Advance Seat Sale To Follies Continued At Tarver's Saturday

Through the courtesy of the management of Tarver's Pharmacy, "On the Corner," tickets to the "Football Follies of 1930" will be on sale at this establishment throughout the day Saturday, January 25...

Many Good Seats Remain
A number of choice seats for both nights the performance will be staged, Thursday, February 6, and Friday, February 7, have already been disposed of, but an equal number of good seats still remain. The management of the Follies hopes to have the seat sale definitely over with and out of the way some time in advance of the actual production and those who have delayed purchasing tickets should do so at once.

Balcony Seats Cheaper
The balcony seats are good ones and do not cost as much as those on the main floor of the auditorium. The former are available at 75 cents each while those downstairs sell for one dollar each. All seats in the house are reserved for both evenings of the performance. Be sure to purchase tickets at Tarver's next Saturday and help make the Follies an unqualified success.

FROM THE PEOPLE

Editor, Democrat:
If you think the undermentioned article worth publishing, I would be glad to have you do it. I am just a plain old cotton buyer and not used to writing for a newspaper.

About this time each year, the farmer as a rule receives lots of advice in regard to what or what not to plant, and one thing he is always told to do is "cut down on the cotton acreage." When in his spare moments, he thinks and studies over the situation, he decides for himself, "Well, my neighbors are going to cut their acreage so I will plant more as it ought to bring a good price next season with a short crop," with the result that instead of planting less he finds all his friends have planted more and more cotton, and the following is what I wish the farmer to bear in mind:

Previous to the year 1920, the world in general was practically dependent upon the Southern farmer for the cotton supply. Today, these conditions have changed considerably; not only is India and Egypt producing more cotton, but such countries as Brazil, Peru, East and West Africa, Turkey, Iraq, Persia, Australia and even Russia are growing their own cotton. These countries will certainly not reduce their acreage, but the tendency will be to increase home supplies and if the farmer of the South puts in anything like the acreage he did during the past year, then it would be no surprise were cotton to go to ten cents, much as the newly-created Cotton Corporation or the Co-ops would like to help the farmer, they would be helpless unless the farmer will help them by reducing the acreage, the price in the long run will be governed by supply and demand.

Another important item is this, the value of planting good seed during the past year or so cotton has been bought on a staple basis, instead of the old way of buying on grade alone, and it behooves a farmer to buy seed that he knows will produce a staple length of at least seven-eighths. By doing this, he will receive a fair price for his bale, instead of being penalized to the extent of ten dollars per bale for staple under seven-eighths. Better to leave one quarter of the land out and receive twenty cents for your labors than to plant all in cotton and get no price for it.

(Signed),
WALTER FULLER,

Complete Electrical Equipment

An analysis of electrification in West Texas shows a development startling in its completeness, and almost unbelievable in the brief span of time during which this electrical transformation has taken place.

And yet—the top has just been scratched!

Numberless small communities, and countless individual farmers and ranchers are just awakening to a realization of the extreme economy of electrical service.

They have come to realize that Electricity can perform the tasks at which they have been toiling in a fraction of the time, and at a fraction of the expense of old-time, old-fashioned methods.

Have you fully investigated the many electrical time and labor-saving devices which you can install at small expense, and operate for practically nothing? Come in, and let us talk things over—you will be surprised at the extreme economy of complete electrical equipment.

ties, Chancellorsville, Sharpsburg, Gettysburg, the Wilderness, Petersburg, was his great soul so shaken as on that night in his room at Arlington when this momentous decision was trembling in the balance. Even now, after the lapse of 65 years, no generous heart can contemplate without emotion and admiration this midnight wrestling of a brave and unselfish man. One question alone presented itself to his great soul. "What is my duty?" He put aside ambition, personal inclination, every selfish interest. Nothing weighed in the balance at that supreme moment but the purest, highest and most unselfish motives. General Scott, the veteran commander, earnestly sought to persuade Lee not to throw his commission, telling him it would be the greatest mistake of his life, but to all his pleading, Lee returned but one answer, that was duty to his home, his native state, Virginia, and his beloved Southland, saying "with all my devotion to the Union, the feeling of loyalty and duty of an American citizen, I have not been able to make up my mind to raise my hand against my relatives, my children, my home and state."

Purchase Stratford Hall
In 1928, the United Daughters of the Confederacy purchased Stratford Hall, the birthplace of Lee, paying $200,000 for the old mansion. This organization plans to make the house a national shrine, but also an educational memorial and a center of historical research. A small remnant of that once proud army which marched to the stirring strains of "Dixie" under the banner of these generals is left to tell the story of the great struggle against the overwhelming odds.

Three Confederates Remain
Only a few years ago, a wide awake Confederate Camp, with a large membership, existed in Memphis. Only three Confederate soldiers are now living in Memphis. In honor of these Confederate soldiers, through their valiant service, helped to place the names of these great men in the highest niches of fame and honor, we dedicate these lines:
"As the twilight shadows gather, And you face the setting sun; We would strew your pathway with flowers, Ere your earthly race in run."
"And when you enter the portals, Of the land beyond the sky, We will bring you praise in song and story, As the days and years go by."
When in the beautiful city you rest under the shade of the trees with the gallant and matchless Jackson and the glorious and knightly Lee, remember the United Daughters of the Confederacy, one hundred thousand strong, will ever uphold the unstained banner, as we go marching on!

rapidly rounding into shape, and by the time set for the presentation of the 1930 Follies. I feel sure that I need have no uneasiness as to the way the individual members will conduct themselves on the stage.

It may not be exactly ethical to write so much about a show as has been helping with, but I earnestly believe the people of Memphis will have a genuine surprise in store for themselves when they witness the production next month. The talent selected for the Follies is extraordinarily good. Each member of the cast is beginning to feel at home in his/her role and all are working for the common good. It is a genuine pleasure to be able to work with such people. It is inspiring, and I could not refrain from using a part of this space to let the public know just a little of their efforts.

The ticket sale is so rapid that through the management of Tarzany, we have been enabled to sell the tickets on sale throughout the day Saturday, January 25. If I had any doubts of telling the public just how good the coming show is to me, I would do so, but they will see for themselves, and I guarantee it will be a revelation.

I would not have it thought for a moment that I am trying to get my own horn. Nothing is removed from the truth. The hard work is being done by those in the cast. They are the ones who will make the production a success. They have given many ideas which I have been able to incorporate in the music-comedy, and every idea, with exception, has been beneficial and helpful.

So far as I know, no similar attraction, such as the lies will be, has ever been staged in Memphis. We are using one of the best music available for the production. The play is gripping and has in it many elements of merriment and good humor. Those of you, if any, who in the habit of going around with a frown should come out one night to the entertainment I am offering and laugh the such off. It will do you good and you will feel better for the rest of the year.

Memphis Drops—

Illness. Martindale is an outstanding member of the squad and his loss crippled the team to an extent that they seemed sluggish and slow throughout the game.

Lineups for Game

The lineups for the game last night were as follows: Memphis, Roy Stargel, forwards; Smith, center; J. W. West, J. D. Jackson, guards. Substitutes for Memphis were O. B. Smith, Barney Barnett, Carl Merritt, Gerald Mabry and Reginald Penhew; Wellington, Nunley, Williams, forwards, Johnson, center; Breedlove and Wood, guards.

High Point Man

Williams, Wellington forward, was the high point man of the game last night, having accounted for nine of the 23 points scored by his team. He was closely followed by Johnson, Wellington center. Roy Stargel, captain of the Memphis team, was high point man for Memphis, with six points to his credit.

Appreciation Expressed

The close of the cooking school today was marked by expressions of appreciation by the women of Memphis on the wonderful benefits that they had derived from Miss Chitwood's visit to this city, several voicing the opinion that they were "sorry the school could last only four days."

Was Well Received

Miss Christeen Chitwood, of the famous Chitwood School of Cookery, Health and Charm, has been well received by the women of this city. She is an example of modern youth who has accomplished much at an early age, and who is helping thousands of women to make their home work easier, their foods more fitted to the nutrition of the body, more pleasing to the eye, more palatable and less expensive.

Ways to Keep Young

In the course of her four days in Memphis, she gave helpful lectures and demonstrations on the methods of savings in foods and household equipment that up to the present time had not been divulged to the public. She had many delicious and attractive dishes for the creation of which she is famous in the East. In addition, she told the women how they could do their work with greater ease and efficiency and with less worry and dread, giving many pointers on the ways and means of keeping young and telling how to avoid the wrinkles and surplus flesh that come with age. Proper methods of reducing were also discussed.

Knowledge of Cookery

Miss Chitwood's knowledge of cookery and foods has been gained by laboratory work and from practical experience in her own kitchen, but her lectures were not dry discussions of calories, hydro-carbonates and proteins. Rather, they abounded in essential, practical ways of making food, cooked to serve, according to her directions, tasty and appetizing. Throughout the course of the school the keynote was to encourage better health through better and properly prepared food, and at a minimum cost.

New Orleans Fire Claims Lives Of 14 Thoroughbreds

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 23 (UP)—Fourteen thoroughbred race horses were burned to death and two stable hands were badly burned by a fire which destroyed two stables at the Fair Grounds race track today. A vicious dog attempting to protect his master's property is held responsible for the death of several of the prize animals by making it difficult to get them from the burning buildings.

Mrs. R. L. Smith returned to her home near Ft. Worth after spending three weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Self.

May Enters Race For Co. Sheriff

The Democrat is authorized to announce the candidacy of J. D. May, of Memphis, for the office of Sheriff of Hall County for the next term, subject to the action of the Democratic primaries next summer.

Mr. May was reared in Collin County, Texas, but has been a resident of Hall County since 1921. He states that he is amply qualified for the duties of the office to which he aspires, having had twenty years' experience as a peace officer in Texas and Oklahoma. He is at present Constable of Precinct No. 1, at Memphis.

Mr. May has many friends in Hall County whom, he believes, will espouse his candidacy and will be ready and willing at all times to give information as to his qualifications and his ability as a peace officer. He points to his record of service in Hall County during the past nine years which he will be glad for anyone who is interested to investigate.

Mr. May promises, if elected, to perform his duties as sheriff in an honest, fair and impartial manner, and he also promises to perform these duties without fear or favor to the very best of his ability, and he says he will make an effort to see every voter possible and personally submit his claims during the campaign, and his friends bespeak for him a full and free consideration at the hands of the voters of Hall County. The voters are asked to carefully consider the claims of Mr. May when they make their selection of a sheriff for the coming term.

Expansion Program

Painting Department

The painting department also includes a sanding, grinding and polishing machine, used to make the metal smooth before paint is applied, permitting a perfect finish that will take a good polish. All smaller tools incidental to first class workmanship are also to be found at the Norman establishment.

The firm has recently completed several auto body rebuilding jobs on large cars in Memphis.

Stimson Says Navy Could Be Reduced

LONDON, Jan. 23. (UP)—Secretary of State Stimson told the Naval Conference today that the United States Navy could be reduced. This statement was made at the first business session of the conference. He said that the national requirements are largely relative and that an agreement basis would enable the American navy to be cut.

The session of the Naval Conference today was devoted to a discussion and explanation of the requirements of each of the five powers. The representatives spoke in general terms.

EARLE B. MAYFIELD ANNOUNCES FOR GOVERNOR

FORMAL announcement was made in The Democrat last Sunday of the candidacy of former United States Senator Earle B. Mayfield of Austin for the Democratic nomination of Governor of Texas, subject to the action of the Democratic primaries to be held in July and August. The fact that Mayfield has entered the race will make the other candidates scratch their heads in an effort to announce specific planks and platforms. It seems to us that Mayfield "has the jump" on the entire field, by coming out with his complete platform at this time. He is the first candidate to do so. The other platforms, as announced, have been of a general nature. Mayfield says he is for and against and a candidate having that attitude commands far more respect than one who waits to see what the other boys are going to say and do before he does anything.

Five planks in Senator Mayfield's platform should be enough to carry the entire western portion of our state for this candidate. First, in platform No. 10, he says that the additional Congressmen to which Texas will be entitled after the census ought to go to the sections of the state where the increase in population has occurred. "If West Texas is entitled to them, she ought to have them, and no political juggling that will rob her of her rights should be tolerated." That is speaking plain English. West Texas is entitled to them, and Mayfield, if elected Governor, will do his part in seeing that our section of the state is cared for adequately in this respect.

The eleventh plank in the Senator's platform deals with irrigation and reclamation, subjects in which all West Texans are interested. He says that he will give his "enthusiastic support"—not merely his support, but his "enthusiastic support" to such legislation as would push to completion every feasible project of irrigation, reclamation or flood control, no matter where its location.

Another pain in the side of West Texans is ameliorated in the twelfth plank, dealing with state-owned waters. He says that all doubt as to the policy of the state in the distribution of its waters should be removed, and that this can be brought about by amending the present law so that the appropriation of waters for power purposes shall be subordinate to the right of the state to make appropriations for the use of such waters for municipal, domestic and irrigation purposes.

The fourth reason why Mayfield will get a large vote in West Texas is due to his promise in Plank No. 13 to repay cotton farmers in ten West Texas counties for financial losses sustained in 1928 by the quarantine regulations of the state that compelled them to fumigate their cotton and to sterilize their cotton seed because of the appearance of a few pink boll worms in these counties. Mayfield says he would approve legislation paying these losses, that was fairly and honestly computed.

The bone of contention in the Panhandle particularly is met squarely by Senator Mayfield in his fourteenth plank, which has to do with land titles. He says: "Land titles should be quieted by establishing, beyond controversy, corners and boundaries that have been recognized over a long period of years. If, in the opinion of the proper officers of the state, excesses and vacancies actually exist, they should be withdrawn from sale until that question has been judicially determined in a suit brought by the state in the county where the excess or vacancy is supposed to exist. Where excesses or vacancies have been judicially determined to be the property of the state, it occurs to me that it would be fair and right for the state to give the owner of the land, in which the excess or vacancy was found to exist, the preference right of ninety days in which to purchase the same on terms to be fixed by the state."

The five planks enumerated above are enough, it seems to us, to merit the confidence and support by West Texans of Senator Mayfield's candidacy. When it is taken into consideration that each of the twenty-two planks in his platform has been so promulgated as to work in the interests of the public good, we do not see how any rising candidate can take the right of conquest away from Mayfield by defeating him in his set purposes and desires.

In his handling of the highway situation, the penitentiary system, the pardoning power, the relief for ex-service men, education and many other problems, we concur heartily with the Senator in his plans. We believe that every right thinking man and woman in the state will do likewise.

The name of Mayfield has been in politics here in Texas for many years. The brilliant record that the former Senator has achieved in public life entitles him, beyond the question of a doubt, to be the chief executive of this great state. Mayfield is, first of all, a statesman. In every campaign he wages, he rises above littleness and meanness. He does not go about over the state deriding his opponents, but rather, he discusses issues and the people of Texas are thoroughly tired of the injection of personalities into political campaigns. In the preface to his platform, Mayfield promises the people that his campaign will be conducted on a high plane, worthy of the office he seeks. He says that he "indulges the hope that prejudice and malice, spite and envy, hatred and jealousy may take refuge in the forgotten incidents of the past and that the campaign may be confined to a discussion of those problems that so vitally concern the welfare and happiness of our people."

Mayfield, more than any man who has announced for the office of Governor of Texas, is fitted by temperament, experience and ability to fill with credit that greatest of offices in the gift of the voters of Texas. If he is elected, the influence of the man in a national way will be felt all the more. His friends in national politics are legion. He has the capacity for making and holding friends, and past experience has shown that every Governor of Texas needs all the friends he can gather about him, who are honestly desirous of seeing the affairs of this great commonwealth taken care of with statesmanlike ability.

Earle B. Mayfield has served the State of Texas, first as State Senator, then as Railroad Commissioner and more recently as United States Senator. In every honor bestowed on him since entering public life, Mayfield has proved equal to the responsibilities imposed upon him. It is commonly known that Senator Mayfield is perhaps the best posted man in the United States on matters having to do with railroads. He is equally appreciated by every man and woman who earn a living with their hands. He has stood forth as the champion of labor on every occasion and has been the champion of the working man in battles for equal rights, adequate salaries and compensation, and in general, is known and loved by every working man in Texas who has kept abreast of the times in reading the remedial legislation that Mayfield has been able to "put over."

Earle B. Mayfield was not born "with a silver spoon." He has worked and worked hard for every position he has held, for every honor that has been accorded to him. He is not afraid of work; in fact, he fattens on it. If the people of Texas see fit to honor him in the July primaries with the great office of Governor of Texas, he will be true to the public trust. He will make them an outstanding chief executive—the kind that has been needed in this state for the past ten or twelve years.

Mayfield is still a comparatively young man—under fifty years of age. He is just entering into the zenith of his powers. He has come out with a platform that will mean much to the Texas of Today and still more for the Texas of tomorrow. He is such a man as can be counted on to deliver campaign promises. It is up to the voters of Texas to keep such men as Mayfield in public life. They owe it to themselves and to their state. A vote for Earle B. Mayfield in the coming primaries is a vote for progress, and we believe West Texas will back this candidate to the limit. We go on record at this time as supporting the candidacy of Earle B. Mayfield for the Democratic nomination of Governor of Texas, feeling that in doing so, we are best serving the people of the Panhandle and of West Texas generally.

Frank Cox Enters Race for Sheriff

Formal announcement is made in The Democrat today of the candidacy of Frank Cox, of Estelline, for the office of Sheriff of Hall County, subject to the action of the democratic primaries next July.

Mr. Cox has been a resident of Hall County for the past thirty-nine years, having lived the greater part of that time in the southeastern section in and near Estelline. He is now serving as constable, and for the past fifteen years has made quite an enviable record in his services as both constable and deputy sheriff.

He will make his race on the record that he has made while serving the people of Hall county during the fifteen years past, and pledges his best efforts, if elected, to discharge his duties to the best of his ability and in a manner that will reflect credit both upon himself and upon the people of Hall county.

What could be nicer than a heaping plateful of hot biscuits for dinner? ... And if they're made with Snowdrift the higher the plate is heaped, the better the family will like it.

For Snowdrift makes biscuits so tender and fluffy they almost float out of the oven. And cake and pie crust and muffin and fried food seem to have a new lightness and goodness when you use Snowdrift.

They can't help but be good because Snowdrift is so good to eat itself. Rich. Creamy. Delicate in flavor, it looks so inviting and fresh when you open the airtight can that you want to take it right out and introduce it to your mixing bowl or frying pan.

And for your salad dressings, may we suggest Wesson Oil—the fine salad oil. For a really delicious French Dressing or Mayonnaise there's nothing better.

Two More Jurors Are Accepted In Trial Austin Man

AUSTIN, Jan. 23 (UP)—John Dittmar, fifty-six years old, mustached German farmer, was accepted as the fourth juror in the trial of Judge Brady for the murder of Lehlia Higsmith. Dittmar stated that Judge Brady used to call him "John" over twenty years ago.

He said he knew Brady "pretty well" in recalling their younger days. State's attorneys discussed the advisability of securing Dittmar as a member of the jury for some time among themselves before finally accepting him.

R. P. Burke, twenty-seven year old sign painter, was accepted as the fifth juror. One hundred and thirty-two special veniremen reported this morning as the trial entered its fourth day. The courtroom was filled to overflowing with spectators.

Theodore Swift To Seek Re-election

Announcement by Theodore Swift of his candidacy for re-election to the office of County Superintendent appears in this issue of The Democrat. Mr. Swift is known throughout the length and breadth of Hall County, as he has lived in Hall County practically all of his life and is now serving his second term as supervisor of county school affairs.

Mr. Swift finished his public school courses at Newlin, after which he spent four years at Deatur Baptist College and West Texas State Teachers College, receiving a diploma from the latter institution. Besides this college training, he has attended three summer sessions of teachers colleges in the state.

With 12 years' experience as a teacher as one of his chief qualifications, Mr. Swift is anxious for voters of Hall County to seriously consider his candidacy, not only from a standpoint of his qualifications, but on the strength of his past record in office as well.
