Nearly 300 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Open Session Here

Between 250 and 300 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs from over a large section of Texas and western Oklahoma were here this morning for the opening session of the Lower Panhandle Association convention. The number of visitors is expected to more than double before the two-day session ends. The program started yesterday, with the arrival of 40 children from the Corsicana home. The glee club presented an interesting program last night, which was attended by a large crowd.

Children Honored
Upon arrival yesterday afternoon, the children were the guests of the Gate City Creamery and Memphis Coca-Cola Bottling Company. They were served ice cream and cold drinks, and Frank Phelan, manager of the bottling company, gave each of the children a check for $1. He presented "Baby" Baldwin, ward of the Memphis lodge, a check for $10. Last night's program consisted of songs, negro spirituals and readings. The children showed unusual talent, and the program was enjoyed. Little Miss Baldwin, age 6, who entered the home at the age of six months, was easily the star of the glee club, according to numerous members of the audience.

President Presides
M. W. Paschall, president of the association, presided over the session. An address was made by S. A. Bryant, who gave a detailed and interesting review of the guiding principles of the Order. C. E. Couch, superintendent of the home, spoke on the administrative work at the home.

The convention was formally opened this morning at the First Baptist Church. Mr. Paschall called the convention to order at 9:30 o'clock, and the Charles R. Simmons post of the American Legion presented the colors. The Memphis Rebekah Lodge presented the Rebekah flag.

The Memphis Gold Medal Band played "Star Spangled Banner," and Clark Russell of Electra, chaplain, gave the invocation. An address of welcome was delivered by A. S. Moss, and V. L. McGlockin and Pauline Turlington rendered a vocal duet.

Addresses
The response to the address of welcome was made by Mamie Dale of Iowa Park, past president of the Rebekah Assembly. A. W. Howard rendered a violin solo, and the welcome in behalf of Hall County Odd Fellows was made by S. A. Bryant, with the response by H. L. Hunnicutt of Chillicothe. Mrs. Agnes Bailey of Estelline welcomed the visitors on behalf of Hall County Rebekahs, and the response was given by Mrs. Myrtle Cupper of Electra. Special instrumental music was rendered by (Continued on Page 4)

P. O. DEPT. ASKS NO MAILINGS AT DEPOT

All Mailings Must Be At Postoffice Or On Mailcar

Due to flagrant abuse of the privilege, the Postoffice Department has requested that the custom of firms and individuals leaving mail at the railroad station for placing on the train by station employees be discontinued, according to Postmaster Henry Read and Station Agent John McMicken.

As a matter of accommodation, for several years the station men have been placing on the mail cars all mail left at the station, and a special box was erected where such mail might be deposited. However, according to Mr. McMicken, the privilege has been abused until a number of business houses near the station bring great quantities of mail there instead of taking it to the postoffice, where it should be mailed.

On several occasions in the past this mail left at the station has been tampered with, and money taken from the letters, one man losing $35 from a letter not long ago.

Vocational Agriculture To Be Taught in School

Memphis High School is to have an extensive, modern vocational agricultural department this year for the first time in the history of the school, the school board decided at its regular meeting last night.

The department will be set up under the Smith-Hughes law, by which the State and Federal governments will pay half the cost of operation, making the course cheaper than many of the other courses offered in high schools.

What Course Includes
The course will include tin shop, farm mechanics, shop and wood work, stock judging, educational tours, exhibits, summer encampments and agricultural surveys of Hall County.

Four principles were set down for the department. It is to prepare the boy for useful farm employment; meet the needs of those interested in farming and farm living; prepare the boys to meet the demands of a progressive vocation of farming, adapted to this particular section, and through the surveys the needs of the farms will be ascertained, with these needs embodied in the course of study.

Instructor's Requirements
The instructor, who must be a graduate of an agricultural college, will organize adult evening classes among farmers to give them special training on their particular problems, Supt. W. C. Davis announced.

The instructor's qualifications must meet the requirements of the State Department of Education, and he must remain on the job 12 months of the year, doing special project and club work among the farmers throughout the school year and summer. His work is to parallel that of the county agricultural agent.

Mr. Davis said the instructor probably will be named within the next few days.

According to the plans of the school board, the department will be equipped to take care of about 80 students and about 60 adults in the evening classes.

Shop Set Up
A shop is being set up on the first floor of the high school building, in conjunction with the science laboratory. (Continued on page 4)

SAW AGENT'S OFFICE SWAMPED BY SIGNERS

Many Cotton Producers Pooling 1935 Certificates

The county agricultural agent's office saw more activity this morning than it has in a long time, although normally a busy place, as producers were pooling 1935 cotton certificates.

Agent James A. Jackson announced yesterday that those wishing to pool the certificates should do so at once. The pool will close on August 27 and no certificates will be accepted for the pool after that date, he stated.

The producers may pool all or any portion of their certificates. Cotton producers were filling into the office this morning almost as rapidly as they could be cared for, but Mr. Jackson estimated that the rush would reach its peak Saturday.

ADRIAN ODOM TO BECOME EDITOR HEREFORD PAPER

Memphis loses an ardent booster and virtually a native son this week when Adrian Odom, managing editor of The Democrat for the past year and a half, moves to Hereford to accept a responsible position with the Hereford Brand, published by Mrs. Ann Holman.

Mr. and Mrs. Odom plan to leave some time tomorrow.

Mr. Odom's first newspaper experience was gained on The Democrat in 1930. In 1931 he joined the staff of the Amarillo Daily News and Globe, returning to Memphis in 1934 when The Democrat was changed from a weekly to a daily. The Hereford appointment is a daily. (Continued on page 4)

CCC WHIPPING CAMP INTO SHAPE

Use Mess Hall Last Night for First Time

CCC men had their first meal last night in the company mess hall, just completed and placed in condition for operation. The men had been served from a field kitchen since their arrival.

Barracks, officers quarters, headquarters, the latrine and other buildings were rapidly being whipped into livable condition.

One detail was busy this morning erecting a fence on the Noel Street side of the camp and another was building a baseball diamond southeast of the buildings.

Construction was started on a garage to house the two company trucks and the officers' cars.

Low places on the grounds were being filled in preparatory to grading and graveling the company street.

The company expects to be comfortably situated by the end of the week, Lieut. Louis A. Hill, commanding officer, said.

By Associated Press
AUSTIN, Aug. 21.—Governor Allred today agreed to appoint an arbitrator in the Dallas garment strike if the manufacturers promise to accept the decision of an impartial third party, the governor advised Lester E. Lorch, spokesman for the garment manufacturers, of an offer of the worker union to submit the proposition to arbitration by an impartial third party selected by the governor.

The strike has been going on for months, with picketing and outbreaks of violence. Recently several women were stripped nude in the street by strikers.

Forceful Message At M. E. Revival

In his message last night at the First Methodist Church Rev. T. J. Roa challenged the people to give themselves unreservedly and fearlessly to the work of building up the Kingdom of God in their community. His subject was "The Bravest Man of the Old Testament," and the man Nehemiah was the character chosen.

"In all the years of my ministry," said Rev. Roa, "I have never held a successful revival without someone or some group being willing to take Nehemiah's place by stepping out bravely in face of opposition and invitations to compromise to do God's work."

Increased attendance at special services for the young people and the juniors indicated a growing interest among the youth of the church. These special services are being held each evening at 7:30 o'clock, immediately preceding the regular evening service.

The subject for the evening message is "The Man Whose Body Heaven and Hell Fought Over." The hour is 8 o'clock. Morning services at 10.

WHAT DO YOU THINK? Local Opinions on Pertinent Topics.

THE QUESTION: What do you think of the coming of football season?
THE ANSWERS:

OWEN FIELDS: I have been following the football seasons since 1923 and during all this time I have never missed a home game. If any one can boast of a similar record I think we should get together and have a section reserved for us old timers.

I have spent many hours watching the boys practice and I have seen most of the seasons begin with a dismal outlook, but always the boys come through in a pinch and did themselves and the school proud.

It will be more encouraging for the boys to play in the new Cyclone Stadium. It will give them the right back ground—something they have not had before. I know they appreciate it, and when the times comes there will be no holding them back.

In the past, I do not think enough credit was given to the teams. When totaled up, the results of the season are always startling compared to the material the coach had to work with. In high school football, size counts, but in Class B if they are smart they are mighty hard to handle. Such will be our team this year. The majority boys are not very big or heavy but they are wound plenty tight.

In Chesty Walker we have one of the very best coaches. He made a team out of a squad of boys last year that looked as though they would have a difficult time winning any games. Instead of just giving up and abiding, he stuck at the job and the boys finished way up in the upper bracket.

Local Opinions on Pertinent Topics.

However, all the credit must not go to him—the boys deserve their just share.

If we never had a team it would not be because the boys had not been coached or trained properly—but because we lacked the material. Last year the starting team could go out and play the full game without having to retire to the bench because of lack of conditioning.

I know I'll be right there when the whistle is blown for the first game, and in the meantime, I will be doing every thing I can do to help.

ZEB MOORE: Enthusiasm is running unusually high at this early date over the prospects of the coming football season. Football is becoming the general topic of conversation, and if the interest is maintained the new stadium will hardly be large enough to hold all the spectators.

The public as a whole is more interested because we now have a stadium that, I believe, is second to none in the entire Panhandle. Too, we now have a playing field worthy of the teams that represent Memphis High School.

We have had good teams in the past and we will continue to have a team any person might be proud of, but it takes the moral support of the whole city to have a winning eleven, and I am in hopes the new stadium will be the linking factor between the boys and the towns people. The boys and the coach always give all they have to bring victory, but it is impossible for them to do it all—they have to have the full cooperation of all Memphis people. (Continued on page 4)

Cities Service Spends $100,000 In Fight on Bill

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Expenses of the Cities Service Company in opposing the Wheeler-Rayburn bill were listed at $100,000 before the Senate Labor Committee today, and large additional items were disclosed.

W. B. S. Winans, comptroller of the company, gave the total. Under questioning, he agreed he didn't include large legal fees to John W. Davis and others.

The committee called him to warn that files of the holding company and its subsidiaries would be subpoenaed to Washington, if necessary. Chairman Black said the investigators had been refused access to some records.

Winans reported the company willing to cooperate, so a subpoena would be unnecessary.

England Protects Ethiop Subjects

By Associated Press
ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 21.—The British legation today took steps to construct bomb-proof shelters for British troops which protect the legation in the event Italy attacks Ethiopia. British diplomats have purchased 6,000 square yards of heavy corrugated sheet iron for shelters. These also provide quarters for British civilians.

The dispatch of a detachment of native Indian troops to reinforce the British legation guard at Addis Ababa was announced at Simla today.

Reliable sources said Emperor Haile Selassie has a large secret fund of gold and silver to use in fighting Italy in the event of hostilities. The money, amounting to several million dollars, was left by the late Emperor Menelik for the defense of his country.

SUN-TAN

BY NARD JONES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JO DARIEN breaks her engagement to BRET PAUL, college athletic star, because he objects to her taking a job as hostess at Crest Lake Inn, fashionable summer resort owned by wealthy DOUGLAS MARSH. Jo goes to Crest Lake and later Bret arrives as life guard.

Douglas Marsh's eccentric mother dislikes Jo. PETER FRAGONET, film actor, pays her marked attentions and asks her to marry him as soon as he can get a divorce. Jo becomes friendly with LOLITA MONTEZ, film actress.

Prompted by his mother, Marsh asks Jo to leave Crest Lake. She decides to go to Hollywood to look for a job, and flies there with Fragonet. Later she begins to doubt Fragonet's promises and moves to a rooming house where he cannot find her. Lolita Montez offers to help Jo find a job. Silas Drann, the director, asks Jo to come to the studio for a screen test. She goes. When Lolita hears of this she warns Jo not to rely on Drann's promises. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I'm afraid I'm being a terrible nuisance to you," she said. "Forget it," the actress advised. "Have to run now. I'll see you later."

The moment she had said goodbye to Lolita, Jo turned back into the room and shut the door. Then she glanced again at the familiar, sprawling handwriting of Bret Paul—the handwriting she remembered so well on notes and themes and book covers, from their days together at the University. She had thrilled once those heavy, masculine pen-strokes, but now she was curiously calm about them.

She opened the letter and read: "Dear Jo—I don't know whether this will reach you, but I'm taking the chance and sending it in care of Lolita Montez at the Atlas studio. I haven't any idea why you left Crest Lake—whether it was because you are in love with Fragonet or for some other reason. But Tubby wrote me that you didn't know until months later that it was I who yanked you out of the lake that day. It wasn't much of a stunt. I'll admit, but it did hurt a little when you never mentioned it. But now I know why.

"I'm leaving here soon, for Marsh is talking about closing the place for the season. I hear that he and Babs are to be married, and perhaps that's the reason for all the rush to close. But I don't mind, for I've made more money here than I would have at Placid Beach.

"Why shouldn't I come to Hollywood, Jo? Remember the two weeks we planned for Placid Beach? Why couldn't we spend them together in Hollywood? You see, I can't believe you'll go for Fragonet. And I still love you, Jo. I suppose I always will—Bret."

Below his signature was a hasty postscript which made Jo smile. "When Drann was here he told me I ought to get something in the studios in Hollywood." She found that postscript more than amusing. It was so filled with masculine ego; and when compared with the rest of the letter it was so irrelevantly concerned with Bret Paul in Hollywood—and not Jo Darien. Slowly Jo read the letter again, trying to determine what there was about it that alienated her. The words were right, but something was gone—something that really should have been there if he really loved her as he said. "Why shouldn't I come to Hollywood, Jo? Remember the two weeks we planned for Placid Beach?" There was something cold and calculating, something almost repulsive to Jo in those two short questions.

But she put the letter carefully into the top drawer of the bureau, telling herself that, after all, she had given Bret little cause to write a revealing letter. And he had never been romantic with words ("like Fragonet," she thought). Perhaps she had no right to doubt this one letter which had reached her in Hollywood.

About all Bret's letter did was to remind Jo again, this time with effect, that she must write her parents. She sat down now and wrote the long overdue letter, being rather vague about why and how she had left Crest Lake, and fibbing a little about her prospects in the City of Cinema. It was not until she had finished this letter that she framed a note to Bret. The answer was more difficult than she'd imagined. She tore up five or six beginnings which had led her into saying things she did not really want to say. At last she wrote only half a dozen lines. They were lines telling him that she appreciated his kindness and his interest, but saying nothing about his professed love and suggesting gently that there was no need for him to come to Hollywood on her account.

"I really don't know whether I'll stay here much longer," she wrote, "so perhaps it will have to be some summer at Placid Beach, after all—if it's going to be anywhere."

She was thinking of Dila Saunders when she wrote that last—a brightly blond Dila Saunders in the arms of a too eager Bret Paul. Hurriedly Jo folded the note paper into its envelope, dampened the flap and sealed the answer with a definitely nunciating blow from her small fist.

Remembering a letter-box at the corner, Jo took the two missives immediately and dropped them into the clattering green slot. Returning to the little stucco hangar she saw Drann's roadster draw alongside the curb. The director hopped out rather breathlessly and raised his hat.

"I've some news for you, Miss Darien," he told her.

"Surely not about the screen test?" Jo's voice was carefully cool.

He nodded vigorously. "Yes... about the test. It's an excellent one." "I'm glad you think so," Jo said, quietly incredulous. "Not only do I think so," Drann assured her, "but Boleson saw it, too—and he is tremendously excited about your possibilities."

"Boleson?" repeated Jo. "The chief," Drann assured her. "And several of the production heads had a look at it, too."

Despite her resolve to keep her hopes in hand, Jo felt her blood warming with triumph. Then Lolita had been wrong in her suspicions!

"Boleson will want to see another one," Drann went on. "He's definitely interested and you are sure of a minor contract in any event. But I want you to have a test taken which displays a little more versatility. I'll get you some real dialogue to speak with another person." He stopped, gave her that disturbing smile of his. "You see, I want you to go over big, Jo Darien!" Jo was chiding herself for her doubt. "I—how can I thank you enough?"

"Thank me?" said Drann. "You will repay me a hundredfold when you have become a great star." He reached out for the door of his car. "I am late already at the studio—but I had to tell you in person about this. And," his voice lowered, "one word of caution. It isn't wise to say much about these matters until the contract is signed and sealed." He smiled confidentially. "The jealousies of Hollywood, you know!"

Jo nodded, watching the big roadster move away and into the traffic. For a moment or two she was rooted to the pavement, her mind torn with conflicting thoughts. It couldn't be true—it couldn't be so easy. And yet...

Drann had said it was true; he had shown the test film to Boleson and the production chiefs, and they hadn't torn down." Drann had said she no one, but Jo knew let Lolita into the story could be no possible thing. The actress knew she felt she owed it to all her kindness. She was the possible cause, but she was not telling the truth. Jo cautioned her. "Y-yes," Jo said. "But before the much older Jo received phone call from the woman's office at Atlas. "Y-yes," Jo's voice bled.

"One moment," Boleson wishes to talk to you. Jo wondered if she was able to speak at all. Boleson took the wire. (Continued on page 3)

LOUD SPEAKER

MEMPHIS is to have the public address system that the Chamber of Commerce recently endorsed, with the C. of C. itself taking the necessary steps in securing the equipment. It will be available for public and private use where such an instrument is needed.

Among other things, it was stated that the loud speakers probably will be here for use during the football season. A word in this respect: The loud speakers may be used to an advantage by announcing substitutes, explaining penalties and discussing points of argument provided the announcer knows of what he is speaking. But they have been found unsatisfactory when used to explain every play and to keep up a continual line of chatter.

The spectators themselves can tell who carried the ball, which direction he went, how much ground he gained, whether a pass was successful, etc., and experience has taught that they prefer to see these things themselves and not be told of every play they have just witnessed.

BUILDING STONE

MR. Wilbur C. Hawk, chairman of the Texas Planning Board's mineral resource committee, feels there is not a proper realization in Texas of the high quality and almost infinite variety of building stone available in the state. It is important to increase this realization, Mr. Hawk says, since a certain way to increase employment in Texas is to use native building stone. The exhibit of Texas native building stone, The exhibit of Texas native building stone, The exhibit of Texas native building stone, is open at all times. It should be familiar to architects, engineers and contractors. Property owners contemplating building might with profit make a visit to this practical museum.

There is no reason for any Texas building to employ other than native stone. The finest of marbles and granites, the cheapest of common build-

CHAPTER XL

Next morning Lolita appeared bright and early, stopping on her way to the studio. But she had to decline Jo's invitation to finish their discussion of Drann and his screen test.

"I'd like to talk to you about a number of things," Lolita told Jo, "but I've plenty on the schedule today. And I'll talk to you later about that sandwich shop." She reached into her bag and drew forth a letter. "Here... I just dropped by to deliver this. I never dreamed I'd be cast in the role of Cupid!"

Jo took the letter and glanced at the handwriting. It was from Lolita Montez. "In care of Jo Darien, Atlas Pictures Corporation, Hollywood."

"Thanks so much," Jo said.

(Continued from page 1) Few persons ever stop to consider the hardships the boys go through during the season. They have to practice in all kinds of weather; they get kicked around and bruised up; they have to give up many pleasures in order to observe the training rules.

This does not, of course, have any bearing on the bringing of mail to the station and mailing same on the mail car, and hotels and business houses which desire to do this may do so.

One angle of the matter, however, is that the local postoffice gets no credit of any kind for letters mailed on the railway mail car, and they do not count in the year's business for the local office.

Inasmuch as local postoffice service is based on the amount of business done by the office, citizens should mail all mail at the postoffice, thus assuring the city of securing the advantage of added service due to increased postal receipts.

AAA Changes Tribute to Connally, Jones

The inclusion in the AAA amendments of the export provision, having for its purpose the expansion of foreign and domestic markets for farm products, is a personal tribute to Senator Tom Connally and Congressman Mervin Jones, of Texas.

This particular part of the measure provides for allocating a sum equal to 30 per cent of the collections under the general tariff laws. This sum is to be used for the purpose of expanding domestic and foreign markets of farm commodities and the products thereof.

Senator Connally and Congressman Jones issued the following joint statement: "The adoption of this provision marks the longest step forward that has ever been taken in securing the rights of agriculture.

"To make the circle complete it must be supplemented. This is done by allocating 30 per cent of the customs receipts. For many years this has been advocated, but this is the first decided step which makes the accomplishments possible.

"The entire country will be benefited. While an adjustment program is necessary and will be carried on, the entire country is interested in the building of foreign markets. Looking down the long road to the future, our country cannot afford to surrender these markets.

"The use of this fund will do much to iron out the sore spots, to remove temporary gluts and to enable the products of the farm to flow into the markets of the world. It is an ideal supplement to the farm program. It will do much to strengthen that program and make it effective.

Vocational—

(Continued from Page 1) The purpose of this course is to offer the rural student something of real value. Supt. Davis stated this morning. "The educational trend is toward the more practical," he stated.

Members of the school board believe the opening of the vocational agriculture department is one of the most important steps taken by the local school system in several years. Many others have expressed extreme interest in such a department.

When the sun is blazing hot your motor heat goes up, too

To protect your motor, use Germ Processed Oil, which has 2 to 4 times greater film strength and is less affected by extreme motor heat!

YOUR MOTOR runs lots hotter in Summer. That's why you must have oil that maintains high film strength under extreme temperatures to get safe lubrication. Otherwise, the lubricating film ruptures and the bearings and cylinders suffer damaging wear.

oil and that heat above 225° does not lessen this advantage. More proof—supervised road tests were made in identical cars fitted with the new alloy metal bearings used in many 1935 cars. The bearings lubricated with a high-quality plain mineral oil showed 45% more wear than those lubricated with Conoco Germ Processed, the first alloyed oil. You'll be certain your motor is safely lubricated even at high temperatures if you say "O. K.—Drain" and fill with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil—the oil with the "Hidden Quart" that stays up in your motor and never drains away.
