Honor Memory of Will Rogers Today

By proclamation of Governor James V. Allred, today is "Will Rogers Day" in Texas. Above photo shows the famous homespun philosopher when he visited, unannounced, a rodeo at Stamford, Texas last summer, and sat in the stands for quite a time as an ordinary spectator before he was noticed and dragged into the limelight. The people of the Lone Star State today do homage to the memory of the native son of our neighbor, Oklahoma.

NEGRO SHOT IN GAMBLING ROW ACROSS LINE

Two Negroes Jailed After Fight Near Childress Line

As the result of a gambling row at a negro shack on the Oscar Wright farm, just across the Childress County line from Estelline, yesterday afternoon, one negro is suffering from a shot through the leg and two more are in jail at Childress, charged with the shooting.

The local Sheriff's office was notified shortly after noon yesterday that a man had been shot near Estelline, and Deputy Osborn went to the scene, picking up Deputy J. H. Williams of Estelline on the way down.

After the arrival of Childress County officers, the law took charge of things. They found a negro man, whose name we failed to learn, bleeding profusely from a bullet wound in the leg, and a recently fired .22 calibre rifle in the shack. There were some dozen or so negroes and whites in the shack when the officers arrived, and their story at first was that they had found the man on the highway and brought him to the house. Even the wounded man told this story.

Questioning by the officers disclosed, however, that the man had been shot, following a squabble over a gambling game, by another negro, Guy Barnett, while George Shorter, also colored, held the wounded man.

Barnett was placed under arrest and taken to Childress, but Shorter had disappeared, to be picked up later last night by Estelline officers and held for Childress.

COUNTY LEAGUE HEADS ELECTED AT MEETING

County Meet Planned For Estelline and Date Set in March

Interscholastic League officials for Hall County were elected Saturday at a meeting of the Hall County Teachers Association in the Annex of the First Baptist Church here. A definite place for the Interscholastic League county meets was not set, and a definite time was also not set.

A special grand piano of the artist's own selection will be brought to Memphis from Amarillo especially for the concert.

While admission prices for the concert to be held Tuesday night in the High School Auditorium had been announced at $1.00 for general admission and 50c for student's tickets, at the special request of the famous artist the price on advance sale has been reduced to 55c for adults and 25c for students. These reduced prices (Continued on Page 4)

Thousands of these friends actively proposed memorials. No less than a score of organizations were formed for the purpose. These were merged and the Will Rogers Memorial Commission was formed—a group of Rogers' nationally prominent and responsible friends, headed by Vice-President John Nance Garner.

Now with all local and sectional efforts directed into one whole-hearted, national plan, millions of Rogers' friends may participate in a worthy, recognized and responsible, contribution to his memory.

After Rogers' millions of friends have had an opportunity to make their contribution to his memory, the sum will be totalled beside the number of contributors, which it is believed will run into millions of friendships.

Then a group including Dr. J. C. Bushyhead, Amon G. Carter, Harry Chandler, James W. Cox, (Continued on page 8)

WEST TEXAS: Cloudy with possible snow in Panhandle, cold wave in central portion, freeze tonight in north and central portions; Tuesday generally fair, colder in south. Livestock warning.

Saturday on the Square:

One out of about fifty people on the streets Saturday that we knew. . . Lots of new people drift into town during the fall rush. . . And then drift out again after the rush is over. . . In the meantime, taking work away from local folks who need it.

A Mexican selling tamales on the square. . . Mexican home-made tamales seem to be a strictly fall crop. . . You never see them except during cotton picking time. . . The old man usually sells tamales while the women folks work in the cotton fields.

One man carrying the baby for his wife, and about a score who were not. . . Funny how foolish the average man feels when he has to carry the baby in public. . . He can walk the floor with it nights, but ask him to carry it down the street, and is his face red?

A few more of the small fry wearing boots. . . Fortunately the tad has apparently not invaded the ranks of the older schoolgirls yet this season. . . Wouldn't the pep squad look funny in boots?

A photograph of Herbert May occupying the most prominent place in Orr's window. . . Funny how the good-looking boys always get put in the front row, isn't it?

A sign in a drug store saying: "For coughs, try Hexylresorcinol Screts". . . We can't even pronounce it without a cough. . . Imagine what it sounds like when the patient has a cough.

The usual crowds gathered about the radios, listening to the football games. . . The Notre Dame-Ohio State came near flooring some of them. . . One Ohio State fan had to call for water when the Catholics made that last touchdown.

Weed End Personals:

Omer Johnsey coming out of the Texas Saturday afternoon. . . We didn't know Omer went in for the wild and wooly westerns.

Ed Foxhall going into rhapsodies about the picture of the new Lincoln Zephyr V-12. . . He couldn't even talk Ford. . . It is a darn good looking car.

Red Baskerville listening to the Texas-S. M. U. game. . . From the intent expression on his face he must have had up about a quarter.

Coach "Chesty Walker replaying the Notre Dame-Ohio State game with a couple of his Cyclone squadmen.

Tomie Potts going around Saturday with a grin a yard wide. . . He sold three or four new Chevrolets on opening day.

Kelly Gable, standing in the drizzling rain Saturday afternoon and talking about the farming situation. . . Wonder if Kelly is any kin to Clark?

Major Wood and Bob Simmons drinking a coke this morning. . . Their teeth were chattering, but they were proving their loyalty to Memphis products.

A. N. Crandall's dog still at the old location. . . How about it, Albert, did you forget the pooch or figure that a good way to get rid of it. . . Have a heart, won't you, and come get him.

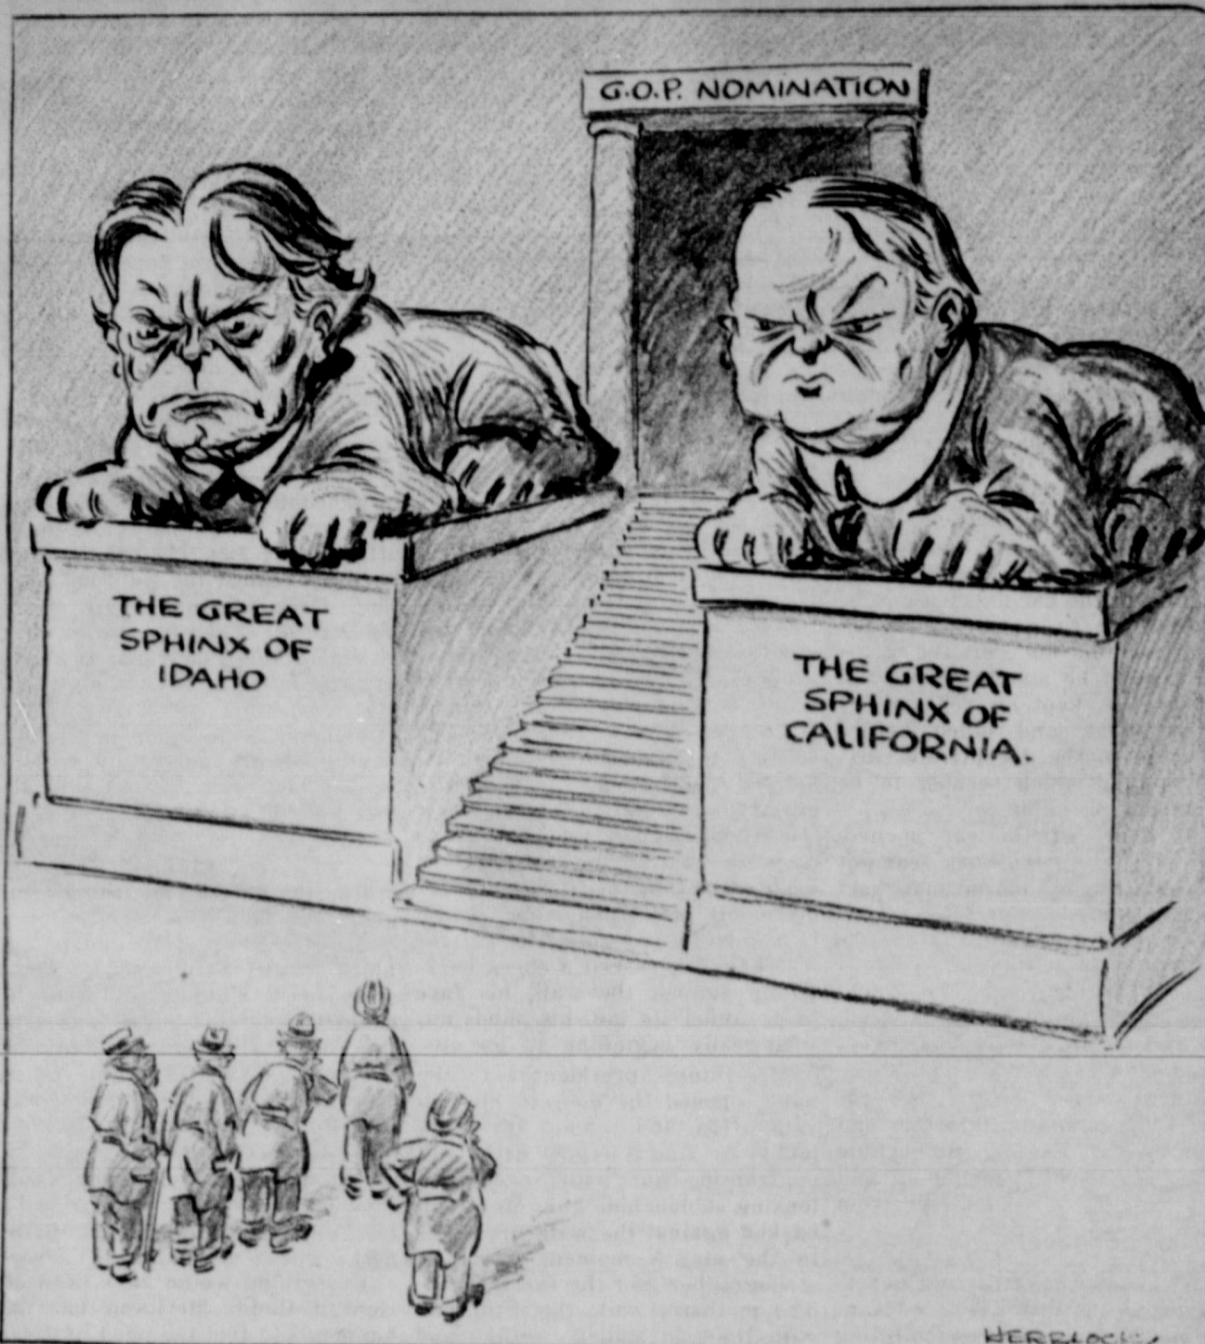

Guy Musgrove selling neckties that clamp on the shirt. . . They looked pretty good, but we didn't have the price.

Alfred Barks trying to thumb a ride to Lakeview. . . Al's going to school at Lakeview on the side we hear.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kinslow driving to church last night in a Texico truck. . . Looked like the fire department going pieces.

Lots of the boys this morning with overcoats on that still smelled of mothballs. . . Maybe they'll quit kidding us about wearing our overcoats.

A GREAT STATE PAYS HOMAGE TO A GREAT MAN

TODAY, by proclamation of Governor James V. Allred, is "Will Rogers Day" in Texas, and the citizenship of the Lone Star State pauses in the hurly-burly of everyday existence to do honor to a man who can and will never be forgotten . . . Will Rogers.

Cowboy . . . rodeo performer . . . stage star . . . screen luminary . . . radio personality . . . polo enthusiast . . . aviation booster . . . homespun philosopher . . . Will Rogers did everything which he attempted and did it well.

His simple, homely style endeared him to the hearts of everyone with whom he came in contact, and he numbered his friends, not by the thousands of hundreds of thousands, but by the millions . . . most of whom had never seen him in the flesh . . . thousands upon thousands who knew him only by his voice.

Measured by any standard, Will Rogers was a man, which means much more than all the blurbs about "great men" which could be composed about any one. For Will Rogers was a great man and his greatness lay in his simplicity and honesty and sincerity.

It will be a long time before any one man captures the fancy and holds the love of the entire world as Rogers did.

So today a great state does honor to a great man, and every heartholds its meed of sadness as we think on his untimely demise.

Will Rogers needs no monument of fine marble. The finest work of the greatest sculpture of all times could not do justice to his memory.

Marble monuments, assailed by time's relentless march, crumble and fade. Even ageless granite must give way eventually, but Rogers' monument, enshrined in the hearts of the people of the world, is builded of a love that will never lessen. . . will endure until time is no more.

Miss Johnson-

will be in effect until the box office is moved to the auditorium at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening.

PLANS ARE CHANGED

Miss Johnson this fall was scheduled to return to Europe, where she is known as "The Darling of Salzburg" and "Miss Mozart," because of her inspired interpretations, but when the clouds of war began to settle over the continent, the tour was cancelled. The artist then decided upon a concert tour of Texas, and was prevailed upon to include Memphis in her itinerary.

After hearing Miss Johnson play more than a decade ago, Paderewski remarked, "You can play with distinction anywhere in the world."

And Miss Johnson has played with distinction in practically all of the capitals and important cities of Europe and the near East. Crowned heads have given her ovations. She has been commended to play as soloist with the orchestra of Menal Pasha and was introduced by the President of Austria during an international broadcast from Vienna.

Perhaps no pianist has ever taken to the hearts of the Yugoslavs as has Esther Johnson. Her coming is always heralded as a great event. She played last in Yugoslavia while the country was in deep mourning over the death of King Alexander. All concerts of a lighter character were prohibited during the three months set aside for mourning, but it happened to be the anniversary of Mozart's death and she played all Mozart programs with the orchestra.

Besides Mozart music, Miss Johnson is also recognized as the greatest American authority on the early music of the Balkan countries and Greece. She has transcribed much of it from original sources and arranged it for the piano. At least two of these original compositions will be played.

Miss Johnson's tour is being underwritten by the Memphis Chamber of Commerce.

At the age of four she began to play the piano. Her father directed her training.

Esther Johnson's training has been unbroken. At 17 she graduated from the University School of Music in Lincoln Nebraska under the tutelage of her father, who was a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Fraternity. Later she studied with Stojowski in New York.

There that Paderewski heard her play and was so impressed that she was a composer ready to play anywhere in the world. Not satisfied with continued her studies with Art MacPherson in Vienna.

Miss Johnson was in the Hall of the Grand Opera in 1929, just after Mendelssohn's death, on the same platform. At that time, enthusiastic eminent critics declared her the greatest woman pianist of the day.

Percy Wells of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce visited his father, J. W. Wells, yesterday.

Mrs. R. I. Lester is to be very ill at her home, suffering from a fevered face.

Mrs. N. W. Carter, Mrs. Martha and Mrs. M. J. Alexander arrived from Texarkana and will spend this week with their sister and Mrs. V. Alexander at 622 North Tenth Street.

J. D. Shankle returned from Okla. this morning, spending the week-end with his family. Mr. Shankle is a cotton grower at Davidson.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

ANY woman who does her own work needs plenty of good wholesome food. Ash constituents, vitamins and an adequate number of calories must be supplied if she is to keep her body and nerves functioning properly. Those who neglect their diets often become over-fatigued and nervous.

The energy requirements for a moderately active woman is between 2200 and 2500 calories a day, and, of course, the requirement increases with muscular activity. During housecleaning and especially busy days, the calories should range from 2400 to 3000 a day. This, of course, is spread over the three meals.

Avoid Unbalanced Diet

A breakfast of 600 to 800 calories may consist of fruit, cereal, eggs or their equivalent, and toast or other bread stuff. Coffee has fuel value only if sugar and cream are added. Of course, all the calories might be furnished by toast or cereal alone, but this makes for an unbalanced diet.

Luncheon of 900 calories must consist of more than a cup of tea and a cookie. A cream soup or some other hot dish or a hearty salad with bread and butter, fruit of some sort and a cookie or piece of cake are necessary to furnish sufficient calories.

A nourishing dinner of meat, two vegetables, salad, bread and butter and dessert is as imperative for an active woman as it is for the man of the house and the children.

Women's appetites are likely to be fickle because of confinement indoors, lack of systematic exercise and rest.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Scrambled eggs with lemons, hammy frits with cream, fried bread, beef, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Toasted cheese sandwich, apple and celery salad, potatoe protein from night-before dinner.

DINNER: Fillet of haddock fried in deep fat, terrar sauce, baked and mashed squash, lima beans in cream, grapefruit and pepper salad, cranberry ice, sponge cake, milk, coffee.

The too thin woman must persistently eat food in excess of her caloric requirement if she would gain weight. Few women who are under-weight realize that to be more than ten per cent under weight for one's height usually means lessened physical efficiency.

Extra Snacks Add Weight

Mid-morning and mid-afternoon lunches make it easy to add to the amount regularly eaten at meals. A glass of milk taken with each meal will add 500 calories to her regular diet. Each extra pat of butter adds about 100 calories. Cream and olive oil increase the fuel intake.

If you must eat your lunch alone, plan it along with the other meals. Don't trust to something being left over from the night-before dinner unless you plan the dinner with that in mind. And don't have your cup of tea standing up or on a corner of the kitchen table. Arrange it on a tray and take it to the pleasantest room in the house and you will gain time in the end.

Dances on Air

ELEANOR POWELL, motion picture dancing star, will join the RCA's "Magic Key" coast-to-coast broadcast on Sunday afternoon, November third, at 2 P. M., EST, over an NBC network. She learned tap dancing from Jack Donahue at the age of 14 and reached the pinnacle of stardom in "Broadway Melody of 1936." On Sunday's program she will both sing and dance, and will be co-starred with Tom Dorsey's orchestra, Frank Black's RCA Symphony orchestra, John B. Kennedy as news commentator and Milton Cross as Master of Ceremonies.

WOMAN'S INDUSTRIAL REVIEW

ARK, Miss., Nov. 5.—The first person in the path of any program which would result in happiness and a standard of living. All my people are interested in aiding their citizens to attain a better old age through a trust-egg during their life. Hence, a long time ago, the tag-word, Social Security, was dreamed of. I believe in the principle of security. Social Security—whether of the variety or the variety projected in Alaska—has literally no connection with social security. The high-sounding formulas of Credit groups and the Townsend crowds are the same source:—Security. This is a mere pipe dream, but these people are sooner or later that security cannot come from any perpetual motion machine. The fallacy of Townsend, et al., is that it is not the fact before they assume that purchasing power is something that can be printed out of a hat by printing currency instead of that must be sweated out by wisely directed purchasing power.

credit with gratuities from them. All real purchasing power must start with the entrepreneur, the willingness of the intelligence to produce. However, they may look at the Social Credit formula down. People are paid merely for living; they are earning a living. It is an engineer and a know better than to root before laying the pipe. Under any sound system envelope must be of the economic drama first.

ers for preaching the need of higher social ideals, but simply for the impractical mechanics by which they expect to reach their goal.

Treating Wheat and Chaff Alike
Thus far, however, the competitive system has proved to be the only workable way to separate the wheat from the chaff. Where Social Credit is a dangerous doctrine is that it would treat both chaff and wheat alike. It deludes people into imagining that by some economic trick we can dodge nature's necessity of threshing and winnowing. Because I believe in the Multiplication Table, and other fundamental laws of life, I distrust Social Credit. No matter how high-sounding the language in which it is presented, practically, it is unworkable. Social Credit is in the world of economics what perpetual motion is in the world of mechanics. Both are mathematical impossibilities.

Everybody who has studied science knows that there is no such thing as perpetual motion. Therefore, if a man came into my office and laid the most elaborate perpetual motion blueprints or models on my desk, he could not sell me the machine. I would know it could not work. For similar reasons I feel sure that Social Credit cannot succeed. It is, of course, a fascinating, iridescent soap bubble floating before the eyes of people who properly enough want some sort of security against the time when they can no longer earn wages or a salary. But like all bubbles it will burst, and those victims who rely on its rainbow tints instead of putting money in the bank will wake up when it is too late.

No Real Need to Worry
Interest in these new "systems" however, always appears toward the latter part of a depression period. That is the one encouraging and significant point about this whole "to do" over Social Credit. In the early and middle stages of a depression people are floundering and uncertain. At the pit of the depression, when economic pressure is greatest, they begin to clutch desperately for some "way out". So at the very time when conditions are actually beginning to improve they swing over to nostrums such as Social Credit or the Townsend plan. For a brief period there is a tremen-

Cowboy Ballads

In memory of Will Rogers, Miss Esther Johnsonson will play a group of cowboy ballads when she is presented in concert at the High School Auditorium tomorrow night. Miss Johnsonson has composed her own arrangement of these songs, which will probably include "The Last Round-up", "Old Faithful", and "When I Grow Too Old To Dream", favorite songs of the beloved humorist.

ous flare-up of interest in these curculls, but in the end these plans die a natural death.

This is what has been happening in the current business cycle. Up to 1933 the people absorbed one financial shock after another. They became so discouraged with the old system that from 1933 to the present time there has been a bull market in economic panaceas. Fundamentally, however, the natural Law of Action and Reaction has been slowly and steadily doing its work and bringing recovery to the nation. Business, as registered by the Babson chart, is now 17 per cent above a year ago, and only 19 per cent below normal. As time passes, excitement over Social Creditism, Townsendism, Sinclairism and Alphebetism will gradually fade away for common sense and human nature cannot be tricked for long and the Multiplication Table cannot be side-tracked!

ACCORDING to an English lecturer, Americans do not know how to enjoy leisure. For instance, they go to hear English lecturers.

Mussolini says, "I am a man—a man—just a man. It's enough to be a man." But that accounts for only four of the men in his cabinet.

Indiana man, 90, divorces wife, 70, on grounds she married him for his Civil War pension. Even the 19th century, it seems, had its gold-diggers.

Braddock says, "I like tough punchers like Louis; I know what they're going to do." But in his fight with Louis, he'll probably find out from friends.

We're still trying to figure out whether Ariel's transcontinental pursuit of Caliban was publicity for that Shakespearean picture.

help of public suggestions, decide on the ultimate form of the memorial.

Naturally the judgment must be indicated by the total of subscriptions. But one thing is certain, the Commission will sponsor no cold shaft of marble for this warm, friendly man.

Rather, there will be a living, continuing memorial projected to honor the charitable, educational and humanitarian traits which were so beloved in Will Rogers, the living man.

To assist this section's friends of the great philosopher, the Memphis Daily Democrat has been designated by the Commission as a medium for the collection of the memorial funds, and all contributions, large or small, will be accepted by the Democrat and forwarded to the national committee.

In this, and every issue during the campaign, which lasts until November 27th, will be found a coupon which can be used in mailing in contributions, or you can drop into the office personally and make your contribution.

Every penny collected locally will be sent to the national fund, and every penny collected in the national fund will be used in the establishing of the selected memorials. The entire expense of the campaign is being borne by the aviation industry of the United States, as their tribute to Rogers' love of flying.
