DUKE AND DUCHESS OF KENT GREET LONDON CROWDS

Having been joined in matrimony by the Archbishop of Canterbury at historic Westminster Abby, The Duke of Kent, and his bride, Princess Marina of Greece, (now the Duchess of Kent) appear on the balcony of Buckingham Palace, with other members of the royal families, to acknowledge the well-wishes of millions of subjects. In the party are, left to right: the bride, the groom, Prince Nicholas of Greece, the bride's father, and Queen Mary. Behind the bride is Princess Margaret Rose. This photo was radioed from London.

YOUTH PLEADS NOT GUILTY OF MURDER

Phillip Kennamer Arraigned on Slaying Charge

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 2.—Phillip Kennamer was arraigned today on a murder warrant, accused of slaying John Gorrell, dental student.

He pleaded not guilty and was remanded to jail to await a preliminary hearing on December 17.

Richard Oliver, Gorrell's room mate, was guarded by police and detectives.

The charges against Kennamer grew out of the killing of Gorrell Thanksgiving night. He was shot to death in a thinly settled residential section of the city by his own gun, which was jammed into the seat of his automobile beside his body.

Kennamer, son of a federal judge, was said to have confessed the slaying, claiming that he killed Gorrell in self defense.

Typhoon Is 8th To Hit Philippines

MANILA, Dec. 3.—Northern Luzon was battered tonight by a new typhoon while further belated reports from the area struck November 29 brought the toll to 28 known dead and 70 listed missing.

The course and intensity of the latest disturbance was not determined.

Heavy rainfall caused the Cagayan river to overflow.

The tempest is the eighth to hit the Philippine islands in less than three months and threatened to carry the list of dead and missing over 400. Much property has been damaged.

RE-LIST COWS FOR SALE TO GOVERNMENT

Think New Allotment Will 'Clean Up' Un-Sold Stock

Every cattle-raiser who has sold some cattle to the government under the drought relief purchasing plan but still has stock listed for sale was urged today by George Sager, head of the cattle-purchasing program in Hall county, to re-list the cattle that has not been bought.

Local officials believe that Hall county will receive a substantial quota for government purchase soon, after being assured that the county will be included if additional cattle is purchased by the government.

According to Mr. Sager, the government has purchased only a portion of the stock listed by approximately 200 cattle raisers. If the next quota is sufficient, officials plan to go back and receive all stock listed by these raisers. In order to clean up the situation, the remaining stock should be re-listed.

"We will appreciate it if these people will come to the office and re-list what they have to sell as soon as convenient so that we may make a clean sweep and handle the work rapidly as soon as we get another allotment," Mr. Sager stated.

In the last allotment of 2,000 cattle, local officials refused calves and yearlings in order to take the most distressed stock, Mr. Sager pointed out, but if another allotment is received, every type of stock will be accepted.

France and Germany Sign Agreement Of Peace Over Saar Basin Territory

ROME, Dec. 3.—France and Germany today signed "an agreement of peace" over the Saar basin territory.

By the agreement's terms, which is expected to end the grave controversy over the future sovereignty of the district, Germany will pay France approximately $59,400,000 and 11,000,000 tons of coal for the French mines and private credits in the Saar basin.

Germany guarantees equal right to voters and non-voters among all Saar inhabitants regardless of race, religion and language.

The nations reached an agreement on the method of payment which will not interfere with Germany's foreign exchange.

The pact will be presented to the League of Nations Wednesday.

MIXED REACTION MEETS REVOLT OF BORAH

Reorganization of Republican Party Is Proposed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Mixed reaction among Western Republicans Sunday greeted Senator William E. Borah's proposed revolt to force a complete reorganization of the Republican party's personnel and policies.

Senator Nye of North Dakota agreed with the Idaho independent that a quick shake-up and liberalization were needed but he was not certain he would go so far as to call a national convention of young and liberal elements to do it independently of the Eastern conservative wing.

Senator Steiwar of Oregon aligned himself with that school which believes the party can attain new life through a gradual evolutionary process rather than an uprooting of old foundations.

Borah said Saturday that Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the national committee and other Easterners in control of the organization owed it to the party and its millions of supporters to call the national committee together at once and co-operate to bring about a complete reorganization of the party organization.

"That," he said, "certainly" (Continued on page 4)

Negro Who Shot Officer Is Taken

LAWTON, Okla., Dec. 3.—After a 16-hour search, officers yesterday captured Nathan Hall, 35-year-old negro porter who Saturday night shot and seriously wounded Lieut. Robert G. Crandall at his Fort Sill quarters.

The suspect offered no resistance when found hidden under a bed at the home of a negro friend in Lawton. The shotgun used was found by officers near the place of hiding.

Military authorities said they obtained a statement from Hall admitting the shooting. The negro was quoted as saying he went to Crandall's quarters with the intention of killing Eleanor Brown, his former sweetheart, a maid.

The negro claimed he shot the officer as the door opened, thinking the negro girl was entering.

Lieutenant Crandall remained in an army hospital tonight but his condition was said not to be serious. He suffered buckshot wounds in both hips.

RENTAL CHECKS FOR $8,073 RECEIVED

95 Checks Bring Total on Second Payment to $126,000

Ninety-five checks totaling $8,073.34 were received in the office of the county agricultural agent here this morning as a third quota of second rental payments from the government.

Agent James A. Jackson announced that the checks will be distributed immediately.

The checks received this morning brought the total payments to Hall county farmers to more than $126,000. About $6,000 remains to be paid on the second rental payments to local farmers, Mr. Jackson stated.

MONGENTHAU, ICKES IN VISIT TO F D R

ATLANTA, Dec. 3.—Secretary Henry Morgenthau and Harold Ickes arrived on different trains today and left together for a conference with President Roosevelt at Warm Springs.

Rental Payments Over 67 Million

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The Farm Administration's rental and benefit payments to Texas farmers reached $67,167,913 to November 1.

The entire country's total was $421,697,389. The payments were for cotton, wheat, corn and hogs.

18 SHOPPING DAYS 'TIL CHRISTMAS

"We girls think this one's a scream!"

Junior C. of C. Has Big Session Tonight

The Junior Chamber of Commerce will hold its most important mass meeting tonight at the American Legion hall. The session will start at 7:30 o'clock.

Officials of the organization have urged that every member be present.

Among the important business matters to come up for discussion will be the high school cafeteria undertaking and final plans for the organization's first annual banquet.

The board of directors will present the cafeteria plans to the mass gathering for the first time in order to secure membership approval. Final banquet plans will be announced. The banquet is to be held at the Memphis Hotel, Monday night, Dec. 10.

Banquet tickets are now on sale by the ticket committee, composed of Zeb Moore, chairman, Herace Tarver and Leon Bullard.

Three Are Killed In Airplane Crash

BROWNFIELD, Texas, Dec. 3.—Three men were fatally injured when an airplane stalled at low altitude during a pleasure flight near here late yesterday and crashed into a dry earth tank 20 feet from a residence.

The dead: Manuel Kelm, 24, of Littlefield, pilot.

John Alexander, 24, Frederick, Okla., farm worker.

James Benton, 26, living near Brownfield.

The byplane was said by witnesses to have stalled at an altitude of only two or three hundred feet, about a quarter of a mile from the airport, as it returned to the field after a short flight.

It hit the ground, bounced, and skidded for several hundred feet before nosing over in the stock tank.

FEAR SEVENTEEN LOST AS SHIP FOUNDERED

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 3.—Part of the wreckage of the coastal steamer Coramba was washed ashore Sunday, raising fears that seventeen persons aboard had drowned. Two bodies were washed ashore Saturday bearing lifebelts from the steamer.

The Coramba is believed to have foundered during the terrific wind and rainstorm which lashed the coast for two days, causing great property damage and bringing death to eight known persons.

ENVOYS IN WASHINGTON HAPPY AS DOLLAR SINKS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The capital's diplomatic set is a bit gayer now—and all because the good old American dollar isn't what it used to be.

Foreign envoys, expect where economy experts have expeted by cutting salaries, are living better now because the dollar has depreciated and their money buys more than it used to.

The British are an illustration. Their pounds, in which they are paid, used to be exchangeable for $3.50, now the pound will get them five American dollars and their salaries are worth about 35 per cent more.

LUCK MUST PLAY A PART IN LIFE

THERE is something more than just a grimly humorous twist of chance in the story of those two paupers at Marietta, O., who struck oil in the backyard of the county poorhouse.

One of the most striking contradictions of modern American society is wrapped up in it—a contradiction which society must somehow solve, if it is not to undergo a profound change.

These two chaps, both getting along in their sixties, had been oil drillers for years. They had worked on rigs all the way from Ohio to Oklahoma, and in their day they had made good money; but times were hard, jobs were not to be had, and so they submitted to poverty and entered the county poorhouse.

They hadn't been there long before time began to hang heavy on their hands. They had been active men and they didn't like complete idleness any better than the next man; so they finally got their superintendent's permission to drill for oil in the backyard.

It looked like a hopeless quest, of course. They had to borrow all their equipment. They got coal to fire their engine from an outcropping in the poorhouse farm.

And so they went to work, day after day—and, at last, struck a neat flow of oil. Already they have been offered $5000 apiece for their holdings. They are paupers no longer.

Now this little story illustrates perfectly the uncertainty that is so essential a part of the average man's quest for a secure livelihood under modern conditions.

These men were hard workers for years. Conditions quite beyond their control shipwrecked them and tossed them into the hopeless obscurity of the poorhouse. After a lifetime of toil, they had to take charity or starve.

Then—observe the sudden spinning of fortune's wheel! The luck that had made paupers of them made an about-face and put money in their pockets again.

They contributed their own industry and perseverance, of course; but if there had not happened to be oil-bearing sands just beneath that poorhouse hill, they could have drilled until doomsday without doing themselves any good.

These men fully deserved their good fortune, to be sure. But something is sadly out of joint in a system by which two skilled and industrious workers can escape an old age of pauperism only by a 100-to-1 stroke of good luck.

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY.

Lovable

by MARY RAYMOND © 1934 NEA SERVICE INC

BEGIN HERE TODAY

After her father's death ANN HOLLISTER, pretty and 20, learns that her college course was made possible by loans from her father's friends. To repay them she offers her home for sale and then shocks her relatives by holding a sale of the family antiques.

On the day of the sale a young man motoring through the small Georgia town is stopped by motor trouble almost in front of Ann's home. He goes there to telephone a garage and she invites him to remain while the car is being repaired.

When he leaves Ann discovers he has taken a blue vase, leaving a note and $50 to pay for the vase. The note is signed "P. K." Ann is humiliated and angry but finds it impossible to put the engaging stranger out of her mind.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II

Afterwards Sarah Kent was sure that she had realized trouble was brewing when she saw Tony heading for the library's reference department. Only a girl, Sarah was certain, could have drawn Tony into the gloomy quiet of the reference room, and kept him there for two whole hours!

Suddenly Sarah came to another of her quick, intuitive decisions. Tony was turning bookish because of that red-headed girl from Georgia. Ann Hollister, who fail to notice a pretty girl any this week and temporarily assigned to assist Mrs. Keating, reference librarian.

There was not a chance in the world that Tony Mickle would fail to notice a pretty girl anywhere. Certainly not a chance that he would overlook this new girl's lovely hair, her lashes and that provocative tilt of her nose.

Following her "lunch", Sarah walked from the information desk to the reference room and looked inside. At the far end of the room Tony hunched over a table, his black hair ruffled as usual, apparently engrossed in a large book spread before him.

Sarah went back to the lobby. She was willing to give Tony the benefit of the doubt.

An hour elapsed before he passed the information desk. Half way to the door, he stopped, retracing his steps. "What a first-class sleuth you're turning out to be," he said. "Well, what are the findings?"

Sarah met his amused eyes and laughed. "So you saw me! I've just decided maybe I was wrong."

"No, you were quite right. But wrong, too. I came for information the first time. I've come back because I've been knocked for a loop. Think of finding a girl like that shut up in a reference room when she might be—"

"When she might be listening to your ardent phrases?"

"When she might be posing for a painting."

"Don't pretend with me, Tony."

same time. Eileen Wallace for instance.

More than once Tony had told Eileen he was through, yet she was constantly bobbing up again in the turbulent stream that was Tony's life.

She was sorry he had seen Ann Hollister. He would be dangerous for a girl as young, as unsophisticated as Ann seemed.

Sarah and Ann had spent several hours together the day before and the older girl had realized that, while Ann was intelligent, she was a long way from sophistication. Certainly not a match for anyone as charming and clever as Tony.

The following afternoon about 3 o'clock, Tony arrived as usual. He bowed extravagantly to Sarah, passing her desk, a mocking smile in his eyes.

Ann, busy mounting clippings, looked up to meet Tony's straight stare. She turned back to her work, aware that she had flushed a little. When she had finished the task she was kept busy answering reference questions and wheeling out book trucks containing back numbers of magazines.

After a while, at her desk, Ann stole a look at the bold stranger. Later, as afternoon shadows dimmed the room, the crowd gathered about the tables thinned rapidly. Still the young man sat on.

Occasionally he ran a hand over his black hair. Sometimes he stopped reading to sketch on a pad.

And Football Is Rough!

If you think football is a bone-crushing, nerve-jarring contest, just occupy a ringside seat at a hockey game some dull evening and witness a few scenes similar to those above. This knock-down, drag-em-out action was snapped during a game between the New York Rangers and Detroit Redwings in Gotham. Above the boys are enjoying a free-for-all party of fistfights, which came after a run-in between Lynn Patrick of the Rangers, and Ebbie Goodfellow of the Redwings. Below, Patrick, son of the Rangers' manager, has just scored a goal. Redwing Goalie Smith is down on the ice.

As closing time neared the room was occupied only by the young man, a spectacled woman and Ann. The woman glanced at her watch and arose to leave. The young man arose, too. Now he was coming toward Ann.

"Angel," he said softly, "when did you fly down?"

Ann's eyes widened in amazement. After an instant she met his blue eyes levelly, scorning to answer.

"Oh," said the young man easily, "I see I made a mistake in the subject. Nice day, isn't it? Or do you prefer snow and galoshes?"

"If I smile," Ann thought, "I'll never be able to look myself in the face. Of all the impudent take-you-for-granted men, he is absolutely the worst!"

"I presume you've come to stay," Tony continued, evidently enjoying this one-sided conversation.

Ann unbent enough to reply, "I'm afraid not if I permit such conduct as this."

"If they fire you I'll never read another book in this library. I'll dynamite the dump!"

"There are some books you should read," Ann said coldly. "What books?"

"Etiquet books."

He laughed. "A hit, run and no errors. I have an idea that I won't be a stranger long."

"What utter nonsense," Ann said, walking out of the room. Tony followed closely. "It's only that you haven't my point of view," he said. "Oh, hello, Sarah what luck! Will you please introduce me? I'm about to be thrown out on my ear."

Sarah said resignedly. "Ann Hollister, this is Tony Mickle. You probably think he is a lunatic. You'll be certain of it when you know him better."

"That," said Tony, "is only better than no introduction at all. I was hoping you'd give me a real send-off, telling her I don't usually loaf in libraries. By the way, Ann, I'm doing a set of posters for the Junior League benefit still resentful, met Tony's Sarah Ball. Heard anything about it?"

"No," said Ann without enthusiasm.

"I want the American girl to have hair like yours. Will you sit for me?"

Sarah interrupted. "Not so fast, Tony. Observe the rules. You're days ahead of your schedule."

Ann had not replied. Her eyes, still resentful, met Tony's. Sarah, watching, saw a little flame leap up in his eyes. Tony said softly,

"The sphinx has a little friend. But like gabby girls. G you tomorrow."

Turning the paper that night upon an account ball. Posters, she displayed in hot downtown department would be done by kle, talented art was also to assist leaux.

Ann had searched Tony had spoken. She had decided flirtatious nuisance best to ignore him to the library age.

Tony did come. No opportunity to he saw Ann at all a haze of preoccupation speak to her polit then enlist the at other librarian.
