FOUR INJURED IN CRASH ARE IMPROVING

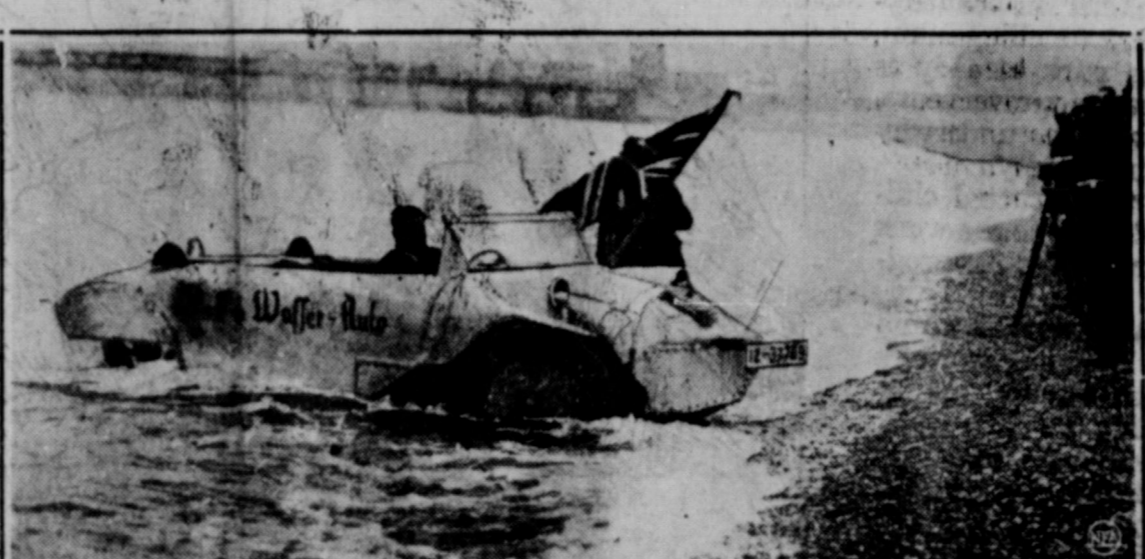

Only One Person Remains in Local Hospital

All four persons who were injured in an automobile accident on Highway 5 near Hedley Sunday night are convalescing nicely, according to physicians' reports this morning.

C. T. McCartney, local salesman, is in the Memphis hospital with a badly crushed and broken right leg and hip. He was reported this morning "resting as well as could be expected."

TEXANS AWAIT DEATH IN CHAIR

Only Mercy of Governor Can Save Couple

AUSTIN, June 11.—The Governor's office announced today that the Board of Pardons and Paroles had recommended adversely on clemency pleas of Eligha Stewart and John B. Willis, sentenced to electrocution early tomorrow.

HUNTSVILLE, June 11.—John P. Willis, convicted at Tyler of criminal assault upon a young bride and Eligha Stewart of Houston, who killed one of his twin 4-year-old daughters, will walk to the electric chair just after midnight tonight unless Governor Allred extends last-minute clemency.

Both were making final preparations for their deaths, although neither had entirely given up hope. The governor had given no indication that he would interfere.

Stuart and Willis would be the first white men to be electrocuted in Texas since Raymond Hamilton and Joe Palmer marched to the chair exactly one month ago. Willis was brought to the death house the night of the Hamilton-Palmer execution.

Stuart strangled his blue-eyed, curly-haired daughter, Dortha, to collect a few hundred dollars in insurance money. He first said the beautiful little girl was kidnapped but later confessed the slaying.

Willis allegedly forced a Tyler couple out of their automobile, tied the husband to a tree and attacked the wife. They had been married only a short time.

J. J. M'ICKIN IN TALK TO ROTARY

Miss Amilda Thomas Sings, Whistles Two Numbers

J. J. M'ickin discussed rail-roading at the Rotary luncheon here today as an occasion marking "Railroad Week."

"The railroad was started little more than 100 years ago," he stated, "and has grown into one of the largest businesses in the world."

He discussed air-conditioning, operating work and improvements over old cars. He announced that air-conditioned dining cars will be placed in operation on the Burlington Lines soon, making the trains air-conditioned throughout.

"The railroad is not operated on the demerits of its competitors," he said, "and it has the most strict requirements of employees than any other business."

He stated that if one-tenth of the safety devices used by railroads were used on highways, many of the so-called unavoidable accidents could be prevented.

"The railroad takes the attitude that there is no such thing as an unavoidable accident, investigating every accident thoroughly and penalizing those to blame. If the highway department would take this same attitude, 99 per cent of the highway accidents would be avoided."

Preceding the short talk, Miss Amilda Thomas, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. M. McNeely, sang and whistled two numbers, "Do Little Birds Tell?" and "Listen to the Mocking Birds."

W. C. Davis, superintendent-elect of the Memphis schools, was introduced as a guest.

MAY ADD BUSES TO SCHOOL ROUTES

Board Makes Decision To Meet Requests If Entered

If the demand for additional transportation to and from the Memphis schools continues to increase, additional buses may be added next year, it was decided last night by the Memphis School Board.

According to President Tomie M. Potts, the board has had numerous requests recently for extending bus lines and adding new routes. If there is sufficient interest among the rural students in the county who wish to attend the local schools next year, the new buses will be added, he said. Two buses served the local schools during the past school year.

Stamp Plan Offered For Railroad Fares

WASHINGTON, June 11.—A "postage stamp" scheme for railroad passenger fares, whereby a 2,000-mile ride would cost no more than a 10-mile jaunt has been proposed to Transportation Coordinator Joseph B. Eastman.

The plan "may be worth looking into," Eastman said.

The plan was advanced by J. A. Hastings, former New York State senator. Standard fares on each railroad would be $3, no matter how long the ride.

LIVES OF 62 SHUT-INS IN AREA ARE CHEERED MONDAY

Sixty-two bouquets made happier the lives of the shut-ins in Memphis and surrounding territory yesterday as the Hightower Greenhouse here observed International Flower Shut-In Day.

"We made every effort to see that no one was overlooked," Mr. Hightower explained this morning. "The joy that these flowers brought to the suffering ones amply repaid us for all our expense and effort we made to make the day a success. We are sorry if any one was overlooked to whom we should have sent flowers."

Mr. Hightower also expressed thanks for those who assisted in the observance by supplying names and delivering flowers to those out of town, to the Democrat for publicity given the occasion, pastors of the churches and to the Wholesale Florists and Florists Telegraph Delivery Association, sponsors of the occasion.

The bouquets were prepared and delivered to every shut-in in Memphis by Mr. Hightower and co-workers and to those out of town by friends. The names of shut-ins were supplied by numerous citizens of the section.

MAKES RULING IN KIDNAP CASE

Handed by Federal Judge on Denver Attorney

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 11.—An important ruling in the trial of Ben B. Laska, Denver attorney, on a charge of conspiracy in the $200,000 Charles F. Urschel kidnaping case, was made today by Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaughn.

One may become a part of a conspiracy by a single act if it can be shown that persons had knowledge of conspiracy and had an ultimate part in its execution, the judge ruled.

The government expected to call a number of witnesses to lay the foundation of the alleged conspiracy before summoning Urschel to give the details of his abduction.

ASKS AID ON CITY PARK

THE City of Memphis is spending a considerable sum of money this summer on beautifying and improving the city park touching Main, Noel and Ninth streets. The park already is more beautiful than it has been in recent years, and plans are to keep improvements underway until it is a real beauty spot in the city.

However, unthinking and uninstructed children are doing a great deal of harm to the work already accomplished and are impeding progress.

They are not doing anything serious, but in a mischievous manner they are annoying workers by removing tops from water faucets, taking bolts out of benches and stacking the park seats, loosening swings, and things like that.

Chief of Police Bill Huddleston has urged that parents of children who play in the park instruct their children on the importance of caring for park property. The equipment is there for their use for play and recreation, and officials do not wish to restrict the use of the park.

The children are hardly to blame for their action. But the parents who allow their children to play in the park unaccompanied and uninstructed as to the care of the equipment are considered entirely at fault.

The small trees in the park have not been harmed to date, and are growing rapidly. Unless they are harmed, they should be extremely beautiful soon and afford excellent shade. Especially are parents urged to be certain their children do not harm these plants.

'COMES THE REVOLUTION'

IF you buy a meal in Wisconsin nowadays, and pay more than 25 cents for it, you have to eat some cheese with it. Or, to be exact, you have to buy some cheese, whether you eat it or not. This is under the terms of a new law, signed recently by Governor LaFollette, designed to stimulate consumption of Wisconsin's dairy products.

Maybe you don't like cheese? You'll buy it anyhow. And it somehow reminds one of the story of the radical who was haranguing a group of bums on the beauties of Communism. When the revolution came, he assured them, they would all eat strawberries and cream for breakfast.

One brave soul objected, saying that he didn't like strawberries and cream. The orator wagged his finger sternly and shouted: "Comes the revolution and you'll eat strawberries and cream—and like it!"

And in Wisconsin, you'll eat cheese, nowadays—and like it.

Summer Sweethearts By Mabel McElliott

BEGIN HERE TODAY KATHARINE STRYKHURST, beautiful, 20, falls in love with MICHAEL HEATHEROE, owner of a riding school. Katharine's father is rich and her stepmother is a snob. ZOE PARKER, Katharine's friend, has an unhappy love affair and is saved from suicide by young DR. JOHN KAYE. Overhearing two detectives ask for Michael's address, Katharine rushes to warn him, although she has not seen him since his engagement to SALLY MOON, local coquette, has been announced. MICHAEL refuses to go away unless Katharine comes with him. They are married in an obscure little town. Then Michael insists on returning to face the detectives. He learns he is heir to a fortune and title in Ireland. Sally Moon, unaware of this, urges Michael to hasten the date of their wedding.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVII

Michael shook his head. "We can't do that, Sally," he said rather heavily. "Why not?" All girlish imperiousness, she faced him. "Why on earth can't we? Anyone here can take charge—Jerry or anybody." Michael's face darkened imperceptibly. "Oh, don't be stuffy about it, Michael, darling!" trilled the girl. "I'm not trying to boss you around. I'm just telling you how easy it would be." Her voice took on a crooning note. "Imagine a honeymoon at sea—and at Buenos Aires. I've always wanted to see it, Michael. We'd have glorious times." Her eyes glittered. "Can't be done," the man told her. "Something came up today—important business." "Really?" Her rounded face assumed a greedy, sly expression. "Tell me about it." "I can't—yet." With sudden clarity and horror he had a vision of what the news might—what it certainly would mean—to Sally Moon. Lady Carden—Sally as Lady Carden. Castles Moats. A crest on her stationery. "Oh, he was in for it now, right enough. If he could head off those detectives, if he could only prevent the news from leaking out before he broke the news of his marriage to this girl..."

OUT OUR WAY

By "Cowboy" Williams

But how was it to be done? Frankly, Michael was daunted. He, who showed no fear in this world, quailed before the prospect of blazing feminine eyes, tears, reproaches. "It's business I've got to see to tonight—right away," he improvised in haste. She pouted. "You haven't been to see me since Tuesday." "I know. Sorry," Michael said. "You aren't. You've been behaving—oh, dreadfully!" she reproached him. "Have I done anything?" There was a good deal more of this. The man, feeling oppressed by her cloying, possessive-sweetness, managed somehow to get away. "I've got to go into New York." "Oh, Michael, I'll run you in and wait for you and then we can go some place to dance later." It was always like this. Always. She didn't want to let him out of her sight. take hours. All night." He said, "Can't be done. It may be done, but it'll take a long time. She frowned, drawing her heavy brows together. Thus seen, the prettiness, the coquetry was lost. You saw Sally Moon as she would be 20 years hence. "That's funny. Queer business that takes all night. After we're married, darling, you won't be able to get away with this." She smiled, and there was menace behind the playfulness. But she drove off, having secured his promise to come around to see her in the morning. She wanted to hear all about it, and he was to make arrangements about the South-American trip. "You're in a fix and no mistake, young fellow-me-lad," muttered Michael to himself. Well, it had been his own fault. He had let himself be caught, and not entirely unwittingly. The night he'd gone back to her house from the Bath Club, the night she'd been giddy from too many cocktails, he had simply let her "get away with it." He'd been too weak, too chivalrous to contradict her when she had announced they were to be married. Now he must pay for that weakness and error. Just at first it hadn't been unpleasant to find himself "engaged" to this little warm, cuddling, confidential person with the large eyes and the rippling laugh. It had been flattering to his male ego. He had needed that, rather. Especially when Katharine had appeared to have forgotten he existed. Katharine. The name, the very thought of her brought a sparkle to his eyes. Katharine. His wife. It was all part of the dream. He'd have to tell Katharine about the inheritance. It made him, all at once, worthy of her. He needn't be ashamed to take her hand in his, before her people. They couldn't say she was "mating down" now. But, on the verge of sitting down to write the important news to her (he thought he dare not "risk another telephone call" he hesitated. Why tell her? Why not wait and "spring" it as a most delightful surprise? Why not give it to her when he claimed her, as a very special "going-away present"?) That's what he would do. Tonight he must go into the city and find Mr. Downrigg—was that the name?—at the Waldorf and beg him to keep the facts out of the newspapers. For a while, at least. Michael called Clarence and told him he was going to New York and wouldn't be back until the late train. He ran the shabby little car around and whirled down to the station. The trip into the city seemed unendurably long. Michael burned with a fever of impatience. Two weeks from now—three weeks, anyhow—the whole thing would be over and done with. He and Katharine would be en route for Ireland to see the castle. They would be starting out on the most marvelous, unpredictable adventure in the world. Marriage! He'd never thought much about it, but it seemed to him, all at once, the most glorious of adventures. Katharine opposite him in a deep chair. Lamplight and firelight on her exquisite face and fair hair. The train, after endless creaking and groaning, finally drew up reluctantly at the long concrete platform. Michael was the first one to leap off when the door swung open. Up the ramp he strode, hatless and handsome in his worn tweeds. Several home-going commuters, weary after a hot day on baking streets, turned obviously to watch him. There was something almost winged about his walk. He felt in his pocket for his wallet, and with a muttered exclamation of impatience remembered that he had thrust it into drawer just after returning home from the momentous journey with Katharine. Their marriage certificate was in it... and most of his money. But he had some loose change and a dollar or two in his trousers pocket, so he could take a taxi.

Rain had just descended upon the city. Pavements which had burned all day under the sun were now slick with rushing currents. Brakes squealed as drivers drew up at red lights.

Michael sank back in the leather-cushioned seat, trying to relax, to compose his thoughts for the interview to come. Downrigg would understand Michael's distaste for publicity. The lawyer was a Britisher and they were like that...

The taxi driver, a sullen-looking fellow with a cap pulled low over his eyes, jammed on his brakes with a fearful, soul-curdling shriek. There was a dull impact, a crash of glass. Michael felt a blow descending, just before unconsciousness mercifully blotted out the pain.

He was not aware of the gathering crowd, the ambulance that presently came clanging along. A personable young man in worn tweeds, he lay here, crumpled, hatless, a bruise on his forehead.

"Looks like concussion," the ambulance doctor said. He was a spry, fair youngster with bright blue eyes. "Any papers on him—driving license or anything?" This was in the emergency room of the hospital to which Michael had been taken. The crisp nurse shook her head. "Not a

ESTELLINE TO DEFEND LEAD TONIGHT

Loop Outlook Hinges On Make-Up Tilts Wednesday

A City Softball League leader defends its position at the top of the loop tonight, as DeWitt's Tailors clash with Tarver's Pitchboys in the first game of the doubleheader at Fair Park Stadium tonight.

Harrison's Hardwaremen attempt to improve their standing at the expense of the Turkey ten in the second game—a job that will be no slight assignment.

And tomorrow night, the Estelline crew will return to the lighted park in a game that could change the complexion of the entire standings. The Estelline club meets Hedley in a make-up tilt, postponed from the first of the season. Tarver's also returns Wednesday night, playing Salisbury in a make-up tilt.

Should Hedley stop the Tailors, Thompson's will all but have the first half clinched, but should the Estelline ten keep up its winning way, the midway title may not be decided until the last night of play, when Thompson's tangles with DeWitt's.

The sessions get underway at 8:15 o'clock.

Veteran Sims Leads Parade of Half Dozen Homers

Sunday's victorious march on Shamrock was "home run day" for the Memphis Owls.

Led by the veteran catcher, John Sims, the Owls pounded out six homers, while winning a 22-4 decision, making it four victories in one week and strengthening their hold on second place.

Sims drove out two home runs, while his mates, Stewart, Widener, Joe Marcum and Moore, were collecting one each.

At that Sims worked only six innings, being relieved by L. Thompson behind the bat. Besides his two homers, Sims got a triple and walked on four trips to the plate.

With the most effective lineup of the season, the Owls used Sims behind the plate, with Stewart on the mound; Moore was at first, Tunnell at second, Weathered at third, Berryman on short, Joe and Louie Marcum and Widener in the outfield.

This combination of slugging power will attempt to figure out the southpaw deliveries of Trammell, who hurled the bottom-place club to a 12-5 victory over the

Gerlach Electric Specializing in Magneto Repair

Formerly the magneto on your car was considered by automobile mechanics as a mysterious piece of machinery whose repair was impossible except at the factory... and to the average mechanic nowadays it is something to be left strictly alone. Because of this, automobile owners are prone to believe that they must get parts and repairs for their magnetos from the factory.

Gerlach Battery & Electric Service, however, is official repair station for practically every make of magneto, and they carry a full stock of parts. Their mechanics are experienced in the vagaries of magnetos, and they make a specialty of magneto repairing.

No matter what make of magneto is on your automobile, truck or tractor, Gerlach can cure its ills and put it back into service. If your car is "acting up", it may be magneto trouble, and if it is, be sure only experienced magneto repairmen work on it. An inexperienced man can do damage to this important part of your car which will practically ruin it. For magneto work... be sure... call Gerlach Battery & Electric.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Neeley spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Guy Smith, near Wellington on the R. J. Thorne ranch. They were accompanied by members of the Friendship Sunday School of which Mr. Neeley is superintendent, and at noon a picnic lunch was enjoyed by a group of 30.

Gate City Proud of Popularity of Their Ice Cream

Public approval is the acid test of the quality of any article or service... and that is why the Gate City Creamery is so proud of the popularity which has been accorded their ice cream. Gate City ice cream consumption has increased yearly every since the company was established in Memphis several years ago, and this summer season will no doubt break all records of the company for production of this hot weather delicacy.

The popularity of Gate City cream is well earned, for the company takes every precaution in the mixture and freezing. Only the purest and highest class ingredients go into Gate City ice cream, and the freezing process and the methods are the latest.

The company makes a specialty of specially colored ice cream for parties and social functions, and brick ice cream may be had in many color combinations and designs. Memphis housewives have become acquainted with this fact, and always insist on Gate City for their gatherings.
