10 ARRESTED IN 'CLEAN-UP' BY OFFICERS

Sheriff's Department Attacks 'Dives' in Week-End Raids

Carrying out a threat to "clean up rat dives and bootlegging joints," Sheriff Joe Colvin and members of the sheriff's department made 10 arrests on charges of vagrancy and drunkenness Saturday night and Sunday.

Three charges of vagrancy were filed this morning in Justice of Peace court and two others were in the hands of County Attorney Carl Periman to be filed today. The three men who were charged this morning pleaded "not guilty" and their trials were set by Justice W. L. Wheat for Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons.

One fine of $50 and court costs assessed by Judge Wheat when one man pleaded guilty to a drunk charge. The man was returned to jail upon failure to pay fine.

A charge of "habitual drunkenness" was filed in county court this morning against one of the men arrested on the clean-up drive. Trial likely will be held this week.

Smallest fines assessed against white men this morning on pleas of guilty to drunk charges were $5 and court costs. Two negroes were arrested and each fined $1 and court costs on drunk charges.

Other arrests have been threatened by members of the sheriff's department "if these places are not closed immediately."

Sheriff Joe Colvin headed the series of drives and was assisted by Deputies J. R. Tarlington and B. Wilson and Constable J. K. Gibson.

Held Worth His $206,250 Salary

His annual salary of $206,250 is not too much to pay Walter S. Gifford, above, president of the A. T. & T., in the shrewd opinion of shareholders at the annual meeting in New York, one enthusiast even declaring Gifford worth more than that, in a chorus of eulogy of his direction of the corporation.

Over 200 checks for Hall County farmers on the two-cent payment are still outstanding, according to information from Mr. Jackson's office.

HOLIDAY TOLL OVER NATION SET AT 76

More Than 200 Are Hurt in Highway Accidents

The nation counted 76 dead and more than 200 injured in highway traffic accidents over the Easter holiday.

Maryland's toll of 19 was raised by the deaths of six young persons when their speeding automobile hit a parked truck near Poolesville. A 50-year-old farmer and the driver of the death auto was slightly injured when his automobile overturned twice as he tried to swerve.

Three people were killed and eight injured in week-end traffic accidents in Texas.

A five-year-old child and an 80-year-old man were felled in the paths of automobiles, and a 16-year-old high school student was crushed to death when he cranked a tractor in gear.

Capital Toll Hiked

The capital's traffic death toll for the year was raised to 37 with the deaths of two persons, one as his automobile hit a telephone pole, another the victim of a hit-run driver.

SOIL EROSION PROGRAM IS DELAYED

Emergency Work Is Held Up Here This Morning

Farmers and landowners this morning continued to make application for federal funds for listing of lands to prevent soil erosion by winds, in spite of delays by the county committee to approve applications filed Saturday.

Members of the county committee named Saturday by County Agent James A. Jackson were not in session this morning and commodity orders cannot be issued until applications are approved by county committeemen, according to Judge A. C. Hoffman, county relief administrator.

Local difficulties are expected to be ironed-out by tomorrow, however, and listing of lands in this county will likely be underway by Wednesday and Thursday, officials believe.

Approximately 10,000 acres in Hall County will be listed or cross-furrowed by landowners under the federal government's emergency plan to prevent immediate soil erosion by wind.

A federal grant of 10 cents per acre for the purchase of fuel and feed for listing of the lands was made available last mid-week and Hall County's maximum acreage under the program was set at 10,000 acres or $1,000 in fuel costs.

Applications for the fuel grants are made to community agricultural committeemen, approved by the county committee and the county agent and commodity orders issued through the local relief office. Commodity orders are cashable at local wholesale oil firms and feed stores to be designated by the relief office, Judge Hoffman stated.

Railroads Plan Big Building Programs

ST. LOUIS, April 22.—Encouraged by prospects of increased passenger and freight traffic, three southwestern railroads with headquarters here today listed 1935 budget allotments totaling $5,205,896 for repair and reconstruction projects.

The building program is expected to stimulate steel mill activity and provide employment during the year for several thousand additional workers. The Missouri Pacific, St. Louis-San Francisco (Frisco) and Missouri-Kansas-Texas (Katy) railroads are concerned.

Officers of the Frisco announced $3,699,768 would be expended in improvement projects modernizing its lines.

TOKYO, April 22.—Fires broke out today in the ruins of several northwestern Formosa communities where violent earthquakes Sunday killed at least 2,800 persons and injured 12,000.

Screams of injured continued to straggle into emergency hospital centers, while army carrier pigeons brought reports hourly of further devastation in remote sections. In many villages, not one building was left standing.

Hundreds trapped in the debris cried for help. The Japanese government supplied millions of dollars for relief funds.

Newspaper representatives related harrowing accounts of the loss of life and property destruction. They told of 800 houses crumbled in Naihoo, where at least 1,000 inhabitants perished in the ruins.

Costly motor highways were fissured and ruined.

Latest official estimates placed the number of homeless at 250,000, the number of dwellings destroyed at 16,000 and at least 20,000 other structures damaged.

The American Red Cross offered aid.

Find Youth Near Body of Mother, Shotgun in Hand

GREENVILLE, April 22.—With a smoking shotgun in his hands, Jackie Glenn Darden, 8, was found by his father today standing over his mother's body after she was shot to death at home in Caddo Mills. The father was aroused by the shot.

S. P. Darden, father, told officers that Jackie Glenn has been subject to walking in his sleep. The father said the boy was apparently asleep when the shooting occurred. "I don't remember what happened," the boy, sobbing, said afterwards.

Mrs. Darden, 32, is the mother of three children. She had been sleeping with Jackie Glenn. The father slept with the other two in the same room.

HITLER'S SISTER HIDES IN VIENNA

BY STEWART BROWN
United Press Staff Correspondent
VIENNA, April 22.—Sharing none of the glory of her illustrious brother and apparently eager to be forgotten, Paula Hitler, 39, sister of Adolph Hitler, has moved into a new hiding place here.

Quietly one night she moved her few belongings from her modest one-room garret flat to another part of the city. She wished to be left undisturbed, and gave no forwarding address.

If the police know her new address, they refuse to disclose it. Likewise her few friends jealously guard her whereabouts. It is reported she has moved into more elegant quarters in a more fashionable apartment house.

To keep from being recognized Paula uses the Austrian spelling of her family name—Hitler instead of Hitler. Her brother dropped the "e" when he migrated to Germany from Austria.

According to gossip Paula receives a modest monthly allowance from her brother on condition she remain in the background, refuse all interviews and never discuss his earlier life in Austria. This pledge causes Paula great worry. She constantly is besieged by persons seeking newspaper interviews, or by political personages who wish to talk to her about her brother. She refuses to see anyone. Even her school-girl friends have "dropped" her because of her relationship to Hitler.

When her brother became Chancellor of Germany Paula was working as a telephone operator in an insurance office. She held her post until her identity was discovered.

She quit her job and lived in straightened circumstances until her brother gave her the monthly allowance. Previous she had lived with her half-sister, Frau Angela Raupal, who, however, left her to take care of her half-brother's country home at Berchtesgaden, in Bavaria.

Why Paula never went to Germany to join her brother is a mystery. She always is silent on that subject.

When her half-sister left, Paula moved into a single room in the attic of a modest apartment building. On the ground floor was a locksmith's shop and a coal store. There was no elevator in the building and visitors had to climb five flights of stairs to the top floor.

Paula's door, without a bell, faced the attic room where the laundry for the entire house was hung.

She lived there until she silently moved away because her address was becoming too well known.

Persons who know her at all—and they are few—say she has dark hair and strongly resembles her brother. At times she is very decisive, but normally she is very modest and speaks softly.

DR. TUGWELL SUGGESTS 'THIRD ECONOMY'

NEW ways of looking at the unemployment problem are rare. Rexford Tugwell seems to have provided one the other day in his speech at Rochester, N. Y., when he suggested that the unemployed constitute in themselves a great national resource which the country might as well start using.
Mr. Tugwell's point is simple. In addition to depression unemployment—men displaced from their jobs by improvement in productive technique rather than by hard times.

Even when prosperity returns, a large number of these men won't be able to go back to work. They'll be with us in good times as well as bad—skilled and industrious workmen who want nothing under the sun except a chance to work.

It is Mr. Tugwell's idea that these men be used in what he terms a "third economy"—a system half way between Socialism and individualism. The government would put them to work on projects which would not be done by private enterprise, and which would be of benefit to the country as a whole.

Such projects would include the Civilian Conservation Corps, a gigantic slum clearance program, checking of soil erosion, provision of sanitary and recreational facilities that are now lacking, development of reclamation works, and possibly some large-scale scheme for resettlement of the underprivileged.

All this is worth thinking about, because it reverses our ordinary attitude toward unemployment. We look on it as a sad and expensive responsibility; this plan would have us see it as a great opportunity.

This country is enormous, and it is more richly blessed by nature than any similar place on earth. It can be turned into a veritable garden spot, where human life can be richer and freer than anything we have yet dreamed of. The possibilities are here; all we need do is exploit them.

Until every American family occupies a modern up-to-date home, until every region is served by broad, smooth highways, until every river has been harnessed and controlled and every farming region has been freed from threat of flood and wind, until our marvelous productive plant has given an abundance of necessities to every citizen—until that day comes, it is silly for us to say that there is no work for the jobless.

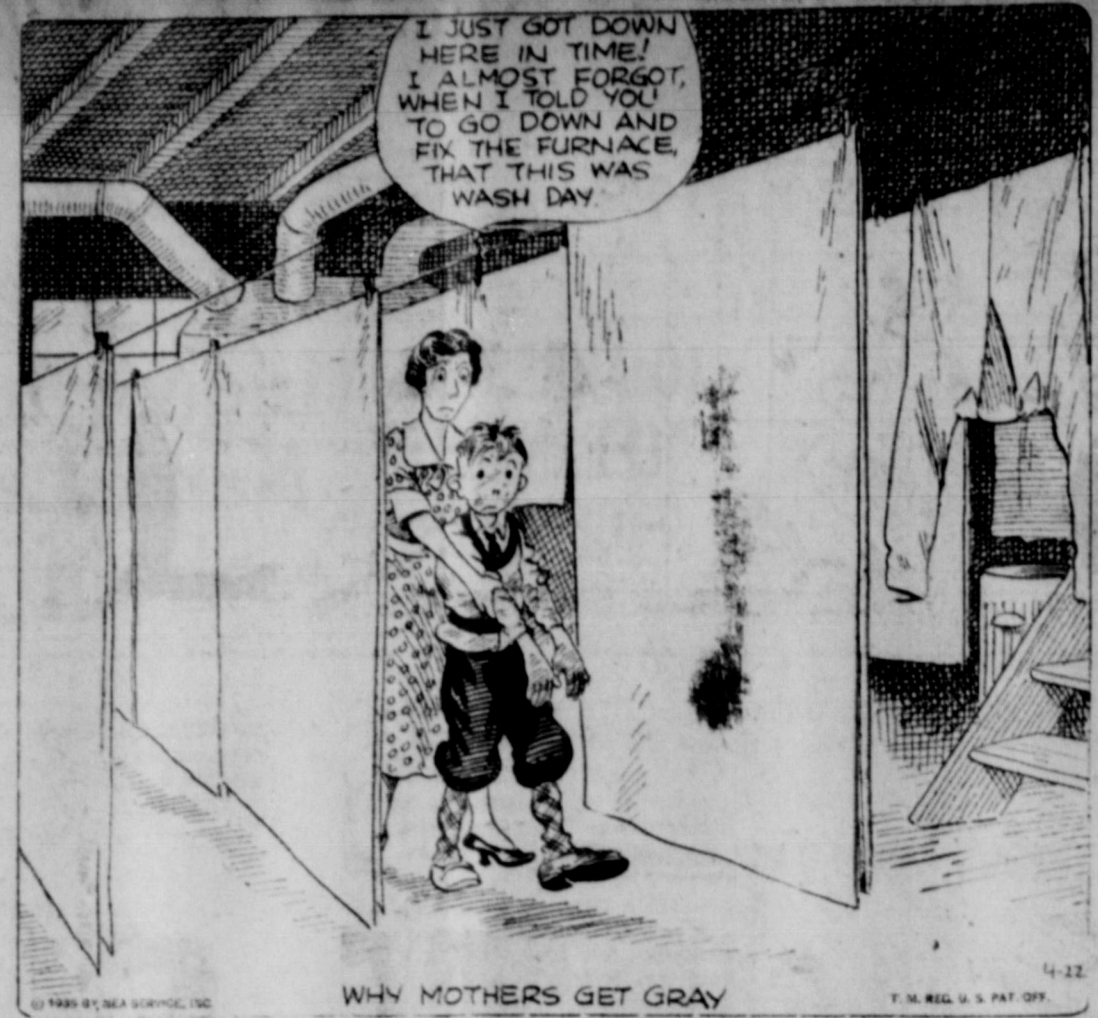

Mr. Tugwell's idea calls our attention to this fact. The work is waiting to be done, and we have millions of men who ask nothing but the chance to do it. Seen in this way, unemployment is a challenge and an opportunity.

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY

The DARK BLOND

HE HESITATED for a moment, staring at her speculatively. "Is something the matter?" Millicent asked anxiously, becoming uneasy under his steady appraisal.
"They want you at the house."
"Want me?"
"Yes."
"How do you know?"
"I telephoned."
"Oh, that's what took you so long."
"Yes."
"Whom did you talk with?"
"Sergeant Mahoney."
"Oh," she exclaimed, feeling suddenly cold with dread. "What does he want?"
"I don't know. He wouldn't tell me over the telephone. He said you had given him your word of honor you wouldn't skip out while he was carrying on his investigations."
"I didn't give him my word of honor," she blazed indignantly, "and what's more, I'm not skipping out."
"That's what I told him."
"You told him I was with you?"
"Yes."
"Thank heavens for that! I wouldn't have him think I was running away for anything. What does he want of me?"
"He didn't say."
"Well, if he wants me for some more questioning he can just wait until I get ready to show up. I'm sick and tired of being cooped up in that house and having people run in with all sorts of questions every time there's a new development in the case."
He nodded agreement and said, suddenly, "I know how you feel, Millicent."
Mollified by his quick sympathy, and having relieved her feelings by her burst of indignation, she said, "How about your father, Norman? Have they found out anything?"
"I don't know. That's what worries me. Sergeant Mahoney wouldn't discuss it over the telephone, but he did say the reason he wanted to see you was in connection with my father's disappearance."
She stared at him with wide, incredulous eyes. "Good heavens, they're not going to try to blame that on me, too?"
"No, I don't think so. Sergeant Mahoney wouldn't say just what he wanted. His manner was very peculiar, but he said he wanted to see you as soon as you could get there; that it related to my father's disappearance."
"Then," she told him, "we will go back to it once. If there's anything I can do to help clear that up I want to do it."
"It's all rather strange and complicated. What could you possibly know that would help Sergeant Mahoney in connection with that case?"
"Nothing. He'll find it out after he's asked me a few questions."
"Then we'll go and see Phyllis Faulconer first," Norman said. "I told Sergeant Mahoney we'd return but I didn't say just how turned out to be an apartment house. Millicent felt a strange thrill as the car sped across the intersection and swung in toward the right-hand curb.

"This is the place," Norman said. "It won't be long now until we know something about this woman in the black ermine coat."
He jerked back the door catch, flung the door open. "Come on," he said. "Slide across. We haven't time to stand on formality."
With a low, nervous laugh she slid her feet along the seat, wormed under the steering wheel, and felt his hands under her elbows as he lifted her from the car. He slammed the door shut and, together, they ascended the three steps which led to the foyer where the names of the tenants were displayed in a long row opposite call buttons.
"Here we are," he said triumphantly. "Phyllis Faulconer, 309."
Before she could stop him he had jabbed the button opposite the card.
"Oh!" she cried in dismay, "you shouldn't have done that, Norman."
"Why not?"
"Because. We don't want her to know we're investigating her. We should make inquiries and find out what she looks like."
"We'll know what she looks like," Norman said grimly, "when we've had a look at her."
He jabbed the button a second time, impatiently, as he spoke.
"But suppose it should turn out to be the woman in the black ermine coat and suppose she should be a stranger to us?"
"We'll grab her anyway," he said. "We have enough on that woman to justify calling in the police."
He rang the bell for the third time.
There was no answer.
"Not at home," Norman said, disappointment showing in his voice. He tried the door of the apartment house; then turned away from it.
"Locked," he told Millicent. "You can't get in unless the occupant of one of the apartments presses an electric buzzer and releases the door."
"Then, if this Faulconer woman isn't in, we can't even get into the building. We can't."
Once more he laughed and said, "I'll show you a trick. Start pressing buttons opposite the names of people who have apartments on the fifth floor."
"Why?"
"Because," he said, peering at the directory, "someone will be expecting a friend, or will just bazz the door open on general principles. Someone on the first or second floors might come to the elevator to look us over. We can't use the third floor because we're getting off there. The fifth floor is the best one to work on."
He found a name and pressed a button. She noticed the figure 506 opposite another name and flanked by a button. She pressed

Stories in STAMPS By I. S. Klein

IN DEFENSE of the KING OF KINGS

THE threat of Premier Mussolini of Italy to defend the honor of his country against purported insults of Abyssinian troops at the border of Italian Somaliland, has brought out a vast army of well-equipped troops in defense of the only remaining independent kingdom in Africa. That is the answer of Haile Selassie, King of Kings of Ethiopia, Conqueror of Judah, Elect of God and Light of the World, who traces his descent directly from King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.
That the soldiers Mussolini has sent to Eritrea and Somaliland will have a tough battle on their hands is generally agreed, for the natives of Abyssinia are considered among the best fighters in the world. Their ruler, shown on several stamps of the country, has introduced many modern innovations among his people.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT MOTION PICTURES

PALACE. There were tears very close to the laughter that it evoked; there was a pulse stirring, nerve tingling quality to its thrilling scenes and gorgeous spectacles; it had a plot that rivalled those of serious dramas...

RITZ. In "After Office Hours," new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production now playing at the Ritz Theatre, there are many new and startling innovations. The first is the co-starring team itself, Clark Gable and Constance Bennett...

Keeler and Powell are two of the country's most popular screen lovers. Their work in this picture will greatly increase that popularity. Both show real dramatic ability. There are two spectacular dance numbers. One is the first screen reproduction of an Hawaiian luau...

Wears Stunning Gowns. Other innovations are the gowns worn by Miss Bennett, a brilliant wardrobe designed by Adrian and likely to set the styles for the new season. As noted for his acting as for his personal popularity, Gable turns in a flawless performance as the newspaper editor who solves the crime—and the romantic who wins the girl...

Fire Follows—

Tokio and Yokohama with a loss of almost 100,000 lives. The entire main street in Taichu City was demolished and the City of Taiku was virtually destroyed.

Holiday Toll—

hered six, two victims of a crossing crash at Columbus and another killed by a hit-skip driver who later surrendered. In Massachusetts and Rhode Island five died, including an East Lee, Mass., woman who was killed by a truck and a Woonsocket, R. I., man killed when his automobile overturned.

Refugees Clutter Highways

Roads to Taichu were blocked by procession of improvised stretchers and crude litters bearing the injured to places where medical attention would be available. Wailing women clogged the highways, making passage for the injured difficult.

Three Dead in Iowa

Iowa's toll was three deaths, including a Newton factory worker killed when his automobile missed a curve and went over a 50-foot embankment. Two friends were hurt. Victor Pahl, a track star of St. Ambrose College, was injured critically near Muscatine when struck by an automobile as he changed the tire of the car in which his team mates and the coach were riding.

Population Mostly Chinese

The island of Formosa, which has a population of nearly 5,000,000, was acquired by Japan in the Sino-Japanese War of 1895. It lies between the Southern and Eastern China Seas and is separated from the Chinese Province of Kukiien, on the mainland, by a strait ninety miles across at its narrowest point.

School Board—

Other committees named by President Potts were: Finances and taxes—Roy Fultz, E. E. Roberts and E. R. Cudd; Building and Grounds—E. E. Roberts, R. C. Parks and Harry Delaney; Bus Committee—E. E. Cudd, R. C. Parks and C. W. Crawford.
