Vienna Is Fortified Revolt, Anarchy Rumorize Austria

By Associated Press
VIENNA, July 27.—The Austrian government today began feverish preparation for the defense of Vienna.

Whole sections of the country were reported in a state approximating anarchy.

Heavy cordons of Heimwehr troops were drawn around Vienna districts in which the most important government buildings are located. Machine guns were placed atop buildings.

Ask Reinforcements

Petitions from Carinthia for reinforcements were constantly reaching the Heimwehr headquarters. The last message urgently demanded all men available to be sent to Carinthia where Nazis apparently were making big gains.

Heimwehr headquarters officers estimated 180 Heimwehr were killed by last midnight. The estimate did not include casualties in the regular army, police, gendarmes and Nazis.

The same source estimated the Nazis lost at 2,500 dead or wounded.

Over 500 Dead

Present death estimates are unreliable, but the best source indicated the death total of all forces, including the Nazis, was greatly in excess of 500.

Unverified reports said the Nazis are congregating in a railway station outside the inner city intending a surprise attack.

The country is wrecked by guerrilla warfare and pitched battles for possession of towns and railroad lines, border skirmishes and hunger riots.

EIGHT DEAD IN TEXAS COAST HURRICANE

Others Are Missing;
Estimate Damages
In Millions

By Associated Press
HOUSTON, July 27.—The known dead toll of the hurricane that smashed a hundred mile section of the Texas gulf coast Wednesday was raised to eight today with the finding of the body of a Mexican near Sargent, in Matagorda county.

The possibility of this figure to reach 11 grew when it was known that the oyster house in which Mrs. J. H. Howard and her son, 9, sought refuge near Sargent was washed away.

Charles H. Elmer, 67, fisherman, was missing after waves overturned his small craft in the Bernard river near Freeport.

Workers surveying the ruined crops and other damage estimated the loss would reach many million dollars.

Two thousand firefighters established a secondary defense to protect Pasadena against the flames.

Lone Bandit Kidnaps Pair, Loots Station

A lone bandit kidnaped Roger McCool, night attendant at the Continental filling station at Main and 19th streets, and Hooper Shaw last night at about 10:15 o'clock and made off with an undetermined amount of money.

Art Miller, proprietor of the station, stated that considerably more than $50 was taken, but that the exact amount could not be determined until an auditor made a check-up.

The bandit, unmasked, about 23 years of age, approached the station on foot. McCool and Shaw were preparing to close up for the night. McCool went into the station after locks for the pumps and Shaw started home.

The robber met Shaw at a corner of the building and forced him back into the station. Shaw and McCool were forced at the point of a gun to sit against a wall while the intruder looted the cash register.

McCool was made to open the company safe, and this also was rifled. Only the cash was taken, it was said.

After obtaining all available cash, the robber forced McCool and Shaw to accompany him down a nearby alley for a block before releasing them.

They immediately notified local officers. A thorough search of the entire town was made, but no trace was found of the robber. Officers here were still searching for the bandit this morning.

Peace Plans

76 ACCEPTANCES FOR CHECKS RECEIVED

Government Cotton
Payment Will Be
About $5,000

Seventy-six acceptance slips for checks amounting to approximately $5,000 were received this morning in the office of the county agent, according to word from that office.

The 76 checks are expected to arrive here shortly, probably by tomorrow, James A. Jackson, county agricultural agent stated.

The acceptances received this morning from the federal government were in the form of correction sheets on the first half of the rental payment concerning this year's cotton acreage reduction program.

Errors were made in compiling necessary information in some of the cotton contracts here. That was given as the reason for delay for the above acceptances.

Action is being taken by the county agent's force here to be in a position to dispense the checks in as short a time as possible after they arrive here.

COOL BREEZES BRING RELIEF

Most Of United States Is Cooler After Heat Wave
Claim 1,350 Lives

By Associated Press
Rain and cooling breezes Thursday scotched the intense heat which had held most of the nation in its grip for a week and had claimed the lives of 1,350 victims.

Generally cooler temperatures were reported in all sections.

While moisture afforded some temporary relief to parched land, crop experts said much additional rain must fall to afford any permanent benefits to the great agricultural producing areas.

The Texas Gulf Coast which was swept by a storm of hurricane proportions Wednesday that added an estimated 30 victims to the list of heat deaths and caused hundreds of thousands of dollars damage to the property and crops.

The tremendous heat and drought devastation was portrayed in a report by E. A. Logan, of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, which placed the Missouri corn crop at not more than 40,000,000 bushels, compared with a previous figure of 89,000,000 on July 10.

Most sections of the Atlantic Coast, however, failed to receive any decided relief and in many cities the weather continued uncomfortably hot and humid.

SOPHIE KERR'S SUPERB LOVE STORY "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

By Sophie Kerr

JANE TERRY comes to New York determined to show her home town and especially AMY JACKSON that she can make a success of her life. Amy had been her best friend until Howard Jackson broke the engagement. Jane forced on him and married Amy. Unable to bear the sight of Amy's happiness, Jane obtains a job in a New York real estate office.

Jane is clever and soon is making an excellent salary. She has an affair with ROGER THORPE, a business acquaintance who is married. Later she tires of him, and when he offers to bear the expense of their child she dismisses him contemptuously.

In her desperate plight Jane turns to Amy for help. Howard is touring Germany with another professor and Amy comes to New York. She is horrified when Jane insists on giving her daughter away, agrees to take it with the understanding that Jane never shall reclaim the child.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVIII

Now that she had taken the child for her own Amy was in a turmoil of doubt. What would Howard say when he came back and found that she had done this without consulting him? What would her father and mother think! And what an exacting overwhelming responsibility she had assumed! Taking proper care of an infant is not, she discovered at once, a mere matter of feminine instinct, but an expert and complicated craft, with a considerable dash of science.

Miss McNeal instructed, disapprovingly, on bathing, clothing routine. Doctor Lacey also instructed, without enthusiasm, on formulas of feeding, mixtures and temperature. Amy tried to learn everything at once, for she wanted to get away, to go home, to be out of sight and sound of Jane, because the repulsion that had come to her at Jane's light-hearted ridding herself of the child persisted, increased. She hid it as far as she could, but it was there and affected their relation. They were drawing away from each day and her only concern was to put this whole sorry business behind her and get back to work. Her satisfaction was almost flippant. She couldn't, she said, very often, have had a better break.

But she knew how Amy felt. She knew that Amy could not gloss over or condone what she had done. It amused Jane a little that Amy shouldn't be shocked at her having the child, only at her giving it away. It annoyed her, too. She did not fancy Amy's sitting in judgment on her and there were moments when she considered taking the child away from Amy and sending it to be adopted as she had planned in the first place.

This she did not quite dare to do. She was, though she would not have owned it even to herself, afraid of Amy's anger—and contempt, and so long as they were hidden, she could pretend they did not exist and that everything was right between them.

The honesty that she had used to Amy before the child was born disappeared. Neither could Amy be honest. So they talked together as little as possible. Amy concerned herself with the child and tried to still her great anxiety for Howard's safety, for no word had come from him.

The reports of Americans marooned in Europe and their trials and tribulations were now coming through and added to her fears. She planned to go back to Marburg at the first moment Doctor Lacey said a child so very young might travel safely. The apartment was crowded and uncomfortable and Emma sulked about the extra work. It would be a relief to everyone when Amy could go.

When that day finally did arrive there was so much to do to get ready, everything was confused and hurried, that there was no chance for any private conversation between the two friends. Jane and Miss McNeal both went with Amy to the train, established her and the child in a drawing room and then the nurse said goodbye and hurried off. Amy and Jane were left in the tight stuffy little place.

"I suppose I ought to be very grateful," Jane began. In the dim light she looked blooming and carefree. Her color had come back. She had gone out to the hairdresser while Amy was packing. She had put on a smart frock and hat.

Amy glanced up from arranging pillows carefully about the child, and seeing Jane's smile, her constraint dropped and her despondent leaped out. "You needn't be grateful. All you need to do is to remember that this child is mine. And if you ever try to claim her, I'll tell the whole story."

Jane struck back, subtly, sweetly, but with the sharpest blow she could deal. "I'm glad to give the child to you, Amy since you have none of your own—if you hadn't taken Howard Jackson away from me this would have been his child, remember."

"Howard didn't want you," said Amy, "and you know it. I don't suppose he'll want this child of yours either—that's one reason why you must never claim her."

Jane was pale now, but she recovered her sense. "Don't let's quarrel again. It's so foolish to quarrel."

"I'm not quarreling with you, but I won't stand your lies. You want always to twist things so you're not to blame. Well, this

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

"Full Feeling" After Meals

Here is how Theford's Black-Draught proved helpful to Mr. Archie W. Brown, of Fort Green, Wis.: "I have taken Black-Draught when I have felt dull from over-eating or eating too hurriedly," he writes. "Small doses right after meals rid me of gases and heavy feeling. I am a great believer in Black-Draught."

Theford's BLACK-DRAUGHT Purely Vegetable Laxative "CHILDREN LIKE THE SYRUP"

can't be twisted. I've always loved you, Jane, no matter what you did, but this is—I don't know—it's as if you—you had no—no integrity in your soul."

"Integrity in my soul! That's only a fancy phrase! It doesn't mean anything. Why don't you look at the whole thing sensibly as I've asked you to before. What on earth would I do with a baby?"

"This isn't a baby, it's your baby, or it was—now it's mine. If we talked for a thousand years we'd never agree. Stay out of my life, Jane—I don't want you there any more. Goodbye." She did not offer to shake hands, she did not want to touch of come near Jane.

Jane waited a second. "Goodbye," she said at last, and went out. Through the window Amy could see her walking quickly along the platform, head up, slight and young and buoyant.

"I hope I never see her again," thought Amy. "I wouldn't have believed—she didn't even look at the baby or say a word about her or to her." She was trembling, shaken by her rare passionate anger. She could not remember when she had been so angry before. The porter came and one part of her mind busied itself with practical matters, fresh ice to pack the supply of prepared food for the child, and then the necessary warming of it at the right intervals; she sent for something to eat for herself, she arranged her baggage and wraps for the most space. But all the time another part of her was back with Jane, repeating the warning never to intrude again into the peace and truth of her life.

In the morning, Amy's father and mother were both at the train and when they saw her they ran toward her exclaiming together: "Word's come through from Howard—he's in Norway and he's all right." Her father caught her: "Look out, dear, don't faint!" for she had turned weak and dizzy with the joy of the good news. Then they all talked at the same time and Amy looked from one to the other, resting in their sure and stable affection, returning it, feeling herself bound round once more in its dear familiar security. As they got into a cab Mrs. Lowe took the baby. "How tiny!" she said. "Neither of us quite believed it when you wrote you'd adopted a baby. What's her name?"

"Mother, she hasn't any. You might choose one. I'm too worn out. Do you think it was a crazy thing to do, Do you, Father?"

"Oh rather crazy. But nice. She looks a healthy young one," answered her father.

"She's a darling, very good. Only there's a lot more to taking care of babies than I imagined. We'll talk about her after awhile

"But daring, you're more than welcome to muss up the kitchen and I don't believe Lillian will mind very much."

"Mother, you know she'll rave." In the end it was arranged that Amy should go to her own house and that her mother would stay with her for the first few days "But I'll go on home now,"

Communist Hall Wrecked in Wake of

As the general strike crisis subsided, groups of furious men, reportedly including some of their sympathizers, ranged through San Francisco raiding and wrecking Communist halls. The barred arrangement at the rear of this hall is a baseball rack like those at Communist threw baseballs at figures representing William Green, A. F. of L. chief head of the San Francisco Central Labor Council, Ed McGrady, federal conciliator.

Tell me about Howard, every single thing you know."

They didn't, it now seemed, know very much beyond the fact that he and Professor Ellert had managed to get to Norway, but how and when they would be able to leave there was no one could tell. The State Department was trying to arrange passage. "I knew this war was coming," said Professor Lowe, "but I didn't expect it quite so soon. It should have been two or three years later."

"They didn't consult you!" mocked his wife gently.

The cab turned off toward the Crescent. "Oh Mother," said Amy, "I won't go home with you. I think I ought to get back into my own house and establish the baby there. She has so much paraphernalia it will muss up your kitchen and bother old Lillian."

"But darling, you're more than welcome to muss up the kitchen and I don't believe Lillian will mind very much."

"Mother, you know she'll rave." In the end it was arranged that Amy should go to her own house and that her mother would stay with her for the first few days "But I'll go on home now," said Mrs. Lowe, "and bring back things for lunch, and your old cradle."

"And any of my old baby clothes you've got tucked away. She has hardly anything to wear." (Copyright, 1934, by Sophie Kerr) (To Be Continued)

There are some things we refuse to do to sell a car

There are some things we refuse to do to sell a car. We like sales, but fair-dealing and the confidence of our customers are desirable too.

For one thing, we refuse to poison any one's mind against another make of car. We know what our car is and what it will do, and we are ready to tell you about that. But to imply defects in another car is not our business.

We have done our utmost to encourage intelligent buying of motor cars by showing purchasers how to protect their own interests. All that a good producer asks is a customer who knows quality when he sees it. An intelligent purchaser will speedily conclude that only a bad product requires bad sales methods.

We refuse to keep dinning in your ears that the Ford V-8 is the best, most economical, lowest priced car. That is claimed for several cars. Obviously it cannot be true of all. There comes a point where claims and adjectives and all advertising hyacinths disappears in its own fog. Personally, I prefer facts.

We say the Ford V-8 is the best car we have ever made.

We say that our 8-cylinder car is an economical to operate as any lower number of cylinders.

We say that we have always been known as the makers of good cars and that the many good, well-balanced qualities of our present car place it at the head of our line to date.

Any one wishing to do business with us on these principles will find our word and the quality of our product to be A-1. What we say about economy, operation and durability will stand good anywhere.

New City Baseball Club Defeats Eli in Initial

DENNIS LEADS NINE TO 10 TO 8 WIN

Clouts Homer, Sends In Four Runs; Eli Puts Up Battle

Memphis' newly formed city baseball team won its initial start yesterday afternoon at Fair park, field by winning a close decision over a hostling Eli nine.

The count was 10-8. Behind effective hurling by Harry Dennis, former T. C. U. catcher who led the Southwest conference two consecutive seasons in hitting, the Memphis aggregation, as yet unnamed, held a margin over Eli almost all the way.

Hits Home Run
Dennis proved the big sensation of the day by pounding out a clean home run in the first of the seven and by his wisecracking and turned a slow baseball game into one packed with interest.

The visitors were held in check for the first five innings with only five scattered hits. However, Dennis weakened in the sixth, giving up four safe blows in that frame.

Buck Whitfield, former pitcher for the Memphis Owls, took over the mound duties in the seventh and set the Eli club down in short order by fanning two of the first three men up and forced the other to pop out to second.

Leads Eli Club
Widner, Eli second sacker, led the play for that team by connecting for two clouts in four times over. One knock was a long triple over third.

McCool, local receiver, furnished quite a bit of amusement for the large crowd by his wisecracking and turned a slow baseball game into one packed with interest.

Eli jumped away to a lead in the first frame by tallying one. Hall singled after Stargel, lead off man, fied out to right field. He went to second as Widner roled out to first, and went to third on a passed ball. Hall came home on Gosson's single. Stevens struck out to retire the side.

Locals Take Lead
Memphis opened the first frame by Thompson gathering a single. He reached second on Allen's sacrifice. However, Allen got on when Smith bungled an easy throw out. Pounds struck out and Dennis walked. McCool connected for a long single to score Thompson and Allen. Byars next got a safe base knock, sending Dennis and McCool trekking across the plate.

Whitfield and Stewart went out to retire the side. Eli was set down for the next two innings without a hit, but they scored once in the fourth when Widner tripled and scored after the catch of Gosson's long fly to center.

Take Commanding Lead
Memphis went without another score until the last of the fifth, when they drove two in to take a commanding 6-2 lead.

Allen opened the last of the sixth with a double and trotted to third on a single by Pounds. Dennis doubled to drive in Allen and Pounds. Dennis stole third but died on base as the next three up died on infield outs.

The Eli nine came back strong in the first of the sixth with a rally which netted four runs on as many hits. Stevens led off by singling. Hickey was issued a free ticket to first. Lenoir got on as a result of Allen's error and Stevens scored on the play. Phillips singled, scoring Hickey, but Lenoir was thrown out at third.

Score Tied at 6-6
Smith next hit for two bags, driving Phillips home. Smith advanced on a fielder's choice and came home on Hall's single to knot the count at 6-6.

Memphis again went into the lead in the last of the seventh by piling up four runs. Pounds doubled after Allen was thrown out at first and came home on Dennis' circuit clout. McCool hit for one base and advanced to third on a two base blow by Payne, substitute for Byars. Stewart drove in McCool and Payne with a triple. Gilliam was thrown out at first to retire the side.

Eli rallied in the ninth, forcing across one run, but falling two short of a tie.

YOU'RE TELLING ME

The immortal 11, rated as one of the finest 2-year-olds before the Kentucky Derby, is one of the biggest fogs. The Irish colt has been relegated to the third division of Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney's stable. Bill Jurges, regular Cub shortstop, is out of the hospital after an appendicitis operation. Bill figured to be the punch the Cubs needed to beat those Giants out of first place. "Uncle Mack" Garner, the jock who boots Cavalcade in under the wire, isn't as old as some people think. Having basked under 34 summer suns. The White Sox are reported to be angling for the pitching services of Leroy Herrmann, sent back to the San Francisco Seals by the Cubs after two tryouts. But the price tag on Little Leroy is said to be $50,000. . . . and that probably will discourage the Sox purchasing department.

E. Mixon of Haskell, with the State Highway department, spent Wednesday and yesterday in Memphis and was the guest of Bill Miss Zadabell Walker left yesterday for Eldorado, Ark., where she will visit relatives for an indefinite time.

Baptists, Presbyterians Clash In Third Game of Series

HITS STRIDE

When Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe fanned 11 Yankees in a game the other day, he definitely proved to Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, that his ailing arm was in shape again. Rowe, above, who had a brilliant career interrupted last year, due to a bum wing, is one of Cochrane's most dependable hurlers this season.

With the race at its height, the Baptists and Presbyterians clash this afternoon at 6:30 o'clock in the third game of the Sunday School softball league championship series.

With the battle for the title all square, the two clubs are primed for the tilt that may eventually decide the championship. Both clubs are at full strength.

The series goes to the best three out of five games.

After a wide open affair in the first game, which went to the Presbyterians by a wide margin, the clubs returned Wednesday for the toughest and finest softball battle played here this summer.

Attracted by the possibility of another clash of this nature, the largest crowd ever to attend a softball game here is expected to be on hand. A high crowd witnessed Wednesday's tilt.

The series will be continued on Monday of next week, and if the fifth game is required, it will be played Wednesday.

Series results:

MONDAY'S GAME
Presbyterians 10; Baptists 4.
WEDNESDAY'S GAME
Baptists 2; Presbyterians 1.

Series standings:

FUN A-FISHIN'

BY JIMMY DONAHUE

NEA Service Sports Writer

This is the time of the year when trout become the most temperamental critters on earth. They are shy and retiring in the day, mainly because of increased water temperature. Heat makes them sulky, and they feed in the sunshine only on rare occasions.

The trout angler, therefore, must turn to fine terminal tackle to fool his game. Low, clear water enhances vision of the fish, and long casts generally are necessary. But there is one time of the hot summer day when trout put on the feed' bag in lusty fashion. This is just at dusk, and a couple of hours after the sun goes down.

Fine leaders, small flies and long casts are not essential then, because poor light of evening doesn't aid the fish in detecting the artificials which sometimes, in the hands of the tyro, land clumsily on the water.

Dusk—when the trout summer man has fun in the summer time.

We have stood in a trout stream at dusk and, in stretches that appeared barren of fish during the day, seen numerous rises ruffle the surface of pools. Casts anywhere near these rises were sure to bring strikes.

A good rise of a light pattern is the best fish-taker at dusk. A fan-wing royal coachman, white miller, parmachene belle, professor or yellow may, in sizes ranging from 10 to six, are most apt to attract attention. Bi-visibles, too, have exceptionally taking ways.

Dr. Wirt Allen of Dallas arrived in Memphis yesterday and will visit his sister, Mrs. T. J. Dunbar, here, until Sunday.

HARRY GRAYSON

CINCINNATI, July 27.—The back-busting business being what it is, Joe Boyton is back with the circus, where he started.

Boyton, whom the late Tex Rickard drafted from John Ringling, is in no sense a public character, although a lot of people would like to know him better, inasmuch as he raked in a good share of the money they spent for sports and amusements for nine years.

Boyton has been cussed by most of them. Did you ever try to buy a seat for a big fight smack up ringside in New York, or a decent hockey ticket at Madison Square Garden? Certainly you have, and the chances are that you wound up at the establishment of Mike Jacobs, or some other Broadway ticket broker.

As chief of the Garden bucks offices—old and new, from 1924 to 1933—Boyton boasts that he took in $50,000,000, without losing a penny. The amount is Boyton's, and may not be far from correct, although, like Rickard, under whom he spent the first five years, Joe became as nonchalant with figures as those who number boxes.

Boyton Dealt Ducats in Golden Era

Boyton broke into the boxing industry at the height of the golden giddy era. He handled some tremendous pugilistic productions, the like of which we are not likely to see again.

There was the second Tunney-Dempsey meeting in Chicago, with its attendance of 104,943 and gate of $2,658,660; the first one in Philadelphia, attendance 120,757, and intake $1,895,733, and the Dempsey-Sharkey Battle of Extenuating Circumstances, which grossed $1,083,530. And, during Boyton's tenure, it was nothing out of the ordinary for the principals in an indoor show to be paid off on from $50,000 to $80,000.

Well, as I was saying, Boyton is back with the big top, and became treasurer of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey shows with the recent death of the veteran Charles R. Hutchinson. Joe's noggin is poked through the window if the first big yellow wagon you run across, for no one can peddle pasteboards quite as rapidly as he.

What was the difference between a fight and circus crowd? "The indoor fight customer can't be compared with the circus-goer," replied Boyton. "He is a particular fellow who carries the chart of the arena in his head."

Chicago Fight Ended "Ringside" Racket

"And all comparison between an outdoor fight follower and the circus patron ended with the Tunney-Dempsey engagement in Chicago. Up until that time, the ringworm simply ankled up like the circus customer, and said, 'Give me two, four, six,' or however many required."

"But that day was gone forever, after Rickard got through with the boys at Soldiers' Field. 'They all wanted ringsides at $40 a copy, and Rickard wasn't

WINNING UP OF RACE GOVERNOR IS MADE BY PROGRAM WRITER

The following are the candidates for Governor in 1930: James V. Allred, a program writer; Clint C. Small, a public servant; Roy Kelley, a newspaper editor; and Charles Johnson, a farmer. Allred is a contender because of his appeal to all dissatisfied elements. He is a capable campaigner and a practical politician who knows both how to make alliances and keep them hidden from the average voter. He is ambitious and looks upon public office as a means to an end, that end being the glorification of James V. Allred. He is likely to be one of the two high men Saturday, and therefore to be in the runoff. Clint C. Small is the best-qualified man in the race; a public servant whose record makes him in every way a known quantity; a man who as Governor would restore to that office and to the administration of the State's affairs the dignity, openness and responsibility that the commonwealth needs; a man who can command the co-operation of the Legislature and of all the agencies of the State's business; a man with a distinguished record of leadership and constructive service for the public interest. Senator Small is the only candidate who has gained strength in the past several weeks, and is the only candidate who, if he gets past Saturday's hurdle, is sure to win in the runoff. This summary might offer a suggestion to voters who are still "on the fence," or who have come to realize their candidate's small chances to win. A rational vote will give Texas the man the state needs for Governor—Clint Small.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

USE YOUR RIGHT TO VOTE

TOMORROW the people of Texas and of Hall county go to the polls to select the officers into whose hands they are to entrust the handling of the state's and the county's business, to uphold our laws and to guide our governmental affairs.

It is customary at this time to urge every citizen to use that power which is his in selecting these officers, to go to the polls tomorrow and cast his vote according to his own convictions for the men and women he believes to be best qualified for the several offices to be filled.

And it is proper that everyone be reminded not only of the privilege that is his but of the duty he is obligated to fill. Any person who does not take advantage of the power given him, equal voice with any other man in deciding the course our government is to follow, is at the same time sacrificing his privilege to criticize, to demand change.

We urge that every person in Hall county who has access to the polls not overlook or neglect that privilege.

We would like, of course, to see the men we believe to be best qualified for governmental positions elected to those offices, but it is not so important in the final analysis that your selection be the same as the one we have made as it is that you stand by that choice and support your candidate with all the power you have—one ballot for him.

There are 2,848 paid poll taxes in Hall county. The number of votes cast tomorrow should be approximately the same. However, this figure does not include exemptions—those who are 21 years of age and those who have passed the limit.

Numerous choices in the races in Hall county may make a great difference in the wellbeing of the county during the coming two years. The governor's race, for the people of the Panhandle, is more important than it has ever been before.

There is outstanding reason why every eligible vote in the county should be cast. Let's not shirk this duty or think lightly of this privilege. Let's show a 100 percent count in tomorrow's primary election.

WHY NOT ARBITRATION BEFORE STRIKING?

THE average industrial dispute in this country, if it reaches the stage of open warfare, passes through three phases.

First, there is the period in which both sides hurl defiance and call on heaven and earth to witness that they are completely and everlastingly in the right.

Next comes the time of outright hostilities. The workers lay down their tools and walk out—or they are locked out by the bosses; picket lines form at the gates, strikebreakers come to work with varying mixtures of sheepishness and defiance; heads get laid open, tear gas bombs are thrown, windows are broken and the usual bloody and tumultuous procedure, costly to everyone involved, is followed.

Then, last of all, comes the settlement. Unless one side or the other wins a clearcut victory, the general staffs of the two sides get together, neutrals are called in, and the whole dispute is put to arbitration.

In the end the arbitration committee hands down its decision, the contending parties accept it with cheers or with scowls, work is resumed again—and one more industrial muss-up is over.

It makes a rather dreary and discouraging routine. It is horribly expensive; the owner loses dividends, sometimes loses fat orders, frequently has property damage to pay for; the workers lose wages, and in many cases get clubbed and punched as well; the general public suffers inconvenience, has to pay for extra police work and in varying ways plays the unhappy role of the innocent bystander.

And it all leads one to wonder—why, since the average dispute winds up in arbitration anyway, can't arbitration be resorted to in the first place to save all this trouble?

The answer, probably, is that to be stubborn and opinionated is a very ancient human trait which has not, to date, shown many signs of disappearing.

Arbitration can hardly be forced on the contending parties—not without revising our whole political and economic framework more than most of us are prepared to do at this time. But the stern logic of hard facts points directly toward it.

Unless victory for one side or the other is speedily gained, it usually comes in the end. Can't owners and workers see that everybody concerned would be ahead if it came right at the beginning?

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The variety of objects that people swallow or inhale, with subsequent damage to their throats, breathing passages, and the tubes down which food is carried, is legion.

Surgeons group them under the headings of hardware, jewelry, safety pins, pins and needles, seeds, nuts and shells, bones, meat, food generally, buttons, dental and surgical objects, ammunition, toys, coins and other disks.

When a foreign body gets into the tissues, it at once sets up a considerable disturbance. If it is in the lung, it interferes with breathing. Infection accumulates around the foreign body, abscesses occur, and life is seriously threatened.

If the object gets into the esophagus, it checks the passage of food and causes serious interference with nutrition.

All sorts of means have been devised for retrieving such bodies. Magnets have been developed for catching hold of steel or iron objects; grappling hooks and lighted tubes are available for reaching into the farthest corners of the esophagus, the trachea, the bronchi, and even into the tissue of the lung.

It is obviously undesirable to perform surgical operations on such cases because of the difficulty of invading the chest cavity and possible permanent damage to the tissues.

One of the most common types of disturbance is the swallowing or inhaling of bones. The development of harsh, meatballs, meatpies and similar methods for disguising chopped meat is largely associated with the occurrence of this type of injury.

In one of the largest clinics in the country, out of 2500 cases in which foreign substances got into the lungs or the digestive tract, bones were responsible for the trouble in 15 per cent. In 90 per cent of these cases, however, the bones were in the food passages, obviously an indication of the fact that the accident occurs most often during eating.

In occasional cases bones may get into the lungs, where invasion is much more serious than in the digestive tubes.

Records indicate that another frequent source of danger is sudden slapping on the back of some one who is chewing food or smoking a cigar.

In one instance a man who was smoking a cigar was slapped on the back suddenly by a friend. He inhaled the cigar into his windpipe and died of strangulation before it could be removed.

When such an accident occurs it is desirable, first of all, to get the foreign body out if it can be reached at all. It would not do to pound the person on the back, hang him up by his feet, or do any of the usual things that are tried to relieve this condition. Getting the aid of a doctor at the earliest possible moment is the best way to make certain of safety in the result.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
The Democrat's Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Promoters of what Harry Hopkins and Secretary Ickes calls "lousy" projects might as well save train fare and lobbying fees.

The low-cost housing schemes turned down successively by the RFC and by PWA and its housing division won't look a bit better to the Federal Housing Administration, which is permitted to insure loans for housing projects up to $10,000,000.

About 500 real estate promotion projects have been rejected here in the last year in the belief that the promoters couldn't give away and were trying to unload it on the government in one way or another, at fancy prices.

It seems the RFC had a crew of bright young lawyers, appraisers and finance experts who took demagogical glee in protecting the public interest. So the "lousy stuff" didn't get any of RFC's loans for self-liquidating projects.

Came PWA and found the same promoters camping on its doorstep. But it was just too bad, because a corps of those RFC boys had been moved into the PWA set-up and knew all about their proposals.

You've probably guessed the rest of the story. The promoters are preparing a last desperate assault on the new housing program. And facing them will be that same grim group of experts—now transferred to FHA.

Watch the Percentage

When you buy a bottle of beer, your government doesn't want you to be fooled as to the alcoholic content, which seems to make a lot of difference to some people.

Brewers who label their product with such a device as "Does not contain more than 6 per cent of alcohol by volume," with the 6 per cent in numerals—whereas the beer contains less than 4 per cent—have been warned by the Food and Drug Administration, which bans false or misleading labels.

Food and Drugs has also taken action against brewers who describe alcoholic contents as, say, "12 proof," with "proof" in tiny type, holding that a few purchasers know the percentage of alcohol by volume, is only half the degrees proof.

Cotton Futures In Nervous Moves Of Nearly $1.50 Range Cotton futures moved nervously over a range of nearly $1.50 a bale yesterday, varying from highs of from seven to 11 points up in the first hour to lows of from 16 to 20 points off in the last on improved buying near the close.

The market rallied from the lows and finished steady at from two to seven points net decline. Early gains were due to the belief that rains in Texas had not struck deeply into the interior. Later losses were due to the details showing the penetration of the gulf storm into the state extending the northwest.

The news from Austria and heavy liquidation inspired by weakness in stocks also contributed considerable pressure. The late recovery resulted from an over-solid condition which brought local short covering, forced by fairly good buying by some of the spot interests.

Worth Street is quiet and steady and reports are that the Austrian situation looks less dangerous.

Market reports stated that weather is better for corn and that it is considered that corn prices are high enough at the present. Some think that grains will improve, should there be a turn in Wall Street.

While the disturbing situation abroad may result in recessions, reports said, it is thought that the situation ultimately will tend toward purchases. The grain market is expected to be nervous.
