Where Poison Probe Attracts National Attention

Investigation of startling allegations of gang rule in the "model" Stateville (Ill.) prison, shown in this air view, assumed a country-wide aspect when 16 nationally known civic, church, and prison authorities were asked to serve on the probe commission, the number including Sanford Bates, U. S. prison director, and Warden Lewis Lawes of Sing Sing. Slaying of Richard Loeb precipitated the inquiry, charge being made that he was killed in an effort to overthrow a "ruling class" who lorded it over 4000 fellow prisoners. This picture of the prison shows: 1, machine shop; 2, kitchen; 3, bakery; 4, powerhouse; 5, main dining hall; 6, clothes factory and laundry; 7, the four modern circular blocks where prisoners are confined.

BARBECUE WILL BE FEATURE OF BIG PROGRAM

Everything Is Ready For Biggest Meet of Organizations

Final plans have been laid, and everything is in readiness for the opening of the district joint meeting of the Future Farmers of America and the Home Economics clubs of this section, according to Riley W. Carlton, Memphis vocational agriculture instructor; and Mrs. Jack Hubbard, Home-Ec instructor. Over 500 persons, 350 Home Economics students and over 200 Future Farmers of America, are expected to arrive in Memphis in the morning for the joint meeting.

The Home Economics girls and the F.F.A. boys will meet at the High school building in the morning at 10:30 o'clock. The Home-Ec girls will hold their meetings in the Memphis High School auditorium, and the boys will convene in the West Ward auditorium.

O. T. Ryan, professor of agriculture of Texas Technological College, Lubbock, F.F.A. area supervisor; and Miss Esther Sorensen, Lubbock, district Home Making Supervisor, are among the notables who will attend the all-day session here.

COUNTY FARMERS MAY GET POISON

Farmers and ranchmen of this section who are bothered by prairie dogs and other rodents may obtain prairie-dog poison at the office of the county agricultural agent.

Six hundred pounds of prairie-dog poison were received this week and 500 pounds of it were sold immediately to W. J. Lewis of Clarendon. The poison is bought by the Hall County Commissioners Court for the purpose of selling it to farmers at cost, in order to rid this section of the pestiferous rodents.

The poison, a strychnine solution mixed with grain, is given the rodents in a unique way. Unpoisoned grain is set out a few times for the dogs, until they become accustomed to eating the grain. Then the poisoned grain is placed for the prairie dogs. The same type poison has been in use in this section for several years, and results have been noteworthy.

SCHOOL PUPILS INSPECT GIN

Junior Hi Students Conducted Thru Local Gin Plant

Approximately 75 Junior High school pupils, from sections 51 and 52, were conducted on a field trip and inspection tour of the Gerlach Gin here yesterday afternoon at 1:00 o'clock.

William Gerlach, gin owner and manager, conducted the students through the entire ginning plant, showing and explaining to them the ginning process.

The trip through the gin was made in connection with a fifth grade school unit, the study of (Continued on Page 8)

Issuing Exemptions to Turkey Farmers

County Agricultural Agent R. E. L. Pattillo, John C. Myers, cotton adjustment assistant, and office workers are in Turkey this afternoon distributing to farmers and cotton men of that section their surplus tax exemption certificates.

Approximately one-fourth of the exemption tags, received in Memphis Tuesday morning, have been issued to Hall County farmers; and those who have certificates outstanding are requested to call at the county agent's office for them.

The county farm agent transacts business in Turkey every Friday, because of the distance farmers of that section would have to travel in reaching the county seat.

GAMES TONIGHT ARE POSTPONED

The two basketball contests staged for tonight at Estelline, between Memphis and Estelline, and Pampa and Estelline "All-Stars", have been indefinitely postponed, according to word from Ed Curnutt, Estelline coach.

Postponement of the games was made through respect of Miss Nadine Berryman, prominent Estelline school student, who died in a Memphis hospital yesterday.

Legion Protests Charging of Fees for Bonus Applications

Federal Law Forbids Collection of Fee on Bonus Papers

Officials of the local post of the American Legion have entered a protest against the alleged charging of fees to ex-service men for assisting in the filing of their application for the balance due of the Adjusted Service Certificates.

According to Commander Reheis of the Charles R. Simmons post, several agencies in this city have been violating the federal statutes in this respect.

The law is very specific on this point. The original act, passed May 19, 1924, being entitled "An Act to Provide Adjusted Compensation for Veterans of the World War," Public 120, Sixty-eighth Congress, Section 309, provides: "Any person who charges or collects, or attempts to charge or collect, either directly or indirectly (Continued on Page 8)

Cold Wave

According to the weather man, this section is to be the host to another chilling blast tonight, with low temperatures reported due for the Panhandle, and colder weather tomorrow.

Local citizens have had no trouble recently in visualizing the conditions which beset Commander Byrd on his trip to Little America.

FUNERAL TODAY ESTELLINE GIRL

Funeral services for Miss Nadine Berryman, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Berryman, living west of Estelline, are being held this afternoon at the Estelline High School auditorium, at 3:30. Rev. W. O. Cooley, former Estelline pastor, is conducting the services, which are in charge of King's Mortuary of this city.

Active pallbearers are L. V. Bruce, Eddie Clifton, Jack Edmondson, Raymond Davis, Vernon Leatherwood and Carl Leary.

The Weather

WEST TEXAS: Cloudy with snow in north tonight; Saturday cloudy and colder; much colder in north with cold wave tonight, temperature below zero in Panhandle by morning. Livestock warning in north and central portions.

LOCAL: Cool but not unpleasant this morning. Clear sky and sunshine. Temperature at 8:00 registered 28 degrees, rising to 52 at noon.

AMATEUR HOUR S FEATURE AT SCHOOL CHAPEL

Unique Program Was Presented Chapel This Morning

L. C. Smyers and the Memphis High School Public Speaking Department presented a novel program this morning at the regular chapel hour at the High school when they imitated Major Bowes and his Original Amateur Hour. Sponsors of the program, the setting of which was in New York City, were Chase and Sandstrom. The program was conducted in a manner similar to the Major Bowes regular amateur radio performance. L. C. Smyers served as the announcer, the Major, and in charge of the program.

Harold Hightower appeared on the program, telling several jokes.

E. Martin gave a piano solo, and Tom Bob Harrison gave a rock trombone "sneer", which earned the "gong." Mary Catherine Walker entertained with a musical reading, followed by singing and tapping by Bobbie Clark and Ouida Read.

Everine Wills sang "Red Sails at the Sunset," and Bud McAbee and Bobbie Clark gave imitations of the High school faculty. Sidney Dayfield got the "gong" when he gave a tapping performance, using a negro doll and a board.

Hall County Leads in Poll Taxes Paid

In the matter of poll tax payments for the current year, Hall County is apparently leading her neighbors by a nice margin, according to reports from Childress, Donley, Collingsworth and this county.

Hall County payments totalled 918 poll taxes paid and 158 exemptions issued, for a total of 1076 voters, excluding "overs" who require no permit.

Childress County payments totalled 2800 poll taxes, 200 exemptions, 3000 voters.

Collingsworth County voters paid 2825 poll taxes and 162 exemptions were issued, 2987 voters. Donley County poll tax payments were 2307, with 122 exemptions (Continued on Page 8)

FIVE BIRTHS IN CITY IN JANUARY

In the realm of vital statistics, this city lost ground during the first month of the year, according to figures just released by Dr. C. Z. Stidham, City Health Officer, who assembles the data for the Bureau of Vital Statistics from the various attending physicians.

According to Dr. Stidham's January report, there were but five births within the city limits that month, compared to seven deaths for the same period, four of the five births being girls.

SADDER BUT WISER

ONE of the things that keep life from flowing along like a babbling brook in a mountain meadow is the unfortunate fact that most of us can't seem to learn anything without first taking a good smack on the jaw.

We do learn, in time, but usually not until somebody has wiped up the floor with us. It is not for nothing that our language contains an old saying about "sadder but wiser."

Consider, for instance, the famous Gran Chaco War in South America, final obsequies for which are now being performed by diplomats around a council table.

Here, we were assured, was a war which flowed directly out of the ineradicable springs of pugnacity in the human breast. The people of Bolivia wanted war, and the people of Paraguay insisted on it. Or so, at least, we were given to understand.

The fight ended in more or less of a draw, when the spectators climbed into the ring and stopped it. Recently long lines of emancipated, war-weary veterans tramped through the streets of the Bolivian and Paraguayan capitals, back from the battle lines . . . and the populace received their returning heroes in stony silence.

The war, in other words, was not popular with the man in the street, after all. He had no cheers for his army when it came back home. All he wants is to forget the whole business and go ahead with the ordinary routine of peace-time life.

How come, then, there was so much popular clamor for war in the first place?

Here's the answer. The politicians of the two governments have used the Gran Chaco as a stalking horse for years. Whenever the electorate in either country got restive, the dispute would be trotted out to take their minds off troubles at home, which finally created an utterly synthetic passion for war.

The people of both countries know better now, but how tragic it is that they learned only through four years of red war and the loss of 100,000 young men of the two countries.

Sadder but wiser!

Somebody looking for Tom Martin yesterday morning, but nobody could locate him. Seems like he's been hard to find after the High School team walloped his Waterworkers Wednesday night at bowling.

One Wing Roberts stop his car at the intersection of Sixth and Main yesterday and wave a lady the right-of-way to cross in front of him. She evidently didn't like his looks, however, and waited until he cleared the crosswalk, before walking across the street.

One of the things we see and approve of every time we step out on the street is the attractive green front of the Piggly-Wiggly. If a bunch of merchants would make their store fronts attractive as this one, the old town would look like a million dollars. Some day we're going over and pat W. H. and Hal on the back for this showing of the old progressive spirit that makes towns grow and prosper.

Oren Jones look funny when a stranger addressed him yesterday as "Mr. Durham." Seems like folks have an awful hard time getting those guys' names straightened out.

Roy McQueen of the Industrials bragging before the game Wednesday that they were going to teach the High School team "something about arithmetic." Haven't heard him mention it since the match was played.

Jimmie Hammond tooling his car around the corner at Sixth and Main yesterday morning at 8:00 o'clock at around 45 or 50 miles per hour. And did Bill Smith and the We Saw editor, who were crossing the street, get out of the way? As Jane Ace, of the radio, says:

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Several things happened backstage after the mass attack in the Senate on Chairman Gerald Nye and the munitions committee.

Whereas it had appeared almost certain that the investigation would be stopped in its tracks, four days later the committee was confident that it could obtain an additional appropriation and conclude the inquiry in an orderly manner. These developments were responsible for that:

1. The mail, both to members and enemies of the committee, indicated a strong public reaction against suppression of the munitions investigation.
2. The force of arguments by Nye and Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri began to sink in on many senators who at first had been swayed by attacks on the two after Nye said Woodrow Wilson had "falsified."
3. Reports arrived that German-Sandinavian-Americans in the Northwest, and Irish-Americans in the Northeast were becoming incensed at what they considered an attempt to throttle war evidence at the behest of Morgan & Co. and the British government. These reports scared certain important administrationites.
4. Senators were told that they would be monkeying with dynamite if they voted against the investigation and that certain committee members might stir up a national scandal by airing suppressed evidence on the Senate floor.
5. Senator Homer Bone, a committee member, who had been absent in Washington state, returned and poured large quantities of oil on troubled waters, both inside and outside the committee.

"I'll say the world!"

Sure a tidy bunch around the Chief's office at the City Hall. They always sweep the office litter out onto the sidewalk in front of the building, and there is gradually accumulating quite a collection of tobacco cans, burned matches, match boxes, old pipe cleaners and other hie-a-brac, which adds wonderfully to the appearance of the City Capitol.

A workman tearing up the concrete floor at Pound's Cafe yesterday afternoon. He had all the tables piled up in a corner and was digging the floor up with pick and sledge hammer, while customers entered the place at their own risk.

Hiram Crawford coaching the High School to victory over the Industrials at the bowling alleys the other night, much to the chagrin of Tom Martin and others.

Nine petitions for divorce filed in the office of the district clerk yesterday. We're not letting you in on who's seeking a divorce yet, though.

Ginning activity and farm activity revived considerably yesterday, which is due no doubt to the re-

6. The committee met and decided to soft-pedal on sensational and personal comment, to adopt a conciliatory attitude unless it appeared a real fight was necessary, to ask for only $7500 more, and to complete the investigation within 10 days, instead of about 15 as scheduled.

7. The committee unanimously agreed to suppress one item on its agenda which would have made big headlines, but was considered of no importance to the committee's objectives—strong neutrality legislation, regulation of the munitions industry, and a war profits act.

THE suppressed evidence could have been used in propaganda against the administration, but even Republican members were not anxious to do so. It involved the alleged indiscretion of a certain prominent young man, whose influence was expected to figure in an airplane deal, but didn't.

It was contained in a deposition by Anthony Fokker of aviation fame, which now probably will never see light of day.

THE committee left itself free, however, to:

Conclude the Morgan investigation to show how the Treasury is alleged to have "bailed out" private bankers after America entered the war.

Reveal further disposal of American munitions "secrets" to foreign powers.

Disclose names and the extent to which American oil and steel companies have shipped war materials to Italy.

Prove whatever connection it could between the Navy League and Army Ordnance Association and munitions makers, militaristic propaganda, politicians, and the army and navy.

Reveal further disposal of American munitions "secrets" to foreign powers.

Sealed proposals for the construction of the following maintenance projects will be received at the office of the State Highway Engineer until 9:00 A. M. on the dates specified and then publicly opened and read.

Plans and specifications may be seen for examination and information may be obtained at the office of the Resident or Division Engineer as given for the project and at the office of the State Highway Department, State Highway Building, Austin, Texas.

Proposals may be obtained from the Austin Office only.

A certified or cashier's check on a State or National Bank of the State of Texas for the amount shown for the project, made payable without recourse to the order of the State Highway Commission of Texas, must accompany each proposal as a guarantee that the bidder if successful will enter into contract and make bond in accordance with the requirements of the specifications. The right is reserved by the Party of the First Part to reject any and all proposals or to waive all technicalities.

Proposals shall be submitted in sealed envelopes as furnished with the proposals. All data on the envelope should be properly filled in showing county, project number, time and date of letting; also signature and address of bidder.

Proposals submitted by mail shall be marked as above and enclosed in another envelope, properly identified as a proposal, and addressed to Gibb Gilchrist, State Highway Engineer, Austin, Texas.

All bids received will be retained by the Department. Conditional bids will not be considered.

The Contractor will be required to pay not less than the prevailing rates of wages, as listed, for each project. The listed rates are established on the basis of an eight (8) hour working day. Should a contractor require an employee to work a different number of hours per day the governing daily rates shall be proportionately computed. Any employee not specifically listed shall be classified under the listed position which requires work most nearly comparable with the type of work involved.

STRANGE CASE OF JULIA CRAIG

by Nard Jones Copyright MCA 1936

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JULIA CRAIG, pretty young secretary to GEORGE WOODFORD, lawyer, is ambitious to become a night club singer. Julia shares an apartment with AMY SANDERS.

PETER KEMP, young lawyer, is in love with Julia but they quarrel and Julia declares she never wants to see him again.

Woodford gives a party aboard his yacht and asks Julia to come to sing for his guests, including CINTRA LEE, dancer, MRS. JOSEPH, widow; HUGO NASH and ROYAL NESBITT.

On board, Julia discovers the trip is to be much longer than a week-end. The yacht lands at Evergreen Island where Woodford has a lodge. Julia meets TOM PAYSON who agrees to help her get away, but he is discovered on the yacht and accused of tampering with the radio. After an angry scene he is allowed to depart.

Back home Julia is hired to sing on TONY LATTA'S gambling ship. Tom Payson comes to the ship frequently. One night, after winning heavily, Tom is threatened. He and Julia escape in a speedboat.

Woodford telephones Julia and she goes to his office. He warns her not to tell anyone about what happened on the yacht trip.

SMITH GARLAND, night club owner, offers Julia a job singing in a new club he is about to open. She takes the name of "NADINE WHITE," is cheered on the opening night.

Julia hears a girl saying that Payson is backing the night club.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XX

Her face flaming, Julia hurried toward her dressing room. Smith Garland was there waiting, a broad smile on his face.

"You were marvelous, Nadine." But Julia did not hear him. "Is it true that Tom Payson put up the money for all this?"

At Julia's direct question, Smith Garland's pleased expression was replaced with one of poorly hidden astonishment. Then he shrugged away his embarrassment.

"What difference does it make who put up the money for the White Club? It's a success now—and you're a success with it."

"Tom Payson backed you, didn't he?"

Garland nodded sheepishly. "But I don't see what dif—"

"It does make a difference," Julia told him quickly. "It sort of—spoils it all."

"But why?"

She sat down weakly. "I suppose I was being a fool. But I—"

I felt I'd been helping you put something over."

"But you have, Nadine. You've done just that."

Julia shook her head. "No . . ." she answered. "All this was just a whim of Tom's. It wasn't what I thought, at all. I was fool enough to think that you got the idea, and saw me, and—and worked it all out."

"Look here, Julia . . ." He strode across the room to her chair, knelted down before her as though she were a child. "It was my idea. And it came to me when I saw you all dressed in white out on Latta's gambling ship. Of course, Tom steered me to you—so naturally I thought of him when the question of finances came up. I couldn't swing it alone, but I'll pay Tom back in time. He knows that."

Julia smiled slowly, and when she spoke again it was with a wholly irrelevant question. "Did you know you called me Julia—instead of Nadine?"

"Yes . . . And you've always been Julia to me. Ever since the first day I saw you."

Something in Smith Garland's eyes warned Julia, but there was no way now to stem the sudden flow of his words.

"I love you, Julia. I—I tried to blind myself to it during these weeks of work. But all along it's been there . . . underneath, I've got to tell you now." His hands outstretched, clutching her knees. "I've—"

The door had opened suddenly, revealing Tom Payson.

"Sorry," he said, slowly closing the door behind him. "Of course, I should have knocked."

Garland rose to his feet reddening furiously. "It's quite all right, Tom. I was just trying to explain things to Julia."

"So I see." She's found out that you backed the club."

Payson's jaw dropped and he

The Strange Case—

He searched Julia's face. "Who are you that?"

"I happened to overhear it," she said to him quietly. "Some of your friends at one of the tables outside."

Tom Payson grinned amiably. "I like to know how they found out. I was hoping to keep it a secret."

But his casualness failed to impress Julia; and Garland, his face crimson, blurted out that he had to get out on the floor "to see what things are going." When the door closed behind him, Payson turned to Julia.

"I gather that Garland was making love to you." She did not answer, and he went on: "Are you in with him, Julia?"

"No..."

He was silent a moment, then he looked over and took her hands, drew Julia to her feet. "Why so, darling? Why—why this ought to be the happiest night in your life."

"It was," Julia said, "until I liked by that table."

"What do you care what people think?"

She shook her head, withdrew her hands from his. "It's not that, Tom. But I felt I was making good on my own. Now I discover that it was your money that gave me my chance—it was your money that filled me up as Nadine White, prodded even the sett'ag."

"It had to be somebody's money. These things don't just happen. If Garland had been stronger financially he'd have done the whole thing himself. And anyhow," he added, "it was you and Garland who did everything. The money was the small part, after all."

He walked to the door. "I'll wait outside until you've changed. Then I want you to join me. There are some friends of mine who want to meet you."

Julia hesitated. "I'm afraid I can't, Tom. Amy Sanders is out there with a friend of hers, and—"

"Then they can join us, too. I'll give you just five minutes."

There was no argument against Tom's winning smile. As she changed from her white gown into a stunningly plain black she reviewed in her mind what Garland and Payson had said. Perhaps, after all, it made no difference that it was Payson's money which had created an opportunity for her. And yet...

"Doesn't any success come," she asked herself, "without compromises and obligations?" She thought of the small, dark girl sitting out there beside Peter Kemp. What was her ambition? Perhaps to be the wife of Peter Kemp, to keep his home, and bear his children. That would be her simple success; and it would carry only the obligation of being a good wife. Nothing more than that.

Nervously Julia took up a cigarette, lighted it, and inhaled deeply—as if the smoke might somehow purge her mind of disturbing thoughts. Then after a final glance in the mirror, she left the dressing room and faced Tom Payson with a brave smile.

"Three minutes!" she laughed. When they reached the big main room of the club Julia was recognized at once, and a wave of applause spread quickly. "Hurry," she whispered to Payson, "let's sit down!" But just then the operator of the spotlights, relentless and alert, shot down a glare which made hiding an impossibility. He followed Payson and Julia with the bright beam until they reached the table which was Payson's destination.

As the light switched off, Julia recognized with a start that it was the same table from which she'd heard the snatch of conversation. She did not know which were the two women who had unwittingly informed her—but she noticed with sinking heart that all the women at the table were regarding her with frank and open interest. Tom's introductions were swift and easy, but she was relieved when he had finished.

"Now," he said, "I'll find Amy and her friend if you'll excuse me."

In Tom's absence, a smooth dark girl slid into his chair. "I'm Theresa Davis," she said. "We met each other in that group introduction Tom staged—but one can't count those. You were very good to-night."

"Thank you..." Julia was conscious of the girl's faint accent, a clipped speech learned by rote in some fashionable school. Even the tone, she thought, was studied.

"We all think it's grand that Tom's taken a fancy to you," the Davis girl went on. "Of course, we're all very fond of him."

"I—I should think you would be."

***

Theresa Davis laughed. "He's quite a trial, you know. I mean to his friends. One never knows what he's going to do next. He's—" she made a quick gesture, her scarlet nails flashing, "well, Tom is quixotic and idealistic. He's always helping along some girl who works in a shop or a— a cigar counter or something." She laughed indulgently. "We're pleased he's promoted himself to a night club singer."

"Do you really consider it a promotion?" asked Julia.

"Indeed, yes." The girl seemed surprised. "We can at least accept a night club singer."

Julia shoved back her chair quickly and got to her feet. "Would you excuse me, Miss Davis? I think I'll save you the trouble of accepting me."

With that she was gone, hurrying through the crowded room, her eyes filming with angry tears. Halfway to the lobby she met Payson.

"I don't seem to be able to find your friend, Julia."

"It's quite all right, Tom. I'm going home."

"But, Julia! What's wrong?"

"Nothing. I'm—I'm just going home."

He held her arm. "I'm going with you, then."

"No," Julia said. "I'd rather you wouldn't... please."

Outside she entered a taxi, and was soon before the towering apartment which the White Club had made possible for her and Amy. As she entered the elevator she was startled to see Cintra Lee.

"Why... Cintra?"

The Lee girl smiled. "I got here just ahead of you, Julia. I happened to see the little drama at the club. Don't let it worry you."

Forms For Making Returns

Forms for filing returns of income for 1935 have been sent to persons who filed returns last year. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve a taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay the tax on time, on or before March 16 if the return is made on the calendar year basis, as is the case with most individuals.

Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, from the offices of collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors. Persons whose net income for 1935 was derived chiefly from salary or wages and was not in excess of $5,000 should make their returns on form 1040A. Persons whose net income was in excess of $5,000, or, regardless of amount, was derived from a business, profession, rents or sale of property, are required to use a larger form, 1040. Failure to use the proper form presents difficulties to both the taxpayer and the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Therefore, it is emphasized that a taxpayer engaged in a business or profession from which he derived a net income of less than $5,000 is required to use the larger form.

The return must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer has his legal residence or principal place of business on or before midnight of March 16, 1935. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or in four equal installments, due on or before March 16, June 15, September 15, and December 15.

Funeral Today—

Wise, Marjetta Ewing, Nettie Faye Baccus and Jessie Cannon. Miss Berryman became ill on Thursday of last week and was brought to a Memphis hospital for treatment. Pneumonia developed and she passed away yesterday morning at 10:00 o'clock.

The deceased was a senior in Estelline High School, and was a student body leader in scholastic, social and athletic activities. She was captain of last year's volley ball team of Estelline High School, regional champions, and was re-elected to head the team this year.

In addition to her parents, Miss Berryman is survived by four brothers, Ewell, Roy Glenn and Nathan Doyle, of Hulver, and one sister, Mrs. J. Warner Cope, also of Hulver.

Interment will be at the Hulver Cemetery.

Mrs. Lee Means and her brother, Frosty Rymer, left yesterday for Ontario, Calif., for an indefinite stay. They went for the benefit of Mr. Rymer's health.

Believes Local Recovery Here

"Recovery is beginning at home," said C. G. Bumgarner today in commenting on the growth of business in the United Gas System territory last year.

"The increase in gas range purchases was 30 per cent greater last year than in 1934," Mr. Bumgarner said, "including both new and replacement business.

"More than 60 per cent of the cooking equipment in the United States is ready now for replacement, and gas appliance dealers throughout the System report that the demand for new gas ranges is active," he said.

"Here in Memphis we notice daily that more of our customers are taking time to look around and discuss major plans for expenditures for their homes."

This, Mr. Bumgarner believes, has been encouraged by continued confidence in the times, better terms and more available accommodations on installment paper, and the realization that prices on such durable goods as gas ranges logically may be expected to advance along with the prices of raw materials, particularly those of steel and iron.

School Pupils—

cotton and clothing. Miss Zady Belle Walker and Miss Ira Hammond accompanied the pupils on the field trip.

"I would like to express my appreciation to the various industries of the city for their cooperation with the Memphis school program," L. C. Linn, Junior High principal, stated.

Legion Protests—

ly, any fee or other compensation for assisting in any manner a veteran or his dependents in obtaining any of the benefits, privileges, or loans to which he is entitled under the provisions of this Act shall, upon conviction thereof, be subject to a fine of not more than $500, or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both."

The American Legion has a committee which is devoting its time to assisting the veterans in filling out their applications, and all ex-service men are urged to use the services of this committee which, according to the law, are absolutely free.

The bonus office has been moved from the Legion Hall to the office of J. Ray Martin, on the second floor of the old Hall County National Bank Building.

Mrs. Bill Manning and daughter, Carmen Yvonne, of Oklahoma City is here for a visit with Mrs. Manning's sister, Miss Cleo Davenport.

Barbecue Will—

McLean, Samnorwood, Point, Wellington, Mobeetic and Groom will be here for the F.F.A. area meet. Attending the Home-Ec convention will be delegations from Ambrillo, Wheeler, Mobeetic, Dodsonville, Quail, Allison, Estelline, Memphis, Clarendon, Hedley, Wellington, Claude, Shamrock and Groom.

A free barbecue dinner, with soda pop and other accessories, will be served the delegates at the High school at the noon hour. All the food and the drinks have been donated by Memphis citizens, who were instrumental in securing the joint district convention for this city, along with the school officials.

Programs for the joint affair have been completed, and the students themselves will conduct the major part of the two programs.

Amateur Hour—

and Raymond Powers, singing a hillbilly song, were not allowed to finish. C. R. Gowan, using a comb and a cigarette paper to make music, was taken off the air. All of the school scandal went over the network when Harold Foxhall mimicked Walter Winchell, New York newspaper columnist.

Marie McQueen gave a musical reading, followed by a quartet composed of Roy Gilreath, Jack Baldwin, Raymond Anderson and Frank Lee. Billy Hamilton played a piano solo, and Jackie Boren and Anna Beth Leverett concluded the program by singing a song in a manner which merited the "gong."

ACCEPTS POSITION

Howard Greenwood has accepted a position with the A. Womack Grocery position here, replacing Shirley Patrick, who has taken a position with a floor sweep concern. Mr. Greenwood has been a groceryman here for a number of years.

Z. A. Moore was a business visitor in Slarendon yesterday.

IOOF INSTALLATION

Installation of the newly elected officials will be made tonight at 7:30 o'clock when the Encampment branch of the local Oddfellow organization meets, according to H. J. Rice, secretary.

The meeting is to be held in the Memphis I.O.O.F. hall.

Locals and Personals

Mrs. J. H. McManus of Sulphur Springs arrived yesterday morning to be with her mother, Mrs. J. H. Dennis, who is very ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. T. J. Hampton.

Miss Gladys Leary and Mrs. Hulien Clifton of Estelline spent yesterday in Memphis.

Mrs. Estelle Stone was a visitor in Childress yesterday.

Mrs. Will McQueen, living 5 miles south of the city, is reported very ill in a Wichita Falls hospital.

Mrs. Sam Frank Wright, Mrs. Copeland and Miss Dorothy Hart left this morning for their home in Fort Worth after a visit here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wright, and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wicker.

Mrs. J. W. Stokes is reported ill with the flu. She was taken to the Memphis Hospital yesterday.

How Cardui Helps Month After Month

Where there have been severe pains every month, from functional disturbances resulting from poor nourishment, Cardui has helped thousands of women to obtain relief. Their confidence in Cardui makes them eager to recommend it to other women needing such a medicine.

"I suffered a great deal with pain in my side and a weakness in my back," writes Mrs. Walter Page, of Evansville, Ind. "This made me so nervous I couldn't rest. Each month I would suffer all over and would have to go to bed. One of my neighbors told me how Cardui helped her, so I took it and it helped me. After taking eight bottles, I was much better. I surely can recommend Cardui for weakness and pain.

Of course, if Cardui does not benefit YOU consult a physician.
