LAND WELL OPERATIONS DELAYED

Cellar and Storage Tanks

LUBBOCK, May 24.—The index will say today that operations at the new well near Childress County were halted yesterday because of a cellar and storage tank problem. The operations were halted to construct two 500-barrel storage tanks as there is no pipe line available, it was announced by the operator.

Work was completed and not dried this morning. One barrel was completed. Activity here is still brisk. Lease and royalty trade is off from the peak of a ago.

Men were paying a top of $200 for leases. Four hundred dollars an acre was asked but there was no bid at that price. The highest bid was $200.

WHERE GIRL DIED IN SIGHT OF SCORES

In sight of scores of homes whose windows overlook the construction project where she played in the Jackson Heights section of New York City, little Shirley Evans, 8 years old, went to her death unnoticed. Her body, backed against a foundation, was found by workers digging under police supervision. An autopsy was needed to determine whether she had been murdered and buried or was the victim of a landslide. Police are shown holding back a crowd at the scene of her death.

Roosevelt, Leaders Agree to 21 1/2 Month Extension of N R A

WASHINGTON, May 24.— President Roosevelt and congressional leaders agreed tentatively today on a 21 1/2 months extension of NRA and giving the Recovery Agency jurisdiction over business "substantially affecting" interstate commerce. Price fixing will be barred.

They reached the understanding at the White House even as William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was insisting before the House Ways and Means Committee upon a two-year extension and describing as "short sighted, reactionary and anti-social" those who opposed the two-year extension. Green said nationwide strikes will result if NRA is not continued at least two years.

MISSING ARMY PLANE FOUND; PILOT DEAD

PINE VALLEY, OKLA., May 24.—A blinding fog obscuring the peak of Big Eagle Mountain, 12 miles southwest of here, was blamed today for the army plane crash in which Lieutenant Wendell Holliday and Private Ira Hicks died Sunday. The bodies and wreckage were found last night. The fliers were enroute from Muskogee to Shreveport.

HEAVENER, Okla., May 24.— Bill Chapman, forester at the Pine Valley CCC camp near here, said that a plane, possibly that missing from Muskogee since Sunday, had been found late yesterday by W. A. Morgan, commanding officer of the camp, and that one man was found dead in the wreckage. The airplane crashed in the sparsely settled, mountainous county about 35 miles southwest of Heavener.

Morgan and a party from the CCC camp were at the scene, Chapman reported, and details were not available as to whether it was the missing army plane. Morgan was to return to the camp after investigating the crash. Lieut. Wendell Holliday and Private Ira Hicks were in the army ship when it took off from Hatbox Field, Muskogee, for Shreveport Sunday. They have not been reported since. The debris of the wrecked plane was found about four miles from a lookout tower on Big Eagle Mountain, the forester said, and at the bottom of a high bluff.

HORSE THIEVING REVIVAL. CINCINNATI, O., May 24.— William Sneed and Norman Henry, 19, an Indian and native of Canada, were indicted here recently for horse stealing.

Run First Through Trains in Six Days

Passenger trains through Memphis over the Fort Worth and Denver City Railway were going all the way through on the main line between Amarillo and Fort Worth last night for the first time since Saturday, when floods washed out bridges over Pease River.

The washout made a transfer of passengers and baggage by bus and truck necessary between Vernon and Chillicothe until last night. Mails from the south, although delayed several days, have been arriving in Memphis at irregular intervals. Repairs on the Pease River bridge enabled the railroad to resume operation of trains over the entire main route last night.

Return Bankhead Blanks to Office Of County Agent

Bankhead application blanks for the new year will be placed in the office of the county agent after tomorrow, it has been announced by County Agent James A. Jackson. Blanks have been in the hands of community committeemen during the week and cotton farmers in the county who have not signed the new contracts by Saturday night will be required to call at the office for blanks, it was explained.

Surplus exemption certificates for 1934 may be exchanged for 1935 tags at the office during the next week, also, Mr. Jackson said.

Italo-Ethiopian Agreement Is Set Back by Mussolini

GENEVA, May 24.—A spokesman for the British delegation to the League of Nations council today said a serious setback entered the Italo-Ethiopian controversy with Premier Mussolini's refusal to admit any reference to the Italo-Ethiopian treaty of 1928. The treaty provided for the conciliation and arbitration of all disputes and pledges there will be no recourse to arms.

Girls' 4-H Club Is Formed This Week At Harrell Chapel

HARRELL CHAPEL, May 24.—Ten girls between the ages of 10 and 20 years met at 10 o'clock Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. W. Longshore for the purpose of organizing a girls' 4-H Club. Officers were elected as follows: President, Reah Harris; vice-president, Elsie Bain; secretary, Evarene Willis; reporter, Lottie Lou Anderson; sponsor, Mrs. J. W. Longshore. The organization of the club was all that remained for a complete 4-H organization. Members are Reah Harris, Hary Nancy Littrell, Elsie Bain, Louise Kilgore, Faye Jones, Laura Lee Anderson, Maxine Longshore, Evelyn Haney, Evarene Willis and Lottie Lou Anderson.

Committee Okays Centennial Funds

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The House Foreign Affairs Committee today unanimously approved a joint resolution for a three-million-dollar appropriation for the Texas Centennial celebration. The committee decided to name President Roosevelt as a member of the federal commission to administer the project.

MAKE NEW LIST OF FAMILIES ON RELIEF

Some To Be Removed, Others Rebudgeted In County

Re-registration of all families on relief rolls in Hall County began yesterday morning under instructions from the Texas Relief plan to be placed in operation Judge A. C. Hoffman, county relief administrator. The re-registration is for the purpose of eliminating those families from relief rolls who are not entitled to relief and for re-budgeting families remaining on the rolls, Judge Hoffman explained.

Between 700 and 800 families are now on relief in this county, but this number will be reduced considerably when re-registration is completed, he said. Clients in the Turkey section will be re-registered at Turkey at a later date, Judge Hoffman said.

"The order is mandatory and all clients are required to report at the office at the earliest possible date. Those refusing or failing to report will be discontinued from all relief rolls," the administrator said.

Dallas Man Heads Texas Bank Group

GALVESTON, May 24.—Fred F. Florence of Dallas was elected president of the Texas Bankers Association yesterday and Houston was selected the 1936 meeting site. V. M. Robertson of Mart was elected treasurer, succeeding A. B. Childs of Naples. The bankers went on record as favoring the withdrawal of the federal farm lending agencies from competition with private banks.

24-Hour Rainfall Totals .45 Inches

Rainfall in Memphis totaled .45 of an inch between 6 o'clock yesterday morning and 6 o'clock this morning, according to J. J. McMickin, local weather observer. The measurement did not include .10 of an inch which fell here Wednesday night. The latest rainfall in the Memphis Area extended north and west of the city, with lighter showers south and east. Continued cloudiness this morning indicated possible scattered showers over the area today. Total rainfall in the Memphis Area during the past two weeks ranges from three to six inches.

Receives 47 Delayed First Rental Checks

Forty-seven delayed first rental payments on 1935 cotton contracts were received this morning by County Agent James A. Jackson for immediate distribution. The checks totaled $2,044.52 and are a part of the first group of checks received some 10 days ago.

The Weather

WEST TEXAS—Cloudy, possibly showers in the Panhandle and extreme east portion tonight and Saturday; slightly warmer in the Panhandle. EAST TEXAS—Partly cloudy to unsettled tonight and Saturday; slightly warmer in the interior Saturday.

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY.

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliott © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY KATHARINE STRYKHURST, beautiful, 20, is restless and discontented with the useless round of social activities that make up her life. She rides daily with MICHAEL HEATHEROE, who runs a riding club. SALLY MOON, local coquette, also enrolls at the club for riding lessons. ZOE PARKER, Katharine's friend, sent to Europe to forget a love affair with GIBBS LARKIN, returns. She persists in seeing Gibbs in spite of her parents' objections. Katharine, riding with Michael, is thrown from her horse. Shocked but not seriously injured, she is taken to the home of VIOLET MERSER who years before was in love with Katharine's father. Mrs. Merseer feels drawn to the girl. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

Isabel, the manicurist at Miss Betsy's Beauty Shoppe, bent solicitously over Katharine's hand. "Want them a little shorter, don't you?" Katharine nodded. Sally Moon was in the next booth, with its rose colored curtains swinging between painted white posts. Katharine could hear Sally's laughter as she gossiped with Miss Betsy. "Why have you got that string tied around your finger?" Katharine asked the little manicurist idly. Isabel, who had wavy brown hair, plucked eyebrows and a confident air, glanced up, dimpled and smiled. "Bill put it there on my birthday," she confided. "Bill Chance—you know him, Miss Strykhurst. He drives the express truck. Big fellow with broad shoulders. I told him I'd keep it there till he put a sure enough ring on it. I say the craziest things," she finished with an innocent, upward sweep of mascaraed lashes. "I'm just a nut."

"You're going to marry him then?" Katharine stated, rather than asked. Isabel had been doing her nails for years. Katharine felt almost an affection for the artless little creature. "Well, yes, I guess so. We were playing with the ouija board last week and I asked ouija: 'When am I going to be married?' Well, will you believe it, Miss Strykhurst, that thing ran around to October 4? I was just about knocked silly, October 4. Imagine that!" Katharine smiled. From the booth Sally Moon's high laughter sounded again. "She's a very popular girl, I hear," Isabel murmured with a shrug in Sally's direction. "The men just go running..." "She's attractive," Katharine conceded, concealing her instinctive dislike with an effort. "Well, but about Bill and myself," Isabel pursued, getting back to her favorite topic. "You know, when I told him about ouija he acted funny, kind of. Said he didn't believe in monkeying with fate or something like that. Men are so sort of queer. It's like they had no intuition or something. Now take me, I always want to know about the future. Why, there was a fortune teller up at Playland and she had me down to a T. Described my first beau and said I was going to get a letter and would you believe it...

There was a good deal more of this, but Katharine did not hear it all. Sally Moon, a roil of scalloped waves and escaping sausage curls, emerged presently from the booth, in the crisp of yellow linens with flyaway scarf. She met Katharine's eyes and both girls bowed rather stiffly.

"Gee, that's a pretty outfit," Isabel commented enviously as Sally fluttered out of the door to take her place at the wheel of her waiting car. "Bet that cost plenty. That's what I always say. No wonder these girls have all the breaks, clothes and cars and all—tearing around like nobody's business. I don't mean you, of course, Miss Strykhurst," she finished, briskly, at a warning nod from her employer who was putting the stopper on a mammoth bottle of liquid shampoo.

"Hear you took a tumble last week," Isabel went on after an interval during which polish was applied deftly to the nails of Katharine's left hand. "Read it in the paper. Gosh, I was all upset, believe it or not. I said to myself, Miss Strykhurst is the nicest one of the whole bunch in town. It'll just be a shame if she's going to be badly hurt."

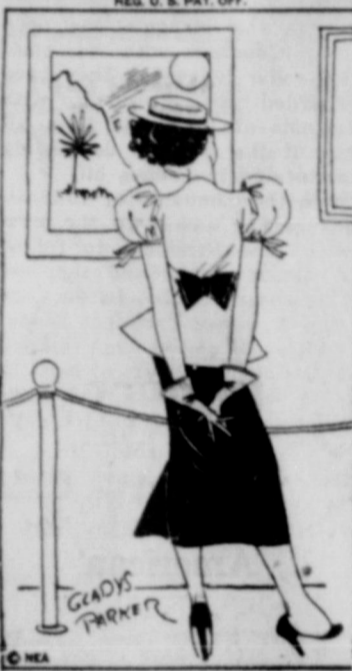

"It wasn't anything," Katharine said.

"But that tall fellow who comes down from the riding club, he sure is one good looking chap," Isabel chattered. "I said to Miss Betsy just the other day, believe you me, if I had the money and the outfit I'd be taking lessons from him myself. He reminds me of Gary Cooper—sort of—only younger."

Katharine said, "He's really very nice."

"Sally Moon thinks so," Isabel murmured with a glance over her shoulder. "She came in here one day last week for a set; she was just going on at a great rate about him. Gaga, I call it."

Katharine might have been entirely absorbed in examining her nails, for all her expression told.

"They look lovely. Thank you, Isabel," she tipped generously. "Thank you, Miss Strykhurst. Oh, you oughtn't to—really you shouldn't. Although I won't say it won't come in handy. I'm saving for a new dress for the picnic next week. Bill hasn't asked me yet but I'm sure he will. The Elks' Club. He doesn't belong but his uncle does."

Life, thought Katharine, was comparatively simple for girls like Isabel. Doubtless she would marry her Bill in due time and settle down to a life of saving and babies and quarreling and making up. Isabel was frank in her adoration for the hulking young man who drove the express truck. Katharine knew that his reputation in Innicoek was none too good. He had been in some sort of fight at one of the roadhouses the year before. He was a swaggering, bold-eyed young man, handsome in a crude way. Katharine felt dimly that little Isabel, who lived in a shabby one story house over on the wrong side of the tracks, deserved something distinctly better than that. But Isabel wanted Bill—so it was really none of anyone's business, Katharine reminded herself.

She drove past the Merseer home slowly, hoping one of the children would be out in the yard. But the car was not in the drive and Katharine could see the turbaned head of the colored maid at one of the upper windows; rugs were being vigorously shaken.

"I do like Mrs. Merseer," she said to herself. "Wonder why Daddy was so stiff about her! Usually he makes a fuss about a pretty woman..."

Bertine had been inclined, as usual, to discourage any connection with the Merseers.

"They want to get in with the right crowd, that sort of people," Bertine had said in the assured tone that always irked Katharine. "Just be polite but don't encourage them."

Usually Katharine didn't bother to argue with her stepmother, but this time she had lifted her voice in protest.

"I don't think Violet Merseer wants to 'get in with' anyone," she said indignantly. "Why, she knows all sorts of people in the city who do important things—sculptors and writers and that sort of thing. Why on earth should she want to know any of us?"

"Thank you, Katharine, thank you very much," Bertine had said stiffly. "We all know what you think of Innicoek. And yet I must remind you that some of the most splendid people, the finest names in the country, are here."

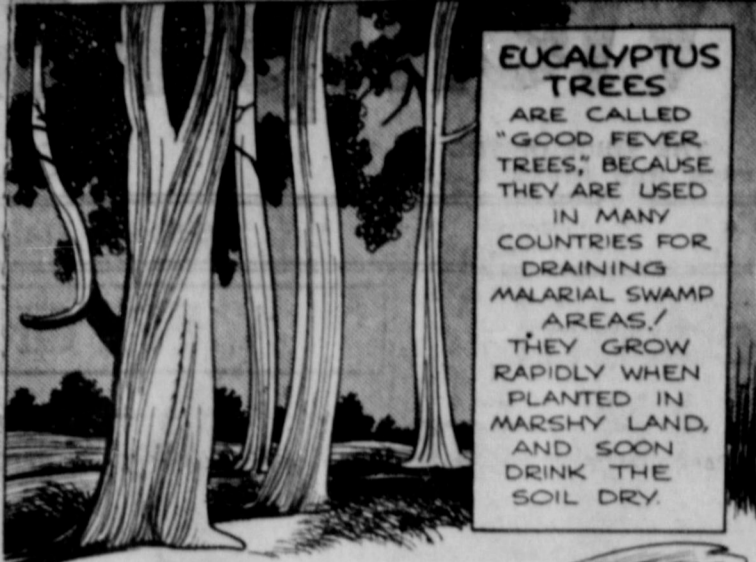

Bertine had gone on in this vein for some little time, and Katharine had listened with a mutinous face. It was always like this, she reminded herself angrily. Whenever she found a friend of her own, whose pedigree had not been investigated from a to zizzard, Bertine would be sure to put in a meddling finger.

"I hate her," the girl decided, whirling her car recklessly around the corner of the River Road. She would go to see Mrs. Merseer again, no matter what her stepmother said! She had decided that.

The barns and outbuildings of Michael's place were now in view, and Katharine's heart began to beat thickly, furiously. How stupid of her! She had been keeping at bay, all the week, the memory of Michael's visit in that little upper room at the Merseer house. She had been trying to tell herself that his muttered, "My darling!" had been the merest figment of her imagination. But the sum of all this thought had been to make her extraordinarily self-conscious about seeing Michael again. Now the very memory of his slow, reluctant smile, the laughter wrinkles about the corners of his gray eyes seemed dim and far away. She must cling to her remnants of dignity. She must not, by any possible chance, let Michael know she was attracted to him. He would despise her. Hadn't she read that, hadn't she been told by Bertine and others that men hated being pursued? Isabel, the little manicurist, could quite frankly suggest to her Bill that the playful circle of string be replaced by a plain band. But she was Katharine Strykhurst, cool and assured and self-sufficient. She could never, never let a man know that she cared for him. Until, of course, he spoke first...

And Michael Heatheroe was a nobody. Bertine would be sure to designate him as "an upper servant."

What was it John Kaye had said? "Don't let Bertine get your goat." But that was it. Bertine had dominated Katharine for years! It was hard to break the habit of obedience, of tacit submission to the older woman's will.

Katharine caught her breath. A man had ridden out of the lane. His crest of reddish hair gleamed in the sunlight. He wore breeches and an old blue jersey.

She had to step on the brakes rather suddenly. Michael rode up to the very side of the car.

Was there something quizzical in the look he now bent upon her? She strove for casualness and achieved it.

"The top of the morning to you," Michael said gayly. "Thank the good Lord you're whole and safe after that spill."

Katharine's heart settled down, like a homing bird in the nest, at the sound of the words.

CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS

CHURCH OF CHRIST
John H. Banister, Minister

House almost full for the sermon last Sunday morning. A fine interest. Several visitors; a pleasant and profitable hour of worship; and much good was done. The Sunday night services were held at 7 in order to dismiss for the commencement sermon at 8 o'clock. Although the time was early, yet the crowd was very large for the night sermon.

The Church of Christ was pleased to have S. K. Dong, a missionary to Korea, among our visitors this past week. He spoke to the Women's class Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the "Customs of Women in Korea." Then on Tuesday night he delivered an interesting and profitable lecture about the work he is doing among his people. He was well received and large audiences greeted him at both services.

The Church of Christ is growing in every way and we invite you to our services. The subject for Sunday morning's sermon will be: "A View of Christ Through the Prophets"; for Sunday night "Considering Jesus." We shall be very pleased to have you present to hear both sermons.

Our services are as follows:
Sunday: Bible Study—9:45.
Preaching 11:00 and 8:15.
Monday—Men's Training Class—8:15.
Tuesday—Women's Bible Class—3:00.
Wednesday—Prayer meeting—8:15.

A Brand New Bunch of ANAGRAMS

HANDY ENTRY BLANK

In the blank space below I have rearranged the letters in the anagrams to spell the names of the words which I think to be the solution of today's game. The ones checked with a cross mark thus X are advertised in today's Democrat.

- | ANAGRAM       | SOLUTION |                          |
|---------------|----------|--------------------------|
| 1. LUCIRRAC   | -----    | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 2. BORREMOS   | -----    | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 3. SILHRE     | -----    | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 4. ALSNADS    | -----    | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 5. REVSESEREP | -----    | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 6. ATTORCID   | -----    | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 7. PELCISE    | -----    | <input type="checkbox"/> |

BASKET OF GROCERIES

And 10 Tickets to the Ritz To See George Arliss in

"THE HOUSE OF ROTHSCHILD"

RULES:

- The letters in each of the accompanying anagrams when rearranged properly will spell the names of ten words. Two of the words each week will be given away. You are invited to solve the anagrams and rearrange them in a sentence of not more than 30 words (you may use less if you wish), and try for one of ten prizes.
  - To the persons who send in the best entries in accordance with these rules, The Democrat will give a basket of groceries and ten tickets to the Ritz. The basket of groceries will be offered as first prize, two tickets to the Ritz as second prize, and one each to the next eight contestants.
  - This offer is open to all except employees of The Democrat and their families. You pay nothing.
  - Awards will be made on the basis of the most correct list of anagrams and the cleverest sentence properly rearrange the letters in each anagram, to a word in common usage. Then check the food and grocery ads in today's Democrat and place a cross mark in the square if you find either of the two groceries advertised. If the item is NOT advertised, do not mark.
  - Then arrange the ten words into a sentence of more than thirty (30) words. You may use less if you wish.
  - All entries will be considered by a committee appointed by the Democrat. Contestants agree to accept the decisions of the committee as final. Judgments will be based upon suitability of words inserted, accuracy in checking, cleverness in arranging the sentences, neatness. No special consideration will be given to late entries. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded to tying contestants.
  - All entries must be received at the Democrat office by four o'clock Saturday afternoon.
- You need not purchase The Democrat to compete. You may use the handy blank submitted here, or you may submit your entry on a separate sheet of paper. Winners will be announced in Sunday's Democrat.

THE VOICE OF THE UPPER RED RIVER VALLEY

PROMISING OUTLOOK FOR AREA

MEMPHIS and Area are on the threshold of better times. The long-discussed depression is dying a natural and much-desired death. Good times are on the way.

Such a statement might be considered rather premature. But is it?

Had this section of country made good crops last fall, it is conceded by all that the depression, insofar as the area is concerned, would have been over.

If good crops would have ended the depression last year, isn't it just as true that good crops this year will end it?

It is a case of soil, season and sunshine—three S's—getting a chance to co-operate in the growing of crops. We know we have the soil and lately the season. It is reasonable to believe that we will have plenty of sunshine.

Granted that more moisture will be needed to make the crops grow and mature after they have been planted and start growing, we are optimistic to the degree that we believe this will be a year when rains will be timely and in sufficient quantities to satisfy the needs and desires of all the people.

This is not a case of predicting. It is based on years of observation in this western country. Using the pet word of Old Tack, the outlook for a good crop year was never more "propitious."

Furthermore, this section of country is not in bad financial condition now. Government money has gone a long way toward relieving financial distress and aiding agricultural communities to weather the lean crop years since 1929.

Before the depression, when we had a good season over the area at the planting season, people went ahead with their plans just as if they knew the harvest would be good. Let's get that attitude of mind now.

EASY TO RELIEVE PHILIPPINE TANGLE

SOMETHING that deserves that overworked title, "epoch-making," seems to be happening on the other side of the Pacific ocean these days, and we are not giving it quite as much thought as it deserves.

The Philippines are in the process of gaining their freedom. They are getting it peacefully, without bloodshed, because the power which has ruled them for a generation is getting out voluntarily. History contains no precedent for such action.

The 10-year independence plan seems to have won Philippine approval by an overwhelming vote. There remains, then, only the task of getting through the transition period as well as possible. Within a comparatively short time the adventure which began when Dewey's guns battered the Spanish fleet into so much scrap iron will be ended forever.

Yet we need not think that, because the die has at last been cast, our own responsibilities are ended.

For the 10 years of the transition period, the United States still remains responsible for protection of the islands. Congress recently passed a law authorizing appointment of an American military mission to the Philippines. America will retain the right to intervene in island affairs until the decade is up.

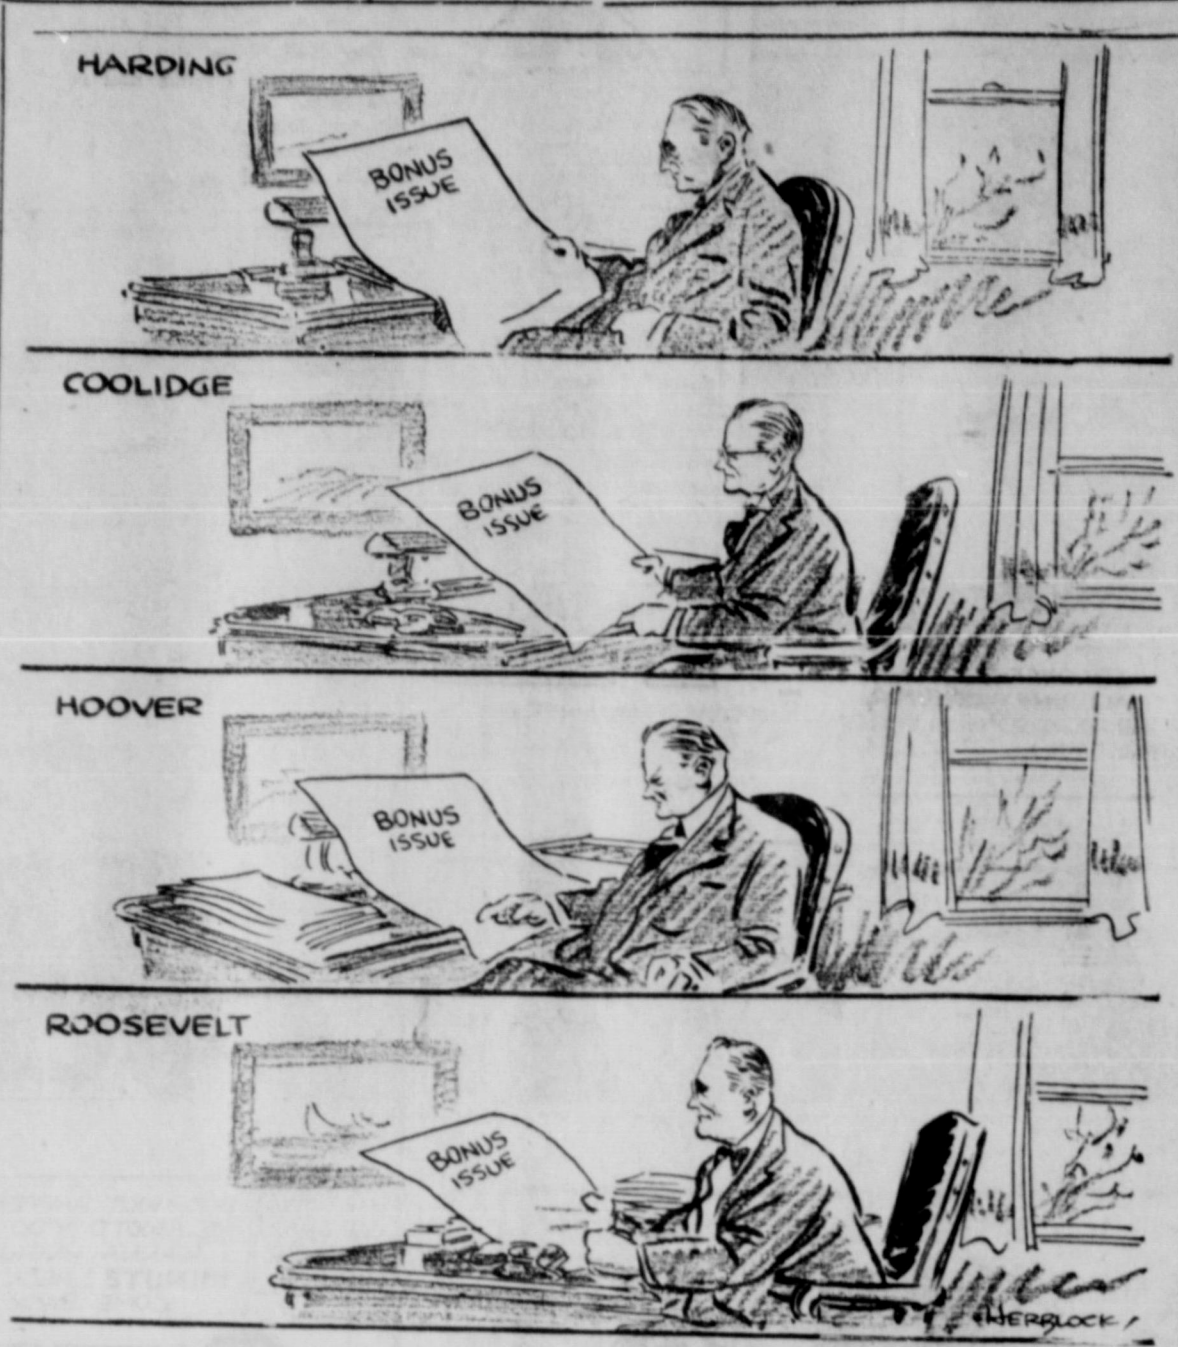

Now there is no sense in denying that our relations with Japan are somewhat strained. There is also no sense in denying that there are some Japanese who would like to see the Philippines under Japanese domination. It is perfectly possible that a combination of these things might lead us into an extremely difficult situation ever after we have formally begun the task of getting out of the islands.

Raymond Leslie Buell, discussing the situation for the Foreign Policy Association, suggests that there are four things the United States can do to ease this situation.

He suggests the granting of independence now, instead of 10 years hence, to avoid the difficult transitional period; signing of a reciprocity agreement between the United States and the Philippines, to save the islanders from economic collapse; employment by the new Philippine republic of expert advisers nominated by some such body as the League of Nations; and an international agreement among Pacific powers to guarantee neutralization of the islands.

It would be an ironic stroke of fate if the "Philippine question" should involve us in trouble after we had formally started to withdraw.

A LEGACY OF THE WAR

HEALTH BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Not long ago a mother about 34 years old brought her 4-year-old son to a doctor because the boy had become unmanageable. She complained that he was overactive, that he had temper tantrums, and would not play with other children. She could not make him go to bed early at night. He was a cry baby and would not protect himself from other children. Moreover, he was finicky about his food, and it was exceedingly difficult to make him eat. Worst of all, although he failed to protect himself against other children, he would attack adults. Finally, this child came to the attention of a specialist in the study of the mental side of the child's life, and he discovered some exceedingly interesting things about the mental relationship of the child to its parents. It happened that this 4-year-old boy was really of superior intelligence and actually somewhat above his years in his body development. The mother had not wanted the child, but had consented to have him because the husband had wanted it. Her reactions to the child were always the same as though he were a grown-up person. The child naturally exhibited a healthy rebellion against this point of view, which took the form of the difficult reactions that I have mentioned. The most troublesome type of disorder to control in the ordinary child is a food fad or food habit, resulting eventually in its refusal to eat. Sometimes children will not eat because they have found out that certain foods disagree with them, so that a certain amount of respect for children's taste within the limits of good health will make much less difficulty for their parents in regard to food. However, children are great imitators and, if some grown-up member of the family has frequently expressed dislike for some foods or exhibited strange fads in that regard, it will not be at all surprising if the child suddenly shows up with a similar notion. Most of the feeding problems arise in early infancy. Parents begin to worry about the baby's height and weight. They try to force the child to eat. Immediately there begins a psychological battle between the parents and the child which gradually extends itself from the question of eating to other questions. When the child once begins to assert itself in opposition to the parents' pressure and wishes, all the problems are accentuated. A careful analysis of this situation will reveal the fact that the first step necessary for the parent to analyze his or her own relationships to the child. New instrument reveals there are approximately 18.8 square feet of skin on the average human body. The figure probably varies a bit during furniture moving season. Congressmen are advised by John N. Garner to override the presidential veto. That man's here again. New York police are seeking culprit who wrecked theater. Evidently a man who lacked self-control when someone climbed over his knees. Strange as it may seem, husbands nor spring house-cleaning have any place in the plot of that movie, "The Invisible Man."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Plan for Laws to Make U. S. Neutral in War to Be Carried to Country... Navy Opposed to Peace Safeguards... Admiral Sims Is One Sea Warrior Who Sees Need of Measures Asked by Nye and Clark.

WASHINGTON, May 24. — There is strong presumptive evidence that if a European war breaks out this year, the United States will automatically start getting into it.

That is why current proposals for neutrality legislation seem vitally important to most persons here who have studied the possibilities and why Chairman Gerald Nye and Senator Bennett Clark of the munitions committee plan to take the issue "to the country" in the hope of getting action before this session of Congress adjourns—despite opposition from the navy.

Nye and Clark will sound off at a New York mass meeting where Mayor LaGuardia will preside. Clark, unless he changes his mind—and he hardly ever does that—will take some hot shots at what he considers control of American foreign policy by the navy and the army.

The two senators, who will have strong support in Congress, are convinced this country will be setting out on the road to war whenever it starts selling contraband and making loans to belligerent powers.

How They'd Keep Peace Study of State Department confidential records has shown that such commerce and finance inevitably dragged us into the World War. So they have introduced three Nye-Clark resolutions as follows:

- 1. Absolutely no loans or credits, private or public, to any foreign nation at war or any firm within that nation. 2. No passports permitting citizens to travel in war zones. 3. Shipment of munitions and contraband to be made from these shores only at the buyer's risk.

Navy Stand Is Snag The navy, which likes to feel that it can protect American foreign commerce under any circumstances, opposes any change in our foreign policy. Months ago, Secretary Hull began a neutrality study and after conclusions somewhat those of Nye and Clark the navy for an optically critical. Nye, as he left for off Florida, asked to prepare a report embodied legislation. Hull when the president was Two days later Hull he guessed he was in about the matter. He had seen navy means.

Presumably he had that his desire—and widely discretionary powers probably won by Congress, which that anything but isolation—as in the left too much more international politics.

Sims Asks Neutrality Almost unnoticed, naval personage Admiral William S. Sims cleared for neutrality the Nye-Clark lines. Referring to the he says: "We claimed the with all belligerents because we wanted profits of such trade, a golden harvest for get-rich-quick chasers neglected.

"Let's have Congress that all trade which nowadays everything, must be the traders. If an carrying such supply by a belligerent, we would make no claim.
