President Roosevelt Embarks On Trip To Atlantic And Pacific Possessions

Associated Press WASHINGTON, July 2.—President Roosevelt today departed for a history-making journey that will carry him to the far flung possessions in the Atlantic and Pacific.

With Mr. Roosevelt's two youngest sons, Franklin, Jr., and John where Rudolph Forster, veteran White House executive clerk; and Commander Ross T. McIntire, naval physician; Gun Genierich, personal bodyguard of the President; Richard Jerv's, head of the White House Secret Service; and George Fox, a pharmacist's mate, completed the party.

A well equipped wireless will keep the President in constant contact with the White House where his secretaries, Louis M. Howe, Marvin H. McIntyre and Stephen T. Early, are on the job for such official business as needs the attention of the sea-going chief executive.

Slain In Thwarted German Uprising

Notable victims in the thwarted uprising of Nazi storm troops in Germany Saturday were General Kurt Von Scheicher, former Reich Chancellor and Reichwehr commander, and Frau Von Schleicher, shown here.

They were slain in their villa in Neubabelsberg, aristocratic Berlin suburb. They were shot down, Berlin reports say, while resisting arrest "as conspirators against the government."

ODDFELLOWS TO INSTALL NEW OFFICIALS

Associated Press WASHINGTON, July 2.—Texas again shared liberally in public works allotment Saturday when Secretary of Interior Ickes, PWA administrator, announced approval of allotments to the Lone Star state totaling $9,681,632.

The allocation to Texas brought the total allotted to the state last week from the new PWA appropriation to $20,367,332. The large number of allotments being made to Texas at this time is largely accountable to the fact that the state was well below its quota in allocations from the original PWA appropriation and is now being given preferred attention.

Anxious to Start At the same time the treasury and post office departments announced that they are sending out advertisements for sites for public buildings in its $11,261,000 public building program for Texas. It was stated that the departments are anxious to get these buildings under way immediately.

Memphis Man Is Improving From Collision Injury

T. H. "Red" Williams, Memphis laundryman, who was seriously injured Saturday night in an automobile collision, is reported as improving.

Williams' left arm was amputated Saturday night at the E. H. Boaz hospital as the result of an accident which occurred a short distance south of Giles.

Winnie Bowden, who was riding in the car with Williams, suffered an injury to his right-hand.

GOODWILL TOUR TO NEWLIN IS POSTPONED

Will Make Trip At Some Future Date, Says Jones

The Memphis Junior Chamber of Commerce's final goodwill tour of the year, which was to have been conducted this week to Newlin, has been postponed until some later date in the summer, according to Bob Jones, chairman of the Trade Extension committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The postponement of the trip was made necessary due to the fact that almost half of the members of the Memphis Black and Gold band have gone out of town on their vacations. Glenn A. Truax, local bandmaster, is also out of town.

"We regret that the Newlin get-acquainted tour must be postponed," Mr. Jones said, "but we feel that it will be better to wait until the band boys return from their vacations, as a larger and more representative body will be able to make the trip."

Mr. Jones expressed his thanks to Cicero Milam, who volunteered his services and led the Memphis Black and Gold band in giving a band concert at Brice last Friday night.

RODEO JULY 4TH AT NORTHFIELD

Cash Purses Offered In Free Entertainment Wednesday By Northfield Sponsors

A free rodeo and all of the thrills that go with this typical Western sport are promised visitors to Northfield on July 4, according to H. H. Courtney, of that city, who was in Memphis advertising the event Saturday.

Large cash purses are being offered for bronc riding, steer riding, bulldogging, calf roping and all the other recognized rodeo sports.

Airplane stunts and outdoor dancing are promised for the night of July 3 and all-day Wednesday July 4. T. B. Simpson, of Northfield, is also one of the sponsors of the affair.

New Act Expected To Save Farmers

Associated Press WASHINGTON, July 2.—William Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, said today that "only a very slight minority" of farmers will have to go into bankruptcy to save their homes under the new Frazier-Lemke Act giving partial six year moratorium on farm mortgages.

Myers, in his statement said that the legislation fits in with the Farm Credit Program, "since it attempts to prevent occasional selfish creditors from foreclosing on distressed farm debtors."

Mysterious Activity At Kaiser's Estate In Doorne, Holland

Associated Press LONDON, July 2.—(Monday)—Stirring developments in Germany are being watched with intense interest at Doorn, Holland where former Emperor Wilhelm is in retirement, according to a dispatch to the Daily Mail.

There were mysterious activities at the former emperor's estate yesterday, the Mail's correspondent stated. Members of his staff were reported to be busy with errands.

Contrary to his usual custom, Wilhelm did not take a walk about his estate yesterday. The Mail stated that he remained indoors, within reach of a telephone.

Bank President Gets Jail Term

With a four and a half year sentence ahead of him, Joseph W. Harriman, former president of the wrecked Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, was a picture of dejection when he appeared, as shown here, outside the New York Federal court. He was found guilty on all 16 counts charging misapplication of funds and falsification of records.

ONE APPLICANT FOR 3.2 BEER LICENSE

Only One Permit For Sale Of Beverage Asked Here

One Application for a license to sell 3.2 beer in Memphis was made today by Rube's Coffee Shop by Rube Sisk, according to County Clerk Floyd Springer.

In compliance with the 3.2 beer law in Texas, the application must be made and posted, asking a hearing on the application.

SERIOUS ILLNESS OF HINDENBURG ADDS UNREST

Many More Arrests Including Crown Prince Friends

Associated Press BERLIN, July 2.—Prussian Premier Hermann Wilhelm Goering will succeed Franz Von Papen as Vice Chancellor, according to one of Goering's close friends today. The resignation or ousting of Von Papen is expected tomorrow.

Associated Press BERLIN, July 2, (copyright)—Associated Press learned today that scores of Nazi storm troop subleaders, possibly hundreds of them, were arrested throughout Germany in Chancellor Hitler's ruthless "house cleaning."

The subleaders were arrested Major Muelndner Von Muelndheim, for many years adjutant to the former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, was taken into custody because of his known friendship for General Kurt Von Schleicher.

Governmental quarters indicated that it was thought the Hohenzollern house was in no way implicated.

in wholesale fashion after a week end of violence which saw a number of their superiors summarily executed. Estimates of the arrests ranged from 100 to several hundreds, with official figures withheld.

Men accused of plotting against Hitler were arrested in storm troop groups in Berlin, Brandenburg, Bavaria, Silesia and in Pomerania. No death list was issued but it is expected that the number would far exceed the known 18.

President Paul von Hindenburg today made the Reichwehr (German Army) personally responsible for the safety of Vice-Chancellor Franz von Papen, threatening a state siege if he was victimized for his recent bold stand in criticizing some Nazi policies. A guard of special black shirt soldiers was delegated to insure Von Papen's safety.

The ultimate fate of Von Papen had become the burning question of the moment when his friend and patron, Von Hindenburg telegraphed thanks and gratitude to Chancellor Hitler today. Those executed in Saturday's ruthless "liquidation" included Werner Von Alvensleben, Von Papen's close friend Friedrich Von Tschirsky, Von Papen's adjutant, was said to have committed suicide and Hubert Von Bose, Von Papen's secretary, was said also to have suicided.

The determination of Hitler and his colleague to carry on ruthlessly was voiced in a radio speech by Dr. Joseph Goebbels, propaganda minister, in which he warned that "those who conspire against the state" are "playing with their own heads."

Leonard Stroud's Rodeo To Perform At Formal Opening Palo Duro Canyon

Associated Press AMARILLO, July 2.—Palo Duro Canyon, perfect picnic place and largest of the Texas state parks, will be opened formally on the Fourth of July.

With its rugged beauty, rivaling the grandeur of Grand Canyon, Palo Duro Canyon state park already has attracted more than Texas-wide attention and thousands from all sections of the Southwest are expected at the opening.

Hundreds of veterans in GOC camps, working under the direction of the state park board, have built a road seven miles long, extending through the floor of the canyon. This drive reveals the scenic wonder of Texas in all its novel, natural formations and beautiful colorings.

As a special attraction for the holiday opening, Leonard Stroud's congress of champions will stage a rodeo on the rim of the canyon. An admission price of 25 cents for children more than nine years old and 50 cents for adults entitles the celebration to a day's outing in the canyon and to attend the rodeo free.

Many camping sites, each with a water supply, have been established in the canyon. Palo Duro Canyon state park is 30 miles southwest of here and only 12 miles straight east of the city of Canyon.

DONNA of the BIG TOP by BEULAH POYNTER

BEGIN HERE TODAY

When Donna is injured by a fall from the trapeze Madeline arranges for her to be taken to GRANDFATHER SIDDAL'S farm to recuperate. To please her partner Donna pretends to be Madeline. She falls in love with BILL SIDDAL, Madeline's cousin, and though she is ashamed of deceiving Bill and Grandfather she is afraid to tell the truth.

Meanwhile Madeline, who has married CON DAVID, the animal trainer, is killed. Con knows of Donna's deception and decides to blackmail her. He comes to the nearby town and Donna agrees to meet him. She departs, telling Bill she is going to a neighbor's.

Donna keeps her appointment with Con and he threatens to cause trouble for her. She reaches home just as Bill has finished reading the anonymous letter. Donna tells him she was at the neighbor's. He knows she was not.

Next morning he goes to see Con who shows him the certificate of his marriage to Madeline. Bill thinks his wife has committed bigamy. During his absence Grandfather Sidral dies. Bill tells Donna he "knows the truth" and that he will leave immediately after the funeral.

CHAPTER XLV

Donna studied the contents of the clothes closet. What an accumulation of clothing she had—bungalow aprons, gingham dresses, her wedding finery. There was no need to take all that to New York. Her lips twisted as she smoothed the soft, silken folds of the garments she and Minnie had spent so much time making.

Her trunk containing her circus wardrobe, was in the attic. It was so heavy she doubted if she could move it alone, yet to ask Minnie to help would mean starting a train of questions Donna was in no mood to answer.

She would take the car, she decided, and find someone to drive her back from Lebanon. If she faced Bill again she would be sure to break down and plead for forgiveness and she wanted to keep what little self-respect she had. There was a train for Chicago at 6 o'clock. If she hurried she could catch it!

Once out of this house she would be able to put Bill out of her heart and life forever. He would divorce her, of course. Desertion was grounds for divorce.

If she remained at the farm until the will was read Bill would know more cause for bitterness against her. Perhaps, when the first hurt was over, he would contest the will and Con David's scheming would be ruined.

All of the other members of the household were down stairs—Minnie sobbing as though she had lost her nearest and dearest; Bill, hard and bitter and cold, feeling the loss of his grandfather scarcely at all in the face of his disillusion. No one heard the sound as Donna dragged the big trunk down the stairs from the attic or heard her moan of pain as the edge of it crushed down on her instep.

The pain sickened her so that she was afraid she was going to faint. Obviously she could not move the trunk further, certainly not down another flight of stairs. She had been foolish to think that she could. Her arms were not like steel now. She did not have the strength she once had, when the weight of her own body and Madeline's seemed nothing.

She decided to take only necessities in her traveling bag and leave a note asking to have the trunk shipped later. It could be delivered to one of the hotels in Lebanon and she could send instructions later where to have it forwarded. It might be some time before she would need it. She would have to do a lot of limbering up to make good in an act again. And bookings might not be easy to secure alone.

Alone—oh, God, how could she go on alone? When she stepped out of this house she would be leaving more than a husband behind. She would be leaving her soul, her heart—all that had made life livable.

She tried to harden herself against Bill. It had been unjust for him to take Con's explanation as final, giving her no chance to justify herself. All the months of her devotion had counted for nothing against the word of a stranger. Perhaps in time she could learn to hate him. Now only the agony of separation mattered.

Poor old Grandfather! Would he know that she was not with the mourners when they lowered him into his final resting place? Would he know she had crept out of the house like the thief she was? She had made the old man's last days happy and nothing could destroy the fact. But for her he would have known that the grandchild he still looked upon as a little girl had failed him.

"Some day," Donna sobbed aloud "some day, Bill Sidral, you'll understand and be sorry you've treated me this way. Some day you'll come to me for forgiveness and I won't give it. I can be hard and bitter, too. I'm going to forget you. I'm going to be the greatest aerial performer in the world! When my name is plastered on billboards in three sheets and twenty-four sheets and I'm acclaimed in Europe as well as here you'll wish you hadn't driven me away!"

Then, because fame meant so little to her, because a career was the last thing she wanted, she dropped on the floor beside the bed and, hugging Bill's pillow in her arms, moaned her love for him. Never again would her hands reach out in the night to touch him. Never again would she smooth his dark hair or kiss his cheek or hear him whisper, "What's the matter honey? Can't you sleep?"

"Oh Bill! Bill! If I'd never seen you—if I just didn't love you so much! Why didn't you love me as I love you? Why wasn't I honest with you? I'd have lost you before we married if I'd have told you the truth, but it wouldn't have been so hard then. It's my heart I'm leaving behind, and I can't stand it. I can't stand it!"

Suddenly, through her sobs, she heard Bill's voice in the hallway below. With a shudder she recognized the name he spoke. It was that of the undertaker. Donna sat tense, breathless, praying that when the others departed Bill would seek her. But the door closed with a slam and no steps mounted the stairs.

Suddenly, through her sobs, she heard Bill's voice in the hallway below. With a shudder she recognized the name he spoke. It was that of the undertaker. Donna sat tense, breathless, praying that when the others departed Bill would seek her. But the door closed with a slam and no steps mounted the stairs.

She dragged herself to her feet, bathed her swollen eyes and face and combed her disordered hair. She put on her hat and the heavy coat and mittens. Then, carrying the traveling bag, she descended the back stairs.

At the pantry door she hesitated, wondering what she would say to Minnie if the girl inquired where she was going. But Minnie was not in sight as she passed through the kitchen unnoticed.

The bobsled stood in front of the house where Bill had left it. Donna decided it was safer to take the car and also quicker. If there was an accident and she was killed her problem would be solved.

The sun had melted the drifts considerably and she manipulated the car more easily than she had anticipated. Not until she passed the Adams house did she remember that she had not written the note she intended to leave.

Well, she wouldn't go back. After all, why trouble a man who despised her? She would wait for the morning train and send a boy from the hotel for her trunk. Then she could take it with her wherever she went.

Wagons and machines had passed over the road since she had last traveled it and a dark ribbon was cut through the snow. She discovered, when she reached the public square, that she had plenty of time to catch the 6 o'clock train. She drove the car into the garage adjoining the Central Hotel and asked Ben Goddard, the owner, to see that it was returned to the Siddal farm.

"Going away? Goddard asked. "Yes. To Chicago. My Mr. Siddal couldn't drive me in. So I want you to take it back. "How's Grandpa? Feeling any better?"

She did not stop to think. "He's dead," she said dully. "Dead! Ain't that something sudden? I hadn't heard anything about it."

Too late she realized that she should have withheld the news. "He died today," she explained. "My land! That's too bad. It must be something awful important that's taking you to Chicago when your Grandpa has just died."

"It is. Will you send the car back right away, Mr. Goddard?" "Sure, sure. 'Nother dead?" "No."

"Spouse you're going to catch the 6 o'clock."

Feeling trapped, she said she was if she could get accommodations. To make good her word she walked toward the railroad station carrying her luggage. Obviously, unless she wanted a worse scandal than the one sure to break, she could not stay overnight at the Central Hotel.

How foolish she had been to have told about Grandpa! Of course Dr. Freeman and the undertaker would tell the news, but they were both at the farm.

There was a hotel at the depot but it catered to the sort of transients a respectable woman would avoid. There was nothing for her to do but catch the train or stay over night at the Commercial House.

Within sight of the little red brick building, the enormity of what had happened rushed upon her with greater force. Was she really going away, never to return? Going away from all that life held dear? Had it been only a few months since the day they carried her from the train, carried her into a paradise that could not last? Bill's stong brown arms had held her on the stretcher. Grandfather, smiling, his sightless eyes searching as though they could see, had stood on that platform to welcome her. Now Grandfather was dead and Bill worse than dead!

She fought the impulse to run in the opposite direction to so the car and drive back to the farm. Then a shrill whistle spat the air and the sound made Donna's decision. She began to run, stumbling blindly, hitting the heavy traveling bag against her legs. As the train drew to a standstill she reached the platform. There was no time to buy a ticket. A porter stepped down, lifted her luggage and helped her on the train.

"Pullman?" he asked. "Yes. To Chicago." (To Be Continued)

Amarillo Man Weaves Romance Into Rugs as Depression Hobby

By Associated Press
AMARILLO, Tex., July 2.—

Fred Welpton is weaving the romance of almost three-score years into hooked rugs and wall hangings.

Welpton, who has mushed across the snows of the northland, filed a gold claim on the Yukon, worked as lumberjack in the Pacific Northwest and served as a federal prohibition enforcement officer, now spends from six to 10 hours daily hooking rugs and decorative hangings.

The largest of his rugs is 9 1/2 by 7 1/2 feet. He claims it is the largest ever hooked by hand. It contains almost 100 pounds of rags and Welpton spent 14 months making it.

"This work is more fascinating than any adventure I ever had," Welpton said. "I have made three fortunes and lost them. I am now gathering up the loose ends and weaving them into something that will serve me as long as I live and my heirs after me."

Welpton first began hooking rugs as an antidote for the depression. He started by copying magazine covers and other designs for small rugs and hangings. He found he had a gift for choosing and matching colors.

"Now I am unable to give it up," he said. "I expect to spend the rest of my life at this sort of thing. It is a creative art so old it is new. There is practically no expense attached to it yet its possibilities are unlimited. It doesn't grow monotonous because every pattern—almost every stitch—is different. It is impossible to make two rugs alike and they are serviceable, therefore valuable."

There is sentiment attached to most of the material Welpton has used. A heavy blanket, which served him in the cold north, was used as a base for one of his larger hangings. Articles of clothing formerly worn by his mother, wife, sister, or close friends are hooked into various designs. He used all kinds of fabrics, weaving them in

Memphis Owls Drop Baseball Game To Pampa Roadrunners

ROADRUNNERS WIN BY 7-3 YESTERDAY

Clifford Stewart Is Driven From Box In Seventh Frame

Pampa's strong Danciger Roadrunners defeated the Memphis Owls yesterday afternoon 7-3 in a baseball game at Pampa.

Yesterday's game was the second time the Roadrunners have been victorious over the Owls this season, they having administered a defeat to the locals in an earlier game here.

Prior to the Memphis-Pampa clash yesterday, the Pampa team triumphed over Sayre, Okla., 11-0 in a seven inning fray.

Clifford Stewart, ace right-hander, started on the mound for Memphis and hurled a good game until the seventh, when he weakened and was relieved by Ables.

Pampa batsmen touched Stewart for 10 hits. Memphis batters gathered seven safe blows, four being for extra bases.

Memphis got away to a lead in the first inning when McBride doubled and scored on L. Marcum's long single. Marcum went to second on the throw-in.

The Roadrunners scored two runs in the fourth inning and five runs in the seventh. Memphis completed the scoring by pushing two across in the eighth.

The Owls had two on in the eighth, after having scored twice, when Moore hit into a double play to end the inning.

Pampa executed three double plays during the game.

"Whitey" Bacus of Estelline was one of the mainstays on the Roadrunner team, making a number of spectacular plays at left field and batting in the clean-up position. Bacus at one time brought the crowd to its feet when he made a running leap and caught a ball that seemed certain to be a triple.

Ernie Ward, a former player with the New York Yankees, played second base for Pampa. Ray Adams, a former Fort Worth Cat, played short stop for the Roadrunners.

L. Marcum and McBride led the hitting attack for the Owls. Marcum connected for two doubles and a single in four times up. McBride got two doubles in four times at bat.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR COACHING SCHOOL AT TEXAS TECH JULY 30

LUBBOCK, Tex., July 2.—An "all-American" staff of fourteen coaches will give their ideas on sports at the fourth annual coaching school, to be held at Texas Technological College opening July 30 and extending through two weeks. Two of the big favorites from last year have been requested by popular vote to return. These are Kinka of Michigan, the man who makes the short punt go, and Kline of Purdue, the teacher of the Notre Dame shift. Both of these men are looked upon as football mentors in America today.

Featuring the Warner system ...

MECHANICS AND 'THINS' TANGLE TODAY IN GAME AT FAIR PARK

After having dropped a close decision to the Memphis Barbers last week, the Memphis Mechanics tangle this afternoon with the local "thins."

Game time has been set at 6 o'clock. Play will be at Fair Park Field. No admission will be charged to the game.

The starting line-ups have not been announced as yet. However, it is expected that the game this afternoon will see brothers facing each other on the mound.

Ross Springer will probably start in the box for the Mechanics. His brother, Floyd, will likely get the starting call to hurl for the "thins."

The game is expected to be a close one and the general public is invited to attend.

FUN A-FISHIN'

BY JIMMIE DONAHUE Hat bands play an important part in trout fishing, and making the rounds of several streams this spring we found several clever anglers with original ideas.

Bands have been in use as a convenient place in which to stick flies since the dark ages, but there has been one objection—once the barb of the fly was inserted in the band, the angler ruined his whole day getting it out.

One practical fisherman seen this year had inserted a number of small safety pins in the band of his chapeau, fastening his flies to the pin through their eyes. Another, using smelted flies, had sewed numerous stitches in the band, inserting the barbs under the threads which ran across the surface of the ribbon.

Another we saw had fastened several tiny flap swivels in his hat, fixing the eyes of his flies to the catch of the snap.

For Stallion Supremacy

A special match race to decide the championship of the stallions will be run at North Randall track, Cleveland, July 4, between two of the greatest harness horses that ever lived. They are Vansandt, above, owned by I. W. Gleason, Williamsport, Pa., and Calumet Crusader, below, belonging to E. R. Harriman, New York. The former, with a 2:01 mile to his credit, is a quarter second faster than the latter. They will race three heats, winner of two to take a $2500 purse.

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK July 2.—As Charley Ruffing goes so Joe McCarthy sleeps. The New York manager puts few dents in the pillow when his club is going badly, and the red-head gave him several restless nights, not to say afternoons, on the first western trip. But the former coal miner is pumping the ball through there again, and Lefty Gomez will pitch them to the pennant.

They are particularly optimistic right now, with the collegians, Johnny Murphy and Johnny Broaca, helping them to fatten up at home, and Johnny Allen reporting that the soreness practically has left his arm.

Ruffing is one of the most interesting and important personalities from Nokomis figures to be a big ball of fire in the gallop down the stretch and with the original Murders' Row not what it used to be, either at bat or in the field, it is essential that he stand up.

Ruffing recently turned in a one-hit performance against Cleveland and came back with a five-hitter against the White Sox.

Ruffing Emulates Frank Merriwell The red-head's feat against the Indians was one of the finest on record. He really was entitled to a no-hit, no-run game, for the one blow charged against him came off the handle of Hal Trosky's shillalah, and was a fly that would have been snagged by most any outfielder but the Babe Ruth of 1934.

Ruffing is something of a Frank Merriwell. He hit a home run in the tenth inning after striking out 10 to beat Al Thomas and Washington, 1 to 0, in 1932, which he considered his finest baseball feat. He always has been exceptionally formidable against the Senators.

While Washington unquestionably will feel the loss of Joe Kuhel, whose broken ankle will keep him out for six weeks or more, Ruffing and the Yanks still believe the Senators are one of the two clubs they have to beat. Naturally, the other is Detroit.

Connie Mack says that a club that fails to repeat a flag-winning performance is not a great club, and the Washington array is making a brave effort to do this under almost unsurmountable obstacles.

From the outset, Joe Corbin's men have been hampered by an epidemic of injuries and illness in their catching department. They only now have Luke Sewall back in the game with any degree of regularity. The veteran Eddie Phillips had to be brought up from Chattanooga to fill in.

Senators In Race Despite Handicaps Rogers Hornsby remarked the other day that the rallying of the Washington club behind poor pitching was admirable.

The American League champions have remained in the race despite the spottiest kind of hurling, what with Alvin Crowder far below his 20-game form, and other former dependables staggering about. Then, just when a better than 700 clip had them overhauling the leaders, out went Kuhel, one of the main cogs in the most highly geared defensive infield machine in the American League.

The consensus is that it has been just as well for the Yankees and Tigers and the remainder of the league that the Washington club has been handicapped.

As things are, five clubs remain in the scramble, with two ambitious aggregations standing a chance of bringing the junior loop bunting west for the first time in 14 years. Detroit has given unmistakable evidence that it is going to be tough to shake off, and Cleveland has the pitching strength to stage a sustained drive at any time.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blevins of Amarillo visited Mrs. Blevins' parents, Judge and Mrs. A. C. Hoffman here yesterday.

CADDIES VICTOR OVER BAPTISTS SATURDAY

Game With Musicians Postponed Until Tuesday Evening

In Saturday's softball the Young Baptist dropped a decision, 6 to 5, to the Caddies in a contest that was out in the virtual ruin of the game.

The game ended in the seventh inning when Wallace, Baptist, attempted to steal home and was called out, since stealing is against softball rules. The game ended with the Baptists trailing.

The other game, between Musicians and the Baptists, was postponed because of the fact that the ball was demolished. It will be played tomorrow night at 9.

The managers and coaches of the team have decided that players participating in the game must be Baptists and Musicians, respectively. This is in order to treat everybody fairly and to end the confusion caused most of the games to date.

A check-up on team play at the end of the week, on Saturday's game, revealed that the Young Baptists had last place in league standing ahead of the Loafers in average.

NOVEL

Jane and Amy fall in love with the same man. Jane tricks him into an engagement - but he marries Amy. Furious, Jane flees to New York. Her flair for business soon makes her a success - but an affair with a married man almost wrecks her career. A frantic plea for help brings Amy, who adopts Jane's unwanted baby. Then Amy, in a dramatic scene, tells Jane: "Stay out of my life!"

Jane, of course, does nothing of the kind. Jealous of Amy's peace and happiness, she finally commits the one sin no woman will forgive. And in a powerful last chapter, Amy has a moment of strange revenge, when Jane's own daughter turns against her unknown mother - a climax that makes this Sophie Kerr's most dramatic romance.

A CHANCE TO ENLIVEN HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

OPPORTUNITY is knocking at Memphis' door in the form of a proposed lighted football field for night games—opportunity to revive interest in the sport locally and build another high school eleven of the calibre we once knew in these parts.

The junior Chamber of Commerce has taken upon its young and inexperienced shoulders the responsibility of selling some eight or nine hundred dollars worth of season football tickets for the coming fall, the money thereby raised to be used to underwrite a part of the expense of installing lights for the Cyclone

Experiences of many towns the size of Memphis with lighted fields have been highly pleasing. Night football has pushed more than one athletic council out of debt and made it possible for athletes of small schools to have the best of equipment. There's every reason to believe that what has been done in other towns can also be accomplished in Memphis. There's no question that night playing will increase the attendance here, and it is the belief of many that the lights will more than pay for themselves the first season.

The Democrat hopes that the people will respond generously to the campaign now being waged by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. The season football tickets they offer are good for six home games "under the lights." You'll pay more than $2.50 if you see each game separately. Buy your season tickets now, save a little money and at the same time help Memphis take another step forward.

AMERICA'S OLD DREAM, SECURITY FOR ALL

JUST how far the fall congressional elections will turn into a national referendum on Mr. Roosevelt's new program for social security is a matter for the political wiseacres to forecast.

At this distance, however, two things seem more or less evident.

First, the argument is likely to be over the way of reaching this goal, rather than over the wisdom of trying to reach it at all.

Second, the tentatively outlined program looks very much like a simple extension of the oldest and most tenaciously held dream in American life.

Security for the individual in America, as Mr. Roosevelt sees it, seems to call for three things: Productive employment, protection against misfortune, and proper housing.

Over the details of this program there is room for vast argument; over the way of putting it into effect there is even more. The most conservative capitalists and the reddest of radicals could endorse these general aims in complete accord, but they'd be apt to have a fine row trying to settle on the best way of attaining them.

Nevertheless, it is a fine thing to have this very general goal set up as an objective.

This kind of security is exactly the sort of thing that led most of our ancestors to come to the new world in the first place. They were under economic pressure in Europe; they felt themselves to be at the mercy of forces that they could never control; over here, in a new land, they hoped that they could construct a society in which human beings could have less fear of hardships, of poverty, and of hunger.

The belief in that dream has been responsible for most of the optimism which is so typical of the American spirit. We have felt, for more than a century, that we were somehow building a society here in which the common man would get a better break than he ever got elsewhere.

Seeking to protect the common man against unemployment, against accidents, and against traditional penury of old age, and trying to guarantee that he shall have a decent home to live in—what is this but an effort to make the old American dream come true?

or the next decade, at least, we shall be arguing the best way of doing this. Maybe we'll try Mr. Roosevelt's way and maybe we'll try somebody else's.

But there can be little doubt that in one way or another we shall do our utmost to make the dream come true.

A VERY STRANGE CASE, INDEED

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 The Democrat's Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Things your nation's capitol has been talking about since Congress went away from here:

CRIME—This seat of the Department of Justice, Secret Service, modern metropolitan police force, model city government, etc., is found to have a nice little crime record.

In the first three months of the year, it stood 45 per cent above the average of the 35 other cities of more than 250,000 inhabitants in number of crimes committed, in proportion to population.

The murder record was 25 per cent above average and the capital led the run of the pack by 50 per cent in burglaries and 20 per cent in robberies. It had a sub-average record on crimes against women and killings through criminal negligence.

DONOVAN—Developments since General Johnson's dismissal of John Donovan, president of the NRA employees' union, continue to make daily local news. The A. F. of L. organization of federal employes is fighting the "discrimination" case heard, assessing members for a special fund.

Donovan was assistant instructor of economic history at Columbia University when recruited by NRA, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate who won a New York Historical Society prize in 1931 with his "Textile History of New York State."

He worked his way through Columbia as night clerk, waiter bus boy, dish washer, and instructor and before that had been a railroad section hand, mule skinner, shipping clerk, and production efficiency expert in Worcester, Mass.

BARTENDERS—Thousands of customers and most bartenders begged the district commissioners to allow drinks to be mixed in plain view, instead of behind partitions, as regulations here now require. Customers have been getting some terrible concoctions. Bartenders, nevertheless, are proud they want to perform in public. But the commissioners said that would lead toward the old-fashioned saloon.

WOODRING—Two camps argue furiously whether Assistant Secretary of War Harry Woodring, former Kansas governor and smart politician, will and should escape with a whole skin from the House investigation of army contracts. The aviation crowd is wild because the committee, after hearing Woodring as to airplane purchases, recommended dismissal of Gen. Benny Foulois, chief of Air Corps. More will be heard about the part played by Woodring's friend, Ralph O'Neil, former Legion Commandant Jackson, former D. national committee outstanding lobbyist as to disposal plus underwear.

ALLEYS—A 50-year-old gains the beautiful slums appears to have. In recent years the Woodrow Wilson, Sen. Capper of Kansas, A. Delano—Roosevelt have been among those to eliminate the city ited alleys as places breed crime, disease delinquency. Now voted to clean them present alley homes poses.

BOOTLEGGERS—Liquor caches totaling fifty million gallons hooch, which lobby persuade the Treasury, are discounted.

Anyway, federal agents been able to find them they would have hoards so huge by. Their theory is that speculators had the they could get the promise legalization of penalty and tax, round up vast supply and sell it very prof.

Some of the liquor beer obtained and but probably nowhere much as claimed.

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
 Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

When you get to the period we call middle age, there are two systems of the body which demand your special attention—the circulation of the blood and the nervous system.

These two systems are most directly affected by diet and exercise. These are, therefore, the ones with which you should best assure yourself better health and greater freedom from pain and disease.

As I have frequently said, the human body is built with a great many factors of safety. These are especially important in relation to the circulation of the blood and the breathing apparatus.

If your heart breaks down, it is possible for it to recover and to become compensated. By "compensated," I mean, able to do the work that it is called on to do.

Even with a loss of a considerable amount of lung area, because of disease, many people live perfectly normal lives.

Thus a person with organs that have been damaged may yet be considered a healthy human being. When, however, the reserve power of the organs break down, the situation is serious and demands attention.

One of the most important changes brought about by modern civilization is the development of systems of transportation which have greatly lowered the amount of exercise available to most people.

Fifty years ago people walked a great deal. Today the motor car, the street car, elevators, trains and other means of transportation are making walking a lost art except for those who play golf.

A reasonable amount of exercise is beneficial for health. People whose lives are such as to interfere seriously with their getting an ordinary exercise, should arrange to walk a little each day to keep their organs at a higher functioning condition.

Walking in the open air is best because most of us, especially those who live in cities, do not get enough fresh air. One of the chief values of moderate exercise is to maintain the circulation of the blood and the elasticity of the blood vessels. An old proverb said, "If you rest, you rust."

The Washington, Pa., crematory was the only one in the United States until 1881.

makes it possible for any one with reasonable intelligence to assure himself of the daily consumption of all the foods that are necessary to maintain the best of health. These foods include enough fresh fruits and vegetables and enough milk, meat, and eggs to provide the body with suitable nutrition.

Moreover, knowledge of calories has become so widespread that any intelligent person with sufficient will power can control his weight.

The spread of inflammation concerning these simple facts of hygiene is certain to add to the efficiency and usefulness of life during middle age.

Here's Labor Saving Summer Schedule For Busy Mothers

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON Summer items for the busy mother doing her own housework and looking after her own children: Dismantle the house as you would for a summer camp. Put bric-a-brac away in the top of a closet or in the attic, or even in the cellar. Use paper napkins and paper towels as much as possible. They are cheap. And perhaps picnic plates won't offend your idea of propriety. Bought by the hundred they are inexpensive. They save soap, labor and nerves. If the floors are smooth enough to keep their splinters to themselves, take up rugs. Perhaps you have small rugs to throw down beside beds—a la cottage. Cut Down Cooking Budget fire in the stove. This does not mean that cold food is to be eaten—it shouldn't, except as an extra—but anything that takes hours to roast or boil can be dispensed with on very hot days. Triple container kettles use only one burner. The initial cost is saved in fuel eventually. Keep window-shades down to the sill on the sunny sides of the house. Have on hand plenty of fly-swatters. Get up at six and rest in the afternoon. The early morning is usually cool even in the hottest weather. Iron as little as possible. Sheets can be folded and smoothed with the hand. Sheets make fine summer bedspreads, too, by the way, and are not so heavy to wash. Curtains are not needed except in bedrooms. Pin them back at night to let in air. See that the baby has the coolest room in the house. Avoid Too Much Sweets Children may have sweets such as pure candy and ice-cream and plain cookies or cakes. But don't let them load up. Between-meal mixtures of pickles, candy, ice-cream cones, bananas, cold lemonade and sundry make them sick. Taken alone, or with a meal, any of them are all right, provided the child is well. But if you want to avoid tummy aches and upsets turn thumbs down on heterogeneous munching in hot weather. No cold ice-water. Cooled water (bottles in the ice-box) is better for children. Ten-cent sun hats. Immediate attention to all scratches, cuts and sores. Summer is harvest time for infections. Baths before bed-time. Hands and faces washed often to cool them off. Sticky hands make children cross. Don't worry because you can't be two places at once. There is always another. Make Children Rest Make the children "rest" each afternoon even if they don't nap. Keep them inside as much as possible when the sun is hammering down. My thermometer said 110 the other day when I put it in the sun. Children can't stand that. Put the dog in the laundry tub often. And please clean his dish every day. Plenty of water in his basin to drink. Don't let the radio blare. It only makes it hotter. Wrap up garbage in paper before it goes into the can. Keep the can as far away from the house as possible. Set traps for mice. Make the children help in the morning. (COPYRIGHT, 1934, NEA SERVICE, INC.) CARD OF THANKS We are deeply grateful for the many acts of kindness and sympathy accorded by friends and neighbors during our recent bereavement. Your words of comfort and deeds of kindness did much to alleviate the heart pain. May God in his mercy and wisdom bless each of you. W. B. Scott, Mrs. W. T. Grider.

MacMILLAN ACCEPTS POSITION

Russell MacMillan accepted a position with the Gate City Creamery here this morning. He succeeds W. E. Packer, who went to Childress, where he will be employed with the Gate City company. Major Wood, H. H. Lindsey, Bryan Reynolds and W. D. Orr left today for a fishing trip and outing to be spent at Gunnison, Colo. Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Lewallen's of Houston arrived yesterday for a visit with Mrs. Lewallen's sister, Mrs. Jack Boone. Lindsey Hoffman of Berger spent the week-end here with his parents, Judge and Mrs. A. C. Hoffman.

Letters From The People

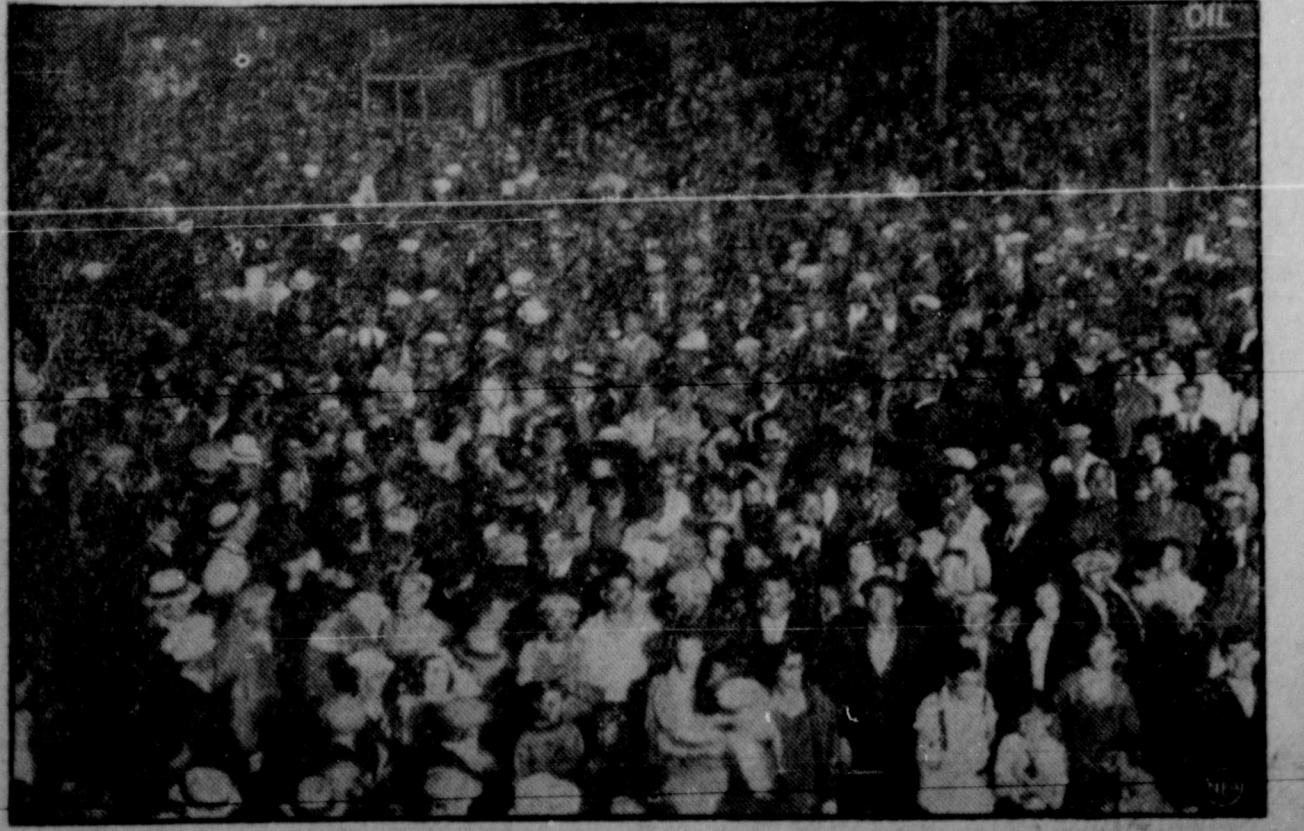

Mr. Lyman E. Robbins, City. Dear Mr. Robbins: Hurrah for you! Your editorial entitled, "The People Strike At Last," which appeared in Sunday's Democrat, is deserving of the commendation of everybody who is fed up on cheap, tawdry moving pictures. Like you, I have wondered how long motion picture patrons would stand for the inane, inartistic, in decent, intolerable movies issuing from Hollywood. It looked as though the film industry sought to cater to all the morons, imbeciles and sex perverts in the country instead of producing something that would appeal to those whose intelligence craved something more edifying and entertaining than the delineation of the life habits of those whose morals tend to be of the barnyard variety. Incidentally, it seems somewhat ironic to me that it was finally left to the leaders of the Roman Catholic church to take summary action against Hollywood's craze for filth and slime, issued to the movie public in the name of art. What will the Protestant pulpithummers whose indoor sport is to bait the Roman Catholics have to say to that, I wonder? Personally, I like to go to the movies—when there is something worth looking at. But I have often left the theatre, after viewing the smut and slime and lust there depicted, vowing never to return. Your editorial of Sunday is deserving of the commendation of everybody who stands for decency and intelligence in the field of movie entertainment. Sincerely yours, John Angus MacMillan.

Serious Illness—

(Continued from page 1) Papen, closest friend of von Hindenburg in the present government was practically under arrest in his own private residence, which he had been forbidden to leave. A thorough investigation of the storm troopers, found under arrest, which included the Berlin special staff guard, was promised by Goering. He said the public will be thoroughly advised of the results of the investigation. Reports from the country estate of President von Hindenburg at Neudeck stated that no immediate crisis is feared and indicated that the remarkable vitality of the veteran field marshal once more is baffling his physicians. Rumor 'Political Will' When reports of the calling together of physicians reached Berlin the rumor was quickly revived that von Hindenburg had written a "political will" naming the conservative von Papen as his successor and enjoining the army, always faithful to the president, to help him if necessary. Von Papen's exact position was not clear, but it was considered significant that while he—the theoretical second in command in the Reich—was ordered to remain in his house, Hitler held a long conference with Dr. Joseph Goebbels, propaganda minister, and Herman Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia. Goering's position appeared to be closer to Hitler than ever since his personal assistance yesterday in cleaning up the mutineers among the storm troops. Zelma Swinney of Wichita Falls is here for a visit with her aunt, Mrs. E. H. Boaz. John M. and T. H. Deaver left yesterday for a fishing trip in Colorado. When Hitler visited Mussolini recently, one of the first things Il Duce did was have his guest inspect the Italian army—just as a friendly gesture, you know.

Rioting Mobs Halt Milwaukee Trolley Service

This was the scene as a mob of 20,000 paralyzed street car service in Milwaukee, stoning cars, yanking trolleys, and battling police who sought vainly to quell rioting in the strike of trolley and bus operators and electricians. A beleaguered car is seen in the background. A score of policemen and rioters were sent to hospitals.

Stock Exchange Control Board Is Created By F. D. R.

By Associated Press WASHINGTON, July 2. — President Roosevelt tonight named a five-man commission, dominated by four liberal exponents of stringent regulation, to administer the Stock Exchange Control Act. The appointees were Joseph P. Kennedy, New York financier; George C. Matthews, Wisconsin, Federal Trade Commissioner; James M. Landis, Mass., Federal Trade Commissioner; Robert E. Healy, Chief Counsel of Trade Commission; and Ferdinand Pecora, Counsel for Senate Banking Committee, who had charge of the committee's long investigation of stock exchange practices.
