Returns Home After Kidnaping

Mrs. Alice Stoll, (above), kidnaped wife of Berry Stoll, was found last night by justice agents at Stottsberg, Ind., alive and in "fairly good condition," and was returned to her home in Louisville, Ky., several days after a $50,000 ransom was paid. At the same time, the kidnaper was announced as Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., 22-year-old former inmate of the state insane asylum at Nashville, Tenn. He was not captured, but his wife was taken into custody.

ADULT CLASSES COMPLETED TODAY

Central Committee Makes Final Preliminary Plans

Final preliminary plans for the establishment of free adult education classes in Hall county are to be made this afternoon at a meeting of the Central committee of adult education in Hall county this afternoon. The meeting is being held in the offices of Mrs. Roy Guthrie, county school superintendent.

Consideration of teachers who have applied for classes, before applications are mailed into the Austin office tomorrow, will be the principal purpose of this afternoon's meeting, according to H. A. Jackson, chairman of the committee.

Application for classes by instructors in the county has been completed and forms are now in the office of the county superintendent to be signed by those who have already made application.

U. S. AGAIN TO SEEK NAVAL REDUCTION

Willing To Eliminate Word 'Ratio' From Agreements

LONDON, Oct. 17.—A substantial reduction of general naval armaments and a renewal of the Washington and London treaties will be suggested by the United States delegation in the forthcoming naval conversations, it was stated authoritatively today.

The authority said that Americans are willing to eliminate the word "ratio" from any future agreement if Japan desired, replacing them with terms relative to security.

Huey Trial Moved To Canadian Court

BORGER, Oct. 17.—Judge E. J. Pickens late yesterday afternoon granted a change of venue in the trial of Arthur Huey, charged with the killing of Ace Berger, after whom the town of Borger was named, on Aug. 31. The court transferred the trial to Hemphill county, and the hearing will be held at Canadian, which is the home of Judge Pickens.

Decision to transfer the case came after a two-day legal battle. Application for a change of venue was made when the trial opened Monday morning by Prosecutor W. L. McConnell, who charged that bias and prejudice on the part of the citizenship made it impossible to obtain a fair trial. Huey's attorneys made a formal written reply in which they declared that there were 1,500 qualified and unprejudiced citizens from which a jury could be obtained.

Cattle Buying To End With 200 Head Today

With the purchasing of approximately 200 head of cattle in the Turkey section today, buying of drought stricken stock on the latest appropriation of 500 head in Hall county will be complete, according to County Agent James A. Jackson. Purchases made this week will bring the total to more than 6,000 head bought in this county by the federal government on its emergency drought relief program.

Wide Search for 'Mad Kidnaper' Is Started

Where Legionnaires Will Parade

The climax of the American Legion's national convention in Miami, Fla., will be reached October 23 when the annual big parade will be held. The huge grandstands, shown above in course of construction along Biscayne Boulevard, will seat thousands of spectators. More than 100,000 World War veterans are expected to attend.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 17.—Hampered no longer by the danger to Mrs. Alice Stoll, federal agents today concentrated their efforts on capturing Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., named as the mad kidnaper who took the society woman from her home last Wednesday for $50,000 ransom.

Robinson was being hunted throughout the middlewest. Mrs. Stoll was given complete rest today to recuperate. She was returned to her family last night safe and well.

Follow Ransom Money

The lead that enabled federal agents to rescue the daughter of one of Kentucky's wealthiest families came when Mrs. Robinson called for the $50,000 ransom package in Nashville. It had been shipped there last Friday by railway express, according to directions in the original ransom note.

Robinson himself, who had been the object of an intensive search by justice agents was not present when Mrs. Stoll was found on the road near the little Indiana town of Scottsburg, about 30 miles north of Louisville. Information gathered in Louisville was that Mrs. Stoll had been allowed to telephone her husband here and that this call was traced to Indianapolis.

May Press Charges

Harold Nathan, department of justice investigator, announced charges of conspiracy to violate the Lindbergh law probably will be pressed against Mrs. Robinson. (Continued on Page 3)

Disclose Threat on Life of Edsel Ford

DETROIT, Oct. 17.—A threat to kill Edsel Ford unless he paid $5,000 was revealed today by department of justice agents with the arrest and purported confession of a man giving his name as Edward Lickwala.

Agents said Lickwala, 20, wrote the note to Ford demanding that he leave the money in $5 and $10 bills, in a candy box at the rear of a Medbury street address. A trap was set by agents but Lickwala was not arrested until last night.

One Drowned and Four Rescued as Plane Overturns

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—One man was drowned and four rescued today when a seaplane dispatched to the liner Washington 600 miles at sea capsized as it attempted to make fast to the ship.

The plane was sent by the Fox Movietone company to take from the Washington films of the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia.

The victim was a mechanic from Floyd Bennett field.

DISMISS APPEAL OF 'BLACKIE' THOMPSON

Under Death Sentence for Robbery of Marlin Bank

AUSTIN, Oct. 17.—The appeal of Irvin (Blackie) Thompson, escaped convict under a death sentence for robbery of the First State bank at Marlin, was dismissed today by the Court of Criminal Appeals.

Thompson escaped from the death house at the Huntsville penitentiary on July 22 with Raymond Hamilton and Joe Palmer. Thompson was recaptured but Hamilton is still at large.

The appeal was dismissed on state affidavit that Thompson escaped and had not been returned to the penitentiary within 30 days.

Legion To Meet Tomorrow Night

The Charles R. Simmons post of the American Legion will meet in regular session tomorrow night at the Legion hall.

Plans for the Armistice day rodeo here will be discussed and other future business attended to, according to Commander L. L. Doss. Every member was urged to be present.

MEMPHIS PLANING MILL CHANGES ITS LOCATION

The Memphis Planing mill, owned by O. Aspgren, has been moved from its former location on South Sixth street to its new location on Main street, one door west of the post office.

Mr. Aspgren will install more machinery to better cater to the trade.

MANY WOMEN AT DEMONSTRATION

Canning School Here Drawing Much Interest This Afternoon

Women from Memphis and all sections of Hall county are attending a free canning demonstration here this afternoon, being held through the cooperation of the Extension department of A. & M. college. First classes in the three hour demonstration began at 2 o'clock under the direction of Mrs. Ima C. Hensarling, canning expert who is working with the college.

Classes this afternoon are being given on two major subjects, the canning of vegetables and the serving of a "canned meal." The newest and best methods of canning and preserving food stuff with the least possible amount of spoilage is being demonstrated by Mrs. Hensarling.

The demonstration was being given in the W. H. Craven building at 605 Main street, and was open to all women in the territory. Arrangements for the demonstration were made early this week by County Agent James A. Jackson.

Typhoon Deaths Reach 41; Over $3,000,000 Lost

MANILA, Oct. 17.—Forty-one were listed dead today as belated reports from the provinces of Luzon island increased casualties in Tuesday's typhoon.

Fifty-five thousand are homeless. Damages were placed at $2,000,000 in Manila, $1,000,000 in Bulacan and $500,000 in Rizal.

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

by CARLETON KENDRAKE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, telephones the newspaper a report of the death of EDWARD SHILLINGBY, private detective, believed to have been killed by "CINCINNATI RED" LAMPSON, gangster.

The same night a man giving the name of JOHN SMITH is brought to police headquarters on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. With him is a girl who says she is MARY BRIGGS, hitchhiker. The man changes his story several times, finally is identified as FRANK B. CATHAY, wealthy suburbanite and candidate for city council. Both Cathay and the girl are released.

Morden telephones the facts to his newspaper. Next day the real Cathay calls on DICK KENNEY, city editor of The Blade. Cathay claims his reputation has been injured, and demands damages and a retraction.

DAN BLEEKER, junior publisher of The Blade, hears the story from Kenney and Morden. Bleeker says, "There's something fishy about this," and sends Morden to Riverview to learn all he can about Cathay.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Dan Bleeker, junior partner and publisher of The Blade, turned to Morden, his police reporter. "I'm putting someone else at your desk down at headquarters," he said. "You get busy and chase down every lead you can get on Frank B. Cathay. Dig into Cathay's life with a spade, and dig deep. There'll be plenty there that he won't want to have brought out—there always is. The trouble with men of his type is that they pose as being altogether too perfect. They put up a front that isn't human. When you get back of that front you find a lot of stuff that nobody knows about. You get busy and find out."

"Yes, sir," Morden said. "But don't spring any of it," said Bleeker. "You button it up under your hat and see that you keep your mouth shut. You get the information. As you get it, you bring it to me. You'd better make daily reports."

"Suppose they get wise to me?" Morden asked.

"How do you mean?" Bleeker countered.

"Suppose," Morden said, "they find out that I'm making the investigation? They are almost certain to, you know, when I start prowling around in Riverview and..."

Bleeker's words popped out with the explosive force of firecrackers.

"Don't give a damn!" he snapped. "Let 'em find out. What do we care? Tell 'em what you're there for if they ask questions. Remember, young man, that this newspaper is back of you. Frank B. Cathay may be bigger than you are, but, by God, the newspaper is bigger than he is! He's started a fight. All right, he's going to get a fight. Tell him so! Stand up and look him in the eyes and tell him that."

Whatever you do, don't be sneaky. Don't get to sulking around corners, listening at key holes, peering through windows. Bust right in. You've got a job—it's a legitimate job. Frank B. Cathay is going to claim that his reputation is worth something and that we've damaged it. All right, the question of what that reputation is worth is a fact to be determined. It depends on a lot of things. You're going to find out those things. Don't be ashamed of what you're doing. Don't let anyone get you on the defensive. Do you understand?"

Morden nodded. "You're engaged in a fight," Dan Bleeker said, "and there's a dignity about a fighter, as long as he stands on his two feet and fights. Remember this about The Blade, young man. It doesn't snoop—it fights. You're going into Riverview as the representative of The Blade. You're going to be fighting one of the most powerful men in the city. You'll find all the home guard arrayed against you. They'll try to frame you. They'll do everything they can to make things disagreeable for you. Stand up and take it right on the chin, and don't let them stampee you or make you even hesitate. If you get a chance, you tell them that The Blade is in this thing to the finish, that if they frame something on you and get you out of Riverview, there'll be another man to take your place."

"And as far as Frank B. Cathay is concerned, don't make any bones about it. Attend meetings of his luncheon club. Mingle around in the city. Smile at him. Be cordial to him. But never forget the one fact that you're there to blast his reputation wide open. Do you understand?"

"Yes, sir," said Morden. "Can you do it?"

"Yes, sir," Morden said. "Get started, then."

"Suppose they get wise to me?" Morden asked.

"How do you mean?" Bleeker countered.

"Suppose," Morden said, "they find out that I'm making the investigation? They are almost certain to, you know, when I start prowling around in Riverview and..."

Insull Faces 'Weighty' Evidence

The famed five-foot shelf would hold only a small part of the "literature" that has been assembled as evidence in the mail fraud trial of Samuel Insull and 16 others in Chicago, as this picture of the collection in federal courtroom shows. A 22-foot book rack holds the exhibits, 2500 in number, which furnish ammunition for federal attorneys fighting for conviction. Shown left to right beside the exhibits are U. S. District Attorney Dwight Green and Special Prosecutors Forrest J. Harness and Leslie E. Salter.

Bleeker looked up at her with a swift frown. "Alone?" "Yes." "What does she want?" "She won't tell me." "What does she look like?" "She's about 30. She has lots of money and she's spent a lot of it on her appearance. She's got one of those schoolgirl complexions. She hardly ever moves her facial muscles. Her eyes are nervous. She's trying to make a good impression. She's wearing a fur coat with a big collar; she looks better in it when she's standing up. She started to sit down and then changed her mind. She thinks perhaps you might come out to see her, instead of letting her come in to see you. She's standing up so she can make a good impression."

"Fat?" asked Bleeker. "No, she's got a perfect figure and the coat displays it to advantage." Ethel West moved hurriedly to the door which opened into the outer office. "You may come in, Mrs. Cathay," she said.

Mrs. Cathay entered the office with short, quick steps. From the moment she reached a point from which she could command a view of Dan Bleeker's desk her eyes were wide, showing to advantage the long lashes. Her head was held slightly to one side against the big collar of the coat. Her lips were curved in a perfectly arched smile.

"Mr. Bleeker!" she exclaimed. "It was so nice of you to see me and so nice of you to see me so promptly. I know what a busy man you are."

Dan Bleeker didn't get up. Ethel West pulled the door shut behind her as she returned to the outer office. The door gave forth a sound which indicated that there had been some unnecessary emphasis in connection with its closing.

"Sit down, Mrs. Cathay," said Dan Bleeker.

"I wanted to see you about my husband," Mrs. Cathay said.

"Yes, of course."

"Oh, did you know I was coming?"

"No, but I naturally assumed that was what you wanted to see me about when my secretary said you were in the office."

She squirmed about in the chair, settling herself with a slight gesture of the shoulders, a quick twist of her head. Her eyes, a deep hazel, were smiling now.

Her voice held a suggestive of intimacy. "You know, Mr. Bleeker, husbands would quite frequently make fools of themselves if it were not for the hand of a wife."

Bleeker surveyed her with acid eyes. "I'm a bachelor," said.

She gave a low laugh. "And," went on Bleeker, "can you cut out the preface get down to business."

"My husband," she said, "is a very strong man of very strong character. She paused and then said nothing.

"At times he's quite that is, in his rage. He reaches some deep spur of the moment real mad about something then he's too proud to back up."

She seemed to snuff fur coat with a quick motion. Her head, to the side, rested against the collar. Her eyes, as lips, smiled intimate. Bleeker.

Five Contest Events

There will be five different contest events at each performance, in addition to clowns, trick riding and roping exhibitions, kids' pony races and cowboys' relay races.

The afternoon shows will start at 2 o'clock and run between two and two and one-half hours. The night performance is to be staged at 8 o'clock under the ### football floodlights.

Admission at each performance will be 25 and 50 cents.

Parade Opens Celebration

A mammoth parade will start the celebration at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Nov. 10. It will be led by the Black and Gold band; all rodeo participants will also be in it, as will decorated automobiles representing business houses and organizations.

For the entrants there will be plenty of keen competition, with from 15 to 20 contestants in each event and also $500 in prizes for the winners.

CAMPUS CHAFF

Our thoughts are carried back to the good old days when we note the successful football schedule which the Cyclone squad is carrying out this season. With the encouragement which the Claude game handed local fans, Memphis has just about decided that there isn't another class B team in the conference. The competition will be stiffer in the future, however, due to the change in schedule which throws us to play Miami on Friday night of this week. They defeated our old rivals, the Clarendon Broncos, in a game last week and outplayed them throughout the four quarters so it certainly looks as if we're going to have a battle on our hands.

The school has been very fortunate in having such a cooperative pep squad this year. The girls have furnished more sideline support, regular school spirit, and have retained a pleasant attitude during the season thus far. They have also furnished plenty of entertainment for the squad, pleasures which last year's team was not privileged to enjoy. The girls have provided some social activity on Saturday night following all games which have been played this season.

Freshmen have made themselves well acquainted with the school by this time, and have ceased being regarded as nuisances. The students have either learned to understand them or ignore them and the mistreatment which came to both the Freshmen and the other students will probably be avoided in the future. The eighth-graders are really taking part in school affairs and are proving that they belong in the High school building all the time. A large part of the Freshman girls joined the pep squad and several of the boys are coming out for football.

Bobby Clark has recently found another cave man and delights in making several other Junior girls jealous over her "catch". Her recent victim is none other than William Moss of the Eli vicinity. "Perhaps it would be best if Bus I were discontinued and the students coming in could be allowed to attend school in their own neighborhood," sighed R. E. Martin, Jr., Monday.

During the past week Jesse Reed spent a portion of his time in the company of a Weatherly girl who is visiting in Memphis. "He just delights in torturing me," stated Jeannette Watson.

Central figure in negotiations aimed at averting a strike of the International Seamen's Union, called for Oct. 5, is Victor Olander, secretary-treasurer of the labor organization, above. Declaring seamen are underpaid and overworked, and citing the Morro Castle disaster, Olander presented their grievances to the National Labor Relations Board.

Just couldn't go my breath—too much smoke and fire! Fire to the right of me; fire to the left with smoke boiling up in great suffocating whirls—smoke with an odd mixture of blue, green and orange—smoke that got in my eyes like tear gas—smoke that I breathed with short strangling gulps. Through the din of the noise I could hear my companions beside me and could dimly see that they were struggling along in no better condition than I. Off to the left horses could be heard trampling; a plane roared by overhead.

My right arm had a nasty sear from contact with hot iron and I was nearing physical exhaustion. Yet there could be no stopping. We were greatly pressed for time. We thought we would never make it. Then—a command rang out; a bell sounded; and at last it was over—it was the worst chemistry experiment I ever made.

The dignified (?) seniors were taken down a notch or two when Miss Crabtree and Mrs. Periman were authorized to keep the senior study hall from 11:30 to 12. Previously there had been no instructor present at this hour.

Well, well, it's a small world after all. Think of the time when all over trains will be speeding onward at 120 miles per hour. Truly we are making giant strides in science. This fact can be vouched for by the students of the fifth period study hall which is next to the chemistry lab.

Speaking of poetry (no one was but never mind) Bud McAbee declares his favorite to be Christopher Marlow. Upon being asked to read a selection from him Bud modestly stated that he couldn't make love in such high flown language but he guesses he wasn't too old to learn.

We wonder why army men hold such an allure for Lu. Better join the army, boys.

Had you noticed Clara Mae Craft and Hazel Jones snickering in the rear of the study hall? Curious listeners could ascertain nothing more than—last Tuesday night—and—his hair stood straight up—ha, ha.

On Tuesday, the Home Ec club was officially organized under the name of the "Taste and Baste club", the president elect being Mary Miles Hall. Others to serve during the ensuing year are: Violet Tippet, vice-president; Lucile Rasco, secretary; Mildred Cooley, treasurer; Emma Thomas, reporter; and Clara Burnette, parliamentarian. The program committee consists of Ly Sanders, senior representative and chairman; Fay Rasco junior representative and vice-chairman; Maurine Reheis, sophomore representative; Martha Jean Parks, freshman representative.

This year there has been elected to the club one honorary member, Mrs. Harry Delaney. To be eligible for honorary membership, one must have shown unusual interest in Home Ec. work. In appreciation of Mrs. Delaney's work as substitute teacher in their department this year the Taste and Baste club has conferred the honor upon her.

Fifty-six members are enrolled in the club which is a great increase over last year's membership.

The Taste and Baste club has proved to be the largest in school this year, and judging from the candy and pop sales at the last gridiron game, it is also one of the liveliest clubs in the system. These sales are to be continued at each game.

Members of the club are Mrs. Harry Delaney, honorary member, Marietta Arnold, Amagene Baker, Corene Boles, Dorothy Jo Browning, Clara Burnette, Mildred Cooley, Elva Crow, Lucille Crump, Billie Faye Cypert, Charlyne Drake, Rebecca Edwards, Claudia M. Ellis, Ada Lee Gilliland, Mary Miles Hall, Cleon Hayes, Mildred Hagemier, Phyllis Howard, Lois Hiss, Bobbie Lee Jones, Carmen Jones, Geneva Kelly, Ruby Kilgore, Evelyn Lamb, Thelma Lindsey, Pauline Longshore, Kathryn McClaren, Dorothy Lee Morrison, Pauline Morrison, Sarah McQueen, Lorraine Nelson, Mary Helen Nelson, Mildred Nichols, Margaret Patton, Ozella Patton, Winifred Prater, Mary Lois Powers, Fay Rasco, Lucille Rasco, Maxine Richards, Marjorie Rogers, Mildred Richards, Maurine Reheis, Kathryn Reynolds, Gladys Ruth Sisson, Jo Mae Smith, Emma Thomas, Zola Thomas, Annie Ruth Thompson, Helen Ruth Thompson, Violet Tippet, Beth Weathersbee, Dorothy Wines, Leota Wines, Ethelyn Walker, Aleen Whitfield, and Miss Marie Martin, sponsor and instructor.

PREVENTION OF FIRE STUDY AT JUNIOR HIGH

Posters Made During Week; First Drill Is Staged

Fire prevention was the principal topic studied in the Junior High school last week and as the whole the study was a successful one.

All students of the school were required to either make a poster or a similar project, and many attractive paintings and drawings were exhibited in the building throughout the week by the boys and girls.

Principal L. C. Linn also arranged for a fire drill in the presence of Billy Walker, a member of the local school board. The drill was made without any preparation and with out the previous knowledge of either the students or the teachers.

It was the first drill made this year and was exceptionally well carried out considering the fact that two of the three grades have never attended the Junior High school before.

Principal Linn stated that the building could be cleared at any time in less than a minute.

Third Year Class Serves Informal Buffet Luncheon Last Friday

The third year Home Economics girls completed their first problem in entertainment on Friday with an informal buffet luncheon. During the noon hour the following menu was prepared and served: tuna fish and apple salad, scalloped potatoes, hot buttered biscuits, sliced tomatoes, iced tea and chocolate drop cookies.

Class members who were present at the luncheon were: Marietta Arnold, Faye Baskerville, Mildred Cooley, Lucille Crump, Rebecca Edwards, Ads Lee Gilliland, Carmen Jones, Tommie Frank Jones, Thelma Lindsey, Lucille Rasco, Helen Ruth Thompson, Imogene Evans, and Miss Marie Martin, instructor.

High School in Great Pep Rally

Memphis High school turned out for a genuine pep rally from 11:30 to 12 o'clock on Friday morning of last week. The entire school assembled in a single line starting at the High school building. The group paraded down Main street to the band house where they were joined by the Memphis Black and gold band. Several school songs were played and yells could be continuously heard as the students neared the business section of the town.

The band, pep squad, and all the students joined in enthusiastic shouting as the crowd marched around the square. Much interest was aroused by the student body which of course added to the school spirit and helped the Cyclone squad overwhelm the Claude Mustangs on last Friday evening.

53 Seniors Due To Graduate This Year

At the close of the first six weeks of school there are 53 seniors enrolled. The class is of average size and most of the students intend to graduate the following spring. The organization of the class has already taken place and sponsors have been appointed.

According to their president, Thomas Kunkler, the class is preparing for a successful year and plans to give the school system a great display of the "Memphis High Spirit." Several of the seniors have always been leaders in school activities and it is with regret that the student body acknowledges the short time between the present and time when they will graduate.

Students enrolled in the senior class of 1934-35 are: Woodrow Alexander, Marietta Arnold, Ida Lee Bain, Lois Baker, Alma Brice, Charles Champion, Norma Ruth Cole, Mildred Cooley, Clara Mae Craft, P. F. Craver, Lucille Crump, Garvis Davis, Charlyne Drake, Rebecca Edwards, Claude Ferrell, Winifred Fowler, William Funk, Arthur Gidden, Ada Lee Gilliland, Jimmie Gilreath, Dorothy Gowan, C. R. Gowan, Chester Grimes, Mildred Hagemier, Mary Miles Hall, Royce Harwell, Hazel Jones, Tommie Frank Jones, Orth Kelly, Thomas Kunkler, Evelyn Lamb, Woodrow Lampkin, Swift Lindley, Sarah McQueen, Frank Marvin, Lorraine Nelson, Jack Norman, J. M. Orr, Virginia Orr, Winifred Prater, Lucille Rasco, Jesse Mont Reed, Lu Sanders, Jo Mae Smith, Ross Springer, Emma Thomas, Annie Ruth Thompson, Helen Ruth Thompson, Violet Tippet, J. D. Webster, Joe William Whaley, Charlyne Wright and Faye Baskerville, post-graduate.

Former Indian Missionary on Chapel Program

A chapel program was held in the West Ward school auditorium on Monday morning of this week with the entire student body and faculty attending. An interesting program was arranged by Rev. E. D. Landreth, who introduced Rev. Butterfield, a former missionary among American Indians.

He entertained the children with Indian legends and with a display of curios and relics which he showed them. The display had been collected during his work with Indians and included moccasins, bows and arrows, swords, knives, dolls, and many other trinkets.

The program was both interesting and educational and proved enjoyable to the students.

Twelve per cent of the motor licenses issued in England are held by women.

Football Is 'Going to the Dogs' Here

An unexpected attraction was furnished the crowd during the Cyclone-Mustang game on Friday night of last week when a small, flea-bitten pooch tried to share in the plays made and receive his share of the glory of the gridiron.

The little fellow evidently thought that he had a great deal of sideline support for when the enthusiastic crowd cheered he ran in circles about the field as if trying to pick up the lost trail of the opposing squad.

He was relieved of his position in a few minutes, however, and the eyes of the spectators were again placed on the players.

Girls' IOU Club In Regular Meet

Members of the senior girls' I. O. U. club met in the High school auditorium on Wednesday of last week for their regular weekly meeting. Important business was immediately brought before the house and was in a short time referred to a committee.

Following the business session the group was favored with a piano solo, played by Miss Norma Ruth Cole. Following Miss Cole's number, Miss Charlene Wright entertained the girls with several popular numbers. Misses Cole and Miss Chrystal Howard then played a piano duet, "Darkness on the Delta," which concluded the program. Individual lunches were served and the club adjourned.

It is reported that several of the club's new members are dreading the next two weeks but for what cause one does not know as "outsiders" are not privileged to understand the source of the misery.

CORKY CORNELIUS CONTINUES TO CRASH LINES AND HEADLINES IN SOUTH

Not only is Corky Cornelius, Duke halfback, one of the greatest scoring threats in the south, but he also is one of the best place kickers in the country. Cornelius, who is shown here getting off a successful one held by Jack Alexander, fullback, has missed only two tries for points after touchdown in his career, and never has fizzled a field goal.

By NEA Service
DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 17. — That corking halfback of Wallace Wade's Duke eleven—Corky Cornelius—has started right off where he stopped in 1933, when he carried the ball for an average gain of six yards every time he crossed the line of scrimmage. In the first two games of the season, against V. M. I. and Clemson, Corky played a total of only 40 minutes—18 against the former and 22 against the latter—and if his performance in those two games can be taken as a criterion, he is headed for a sure berth on the All-America squad this year.

In the second quarter of the V. M. I. game, he slid off left tackle for 22 yards and a touchdown, only to be called back because one of his teammates was off-side. In the third quarter he took the first play from scrimmage and put Duke on its opponents' 26-yard line with a 37-yard run. A fumble by another back stopped that chance to score. V. M. I. punted out and Cornelius returned the punt 20 yards and then took an 11-yard pass and added 26 more yards to it to put the ball on the Virginia boys' 24. Then he was taken out.

Starting the Clemson game, he returned the first punt 28 yards to Duke's 48 stripe and then aided a slow drive down the field until Wade's team reached Clemson's 23-yard mark. After two plays had taken it to the three, he caught a lateral and crossed the goal line. He then was taken out. In the third quarter, after an exchange of kicks, Corky took a Clemson punt on his own 32 and ran 68 yards, eluding six would-be tacklers, for a touchdown. That finished the action for the day—and what more could one ask for a day's work.

HARRY GRAYSON

DETROIT, Oct. 17.—The score was 9-to-0 as the Detroit Tigers went to bat in the sixth inning of the playoff game of what perhaps was the wildest and roughest world series in history. The score was right on two counts. The St. Louis Cardinals had toed the plate that many times, and the game should have been forfeited in what perhaps was the most disgraceful scene in the annals of the sport.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, supreme commissioner of baseball, took the easy and only way out when he ordered young Joe Medwick from the game "to prevent a riot." Under the circumstances, Landis' decision was a level-headed one. But it also established a precedent for the throwing of things. Here's a brand-new way for home fans to help their club. Just boo an opposing star loudly and chuck bottles and fruit or anything handy long enough. The umpire-in-chief no doubt will give him the bum's rish. That's what Landis did.

Happily for Landis the score of the deciding game of the world series was so lopsided that the Cardinals made little protest. One could not help but wonder what would have happened had the game that meant the world championship and $42,369.99—the difference between the winning and losing are of the players' prize money—been air tight. There is little doubt but that a forfeiture against the idolized Tigers before the hysterical crowd at Navin Field would have resulted in a riot.

Excuse My Spikes
Yet that is what would have transpired had Landis not been present, for Harry Geisel, the umpire-in-chief, had the watch out.

and the veteran Bill Klem declared that the game would have been forfeited had it been up to him to decide. Landis divested the world series arbiters of the power to give the athletes the gate as the result of criticism in connection with Heinie Manush, of the Senators, being banished in the Washington club's series with the Giants last fall. Mixups like the one between Medwick and Owen frequently take place in hard-played games. It is just happened to be the one too many in a series marked by vicious base running, and ignited the aroused feelings of the addicts. Klem, stationed at third base, explained that he would not have put Medwick out of a game for what the Hungarian kid did in the heat of battle on this occasion.

Medwick tripled off the butt of the right-field bleachers to score Martin. In order to escape being knocked out of reach of the ball thrown from the outfield, Owen got off balance. When his right foot came down it landed on Medwick's left leg, and the pair sprawled on the ground. Owen sat on Ernie Orsatti's head in a similar situation the day before. In the kind of a series it was, Medwick's idea of a good way to get Owen off him was to kick the third baseman in the stomach, with both spiked shoes.

Fists seemed about to fly, and the players of both clubs swarmed around the belligerents. When order was restored and play was about to resume, Medwick offered to shake hands, but Owen waved him away. Owen also refused to make up when they were called before Landis 15 minutes later. The game was delayed 17 minutes when the Cardinals took the field, the better part of which fans in the temporary bleachers in left field showered Medwick with fruit, buns, hot dogs, and other vitamins, and empty pop and milk bottles. Cards Enjoy Shower

The nonchalant Cardinals apparently enjoyed the sport. Medwick fielded the fruit, and threw it at cameramen who dashed out to obtain close-ups. Orsatti joined him in giving the customers a show in return by playing catch with an orange. Medwick and Martin participated in a screwy pepper game with stray bits of fruit. After the Cardinals scored their last two runs in the seventh session, the left field bleacher fans, appeared by the replacement of Medwick by the veteran Chick Fullis, shouted, "We want a touchdown!"

It would have taken a couple of touchdowns to have beaten the Cardinals. And to c h d o w n s weren't being made against Dizzy Dean. It was Dean himself who in the third inning launched the attack that quickly turned the contest into the most devastating and riotous rout since Thermopylae. He hit and outside curve to left field and, when Goose Goslin was slow in handling the ball, executed a slide into second base that would have done Ty Cobb credit. On reaching first base on his second hit of the round—a slow roller to Owen—the amusing Dean held up the game until he ascertained whether he had been credited with a hit. Dizzy likes to keep track of his personal statistics.

OFFENSIVE YEAR IS PROSPECT IN SOUTH

Practically Every Dixie Team Runs Up Big Scores

BY HARRY MEHRE
Head Coach, University of Georgia
ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 12.—It looks like a great offensive year for southern football, judging by the decisive scores Dixie teams have run up. This section, always the possessor of many hip-swinging and far-kicking backs, seems this year to have as many, if not more, than ever before. In the early contests, Georgia romped over Stetson, 44-0, Tennessee took the Centre College Colonels into camp, 32-0; Alabama toyed with Howard in rolling up 24 points, while Tulane's speedy backs scampered and raced around the rectangle all afternoon and wound up with a 41-0 victory over Chattanooga.

All these teams and many others have brilliant runners, who give a hole to get past the line of scrimmage, are well on the way to the double stripe. Such an abundance of good backs exists in the south that their performance against one another is bound to bring out the most spectacular game the south has seen in years.

Notable among these backs are Cy Grant, of Georgia; Toby Palmer of Tennessee; Randy Dixon, of Vanderbilt; Jack Phillips, of Georgia Tech. Corky Cornelius, of Duke; Rucky Bryan, of Tulane. Abe Mickal, of L. S. U., and Millard Howell of Alabama.

Flynn Says Ross Can 'Take' Mick In Return Fight

By NEA Service
NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 17. — Eddie Flynn, former Olympic champion, and recent sparring partner of Jimmie McLarnin when the Mick was training for his second go with Barney Ross, believes that Ross could take Jimmy in a third bout. "Jimmy's victory was a mighty close one," Flynn states. "He showed me that he is a very good fighter, with a hard right hand, and he showed me he must have been a great fighter three years ago. "But I believe he has slipped considerably in three years and, as Ross is coming up, a return fight within a year surely would go to the Chicago boy."

With the announcement that Silverton is not competing in the interscholastic league this year, four teams remain to battle for gridiron honors in Section 1 of District 4, Class B. They are Wellington, Memphis, Turkey and Quitaque.

However, under the league ruling, games played with teams within the section who are regularly league members but missing out one year, are counted as conference games by the members meeting those teams. Therefore, games with Silverton and Estelline count for or against those teams meeting these clubs.

Wellington and Memphis are leading the title race thus far, each with one victory against no defeats. The Skyrockets, however, lead the full season play with four straight victories.

NEWSPAPERS CLASH ON 'NEW DEAL'

WITH one-third of the newspapers of the nation voting in a New Deal poll conducted by Newsdom, "newspaper of the newspaper world", the results indicate that the editors of the United States are about 50-50 in their opinions.

More interesting, however, is the fact that most of the newspapers believe that the government of President Roosevelt has not had sufficient time to give its "experiment" a complete test and therefore should not be judged at present.

Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times says, "It is still too early to judge the New Deal."

Too, many of the papers that cast votes could not be counted either way. They favored part of the policy of the New Deal but on other points differed with the opinions of President Roosevelt and his leaders.

The actual figures show 675 executives in favor of the present government plans, with 573 opposed and 193 agreed in part.

"It is further apparent that executives of the press are deeply concerned about the welfare of the nation," Newsdom states.

Opposition cites the following things the New Deal has brought about: Increased taxes, labor troubles, future bills, processing depressions to follow plowed under crops, threat to industry by government entrance into business, uncertainty brought about by monetary issues and demoralized farming through drouth, which, as Newsdom points out, "hardly can be blamed upon the Rooseveltian efforts".

Those favoring Roosevelt's policies stress the effort for the many, increased employment, reorganized communities heretofore facing bankruptcy, aid from all departments of the government, banks restored and savings saved and "a spiritual trend toward a national understanding of all things."

It is about evenly divided, all of which indicates to us that we're just about the same type of people we were a few years ago, worrying about the same problems, enjoying the same pleasures and not greatly differing whether we're ruled by a conservative or an experimentalist.

HAPPINESS OF BOYHOOD ENDS ON THRONE

LITTLE Peter Karageorge, who becomes a king at an age when most boys are thinking about school-work and games, seems to be one of the least enviable figures you could find in all the world of childhood.

A great many stories have been told about the good fortune of the boy who lives in a palace. But there are several million scrub-nosed kids in the United States whose chances for happiness are almost infinitely better than the chances of this little Serbian youngster.

The throne of Yugo-Slavia lies under a shadow. That part of Europe is not called "the cockpit of Europe" for nothing. The greatest of all wars began there; if another one comes, it is very likely to begin there too. To be kind of Yugo-Slavia is to sit amidst powder kegs, waiting for menace to take shape beyond the borders.

But if there is danger from without, there is also danger from within. Since the Serbs won their independence from Turkey in 1804, the land has had eight kings—and only three of them died natural deaths while on the throne. Three were assassinated, one was driven out by revolt and another was forced to abdicate by parliament. Alexander's murder is only the latest of a long series of violent acts.

A turbulent land set down in a troublous and incalculable situation—that is Yugo-Slavia. And the 11-year-old boy who now becomes king of this land is one of the most pathetic figures in modern history.

Peter was in school in England when King Alexander was slain. From an English schoolboy he now becomes a king, with court chamberlains to wait on him and a plumed troop of horsemen to attend his coming and going. And the chances are exceedingly good that he will never again be as happy as he was before they fitted a crown on his childish head.

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

We like to think that men are much stronger than women, yet investigations indicate that serious diseases, involving organs that occur in both the male and female, afflict men oftener than they do women. The cause of this inherent weakness in the male is difficult to explain.

In the considerations that have been given to the subject, one authority said that, since boys are larger than girls at birth, nutrition and the birth process are more difficult and that this might account for the greater weakness of the male.

It might also be thought that nature makes less provision for the safety of the male than for the female, realizing that the male is less important in the natural scheme of reproduction.

The chemical activities of life go on more rapidly in the male than in the female.

Taken altogether, the evidence is good that the male resists disease less well than does the female.

female. Some of the factors which have been thought of importance are those related to indulgence in alcohol, likelihood of exposure, and overwork.

These, however, are of small importance in comparison to the fact that the constitution of the male is somehow inferior.

More specifically, men are afflicted with trouble in their stomachs and intestines much more than are women. The tendency of an ulcer in the small intestine to perforate is twice as great in the male as in the female.

Men suffer far more frequently from cancers of the lip, the larynx, the tongue and tonsil than do women. Men suffer more frequently from tuberculosis of the lungs, from pneumonia and from all sorts of disturbances of the blood vessels.

Women, on the other hand, seem to suffer more than men do with valvular diseases of the heart and with chronic arthritis. Women also suffer a great deal more than men with backache and this is definitely related to the strain that is put on the feminine structure by the nature of the build of the body and by the problems of childbirth.

Of special interest is the fact that women suffer far more than men do from exophthalmic goiter and from functional diseases of the nervous system. From the point of view of suicide, the statistics show that four times as many men commit suicide as do women, but women make many more suicidal attempts that fail.

These studies of the distribution of disease are not only interesting, but of great practical value in determining the nature of diseases of various kinds.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
The Democrat's Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Like certain other things, if one is to believe whispers from the inside, the code for the electric light and power industry now being held up until after election.

The code has been approved and lying around somewhere in the White House since last June. It contained wage and hour provisions which meant increased costs for the utilities, but hardly anything the electricity companies have been anxious to get.

There seems to be some fear on the administration's part that the code, although reluctantly accepted by most of the industry, would be used by skillful "power trust" propagandists and other enemies to support the charge that the White House is inimical to the profit system.

For there isn't any way the power companies can get together and boost rates to offset increased costs. For rate increases they must go to state regulatory commissions or the courts, neither of which have been very helpful in that regard lately.

When the code appears, it will be found that the private companies didn't win their fight to have municipal power plants under it, although Roosevelt will invite all publicly owned plants to subscribe to the wage and hour provisions.

Beats Down Rates

The theory here is that utilities shouldn't expect to raise rates as long as they're paying large sums on watered stock and holding company charges.

Meanwhile, the administration goes merrily ahead with an unprecedented program of busting down electricity rates—its one successful effort to reduce an item of living costs.

No one announces that private companies are being bludgeoned into reductions but that's exactly the effect of a recent statement of policy by PWA. This said that where loan-grant money had been allocated to municipalities for public plants and private companies had thereupon reduced rates, the money wouldn't be handed out unless it appeared that a public plant could operate successfully at lower rates than the private plant's.

While this meant that PWA wasn't trying to drive anyone out of business, it was a plain implication that rate reduction was the way to avoid government-financed competition.

The fact is, private rates have been chopped at nearly every point where PWA has made such an allotment, usually from 20 to 30 per cent.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT MOTION PICTURES

PALACE
 "The Merry Frinks," now showing at the Palace is a comedy, yet in addition to many laughs it is pretty much of a "down to facts" picture. It is highly entertaining if this is the type of picture one is seeking.

The story is about the life of a family in which everyone with the exception of the mother is selfish and self-concerned, and has a grandmother and an uncle. Of course the situation is exaggerated (or is it?)

The father, a newspaper man; a son, a would-be prize fighter, an older son, lawyer-annointed with socialistic ideas; a daughter, aspiring to sing on the radio; the grandmother, a crabby, selfish old lady, and the uncle, just returned from sailing the seven seas.

The parts are played by Aline MacMahon, Guy Kibbee, Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins, Helen Lowell, Joan Wheeler and Frankie Darro.

The family gets along very discontentedly until Uncle Newt drops in, and then things get worse. But poor old Uncle Newt dies after eating one of his own meals, and it is discovered that he was really rich, although his talk about money was always taken as "hot air." Mrs. Frink gets this money on condition she leaves the rest of the family. This she does, but despite all the troubles of home life, she finds it impossible to stay away.

For young people, yes; for children, perhaps.

Mrs. Guy Stidham, who is visiting in the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. Z. Stidham accompanied her brother, Kenneth Davis, of Clarendon, to Dallas Sunday. Kenneth was injured in an automobile accident last spring and his trip to Dallas was for the purpose of having a cast removed from his injured shoulder.

Dr. and Mrs. O. R. Goodall were visitors in Amarillo Friday.

Hauptmann Loses Extradition Fight

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Supreme Court Justice Ernest L. Hammer last night denied the application of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for a writ of habeas corpus against his extradition to New Jersey to face a charge of murdering the baby son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The justice granted a stay of execution on the extradition until 4 p. m., Oct. 19. James M. Fawcett, chief defense counsel, had requested a delay until Oct. 22, but the court ruled this would be unreasonable.

David T. Wilentz, Attorney General for New Jersey, earlier had said the prisoner would not be removed to Flemington, N. J., until the defense counsel had an opportunity to appeal an adverse decision by the Bronx court.

Wilentz announced that he was preparing for immediate trial of Hauptmann on the murder charge.
