ENTIRE SCHOOL BOARD RESIGNS

ACTION SURPRISE; REASON NOT GIVEN

Believe Disagreement Over Election of New Superintendent Responsible for Sudden Decision; Mass Meeting Friday Night

Unable to agree upon the selection of a superintendent for Memphis Public Schools to replace H. A. Jackson, who recently resigned, the entire school board last night tendered its resignation at a meeting which presumably was called for the purpose of considering applications for the position of superintendent.

However, no reason for the action was given in the official document announcing the board's action, which follows:

SQUARE DANCE AT LEGION HALL

Old Fashioned Dances Will Be Featured Wednesday Night; Music By String Band

An old fashion square dance, the second to be held recently by the Memphis post American Legion, will be held tomorrow night at the Legion Hall, it has been announced by L. L. Doss, post commander.

Square dances, waltzes, two steps and shotties will feature the dance program that "will have everything that is needed for a real old fashioned good time", Mr. Doss said. String music and callers "who really know how to call a dance" and furnish the entertainment program.

Admission of 50 cents per couple will be charged, with proceeds to apply on a piano recently purchased by the Legion.

President Modifies Veterans' Economy Regulations Today

WASHINGTON, March 19.—President Roosevelt issued four executive orders today modifying the two-year-old veterans' economy regulations, providing principally for increases in allowances to widows and children.

Liberalized payments will cost the government $1,800,000 annually. The president transmitted the executive orders to congress on the final day whereon he could make any change in the economy regulations established two years ago.

Shortage Of Work Relief Funds Here Forces Shut-Down

All work-relief projects in Hall County were closed down temporarily this morning "because of a shortage of funds", it has been announced by the local relief office. Six projects, employing more than 350 workmen were shut-down until additional funds are received from the Texas Relief Commission.

Local officials this morning expressed the hope that a supplement grant would be made by state officials within a few days, making it possible to continue operation for the balance of the month. Only partial funds were received for March on the first of the month and additional supplement funds, promised on March 15, failed to arrive. "However, it

"Be it ordered by the board of Memphis Independent School District, in meeting assembled this March 18th, A. D. 1935, that all members of said board tender their resignation effective as soon as a new board is elected and qualified at the regular trustees election to be held on the 6th day of April, A. D. 1935. It is suggested that a mass meeting of the citizens of Memphis Independent School District be called at the courthouse, Memphis, Texas, for Friday, March 22, 1935, at 7:30 p. m. for the purpose of nominating trustees to fill the vacancies created by the above order.

M. E. McNALLY, Secretary, Memphis Independent School Board. Other members of the board whose resignations, along with that of Mr. McNally, were offered at last night's meeting are: L. M. Hicks, president; Byron Baldwin, vice president; D. J. Morgensen, Howard Randal, W. M. Walker and Art Miller.

Several weeks ago the School Board met and decided, by a vote of 4 to 3, that no one now employed in the public schools would be considered as material for the superintendency.

At the meeting last night the board was presented with a petition bearing slightly more than 100 names urging the consideration of H. J. Gore, present principal of the high school, for the position of superintendent.

A poll of the trustees upheld the board's original action—that no one now employed in the schools would be considered for (Continued on Page 8)

EAST TEXAS—Mostly cloudy tonight and Wednesday.

WAR CLOUDS

BERLIN, Mar. 19.—A squadron of German bombers and pursuit planes roared over Berlin today in the first military air maneuvers since the World War. German's first conscripts under the new compulsory military law will be called to the colors next September, high Reichwehr officers said.

VIENNA, Mar. 19.—A demand for the restoration of compulsory military service in Austria was made today by Emil Fey, minister of the interior.

In a signed newspaper statement, Fey declared that he was convinced that now is the time for conscription to "be taken up by other states which have been restricted in military establishments by peace treaties."

LONDON, Mar. 19.—The British government today asked the House of Commons to appropriate nearly 18 million dollars more this year than last for air defense.

The government's plea for increased armament followed a protest to Germany's re-establishment of a conscript army with airplanes in violation of the Versailles treaty. A government spokesman said that Britain's defense weakness was not only "a danger to ourselves but to the cause of peace."

Meanwhile it was indicated from Paris that France considers the British protest "weak."

70 Mohammedans Killed, 97 Are Wounded in Riot

KARACHI, India, March 19.—Twenty Mohammedans were killed and 200 wounded when police fired into rioters after the execution of fellow Moslems convicted of murdering Hindu religious natives.

Eyewitnesses said the crowd rushed to the executed man's grave, attempted to exhume the body and carry it in the procession.

Missouri Bank Is Robbed of $16,000

SEDALIA, Mo., March 19.—The Sedalia Bank & Trust Co. was robbed of approximately $16,000, at the opening of the bank today, by three men after holding the assistant cashier James Norlin prisoner most of the night.

The trio seized Norlin, national guard offices, when he returned home during the night.

GRANDMOTHER OF MEMPHIANS DIES

Mrs. Miles Bond, Grandmother of D. L. C. and A. A. Kinard, Is Buried at Crowell Today

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. C. Kinard and children, Geraldine and Dwight, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Kinard and children, Joe Miles and Frances, left this morning for Crowell to attend the funeral of Mrs. Miles Bond, D. L. C. and A. A. Kinard's grandmother.

Mrs. Bond, 86 years of age, died at her home at Margaret yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The funeral services is being held this afternoon at the First Baptist Church in Crowell, with burial in the Crowell cemetery.

The deceased was the wife of the late Miles Bond, Texas rancher and frontiersman who preceded her in death four years ago. He was a friend of and Indian fighter with Col. Goodnight, and they together helped to blaze many of the trails of the western part of the state.

Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. A. J. Kinard of Goodnight, and one son, living in Colorado, a number of grand and great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Bond has visited in Memphis a number of times during the past 40 years.

LIQUOR TAX SUSPENDED

AUSTIN, Mar. 19.—Guy T. Helvering, Federal Internal Revenue Commissioner, wired Governor Allred today that the collection of $1,000 tax from liquor dealers in Texas and other dry states in the fifth circuit would be suspended pending appeal from a circuit court decision, holding the tax invalid.

STIFLING DUST STORM

The phenomena of a sandstorm without wind is being experienced in the Memphis Area today.

Although there is not enough wind to disturb loose paper on the streets, the air is filled with fine sand that is sifting through every crack and crevice. The morning dawned clear, a perfect spring day. But by mid-morning the sun had been shut completely from view by a blanket of fine sand that seemed to settle down over the area.

Billowing up in a cloud from the north and west, the sand settled over Memphis at about 8:30 o'clock. It is believed to be the after-effects or the results of one of the season's worst sandstorms in Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska today.

5000 Minnesota Jobless Put Legislature 'on Spot'

In one of the most formidable demonstrations staged against state lawmakers this winter, a howling mob of 5000 relief seekers stormed the Minnesota capitol at St. Paul, forced a House rollback and shouted threats against the legislators if they failed to pass unemployment, old age, and social security insurance bills. Part of the throng in the menacing demonstration is shown here, jamming the steps of the statehouse.

ONE INDICTMENT RETURNED BY GRAND JURY

Non-Jury Cases Are Being Tried In District Court

Only one felony indictment was returned yesterday by the grand jury serving the February term of Hall County district court. The grand jury reconvened after a recess of two weeks and reported late yesterday, asking that they be dismissed for the term.

L. Z. Burns, negro, was charged with burglary in connection with the series of "clothes line" thefts in the city within the past few weeks. Burns waived a jury and his case will be heard this afternoon by District Judge A. J. Fires.

Judge Fires yesterday dismissed the petit jury for the balance of the term and this week will hear non-jury cases. This morning a divorce was granted to Pearl Spencer from L. R. Spencer. Other divorces and civil actions are being considered today.

Rabbits Win Prizes At Fort Worth Stock Show

Eleven winners out of eleven entries is the unusual record made by Art Miller, local rabbit fancier, at the rabbit show division of the Southwestern Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth this week.

Every rabbit entered by the local exhibitor placed in stiff competition with more than 500 rabbits from all over the nation. Seven rabbits placed first in their respective classifications, one placed second, two placed fourth and one placed seventh.

And because of the wonderful showing, Mr. Miller this week is wearing a hat two sizes larger and admits that he is "hard to get along with." In addition to the honor connected with winning against such stiff competition, Mr. Miller is considerably richer by his winnings. Each of the first-place winners paid two dollars and the second place paid one dollar in

Checker, Domino Tourney Will Be Held at Eli Friday

A checker, domino and 42 tournament will be held at Eli Friday at 9 o'clock a. m. March 22, it has been announced.

All players are invited to the tournament. The entrance will be 25 cents for checker players, and 25 cents for two domino or 42 players.

The tournament will be staged at the Odd Fellow hall, and is sponsored by the Odd Fellows of Eli.

Proposal To Limit Governor's Pardon Power Causes Tilt

AUSTIN, Mar. 18.—Proposals to limit the governor's pardoning power prompted a debate in the Senate today.

Senator Ben O'Neal, of Wichita Falls, suggested that the governor be authorized to grant clemency only upon recommendation of a board of pardon. Under the proposed amendment offered by Senator Gordon Burns, of Huntsville, clemency will be vested solely in a Board of Pardons.

THE DAWN RUSHER.

The DARK BLOND

MILlicENT GRAVES asks her employer, GEORGE DRIMGOLD, for a raise and, instead, is fired. A moment later he begs her to stay, saying he has something important to dictate—a confession that for years he has protected a murderer.

Millicent goes out to dinner, promising to return. Drimgold tells her to watch for a woman in a black ermine coat. Millicent sees such a woman. Later she discovers that someone has taken her purse, substituting one exactly like it. She goes back to the tearoom, on the way meeting a distinguished-looking man of middle age. No one in the tearoom knows anything about Millicent's purse.

She returned to Drimgold's office, finds him dead. In panic she rushes from the building, registers at a hotel under an assumed name. Next morning, walking along the street, she notices someone following her. A moment later a man touches her shoulder. "Just a moment please," she says. "NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY"

CHAPTER III At the touch of the hand on her shoulder, Millicent Graves gave a convulsive start, whirled around to face the man who had accosted her.

To her surprise, she found she was staring into the features of the tall, slender man who had guided the elevator down from the 17th floor the night before.

She tried to compose her features along lines of frigid formality and say, after the most approved manner, "Sir, I don't know you."

"Two pots of coffee right away," he said to the waiter, "and then we'll give you the balance of our order."

He smiled reassuringly at Millicent. "After all," he said, "I won't bite."

She started to say something, then felt that he was trying to draw her out and decided she wouldn't give him the satisfaction of trapping her by indirection.

He deftly guided her around the corner, into a rather imposing restaurant which, she knew, made a specialty of breakfasts as well as formal dinners.

She could feel her pulse pounding in her ears but, despite her nervousness, she was quick to recognize his magnetic manner, the smooth assurance of one who is accustomed to command.

Despite herself, in some subtle manner she found herself relaxing her vigilance. There was something so strong and restful about this man that he seemed, by a mere touch of his hand upon her arm, to raise a defensive barrier between her and the outer world.

She realized only too well that this was the natural result of his strong character, of his calm poise, of the instantaneous deference which was shown him by the head waiter.

Seated at the table, she noticed once more his keen eyes, the inherent power and dignity of his manner.

"I'll have nothing but coffee," he told the waiter. Millicent added cream and sugar to her coffee, looking up to meet the man's searching eyes.

"Understand," he told her, "I believe in you. A young woman who is as attractive as you are could, under no circumstances, have anything to do with a murderer. But there are certain circumstances that should be explained."

the point I want to make. You had better tell me the truth." "Why should I tell you the truth? You are a total stranger to me."

"Oh, no, I'm not," he objected. "I met you just once under rather informal circumstances." "Under very deadly circumstances," he reminded her.

"Just what do you mean by that?" There could be no mistaking the cold menace of his eyes now. "I mean," he said, "that I am perhaps the most important witness that the prosecution could have. I can put you at the exact scene of the crime at the exact time it was committed."

She gasped as she full significance of what he was saying dawned upon her. "I think," he told her, his gaze softening somewhat, "that there's some sort of a penalty attached, in the event I don't call in the police at once. I know there's a very grave responsibility. I think I'm an accessory after the fact, or something of that sort. However, I'm willing to meet you half way."

The waiter arrived with her order. She knew that she was hungry, and yet it was necessary for her to almost force the food into her mouth, which suddenly felt dry.

"What is it you want?" she asked. "I want to know your story," he told her, "in detail."

"Because I think I may help you." "What assurance have I of that?" He turned and motioned toward the doorway with a sweeping gesture of his hand.

"The best assurance you can possibly have," he said, "is the fact that I am helping you. It is only necessary for me to step to the door, to call the policeman from the corner and have you placed under arrest."

She recognized the logic of his words. "Go on," he said. "Finish your food and then we'll talk."

She wanted desperately to think but there was something in the timber of his voice, something in the assurance of his manner which swept her completely off her feet. More than anything, she wanted someone in whom she could confide.

an address which she didn't hear. "You're going to require some money," he said. "Have you any?" "None," she told him, "except the money that was in the substituted purse."

"That's the one you are carrying?" he asked. "Yes." "Give it to me," he said. "It may give me a clue."

She hesitated a moment, but the silent insistence of his eyes and his outstretched hand were compelling. She passed the purse over to him.

He took bills from a well-filled wallet and handed them to her. "One of the things you've got to have," he said, "if you're going to avoid the law successfully, is money—plenty of money. Keep this with you."

He turned casually to look behind him and then suddenly stiffened. When he spoke, his voice was strained. "I don't think," he said, "they've seen you yet. Flatten down on the floor. After I leave you, wait until you're certain you're not observed. Then go to 228 Mill street. The name of the place is the Acme beauty parlor. Ask for Miss Hanson."

His arm circled her shoulders, pushing her down toward the floor of the taxicab. He called to the driver, "Okay, buddy, pull in close to the curb and stop. Let me out. Then drive straight down the street and turn at the corner. Don't look back."

The driver obediently swung toward the curb. "What is it?" Millicent asked in a thin, frightened voice, from her cramped position on the floor of the taxicab.

"Two detectives," he said, "following in a police car." She heard the crisp rustle of a bill, heard him say something in a whisper to the cab driver, then the sound of a slamming door. The cab lurched once more into motion. She felt it swing at the corner.

Abruptly, she realized that she had surrendered the only bit of evidence she possessed to a man who was not only a stanger but who had been in the vicinity of the murder at the very time it was committed.

She struggled up from her position in the bottom of the taxicab. "Stop!" she called to the cab driver. "Go back!"

UNDER the DOME at AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
(AP Staff Correspondent)

AUSTIN, March 18.—Rep. Alfred Petch of Fredericksburg insists that his compromise plan for submission of prohibition repeal is neither "dry" nor "wet". He proposes private sale of ferments and a state monopoly of distilled liquors. Much good home made wine is to be found in his German-settled district.

All sides were shown his plan, Petch said. "We put it up to those who are dry politically and dry in practice; we conferred with those dry politically and wet in practice; we consulted wets who do not drink and those wet politically and personally. It will win repeal votes from all."

Sen. Tom DeBerry of Bogata, Red River County, has defined the distinction between the "common people" and the "Splivins Boys" to whom he frequently refers in Senate debate. The "common people" are the class about whom politicians orate, DeBerry explained. But the "Splivins Boys" are the lads back home, close to the legislator, who really hold him to account.

The Rev. Jasper N. Reed of Texarkana, minister-member of the House, was one of a small group that voted "no" on the state's $3,500,000 relief bonds. Then he asked that his vote be changed to "aye." A vote can be changed, after announcement of the result, only by unanimous consent. Some members withheld consent until Reed promised he would not ask reconsideration of the vote. Only members shown voting side can do that.

He explained that his opposition is not to the charitable purpose of the measure. He objected to the Senate's treatment of it. Senators had struck out a House provision that made 25 per cent available for work-relief. Reed insisted that should remain.

"It's still in the air," he said. "If Congress will carry out the President's plan to have the federal government care for all employables."

A membership on the Senate Finance Committee, or the House Appropriations Committee is a highly cherished legislative assignment. These committees get many pleasant trips during a session. They are invited by entertaining communities to visit the places where state institutions or schools are situated and see for themselves the need of appropriations. One or the other already have visited Galveston, Denton and Brownsville this session.

The Senate committee, usually a freer spender than the House, has reversed things this session. The House appropriation bill for eleemosynary institutions, reported this week, is much more liberal than that of the Senate Finance Committee. The House Committee boosted the last biennial appropriations nearly 30 per cent to a total of more than $10,300,000. The total of the Senate committee bill was $9,945,924. Appropriations for the last two years were a trifle more than $8,000,000.

The House committee ok'ed a wing for the psychopathic hospital at Galveston to cost $120,000, which Senators omitted. The Senate favored $171,300 building and improvement expenditures at the Wichita Falls State Hospital and the House allowed $147,500 there. Both committee recommendations were about the same for building purposes, at Abilene, Terrell, Carlsbad and San Antonio hospitals.

At Rusk, the House favored a $54,000 building for living quarters, the Senate a $50,000 building for tuberculars and $47,000 for employe housing. The chief increase in the House was on the amounts for supplies and maintenance. The Senate held them approximately to figures in the Senate Board of Control's budget.

Governors of most states will visit Texas in the centennial year, 1936, Governor Allred has been assured. Many acceptances have come to his embellished invitation sent to other governors. Italy is the first foreign country to evince interest. Ambassador Agusta Rosso, from the land of Garibaldi, informed Governor Allred that he will call the Texas Centennial to the attention of his government and that, personally, he will visit the proposed exposition.

One question has been asked Governor Allred at nearly every newspaper conference he has held since taking office. Daily some correspondent has inquired: "How about a highway commissioner?" They arranged turns at asking the question. Finally, Governor Allred took over the assignment himself.

"I'll ask myself every day," he said, "and I'll tell you when the answer is ready."

Lakeview Captures County Athletic Champions

ESTELLINE WINS SECOND PLACE IN CONTEST

Fifteen Schools Try For Honors During Second Meet

Lakeview High school athletes yesterday reached into the dust-filled air and snatched the county athletic championship by capturing the interscholastic track and field meet for Class B. schools. Estelline was second, in the fast, hotly contested events, only 12 1/2 points behind the winner, while Turkey was a close third, only 2 1/2 points behind Estelline.

Memphis High school athletes did not compete, since the local Class A school is in a division by itself.

Approximately 1,000 students from schools all over the county witnessed the events in which athletes from 15 schools were competing for the right to enter district competition at Childress. High winds and dust-filled air failed to hamper the events, and some of the best county records were smashed during final events of the afternoon. All events were held at Fair Park field.

Lakeview tallied 59 1/2 points during the day to win the championship. Estelline piled up 47 points and Turkey ran third with 44 1/2 points.

Estelline held an easy victory in the High School junior boys division of the annual county meet, with a total of 35 points. Lakeview ran second with 17 points and Leslie third with a total of 6 points.

In junior boys ward and rural school events, Parnell was an easy first with 28 points, Turkey Ward second with 18 points and Wolf Flat third with 7 points. Other scores in this division were Brice 4, Bridle Bit 2, Eli 2, Lakeview 2 and Plaska 2.

Turkey girls won both the senior and junior track and field meet. In senior events they tallied 25 points. Lakeview accounted for 14 points and Estelline 13 points. In junior events Turkey piled up a total of 29 points, while Estelline accounted for only 13 points. Lakeview 5 and Webster 3.

H. J. Gore, county athletic director, called the track and field meet for yesterday afternoon after it was postponed Saturday "until the first pretty day this week". Although yesterday could have been a prettier day for a track and field meet, it was deemed wise to hold elimination so that winners could train for the district meet. Mr. Gore was assisted during the day by Coach Chesty Walker and coaches from various schools.

Following are the winners of the various events, furnished The Democrat through the courtesy of Mr. Gore and his assistants:

HORNSBY BANKS ON NEWSOM FOR 20 VICTORIES

Veteran Burnett To Be Used To Steady Young Infield

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another of a series of articles on the big league training camps. It deals with the St. Louis Browns.

BY HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service
WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 19.—Even the Chicago White Sox wouldn't finish last in the American League if the St. Louis Browns were not managed by Rogers Hornsby.

The managerial skill of Hornsby, who perhaps was the finest right-hand hitter who ever played baseball, is the biggest asset of the club that plays a poor second fiddle to the rip-roaring Cardinals in the fine old city on the Mississippi River banks. The Texan gets the most out of his men, and his quick

YOUTH CARRIES HOD

Here are three young infielders of the St. Louis Browns on whom the defensive play of Rogers Hornsby's team depends. Left to right: Alan Strange, shortstop; Harland Clift, third sacker; and Aloysius Bejma, equally at home on second, third, or short.

Washington Senators paid the Browns $26,000 for Bump Hadley, a right-hand pitcher who couldn't find the plate with a surety's instruments a good deal of the time.

The Cleveland Indians handed over Bob Weiland, huge left-hand pitcher, Infielder Johnny Burnett, and $7500 for Outfield Bruce Campbell.

Of the $33,500 thus derived, Hornsby says that $17,500 went to San Antonio for Roy (Beau) Bell, a raw-boned 28-year-old right-hand hitting flycatcher who compiled an average of .337 in the Texas League in 1934. That was like the Browns taking the amount out of one pocket and putting it in another. Bell starred as an all-around athlete at Texas A. and M.

Hornsby is optimistic and bases his hopes for a better showing in 1935 on:

The addition of Weiland and a pair of 28-year-old recruits, Fay Thomas and Ashley Hillin, to the turling corps.

Two Trades Helped Club
Hornsby made two splendid deals during the off-season. The

The return of batting form of First Baseman Irving Burns, who figures to hit more than the .257 he recorded in 1934.

Improvement of the young infielders, Harland Clift and Alan Strange.

The punch that the seasoned Johnny Burnett adds to the infield, Burnett, who swings from the left side of the plate, hit .293 for the Indians last season. Strange will have to skyrocket his .233 mark of 1934 or find himself replaced by Burnett at shortstop.

The long-range hitting of Bell.

Newsom May Lead Hurlers
Hornsby has an idea that Buck Newsom, the large right-hander with the windmill windup, can bag 20 games. An arm infection, which may prevent the South Carolina from obtaining a flying start, has Hornsby worried.

Hornsby believes George Blac-holder and Jack Knott can win 15 games apiece, and that Dick Coffman should be good for a dozen.

In Weiland, the Browns for the first time in several years have a southpaw who rates starting assignments. Thomas and Hillin copped 52 games between them in the minors in 1934. Ivy Paul Andrews and Elton Walkup, a young right-hander from Mikkwaukee, round out the staff.

Tommy Heath once more has been brought up from San Antonio to make it certain that the outfit will have a catcher at all times. Hemsley wasn't content with fighting sailors alone last summer. He took the other catcher, Frank Grube, with him.

Hemsley is underweight, by the way, and suffering from a pulled ligament and a mashed toe. He dropped an automobile jack on the toe.

Oscar Melillo does everything well enough to be a star at second base, and Aloysius Bejma is equally at home at second, short, or third. He hit .271 last season.

The Browns' starting outfield will be composed of Ray Pepper, West, and Bell. Deb Garmis wouldn't be carried if Hornsby could find anybody else of worth. Larry Bettencourt is said to have cured himself of the habit of chasing curve balls to first base in the Texas League, and is to be given a thorough trial.

Hornsby can count upon only West and Pepper in the outfield with any degree of assurance, however, which is why he again has bedecked the veteran Clarence Mueller in major league livery.

Hornsby hasn't much of a hand, but he'll make few mistakes in playing it.

The good behavior of Hemsley. NEXT: The Red Sox.

HARRY GRAYSON

In his zeal to attack the New Deal and indirectly build himself up as a presidential candidate for the next campaign, Senator Huey Long, the Kingfish and Imperial Potentate of the Sovereign State of Louisiana, has neglected the athletic activities of Louisiana State University.

Maybe that's why the Tigers' basketball squad is one of the most powerful in the United States today.

Probably you recall Huey's altercation with Coach Biff Jones over the running of the L. S. U. football team last fall, and how the Tigers, after a successful year under Biff, ran into Tartars at Tulane and Tennessee and dropped a couple of games. Jones lost his job for telling Huey that he, Biff, was the boss.

Apparently Coach Harry Rabenhorst, basketball mentor, hasn't been laboring under the handicap of Long's second guessing. So the Tigers crashed through a tough Southeastern Conference schedule of 12 games to win every one. Against Mississippi State, a powerful team, Rabenhorst's boys ran up a total of 67 points.

L. S. U.'s team takes a trip east next month to participate in the American Legion court tournament at Atlantic City, April 20. The smug north Atlantic seaboard, which swears by New York University's high-powered quintet this season, is due to see a team in action that would give the Violet a swell run for its money.

Wade's a Wonder
The Tigers' team is built around Malcolm "Sparky" Wade, sensational diminutive guard, and Nathan "Buddy" Blair, star forward.

As a unit, the squad is particularly proficient in offense and is rated remarkable for its clever execution of the pivot play, and its fast passing and cutting.

Wade is an unusual player. He tips the scales at only 147 pounds full of bananas and cream, and yet, even though playing a guard position where big bruisers are the accented timber, he is a big scoring threat. In the 1933-34 season, he rang up 197 points to win the individual scoring championship.

Coach A. F. Rupp, noted mentor of Kentucky's wonder team, made the following remark about the mite's prowess last season: "Louisiana State University,

At the Theatres

PALACE
"Sweet Adeline," Warner Bros. new musical spectacle and said to be the most pretentious of all their gigantic specials, opens at the Palace Theatre today with Irene Dunne, famous stage and screen singing star in the title role.

The picture is taken from the sensational Broadway hit by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II and is crammed with hilarious comedy, delightful romance and stirring drama in addition to its gigantic specialty numbers.

Unique dancing numbers are staged by Bobby Connolly on novel and mammoth sets with scores of Hollywood's most beautiful girls taking part.

The music for the operetta, written by the authors of the musical comedy, contains some of the most popular songs of the day.

RITZ
That there are plenty of laughs in "The Night Is Young," romantic new musical hit, opening today at the Ritz Theatre, is insured by the presence in its imposing cast of not one but four comedy headliners!

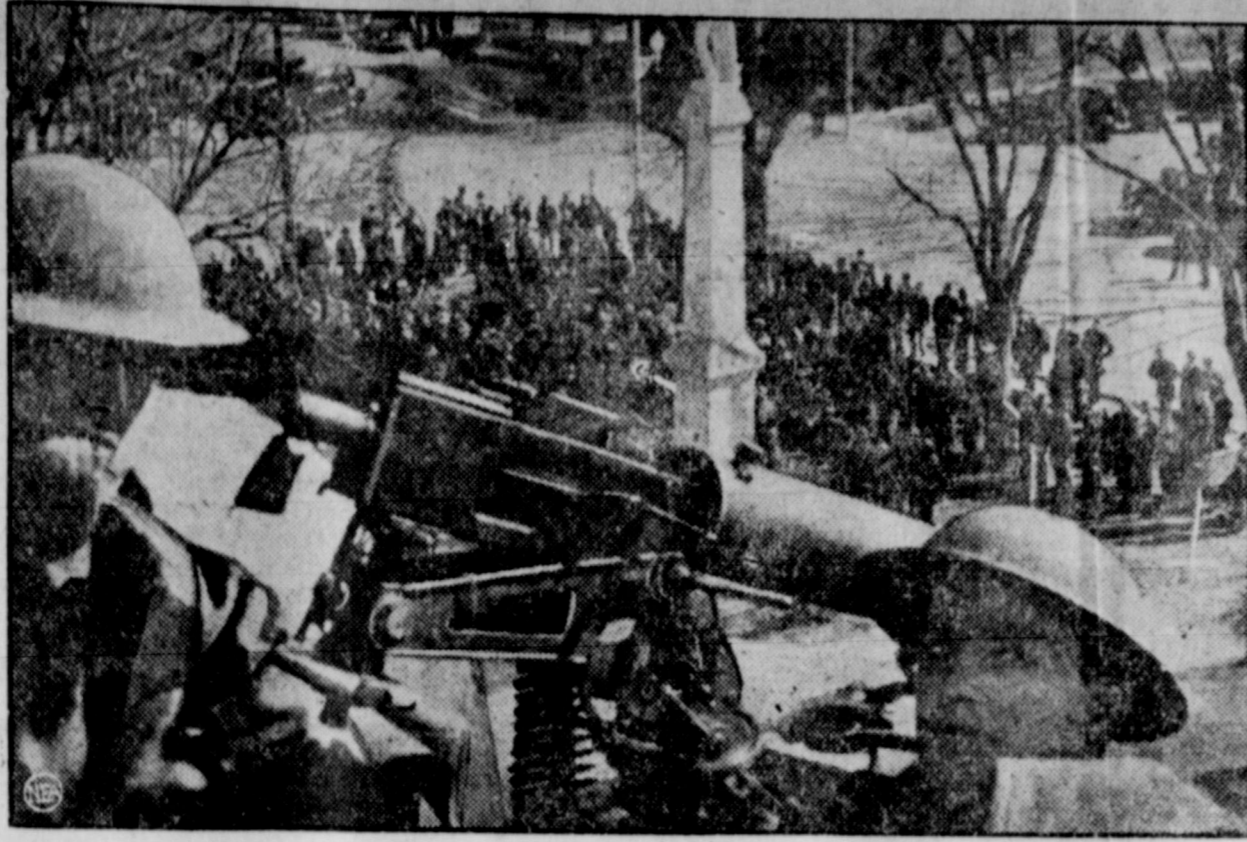

With Ramon Novarro and the lovely English star, Evelyn Laye, filling the romantic leads, the supporting contingent is enlivened by such well-known laugh producers as the stony-faced Charles Butterworth, the rollicking Una Merkel, the imitable Edward Everett Horton and amusing Herman Bing.

Butterworth not only plays a comedy high spots in the picture, but he sings as well. It is the first time that the popular player has warbled on the screen. He and Miss Merkel sing a duet which is said to be something worth hearing!

Machine Guns Guard Against Riot as Ghoul Hangs

Militiamen on the alert with machine guns made certain that the law's sentence was carried out without mob violence when James Coyner, giant Negro ghoul, went to the gallows in Cleveland, Miss., courthouse. Weapons were trained on the courthouse and streets leading to the building as the crowd shown here gathered, but there was no riotous demonstration. Coyner confessed the "mutilation" murders of a Cleveland couple and also was accused of robbing several graves.

Grouse has a nodding acquaintance with 40 other horses in the stables, but he makes clear his preference for the Miller. They take early morning strolls together but either of them might not be there for all the notice they take of each other. They seem to be lost in deep thought. At present the Miller is receiving only light training, a gentle canter and an occasional short gallop. His stable explain that his constitution is not very strong. Yet Golden Miller has put on 56 pounds since he won the National last year. He walks with the suggestion of jauntiness—the jauntiness of the perfect horse. His sure-footedness is phenomenal. He has been known to change feet in mid-air to prevent his coming down on a fallen horse or jockey. Golden Miller's record is remarkable. He has had 19 wins out of 30 starts; won $62,670 in stake money; won the Cheltenham Gold Cup steeplechase three times; and last year's National in the record time of nine minutes, twenty and four-fifths seconds. Mrs. J. L. Darby and daughter, Lillie Zora, of Estelline were Memphis visitors yesterday.

THE LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET

THERE has been quite a lot of excitement lately in local produce market circles. Some of the buyers maintain, for example, that the prevailing price being paid for cream is at least three cents higher than it should be. Naturally, when one buyer posts a higher price the others must immediately follow suit to protect their own businesses, and as a result some effort is being made, we are told, to lower the present price offered for cream.

Let it be understood that The Democrat is not in the produce business nor does it wish to enter that field of endeavor. Every produce dealer in Memphis is a customer of this newspaper to a greater or lesser degree and it is not our intention to cast aspersions on their varying methods of doing business, though we do try to adhere to a policy of letting the chips fall where they may when we consider a principle is involved.

It is quite natural that a farmer should want every penny possible for the farm produce he sells, and it is obviously a fact that he will take his produce where the best prices are available. It follows, then—since this is an agricultural community—that local avenues of trade are kept busy only in proportion to the number of times our farmers come to town. To pay these farmers every cent possible for their wares means to make business more brisk for everyone concerned.

This angle of the situation is our only interest in the matter. We're running a newspaper, not a produce house, but we have attempted for quite a long while now to place every resource of The Democrat at the disposal of any movement that we consider is for the best interests of Memphis. We have no argument to pick with any clique or clan; we are fighting solely for Memphis and its territory and we expect to continue to fight just as long as this newspaper exists.

If farmers can be paid more for their produce and still permit the produce buyer to realize a fair margin of profit—to which he is certainly entitled—we maintain that it should be done. Already it has been painfully demonstrated to us too many times that we prosper only as the farmer prospers. Memphis cannot grow unless it is a recognized trading center, providing a market that farmers feel they may depend upon at all times as fair and equitable.

The Democrat hopes that local buyers of farm produce will gauge their market prices not on a basis of how LITTLE they can pay farmers of the Upper Red River Valley, but rather from a standpoint of how MUCH they can pay and continue to operate their businesses successfully. Farmers are our bread and butter. Whatever we pay for their wares comes back to us a hundredfold. The gentlemen who till the soil have little to say about such matters, but it's noticeable that they always spend their money in a town that plays the biggest part in their own personal financial structure.

HOPE IN ALASKA

ONE of the unexpected by-products of the depression is going to be a renewed attempt to tap the unused agricultural riches of Alaska. The federal government will finance a "sample migration," transporting 200 families and 400 single men to the Matanuska valley beyond Anchorage, this spring.

The move is admittedly an experiment. The climate of the valley is said to be very like that of the "drouth states" back home, and the colonists are all to come from those states, so that that part of the transition is expected to be easy.

The colonists will, furthermore, be taken from unproductive land which is to be retired from production; and the soil in the Matanuska valley is said to be fertile enough to provide excellent farms.

This experiment seems to be well worth making. Alaska is potentially a rich, productive land, aside from its gold deposits. It is logical that a serious effort be made to see if its potentialities cannot be realized.

BEHIND THE SCENE IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The stinging in Congress over NRA legislation isn't anywhere near as important as the attitude of the nine old men who occupy the ancient chamber of the U. S. Supreme Court, on the long corridor between Senate and House.

Nearly everyone in Congress agrees that the least that should be preserved of NRA is its provision for establishment—and enforcement—of maximum hours and minimum wages.

Without that, there just isn't any NRA and if the government lacks power to enforce it employers will slip back to the old days when wages of $5 and $6 a week and work-weeks of 60 or 70 hours were common in industry.

The supreme court must decide whether wage and hour regulations can be enforced. And it will so decide late in April or early in May, after it hears arguments on the Belcher lumber case.

Donald Richberg has proposed an NIRA which will meet the court's objections in the hot oil case by more clearly defining the intent of Congress and laying down more definite standards.

But the Belcher case decision probably will tell Congress whether it can have any NRA at all.

Issue Is Plain

Federal judges have been kicking the same issue around for months, deciding this way and that way. The issue is simply: Is the production of goods interstate commerce or intrastate commerce and, in either event, is Congress empowered to regulate conditions of production by virtue of the fact that such regulation is necessary if Congress is to exercise effectively its constitutional right to regulate interstate commerce?

Prison Threat Clear

The Senate Munitions committee assigned a couple of its experts to draft a preliminary bill for control of the munitions industry and taking the profits out of war. According to the latest grapevine reports, they had agreed on one line—which has to do with profit regulation in wartime:

"Trains shall run regularly to Leavenworth and Atlanta."
John T. Flynn, eminent economist and writer and a member of the committee's technical advisory board, will be called in to write the measure. He will take the witness stand to present recommendations and be followed by Bernard Mannes Baruch, who with General Johnson sired the McSwain "take-the-profit-out-of-war" bill in the House.

The Senate committee's bill will be much stronger than Baruch bill, which would remove war profits. Baruch will be asked to file it with his statement on War Policies Commission that production increase would result in "higher taxes" Baruch then even how it would work. "Consider the simple company capitalizing $1,000,000 selling $1,000,000 goods annually, making its gross profit, or 10 per cent turnover, and having 1000 of expenses of administration and selling, leaving a net of $100,000, or 10 per cent of its normal turnover capital.

"Suppose also that 10 per cent of its costs of manufacturing, is fixed charges—depreciation, insurance, supervision, taxes. Then its cost of manufacturing is $900,000. Its net profit is $100,000. To this it adds $90,000 for fixed overhead and $100,000 for general administrative expense, total cost of goods sold $1,800,000. Its net profit is $200,000, or 11.1 per cent of its $1,800,000 sales. This is the normal profit in peace, nearly 100 per cent turnover and its net profit has increased to 23 per cent.

"Even if we assess a 10 per cent on the $800,000 excess over peace profit, it will still be making $120,000 per cent of its profits."

Why, Huey isn't the advocate limitation of profit that 15 years ago—J. Thomas Hefflin, S. senator. Samuel Insull's trial seem to have been made trial to him, after all.

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

This is the season of year when scarlet fever is especially prevalent. Occasionally there are outbreaks in schools.

In most of our large cities, many cases are being reported daily. Scarlet fever is, of course, catching. It spreads from one child to another. Time between exposure of the child to the disease and development of the rash is short.

Usually the eruption occurs on the skin from two to four days after the child has been in association with another who has had scarlet fever. If seven days pass, after exposure, without appearance of an eruption, it is likely that the child will not develop the disease.

One attack of scarlet fever usually protects. After a child has once had the disease, it is not likely to develop another attack. However, the severe sore throat and other serious symptoms associated with the disease are in themselves sufficiently serious to make it unwise to expose a child in any way to the germs.

The germs that cause scarlet fever also are capable of infecting ears, nose and throat. As with other diseases, the child who has recovered from scarlet fever may carry the germs about and infect others.

The time when most people are infected is at height of the disease, when discharges from nose and throat of the diseased child are full of the infecting germs. While these discharges continue to flow, the child may infect others.

Scarlet fever usually begins like other infectious diseases, with high fever, vomiting and general feeling of sickness. At the end of the first 24 hours, a bright scarlet eruption appears on the skin. In mild cases this may come and go almost in a day. In more severe cases it may last longer.

Another characteristic of scarlet fever is the manner in which the skin peels as the condition improves. If the skin is well cared for during scarlet fever, the peeling takes place in small scales. In care of the skin, it should be bathed daily and covered with oil.

There are many conditions in which eruptions like those of

Stories in STAMPS

SOLDIERS and veterans were amused when they saw the New Deal's issue in stamps—the 2-cent violet of 1933. The stamp was designed to direct attention and arouse support for the NRA. On it appeared a farmer, a business man, a laborer and a housewife, all marching together "In a Common Determination," as the stamp read. But look closely and you will see that the business man is out of step! He has his right foot forward, while the other three are shown with their left feet forward.

More than a million of this issue were sold the first day they were released.

scarlet fever appear, so that the doctor has to decide if the condition is scarlet fever or something else. Rashes from sensitivity to certain drugs and from sensitivity to certain foods are frequently mistaken for scarlet fever.

However, in these conditions, the sore throat, the peculiar strawberry-like appearance of the tongue, and the high fever are absent.

If properly cared for, children with scarlet fever usually get well. When improperly cared for, serious complications result, affecting sinuses, nose, throat and ears. Also, the kidneys may be disturbed.

To overcome these possibilities, the child with scarlet fever now is kept in bed for at least four weeks and not allowed up for any purpose. It must be kept comfortably warm.

During the early part of the disease the diet is light, but as the child begins to improve, it must be given foods which will help it to build good blood.

In our modern economic life there is no more crazy concept than that state lines are controlling boundaries of American industrial activity.—Gen Hugh S. Johnson.

THE NOSEY GUY

By J. C. W.

The following bit of history was published in the Quannah Tribune-Chief which reproduced the item from the Quannah Tribune of Jan. 7, 1892.

The Clarendon Journal, published by R. W. H. Kennon, is a much nicer paper than Kennon got out at Memphis. The editor must be getting something to eat since he quit Memphis.

Wonder if any old-timers in Memphis remember Kennon and the paper he published in Memphis—if he did?

People who read and think are beginning to see in Huey Long a national menace, a man who is creating no little disturbance in finance and industry; and a man who is responsible for much of the unrest of America at the present time. It is not unreasonable to believe that he is striving for and likely to become the "Hitler" of America. He is promising to "divide the wealth", not because he loves the people, but to get them to vote for him for dictator of this country.

People may say that it is different in this country to what it is in Germany. Louisiana is part of America and look what that state has done for Huey!

Leaders in Washington are uneasy about Huey—not so much because of his likelihood of getting votes away from the old parties, but because of the dangerous promises he is making the people to share wealth, when he is only thinking of Huey and not of the unfortunate.

Just to see Huey strut from one end of the Senate hall to the other, and hear him continually interrupting the speaker on the floor by asking some foolish question and then see him walk out on the speaker before he can answer, is enough to disgust any sane and patriotic citizen who believes in fair play. He continually plays to the people in the galleries.

If Huey were in earnest about helping the underdog; if he were sincere in his claims that he is fighting for Democratic principles; if he would help the nation get out of this depression instead of retarding legislation toward that end; and if he did not want to be dictator (worse than Hitler ever dared to be), then it would not be amiss to back him up in all his efforts. One instance which happened not long ago is proof enough that he would be a national dictator if he could: When he arrived in the Louisiana capital city his body guard, obeying Huey's instruction, beat up a young newspaper photographer who attempted to take Huey's picture.

America may be the "land of liberty", but in Louisiana those who do not support Huey are nothing but outlaws in his sight.
