Brilliant and varying colors of the grain sorghum heads, growing in scores of varieties, and the uniform growth of the crops is a sight worth a visit over the farm. The exactness, the system, the great care taken by Superintendent Fred Keating and his helpers attending the laymen. Miles of many varieties planted to test yield in this climate, to test value of rotation, to test best planting time, to test best spacing of rows, to improve breeds of seed—these and many other experiments go on continuously. H.W. CORLEY
BY THE AUTHOR OF
"THE MARRIAGE CONTRACT"

CHAPTER XXIV

In a flash Mona understood what had happened. Harry and his uncle had the same name. But only Mr. Garretson and a few intimates ever called the older man "Harry." On legal documents the name was "John Barnett Townsend."

Mona had given her word to marry this stranger. The wedding had been arranged, beyond doubt, to harass young Barry further. Someone—Barry himself possibly—had blurted out his interest in the red-headed girl in Garretson's office and this had been his uncle's retaliation!

She saw the whole revolting plot. She would be John Barnett Townsend's wife in name only but young Barry would not know that! She could secure a divorce within a year! Doubtless (Mona's lip curled at the thought) she would be persuaded, with no choice in the matter, to get a divorce. The divorced wife of his uncle would not appeal to young Barry. She was practically being hired to hoodwink Barry—hired as surely as though the account opened in Mr. Garretson's bank in her name had been doled out in salary checks.

Mona turned to Mr. Garretson and was amazed to see only the kindest concern on his face. Was it possible that he knew nothing of the fraud? Garretson must have inferred all along that Mona understood it was the older man she was to marry. Mr. Garretson had not even dreamed she knew young Barry, much less was in love with him.

"Can you sit up, Harry, if I hold you?" Mr. Garretson was saying anxiously.

The minister, a lean-faced young man, drew nearer. Mrs. Faxon arrived from somewhere and the nurse cleared her throat expectantly.

"But you aren't going to marry this old man!" Lottie whispered sharply to Mona. "They've fooled you—don't stand for it. If you lose your job I'll see you through."

Mona shook off Lottie's objections and moved nearer. She'd go through the ceremony. She would live up to her part of the bargain and she'd take the money they offered and use it, too. In some way, some how, she would make John Barnett Townsend pay! He would pay for ruining her life and ruining Barry's life.

"So Barry wouldn't stay," she repeated smiling, with no sign of the tumult in her heart. "Possibly he didn't approve of your choice of a bride." Her voice sounded metallic, unnatural.

"And now shall we go?" Mona smiled, when she had become Mrs. John Barnett Townsend. "As I understand it, I am free to come and go as I wish, to make my home at the Townsend house in 63rd street."

Her husband bowed. "To come and go as you like with, of course, one stipulation almost unnecessary to mention. You are to conduct yourself so that no action in any way reflects on your new name."

Mona bowed.

Mr. Townsend waved a generous hand. "Go anywhere you like for a few days—the Ritz, Atlantic City, a suite in the 63rd street house is being renovated for you. Garretson will arrange all financial matters. Suppose you take a week enjoying yourself! Shopping possibly, visiting your family, getting adjusted to your new—er situation. Take your friend here with you." He broke off in a spasm of coughing.

The two girls left the room in silence. Mona, head held high, said nothing as they walked down the wide stairway. At the fact she turned to Lottie.

"A year isn't forever." Flinging her head back she turned to the butler. "Tell Mr. Garretson that I'll find us at the—"

"Ritz," supplied Lottie hopefully.

"Ritz," Mona repeated firmly, drawing on her gloves.

Mr. Garretson appeared at the top of the stairway. "Miss Moran—er—Mrs. Townsend," he called. "One moment." The lawyer descended hurriedly. "Here is the ring, the engagement ring, you know. It hadn't been completed yesterday when we talked matters over. Possibly you would like to wear it with—"

He pointed to the platinum circlet almost shyly with that.

The ring he held was magnificent. Even Lottie gasped. A huge emerald surrounded with diamonds gleamed in the palm of his lean brown hand. "Your birthstone," he explained. "Mr. Townsend ascertained that you were born in May."

Mona took the ring absently, weighed it in her closed hand for a moment, a faraway look in her eyes. When she lifted her eyes they held an infinitely weary look in their depth.

"If you need anything," Mr. Garretson was saying, "call me. Or call Stroud. Wait a minute—I'll call him from here, going to the Ritz. That's fine. Get Stroud on the phone about say cash—"

Jackson was waiting and the girls moved through the door.

"Well do that little thing," Lottie responded over her shoulder as Mona did not answer.

"To the Ritz, Jackson."

"Yes, Madame. I found out about the car, Miss," Jackson turned to add confidentially. "Mr. Steve drove back to town last night and Mr. Barry followed in the V 57. We call the cars by their license numbers here. And the roadster went aboard the Miranda with the young men, Miss. The V 57 came back alone."

"Thanks," was Lottie's brief rejoinder.

As the car glided forward Lottie saw that Mona's eyes were filled with tears.

The two girls spent the next few days at the Ritz in what Lottie termed an orgy of shopping. True to his word, Mr. Garretson had notified Stroud. They found, upon arrival at the hotel, that a suite had been set aside for Mrs. Townsend and her companion and an account opened. Mrs. Townsend was to draw on the hotel for any amount.

"I suppose you'll be dropping in to see your mother," Lottie asked casually the second day as Mona stepped into the car.

Mona snapped her purse open and in the recesses of the car powdered her nose thoughtfully. "Soon. This afternoon, as a matter of fact. Want to come?"

For answer Lottie stretched herself yawningly but with a meaning glance.

"Listen, I crave lunch. Never mind what time I had breakfast. Just for a lark, let's gallop up to the Claremont. What do you say? I've always wanted to see that place by daylight."

"Anything you like," Mona responded indifferently, handing the speaking tube to Lottie without glancing up.

Lottie gave the driver instructions briefly and then bent toward Mona. "While you were in that shop I started a conversation with the boy friend outside," she said in a low tone.

Mona raised her eyebrow, intent on the subject.

upon the shaping of her lower lip. "Boy friend?"

"Jackson. Remember he said that he had driven the doctor over to see—er—your husband? He told us that yesterday while we were driving up to the wedding? Well—"

She paused importantly.

"Maybe I should break this gently. The doctor was a specialist, see? Heart specialist, Dr. Dunn, the local physician, had him up from New York. Jackson heard this specialist say that Townsend wouldn't live a year! Any shock might will him outright. Any shock?"

"Not a year? Then I'll never have to decide about things—"

"A year at the most" was what this doctor said. But they didn't tell Mr. Townsend or any of the people around him. Didn't want him to know because that would be a shock. His business affairs are all in order. They always have been," Mr. Garretson sees to that. "He can't live a year," Mona repeated.

"Will or no will, you're in for quite a slice of his money," Lottie said thoughtfully. "There is a will, though."

ELECTION DAY DINNER

Next Saturday the Susannah Wesley Class of the Methodist Sunday school will serve a chicken dinner in the Curry building next to Wacker's store. These ladies served dinner during the last election and the good patronage which they enjoyed was well deserved. They will appreciate having their friends come in and have dinner with them again this coming election day.

Mrs. J. A. Boykin spent Tuesday in Colorado visiting her sister.

 FORT WORTH—Luke Hamlin threw the Beaumont Exporters back into winning gear by pitching them to a 3-2 victory over the Cats in the series' final Monday night. It wasn't an extraordinary well pitched game but he had the stuff in the pinches and that was all that was necessary.
 Fort Worth touched him for nine hits and three walks having runners on in every inning but one but only twice could they click him at the right time. Which wasn't enough, with his mates getting an early lead off Paul Gribble who started for the Cats. Ray Appleton and Bill Terry followed the Cat

The Big Spring linksmen turned back the strong Lamesa golfers by a score of 24 to 20 Sunday afternoon with Shirley Robbins regaining every bit of his championship form and blazing out a 71 to make Mr. Frank Rose of Lamesa very disgusted indeed. But G. R. Porter lost his first match in many, many weeks, E. C. Nix taking a 2 to 1 decision.

Sandlot baseball seems to have experienced a depression. The White Collars have to all appearance given up the ghost, the Tigers are playing only once or twice a week, the Catholic Athletic Club not at all, and Goshoms is engrossed in its baseball civil war.

Tommy Hutto, the A. & M. freshman who is not at all sure that he will return to Aggie land after starring in three sports this spring, hurried for the Bulldogs in their 5 to 4 win over the collection of Reids and Walkers, the emphasis strongly on the latter.

A few personals:
 Frank Fisherman, who starred on the Texas frosh eleven in 1930, hopes to make it back to Austin this year. He declares Bond Hilliard should be all-American within in two years and that Ernie Koy will make it this year.

Ted Phillips, basketball captain in 1931, is a backfield candidate at Canyon this fall. The former Bovine end stands an excellent chance of crowding in among the W.T.S.T.C. backfield.

Buster Bell, speed merchant of the '30 club, will return to McMurry within the next month or so. Bell received honorable mention for all T.I.A.A. quarterback last year, and is expected to be the mainstay of Medley's backfield this season.

Grohoma, a crop developed in Oklahoma, a crop developed in Oklahoma by what was reported to be grafting of fetaria and sweet sorghum; Ajex, cross between Kaffir and Fetaria; various varieties of Kaffir including Shrock; Darso, Harvest: four varieties of Fetaria; Ajex; Kaffir; red Kaffir; Texas black kaffir; Reed's kaffir; Fargo mlo; beaver mlo, and regular dwarf mlo are being grown.

A variety each of mlo, fetaria and kaffir that developed stalks only 24 to 30 inches high, but with upright, full heads, is being grown. These varieties, Mr. Keating said, were developed especially for sections where wheat is grown and where combines may be used in harvesting the kaffir, mlo or fetaria.

'Increase' Field
In the large 'increase' field, where mlo for use in the cattle feeding experiments and for seed is grown, the regular dwarf mlo most commonly used by farmers throughout this section is growing beautifully. This field now is one of the finest this section has ever had.
There is one cotton patch of 46 rows, and 47 varieties of cotton.

Two rows of long staple varieties may be seen now.
Fifteen varieties of forage sorghum, a patch of mlo with rows at varying widths from six inches to eight feet, soy beans, cow peas, peanuts, all are thriving.
One plot on the farm has been planted to cotton every season for the 14 years since the farm was established. Mr. Keating said effect of lack of rotation on that plot was beginning to be shown in the yield.

New Foreign Star

To the roster of talented foreign beauties whose historicism has enriched American film productions, notable among whom have been Garbo, Marlene Dietrich, Elissa Landi, Pola Negri, must be added the name of Tala Birrell, Viennese beauty whose film debut in this country is made in a featured role in "The Doomed Battalion," to be exhibited at the Ritz Theatre, Sunday and Monday, with a Saturday night preview.
Tala Birrell was educated for the Furstentum Bismark Lyceum, started her career in operetta in Berlin, attracted Max Reinhardt's attention and became his portage, playing the same roles in his productions in Vienna that Marlene Dietrich played in Berlin.

185 Children In Mexican School

The Mexican school had total enrollment of 185 pupils Monday morning, one week after opening of the 1932-33 season. W. C. Blankenship said. The school added a dozen children Monday morning. It was opened early to allow for a recess during the peak of the cotton-picking season.
The three teachers in the Mexican school have as many pupils now as they had last fall. Mrs. W. E. Martin, teaching the beginners and high first, has 41 and 41, respectively, in those classes a total of 82; Mrs. Curtis, teaching the low and high second classes, has 26 and 16, respectively, in those classes, a total of 59, while Principal John R. Hu-to has 33 in the fourth and fifth grades.
No Mexican children will attend North Ward school this season, said Mr. Blankenship, those above the fifth grade will be enrolled in the Junior High building.
With enrollment steadily gaining the faculty of this school again faced an overcrowded condition, said the superintendent, who added that the problem for the coming season would be exceedingly difficult if equally heavy enrollment occurs in the American schools of the city.

Big Spring Boy To Preach At Revival

At the open air revival now in progress at the Church of God on 10th and Main, Miss Irene Smith, girl evangelist, will preach a special children's sermon Tuesday evening. There will be a children's choir and special music for children.

was just and fair to "the little man."

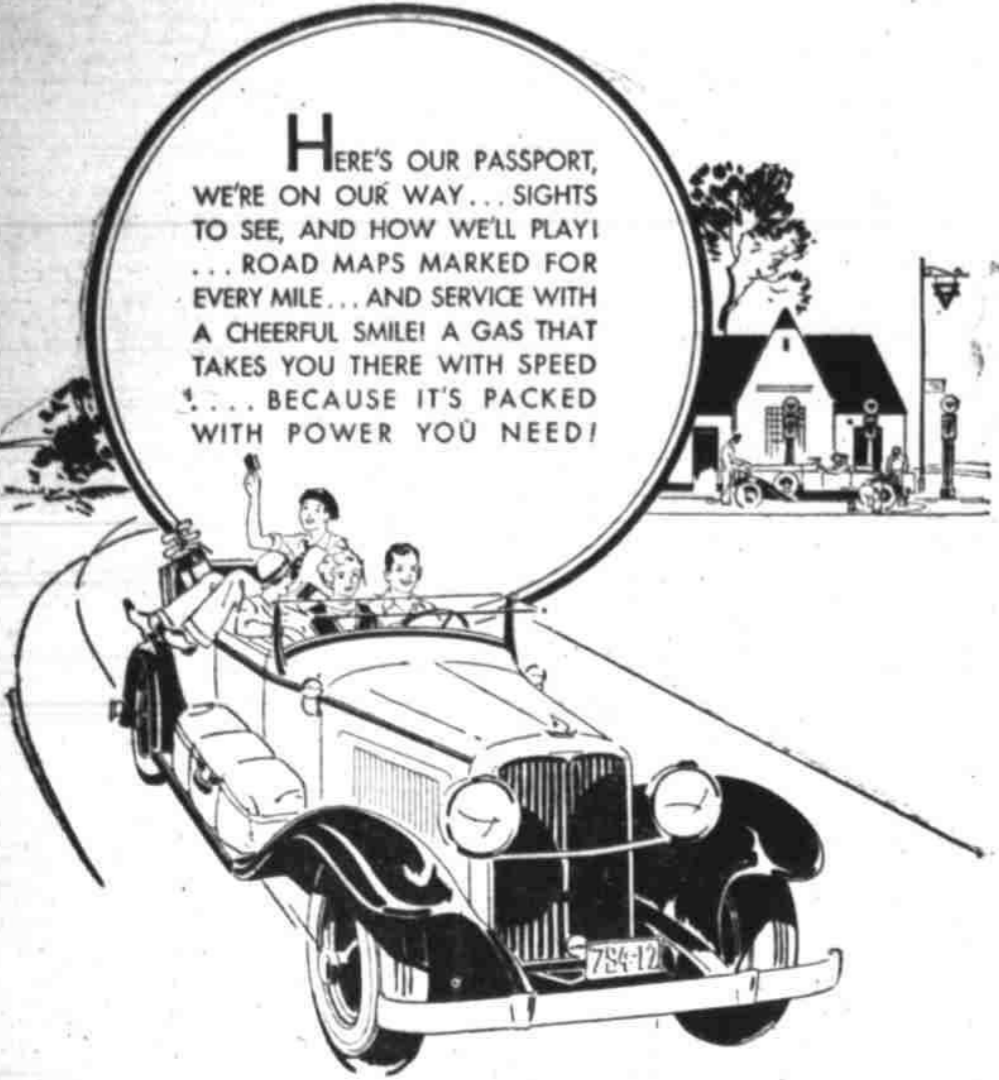

The 'big boys' are not supporting Ross Sterling in this race. James E. Ferguson is the man they want. Ross Sterling has not been on their payrolls as lobbyist, James E. Ferguson has.

The people of Texas in the past two weeks especially have awakened to the fact that their failure to inform themselves of the real motives of the candidates, their failure to rise up and head off the radical or uninformed or misinformed or blindly prejudiced minority was placing their state in imminent danger of being delivered into the hands of the arch political trickster of the nation, the man who has demonstrated he is very smart because he has fooled more people longer than any other politician. Therefore, a majority of the people of Texas, bent straight, thinkers and jealous of the honor of themselves as citizens and of their state, are making ready to overcome a powerful front primary lead and re-elect Ross Sterling.
