DISTRICT COURT ON CRIMINAL DOCKET

Cattle Theft Case Is Occupying Court Today

District Court began work on the Criminal Docket for the term this morning, with the case of the State vs. Vernon Perkins, charged with cattle theft, under way today. Perkins, whose home is near Turkey, is charged with the theft of a cow from S. L. Owens of Turkey. He is represented by Hamilton & Fitzgerald.
John Deaver, district attorney, will be assisted in the prosecution of the case by an attorney from the Cattlemen's Association. Jurymen were being examined this morning by the attorneys, and the case will probably run into tomorrow.
The jury for the week was impaneled and sworn in this morning.
On motion by the district attorney, two cases against Raymond Ballew were ordered passed by the court, due to the law which is alleged to have been broken being recently repealed.
The case of the State of Texas vs. John Lambkin, charged with cattle theft, and the State of Texas vs. W. H. Hawthorn, charged with murder were both set by the court for hearing Wednesday, September 25.
In the case of the State of Texas vs. Hancock, both the state and the defendant's attorney, Hamilton & Fitzgerald, announced themselves as ready for trial, the latter waiving trial by jury for their client. The case will probably be heard later in the week.

AID FOR NEEDY STUDENTS IS AVAILABLE

Thirty-One in County May Be Aided By New Plan

Funds have been made available for a program of financial assistance for single young men and women between the ages of 16 and 25 who are at present unable to attend school for want of money for text books, car fare, lunches and other essentials, from the present time until the end of the spring term, in no case later than June 30, 1936, according to word received from the office of the county school superintendent.
In order for a person to receive this aid, he must be a member of a family certified last May for relief assistance and must be able to do a high grade work in school. He must be able to show that without financial assistance he would not be able to attend school, and he must be in high school. A student who has graduated from any school that teaches eleven grades is not eligible to participate in the high school program.
The quota of students to receive aid for Hall County has been set at 31. Six dollars per month will be paid each student selected for work in the county.
All institutions of high school grade which do not require the equivalent of a high school graduation for entrance shall be included within this program, provided they are organized and operated as institutions which are non-profit making in character.
Aid is provided high school students on part-time jobs. The hourly rate of pay for those students who are granted assistance in return for work that they perform shall be such as is commonly paid by the institution for the type of service rendered. No student shall work more than ten hours in any week, or three hours in any day.
Students will make their application direct to the principal of the school they wish to attend. Miss

President Roosevelt Pinch Hits For His Wife

Pinch hitting for his wife as the speaker, President Franklin D. Roosevelt informally addressed friends and neighbors at Hyde Park, N. Y., and a New Deal parable from the repairs on the White House, comparing them to social and governmental changes. Beside him stands his son, John; and his mother sits on the porch behind them. Mrs. Roosevelt was unable to be present as she was attending the funeral of Mrs. Harold Ickes.

Second Fatality Results From Automobile Crash

Injured Man Dies Amarillo Hospital

John Hooten, enlisted man at the local CCC Camp, who was injured in the automobile collision Friday night near Goodnight, died this morning at 1:45, according to advices received from St. Anthony's Hospital at Amarillo by Lieut. Hill, commanding officer of the local camp.
Hooten, one of the five CCC men in the light coupe which collided with a car driven by Raymond Ballew of this city, sustained a concussion of the brain, and never recovered consciousness before his death. Little hope had been held out for him from the first.
Hooten is the second fatality as a result of the accident, Hardie Graves, the driver of the coupe, having been killed instantly.
Dave Barger, Dick Breedlove and H. Mullins, all CCC men from the local camp, who were with Graves and Hooten in the car, are recovering from minor cuts and bruises, as are Raymond Ballew and Gerald Phipps, occupants of Ballew's car.
Funeral services for Hardy Broyan were held Saturday afternoon from Griggs Chapel, C. Y. Yeargan, chaplain of CCC Company No. 1821 of Memphis, had charge of the services. Graves is survived by his widow, Mrs. Alice Graves, and his mother, Mrs. Mary Graves.
Funeral services for Hooten have not yet been announced.

Install Officers

Tomorrow night at the Legion Hall, the installation of officers for the coming year will be the order of business. A full attendance is urged. Mixing pleasure with business, doughnuts and coffee will be served, and all ex-service men who care to attend are most cordially invited.

AMARILLO TRIP PLANS WELL ADVANCED

Memphis And Turkey Legionnaires To Make Trip

Arrangements are going forward for the caravan of school children to the Tri-State Fair at Amarillo Saturday, according to Director Milam, of the Gold Medal Band, which will accompany the caravan.
Mr. Milam states that arrangements have been made for both the local and Turkey American Legionnaires, with their colors and color guards, to be in the delegation and appear in the parade on reaching Amarillo.
An invitation has been extended to the Quitaque schools to join in the trip to the fair.
Mr. Milam visited the Parnell school authorities yesterday, in regard to the trip. Parnell has two school buses, in addition to those under control of the County School Board, and it is probable that they will be in the caravan, loaded with school children from Parnell.
"Indications now are that every seat in the 14 or 16 buses to make the trip will be occupied, and if Hall County doesn't make a good showing, it will not be well pleased with his new location on the part of the schools," said Mr. Milam.

Frank's Moving To New Location

Frank's Department Store will open at its new location at 113 Sixth Street within the next few days, Frank Bayouth, owner and manager of the dry goods concern, said this morning.
Work has been underway for the past several days on the building which will house Frank's store. A complete new flooring has been put down. New shelves are now being made, and the merchandise is being moved.
Mr. Bayouth stated that he was well pleased with his new location and with the comfortable quarters afforded.

TEACHERS MEET AND ORGANIZE GROUPS

Primary Teachers Of County Prepare For Year

A meeting of all primary teachers in the county was held in the office of the county school superintendent here Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.
A discussion was held on seat work and notebook work for the ensuing year, according to Miss Vera Gilreath, county school superintendent. Work from the Southwestern Seat Company was adopted as a county-wide unit of work for the primary grades. Material for work will be ordered from the company immediately.
The following groups were organized to prepare the material for use:
Group 1—Mrs. T. V. Phillips, Pleasant Valley; Mrs. B. Morris, Indian Creek; Miss Esta McElrath, Alaska, and Miss Maggie Bryan, El.
Group 2—Mrs. J. W. D. Chappell, Brice; Mrs. Carl Bond, Lee; Mrs. Ira Lassater, Fairview; Miss Bernice Griffith, Webster, and Miss Dorothy Anderson, Deep Lake.
Group 3—Mrs. G. H. Eaten, Wolf Flag; Mrs. Sibble Clark, Bridle Pitt; Miss Carrie Buchanan, Leach; Mrs. Opal Black, Buffalo Flat, and Mrs. J. M. Parsons, Weatherly.
Group 4—Miss Rosalie Carter, Parnell; Miss Elua Saye, Newlin; Mrs. T. O. Neely, Salisbury; Mrs. Nada V. Offholter, Friendship, and Miss Alice Baker, Gammage.
Each member will be notified when her group will meet.

INJURED IN PLAY

Jack Patrick, nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Patrick, sustained a painful cut on one of his legs yesterday, while playing at the home of his uncle, Ernest Rascoe, in this city. The young man received medical attention at a local hospital, and is now wearing a cast and thinking over the matter of too strenuous play.

Junior CC Anxious To Organize Scouts

OFFICERS FIND Only One Troop Now Active Here

John W. Dillon, 13-year old lad from Whitesboro, who, with his brother, ran away from home last week, was located by local officers from the Sheriff's department yesterday, on the T. D. Weatherly place.
Texas radio stations broadcast appeals Friday from the frantic mother and father of the lads, who feared foul play in their disappearance.
Receiving information that the lads might be in this county, local officers located him at the Weatherly place. He was brought to this city and placed in jail while his parents were communicated with.
He said that his brother had stopped at Vernon, and was planning to go from there to Crowell. Officers at both cities were notified to be on the lookout for the boy.
On receiving his promise that he would head straight back home, and on the approval of his folks, the lad was released this morning, and is presumably on his way home by the hitch-hike method.

Stormy Session Coroner's Inquiry

By Associated Press
BATON ROUGE, Sept. 16—Testimony that Huey Long's mouth bore a fresh cut when he reached the hospital with a pistol wound the night Dr. Carl Weiss Jr., was shot as the slayer, threw the coroner's investigation into a furor, and led to many conjectures over what had really happened the night of the tragedy.
Dr. W. A. Cook said it looked like a fresh abrasion, but was not bleeding. He said he did not know what caused it, but that it could have been caused by forcible contact with any hard surface.
Attorney General Porterie said that Long bruised his mouth when he stumbled down the stairs after being shot.
Rev. Gerald Smith, organizer of Share the Wealth clubs, charged that District Attorney John Odum, representing the state, was a plunger against Long, and that he refused to be questioned by Odum.

Nations Line Up Against Italy

By Associated Press
Three small countries, Panama, Haiti and the Irish Free State, today demanded that the League of Nations take steps to prevent Italy's contemplated invasion of Ethiopia.
General Alfred Nemours of Haiti warned that the "colored peoples of the world are watching," and that the period of colonial wars is closed.
President DeValera, of the Irish Free State, declared that the "final test of the League of Nations and all it stands for has come."
The panama delegate said that his nation's vote would always be for peace.
The authoritative Italian newspaper, LaStampa, said today that if France spurns Italy's friendship over the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, she may never regain it.
Reliable sources disclosed today that an economic boycott against Italy if they launch an unprovoked assault against Ethiopia was being worked out among certain League of Nations members.

NEWLIN SCHOOLS DOING EXTRA WORK

Activity Period Held Each Day Following School Hours

Teachers in the Newlin school system are doing an original and worthwhile bit of extra-curricular work this year, according to Miss Vera Gilreath, county school superintendent.
An activity period is being conducted from 3:30 until 4:45 o'clock at the Newlin school. During this time classes are held in manual training, art, public speaking, home economics and Little Theater work.
These classes are held after the regular school day is over and the children are waiting for the bus from Estelline to come and take them home. The bus goes by way of Gilpin and does not reach Newlin until almost 5 o'clock. In order to conserve the spare time and to keep the students occupied, the teachers have shown initiative by installing the activity period, the county school superintendent said.
Other schools over the county would do well to follow this example and institute some sort of activity instead of turning the children loose, Miss Gilreath said.
BASS AT DALLAS
James E. Bass began work this morning in the district offices of the WTA, at Dallas, where he will be a supervisor over five states. Mrs. Bass will join him at Dallas soon and they will make their home in that city.

SUPPORT THE CYCLONE

THE high school football season begins locally this week, with the Memphis High Cyclone going to Paducah Thursday for a non-conference game with the Paducah squad.

As is universal among football coaches, whether high school or major university, Coach "Chesty" Walker is singing the Pre-Season Blues, but don't pay too much attention to Chesty. The Cyclone is going to be a team we will be proud of, and one to merit the undivided support of the local fans.

Memphis has always given the Cyclone good support, and this year we will have all the more reason to get behind them. They are playing this year for the first time in a football stadium of which any city of many times this size might well be proud.

Let's all get behind the Cyclone and help them make their first season in Cyclone Stadium one to be long remembered. The boys are all going to be in there trying with might and main to avoid a defeat on their new field.

The school is going to do its part in the matter of supporting the team, with the organization of a pep squad of 150, and a 25 piece girls drum corps.

It is up to you and you and you to give them the support they merit. Let's help them finish the 1935 season without a defeat on the turf of the new Cyclone Stadium.

THE CORNER

ACCORDING to President Roosevelt, we are now turning the corner around which Prosperity has been hiding so long. We believe the President is right, and if that is true, we take off our hat to the New Deal. It had some features which did not suit all of us, but there is little doubt that it did much to restore public confidence, and as soon as the people of the country became prosperity minded, prosperity was on its way back.

SHIP HEREFORDS

BRADY, Sept. 14—Three car-loads of Hereford calves will be shipped from here soon by James Brock to the farm of Henry Ford, near Detroit. The 150 head represent the top steers of the Brock herd.

A ranch manager recently sent some pictures of Brock's prize-winning calves to Mr. Ford, and the order followed. He will experiment with finishing them with soy beans and other forage.

The BLUE DOOR

By Rachel Mack © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY RUTH WOODSON, a pretty, high-spirited girl of 19, in search of work, is put off a bus in the little town of Worthville when she runs out of money. A storm is breaking and Ruth seeks refuge in an old stone mansion with a blue door. She faints and is carried upstairs by the queer old housekeeper, BERTHA GIBBS, also known as "PENNY," and by JOHN McNEILL, from next door.

Penny believes Ruth to be ELAINE CHALMERS, whose grandfather built the house. Ruth lets the mistake stand. Elaine meanwhile, at Graycastle College, vows in a sorority meeting to win the love of John McNeill, her first sweetheart. She plans to go to Worthville.

Ruth, in love with John, resolves to stay on a while at the old house, pretending to be Elaine. His car blows out a tire and while he is working with it, John McNeill, returning from a business trip, offers to help. Smith dismisses him. Later both men wonder where they have seen the other before. John, driving home, thinks of the girl he calls "Elaine" and realizes that he loves her.

Now go on with the story

CHAPTER XV

Soon after Penny's return from town the groceries arrived. Ruth helped her put them away on the pantry shelves. Studying the ample outlay, Ruth suggested: "Suppose I make you a cake, Penny? A day-late birthday cake!"

"My?" exclaimed Penny in surprise. "That would be grand. I can't recall when I had a cake—but can you cook, Miss Elaine?"

"I can cook better than I can play golf," replied Ruth impressively and with secret humor. "I learned it at school."

"I can't hardly believe it!" Penny marveled. "You cookin' a cake? It looks like there's no end to the ways you surprise me."

Ruth was collecting materials—eggs, flour, sugar, baking powder—and was locating a mixing bowl. "We'll put beaten egg whites in the icing," she said, "since you've got plenty of fresh eggs."

Penny ventured timidly. "Could you somehow make the icing pink, Miss Elaine? I always thought it would be elegant to have a cake with pink icing."

"Why, yes," Ruth answered, after thinking over the pathetic request. "I can color it with a little of the water you're cooking the beefs in. At least I'll do my best."

In an hour the cake was cooling and waiting for its decoration. Ruth contrived to color the icing by boiling the sugar in the beef water. The result was such a delicate pink froth as to gladden Penny's heart. Tears of pride came to the old woman's eyes as she surveyed the beautiful, three-story structure which had been made for her with such infinite pains. "I never thought to have the like!" she exclaimed.

"We'll cut it tonight after supper," Ruth said. "White it's still soft and fresh."

Later, after Penny had served Ruth and had cleared the supper table of the simple one-course meal, the cake was brought on. Since it was Penny's cake, Ruth felt it was ridiculous that it should be served by Penny rather than share with Penny. She thought: "I know Elaine would never do it, but I'm going to ask her to sit down at the table with me, so we can eat it together."

She did. The old woman, after a bit of demurring, drew up a chair to the big walnut table and eagerly held out her plate for one of the soft, thick slices.

She had just begun to eat, wearing a blissfully happy expression on her face, when there came echoing through the house the sound of a knocker striking a door. Her jaws stopped in mid-air, as it were, while she hunched forward to listen. The knocking came again.

Old Bertha laid down her cake and got up. "I'll see who 'tis," she said. "It's likely a peddler. You wait here—" She lighted an extra candle and went out into the hall, closing the heavy door behind her.

Ruth tasted the cake critically. It was light and fine textured and utterly delicious. She ate a second slice, growing wistful in her culinary accomplishments. She thought: "I wonder if John McNeill likes cake?" She pictured herself stirring up one for him, standing in a big green and white kitchen with gingham curtains at the windows and geraniums blooming on the window sills. In the fancied kitchen she wore a white linen house dress; a red ribbon was tied about her head. There was a stretch of smooth lawn visible through the windows, and an old-fashioned flower garden. Like the one next door. Ruth imagined John McNeill coming into the driveway in his car, and jumping out and dashing into the kitchen and taking her in his arms and saying, "What! Baking another cake?" And her answer, "But you know you like cake, John!"

When she realized that she was day dreaming in this sentimental fashion she blushed furiously and jumped to her feet. "I won't!" she told herself sharply. "I'll like him and enjoy him while I'm here, but I won't fall so hard I'll have a broken heart to carry away with me!"

She began to collect the dishes and to take them to the kitchen. She forced herself to stop thinking of John. Instead, she despatched her mind to recalling the most absorbing book she had ever read. The book was a fairly old one—Beau Geste—and if one of the attractive young men who faced peril in the Foreign Legion had John McNeill's face she let it pass. At least there was no heroine in the story who looked like herself.

She drew hot water and washed the dishes. It was not until she heard Penny's returning footsteps in the big butler's pantry that Ruth realized how long the old woman had been gone. During the past half hour she had all but forgotten Penny's existence.

"I saved your cake for you, Penny," she said. "It's there on the plate. Whatever kept you so long?"

Bertha Gibbs made no answer. She looked blankly at the plate which Ruth held out to her. It was as if she had never seen the cake before, the beautiful cake with the pink icing, made especially for her.

Ruth felt a surge of irritation. "You'd only taken a couple of bites, Penny," she reminded her. "Do finish it and cut yourself some more. It's on the dining table, with the knife beside it."

"Oh yes," replied Bertha, and she took the plate and sat down at the kitchen table. Her hands were trembling. All color was drained from her face. She stared at the cake unseeing, and then she began to crumble it in her fingers.

Ruth finished tidying the kitchen and watched her in puzzled silence. Presently she asked gently, "Has something happened to shock you, Penny? Was that a telegram at the door?"

The old woman looked at her intently and then lowered her eyes. "Yes," she said, "a telegram. A body never knows what to expect these days."

"Was it bad news?" asked Ruth anxiously. "Was it about your job here?"

"Not that," replied the old woman harshly. "Something else. Something I've hoped for for a long time. And—and dreaded."

"Oh!" said Ruth. She wondered where the telegram was. In Penny's apron pocket, perhaps. She asked, "Would it help you any to share the news with me?"

Bertha Gibbs shook her head, seemed to draw within herself. "I'll share the news with nobody!" she said defiantly. "Don't keep at me!" She was a changed person. Before that knock on the door she had been merely a pathetic, dingy little old woman, eagerly happy over a cake with pink icing. She had returned from the summons-like a weird old witch, suspicious, baleful, remote.

Ruth shivered a little. Darkness had fallen outside and a drizzling rain had set in. Sudden gusts of wind sent the leaves scurrying. The McNeill house was dark across the lawn. John had told Ruth that he would spend the day in Akron and that he was having dinner tonight with one of the men in his firm, a man named Bennet. Mrs. Bennet's niece was visiting them and John had been asked to make a fourth at dinner and bridge.

Ruth thought, looking across at the dark house, "I guess he's terribly in demand because he's so attractive and tried not to hate her."

She turned from the window and lighted another candle, a thick one that stood in a heavy holder and gave off a light that was strong enough for reading. She would go into the library, she decided, and choose a book to read in her room. Something that would make her sleepy, so she wouldn't lie awake through the long evening waiting for John McNeill to leave Mrs. Bennet's niece.

Ignoring Penny's strange rudeness, she fully selected her Hawthorne's "Mosses from an Old Manse," certain again and as she went toward the stairs she by her own reflecting pier glass that stood

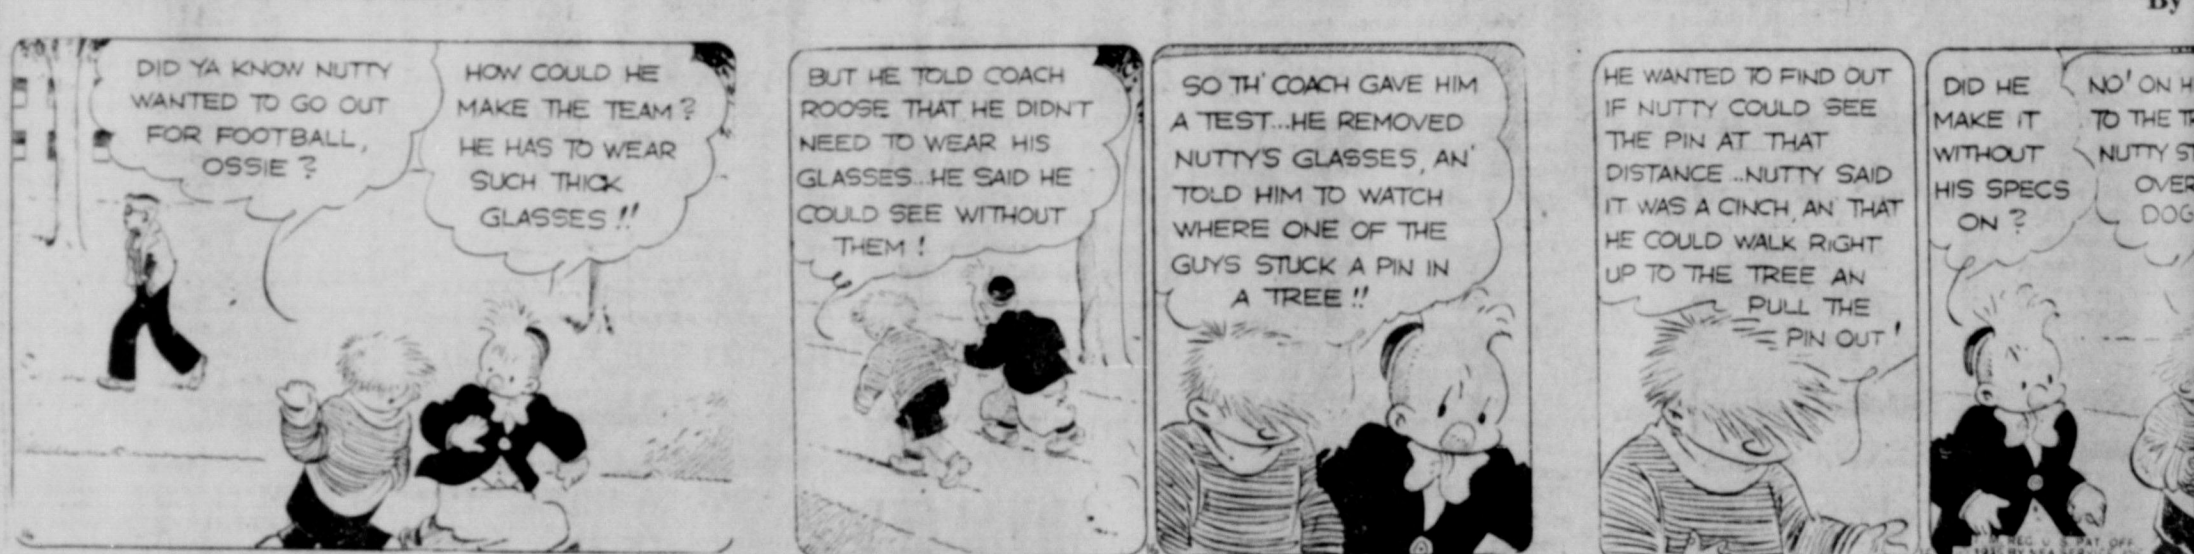

"I make a pretty thought in surprise, pathetic enough to admit it. The mirror lovely young girl from ering light, holding a book, and about winding stair."

But suddenly she her something else other picture. In shadowy aiming At the table stood activities etched by candle that stood (Continued on

Offer Prize For Model Home Plan

DALLAS, Sept. 16.—Prizes aggregating $2,500 in cash are offered for the best architectural plans for a model concrete home to be erected in the Better Homes

Division of the Texas Centennial Exposition.

The competition, open to architects, engineers and draftsmen of Texas, is sponsored by the Portland Cement Association.

Eleven prizes are offered for the best designs, the first prize being $1,000 and others ranging from $250 to $500. The building must not cost more than $4,500. The winner will supervise construction.

Details of the competition may be obtained from the Cement Association's offices, 1301 Norwood Building, Austin, or from Ralph Brown, Dallas architect who has been appointed technical advisor.

Memphis Men On S. M. U. Squad

When Coaches Matty Bell, Vic Hurt and Charlie Trigg called the roll for the first practice of the Southern Methodist Mustang football team on the morning of September 10, two former Memphis stars answered the call.

Charles Flanery, captain of the 1933 team here, and Tug Sanders, four-year letterman for the Cyclone, are the men on the S. M. U. squad from here.

Sanders, who played guard, tackle and end here, started over half of the games for S. M. U. last year at a tackle position. As a junior this year, he is expected to be one of the regular tackles.

Flanery, 180-pound back, is reporting for the S. M. U. freshman team. For the past two years Flanery starred at halfback for the Decatur Baptist College eleven, a junior college team.

Allred Submits Liquor Measures

AUSTIN, Sept. 16.—Governor Allred submitted the matter of liquor regulation to the special session of the 44th Legislature, meeting here at noon today.

The governor called for legislation clearly defining the "open saloon" and preserving the integrity of all territory dry under the local option law.

He announced that he would submit the subject of fixing the salaries of county officers tomorrow, and within the week would submit the matter of old age pensions.

The governor declared that no legislature had ever been called in special session to deal with problems of greater importance, and that the combined wisdom of both legislative and executive departments would be necessary to solve them.

"In my humble judgement," he said, "the people want no subtlety definition or camouflaged saloons, whereby, even though the brass rail may be outlawed, yet practically the same evils of open saloon sales will again be upon us.

What we want is a clear cut, simple and understandable definition and prohibition of the open saloon, so as to carry out both the letter and spirit of the constitutional amendment."

The governor did not commit himself as to the merits of either the state monopoly or private licensing systems of liquor control, saying the legislature had power to establish either.

Solons said that there were prospects of a stormy session. Speaker Coke Stevenson and Lieutenant Governor Walter Woodall said, after a conference with the governor, that the session might be finished in thirty days, but others said it might last until Christmas.

Bitter clashes are forecast on any bill relating to liquor regulation. The Senate rejected all officers. Senator Martin of Hillsboro was elected President pro tem, succeeding Senator Reditt of Lufkin.

The first bill introduced was an agreed wet bloc measure to regulate liquor by licensing. The second bill, appropriating $100,000 for expenses of the session, was promptly passed.

Tobacco-Can Bank Retired

GREEN BAY, Wis., Sept. 15—A tobacco-can "bank" has been retired after serving at least six Brown County sheriffs here in making change for serving papers and paying fees to witnesses. Muth-proving did not prompt substitution of a miniature cedar chest, however, the sheriff insisted.
