County Cotton Allowable Set At 31,556 Bales

HALL IS RANKED 25TH COUNTY IN STATE

Far Above Any Other
In This Section;

Hall county's allowable tax-free cotton production this fall under the Bankhead Cotton Control Bill has been set at 31,556 bales, according to dispatches from Washington last night.

This figure puts Hall county 25th in the state in cotton production and far above any counties in this section of the state. The total allowable for the state is 2,913,744 bales.

10,000,000 Bales
According to the Associated Press, the 10,000,000 bales fixed in the act as the maximum crop which may be marketed without paying a tax of 50 per cent of its market value were distributed among the 19 cotton states and the 1,000 cotton-producing counties, according to their average production during the years 1928-1932.

The act provides, however, that if, in any of those years, production for a particular county was materially reduced because of drought, storms, insects or other natural causes that year should be dropped in figuring the average.

Below State Quota
The total of county quota is 90 per cent of the state quota, the remaining 10 per cent being held in reserve for distribution to producers who are entitled to allotments but are ineligible to receive them under the normal procedure, officials said.

The Associated Press also states that while the act is in terms of 500-pound net weight bales, the county allotments by bales were calculated on the basis of 478 pounds per bale of cotton. The net effect of this change raises the total production of standard bales under the act to about 10,540,600.

12th Bomb Found In Sinister Plots Of Paris Madman

PARIS, June 22.—The 12th bomb in the sinister campaign of terror by "the judges of hell" was found today in a post office with mail taken from a box in a populous workers' division.

After several days respite from the bombs, police had thought that the criminal they call a madman had been scared off.

Resumption of the deliveries has revived widespread fear throughout all of Paris.

Authorities are convinced that some insane person, brooding over the Stavisky scandal, is responsible for the fiendish campaign in which several workers have been injured.

DONNA of the BIG TOP

by BEULAH POYNTER

BEGIN HERE TODAY
When Donna is injured by a fall from the trapeze Madeline arranges for her to be taken to GRANDFATHER SIDDAL's farm to recuperate. To please her partner Donna pretends to be Madeline. She falls in love with BILL SIDDAL, Madeline's cousin, and though she is ashamed of deceiving Bill and Grandfather she is afraid to tell the truth.
Meanwhile Madeline marries CON DAVID, circus animal trainer, and takes part in the animal act.
Amos Siddal has a stroke.
In New Orleans Madeline goes into the cage alone with the Bengal tiger. The tiger springs and she is killed. Renfro discharges Con. He is unable to get work and decides to go to the Siddal farm.
From the nearby town he sends a note to Donna. She agrees to meet him the next afternoon.
Mrs. Planter learns of this and writes an anonymous letter to Bill. Donna tells Bill she is going to a neighbor's and sets out to keep the appointment with Con.

CHAPTER XXXVII

Nothing could have fired Con David's desire to see Donna quite so much as her reluctance to meet him. After he had learned from Madeline that Donna had not been married to Bill Siddal at the time of his own marriage to Madeline, Con had convinced himself that, in spite of her renures, Donna had really been in love with him. He assured himself that if he had remained single Donna would have become his wife.
Madeline had been right when she had said that Donna's great attraction for Con was due to the fact that she had refused his attentions so frequently. The element in the small boy that makes him want what is forbidden was strong in Con. While his principal reason for coming to Lebanon was to secure the property that would have been his wife's by inheritance, there was still a hope that the only woman who had ever caused his heart to beat more quickly would find him more attractive now and more desirable than in the days past.
It did not occur to him that Donna might fear him. What she had said over the telephone flattered his vanity. If she was afraid to meet him it must be true that her husband was jealous of him. If Siddal was jealous, he must something about Con and he could have learned of him by only one means—through Donna. That meant she had not forgotten him.
Perhaps Donna was afraid to trust herself with Con because he might arouse an affection she was trying to crush. This thought pleased him greatly. As he shaved and dressed meticulously for the meeting he visioned Donna in the days when he had first known her. Small, lithe and exquisitely beautiful, he had thought her. The arrogant way in which she carried her head with its aureole of flaming curls, the perfect symmetry of her body, her daring in the ring, and her utter indifference to the admiration of men had all attracted him.

Though the two girls, Donna and Madeline, had looked much alike, there had been a distinction about Donna that always made her partner appear drab and colorless when the two were together. From the very beginning Con had doubted the statement that the girls were sisters, though no one else in the troupe had seemed to do so.
It did not seem credible to Con, who had spent almost his entire life under the 'big top' that members of the same family should not only show such different traits of character but that one should be an accomplished aerialist, skilled in every trick of her profession, while the other, though not without ability, was obviously new to the circus.
Vividly he recalled the day when the two girls had joined the show. Renfro's headquarters were in Virginia and until the season before Con had housed his animals with Renfro's. The showman had been disappointed by two European performers who had failed to keep an engagement, and had answered an advertisement in a theatrical publication. Photographs accompanied the letter of application, and Renfro had shown them to Con. "They're good-looking, aren't they?" Renfro had said. "The Gabriel sisters. I remember there used to be a Val Gabriel in your line, Con. Maybe you knew him. I think he was killed by a lion."
"Yes. He was a headliner. Wife was a trapeze performer."
"Wonder if these girls are his kids. Seems to me I heard he left a family."
Con had studied the pictures and had advised Renfro to hire the sisters. Soon after that the girls arrived at headquarters, after concealing some small-time vaudeville dates.

When a belle is attached to a buoy there's danger ahead

Though Donna had admitted the relationship to Val Gabriel, neither girl offered any other information about themselves. But their act had made good. The "big top" was small enough, the circus intimate enough so that audiences could take note of the girls' youth and beauty. Madeline and Donna would have succeeded on that score, even if they had been less clever.
From the first day of their meeting in the huge enclosed grounds of the headquarters Con had been definitely conscious of Donna. Though everyone was busy—and he most of all, with a couple of new cats to break in—he found moments in which he had endeavored to win her regard.
The fact that she had obviously sought to avoid him had piqued his interest, and by the time the circus opened two weeks later he had known that he was in love with her.

He supposed he was still in love with her and would always be. His marriage to Madeline, her death and his nervous reaction were only episodes, interludes between the really important events of his life.
He found himself as impatient to see Donna now as he had been impatient for the winter months to pass during the years he had known her, when he counted the weeks and days until they would meet again.
Ambition leaped into flame once more. If Donna did care for him—even if her affections were but luke warm—he could convince her that she was wasting her beauty and talents in a place like Lebanon. A dead town and a dismal farm. How had she been able to stand it as long as she had? Divorce was so easy these days. With Donna as his wife, they would be able to do anything! There was no limit to the success they might achieve!

Grandfather Siddal's money was forgotten for the time. Into Con's imagination floated all the rosy, dreams he had once pictured for Madeline—an engagement with a European circus, visits to all the famous cities in the world, his name—and Donna's—featured above all the others. He would build a new act, more daring and more sensational than any the world had ever seen. And, above all, Donna would be with him. They would have their triumph together.
Perhaps the discouragement and hardships Con had known in past months had done something to his usual hard-headed common sense. He had faced disappointments for so long that now, for a time at least, he was seeing things as he wished them to be, forgetting everything that might balk his plans.
He was unaware of the glittering eyes of Mrs. Planter, hidden in the hallway but watching him eagerly, as he made his way to the office. None of the time Con had spent before the mirror was wasted on Mrs. Planter. Swiftly she took in the details of his appearance and even caught a whiff of the scented lotion he had used.
Out on the street, he inquired of a small girl who was on her way home from the butcher shop what direction he should take to reach the Baptist cemetery.

Receiving the information, he set out with a jaunty, care-free stride. He had noticed the first dancing snow flakes from the hotel window. They were coming down faster now—the great, feathery flakes filling the air. Con, who was in no mood to think of their beauty, pulled his up-turned coat collar more closely about his throat and bent his head against the wind.
The child had told him to walk six blocks and then turn to the left. The cemetery was a good 10 minutes' walk from the hotel. By the time Con arrived there it was snowing in earnest. A glittering mantle of white lay like a blanket over the mounds of earth, fir trees, sleeping rose bushes, monuments and tombstones in the old graveyard. A premature dusk had settled between the trees through which the wind howled as though a wandering soul, loosed from its tomb, were moaning its plea for a resting place.

"This is a hell of a spot to meet anyone," Con muttered aloud. "I hope she gets here pretty soon."
He shivered with the cold and wet. He looked about for some sort of shelter and, to bolster up his spirits that had dropped with the eeriness of the place, lighted a cigaret. But the wet snow extinguished the flame, so he stood whistling dolefully, his body braced against a mausoleum, his hat pulled far down on his forehead.
There was not another person in sight and the stillness and loneliness began to get on Con's nerves. Weird stories he had read in the past, tales of murder and vampires, flashed through his memory and did nothing to add to his cheeriness and comfort. What could be keeping Donna? Why didn't she come?
Then he saw her—a slim, hesitant figure wearing a close, dark hat over her bright hair and a rough tweed coat pulled about her. She moved cautiously, peering through the driving snow, stumbling a bit as her heels sunk into mounds of it.

Con did not move. He waited until she was within arms' reach. Then he stepped from the shadows and touched her arm. Donna screamed in a kind of terror and he laughed.
"It's me, Donna," he said. "Who did you think it was—a ghost?"

WIDER TREAD OF FLATTER CONTOUR

MORE TOUGHER RUBBER

GUM-DIPPED HIGH STRETCH CORDS

DEEPER NON-SKID

MORE THAN 50% LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE

SAFEST TIRE FIRESTONE EVER BUILT

THE New Firestone High Speed Tire for 1934 was built to give you the same dependable service it provided for the 33 drivers who started in the torturous 500-mile grind at Indianapolis May 30.

This new tire has a wider tread of flatter contour, deeper non-skid, more and tougher rubber, giving you more than 50% longer non-skid mileage.

Besides being Safety Protected on the outside it is Safety Protected on the inside. Eight additional pounds of pure rubber are absorbed by every one hundred pounds of cords.

This additional rubber is so placed that it surrounds every cotton fiber inside every cord in every ply. This is accomplished by soaking the cords in liquid rubber by a Firestone patented process. This patented process, Gum-Dipping, is not used in any other tire built.

Heat caused by internal friction of cotton fibers destroys tires—causes separation and blowouts.

Gum-Dipping counteracts friction and heat—provides greater adhesion and binds the cotton and rubber together into one cohesive unit of greater strength, assuring car owners of the greatest Safety, Protection and Economy that it is possible for human ingenuity to build into a tire.

The most amazing proof of this extra strength, safety and dependability is the fact that every one of the 33 drivers at Indianapolis chose and bought Firestone High Speed Tires. Race drivers KNOW tire construction—they will not risk their lives or chance of victory on any other than Firestone.

When the gruelling race started, motors roared, crowds cheered, speeds increased to 105 miles an hour—yes, to 150 miles on the straightaways.

At these terrific speeds the cars plunge into the treacherous turns—tires are braced against the scorching brick track—so hot the tires fairly smoke at times—they give—yield and stretch—every conceivable force works to tear the tire to pieces, yet Firestone High Speed Tires "come back" on the straightaways. Not once during the entire race did a tire fail—not one of the 132 tires on the cars gave way to endanger the lives of the drivers.

Surely this is the most amazing proof ever known of Extra Strength, SAFETY and dependability. Call on the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store nearest you TODAY. Equip your car with New Firestone High Speed Tires for 1934.

Note how rubber in Firestone Tires clings to the high stretch Gum-Dipped cords. This greater adhesion is made possible by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping.

Note how the rubber pulls away from cords not Gum-Dipped. Regardless of the number of cord plies in tires not built with Gum-Dipped cords, friction and heat will separate the plies—very often causing blowouts.

Only in Firestone Tires, spinning, counteracted by Gum-Dipping.

The doubles championship match will be played on the same afternoon. One more match is to be played in the doubles bracket, with the No. 1 team of Burks and Eugene McElreath meeting J. D. Griffin and Johnsey in the semi-final of the upper bracket. This match is slated for decision this afternoon.

Other Winners Yesterday The winner of this match goes against Rabb Harrison and Russell E. Baldwin Sunday afternoon in the three-out-of-five game final. Should the No. 1 team be upset today, the title bout will be called at the same time of the singles battle. If not the doubles will follow the singles, with Burks appearing in both contests.

Baldwin, in singles consolation, and the team of Hubert Dennis and Harry Delaney, in doubles consolation, also reached finals of their divisions in yesterday's play.

Baldwin went into the finals of the singles consolation by defeating Dennis, 6-1, 6-4. Three matches remain in the upper bracket before his final opponent is named, and it is likely the championship of this division will not be decided Sunday. In the upper bracket Delaney meets Max Nail and Harrison opposes Griffin, with the winners battling for the final position.

To End Sunday Dennis and Delaney found Russell MacMillan and Allen Grundy stubborn opponents but managed to eke out a straight set victory in the doubles consolation battle, winning 6-4, 9-7.

Nail and Carl Nuhn are slated to go against Oren and Hillyer either this afternoon or tomorrow to determine the final opponent of the Dennis-Delaney combination. The final match is not likely to be played Sunday, set as the final day of the tournament, but will be decided early next week if the match is not arranged for Sunday.

Sharkey, "Forgotten Man," hasn't time he emerged victorious. Deep down, buried somewhere, where not even his intimates are permitted to peep, Sharkey blames Dempsey for the unpopularity that was his when he held the championship. He bitterly recalls that night at the Polo Grounds when he was having it all his own way until Dempsey fouled him and was allowed to get away with it.

Sharkey Remembered—Well! It was outside Mike Jacobs' ticket office in the heart of the White Light district. Dempsey met Sharkey face to face on the street. His greeting was the usual Dempsey type of welcome.

And with both hands in a simultaneous motion he let two imaginary blows go, one well below the belt and the other on the chin. That was the famous double blow which started so much controversy after their fight. The victory won Dempsey a return match with Gene Tunney, which, incidentally drew the richest resin receipt on record, $2,658,660.

Powerful Clubs Are Lined Up For Free Baseball Tilt The two most powerful baseball clubs in the county—the Memphis Owls and Turkey Turks clash at Fair park here Tuesday afternoon in one of the feature events of the county's 44th anniversary celebration, it was announced today.

Slated as a regular feature of the day, the game will start at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. There will be no admission charge, and with hundreds of visitors here on that day, the park is expected to be packed to capacity.

Strong Lineups The fact that no admission charge is being made does not indicate that two weak clubs will go into the fray. The expense of the game is being covered by local business men who are staging the entire celebration, and since they will appear before a huge crowd, the teams are anxious to present as powerful arrays as possible.

Need Little Improvement Played early in the season, on April 28, the Owls found the Turkey nine powerful in every defensive position, but their pitchers weakened and the Owls brought in four runs, in each of the fourth and fifth innings.

With this defect eliminated, the Turks should be able to give the Owls a tussle without changing other departments, for the defense played errorless baseball and almost equaled the Owls on base knocks, getting eight hits that included a home run, triple and two doubles.

The committee requested that in case both years could not be dropped that at least the year 1930 be omitted. Had both years been dropped the allotment was figured here at 30,000 bales, and with the omission of only 1930, the allotment was figured at 30,000 bales.

TRouble Threatens in 'The Flats'

YESTERDAY we received a warning that the "lid is about to be blown off" in the negro settlement here. According to our informer, who "never goes down in the flat 'less I carries my protection," trouble has been brewing for some time and all but reached a climax during the June "Teenth" celebration.

The boy who gave out the information stated that the killing of a negro Monday afternoon was only an example of what is likely to happen unless some precautions are taken to prevent further disorder.

"Listen to what I'm a 'telling' you," he said.

"Less something's done, there's going to be a number of killings in them flats befo' next fall."

He said "the flats are sittin' on dynamite."

The reason for the brewing trouble is hard feelings between a number of negroes caused by too much "runnin' around." The trouble, he said, is apt to break into a general uprising unless the undercurrent of feeling is subdued before something sets off the fire-works.

The boy said that it was useless for the negroes who sought protection to turn to the law. "They don't know how serious the situation is," he stated.

The trouble that led to the killing of one negro Monday was caused by the stealing of gifts that another negro presented to "his girl" and a subsequent argument, we were told.

We do not know how serious the trouble is nor if it were being exaggerated for our benefit, but the matter should be given serious consideration and every precaution should be taken to prevent trouble among the negroes that would endanger the lives of citizens of the city.

While outbreaks and trouble have been experienced in a number of surrounding counties, Memphis has been fortunate in getting along splendidly with its negro population, and every precaution should be taken to continue this happy situation.

MOTHERS MAY WELL BE PROUD OF TASKS

THE old folks, particularly the mothers, can get quite a bit of satisfaction out of the report, just released at the convention of the American Medical Association in Cleveland, that the breast-fed baby has 10 times more chance for life than one brought up on artificial feeding; that it has 50 per cent greater resistance to all forms of disease.

Such satisfaction would lie in the knowledge that here, at last, science recognizes a fact that had been known to mothers long before infant feeding was put on anything like a scientific basis.

The report of the physicians was the result of a survey among 20,000 children in Chicago from 1934 to 1929. Nearly 50 per cent of these were breast-fed; a little more than 40 per cent were partially breast-fed, and the rest were on an entirely artificial diet.

It was discovered, as the children became subject to various types of illness, that the proportion of those affected rose as their tendency toward artificial feeding went up. And so did deaths among the infants.

And the report of this interesting study concludes: "Obviously, therefore, if we hope to decrease further the infant mortality of this country, it must be done by encouraging breast feeding."

What a glorious tribute to old-fashioned motherhood! The motherhood that took its duties seriously and that paid its obligations to infancy as Nature intended it should!

There was a short time, during the last decade or two, when there seemed to be a fad for artificial feeding; when young mothers sought every which way to avoid the burdens of breast feeding, at least partially; when to feed a child at the breast seemed to be a sign of Victorianism.

Fortunately, however, this mode is passing and the doctors are encouraging mothers to recognize their natural relationship to their children.

Artificial feeding, to be sure, will be necessary in many cases where mothers are not in position to furnish the necessary food for their babies.

But, at any rate, it should be resorted to only when the doctor prescribes it.

TRAGEDY IN THREE ACTS

PLACE—Europe

TIME—Post-War Era

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBAIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine
When your doctor puts you on a diet, he fits the food you need to you just as your tailor does a new suit of clothes. But even if you don't go on a diet, there are some general facts that apply, exactly as clothing in general applies.
In the first place, it is known that certain foods are much more indigestible than others. Persons who complain of indigestion usually find that the trouble is due to cabbage, apples, tomatoes, milk, chocolate, lettuce, coffee, strawberries, eggs, meat, cucumbers, fats, radishes, cheese, cauliflower, peppers, prunes, oranges, and salmon.
This would seem to include practically all the foods that you can eat, but the interesting fact is that some of these foods may be just right for some people, but invariably give trouble to others.
One interesting fact that has recently been established about disease is the necessity for balancing the diet even of a sick man whose selection of foods has to be restricted.

In other words, even if a diet has to be selected for a certain illness, the doctor must be sure that the patient is getting all the necessary substances, including mineral, vitamins, and necessary salts.
Another interesting fact in connection with nutrition is the kind of superstitions that have existed among medical men concerning the diets. For instance, there's the statement "avoid fried and greasy foods." Actually, food properly fried by immersion in fat is not indigestible.
Well-made pie crusts and pastry is not necessarily indigestible. There are some who may react to certain foods because of a special susceptibility and for these persons foods fried in such fats are sure to be indigestible.
It is a common belief that red meats are bad for some people. Actually, however, red meat is no worse than white meat. Meat has been a food for man for thousands of years, and it is usually well digested.
It is now recognized that the activity of the bowel can be quite well regulated through suitable diet. Persons with excessive looseness of the bowel should have diets with a small amount of residue, so that the lower end of the bowel will have little work to do.

In such diet, meat, rice, sugar, toast, boiled eggs, butter cream, gelatin and rich broths are especially useful.
On the other hand, patients whose bowels are not sufficiently active can take a diet with a little more cellulose or residue, including figs, whole wheat bread, raw fruits, green vegetables, salads, celery, nuts, and prunes.
If, however, the digestion is not good it may be necessary to add a certain amount of indigestible oil or bulky substances to the diet to aid action.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
The Democrat's Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON, June 22.—Today isn't exactly Christmas, but your correspondent must report at once about the Jingle Bells Committee, because he has just obtained the lowdown on it.

I forgot the official name for it, but it's known as the Jingle Bells Committee throughout the interior Department, because it's the departmental committee handling the reindeer problem in Alaska.

The fate of 50,000 reindeer depends on its long and frequent deliberations.

Reindeer are the meat supply of the Alaskan natives and the problem arises because a private company claims title to most of the animals. The villagers claim title to many of them and, since the deer roam free over the ranges, nobody can tell which reindeer is whose.

The company tries to round up the reindeer every year and brand them, but in roundups 40 per cent of the little does and fawns are crushed or otherwise done to death, so what the heck?

Is there going to be a New Deal for reindeer and the natives who haven't any money and must live on deer meat? You bet! The good old Jingle Bells Committee is fixing it up so Uncle Sam will buy out the private company, let the reindeer roam untagged, and allow each village to kill all it needs for food.

The company can be bought out cheap—after it's audited—because it's in bad shape, since low beef prices ruined its market for reindeer meat in the United States.

There are too many reindeer in Alaska, anyway. The government introduced the first reindeer 30 years ago and they multiplied at incredible speed. Then they got mixed up with the larger caribou and grew to enormous sizes.

The Jingle Bells Committee plans a federal corporation which will have title to all the reindeer, with natives on the board of directors—including a few Eskimos. (PWA will pay the bill.)

Salad meals are the order of summer days because they may be at the same time hearty and light.

The combination of meat and vegetables in hearty salads is fine for summer because it helps to effect a balanced diet. Fruits also may be combined with meats or fish with good results. The vegetable or fruit acts as a filler for the salad and supplies mineral content and ballast in the diet.

The following salad can be varied in several ways, as for instance. Neat cubes of veal and matchlike pieces of carrots substituted for the beans and tongue.

Summer Salad

One and one-half cups cold cooked beans, 1 cup cold cooked ham, 1 cup cold cooked tongue, Bermuda onion, green pepper.

Cut ham and tongue in pieces the same size as the beans. Mix and add 2 tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice and 4 tablespoons salad oil beaten with 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Cover and let stand on ice for an hour or longer. When ready to serve drain from dressing. Wash pepper and cut in rings, removing seeds and white pith. Peel onion

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Blackberries, cereal, cream, scrambled eggs, graham muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Summer salad, toasted muffins, strawberry tapioca pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER: Breaded veal cutlets, creamed carrots, stuffed tomato salad, cherry and rice pudding, milk, coffee.

and cut slices. Let stand in iced salt water for ten minutes. Drain and separate into rings. Pile alternating slices of onion and green pepper one above another on a leaf of lettuce. Fill this little pepper and onion cup with the salad mixture and mask with mayonnaise.

Liver and Cabbage Salad

Liver and cabbage salad is unusual and delicious. You will need one cup diced cooked liver, 2 tablespoons minced cooked bacon, 1 cup diced celery, 2 cups shredded crisp cabbage, French dressing, mayonnaise, curly endive.

Marinate liver and bacon in French dressing for one hour. A few drops of onion juice may be added to the dressing if wanted. Add celery and cabbage and mix lightly. Serve on a bed of curly endive and top with mayonnaise.

Sweetbread Salad

Sweetbread salad can take the place of chicken salad for party affairs and is easier and quicker to prepare unless you use canned chicken. The sweetbreads are soaked in cold salted water for one hour, simmered in salted acidulated water for twenty minutes and then blanched in cold water. Remove all membrane and connecting tissue and cut in neat dice. Two cups prepared sweetbread.

'COTTON FREAK' DISPLAYED

HERE BY W. L. STEPHENS
A second "freak" cotton growth was found and brought into The Democrat office yesterday. W. L. Stephens, who resides five miles west of Memphis, found a last-year's stalk that had again taken root and grown leaves. It was found on the farm of W. C. Dickey. This is the second that has been displayed this year. The growth is said to be caused by the mild winter that did not kill the stalk. This is common in South Texas, it was said, but seldom happens this far north.

ATTEND Y. W. A. SESSION

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Grundy, Mrs. W. Wilson and Miss Una Loard went to Wellington Wednesday evening to attend a Y. W. A. house party in session at the First Baptist church Wednesday evening and yesterday. The meeting was attended by about 60 members from different places. The program consisted of talks pertaining to the Y. W. A. work and Wednesday evening members of the Y. W. A. presented a pageant at the evening session.

2 cups shredded celery, 1-2 cup blanched and coarsely shredded almonds, 1 cup peeled and seeded white grapes, French dressing, mayonnaise, lettuce hearts.

Marinate sweetbreads in the French dressing made with a combination of lemon juice and tarragon vinegar. Let stand on ice one hour or longer. When ready to serve drain prepared materials. Add mayonnaise to make moist and serve in nests of lettuce hearts. Garnish with thin slices of pimento-stuffed olives.
