Eric Whittington Is Made Commander of American Legion

Eric Whittington, retiring service officer of the Charles R. Simmons Post of the American Legion was elected last night as commander of the post for the coming year.

Over 35 members were in attendance at the regular meeting of the local post last night at 8 o'clock at the Legion hall and took part in the election of officers.

It was announced last night that the local legion post would be permitted to send seven delegates to the annual state Legion convention, held this year in Mineral Wells.

The number of voting delegates to the convention is set by the state organization in proportion to the number of members in the various Legion posts.

The post here now has the largest membership in its history, due chiefly to the efforts of Retiring Post Commander Dean Morgensen. The retiring commander urged that full representation be sent from the post here.

Delegates to the state convention in Mineral Wells, which will be held the latter part of next month, have not been named as yet.

Other officials of the local American Legion post elected last night are as follows:

J. M. Tucker, first vice-commander; R. C. Parks, second vice-commander; Roy L. Guthrie, adjutant; J. E. Reheis, finance officer; C. C. Dodson, service officer, and D. J. Morgensen, sergeant-at-arms.

Officers will be installed in October.

Trucks Run Strike Gauntlet; General Walkout Threatens

MINNEAPOLIS, July 20.—Two trucks, conveyed by 40 armed police, ran a gauntlet of pickets today to deliver grocery supplies to stores in defiance of striking truckmen.

A veiled threat of a demand for a general strike if the movement became general was strike leaders' reply.

It was the first break through the wall of inactivity in the walk-out of union truck drivers enforced upon local commercial shippers.

Child Is Hooked in Mouth When Brother Tries Fishing Skill

BEAUMONT, Tex., July 20.—Being the smallest of the Caraway children, Gregory, 3, was elected to play the role of "the fish" when his brothers decided to try fishing in their back yard.

The screams of Gregory, neatly hooked through the mouth, warned his mother how realistic the game was being played and she placed a ban on it forthwith. Gregory had the hook removed from his mouth at a hospital.

Edward K. Russell Withdraws Name as Candidate for Governor; Others Busy

Withdrawal of Edward K. Russell of Annona as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor and an effort on the part of two Jefferson County negroes to obtain a Supreme Court order to force party officials to permit them to participate in the primary elections were developments Thursday in Texas' political campaign.

Russell, who had stumped a large part of the state withdrew because of the shortness of time remaining in the primary campaign which will end July 28. He said it would be impossible for him to present his cause to all the people and did not want them to pass judgement on him until they had

STRIKERS CLASH WITH POLICE IN SEATTLE

300 Officers Rout 2,000 Longshoremen in Fight

SEATTLE, Wash., July 20.—Mayor Charles Smith's 300 strike police with floods of tear gas, swinging clubs and charging horses routed 2,000 striking longshore pickets from the waterfront today in a spectacular fight.

Scores were hurt; however, none was believed to be seriously injured.

Strikers hurled rocks and caught gas canisters before they exploded and threw them back at police. Virtually all of the 2,300 combatants were affected to some extent by the gas.

FLOODS CLAIM 40 MORE LIVES

Military Engineering Squad Among Group Believed Drowned in Poland

WARSAW, Poland, July 20.—From 30 to 40 more persons were believed drowned in floods today when a bridge over which many persons were passing collapsed at Sandomir.

Eleven members of a military engineering squad were reported among the victims.

One hundred and 20 bodies of flood victims were recovered yesterday and it was feared that nearly 200 reported missing had lost their lives.

Play Will Be Given At Harrell Chapel

Announcement has been made that a play, entitled "Here Comes Charley," will be presented at the high school auditorium at Harrell Chapel on the night of July 27.

Admission will be five and ten cents. Proceeds of the play will go to the Harrell Chapel Woman's club to carry on the club work.

Everyone is urged to attend.

Men Who Died in Flames Identified

HOUSTON, July 20.—Two men who burned to death in a wreck between Houston and Conroe last night were identified today by J. C. Wakeland, 30, and Robert Wilson, 30, both of Milford, Ellis county.

Their truck collided with a sedan. M. A. Kornblatt being killed and Mrs. Mae Elmore, Houston; being injured critically.

Lupe Velez Has to Determine Today if She Wants Divorce

LOS ANGELES, July 20.—Lupe Velez, chameleon of the cinema must make up her mind today about whether she is going through with her announced plan to divorce her mate, Johnny Weismuller.

Disappointing a packed courtroom, where she was scheduled to tell of the film Trazan's destruction of furniture and conduct unbecoming a husband, Lupe today advised Judge Robert Kenney through her attorney, Neil S. McCarthy, that she was working in a movie but probably would appear tomorrow.

"If she doesn't show up," the court said, "the case will be put off calendar."

The Weather

WEST TEXAS—Fair to partly cloudy and continued warm tonight and Saturday.

EAST TEXAS—Partly cloudy tonight and Saturday. Continued warm. Unsettled in the southeast.

Expect Thousands Here for Political Rally Tomorrow

TAX BOARD TO DELAY FIXING

Ad Valorem Tax Likely Will Not Be Set Until Next Month; Counties Slow

AUSTIN, July 20.—Slowness of counties in rendering estimates of taxable values likely will force the state automatic board to delay until August determination of the state ad valorem tax rate, George H. Sheppard comptroller and member of the board, said yesterday.

The board will conduct a formal meeting tomorrow, he said, in compliance with the statutes, and recess to a later date.

Sixteen of the 254 counties had failed to certify to the comptroller estimates of valuation, although they were due July 15. Estimates of values of oil and gas pipe lines, on which taxes will be levied for the first time this year, also will be available until after Aug. 1, according to H. P. Edwards, state tax commissioner. A preliminary estimate placed their value at $100,000,000.

Continuation of the maximum ad valorem tax rate of 77 cents on each $700 valuation likely will be necessary, statisticians estimated, in view of deficits in the state's principal funds and a probable decrease in assessed values. Of the 77 cent rate, 35 cents is allotted to the general revenue, 35 cents to public schools and seven cents to confederate pensions.

For the state tax purposes, last year's assessed values aggregated $3,198,117,451. For county purposes, for which homesteads were not exempt, the total was $3,764,139,512.

Despite declining values in the larger counties, 52 counties estimated.

IOOF Encampment To Name Officers At Meet Tonight

Officers will be elected and installed at a meeting of the Memphis encampment of the I. O. O. F. organization tonight at 8 o'clock.

All members of the encampment, composed of members of Oddfellow lodges over the county, are urged by W. E. Hill, district deputy grand patriarch, to attend the meeting tonight.

Of far-reaching consequence and of vital interest to thousands—the political rally scheduled for tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock will represent the peak in politics prior to the election on July 28. Thousands of voters are expected to pack the north side of the courthouse lawn to hear the speakers, who will make their addresses from the courthouse steps.

Judge A. S. Moss will be the presiding officer at the rally. He announces that candidates for county and precinct offices will be limited to five minutes in making their several addresses and that this rule will be followed strictly. It is expected that the order in which the candidates are called upon to speak will follow that of the official ballot for Hall county, a copy of which Judge Moss has. Of course, that is optional with the presiding officer.

Following the county and precinct candidates, there will be representatives of some state office seekers to address the crowd. Gene Howe, familiarly known as "Old Tack" of the Amarillo Globe-News, will address the audience in behalf of the candidacy of Senator Clint Small, of Amarillo, for governor. Another address in behalf of Senator Small's candidacy will be made by Ray C. Johnson, attorney of Amarillo.

W. R. Rutherford, a close personal friend of Joseph Weldon Bailey, Jr., will speak in behalf of Congressman Bailey's race for the United States Senate. He is seeking the place now filled by the Junior United States Senator, Tom Connally, of Marlin.

Judge Moss insists that the rally will start promptly on time—at 8:30 Sharp. A crowd of between four and five thousand people is expected to be on hand to hear the candidates give their qualifications for public office.

Former Lakeview Resident Is Dead

Mrs. Pete Thompson, formerly of Lakeview, died at her home in Perrian, Tex., Tuesday afternoon, following an illness of several months.

Mrs. Thompson lived at Lakeview until about two months ago when she moved to Perrian because of ill health.

She is the daughter-in-law of M. O. Thompson of Lakeview and is survived by her husband and two children.

PLEA IS ISSUED FOR CLOTHING FOR NEEDY

Hall County Relief Board to Call for Old Clothes

A plea for old clothing and any other unused household goods to be distributed among the needy families of Hall county was issued this morning by the Hall County Welfare board.

The plea was issued primarily for families in the county that in the past few weeks have lost all their belongings through fires that have consumed their homes.

However, it was pointed out, if more than enough clothing for these families is obtained, it will be distributed among other needy families, of which there are more than 400 in the county.

Judge A. C. Hoffman, at the head of county relief, urged that all people in Memphis who have any old clothing they do not need bundle them up and call the relief headquarters. The donations will be called for.

The telephone number at the relief office is 64.

The relief organization in the county is taking care at least partially of over 400 families.

Two cases were mentioned in the plea. The home of one family near Estelline was destroyed last night by fire. All of the family's possessions were lost. They are penniless, with no way to turn other than to the relief board. This is a family of nine.

Another home was destroyed recently at Hulver. Relatives and friends presented the family with quilts, but they are without clothes.

Two Killed, Three Injured Seriously As Car Hits Truck

SWEETWATER, July 20.—Ike Northcutt, 50, living near Post, and his one-year-old granddaughter were killed instantly and four members of his family were injured seriously when his automobile sideswiped a truck and trailer on a bridge 11 miles east of here today.

Mrs. Northcutt and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. G. Wesley Northcutt, and the latter's two daughters, Ruby and Eula, are in a critical condition as a result of the accident.

Trio Released When Identifications by Holdup Victims Fail

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 20.—Harvey Pugh, his brother, B. J. Pugh and Tom Walton, arrested Wednesday after R. J. O'Donnell had been shot to death in a hotel room here by a policeman who was seeking to question Harvey Pugh, were released from jail late yesterday on vagrancy bonds.

Victims of recent hold-up failed to identify any of them.

Harvey Pugh is under a $10,000 bond, police said in a McPherson, Kan., slaying.

Urged To Watch For Political Edition Sunday

Readers are again urged to watch for Sunday's political edition, to review carefully the claims of all candidates seeking office and to complete their selections for the July 28 Democratic primary.

And candidates are reminded that tomorrow is their final chance to put their claims before the largest number of voters within the county, as they enter the stretch of the campaign.

Sunday's election edition will carry the claims of most of the county and precinct candidates.

WHY MOTHERS OF

SOPHIE KERR'S SUPERB LOVE STORY "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

By Sophie Kerr

BEGIN HERE TODAY When HOWARD JACKSON young geologist professor, comes to Marburg JANE TERRY, the prettiest girl in town, determines to win his heart. Howard, however, falls in love with AMY LOWE, Jane's best friend. Jane, angered, tries to force Howard into an engagement and, when this fails, leaves for New York, declaring she will never return.

In New York Jane enrolls in a secretarial school and later becomes private secretary to the president of the Kandel Real Estate company. She meets ROGER THORPE, head of the rental department, who shows her attentions.

Amy and Howard are married. They make their home in a nearby town for a year. Then Howard is hired to teach in the college at Marburg and they return.

MISS ROSA TERRY, Jane's aunt, comes to see Amy. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XII

Miss Rosa said slowly, "Jane never made up with you?" "She's never written me except one letter," Amy told her, "just a few lines. I hoped she was having too good a time."

"I reckon I was wrong about Jane, Amy, always thinking she was lazy and conceited and pig headed and troublesome. Evidently all she needed was another environment. She's doing very well, very well, indeed. Works for a big real estate firm and makes close to $50 a week, and against my better judgment she's taken herself an apartment and has a maid, and gets along all right. The head man—he's named Kandel—seems to think a lot of her ability, Jane's a real business woman. She doesn't write to me very often, but I keep tabs on her a little, other ways. I feel I ought to."

"But does she ever come home, or don't you go to see her?"

"She doesn't want me to go there, and she won't come home, though I've begged her. In her vacations she goes traveling, if you please. But I've settled it in my own mind that Jane's bound to do what she wants to and the less I cross her the better we get along. She's not like most girls, not in her heart, nor in her brain, and—it can't be helped. I never was much good at handling her. And now that she's done so well for herself she's independent of me, in every way almost, and I won't break the very little thread that holds her to me if I can help it. She's only 23 and that's pretty young. She might sometime need me. She thinks she knows it all—but I doubt it."

"Don't you think she'll ever come home? I miss her."

"Oh, I daresay if the notion struck her she might come, but I've seen no signs of it yet." After Miss Rosa left, Amy sat thinking about Jane. There seemed no help for it. Jane was out of her life and she must accept the loss. She would like so much to see Jane as a business woman. She wished her unending success. "She'll have it, too," she thought, "Jane was always clever, and there was a strength in her under her wild ideas and foolishness. Oh, I do hope she does wonderful things. I do hope so." Before the house was entirely ready for it, Amy's furniture arrived, and then began a tedious follow-up process, taking room by room as soon as she could get the workmen out and putting that room in order, then closing the door against dust and dirt. She hadn't marked the boxes and barrels by their contents, so as they were opened they invariably held the things she couldn't use at once. And there were new curtain rods to be bought and put up. None of the old ones were the right size. This meant new curtains, too. When she wasn't working in the garden Amy found herself sewing hems and casings in lengths of scrim and dotted swiss and organdy which seemed innumerable. And the time for Howard's return was drawing very near.

She had been busy all day in the house, and had got the living room in order and was walking slowly home with her sewing bag swinging on her arm, when as she turned the first corner, she saw coming toward her a young woman so fashionably dressed as to be unfamiliar to Marburg and yet—it was—it couldn't be, but it was—

"Jane!" she cried, "Oh—Jane—"

For a flicker of a second she wasn't sure that Jane was going to speak, but she did and put out her hand as to a stranger, "Oh, it's Amy!" she said in a high clear voice without expression.

But Amy's welcome tumble out: "But I'm glad to see you. When did you come? Miss Rosa told me the other day you never came back to Marburg—Jane dear—you look so stunning, you're simply gorgeous!"

Jane liked that. She had been struggling with her own feelings. She had meant not to see Amy, to speak to her, but now that Amy had, as it were, seized her and was so open in her admiration Jane was rather pleased. Beside Amy had on a gingham work dress that neither new nor fresh. Jane could condescend "What are you doing yourself?" she asked. "I just came down for the night. Aunt Rosa didn't expect me. I came on business. Nobody told me you were in town."

"But I'm going to live here now, in Miss Rachel Booth's old house. I haven't moved in yet. I've been working there all day getting it straight. Oh, Jane, come back and look at it. It's going to be sweet. I'd love you to see it."

Jane walked along beside her, very straight, very elegant in her brown tailored suit, pale rose crepe de chine blouse, her thin brown hat with pale pink roses and brown velvet bow. She raised her eyebrows in pity. "You're going to live in Marburg, in this awful hick place? How terrible for you. And in that stuffy old Booth house!"

Amy became subtly aware that Jane had known all the time of her coming back to Marburg and where she was going to live, also that Jane was enjoying the contrast between her own appearance and Amy's. But it didn't matter much for here was Jane and they were walking and talking together. And Jane was all right—all right, only different—hard perhaps and ungettable, but certainly not unhappy. "Miss Rosa told me how wonderfully you've succeeded, Jane. She says you make heaps of money and have an apartment and—look—right in here. The work in the hall isn't quite finished, but the living room is, I did it today." Amy flung open the door.

Jane hesitated: "Is there anyone there?" she asked and Amy knew that Jane was afraid Howard might be there. She didn't want to see Howard. She didn't want to say his name. So perhaps she wasn't quite so splendid and careful as she'd seemed at first.

"There's no one," said Amy, and went in ahead, Jane followed. "It's rather nice," said Jane, after a pause. "A pity you haven't grasscloth on the walls instead of that paper. I have a sort of natural grasscloth in my apartment. It makes a wonderful background for pictures, and it has an interesting texture. I have silk curtains, not scrim. And I've picked up some prints and etchings and some good old bits of brass and copper."

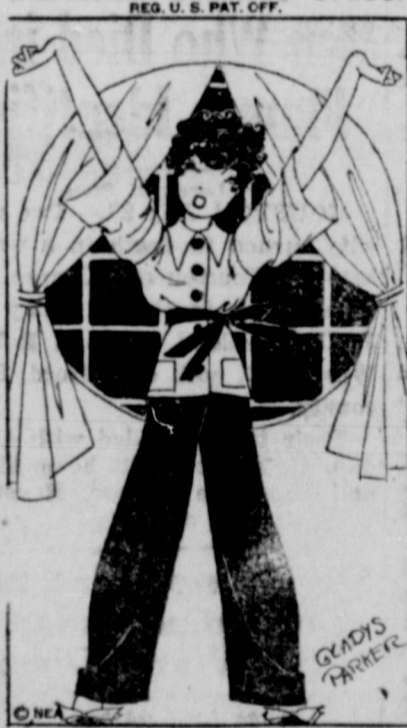

"It must be lovely," said Amy. "Do you live all alone or—?" Jane swung round at her sharply. "Yes, I do. Of course I have my maid. But it's only the provincial mind that sees anything wrong in a self-supporting woman living alone in these days."

"I was only asking for information. It certainly never occurred to me that there should be anything wrong about it, Jane. Don't twist my words."

Jane storned on; "What no one here appreciates is that there's an entirely new era begun for women. They're free to choose their work, to live their lives as they want. Marriage is only one of many possible careers and one of the least desirable. A woman has a right to bear children if she wants to outside of marriage—"

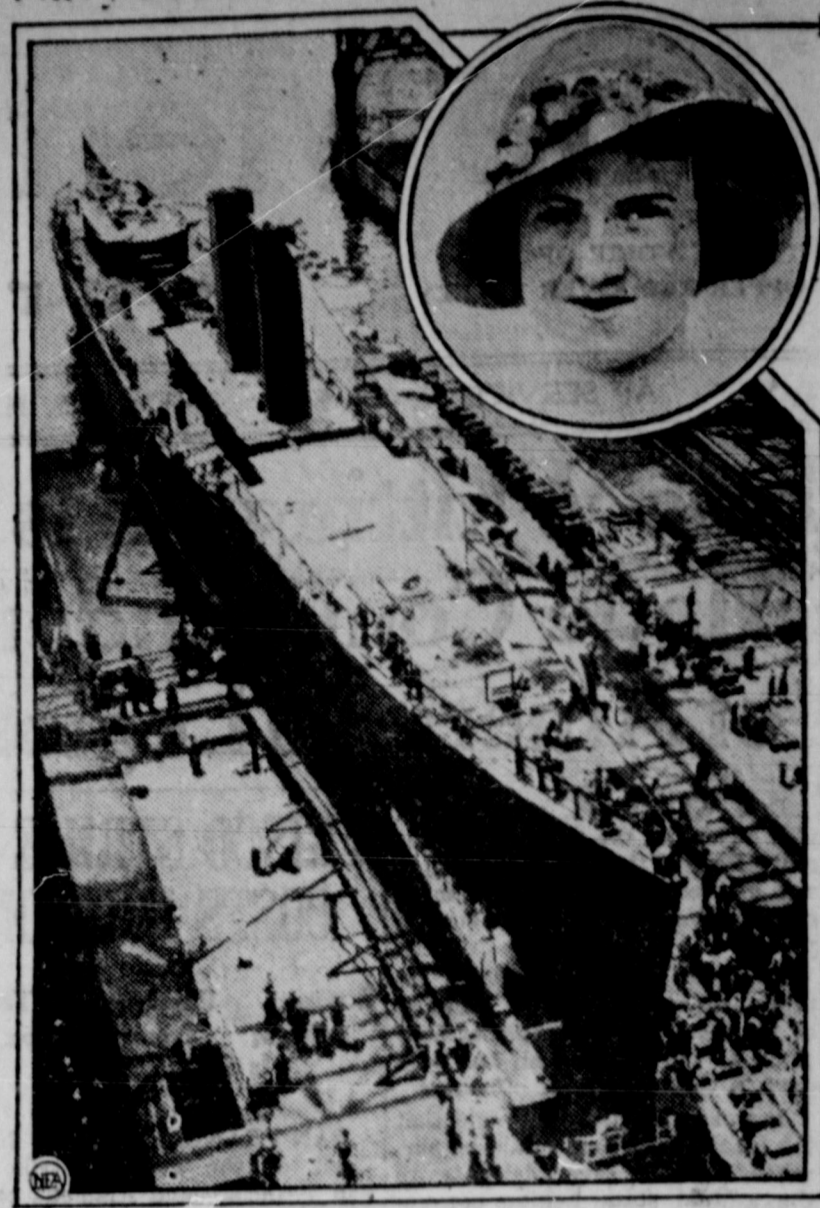

Amy felt far more at home with this Jane whoranted wild ideas. "Oh stuff," she said. "Every child has the right to the protection of the ordinary civilized conventions. A woman may do as she pleases about marrying, but she certainly shouldn't bring a child into the world for its shame and dishonor. Children don't ask to be born. They're helpless."

"Of course you'd think that simply because you've always refused to go with the times."

Amy suddenly wanted to laugh at the absurdity of arguing with Jane on the subject of feminism at practically the first moment of their meeting.

"You're like Aunt Rosa," went on Jane vehemently. "The reason I came is because I intended to make her give up my inheritance, so that I can do something on my own. It's wicked for her to be managing that money when I could double it, over and over again—but she doesn't believe a woman knows anything about business, anything at all, the old idiot! I'm losing chance after chance—" she quieted herself suddenly. She had not meant to tell anyone this. "And heavens!" she said, "I must hurry back. She's going to have the lawyer come up. So nice to see you, Amy, and your new house."

Amy caught her arm. "Jane," she cried, "don't go like this. I've missed you so. Dear Jane—can't we be friends again?" But she knew it was useless to ask. Jane had turned to stone. Jane had not forgotten or forgiven.

"Goodby," said Jane, "I must go. I—I've nothing to say to you—I didn't want to see you at all." She started away.

But Amy ran after her. "Remember, Jane dear," she cried, "remember, I am always your friend. If there's ever anything in the world I can do for you, I will."

At these words another Jane looked at Amy, a Jane whose eyes were full of doubt and fear,

SINGERS WILL CONVENE AT SHAMROCK

Sponsors Three-Week School To Open On August 13

Special to The Democrat
SHAMROCK, Texas, July 20.—With increasing attendance and enthusiastic response the keynotes at the many community and county singers' conventions during the past year, The Shamrock Texan is responding to the plea of Panhandle residents in sponsoring a three weeks' singing school in this city, beginning August 13.

The school will be preceded by the regular gathering of the Wheeler County Singers' association, at which one of the largest crowds in the history of the group is expected. Members of the Stamps-Baxter staff, sent by the Stamps-Baxter Music company of Dallas to conduct the singing school, will be present for the county meet, and will assist in the various solos, duets, quartets and group numbers which form the programs of a singing convention.

The Texan already has received letters of inquiry from points in Arkansas and Okla., asking information on the school, a good indication that there will be representatives from several different states as well as many Panhandle cities. In answer to such requests, local hotels and rooming houses are to be asked to set special rates for lodging and board during the school.

Virgil O. Stamps, well-known singing teacher will head his group of assistants for the school. Other well-known instructors to be present are Harley Lester, leading baritone of the South, and Freddie Martin, who will teach piano and piano accordion.

That Wheeler county and nearby Oklahoma points are music conscious lies in the fact that 4,000 persons attended the Fifth Annual Texas-Oklahoma District Singers' association meeting here last October. For the instruction which will better their hobby, many of this group are returning here for the singing school, and invite you, their neighbors, to join them in Shamrock, August 13.

CONNALLY GIVEN 5-1 LEAD BY NEWSPAPERS

Carries 234 Out Of 254 Counties In Editors' Vote

Special to The Democrat
DALLAS, July 20.—Senator Tom Connally will carry 234 of the 254 counties in Texas, according to a poll of all newspaper editors in the state, conducted by the Houston Post. The editors picked Joseph W. Bailey, Jr., to carry 45 counties. A few picked Guy B. Fisher to carry their counties and some ventured no estimate.

Ed Kilman, well-known Texas political commentator, summarized the result of the poll in a recent issue of the Post. Ballots were sent to the editors with the request that they pick the winners in their counties.

The editors rate Connally first in the counties of Harris, Bexar, Tarrant, Galveston, El Paso, McLennan, Jefferson, Nueces, Smith, Taylor, Travis, Wichita, Potter, Cameron, Hunt, Tom Green, Lubbock and even Dallas. These include the largest counties in the state.

Owls Cut Indian Rally To Defeat Okmulgee,

RUNNER CAUGHT OFF TO RUIN CHANCES

Home Run Brings in Three Tallies in Ninth Inning

The Memphis Owls defeated the Okmulgee, Okla., Indians, 6 to 5, at Fair Park yesterday afternoon before a crowd that almost completely filled the stadium.

Call it luck, or superior playing, but three errors by second baseman Harjo and a pinch-hitter who went to sleep gave the Owls the margin. At the same time, the Memphis club pounded away at the offerings of three Indian hurlers, and Pitcher Buck Whitfield controlled the situation until the last two frames.

In Trouble at Start
For seven innings, Whitfield blanked the visitors letting them down with only five hits. During this time, the Owls ran up a six-run margin, albeit only two of them were earned.

Whitfield got in trouble in the first and things suddenly began to look bad. Two hits and a base on balls loaded the bases without an out. The fourth batsman, however, popped out to short; the next one went out swinging and the last rolled easily to pitcher.

Owls Start Attack
The Owls started their attack in the third, while Whitfield was showing better control. After Dennis struck out, Joe Marcum singled and came all the way home on a long double by Barkley. Moore also singled, but the two runners died on bases.

Okmulgee threatened seriously in the same inning when Blair walked and advanced to second on a passed ball. He went to third on Harjo's single, but was thrown out by Van Meter when he tried to score after the catch of a fly ball in right field. Van Meter made a perfect throw home and the runner was easily stopped.

Donated a Couple
The Owls were donated a couple in the fourth when Harjo, second baseman, booted two liners and Joe Marcum singled to drive in Van Meter. His blow knocked Speer from the mound.

M. Taryole, who succeeded Speer, went out at the end of the sixth when another attack brought in a brace of runs. Whitfield started the frame with a single, but Dennis forced him at second. Joe Marcum grounded to third and all hands were safe when a play for Dennis at second failed when Harjo committed his third miscue. Dennis reached third and Marcum second. The second baseman was sent to centerfield for safe keeping. Barkley walked to fill the bases. Dennis scored but Marcum went out when Lindsey grounded to third. Moore singled scoring Barkley. The run, with the two in the fourth, was unearned because of second's error.

Solve Owl Pitching
The visitors finally solved the Whitfield mystery in the eighth, getting to him for a pair of runs. R. King tripled and scored and Harjo was safe, after Blair struck out, when the latter grounded to first and play home was slow. M. Taryole, who returned to left field to make way for Chisum, the second southpaw twister of the day, popped to second, and Tiger drove Harjo home with a double. Champion rolled out to short.

The Owls made up their final margin in their half of the eighth when Joe Marcum walked, advanced on a sacrifice for Barkley and scored on Lindsey's single.

Lose Tying Run
The Indians' attack continued in the ninth and would have tied the score if a pinch-hitter had not fallen asleep on first. Deer, batting for Taryole, made good with a single, but a moment later he was thrown out by Whitfield while he stood calmly within a foot of first base, paying no attention to what was happening.

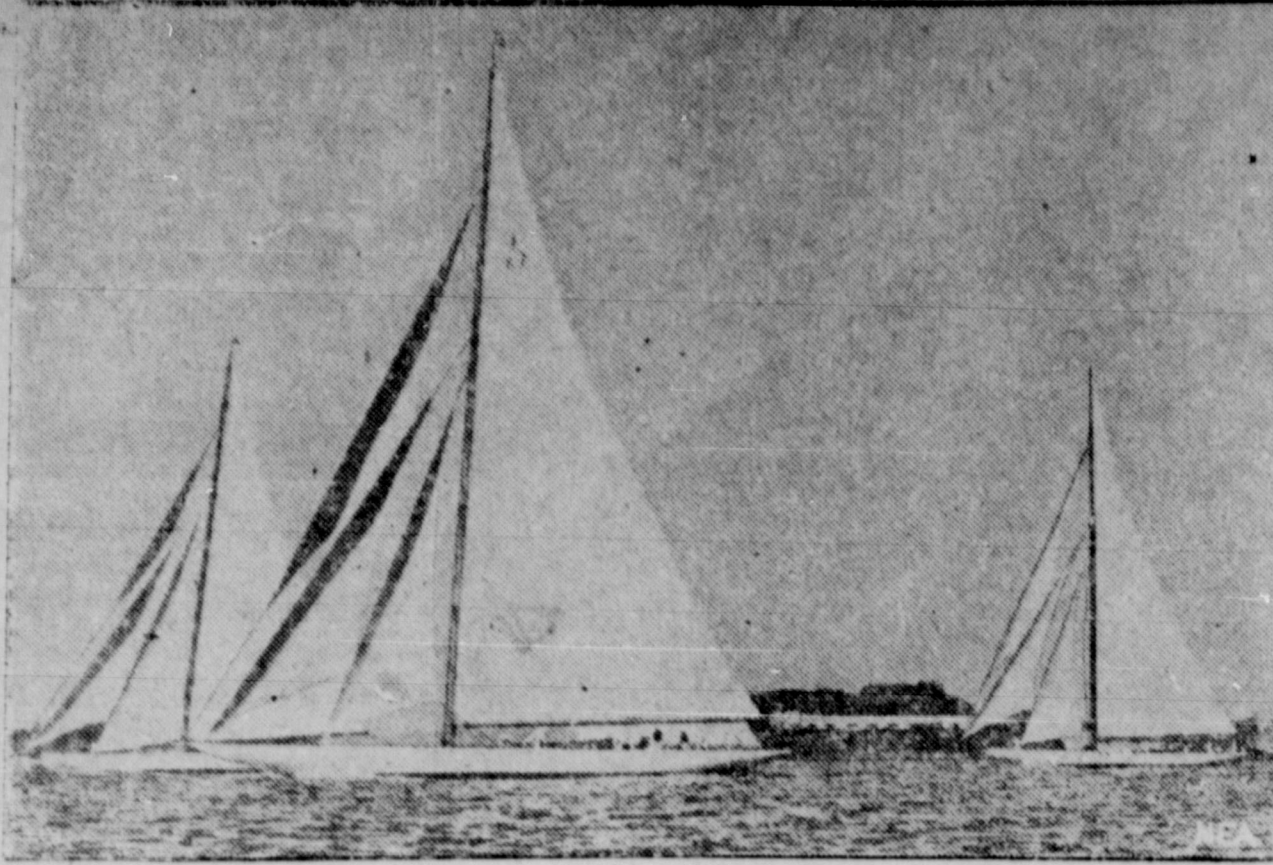

B. King batting for Roberts, also singled, and he and Chisum were safe when Barkley juggled a grounder at short. R. King, the leading hitsman of the day, who already had pounded out a double and a triple, slammed a home run into deep center field, driving in the three runs, that could have been four as easily.

Two Die on Bases
Blair singled and M. Taryole got on on an error, but both runners died when Tiger fanned for the final out.

The box score:

A picturesque sight, to be sure, but it's one that American yachtmen are likely to look upon with considerable uneasiness. For it shows the Endeavor (center), Britain's new challenger for the America's Cup, overtaking the famous Shamrock to capture her greatest race in a recent Regatta in Plymouth, England. Coming up in third place is the Astra.

FUN A-FISHIN'

BY JIMMY DONAHUE
NEA Service Sports Writer

A recent article in this column that had to do with the success of Nebraska in artificially propagating catfish brings the following letter from Mike McGee, sports editor of the Daily Capital in Topeka, Kan.

"Noticed your article on raising catfish in Nebraska hatcheries, and I should like to tell you about this work in the Kansas fish hatchery at Pratt.

"This hatchery, I think, is the first in the United States to successfully raise the channel catfish in captivity. As you know,

The channel catfish, this cat family lives in the faster moving waters and usually is found in the deeper riffles of the river.

"Unlike the yellow, blue, and bullhead varieties, it likes clean water. Eggs are laid in water where there is wash over them, and unless this wash can be found, mama channel cat raise no little ones.

"Inasmuch as this cat is the game fish of this section of the country, the Kansas hatchery people early took to the idea of trying to fool it. Troughs were built so that the wash of water flows continually over the spawn with the various artificial stage settings in the trough necessary to deceive the fish properly.

"These experiments have proved so successful at the state hatchery, situated on the Ninescaw river that thousands of fingerlings are released every fall in streams and small lakes of the state.

"The channel cat, by the way will not reproduce in a lake unless there is a channel of water coming into the lake in which it can place its eggs.

"The channel cat is a leaner, hungrier looking catfish than the river cats that grow to such tremendous sizes. They have been known to strike flies, although they usually revert to the catfish family in food likes and dislikes. When hooked, they often will fight like a bass or trout."

And that's what the state of Kansas thinks of the channel cat, a doughty warrior despite the plebeian status it holds in other communities.

By HARRY GRAYS

Sports writers usually outdo sob writers when a fin fighter reaches the end of the pike, but for the life of me I can't see any moral in the pugilistic demise of Eligio Sardinias y Montalvo. Few knew Kid Chocolate's square moniker, by the way, until he was married by proxy, which wasn't a bad idea.

Chocolate acquired a world championship, something many outstanding gladiators never even get a shot at. The Bon Bon had a remarkable eight-year run on the big time, long enough for any beak buster, and enjoyed himself thoroughly while having it. After all, no one could ask more than that. He was a newsboy on Havana's burning pavements when Luis Gutierrez picked him up. If the stick of licorice isn't rich, he should be.

Chocolate may not have been a George Dixon or a Joe Gans, but he was the biggest attraction ever contributed to the ring by the negro race—more magnetic at the bucks office than Jack Johnson, Harry Wills, Sam Laigford, Gans, or Dixon.

He came along in a better period than all save Wills, and, although the latter became wealthy chasing Jack Dempsey, he was denied his big chance. Chocolate got in on the bag end of the golden and giddy era.

From $40 to $40,000 in a Year
No boxer ever skyrocketed to the important money quite as rapidly as Chocolate. Paid $40 for belting out Eddie Enos at Mitchell Field, Long Island, in his American bow in August, 1928, the tar baby collected $4,000 for outsparring Al Singer at the Polo Grounds a year almost to a day later.

While Chocolate probably would not have cared to match his private life with that of any man, he was a credit to his profession. Boxing could use a lot more like him. The Keed wasn't choosy about opponents or the size of an arena. He boomed business at New York's smaller clubs, and kept them going for months after the crash. All but two of them folded when he quit making the rounds.

The word of Chocolate and his manager was as good as an iron-clad agreement. They appreciated what the press promoters did for them.

"Some day Keed Chocolate be beeg man," the Cuban told the Mitchel Field promoter who gave him his first opportunity in this country. "Then I come back, and fight for you."

And he did. The day following the Singer scrap, when Chocolate's services were sought at fabulous prices all over the world, the Keed and Gutierrez ankled into the office of the Mitchel Field promoter.

"Get someone for Chocolate," shot.

OUR BURGLARY RATE IS TOO HIGH

BURGLARS in Memphis are becoming so numerous that they are beginning to be classified as "not even news copy". From what information we can gather, it seems the people are beginning to accept the continual petty thievery and house-breaking as something they must contend with and many of them do not even notify the police.

It has been estimated that there is an average of from two to four robberies here every week. Most of them are extremely small cases—a filling station robbed of an inner-tube; a house broken into and a suit of clothes taken; a gasoline pump lock broken and five gallons of gasoline taken—small cases, but very irritating.

An average of two burglaries each week would make over 100 offenses within a year's time. Compare this with the record at Clarendon. A Clarendon officer here recently stated that city had only three burglary cases reported during the past year.

Why should the rate be so high here, if it is no more than that at Clarendon? Three burglaries in one year is an unusual record; so is two or three every week.

Something new in the way of handling such cases has been reported here. Several persons who were robbed have been reported dealing directly with the offenders rather than through the local police, paying in cash for the return of their stolen property. Such action will only tend to increase the epidemic of robberies.

The situation is a difficult one to deal with, apparently. Police facilities will not allow a net of watchmen throughout the city each night. However, the situation might be relieved by a careful check-up of questionable characters appearing on the streets at late hours, apparently for no good purpose.

ANTI-SEMITISM HIDES GRAVER ISSUE

AN old man named Mendel Beilis died in a hospital in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., a few days ago; and if the name doesn't mean anything to you now, that is only because the world has just about forgotten one of its most sensational murder trials.

In 1911, Beilis was living in a suburb of the Russian city of Kiev. The suburb had 10,000 inhabitants, of whom Beilis was the only Jew. Since anti-Semitism was almost as rampant in Russian then as it is in Germany now, Beilis was not popular.

One day the body of a 13-year-old-boy was found in a cave on the edge of the suburb. The lad had been murdered; his body was pierced by no fewer than 47 stab wounds. And Beilis was promptly arrested and charged with murder.

Strictly speaking, there was no evidence against him. But that made no difference; the accusation and the trial were matters of passion, anyway. For Beilis was accused of having performed a "ritual murder." He had killed the boy, it was said, so he might use the blood to sprinkle on matzoths, the Passover bread.

It is hard for us, today, to understand how such a charge could be taken seriously—but it stirred all Russia. Citizens of Kiev shrieked for Beilis' blood.

The trial was not held until 1913, and the czar had to order out 1500 Cossacks and 1500 infantrymen to keep Beilis from being lynched. Once a bomb was thrown at the carriage that took him to court; another time, a mob tried to burn a street car in which he was being carried.

In the end, of course, Beilis was acquitted. Shortly afterward a woman member of a band of thieves confessed the murder. She was executed, and Beilis, after many tribulation, made his way to America, where he lived the rest of his life in peace.

Now all this would hardly be worth recalling today, except for the light that it throws on that strangest of human phenomena, anti-Semitism.

The anti-Semitism of Russia was an artificial growth, pumped by the government to distract the populace's attention from its real troubles. It betokened, as it always does, a society ready to crash from its own rottenness.

Looking back at it, we can remind ourselves that the man or the organization that raises the banner of anti-Semitism usually does it to keep people from noticing something of infinitely greater consequence.

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHB7IN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

One of the most common diseases you will find among children is chronic infection of the sinuses, or air spaces around the nasal cavity.

The sinuses usually become infected along with the adenoids, or when the tonsils are inflamed. They also are frequently infected along with the common infectious diseases of childhood, such as whooping cough and measles.

The increase of swimming and diving among children also is related to the increased amount of inflammation of the sinuses.

You can tell when your child has sinus trouble, if he gets quite frequent head colds, or nose bleeds. Fits of sneezing, chronic cough, especially at night, frequent attacks of earache, headache, and fever that cannot be explained by some other condition, also may be due to sinus infection.

Because an infection is present in the sinuses, you may also find secondary disturbances present, such as inflammation of the kidney or of the joints, difficulty in digestion, asthmatic attacks and in fact all sorts of troubles.

In diagnosing this condition, the doctor depends first on the examination of the nose and throat for the presence of a discharge which can usually be found constantly present in the nasal cavity. There also are inflammations of the glands in the neck.

The diagnosis can be confirmed, however, by the use of X-rays, which will show the thickening and changes in the walls of the sinuses.

Doctors and even specialists find it exceedingly difficult to treat infections of the sinuses in children, partly because it is difficult to get the co-operation of the child and, second, because of the narrowness of the passages.

It is very important that you regulate the diet of your children, giving them plenty of milk, cream, butter, eggs, vegetables and fruits, but cutting down to some extent on the sugars. It is also well to make certain that the amount of vitamins received is adequate.

Swimming, diving and strenuous outdoor exercise with cold showers thereafter should be cut down or eliminated until the condition has been brought under control.

It is sometimes possible for the expert to drain the sinuses, and repeated draining and washing will give opportunity for healing. To decrease the infection that is in the nose, the doctor frequently prescribes antiseptic substances which may be dropped into the nose.

It may also be desirable to use weak solution of saline containing antiseptics for brief periods of time. In the very severe and chronic cases, it may be necessary to drain the sinuses by surgical measures.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
The Democrat's Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 20.—You wouldn't suppose Uncle Harold Ickes—czar of PWA, oil, and Interior Department—ever had time to read the society columns.

Apparently he does. That's why millionaire oil magnates no longer have the privilege of dining and dining officials of the Oil Administration charged with regulating their industry.

Certain Ickes subordinates had a swell time while it lasted. There were parties in hotels, country manors, and on a yacht down the bay. A Harry Sinclair vice-president threw one. Amos L. Beaty's party was especially lavish. Just a bunch of jolly good fellows interested in petroleum!

One day Ickes called the boys to his office. He had some clippings and read them aloud. One party had made the society column—with a guest list.

"You may think you can rub cheek and jowl with these fellows you're supposed to regulate and get away with it," he barked. "I'm telling you you can't. This stuff reflects on the administration. For God's sake, cut it out!"

Plenty of Eyes on Labor
What a mistake to imagine this government isn't watching labor troubles closely!

Secretary of Labor Perkins had a note from NRA showing that seven federal agencies were on the job at a small strike in Maryland—NRA, Labor and Justice Departments, FERA, National Labor Board, PWA, and another one which I forget.

Bouquets for Keezer
Mrs. Dexter Keezer, attractive young blond, started to drive her young blond husband to his job as director of the NRA Consumers' Advisory Board. She grabbed Keezer's slightly mussed white suit for the cleaner.

Keezer protested that it wasn't dirty enough to be cleaned. They scuffled and the suit landed in the gutter and had to be cleaned anyway.

Keezer got the point that night when he found himself—in a clean suit—honor guest at a surprise party to which his boss, Mrs. Mary H. Rumsey, had invited 200 people.

Some of your consumers might have been backed up a bit had you been there to hear Secretary Wallace and Perkins. Attorney General Cummings and others make an infernal howl to all consumers as they rose to praise Keezer on the eve of his departure to become president of Reed College in Oregon.

Keezer's exposures had much to do with NRA's swing away from price-fixing. Lots of kidding plus eating, Samoa.

Wife in Futile Plea for Ponzi's Pardon

Hope that he would be saved from deportation to Italy dimmed for Charles Ponzi, notorious "get-rich-quick" wizard, when Governor Ely of Massachusetts denied him a full pardon after he had served a prison term for his international reply coupon swindle. Here he stands solemnly by while his loyal wife makes a tearful but ineffectual plea in his behalf.
