Rain Fall On All Sides, But None In City

D.R.Y. COUNTIES WILL REMAIN ARID

Attorney General In Ruling Says Will Stay Dry

Rains which, as in the past few weeks, fell all around this city and part of the county, tantalized Memphis folks again yesterday afternoon and kept them watching the clouds, which threatened at any minute to open up with a downpour. But they passed on around, leaving the dry strip still dry.

Some parts of the county got some rain, however.

At Purnell a good rain was reported, and crops in that section are said to be looking good.

Half an inch fell at Estelline and Newlin, growing heavier to the east, 2 inches being reported from the Smith Ranch.

To the north, heavy rains fell near Clarendon, and light showers as far this way as Lelia Lake.

To the east, the nearest rain-fall began at about the Jimmie D. Browder place, growing heavier to the east. A heavy fall was reported at Wellington.

The strip of country through the center of the county, including Leslie, Lakeview and Plaska, received no moisture at all, and is the hardest hit of any part this section.

MAY DENY PERMITS

AUSTIN, Aug. 26.—Liquor dealers who "jump the gun" and sell liquor before regulations are prescribed by the legislature may be denied permits, a group of legislators said today after a conference with Governor Allied.

subject to penalties of the Dean Law until the legislature provides otherwise.

According to McCraw, local option wet counties will be legal by wet after the vote canvass.

He also stated that dry counties could not hold local option elections to legalize liquor until after the legislature had set up machinery for its control.

AUSTIN, Aug. 26.—Governor Allied said today that a special session of the legislature will be necessary to enact legislation to give effect to the constitutional changes adopted Saturday. He has asked legislators to communicate their views of a date for the convening of the session and the form of the proposed legislation.

"People have spoken decisively on the liquor question," the Governor said, "and the majority rules. Liquor laws and their enforcement now depend upon local option."

The Governor said he had prepared no recommendations to present to the proposed special session regarding the regulation of the manufacture and sale of liquor. He recalled, however, that he had asked the legislature at its last regular session to carefully study the state monopoly system.

After sixteen years in the dry column, Texas was today apparently with the wets by a large majority.

Returns from Saturday's election were so complete that even the dry leaders conceded that there was no hope for liquor regulation except by local option, while leaders of the repeal movement congratulated their organizations and pledged themselves to law enforcement.

In many of the cities if the state, liquor dealers who had been operating under civer, prepared to come out in the open and solicit the business of the public.

In the wake of the election, however, came a great deal of confusion as to the status of liquor in the state following the election. Much difference of opinion exists as to what is going to happen in counties dry by local option before the Dean Act went into effect, or before national prohibition was voted.

It was hinted that Attorney General William McCraw would

Named To Administer Social Security System

Chosen by President Roosevelt to administer the social security system authorized in the closing days of Congress, these three men will begin work this fall to set up the first government protection American workers have ever had against the hazards of unemployment and old age. Governor Winant is a life-long student of such matters, now in Europe studying the system in operation there. Altmeyer is second assistant secretary of labor, and Miles is a lawyer and former member of the Democratic national committee.

INSTRUCTORS OF ADULT CLASSES ORGANIZE

Training Classes Will Better Train Them For the Work

LUBBOCK, Aug. 25.—The Hall County group of adult education teachers now attending training school here, in preparation for the fall opening of the various classes, has been organized and the following officers elected:

Chairman, R. M. Holt, Vice Chairman, R. C. Householder.

Secretary, Ted Musgrove, Executive Committee, H. M. Green, Mrs. W. J. Bragg and Margaret Evans.

There are some 525 adult teachers here from as far east as Wichita Falls, south to Waco and El Paso, and northwest to the state line. They represent all walks of life and educational standing, and some are graduates of the best colleges and universities of the land.

The course of study being pursued by the teachers here is made up of what are termed five solids, as follows: Adult psychology, Special methods in teaching adults, Theory and practical problems of adult education, Organization and management of adult education, Analysis of subject matter.

The Hall County group feels that after this course they will be much better prepared to serve their students this fall when the classes again open.

RECRUITS TO N. M.
The 80 new recruits for the C. C. C., enrolled today at the local camp, will leave on the 5:20 train this afternoon for Deming, New Mexico, where they will be stationed.

M. E. Revival To Continue Week

Large audiences were in attendance at the First Methodist Church yesterday for the revival services. Because of a general feeling among the people that the revival should continue it is planned that the services will go on through this week, closing out on Sunday. The series of messages which Rev. Rea has been bringing on the Old Testament characters has met with such an enthusiastic response that he plans to continue this series for the evening services. The young people of the church who have been meeting for special services at 7:30 each evening are giving themselves over to a special effort this week to reach the youth of the community for Christ.

The services will continue this week at the same hours. Morning services at 10 a. m., evening services at 8 p. m., and the young people and juniors meeting at 7:30 p. m.

THE QUESTION:
What do you think is the reason most doctors and lawyers are as bald as a greased apple?

THE ANSWERS:
J. M. ELLIOTT: If it is a fact, which I doubt, the reason would be that they have so many diversified and knotty problems to solve, they get what little brains they have so jumbled and worked-up—it makes them pull their hair to see if they are right or wrong in their conclusions.

The ordinary reason given by the layman is—that they are so crooked they walk on their heads to cover up their tracks.

ADJOURNING OF CONGRESS TODAY

Any Amendment of Deficiency Bill Opposed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Smashing the opposition of the farm bloc, the House today adopted a resolution calling for sine die adjournment of Congress tonight.

President Roosevelt was conferring with cotton senators, to work out a formula expected to end differences between the two branches on the matter of cotton and wheat loans interred in the deficiency bill.

After adopting the resolution, the House stood in recess, subject to call. The Senate took a five-hour recess.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Settlement of Senate and House differences on cotton and wheat loans, and adjournment of Congress tonight, appeared probable this afternoon.

The nature of the formula for ending the dispute remained a secret, as the Senate at noon voted a recess, to permit negotiation with House leaders. The latter after talking with the President were adamant against any attempt to amend the vital deficiency bill to require 12 cents per pound loan on cotton and about 90 cents per bushel on wheat.

Senate May Quiz Oil Millionaire

After the Senate lobby committee was told that Cities Service Company had spent approximately $200,000 to defeat the Wheeler-Rayburn utility regulation bill, it was expected that Henry L. Doherty, multimillionaire head of Cities Service, would be summoned before the committee for questioning.

WAR APPEARS NEARER IN ETHIOPIA

Residents of Addis Ababa Are Leaving

ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 26.—The native population today started evacuation of the capital, in accordance with Emperor Haile Selassie's verbal orders, not waiting seven days after war might be declared.

Without panic, thousands of men, women and children, believing that war may come at any minute, departed for interior villages.

The Ethiopian government warned foreign legations that inventories of property, which legations ordered their nations to prepare, ostensibly with view of possible indemnification by Italy or Ethiopia in event of damage by war, would not be recognized by Ethiopia.

The Italian legation began the removal of its archives from the Ethiopian capital. Most Italian residents of Addis Ababa have gone.

Utility Holding Company Bill Law

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The stroke of the Presidential pen at 3 o'clock (Eastern Standard Time) today completed the enactment of the utility holding company bill, bitterly contested by the Congress.

Roosevelt's chief aides in the long struggle for the legislation were called about him for the signature ceremony.

Old Age Pensions Carried Here 10-1

Big Dog Visitor Democrat Office

Complete Hall County returns from all precincts show that five amendments carried in Saturday's election, while two were defeated.

The old age pension measure led the field with almost a ten-to-one majority. The amendment for temporary commitment of insane was carried by about 2 to 1. The special session amendment measure was carried by 17 votes, the probation measure by 62 votes, and the abolishment of fees by 148 votes.

The two defeated amendments were those for repeal and free text books. Both were beaten about 2 to 1 in the county, the vote on the former being 381 for and 741 against. The latter brought out 365 votes for and 676 against.

The total county vote on the various amendments, complete from all precincts, was as follows: (Continued on page 4)

A man brought a shetland pony in The Democrat office this morning, but he swore up and down it was a dog.

"King" is the dog's name; a Grand Dane owned by G. C. Heath, of Hedley, King weighs 120 now, but in the winter his weight increases to as much as 155.

He stands 30 inches high. However, he is only a "pup"—16 months old.

Asked if he wasn't an expensive pet, his owner declared he doesn't eat as much as one might suspect. He requires three to four pounds of beef a day.

King is quite the idol of Hedley children and attracts the attention of a number of tourists and other passersby.

Scenes reminiscent of World War days were taking place at the CCC Camp this morning, as 80 young men from this and other counties were being inducted into the C. C. C. for service at the Deming, New Mexico, camp.

Beginning early in the morning young fellows came straggling into the camp, some in automobiles with their parents and relatives, some hiking in with suitcases and bundles.

On arrival at the camp, they were taken in charge by non-commissioned officers and "wised-up" as to what they were expected to do. Soon, their bundles and suitcases stacked away, the boys were wandering through the camp, eyeing the various army-like activities going on about them and, apparently, getting quite a kick out of the whole business.

They inspected the buildings, watched the cooks in the kitchen, the men on fatigue duty, the squad busy fixing up the baseball diamond and tennis courts. They gazed in awe at the officers, and were evidently pleased with what they saw of the whole camp.

As their names were called, they went to one of the buildings, where they were given a physical examination, and then sent to the headquarters building, for enlistment.

As each lad entered headquarters, clutching his papers tightly in his hand, he evinced a spirit of uneasiness, but each came out, after the ordeal, with his chest out, his head back and, in his eyes, a light of superiority over the others who had not yet had their turn. He was in the C. C. C.

According to Lieut. Hill, commanding officers, the boys were coming in slowly. Eighty were supposed to be enrolled today, but not all had shown up by the middle of the morning. The balance were looked for during the day.

SUN-TAN

BY NARD JONES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JO DARIEN breaks her engagement to BRET PAUL, college athletic star, because he objects to her taking a job as hostess at Crest Lake Inn, fashionable summer resort owned by wealthy DOUGLAS MARSH. Jo goes to Crest Lake and later Bert arrives as life guard.

Douglas Marsh's eccentric mother dislikes Jo. PETER FRAGONET, film actor, pays Jo marked attentions and asks her to marry him as soon as he can get a divorce. Jo becomes friendly with LOLA MONTEZ, film actress.

Prompted by his mother, Marsh asks Jo to leave Crest Lake. She decides to go to Hollywood to look for a job, and flies there with Fragonet. Later she begins to doubt Fragonet's promises and moves to a rooming house where she cannot find her...

Lola Monte gets Jo a job in a sandwich shop. Fragonet comes there and, to get rid of him, Jo agrees to see him that night. Mrs. Fragonet comes first, then Peter. Jo turns on the film actor, says she doesn't want him and never did. Next day Jo gives up her job at the sandwich shop.

CHAPTER XLIV
 When Maisie had gone Jo sat dully on the edge of the bed, trying to pull her scattered thoughts together. Was there any corner of Hollywood where she might find a new job and be safe from the vitriolic hatred of Edna Fragonet? And if there was such a refuge how would she find it?

Her first thought was of Lolita Montez. She knew that the actress would be willing to help her, even a second time. But Jo knew, too, what Lolita's advice would be. "Get out of Hollywood," Lolita would say. "Get as far away from Fragonet as you can."
 Stubbornly Jo held out against such an idea. She was more determined than ever to stay. "I've been fool enough to come here," she told herself, "and now I'll make a go of it... some way."
 The resolve was easier than its culmination. As Maisie herself admitted, the salary at the sandwich shop had been little enough. And Jo had imprudently gone from week to week assuming, as most of us are prone to assume, that once good fortune comes it will make an indefinite stay.
 She was still sitting there on the edge of the bed when her landlady knocked at the door with her familiar one-two tapping. At Jo's invitation she entered the room, showing her surprise that her tenant wasn't yet dressed for work.

"Not feeling well, Miss Darien?" she asked.
 "I'm feeling all right," Jo said. "But—I'm afraid I'll have to move back into the smaller room. You see, I've lost my job."

The good woman grunted sympathetically. "After all that commotion in the front parlor last night," she said, "I knew something was going to happen. But here..." she held out to Jo a telegram. "Maybe somebody's wiring you money."

Jo's first thought was not so optimistic. Imagining frantically that something was wrong at home, she almost snatched at the envelope. Tearing both envelope and message in her haste, she unfolded the telegram and read:
JO DARIEN
4338 ENDHILL AVENUE
HOLLYWOOD, CALIFORNIA
BERT PAUL DANGEROUSLY ILL AND ASKING FOR YOU. IMPERATIVE YOU TAKE PLANE FOR CREST LAKE AT ONCE.
DOUGLAS MARSH.

Jo let the telegram flutter to the floor from nerveless fingers. She looked at her landlady wildly. "I've got to leave," she said.
 "Someone ill?"
 Jo nodded. "Yes. I have to take a plane—"

"I'm afraid I haven't money enough to buy an airline ticket."
 "You're paid up until the end of the week," the woman told her. "I can give you a $4 refund if that's any help."
 "Maybe it will be," Jo said, drawing her bag from the closet shelf. "Would you telephone and find out what a ticket to Crestmont costs?" She raised her head from the open bag where she had flung her slippers and dressing gown. "Please hurry, won't you? There may be a plane I can catch this morning."

When the women returned she brought the welcome news that Jo could catch an air transport at noon. But, unfortunately, a surmount of Jo's purse revealed that she was not within $28 of being able to purchase the ticket.
 "I'd like to help you out," the landlady said, woefully surveying the bills and silver Jo had spread upon the bed. "But the way things are I—"

"That's all right," Jo told her hastily. "I'll— I'll telephone Lolita."
 It seemed to her that she held the receiver for hours, and then, at last, Lolita's maid answered sleepily.

"I want to speak to Miss Montez, please."
 "Miss Montez is out of the city. She won't be back for three or four days."
 Jo's heart sank. She thought of long distance. "Do you know where she is?"

"No. I don't, ma'am. On location somewhere, I guess."
 Slowly Jo replaced the receiver. She'd have to try Maisie. Of course Maisie would loan her the money, but Jo hated very much to ask her. Nevertheless she hurriedly dialed the number of the sandwich shop.

"Oh, is it you, Jo?" One of the girls at the shop had recognized her voice.
 "Yes, Sally. I want to talk to Maisie, please."
 "She's not here right now. . . . No, I don't know when she'll come back, although probably before closing time. She and her brother went out to look at another place she's thinking of buying. Anything I can do?"

Jo thought of Sally's wages, as slender as her own had been. "No, thanks a lot, Sally."
 She looked at her watch and saw that she had just three hours in which to obtain $28 and taxi fare, and thread through all that maze of traffic to the airport. "If only I'd saved those clothes I bought for Crest Lake!" she thought wildly.

She was amazed to find, suddenly, how few people there were to whom she could turn in this emergency. Lolita—Maisie and Jim—all three were impossible to reach. Boleson—she couldn't ask Boleson, Peter Fragonet—

Jo shuddered. Fragonet would help her gladly. He would willingly show how generous he could be, helping her to go to Bret Paul. It was a role the actor in him would relish. "I won't, though," Jo told herself. "I won't go to him!"

But suppose she had to go to him— There was barely time now to find him and reach the airport. Frantically Jo reviewed the slender possibilities. Fragonet and Boleson and why not Boleson, after all? He had been kind and he had offered to help her. Swallowing her pride, Jo rushed up the stairway, calling to her landlady to order a cab. Jo was pacing at the curb when the taxi rolled alongside.
 "To the Atlas studio, quickly."
 The driver tossed the bags into the seat beside him, nodded and had urged the scared taxi driver to the traffic. Within a very few minutes Jo saw the wide white arch of the Atlas lot, the gates standing open.

"Don't stop," she spoke into the tube. "Drive right through to the administration building!"
 The driver half turned his head, questioning.
 "Drive right through," Jo repeated. "It'll be all right."

The driver nodded dubiously, but increased his speed and headed straight for the roadway into the forbidden Atlas lot. The gate-man poked out his head angrily, perked it back again as the taxi whizzed by.

"Stay right here," Jo ordered when the taxi pulled up in front of the low white building. "If anyone orders you out, tell them you're waiting for Mr. Boleson."
 Jo rushed straight through the hallway and into the familiar ante-room, where she encountered the brisk young woman who was Boleson's secretary.

 "I'm Miss Darien," Jo told her breathlessly. "I must see Mr. Boleson right away."
 "But I'm afraid you'll have to have an appointment—"

"Will you tell him I'm here?" asked Jo, stepping forward. "Or shall I just go right in?"
 "I'll—I'll tell him you're here," the girl said.
 She reappeared almost at once and nodded half-fearfully at Jo. "He'll see you, Miss Darien."

Boleson was smiling suzically when Jo entered the room. "Good morning, Miss Darien! Something I can do?"
 "Yes, there is. You—you hinted once that it would be worth something to you to keep me away from Fragonet."

Boleson raised his eyebrows. "I see," he said slowly, ironically. "You've been thinking it over and decided to—cash in, eh?" He sat down abruptly. "How much?"
 "I want just $50, Mr. Boleson."

And only as a loan!"
 His look was one of incredulity. And then he back his head and laughed.
 "Please, Mr. Boleson—terrible-hurry I have to plane at noon."
 Still laughing, Boleson into his pocket and extracted a $50 bill from his wallet. "You are—and forget the It's worth $50 any day across a kid like you. I come out on top."
 "T-thanks, Mr. Boleson pay it back," Jo turned through the doorway, startled secretary. To relief, the taxi driver had stood by valiantly, pressed the presence of turn the cab around the gate. He had the car in most before Jo sank into

GAME PRESERVES

A PROJECT recently put through in Collingsworth County might well be copied by owners of broken land in this and other counties.

Several land owners in Collingsworth blocked up about 100 sections of broken land in the Buck Creek community and had it declared a game preserve, which put it under the protection of county, state and federal wardens.

The preserve is marked with signs, warning the public that trespassing by hunters is a serious offense.

It is to be closed to all hunters until 1940, after which only those with permits will be allowed to hunt therein.

Protected by law, game birds will flourish and multiply in the preserve, until they will be plentiful at the end of the five-year closed period, and in such numbers that sane hunting will not decimate them to a serious extent.

This country was once a paradise for hunters. Quail and prairie chicken were here by the thousands. But continual hunting has practically made them extinct, except for an occasional covey here and there.

By all means, let's establish a game preserve in Hall County. Birds are so scarce now, that hunters must go elsewhere to enjoy the sport, but with a closed period of several years this country would come into its own again as a game bird paradise.

According to those who put over the Collingsworth County project, there is little expense attached to the forming of the preserve, the greatest item being the time spent by interested parties in furthering the project.

So much interest has been aroused there that two more preserves are now being proposed in that county.

Can't some of our citizens who love to hunt the quail and prairie chicken take hold of this matter and put over a closed game preserve in Hall County?

Owls Defeat Estelline in Final Sunday Tilt for Title

ESTELLINE, Aug. 26.—The Memphis Owls are "champions" of the Estelline Invitation Baseball Tournament, by virtue of a 14-12 victory over Estelline here yesterday in the final game of the three-day series.

The game was marked with many errors for both sides—7 for Estelline and 5 for Memphis. Arguments in which both fans and players figured punctuated the contest at frequent intervals.

Blanchard, pitching for Estelline, stacked up eight strikeouts, while Stewart for Memphis let only one man swinging, albeit he tossed a creditable game. L. Marcum relieved Stewart in the eighth frame with the bases full and nobody out. He struck out the next three batters. In the ninth inning he retired the side with two strikeouts.

The box score:

What Do You—

ter a lapse of many many years. In fact they had not seen each other since their school day companionship. When they met, one reached over and lifted the other man's hat and looked at his head. It was as bald as could be. He defended his affliction (if it is an affliction) by saying that he had worked hard and had had many sleepless nights. Then he reached over and lifted the hat of his friend. This man had a beautiful head of snow white hair. He was rather astonished and asked how he had managed to keep his hair through out all the years. He laughed and replied, "There is an old Biblical saying that those who plant their seed in this soil, where it can not take root, but strikes rock and withers, can not expect to harvest the crop. So it is with your hair—the roots struck bone too soon and could not take hold and flourist, so it died; while my hair grew on dove into the grey matter and took life from it and I have always been blessed with more than enough."

I am not positive, but this might be why we bald headed doctors are without—we have too much bone and it is top close.

Old Age—

- Amendment No. 1. Old age pensions, 1,048 for, 115 against.
- Amendment No. 2. Commitment of insane, 633 for, 302 against.
- Amendment No. 3. Repeal, 381 for, 741 against.
- Amendment No. 4. Special session amendments, 397 for, 380 against.
- Amendment No. 5. Probation, 440 for, 378 against.
- Amendment No. 6. Abolishing fee system, 491 for, 343 against.
- Amendment No. 7. Free text books, 365 for, 876 against.

Statewide returns showed very few surprises. The old age pension amendment swept the state like a prairie fire, and was carried by perhaps the largest majority ever given any measure in the history of the state.

Repeat surprised many by the size of its majority, now figured to be in the neighborhood of 60,000. It took an early lead in the returns and each succeeding report showed an increase in the majority it was piling up. Statewide reports at 10:30 Saturday night gave repeal a majority of about 20,000. At 11:30 its lead had increased to 36,000, and at 12:30 had passed the 50,000 mark, indicating that it carried in most of the smaller places, as well as the cities.

The statewide vote, as tabulated at a late hour last night, gave the standing on the various measures as follows:

- Repeal, 259,218 for, 203,869 against; old age pensions, 366,173 for, 91,967 against; commitment of insane, 252,645 for, 165,604 against; constitutional amendments at special sessions, 185,298 for, 197,052 against; probation, 210,302 for, 177,669 against; abolition of fee system, 241,537 for, 153,779 against; free text books, 202,799 for, 232,839 against.

rule that the voting of repeal would immediately remove from the statute books any penalty for the manufacture or sale of liquor in the state, pending the enactment of regulatory measures by the legislature.

It is said that the Attorney General's opinion is that when the laws were reclassified in 1925, punishment for the sale of liquor in dry counties was abolished, and that the fact that a county was dry by local option when prohibition became effective over the state and nation, will have no bearing on its present status as regards the sale of liquor.

The Attorney General was planning to issue an official ruling on the matter sometime today.

On entering the dining room, the honorees and guests were greeted with the sight of a huge dining table loaded with delicacies, the center being graced by a large white cake, trimmed in pink, with pink wedding bells on top. The places for the honorees was indicated by silver streamers leading from small figures of a bride and groom.

Those present for the occasion were, besides the honorees: Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Rea and children, Glenn and Clarence; Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Solomon and children; Rev. D. W. Cobb of Los Angeles; Wilfred, Durward, Glendell, Elwands and Rayburn Jones, children of the honorees; Rev. and Mrs. H. Coleman Campbell, of Hereford, and Rev. J. Melvyn Jones, of Elbert, Tex.

Waples-Platter Representative Here Today

Frost was noticeable in Memphis today—one of the earliest on record for this section.

It was Jack Frost himself, veteran factory representative of Waples-Platter Co., calling on local grocers this morning, in company with Otis Jones, manager of the local Waples-Platter branch.

"Waples-Platter Co.," Mr. Frost said, "pack 20 staple items in 90 packages. Our large factory has a daily capacity of 55,200 cans of pork and beans. What Texas makes makes Texas."

This large Texas concern, packers of "White Swan" and other well known foods, will shortly become active again in the advertising columns of a selected list of Texas newspapers, one of which is The Daily Democrat.

"Shake" Davis and Otis Jones call on grocers in the Memphis Area for Waples-Platter.

The orders aroused the capital's 120,000 residents, who, in evacuating, were ordered to avoid assembling in large numbers elsewhere. They were told to scatter to distant points.

Latitude is said to have been first determined by Hipparchus of Nice, about 162 B. C.

Ethiopian Rules Orders Evacuation

By Associated Press
ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 25.—Emperor Haile Selassie ordered the civil population to evacuate the capital within 24 hours, after Italy declares war on Ethiopia. He acted on the belief that Italy's first hostile act would be the bombing of Addis Ababa. The emperor also ordered valuable property hidden in terranean caverns.
