CONGRESS CONVENES
WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Congress convened today at noon, and immediately confronted by a divisive neutrality and bond issue. The gavel had hardly fallen before the administration was met with a barrage of discretionary embargoes for the President and the League of Nations' organizations' bond issue were introduced. Members were ready for a vote on whether the neutrality bill is mandatory, and whether to redeem veterans' certificates. The Senate Chamber of Commerce contending that it would cost a billion more than originally intended. Un-American Activities bill, introduced by Chairman McReynolds of the Foreign Affairs Committee. The President would have emergency powers as to embargo war materials, but would be barred to embargo actual armaments. Financial transactions with belligerent governments would be barred. Roosevelt's message tonight is expected to outline a legislative program in which he places more importance on budget message Monday.

The Touchdown That Crushed Mustang Hopes

The red horde of Stanford struck swiftly against the Texas Mustangs from Southern Methodist University in the celebrated annual game in Pasadena Rose Bowl, before 85,000 spectators. Employing the aerial tactics which brought S. M. U. to national football prominence, the Californians scurried down the field in the first quarter, and here you see the line plunge, by Bill Paulman, quarterback, that brought the only touchdown of the game. The phalanx of Mustangs coming in from the left could not stop the necessary one-yard gain. Final score: 7-0.

REPORTED OIL SHOWING AT PHILLIPS TEST
Moving In New and Heavy Machinery for Knorpp Test

A small showing of oil has been reported from the Phillips Petroleum Company test south-west of Parnell at 5,421 to 5,422 feet. The Hall county wildcat test is now said to be drilling below 5,850 feet. An article in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram this morning stated in effect that the oil test is one of the most closely watched operations in the entire Texas Panhandle. Local men who hold leases near the well are watching the activities closely, but information coming from the scene is mostly conjecture. The Knorpp No. 1 test drillers (Continued on Page 8)

RECEIVE MORE COTTON CHECKS
Delayed Rental and Parity Checks Are Here for Farmers

Government cotton checks have been received in the office of the county agricultural agent this week totaling almost $4200. The checks, in the form of delayed second rental payments and delayed parity checks, are to be issued to Hall County cotton producers for compliance with the governmental cotton reduction program. The checks were received in three batches. The first batch of second rental checks was for $1,531.03, being from 42 checks. The second group of rentals contained 73 checks and was for $2,468.06. The 10 parity checks (Continued on Page 8)

HIGH SCHOOL TO ISSUE ANNUAL FOR 1935-1936
Photostat Process to Be Used to Reduce Cost of Annual

Almost complete assurance that students of the Memphis High School will produce a school annual this year has been given this week as over 100 students have agreed to purchase the yearbooks. One hundred and fifty students must agree to buy the annuals before school officials deem it advisable to print the books. A contract has been let to a printing firm in Austin for turning out the books. The annuals are to be photostatic reproductions of student-made yearbooks, which is a printing process considerably cheaper than engraving, it is said. Sam S. Cowan will probably supervise the making of (Continued on page 8)

SHELTERBELT CONTRACT LET
Contract Let for 48 Miles of Trees in Hall and Childress

Announcement was made yesterday in Childress that shelterbelt tree strips have been contracted for 48 miles of Hall and Childress County farm lands. The announcement, made by Donald J. Hodges, shelterbelt assistant in charge of the Childress office, finds the two counties only 12 miles short of the quota of 60 miles for the two counties. The shelterbelt tree planting operations have begun in earnest in Childress, with 30 workmen employed there; but work in Hall County has not been started.

ARREST LESLIE MEN ON CHARGE OF ROBBERY
Supposed Joke Lands Two in Local Jail on Serious Charge

Lee Williamson and Garner Lee, both of Leslie, are in jail in this city, as the results of what they contend was a joke, facing charges of robbery with firearms, an offense which carries a death penalty. The Sheriff's department received a report last night that a party of five negroes, 3 men and 2 women, had been hijacked by two white men with masks and shotguns, and forced to give up nearly $35 to the robbers. Officers who responded to the call and went to Leslie talked with the negroes, and were told by them that they recognized the men, and named Williamson and Lee as (Continued on Page 8)

ARE LOCAL TAXES UNREASONABLE?

ARE local taxes so high and valuations so inflated that they are hindering the development of our city or county?

Every so often some individual or firm pours his tax troubles into our ears, and heretofore we have not paid a great deal of attention to these tales of woe, inasmuch as "high taxes" are one of the favorite subjects of the calamity howlers.

But within the past few days the matter has been brought to our attention in a manner which cannot be overlooked.

Memphis has lost one of her few industrial plants to a neighboring city, due to what the proprietor thought was an exorbitant tax valuation on a piece of property in this city, and we believe he was right.

The owner of the plant in question had to move into larger quarters. Only one building in the city seemed to fit his needs, and, luckily this was available and could be purchased just now at a bargain—$3500.

Before completing the purchase, however, he investigated the matter of taxes on the property and learned, to his amazement, that the property which was offered for sale to him for $3500 was valued on the tax rolls of city, county and school district at $21,000, and that taxes on the property must be paid on this valuation.

He approached the proper officials on the matter of securing a reduction in this valuation, but could secure no satisfaction in the matter—so he moved his plant to the neighboring city, where he already owned a suitable building.

Along with the removal of the plant, this city lost several families of men employed in the plant.

Doesn't it seem just a little unusual that a piece of business property on a side street, which can be purchased, on time, for only $3500, and which had been bringing in only about $350 a year in rental, should be valued at anything like $21,000?

As a matter of fact, are valuations here in line with that one case? If they are, it seems to us that something should be done about it—and soon.

Memphis and Hall County must grow—not degenerate!

BAWSON'S INDUSTRIAL REVIEW

Discusses Unemployment Remedies

PARK, Florida, Jan. 3.—General business pushing toward normal, with the exception of certain other heavy activity is now in a period of prosperity. Yet unemployment is decreasing very rapidly, still close to 10,000,000 today. The reason is increased "social" legislation shows that most type, temporarily at least, unemployment.

Succeeds Gomez in Venezuela

Provisional President Eleazar Lopez Contreras of Venezuela is pictured as he marched in the funeral procession at Caracas for General Juan Vicente Gomez whose 21-year dictatorship ended when he succumbed to a long illness. Gomez' death was the signal for a series of disorders in which more than 40 persons have been killed.

of the latter is the result of labor-saving machinery called as a result of the Security Act. Whatever technological unemployment has become a vital issue in America's "volcano."

bulish outlook for the problem shadows the very man, woman, and child of the nation, as Vesuvius is the people of Naples. "SHARING" PLANS Nothing has been done to solve the jobless situation. The thirty-hour week — the thirty-hour example — are merely "sharing" plans. They result in boosting the wages for those who are employed. There is nothing basic about it. It is a half-way solution between the ERA and the job problem.

I am sympathetic with the sentiment in his desire that they should go almost 100% for wages, I cannot believe the right policy is to let jobs simply because they are high labor cost. Such a policy is a vital mistake. Government is selling its soul for a mess of pottage. Efficiency, usefulness, and value features should be given primary consideration. The portion which is for instance, I don't want money spent upon slum clearance, flood control, and installation of fire and sprinkler systems — even though it creates employment. It is not equal to that of "projects."

INDUSTRIES AS SOLUTION Look ahead to the future, the only solution of the present will come about the development of new industries and the general shifting of some industries now over-manned. The automobile is a good example of every horse and buggy are now five automobiles for every livery stable and four garages. I feel that the government best use its funds in new industries, such as aviation, "fiver" airplanes, prefabricated houses, and other modern activities. This would be a relatively near-term solution. Over the long-pull, the only opportunity is in connection with education. This is the one method which will ultimately take up the slack.

In the last century we made tremendous progress toward complete mechanization of factory and farm. And the development is not yet over. A hundred years from now there will be comparatively few people needed to raise or manufacture all the products the nation consumes. The persons who are not required for producing these goods will be used for developing manhood, through child training and adult education.

BOOM IN TEACHING

As the number engaged in agriculture and industry decreases, the number engaged in health and educational projects will increase. When the forty persons now engaged in making an automobile are reduced to a few persons, then the few persons now engaged in teaching large groups of children will be increased to forty. Of course, that is a long time away, but I mention it now because the tendency today is to cut down on teaching forces.

The teaching industry is the first that should be expanded in connection with any state, city, or town planning program. The main distinction between barbarism and civilization is this: Civilized people, by means of education, pass along the torch of experience so that each generation can begin its development where the preceding generation left off. If our children are to advance in material and spiritual wealth, they must stand on our shoulders. Only education can put them there.

A recent analysis sets forth five possible policies of government relief with estimates of the respective costs:

1. DOLES: Estimated cost about $1,500,000,000 a year.
2. PRODUCTION FOR USE: This means using idle factories raw materials, and labor to make goods for unemployed. Estimated cost about $1,000,000,000 a year.

3. LARGE PUBLIC WORKS: Costs unpredictable, but running into many billions.

4. MIXTURE OF WORK-RELIEF AND PUBLIC WORKS: Estimated cost $3,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000 a year.

5. STRAIGHT WORK-RELIEF: Estimated yearly cost to create 3,500,000 jobs is $2,000,000,000 to $2,500,000,000.

"DRAFTING" WORKERS: There is another proposed method, which I believe is better than

With All My Love

By Mary Raymond Copyright NGA 1933

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Against the wishes of her grandmother, aristocratic MRS. WILLIARD CAMERON, DANA WESTBROOK marries a struggling young physician, DR. SCOTT STANLEY. Before her marriage, she had broken with wealthy RONALD MOORE, Dana's half-sister, NANCY, is in love with Ronald but hides it behind an antagonistic attitude.

Paula, a patient of Scott's, is always calling him, and managing to see him at parties. Dana has become aware of Paula's infatuation. Scott, deeply in love with his wife, is uncomfortable over the situation.

One stormy night Paula's housekeeper calls Scott and tells him Paula is ill. Scott goes to see her. He stays away all night and Dana, not knowing Paula has attempted suicide, calls a cab and goes to her grandmother. Mrs. Cameron determines to do all she can to make the separation permanent.

Next day Scott is called upon to perform a dangerous operation, heart, realizing Dana is not there to share in his triumph.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

Scott walked swiftly, his eyes on the little figure ahead. Once he called "Dana" but apparently she did not hear him.

He started to run and stopped abruptly. A car was coming from the opposite direction. It swung to the curb and he saw Ronnie Moore was at the wheel. Ronnie spoke to Dana and she nodded. Then he stepped out and opened the door of the car for Dana to enter.

Scott turned and retraced his steps. When he reached his own car Ronnie's roadster was not in sight. He must have cut around the corner.

So already Dana was seeing Ronnie. Scott told himself. This time his feeling was not the fierce anger that blazed periodically, but a despair more terrible to bear.

Now that Ronnie had swung back in line. Dana would be a fool to come back to him. Scott argued. Why should she choose a man who had nothing more than vague prospects when she could marry one who was sitting on top of the world? The girl didn't live who would choose the poor man. There had been such a girl, but she had discovered her folly, and run out on her husband at the first opportunity. On a sham pretext that wouldn't deceive anyone.

Scott, sitting motionless in his car, laughed shortly. It was a mirthless laugh.

There wasn't any use going off his head about the situation. Other men had lost their wives for the same reason. Money. It was strange that men should go on wanting women who had quit them, but they did want them fearfully, with a need that was like nothing else. Feeling as lost and incomplete as though an arm or leg or eye were missing. Or, worse, as though some spiritual element that gave meaning to life was gone forever.

If Dana had only waited Scott knew he could have made money for her. Not as much money as Ronnie had. Not a million, but enough to give her a fine home and pretty clothes if that was what she wanted.

The thought of Ronnie was like acid, burning new tracks of misery along which his tortured thoughts must travel. Scott was glad in a dull kind of way—perhaps relieved was the better word—that Dr. Osborne had invited him to his home tonight. Dr. Osborne had become a staunch friend.

Dana and Ronnie arrived at the Cameron home. Nancy, who had been reading, glanced up at them, startled. She got up and started toward the door.

Ronnie called, "Don't go, Nancy. I want to talk with you."

"With me?" Nancy kept her hand on the door.

"Why not?" Ronnie drawled. He was smiling, but his eyes looked puzzled. "But I suppose I should know better than to expect you to reciprocate. Dana, this is a case where devotion has gone unrewarded."

"You like to talk," mocked Nancy, her dark eyes meeting his, unsmiling.

"Yes, but it never gets me anywhere with you. I had a hopeless passion for you, for years. It began when you breezed through mathematics, leaving me to make up grades during summer vacation. It burned fiercely when you played dazzone tennis, while I played like a tub. And it reached its zenith when you failed to step on my toes at dances the first year I came home from college, as all the other girls I picked did!"

"You were a poor picker," Nancy said. "You were always hauling girls around who generally decorated the walls. I suspected you had assumed the role of good Samaritan and were going around binding up the bruised herats of unpopular little girls."

"You never gave me a chance to bind up your heart."

Ronnie had come close to Nancy and was staring down into her eyes. His tone was no longer bantering. "Not that you weren't popular, or wouldn't have been if you had cared about it. But you didn't like boys and parties."

Nancy said, "Boys can be silly. I was never surer of it than I am at this minute."

She went inside then.

"That's an example of what I always get from Nancy," Ronnie said with a laugh. He joined Dana, who was sitting in the swing, her gaze toward the street. Her slim hands were lying quietly in her lap. How thin she was, and sad-looking. Ronnie's heart went out to her in a rush of tenderness.

"I don't know what Scott did," Ronnie said gruffly, "but I do know he isn't worth all a man could be. After all, you only known Scott a little year."

"But I am married to him. And you love him?"

After a moment, Dana said, "Then why don't you and try again?"

"I couldn't," Dana said.

"I really was." Ronnie lit a cigaret and then absently crushed it on the arm of the swing. "But it didn't do me any good. She loathed me—why, I could never that happened when we were kids, though I haven't the slightest memory of anything of the sort.

She still dislikes me just as cordially as she ever did."

"She doesn't dislike you," Dana replied thoughtfully. "She couldn't. That's only Nancy's way. I think it's because she's always been lonely, and grew up with older people."
"Too bad," Ronnie said carelessly. Apparently he had lost interest in reminiscing. "She wouldn't have been lonely if she had a diferent way." He added,
"Not that it matters any more, I haven't given Nancy a thought in years."

Dana looked toward the door.
Did she imagine it or was that a slight sound inside? Perhaps it was just the wind rocking one of the chairs.

"I haven't thought about anyone," Ronnie said slowly, "in more than a year."

When Dana did not answer he spoke in a lighter tone. "Maybe there's some consolation in being an old bachelor, at that."

And then Ronnie flushed. That was a darn tactless thing to say.

But Dana hadn't taken the words personally. That was the nicest thing about her. She never suspected you of underlying motives, But Nancy! There was a girl who was a hotbed of suspicion.

"Do you mind if I come over again, Dana?" Ronnie asked, getting to his feet. "Let me take you out for a drive now and then, just for a little fresh air."

"Please do, Ronnie," Dana said.
He gripped her hands hard, then bounded down the steps. Dana realized that people would probably gossip if she went out for air with Ronnie, but they were gossiping already. Scott had taught her how to be indifferent to what other people thought.

"What do we care for staring people?" he had said, on their wedding day.

She was passing Nancy's door when a sound inside made her hesitate. It had been like a muffled sob, but instantly all was quiet again. Too still and quiet.
The house, everything, was getting on Dana's nerves. Here she was imagining sounds at the door.
Imagining someone sobbing in Nancy's room.

"Oh, Scott, hurry, hurry!"
Dana's silent cry went winging out. "If you don't I'll be losing my mind!"

Yuletide Dinner and Watch Party

A lovely addition to the many Yuletide parties, was the Yuletide dinner and watch party given by the American Legion Auxiliary, at the home of Mrs. Winifred Wilson Tuesday, Dec. 31, at 8 o'clock, naming their husbands honor guests.

The living suite was artistically decorated in a New Year's motif. A blue and silver color note predominated in all the appointments of the evening.

After signing the Guests Register, they were seated at four-square tables laid with maderia, silver and crystal. The tables were centered with tall silver tapers in silver holders accented by large bows of blue tulle. The table favors featured tiny dolls clad only in a bow of blue illusion, and holding silver horseshoes bearing the date, 1936 and a New Year's sentiment of "Good Luck."

The color note of blue was also carried out in the three course dinner and the only illumination was provided by candle-light from silver tapers that cast a soft glow.

Mrs. Dean Morgensen, president of the Auxiliary, presided during the dinner hour, introducing the guest speakers for the occasion. The featured numbers were clever toasts to the "Husbands of the Auxiliaries" and "Wives of the Legionnaires." Mrs. Roy Guthrie was named toastmistress for the Auxiliary while John Deaver responded for the Legion.

After dinner games of "12" were enjoyed until the hour of 12 o'clock when the "New Year was hailed with cheers."

The guest list included Mrs. W. W. Williamson, Mrs. H. W. Stringer, Mrs. E. B. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. John Deaver, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Doss, Mr. and Mrs. Riley W. Carlton, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rebeis, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Morgensen, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Guthrie, Mr. and Mrs. T. Kittinger, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Roper, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Gilmore, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Whittington, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Lindsey, Miss Angela Wilke and Mrs. W. Wilson.

Ace High Bridge Club

The Ace High Bridge Club entertained with a New Year's Watch Party Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. N. W. Durham, with Mrs. Edgar Cudd assistant hostess.

The evening was spent playing bridge and dancing.

At the close of the bridge games Mrs. Zeb Moore made high score for the women and George Greenhaw for the men. Irvin Johnson was awarded traveling prize.

The hostesses served lovely refreshments to Mr. and Mrs. Glynn Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Goodnight, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. George Greenhaw, Mr. and Mrs. Zeb Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gerlach, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Crow, N. W. Durham, Irvin Johnson, Mrs. Marie Malley, Miss Gladys Hammond, and Miss Nita Cudd.

Family Reunion

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Stargel enjoyed having all of their children and grandchildren as their guests Christmas Eve night.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Stargel and daughters, Neandra and Jean, of Amarillo, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Stargel and son, Bobby, of Eliz. Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Stargel, of Amarillo, Mrs. Stargel, of Clarendon and Earl Stargel, of Eliz.

1913 Study Club Starts New Year

The 1913 Study Club celebrated their first meeting of the New Year with a luncheon and theatre party. The luncheon was served at the home of the president, Mrs. Margaret G. Morgan. She was assisted by Mrs. R. C. Walker, Mrs. Horace Tarver and Mrs. T. J. Dunbar.

Members were seated at quartet tables beautifully decorated for the occasion and each place card was marked with sweet pea corsages.

After the delicious four course luncheon a short business session was held and the following officers for the coming year were elected: Mrs. Ingram Walker, president; Mrs. R. C. Walker, vice president; Mrs. Horace Tarver, recording secretary; Mrs. M. J. Draper, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Mac Tarver, treasurer; Mrs. Lon Montgomery, parliamentarian and critic; Mrs. R. S. Greene, historian.

The club members then went to see Barbara Stanwyck in "Annie Oakley" at the Palace Theatre.

The following members were present: Mrs. T. J. Dunbar, Mrs. R. C. Walker, Mrs. T. E. Noel, Mrs. Byron Baldwin, Mrs. Bertha Carter, Mrs. Ingram Walker, Mrs. D. L. C. Kinnard, Mrs. R. S. Greene, Mrs. M. J. Draper, Mrs. G. D. Beard, Mrs. Horace Tarver, Mrs. T. R. Garrott, Mrs. Mac Tarver, Mrs. M. McNeely, Mrs. Margaret Morgan, Mrs. H. J. Gore, Mrs. Jessie Jones.

any of the five listed above. It is the so-called Quota Plan for dealing with America's valcano of unemployment. It resembles the NRA to some extent but is much sounder and more in line with actual business experience. Under this plan, corporations would be given the option of paying taxes in cash or in jobs.

Undoubtedly such a plan would be an immense relief to most business organizations. They would feel they were getting something for their tax unemployed, it would mean a return to normal, wholesome life, instead of the demoralizing pauperdom of the dole or fake work. To the whole nation, this Quota Plan would be protection against the volcanic menace of chronic unemployment!

Business this week, according to the Babsonchart, has moved to within 9 per cent of normal.

the night of January 30, President Franklin D. Roosevelt's birthday, and it was decided that three different forms of entertainment will be sponsored in Memphis that night. Dancing, bridge and "42" games will be promoted by the committee, Mr. Deaver announced.

Chairmen of committees were appointed by Mr. Deaver, the chairmen to select their helpers. Following are the chairmen selected: Roy Guthrie, ticket sales committee; Mrs. A. W. Howard, "42" games committee; Mrs. W. Wilson, bridge committee; O. V. Alexander, dance committee.

Various clubs of the city will be responsible for the sales of tickets for a certain number of tables at the bridge and "42" games. Dance tickets will be one dollar. Bridge and "42" tickets will be 50 cents.

The purpose of the Birthday Ball for the president is to create, through the direct help of the citizens of the United States, funds with which to help victims of infantile paralysis and support research efforts to wipe out the disease itself.

Part of the funds derived from the Ball here will be retained locally for the treatment of Hall County infantile paralysis cripples; the remainder, 30 per cent, will go to the national fund to be expended at Warm Springs, Ga.

Joe N. Colvin For Sheriff

The Democrat is pleased to announce the candidacy of Joe N. Colvin as a candidate for re-election as Sheriff of Hall County, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary in July.

Mr. Colvin is a pioneer Hall Countian, having resided in the county for the past 34 years, and needs no introduction to most of our people. For the benefit of new comers to this section, however, Mr. Colvin was for years identified with the cattle industry in this county, and is one of the pioneer stock which in the early days of the West transformed the country from the haunt of outlaws to a law-abiding section.

Serving his first term as Sheriff, Joe, as he is almost universally known, has proved himself a capable officer, and the record of his office speaks for itself. He has enforced the law fearlessly and without favoritism, and the records of his office show few cases of law infraction which have not been solved and the culprits taken into custody.

Feeling that he has discharged the duties of the office during his initial term with credit, he is asking to be returned for a second term, and we bespeak for his candidacy the earnest consideration of the voters of the county when they go to the polls in July.

are preparing to move in heavy rotary drilling equipment to continue drilling from the present depth of 530 feet. Activities at the Knorpp location have been shut down for some time awaiting the arrival of the equipment.

It is reported that an agreement has been reached between Johnson-Kemnitz, drillers, and the Fort Worth and Denver railroad officials for a crossing near the location, which will permit the equipment being trucked to the test. A railway crossing was denied the drillers for several days by the railroad officials as they thought that obstructed vision approaching the crossing might result in accidents.

Arrest Leslie—

the parties who held them up. The two men could not be found, and the officers returned to town, going back to Leslie this morning and placing both men under arrest. Before being taken into custody, the two men had returned the money to the negroes, and contended that the whole affair was merely a joke.

Williamson and Lee, according to officers of the Sheriff's department, both confessed to the robbery, but said it was merely a joke, and they did not intend to keep the money.

A man named Black, who conducts a cafe at Leslie, and with whom the two men had been staying, reported to the officers that his cash box had also been broken into last night and about $35 taken. Williamson and Lee both denied having anything to do with this robbery.

The two men were this morning charged with robbery with firearms, and bound over to await the action of the Grand Jury at the February term of District Court.
