SILKEN SPINDLES

by Louise Lou Brookman © 1935 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GALE HENDERSON, pretty and 23, works in a silk mill. She and her 19-year-old brother, PHIL, support their invalid father.

STEVE MYERS, who also works in the mill asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days.

Gale goes skating, breaks through the ice and is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian has come home after two years in Paris to enter the mill. Gale disappears before he learns her name.

VICKY THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, schemes to captivate Brian.

Gale goes on an errand for a neighbor, MRS O'CONNOR, which takes her into the country. It is a stormy night and she misses the return bus. Brian comes along and takes her home. Steve is there, waiting for her. Gale tries to tell Steve that Brian wants to improve conditions for the mill employees. Steve scoffs at this.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV

It was an hour after lunch time. Slanting sunshine came through the high windows into the great, gray room where machines, row on row, were pounding and roaring. Spindles whirled and hands moved up and down. Gale, bending to reach a bobbin, did not see Clyde Fisher coming toward her.

She looked up quickly as she the left, near the window, a mahogany desk on which were books and papers and a slender vase containing two roses.

The woman who sat at the desk wore a blue dress with white at the throat and cuffs. She was a trifle stout and the way her hair was fluffed out seemed a bit too young for her. She had a round face and a high-ridged nose on which were perched spectacles. It wasn't a disagreeable face unless you noticed the lines about the rather thin lips.

She glanced up from the letter she was reading to the girl in the doorway. "Yes—" she said crisply, "what is it?"

"Are you Miss Groves?"

"I am."

"I'm Gale Henderson. Mr. Fisher said you wanted to see me—"

"Oh—Gale Henderson. Yes." The personnel manager's manner unbecomingly slightly. "Yes, I did want to see you. Sit down, won't you? In that chair—there."

Miss Groves returned to her letter and Gale sat in the chair beside the desk. She felt relieved. It couldn't be an accident or anything that had happened at home, she was sure. Miss Groves wouldn't have kept her waiting if it had been anything like that.

But why was she here? Gale looked about the room. There was a low stand with growing plants before the window. There were pictures on the walls. One of them was a picture Gale had seen before—a country scene with a long road disappearing into the distance and trees on both sides. The growing plants and the pictures and the other furnishings made this room seem home-like. It would be pleasant, working in a room like that, away from the noise and machinery—

Miss Groves put down the letter then and sorted through some cards on her desk. She picked up one. "Your name," she said, glancing at the card, "is Gale Henderson?"

"Yes."

"You've been employed in the mill for two years?"

"It's a little more than that now."

Miss Groves pursed her lips and studied the card. She went on as though Gale had not spoken. "You live in the mill village, do you not?"

"Yes."

"With your father and brother?"

Gale nodded.

"Are there any other members of the household?"

"No."

"Your brother works in the mill, too, I believe?"

Gale said that he did.

Miss Groves laid the card on her desk. "What I have to say to you," she went on, "is, of course, just between ourselves. We have our little talks here—my girls and I—and afterwards our lips are sealed." Miss Groves smiled, a smile which to Gale was somewhat repellent. "I like to call this room our 'Confy-Corner' because it is here I learn how to know my girls and they learn to know me. I don't believe you've been here before, Gale, have you?"

"No."

"Well, we must get acquainted. I want to be friends with all the girls in this great mill. All of them! There are so many ways in which we can help each other. I want them to come to me with their little secrets and the problems and know that I will help them. You see, I love girls so! I feel that it is a great privilege I have here, coming in touch with so many young lives. Wonderful young lives! Youth is such a wonderful thing, my dear. Don't you think so?"

"I suppose it is," Gale agreed.

Miss Groves put a hand on the girl's arm. "Of course it is. There's nothing in the world so wonderful as youth. And you have it. You're young. I want you to tell me your problems, my dear."

"But, Miss Groves—"

"Now, now! Of course you have problems. Everyone has his or her problems and it does us good to talk them over. That's why we have our 'Confy-Corner'. Such a lovely young girl was here, sitting in the same chair you're sitting in, half an hour ago. She came to me because she wanted advice and I gave it to her. It seems some of the girls she works with have taken up some very dangerous ideas. Dangerous for themselves and for others! They've talked to this girl, tried to make her dissatisfied with conditions in the mill, telling her the workers are underpaid and the hours too long and I don't know what all.

She didn't know what to do. She heard there was going to be a meeting to organize the mill workers in opposition to the company. These other girls insisted she must come to the meeting. She was afraid of what might happen if she didn't go—and of what might happen if she did. Night after night she worried about it and finally she did the right thing—she came to me. Do you know what I told her?"

Gale shook her head.

"I told her to go to the meeting and hear what was said there. I told her the best way she could help these other employees was to let me know what is going on. Because it's my work to help our girls, even when they're in the wrong. But how can I help them unless I know just such things?"

Miss Groves put down the letter then and sorted through some cards on her desk. She picked up one. "Your name," she said, glancing at the card, "is Gale Henderson?"

"Yes."

"You've been employed in the mill for two years?"

"It's a little more than that now."

Miss Groves pursed her lips and studied the card. She went on as though Gale had not spoken. "You live in the mill village, do you not?"

"Yes."

"With your father and brother?"

Gale nodded.

"Are there any other members of the household?"

"No."

"Your brother works in the mill, too, I believe?"

Gale said that he did.

Notable Day for Hughes

The whole world had been his attentive listener when Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes read the U. S. Supreme Court's momentous majority opinion upholding the administration in the gold cases. The chief justice is shown here as he left the Capitol.

I told her she and I would work together to stamp out this dangerous, un-American propaganda. She left me, completely reassured. She's taking the right course and knows it."

Miss Groves looked at Gale and went on in her purring voice, "You see how a few words at the right time can mean everything? We aren't going to let employees of this mill stray into dangerous radicalism. We're going to keep our great big family happy and intact. Tell me," her eyes narrowed, "do you know of any such meetings that have been held?"

Gale thought of Leota Boller. Leota had said there was going to be a meeting—but not that there had been one.

"No, Miss Groves."

"Has anyone asked you to join a group with the idea of opposing the company?"

"No."

Miss Groves sighed. "I'm glad to hear it," she said. "Of course it's important to know how far this disloyalty has gone. Frankly, I was worried. I called you in because I knew you were one of our steady, reliable employees. I'm sure you understand that rebellion of this sort will demand discipline. The company will be obliged to punish those who defy them. And it distresses me because I love young people and I know that, underneath, none of them are really wrong-headed. They only make mistakes."

Gale shifted uncomfortably. She remembered Clyde Fisher had said, "Don't waste any time getting back." He would be angry because she had stayed so long. And why did she have to sit there, listening to Miss Groves? How could she get away?

The personnel director went on slowly, "A bright girl—a girl who keeps her eyes open—learns a great many things. And I'm sure

CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Dr. John Angus MacMillan, Minister

In many respects man has reason to be proud of his achievements. Human effort has "done itself proud" in many fields. Yet man has been a wretched failure in one respect. On Sunday morning, at 11 a. m., the sermon will deal with that fact. "Where Man Has Failed the Most" will be the title of the address. There will be a program of good music.

At the 5 o'clock vesper service the minister will speak on the subject, "Lost and Found." Did you ever lose something that you prized highly? And did you find it again? If so, you'll "find" something in this sermon.

How about coming to Sunday school next Sunday? Why not? It meets at 9:45 a. m.

The Junior church service will be held at 11 a. m. This is a fine place for your youngsters to go—while you are at Senior church.

John H. Banister, Minister
The services were well attended at the Church of Christ last Sunday. Fine interest in all phases of work prevails. Better than average crowds attended the week day services. Bro. Guy N. Wood of Kirkland preached from Monday through Wednesday nights. The crowds were good. Bro. Wood did splendid preaching and the congregation was pleased with his great sermons. Bro. Banister will have two good messages for you Sunday. Come and be with us. You are cordially invited.

Art Hats 'Hatched' For Spring Wear

THE HARGROVE Staff Correspondent

February 22.—Something of a spring bonnet has been hatched this year through an unprecedented agreement between the outstanding designers of the chapeaus that grace the not-so-quiet parades.

The new hats in the collections lack individuality from it. Agreement is made by a conservatism of crowns, which no matter how high or low are not excessively high or low.

The handling of the ornamentation sets off the models and collections to the diversity of the diversity suggests nothing more than a return to the old-fashioned March winds of the local atmosphere and denting the novel, albeit becoming a novel.

Glorifying Yourself

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Service Staff Writer

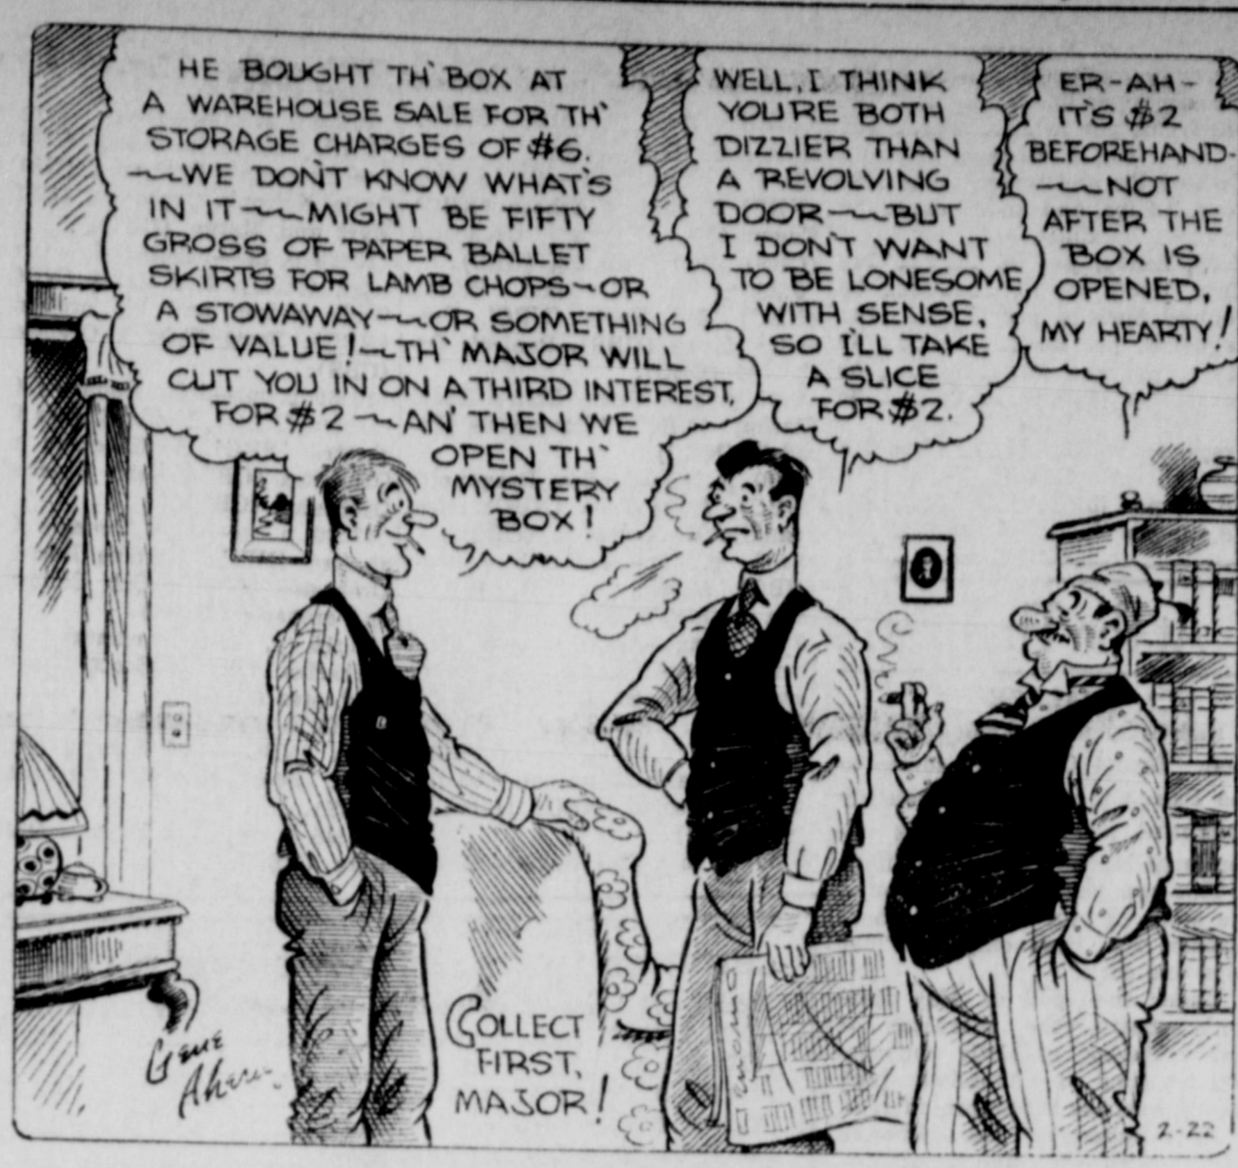

Those nice little ringlets, fashionable though they are and certainly flattering to almost any head, are pretty difficult to keep in place. You start out with rows of them framing your face and the back of your head, but by the time you get to a place, the high collar of your evening wrap or the rubber band that holds your shallow hat on your head has completely ruined the curls.

Right then, you know perfectly well that you'll have to go back to the hairdresser again in the morning or else go around looking like a frump until your next weekly visit. It's all been rather discouraging and a good many girls who really like ringlets have given them up on account of the trouble they cause.

Realizing this, one smart manufacturer has created a little metal gadget that anyone can use to make ringlets right at home. Easy to hold in the hand and simple to manage once you get used to the idea, this contraption is a far cry from the old type metal curlers that you had to leave on all night.

Take enough hair to make one ringlet, moisten it with warm water, roll it up on the curler, carefully remove the curler and then pin the ringlet in place with

BRISCOE COUNTY BOOSTERS ARE ORGANIZED

To Sponsor Worthy Projects Within Territory

SILVERTON, Feb. 22—Recently some forty business and professional men as well as farmers and ranchmen, met at the court house in the district court room and organized a service club to be known as the Briscoe County Unity Club. The object of the club is to sponsor the many projects before the county at this time. It will also look after the interests of the city of Silvertown. It is expected that Quittaque will organize a service club of some kind, sponsoring the needs of the Briscoe County Unity Club in putting over the county projects.

County Judge W. W. Martin was elected president, J. H. Sammons vice-president and J. E. Minary secretary. A. L. Kelsay, Joe Blocker and R. E. Boyle were appointed to draft rules, regulations and report at the next meeting, which will be Monday night, February 18th. T. C. Bomar, J. H. Williamson and R. E. Brookshier were placed on the membership committee.

The club will meet once a week at a place to be selected by the drafting committee. Lunch will be served, each member paying for his own lunch. Projects will be discussed and speeded up each week.

At the opening of the meeting, Judge Martin made a pep speech relative to the needs of the county and the activity of the club. Others making short talks were J. E. Biggs, former Chamber of Commerce worker and teacher at Lakeview, R. B. Doyle, Tom Bomar, R. E. Brookshier and words of expression from various members of the crowd.

Projects applied for by Briscoe County under the gigantic unemployment move are: hard-surfacing Highway 86 through the county; a new jail, a community house for Kent, Gasoline and Antelope Flat; lateral roads; wreck the old school buildings and build

THE NOSEY GUY

By J. C. W.

The Nosey Guy has decided to go to church again next Sunday morning to see how many pews have been cushioned since last Sunday.

A person can take a "skin-ning" by the preacher for his spiritual shortcomings if he can be physically comfortable. He cannot be comfortable on church pews that are not cushioned.

Some kind and thoughtful woman will start a movement some day to cushion church pews, and people will "rise up and call her blessed!" Now is the time to start.

Cushion the first two rows of pews and the problem of empty front seats will be solved. Every one will try to get a front seat.

PALACE

Rich in humor and emotional appeal, "Grand Old Girl" comes to the Palace today as a thoroughly delightful picture possessing exceptional human interest qualities.

This new picture centers around the story of an elderly school teacher who lives only for "her boys and girls."

Under the spell of May Robson's artistry, the character of Laura Bayles, gallantly courageous principal of Avondale high school, assumes heroic proportions.

John Robertson has directed with superb skill and sympathy. Supporting performances are outstanding. Mary Carlisle and Fred MacMurry score convincingly in the youthful romance which runs through the story.

William Burruss, Hale Hamilton, Etienne Girardot, Edward Van Sloan, and a number of others give convincing characterizations. Some of the most effective supporting work is contributed by young players who portray Miss Bayles' high school students.

Mr. and Mrs. John McMickin and son Jack, went to Lawton, Okla., this morning to visit Mrs. McMickin's sister, Mrs. J. W. Wroten.

Dalhart Texan Opens Panhandle Poets' Contest

DALHART, Feb. 22.—Two announcements of unusual interest to Panhandle writers have just been made by The Dalhart Texan. One is that two poetry contests are now open; acceptance of manuscripts to close May 31, 1935. In No. 1 contest, known as the general contest, the first prize will be $25; second, $10; third, $5. Contest No. 2 offers a $10 prize for the best poetic treatment of a Panhandle historic or scenic subject. Writers in the Panhandle of Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Kansas and Colorado are eligible.

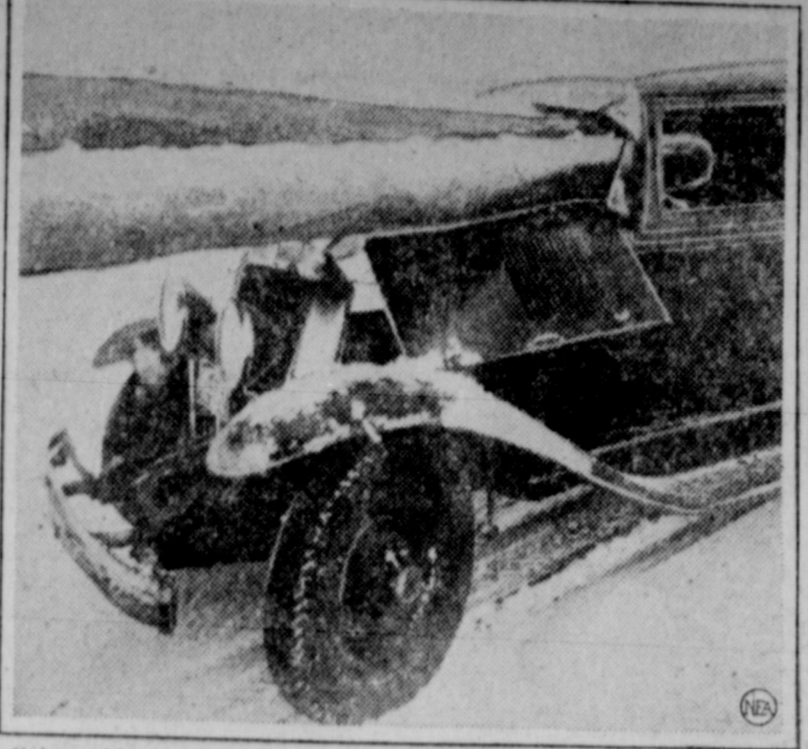

The other announcement is that The Texan again next fall will issue a poetry anthology, as yet untitled. This anthology will feature the prize-winning poems and others the editors think worthy of inclusion. It will be a larger, better book than the 1934 anthology, "Prairie Nights and Yucca," which has now become a collectors' item, some volumes having sold as high as $5.00. More than 200 orders for this volume had to be turned down because the books were sold out.

The contests and anthology publication are aimed at discovering and encouraging advancement of poetic talent and ability of writers in the Panhandle, the whole effort being dedicated to the development of Panhandle literature and culture, the editors state.

Manuscripts for the poetry contests should be submitted immediately. Only one poem may be submitted in each contest, though one person may submit a poem in each of the contests. Work must have been done in its final state since June 1, 1934 and must not have been previously published. An internationally known Texas poet will judge both contests, submission of manuscripts implying acceptance of all contest rules. Awards are to be announced as soon after June 1 as possible.

MORE ABOUT MACHINE GUNS

TUESDAY The Democrat printed an editorial in which it favored the purchase of machine guns and tear gas bombs for use by the Hall County sheriff's department. Since that time, numerous comments in favor of the "improvements" have been heard from local business men and others interested in the best protection possible for our peace officers.

It was pointed out that Hall County should have these weapons on hand if for no other reason than to let criminals and would-be desperadoes in this section know that local officers are prepared to meet them with the advantage on the side of the law.

Such weapon are becoming common over the Panhandle. Practically every county surrounding Hall have added machine guns and tear gas to the sheriff's arsenal. "It will become generally known among the criminal element of this section that Hall County is the only one that does not have these weapons," one observer pointed out yesterday, "and they naturally will converge upon Memphis as the best place in which to do their work."

This is sound logic and by no means the smallest reason why the sheriff's department should be equipped with the latest methods of combating criminal forces that are overly dangerous to human lives.

That is true of the machine gun. Tear gas has an entirely different usage. It is used to protect life in instances where innocent people are endangered by criminals. The gas gun is a versatile instrument. It has the power to send a projectile through an ordinary door before exploding; it may be blasted against a brick wall, or used as a spray in case of hand-to-hand combat.

An example of the use of gas was given the other day in Wichita Falls when two desperadoes hid themselves in a house with an innocent woman and two children, using them as hostages against police violence. The police fired a gas bomb through the door. The inmates of the house came out in tears and without an ounce of fight. The desperadoes were captured and the woman and children soon overcame the gassing without any ill effects. Without the gas, it would have been a tough job ejecting the desperadoes without endangering the lives of their innocent victims and police alike.

WASHINGTON—SANE BALANCE WHEEL

BACK IN George Washington's day the words left and right had no political connotations. If you were a conservative they called you a tory, and if you were very conservative you were an out-and-out monarchist; if you were radical you were a democrat, and if you were downright Bolshevik they called you a Jacobin.

But whatever the words were, Washington had the same sort of problem that any leader must face in time of social upheaval—the job of steering a fair course between the extremes demanded by different groups of his fellows.

He was unquestionably a conservative at heart. He was a landed country gentleman—probably the richest man in America, by all accounts—and he was an aristocrat by birth and training.

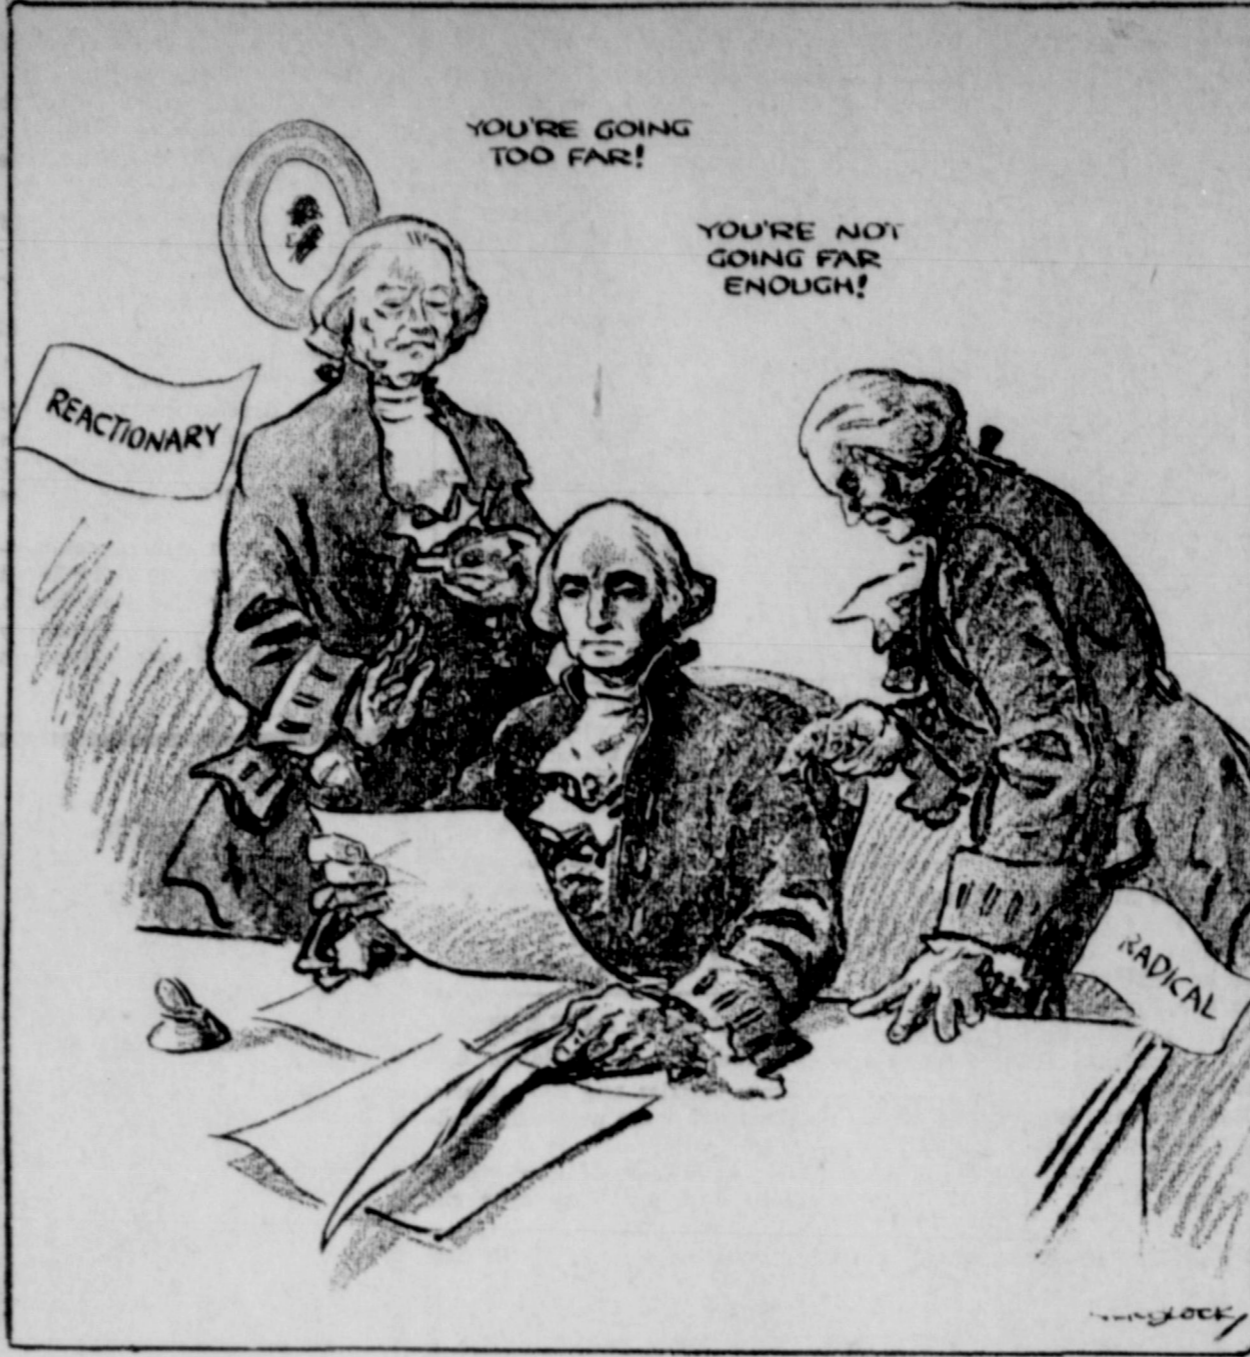

Yet he was a rebel, too. To revolt against the king was no light thing, in those days. If the revolution failed, Washington would unquestionably have been hanged, drawn and quartered in the tower of London, and he knew it as well as anyone. The man who led the colonial army in 1776 must have had a good streak of the radical in him somewhere.

In his own character he balanced the radical and conservative elements perfectly; and we add "First in peace" to that familiar tag, because he did the same thing as president.

That was no easy thing for him to do, any more than it is an easy thing to do today. On the one side were powerful influences which wanted the new nation contaminated as little as possible by this pernicious democracy business—some of them, indeed, wanted a new monarchy over here. On the other side were the ultra-radicals, who wanted their democracy made as absolute as possible.

Washington listened to both sides—and made both sides work together for the country. He teamed Hamilton and Jefferson together in the cabinet, which would be something like Ogden Mills and Norman Thomas today. He steered a way straight down the middle.

HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBAIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine
Every family in which there are children ought to have a fever thermometer.

With it, you might worry a good deal by occasional instances in which the temperature is above normal and in which there is nothing seriously wrong. But you will also detect many conditions in their earliest stages and, by calling a physician promptly, you will save yourself a great deal of prolonged illness and serious complications.

Apparently the first man to measure temperature was an Italian named Sanctorius, who developed a thermometer. After he built his thermometer, which was an exceedingly bulky instrument, it occurred to him to measure the heat of the body.

About 1715, Fahrenheit invented the thermometer used in this country, the mercury thermometer with the Fahrenheit scale.

As late as 1870, thermometers used in measuring fevers were about 10 inches long, were placed under the arm and took 5 minutes to register. The modern compact fever thermometer, used in the mouth and other cavities of the body, is a much more recent invention.

In the case of small babies the temperature should always be taken in the rectum, rather than in the mouth. The normal temperature as taken in the rectum varies between 98 and 99.6.

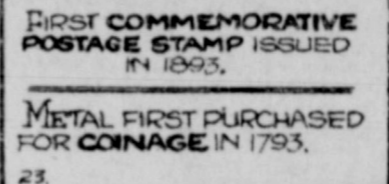

You should always be sure that the mercury is well shaken down before putting the thermometer into the body.

In taking temperature in the rectum, a special thermometer with a blunt tip is used. The child is placed face downward, preferably on the mother's lap. The thermometer, well greased with vaseline, cold cream or petrolatum, should then be placed in the rectum and held in position until removed.

The mother should not go away and leave the child with the thermometer in place, because the child may turn and break the thermometer and seriously injure itself. Neither should the thermometer ever be placed in the rec-

Lawyers Refuse to Worry Over Constitutionality of Huge Spending... Hughes Has Prize Whiskers After Slow Start... Business Men Want Trade Attaché in Russia... New Dealers Do Neat "Fix."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Smart lawyers in the government laugh when you question them about constitutionality of the five billion dollar work-relief bill.

They're worried enough, heaven knows, about other New Deal legislation. But this huge spending program, carrying with it an unprecedented delegation of power to the president, is something else. The lawyers make these points:

1. No act is "unconstitutional" until passed on by the supreme court, and even then the chief factor in the decision may be the state of a single justice's digestion.

2. The money probably will be all spent and the exercise of the delegated powers a thing of the past before anyone can get a test case up to the court.

3. The spending power of Congress is unassailable in the courts. No taxpayer ever had any luck in challenging it. A Mrs. Frothingham who challenged grant-in-aid appropriations under the Shepard-Towner maternity act was told by the supreme court she had no standing as a taxpayer before the court.

In Massachusetts vs. Mellon, when a state tried to get the same act knocked out, the court said the state didn't have to take the federal aid money if it didn't want to—and upheld the congressional power.

Hughes Fooled His Ma

Current excitement over supreme court decisions has established the pre-eminence of the whiskers of Justice Charles Evans Hughes as the most famous in the world.

Hughes told a friend the other day that as a boy he had been so pale and weak that his mama often told him: "Well, Charlie, you will never have to bother with the trouble of a beard."

A Columbia University survey reveals the fact that poor children fight more than rich children. Poor parents should get better governesses for their young.

The fact that the Hauptmann jurors came to a decision so quickly doesn't speak well for the hamburgers prepared for them by the jail warden's wife.

Cyclone Cagers Defeat Carey in Long Battle Memphis Returns To 'Old' Grid District This

THREE PERIODS OVERTIME ARE REQUIRED

Malone Breaks 14-14 Tie After 12 1-2 Extra Minutes

The Memphis Cyclone came through with another basketball victory last night at the high school gymnasium, but not before the club had its toughest battle of the year, going 12½ minutes beyond the regular playing time before defeating Carey, 16 to 14.

The regular game ended in a 14-14 tie. For two extra three-minute periods the team battled without scoring. Then they took the floor to play until one team scored a field goal. They fought for six and one-half minutes before Malone, Cyclone forward, tossed in a one-hand shot on a pass from Grimes to clinch the victory.

It was the Cyclone's first extra period tilt of the year and the club's third victory since opening the season early in January.

Close Play Next Week
Next week, the Cyclone closes the season in a final spurge of four straight games. The charges of Coach Arthur Howard invade Estelline Tuesday night to open the last series. They return here to entertain the Hedley Owls Wednesday night. Thursday, night, the Bear Cubs complete play here. The season ends Friday night at Lakeview.

Despite the long battle last night, the game was not particularly interesting until the last five minutes of the regular session. Up to that time the lead had switched back and forth several times. Neither club was more than two points ahead. The Cyclone had been shooting at the basket almost a dozen times to Carey's one, but no one could count consistently.

Ends in Tie
Five minutes before the game ended, the score was tied at 12-12. During the final five minutes, McAbee and Pharr, opposing guards, were the only ones who could score.

During the first play-off period, Memphis took two unsuccessful shots at the basket, while Carey never got near the club. The second period saw both clubs attempting twice to score, but without success.

In the final round, Redwine, small Carey star who "got hot" in the last tilt between the clubs and with a spree of goal-getting from every angle overcame a Cyclone lead to win, threw a long shot but did not get to the basket. Grimes and Smith missed, and Mills, Carey sub, took a long chance that brought spectators to their feet.

The Winning Score
After that, the attempts followed in this order: Malone, Redwine, Grimes, Bales, Smith, Redwine, McAbee—but the ball rimmed the basket, jumped out or missed the hoop altogether—no body could make one.

After six and one-half minutes of nerve-wracking play, the Cyclone got possession. Breaking fast, Grimes, with the ball, and Malone rushed down the floor. Faking a shot, Grimes passed to Malone at the side of the court. Malone turned and threw a one-hand shot directly through the

HARRY GRAYSON

Chance Sun is conceded a fine chance of becoming the first colt to win both the Futurity and Kentucky Derby.

Chance Sun, bred from the slow-developing Fair Play line, figures to flash his best form as a 3-year-old.

The big and ungainly son of Chance Shot was beaten plenty of times in his juvenile campaign, which, oddly enough, history shows to be a point in his favor. Chance Sun won the Futurity and another high class event, the Grand Union Hotel Stakes, both in the mud. Joseph E. Widener's candidate gave unmistakable signs of being the most formidable mud runner since Head Play, which came from the same line.

One of the two outstanding 2-year-olds of 1934, Balladier, has been injured, and is out of the Derby, leaving Boxthorn, who was quite good, to carry Col. Edward Riley Bradley's colors. The other, Psychic Bid, will attempt to duplicate last May's performance of his illustrious stablemate, Cavalcade.

Don't be surprised if the Derby winner and 3-year-old champion of 1935 comes from the ranks of the obscure, however. That's where Cavalcade and many others came from.

Juvenile Stars Precocious

Most of the foremost 2-year-olds are precocious, and are unable to match the speed of slower-developing contemporaries at 3.

The majority of fillies are more mature at 2 than colts, which accounts for the 3-year-old slumps of Regret, Sally's Alley, Mother Goose, Top Flight, Mata Hari, Bazaar, and some more. It remains to be seen whether Nellie Flag and Black Helen, crack 2-year-old fillies of 1934, stand up.

Not since Man o' War has a colt been really outstanding as a 2 and 3-year-old. Twenty Grand perhaps was the best in both years, although his complete record as a juvenile placed him behind Jamestown.

Going back as far as Domino, basket without touching the backboard or ring. The game was over. Little Redwine, who shoots with both hands while pivoting toward the basket, led the tight scoring parade with seven points. He was followed by his teammate, Pharr, and the Cyclone forward, Malone, with five each. Faulkenberry, forward, was the only invader to give the leaders scoring assistance, while every starter on the Cyclone five accounted for at least two points, thus overcoming Redwine's individual lead.

Hornbostel To Seek Three Track Titles

By JIMMIE DONAHUE (NEA Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—When Charley Hornbostel won both the 1000 and 600-yard events in the Millrose Games the other night, the bespectacled Hoosier turned a trick that only one other man in the history of American middle-distance running previously had accomplished.

Abel Kiviat was the other double winner. Kiviat's remarkable performance took place a quarter century ago.

Flushed with the success of his double victory, Hornbostel probably will attempt an unprecedented feat in the National A. A. U. meet at Madison Square Garden towho was a 2-year-old in 1893, and Colin, unbeaten a decade later, there have been many thoroughbreds which were mighty good at both 2 and 3, but none came close to being champion both years.

Old Rosebud bagged 12 out of 14 races as a 2-year-old in 1913 and added the Derby the following year before fading. Morvich's record was similar.

Sir Barten was a maiden at 2, and American Flag and Crusader, sons of Man o' War, were no account.

Reigh Count didn't come into his full rights until he was 3, although he had to be pulled double to permit Anita Peabody, with which he was bracketed, to score in the Futurity.

Anita Peabody pulled up lame at 3. Whichone turned out to be nothing more than a sprinter. Equipoise and Jamestown broke down at 3, although the latter lasted long enough to let Twenty Grand whip him by 10 lengths.

Testing Grounds Tell Story

Gallant Fox captured only two numbers as a 2-year-old, one of them the Junior Championship Stakes. Burgoo King, a mediocre 2-year-old, mopped up in the tomorrow. The former Indiana University star plans to seek victories at 1000, 800 and 600 meters.

The first two stretches are acknowledged to be Hornbostel's distances. Up until the Millrose gathering, 600 meters was believed too short for the midwestern flyer. His victory in that race was nearly as impressive as the 1:11.3 mark he set in the 1000-yard contest, however.

Hornbostel has stood out above middle-distance men since the start of the indoor season of 1934.

Elton Brown of Kansas City, who won the 1934 national A. A. U. junior 800 meters in 1:53.2, and then headed Hornbostel for second place in the senior 800 behind Ben Eastman, is expected to furnish the Hoosier's chief competition in the national meet.

Venzke Hits Stride

The third meeting of Glenn Cunningham and Bill Bonthron this year is scheduled to take place during this meet, probably at a mile. Cunningham defeated the former Princeton luminary in the Wanamaker mile of the Millrose meet.

The Cunningham-Bonthron engagement no doubt will draw the spotlight. It should be packed with action, inasmuch as Gene Venzke, whom both Cunningham and Bonthron have beaten consistently, apparently again has struck his stride since he headed off Bonthron to finish second behind Cunningham in the Millrose meet. The Pennsylvania runner will be fighting for a decision.

The big indoor meet is expected to draw the cream of the country's athletes, and at least three records are in danger.

Jack Torrance, world shotput record holder, is expected to heave the 16-pound sphere for a new indoor mark. Holding the outdoor record of 57 feet, the Tulane tosser may easily crack the mark of 52 feet 8½ inches set by Leo Sexton.

Derby and Preakness at 3. Ladysman, a star at 2, failed in the Derby, and broke down.

Singing Wood, a remarkable 2-year-old which annexed the Futurity in heavy going, could only sprint last year. Kerry Patch was another 2-year-old luminary that failed to maintain the pace.

So it is that the 1935 Derby victor and 3-year-old champion of 1935 may first assert his or herself on the testing grounds of Maryland and New York in April. It may be a chestnut like Omaha, which, while he failed to earn a stake victory as a 2-year-old, showed in late fall races a disposition to go on, and that trait should carry him far as a 3-year-old.

One thing is certain and that is, this upstanding offspring of Gallant Fox, himself a Derby winner, will, like his pappy and Cavalcade, be flying when others are ready to call it a day.

Then again we may not hear much about the Derby winner until after the race is run. Broker's Tip made it clear two years ago that advance notice isn't necessary. Broker's Tip had never won a race until he beat out Head Play as Jockeys Don Meade and Herb Fisher fought one another down the stretch, and hasn't won one since.

GRAHAM'S STANCE AT BAT RED SOX PROBLEM

By NEA Service

Joe Cronin has hopes of correcting the stance of Arthur William Graham, Jr., at the plate and making a hitter of the 24-year-old outfielder from Somerville, Mass., who tries to make a go of it with the Boston Americans.

Graham bats left and throws right. He compiled an average of .331 and drove in 108 runs for Reading last season, but hit only .234 in 13 games after reporting to the Red Sox. The youngster lived up to his reputation as a fly-chaser and exhibited a splendid throwing arm in the American League last fall.

Wellington Is Included in CH

The Memphis Cyclone returns to its "old" football fall, according to an announcement of re-districting B division, announced last night by the Texas league.

The new set-up places Memphis and Wellington Region 1, along with Clarendon, Lefors, McLean, rock and Wheeler.

The manner in which the district title will be decided will be worked out at a district meeting soon, according to Coach Chesty Walker. Supt. C. A. Cryer of McLean is district chairman.

According to the re-districting, the winner of District 3 will meet the winner of District 4, similar to the second section of this district last year. District 4 is composed of Floydada, Lockney, Matador, Paducah, Quitaque, Silverton, Spur and Turkey.

Lamesa Is 'Out'

No longer will regional aspirants fear the bid of Lamesa's giant Tornado. That club has been placed in the second region, completely out of competition with teams of the northern and eastern Panhandle.

The first half of Region 1 is mark, however, is endangered by the kangaroo-like leaping of Cornelius Johnson, the west coast Negro, who is finding himself after a rather unnerving debut in the east during the Millrose meet.

Although he won the jump that time out, he is considerably better than his leap of 6 feet 7¼ inches indicates.

If there was a vaulter in the east capable of extending Keith Brown, it might not be hazardous to predict that he would crack his altitude record of 14 feet 4 inches. But unless he is out to prove his assertion that a height of 14 feet 8 inches is possible, it is likely that his old figure will stand.
