs. Howard Gaines, of Oklahoma City; Mrs. J. J. Specht and daughter Alice, of Quanah; Mrs. C. P. Hamilton and Chas. Hamilton, of Mangum, Oklahoma; Judge Gough and wife and Mrs. Iglehart, of Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Bengel and Billie Bengel, of Wellington.

BIRD NEWS

"I've been hearing such interesting bird news," said Billie Brownie. "I've heard, too, that many shrubs can be planted and many trees, too, which will attract birds and which will serve as dining rooms for the birds. Some of these shrubs will be so much enjoyed by the birds that they'll never think of eating berries and fruit which humans want to eat."

"There are many families of birds which enjoy elderberries. When the elderberries blossom and look their loveliest the birds rejoice, for they know that after the lovely white flowers go there will come, within not so very long a time, delicious fruit for them to eat!"

"And another thing I heard was that birds loved the shrubs which are natural to this land rather than shrubs which have been transplanted from other countries."

"So it would seem as though the birds were very loyal to their own country, and to their own food."

"They like thickets and bushes and hedges which aren't too wonderful."

"They don't care so much for shrubs of very cultivated gardens. They feel more at home where it is simpler."

"It pleased me, too, to hear how the birds love simple things and that they are not all for expensive, unusual, foreign shrubbery."

"Their simple tastes are so attractive!"

And the Fairyland people agreed that they, too, liked hearing this about the birds though it was just what they expected of such dear, sweet, unaffected creatures as the birds.

Well, Billie Brownie had seen a list of the plants and fruits which were most attractive to the birds and he said he would read this list to all of the Fairyland people if they so wished.

Of course they were eager to hear all this news of Birdland and they sat around Billie Brownie as he perched himself on a more comfortable woodland stump and began to read the list:

"The shrubs which hold their fruits for the longest time and so which are particularly appealing to the birds," commenced Billie Brownie, "are the juniper, bayberry, hackberry, sumach, holly, black alder, some of the wild grapes and particularly the frost grape and snowberry bushes."

"They like food which will do for them when food is scarce, such as in between seasons."

"Mulberries are very popular with our friends, the birds."

"Red elderberries are also very popular, and the birds like to think of the kinds which are to be had during the winter season when the markets have so little in them!"

"Then there are the wild strawberries, raspberries and dewberries which the birds love and which they would much prefer to eat to cultivated strawberries. So that if people have some of these about the birds will not want their cultivated strawberries."

"They love it when the fresh fruit begins to appear."

"I also read," Billie Brownie added, "that a thicket made of dewberry and elderberry bushes, dogwood and sumach and juniper and junipers would make a splendid all-year market for the birds."

"I also read that among the shrubs which did well in these parts and which the birds liked were red cedar, mulberry, hokberry, hawberry, sassafras bushes, mountain ash, spice, blackberry, black cherry, service berry, amuch, black alder, buckthorn, Virginia creeper, yost grapes, fox grapes, sarsaparilla, bearberry, logwood, ungleberry, blueberry, snowberry, sheepberry, elders, shade tree, thorn trees, wild crab apple tree, hemlock, larch trees, birches of all kinds, partridge berry, black locust, wild roses (the fruit of which the birds love), some of the honeysuckles, and red flowering horse chestnuts."

"And you can tell from the list how many of the trees have the berries at one time or another which I have just before read to you from the list of the berries which the birds care so much for."

"Flowers, such as the California poppies and sunflowers and bachelor's button, have seeds greatly enjoyed by some of the birds."

"Isn't that a splendid list and one worth knowing?" Billie Brownie ended. "Splendid," said the Fairyland people, "and for all who haven't read the list as you have, Billie Brownie, we will ask the Breeze Brothers to write

"They Would Much Prefer."

Governor Pat Neff Signs Eight Bills And Vetoes Seven

Governor Neff Signs Bill Which Substitutes Electrocutation For Hanging in Texas.

Austin, June 4.—Governor Neff today cleared his desk of measures passed by the second called session of the legislature when he signed eight bills, filed seven to become laws without his signature and vetoed seven.

Chief among the bills signed is the Thomas electrocution act. This substitutes electrocution for hanging in capital punishment cases. Electrocutation will take place at the state penitentiary. The act is effective ninety days after adjournment.

The so-called "blue sky" act, seeking to prohibit fraudulent activities in stocks and bonds, also was signed as was the bill creating a separate banking department.

Other bills signed or filed include: Releasing inhabitants of Wharton and a portion of Matagorda counties of taxation for 25 years; appropriating $25,000 for erection of a memorial to General Sam Houston, regulating the net quantity of packages and containers; appropriating $10,000 for assisting disabled former service persons; substitute gasoline tax; creating state plant breed examiner's board.

The principal bill which was vetoed was the Burkett bill seeking to create the eleventh court of civil appeals at Eastland. Veto on this measure was because there already are too many courts of civil appeals, the governor said.

For the second time, the governor entered his disapproval on a measure which sought to annul the book contracts let by the text book commission last December. The Pope bill, vetoed today, provided for extending contracts in force last Deember. The governor said the bill did not come within the call for the special session and also that it seeks to "impair the obligations of contracts heretofore made by the state" which he said is unconstitutional.

The Winfree resolution proposing an investigation of the Texas oil companies, particularly the relations of oil firms to the Standard Oil Company, also was vetoed. The governor objected to the measure because he said there was no limit placed on the committee and also because of the recent court decision holding such committees have no authority to compel attendance of witnesses.

First Find of California Gold.

The first nugget found by Marshall, the discoverer of gold in California, was worth but 50 cents, and the second brought $5. The first big nugget was found shortly afterward by a soldier of Stevenson's regiment in a little stream as he was leaning over to take a drink. It weighed between 20 and 25 pounds.

A much more valuable nugget was found by four miners, who were so wary that in bringing it to San Francisco, where it was placed on exhibition, one of them was always on guard, night and day. It was such a magnificent specimen that it was taken to the eastern states for exhibition. There the owners quarreled, became involved in litigations with one another and lawyers got the entire proceeds.—John L. Considine in Adventure Magazine.

HATCHING EARLY PAYS BEST

Pullets Should Be Mature by November 1 and Begin Laying—Maturity May Be Hastened.

While some pullets may start laying early in the fall and molt during late fall or early winter, but not resume laying until spring, this will not be characteristic of the entire flock.

With the general farming breeds, such as Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds, Langshans and Orpingtons, little trouble will be had with fall molting of pullets unless the birds are hatched extremely early. By what is termed early hatching is meant not later than May 15. It takes about six months to mature a pullet of the above mentioned breeds. With special care and management and in some flocks where they have been bred especially for egg production, this may be hastened to a little over five months, but on the average it will run between six and seven months. All pullets should be hatched so as to mature and ready to start laying by the first of November. With Leghorns and the smaller, quicker maturing varieties one does not need to hatch quite so early, as with these birds maturity can be obtained by the first of November with later hatching. After very careful observation of poultry conditions throughout the country, substantiated by experiments in the experiment station and others, it has been found that June and July hatching either from the standpoint of egg or meat production is not as profitable as the early hatching. In some instances where the season is backward and plenty of shade can be afforded, and vermin can be controlled by rigid sanitation methods, June and July hatching can be made profitable.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

It was the evening of Maggie's birthday. What a day it had been!

There had been all sorts of treats—one on top of another, it seemed. Beginning the very first thing in the morning there had been treats. Maggie had hominy for breakfast instead of oatmeal, and she liked hominy much better.

Then there was good cream for the hominy, and that made it taste better than milk. Milk was all right for every day, but cream was very luscious on a birthday.

And then there was a table filled with presents, and a bell rang and Maggie was led to the birthday table. She received all the presents she had asked for, and that was extremely nice; oh, so very nice, indeed!

To be sure, Maggie had not been greedy when she had made out her list. Maggie liked presents, but she was not greedy.

For dinner on Maggie's birthday there was ice cream. And that evening the Fairies visited Maggie after she had gone to bed.

It is about their visit I want to tell you. The Fairies had been very much excited over Maggie's birthday.

They all arrived dressed in gay crimson dresses, and on their heads were silver crowns, and they all carried silver wands.

The Fairy Queen perched herself upon the end of Maggie's bed, while the other Fairies stood around, though some sat upon the window sills and on the floor and on the posts of her bed.

And after they had all settled themselves and had said in chorus: "Many happy returns of the day," the Fairy Queen began to sing, and this was her song:

All Maggie's family on this day Each wrote for her a little lay. They said that what they had to say Was to wish her happy returns of the day.

They said they always wrote the same. They said they hoped they weren't to blame. Because, as poets, they'd never win fame. They knew, they said, their rhymes were lame.

But they said their wishes were sincere. They said that Maggie was a dear! They said they loved to have her near. They said she was without a peer.

They said they sat about a table. They said they truly were unable To write a great poem or a fable. But their love, they said, was not unstable.

And Maggie was pleased as she could be. She wasn't fussy—no, not she! And so we've come tonight to see If she'll be pleased by the poems that we

Made up for her as she lies in bed. While we gather about her curly head. We know that she is very well read. But we also know she has been very well fed.

On this birthday when she has been queen. The finest of queens we've ever seen. And perhaps because such a feast there's been. She'll not mind if our poems are some lean!

For we, too, like to say the same. And hope that we, too, will not be to blame. Because as poets we've never won fame. And we know that our rhymes will be really quite lame.

But we want to sing our verses of praise. Of Maggie's sweet and graceful ways. We hope she'll have thousands of nights and days. So on her beauty at night we may gaze!

Maggie smiled in her sleep and the Fairy Queen was delighted, and all night the Fairies sang verses which they made up in honor of Maggie's birthday, and the next morning, when she awoke, it seemed as if the music and the rhymes were still ringing gaily in Maggie's gay, happy heart.

Explanation and Demonstration. "I'll explain deduction," said the young student, airing his knowledge in the home circle. "In our back yard, for example, is a pile of ashes. By deduction that is evidence that we've had fires going this winter."

"By the way, John," broke in his father, "you might go out and sift the evidence."

A Misunderstanding. Billy came home from school bearing evidence of having had the worst of a fight.

"Why, Billy!" exclaimed his mother. "How often have I told you to play only with good little boys? Good little boys don't fight."

"Well," said Billy through his tears. "I thought he was a good little boy until I hit him."

WILL WED AN EARL

The youthful earl of Northesk and Miss Jessica Brown (above), formerly of the Ziegfeld Follies, have admitted they are practically engaged and that the wedding may take place soon. Miss Brown, who has just returned from London to America, is a native of Buffalo. Her fiancé, who is only twenty-one years old, is an officer in the Coldstream Guards and he succeeded in 1921 to his title and the $750,000 estate his father left.

Novel Egg-Boiling.

What is probably the most novel method of boiling eggs has been invented by the cook of one of America's greatest hotels.

He has had a number of imitation eggs made in thin porcelain. They are hollow and have screw-tops. To boil an egg, he unscrews one of the imitations, breaks a real egg into it, screws it up again, and then boils it in the usual way.

The eggs are sent to table on a specially made stand and the guest merely unscrews the top. If the eggs are not sufficiently cooked they can be sent back for further boiling; if they are cooked too hard they need not be wasted, for they can be warmed up for another person. In this way every guest gets his eggs cooked as required.

INSURE FERTILITY OF EGGS

To Produce Hatchable Eggs, Breeding Stock Should Be Well Fed—Exercise Is Essential.

Early hatches are desirable when one has facilities for caring for the little ones, and when proper fertility can be secured in the early eggs. Naturally, eggs will hatch better in the middle or late spring, but with proper care the fertility can be insured earlier.

Breeding stock that is kept in the open air will produce hatchable eggs earlier than those that are tightly housed. In fact, such results can be obtained from stock housed in open front or scratching shed houses.

To produce hatchable eggs, breeding stock should be fed liberally but forced to exercise freely. Some meat and bone are necessary in addition to grain feeds scattered in the litter. It is believed by some that mash fed hens do not produce good hatching eggs, but there seems to be no foundation for this opinion, as experiments have proven that there is no difference between such eggs and those produced by hens fed entirely on whole grain and meat.

POULTRY NOTES

A hen will not lay eggs, no matter how well she is fed, unless she has the egg-making material.

Light in the poultry house is one factor which cannot be overemphasized.

Set only uniform eggs of average size. Small, mishapen eggs and extraordinarily large eggs do not hatch as well as the eggs of average size and texture.

Dampness is fatal to success with fowls, but clear dry quarters do not have to be warm. Sudden changes of temperature are to be avoided and the flock should be kept from chilly winds or storms.

Geese can be fattened by forced feeding with noodles and this is often done for the highest class markets.

The Code of Honor

By JOHN PALMER

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

KRUSE had been given a month's notice to leave after thirteen years' service with the Sears-Smithson company, and the notice had come from Smithson himself, who had first engaged him as a junior clerk.

Kruse had worked his way up to the management of a department, and he was being discharged to make way for Smithson's nephew. That was what galled. It was the dirtiest trick in his experience.

During those weeks of notice he had been making his plans. He could get in with the Bryon company, and he would use all his influence to win away Smithson's customers. But that was an invisible revenge. Kruse wanted something more tangible, and he had it at last in the letter that lay before him.

He had opened the letter mechanically, because he found it on his desk, without noticing that it was addressed to Smithson. It was a love letter, couched in impassioned terms, written to Smithson by a girl signing herself "Dorothy."

Now Smithson had a wife, a very formidable and fashionable one, a pillar of society and of the church. She came into the office sometimes, a sweeping, majestic creature with no nonsense about her. Every one knew that Smithson was indebted to her position and money for the job he held. Everybody knew that he was afraid of her.

It was very difficult to imagine any one being in love with Mrs. Smithson. Certainly Smithson wasn't. It was also fairly certain that if Mrs. Smithson got wind of that letter there would be a breakup in the Smithson family. Mrs. Smithson was not the woman to stand for anything like that.

"I've got him where I want him," said Kruse, looking at the letter.

And the possession of it gave Kruse a feeling of joy all day. It braced him up during a rather trying interview with Smithson, when both men did their best to pretend that the former cordial relations still existed. All the while Kruse was chuckling inwardly. He would hand Smithson that letter—no, hold it up for inspection just out of Smithson's reach, when he got tired of playing with him.

Blackmail! Oh, no, Kruse wasn't that kind of man. He wouldn't stay if Smithson begged him on his bended knees. He just meant to send it to Mrs. Smithson and get his own back.

And Smithson was so kindly. That was another thing that galled Kruse. He was a gentleman, even if he was planning to play a dirty trick on him. A dozen times that afternoon Kruse wavered, and all but consigned the compromising letter to the waste-basket. But the desire to get even with Smithson triumphed.

"I wonder what he'll do," thought Kruse. "I wonder if he'll squirm and wriggle. I hope he offers me the job back; then I'll just hold this letter over his head, and I'll be fixed for life."

But, though Kruse enjoyed these speculations he couldn't bring himself to do a trick like that. For Kruse was a gentleman, too, but one under temptation.

Oh, well, he'd get his revenge, that was all. It didn't pay to be squeamish. Certainly Smithson hadn't been squeamish with him. That was Kruse's final decision after lunch. And all the afternoon he sat waiting for the slack time toward the end of the office day, when he could go to Smithson and have his revenge.

It came at last. Kruse arose and went into Smithson's office. Smithson was alone there; no girl worked in the place with him. Smithson was sitting at his desk. He looked up anxiously, almost deferentially as Kruse entered.

"I'd like a few words with you, Mr. Smithson," said Kruse.

Smithson pushed back his pad. "Sit down, Mr. Kruse," he said.

Kruse produced the letter. "I got this and opened it by accident," he said. "I didn't know what it was about until I'd read it."

He had handed it to Smithson after all. He hadn't meant to do that. He watched Smithson's face as he glanced at it, turned to the signature.

"Oh, thank you, Kruse," said Smithson, putting the letter in his pocket. "Sorry you were troubled with it."

Kruse went out. And suddenly he realized that he had lost all his sense of rancor. Smithson had accepted the act as a matter of course. He had never dreamed Kruse would think of putting the letter to base use.

"If he'd written or offered me my job back I'd have had no pity on him," Kruse muttered as he went back to his desk.

And after all he had evened things up pretty fairly well.

The other day I visited a friend, with whom I am not well acquainted. She and her family complained about their apartment; about how cheaply it had been put up; about the wood-work, the poor floors, fixtures, etc.

I added, "And isn't this wall paper awful?"

Immediately I knew something was wrong. Husband and brother began to snicker, and my hostess finally said, "I suppose that."—Chicago Tribune

While her husband was searching for ammunition for his rifle, the wife of the postmaster at Granite Falls, Oregon, rushed downstairs and opened fire on three bandits with her revolver. The bandits had used one charge of explosives in an attempt to open the post office safe containing a large amount of money. Before they could place the second charge the husband appeared on the scene with his empty rifle and they were frightened off after firing eight shots at the defenders.

The W. C. Stripling Department Store is celebrating its thirtieth anniversary this week.

It was founded in 1893 with $3,200 worth of goods bought on credit and on which Mr. Stripling paid $270 freight.

The gross business the first year was $32,000.

The million-dollar mark on sales was passed several years ago, and now the annual business is much greater than that.

In connection with this growth there is a significant circumstance.

The first year Mr. Stripling spent $8 in advertising, the second year he increased it to $80 and the third year to $800.

When his sales during the third year were almost double those of the previous one, Mr. Stripling became a confirmed advertiser.

"This year we will spend $75,000 in advertising," Mr. Stripling is quoted as saying.

And there is another significant circumstance connected with the growth of the Stripling business.

When Mr. Stripling opened his store here 30 years ago, Fort Worth had a population of only 25,000.

Now it has more than five times that population.

"I had faith in Fort Worth then and I haven't changed," says Mr. Stripling.

This is not all that made Mr. Stripling successful, but it can be said that without these two things—aggressive advertising and faith in his city—he could not have succeeded.

as he has.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

An Antwerp carpenter bought, for the price of a few francs, from a second-hand dealer, an old picture of which the subject was: "Jesus baptized in the River Jordan." An Antwerp are expert discovered on the painting the date 1640 and the signature of Rembrandt. The painting is said to be worth 2,000,000 francs.

Christmas trees drawn up from the depths of Lake Michigan off Two Rivers, Wisconsin, in fishermen's nets gave the first evidence of the fate of the schooner Rouse Simmons, laden with Christmas trees for the Chicago trade, which disappeared from the face of the water in December, 1912. The bodies of the crew were never recovered.

The Cohens are ahead of the Smiths in the New York directory just issued. The book contains 1,981 pages and weighs 11 pounds, four ounces. There are nearly 6,500 Cohens and Cohns and approximately 7,800 Smiths and Smyths. There are 223 Abraham Cohens.

Under present conditions the timber supply of this country will be exhausted in between 40 and 50 years, according to the chief forester of the Department of Agriculture. Pine timber is being cut eight and one-half times as fast as it is being replaced while hardwood is being cut three and one-half times as fast.

IT PAYS FARMERS TO PRODUCE QUALITY EGGS

It always pays the farmer to produce and market good quality products, particularly food products. There is always a demand, and the price is always good for the best quality products. Farmers who supply such products always find a market at a good price, while their neighbors complain of poor prices after trying to market ordinary products of poor quality stuff. This applies particularly to fruit, truck and eggs.

Just now farmers are complaining about low priced eggs. Common eggs are selling at 12 to 20 cents, yet good fresh infertile eggs are selling at 25 cents. A. O. Richardson of Anson is selling infertile eggs from 400 hens at 25 cents per dozen. He has a contract at that price throughout the summer and he or anyone else can make money on spring and summer eggs at 25 cents. But he is delivering what the buyer wants; fresh, infertile eggs of good quality. He has never had an egg turned back or a complaint made. Do you get that, not an egg turned back. In other words he sells all his eggs. There are no bad ones so he sells all he produces and sells them at a good price.

Every one has his own choice in the matter. He may sell a part of his fertile eggs at a poor price or all of his infertile eggs at a good price. The infertile egg is a quality product and quality makes the market and the price.—M. B. Oats, Agricultural Agent, Fort Worth & Denver Railway Co.

BUILDING

(Nehemiah 4:6-15.)

"So we built the wall; and all the wall was joined together unto half the height thereof, for the people had a mind to work." This wall, in places crossing ravines, was 100 feet high and broad in proportion. The Great Pyramid in Egypt is 400 feet high, composed of 2,300,000 blocks of stone weighing 2½ tons each, and to build it, required the labor of 100,000 men for 20 years. This is the only structure in the world built so accurately that on a certain hour of a certain day in the year, consumes its own shadow. This is wonderful, but consider the humble dirt dauber, which builds its symmetrical house in which it stores up food for its young, calculated to last exactly the time it takes for its young to grow strong enough to force its way out into the air. The great suspension bridge across the Niagara River, though a marvel of mechanical engineering, is but a toy compared to the unrivalled ingenuity of the spider, which without chart or compass, spins her web and throws out long silken cables to anchor her home suspended between twig and twig. Out of her own body, using her hind legs as a wheel, she unwinds the slender thread that is strong enough to hold up her own weight.

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form and void, and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters." (Gen. 1:1-2.) Out of the dark swirling abyssal depths emerged the newborn world. The Creator bathed it in the mists of the morning dew, warmed it in the glorious light of His love, wrapped it in swaddling bands of fleecy clouds and cradled it in the hollow of His hand. (John, 3:16) "For God so loved the world," My friends, when Jesus left this world, he left a program of work for us to do, and as Nehemiah built up the walls around the temple in Jerusalem, let us as lively or living stones help to build up the walls of that spiritual temple of which Jesus is the chief corner stone. We are building in sorrow and building in joy, a temple the world cannot see. But we know it will stand if it's founded on a rock, throughout all eternity. Have you a mind to work? Why not line up and get busy? What's holding you back?

A new material, "Bravolette," is used by a German inventor in the manufacture of safety razors. It looks like ivory, tortoise shell or marble, depending on the manner in which it is manufactured. The advantage of this material lies in the fact that the apparatus cannot rust. There is no need to dry the razor after use, it is sufficient to rinse it. Another advantage is that it is cheaper than razors made of metal.
