His Opinion Voids Tax AAAation

The far-reaching opinion that holds the AAA processing tax, chief instrument of the farm price raising efforts of the New Deal, to be illegal, was written by Judge Scott Wilson (above) of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals at Boston.

Judge George F. Morris concurred in the ruling, given in the Hooaac Mills suit to escape paying a $81,694 processing levy.

RELATIONS ARE ENDANGERED BY PARTY

Italian Minister Refuses To Attend Fete

A royal birthday celebration threatened to rupture diplomatic relations between Italy and Ethiopia.

The Italian minister to Addis Ababa today refused to attend Emperor Haile Selassie's reception marking his 44th anniversary on account of the bitter tone of the emperor's recent address to Parliament.

Ethiopia interpreted this as a slight.

Authoritative French quarters disclosed today that France is seeking a treaty giving Italy economic domination over Ethiopia in return for Italy's promise that Ethiopia can have nominal independence.

England called in British women and children with missionaries in Ethiopia. The missionaries were ordered to concentrate in the Ethiopian capital.

Hawthorn Charged After Memphis Man Dies of Injuries Yesterday

Over 50 Injured in Strike Riot—One of Casualties

Strikers, and non-strikers who attempted to break through picket lines, swinging clubs on each other in a riot that marked the first day of a strike at the John Merrell packing plant in Sioux Falls, S. D. Fifty-four men required medical attention after the battle, in which clubs, rocks, and fists were used.

W. H. Hawthorn, about 45, last night was charged in Justice Court with the killing of London White, 25, after White died yesterday afternoon of injuries received last Friday morning.

Hawthorn waived preliminary hearing and made bond of $2,500. The case was bound over to await action of the grand jury which convenes September 2.

Struck Over Head

Members of the Hall County sheriff's and county attorney's departments said that White was struck over the head with a soda pop bottle at a local domino parlor at about 9 o'clock last Friday morning.

He was carried to his home, 317 North 5th Street, and received medical attention, the investigators stated. Sunday afternoon he was carried to a local hospital. He died at about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon of concussion, the attending physician stated.

Reported to Sheriff

The affray Friday morning climaxed a misunderstanding that had lasted for several days, investigators said.

After the tilt, Hawthorn reported to Sheriff Joe Colvin, but no charges were filed at the time, the sheriff said. He again gave himself up yesterday and charges were filed last night.

Hawthorn is a local mattress manufacturer. He also has farming interests near Newlin and property interests here. He resides at 421 Bradford Street.

Funeral services for White will be held this afternoon at the First Baptist Church, with Rev. O. K. Webb, pastor, conducting the rites. Burial will be at Fairview Cemetery, with Hodges Funeral Home in charge.

Lived Here 14 Years

White was the son of Mrs. D. M. Ford. He was born on February 13, 1910, in Hood County, and came to Memphis 14 years ago. He farmed around Memphis for several years.

He married Miss Doris Ferguson of Plainview on October 30, 1932. He is survived by his wife and two children, Patsy Lane, 2, and Jackie, four months; his mother, two sisters, Mrs. Ethel Gilbrath, Memphis, and Mrs. Belle Berry, Fort Worth, and a brother, Homer White, of Memphis.

These accounts will be bound into one volume and saved. The old timers are requested to write the accounts on regular theme paper so that the volume will be of uniform pages.

These articles should be turned in not later than Saturday, August 3, so that the material may be used in commemorating the pioneers on Old Settlers' Day here August 9.

DAVIS OUTLINES SCHOOL PLANS IN CITY

Tells Rotarians What May and Must Be Done Here

Superintendent W. C. Davis at noon today outlined the school program here before members of the Rotary Club. In an interesting talk, he showed where great improvements can be made in the school system, the value of such a program to the community and that each citizen must carry his share of the burden in order for the program to succeed.

He said there are $55,000 on the delinquent tax roll here. "After you pay your school taxes, you're not through," he said. "You must educate your neighbors to carry their part. If we had every citizen helping us, we could have a real school program in this district, and one of the best school systems in the country, and the students deserve it."

He called attention, first, to the state requirements on physical education, stating that this must be part of the program.

"You can have a commercial department right here at home that would replace commercial college work. The boys and girls are calling for it," he said. "You could have a real speech arts department turning out young people who can stand up and talk. It's a real need. With everybody sharing the responsibility, we can

Beautiful Wedding Ceremony Unites Popular Young Wellington Couple

Wellington, July 19.—A wedding ceremony of interest last week to a number of people in Hollis was that of Miss Anderson, lovely daughter of Wellington, and son of Mrs. Besse, also of Wellington.

The wedding ceremony was read at the Methodist Church Friday, July 12, at 8:30 in the presence of Rev. T. M. Moore, pastor.

The ceremony was performed before an altar which was decorated with greenery and pink flowers interspersed with tall candles and lighted tapers.

The bride was escorted by Miss Dorothy Marshall, who played the "Bridal March" from Lohengrin. "I Love My True Love" was played softly during the ceremony.

The bride was beautifully gowned in a white tulle and mousseline-of-silk gown with a puffed skirt and a long, flowing train. She carried a bouquet of tiny pink roses.

The bride is a graduate of the High School. She has her home in Hollis, Okla., and is five years of age. Her sister, Mrs. Bill Mosley, was a popular member of the club.

She has been manager of the club since her marriage to Mr. Mosley.

The bride's bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Margaret Ford and Miss Dorothy Margaret Ford.

Billene Mosley presided at the bride's book.

Glorifying Yourself

By ALICIA HART
(NEA Service Staff Writer)

The beauty problems of the woman who has to spend a good deal of time on trains are even greater than those of the motorist. If the train traveler values her personal appearance and wants to arrive at her destination looking fairly presentable, she must take along preparations that can be used quickly and while the train is under way.

The liquid cleansers are a boon to any vacationist, of course. When on a train, use one several times a day, not only on face and throat, but arms and elbows. If you're making a long trip, you can take a sponge bath with liquid tonic. Simply soak a large cotton pad in the liquid and rub your body with it. The minute the pad gets soiled on both sides, moisten another one.

Don't forget a cake of your favorite soap. Anyone who has used the liquid type, provided in dressing rooms, knows perfectly well that they aren't exactly good for the complexion. Besides they're difficult to use.

You'll find a complexion brush much more satisfactory than a wash cloth that has to be hung somewhere to dry and never gets quite dry by the time you are ready to repack.

There are beauty kits, completely equipped with cleansing and tissue creams, skin tonic, foundation, powder, rouge and lipstick that can be tucked into the corner of an overnight case. De luxe kits contain everything from toothpaste to manicure accessories, are done up in leather cases with handles and are to be carried as separate pieces of luggage.

See that each beauty item you take has a reliable cork or top that won't come off and ruin everything else in the bag. Bath powder in a regular, old-fashioned talcum powder can be better for travel than a box of powder. Lipstick in a dust-proof case is another bright idea.

THE VOICE OF THE UPPER RED RIVER VALLEY

DYING FOR A HAT

STRANGE things lead men to death quite often, but none of them so apparently un-called for as foolish, unimportant laws that may be made innocently enough but arouse the ire of those upon whom they are inflicted and the results assume important proportions.

Until the human race can pass the point where it takes such things so to heart, we certainly cannot claim to have passed the swaddling age of civil innocence.

We read with glee some of the old laws of Memphis, even, passed half a century ago. They appear so ridiculous now. Yet more strange regulations, with pitiful results, are being passed in the world today.

In Persia, a government decree that the people wear European style hats instead of the native headgear led to rioting. Many persons were reported killed. In the city of Meshed, priests incited a portion of the populace to attack wearers of the new style hats. Riots spread throughout the city and many persons were either killed or injured.

Although this decree may be of great importance today in Persia, the people of that country surely some day will read of the incident and marvel that a government could place such great importance upon a triviality.

We wonder if some of the laws and regulations being passed almost daily in the United States won't some day appear even more foolish than the demand that Persians wear European style hats, because of the fact that we boast of being highly civilized. And some of the matters upon which we are placing such great concern and thought? How will they appear to Americans a few generations later? Probably just as foolish as the Persian order or the law requiring that automobiles be preceded by a distance of 20 feet by a man ringing a bell so as to warn the natives of the car's approach.

SIMPLE REFORM MEANS WIDE CHANGE

FEW reforms in this modern world can stand by themselves. Nearly all of them are interlocked with the social structure as a whole, and if you undertake to set one minor fact right you are apt to find yourself committed to making a sweeping change in the entire set-up.

For example: Dr. David Snedden, professor of education at Teachers' College, Columbia University, discussed the education of small children before a summer school class in New York the other night.

His point was that sending a child to school or kindergarten at too early an age puts the child in an unnatural environment and is apt to do more harm than good. It would be preferable, he said, to keep a child at home until it is 9 to 10 years old.

Then he went on to describe what he conceived as the ideal "school" for a child. There should be a normal household, he said, with a roomy back yard, flanked by similar yards in which the child and his playmates could come together.

All of this, he added, should be under "the sympathetic oversight of mothers who are not gainfully employed but are free to give their entire time to the vocation of home-making, including its most important division of child rearing."

Now all of this sounds very nice indeed, and there will be few to disagree with the good sense of the prescription. But try, just for a moment, to imagine the sweeping changes that would have to be made in our social habits to provide this setting for the average child.

First we must have a comfortable house with a roomy yard. This, at one fell swoop, does away with those massed city blocks of apartment houses, "duplexes" and little cubby-hole dwellings with ten-by-seven back yards. It would mean rebuilding a good half of every city, and raising the economic status of a sizable percentage of our entire population—for some millions of people fail to provide roomy back yards for their children for the simple reason that they can't afford it.

Then there is the demand that the mother be a full-time housewife, with no outside job to take up her time; and this, in turn, would call for another revolution. We have several million women gainfully employed in trade and industry, a great many of them mothers; and most of them work not because they like to but because they have to, to keep the family going.

THE ROADS THAT STRETCH ACROSS 20 CENTURIES

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Superfluous hairs on your skin, especially where they show to your discomfort, can be removed by use of electric current, but when you are having this done, you should see that only a competent operator does the job.

The idea of electric removal of hair from the skin occurred to doctors many years ago, but it is only within the past decade that devices particularly suitable to this work have been developed.

Now electricity is employed for the removal of small moles, warts and superfluous hair, and for coagulating and destroying dilated blood vessels and similar processes.

In the removal of superfluous hair a current of sufficient strength is applied to the hair root to destroy the lining of the cells from which the hair grows. If electrolysis is properly carried out by this method, it is possible to have a smooth and almost invisible scar and the unwanted hair will completely disappear.

This method is far less dangerous than many others now used, especially including removal of superfluous hair by the X-ray. The danger in using X-ray for this purpose is that serious changes in the skin may follow its application, because a dosage of the ultra-short rays sufficient to destroy the hairs must penetrate the skin, which may do considerable harm.

In the hands of people who are experienced, electrolysis does not yield any such serious changes. The method, of course, is painstaking and time-consuming.

An operator of average skill is able to remove from 30 to 50 hairs in an average patient at one time. However, from 10 to 20 per cent of the hairs that are removed may return because the cells have not been completely destroyed.

When the hair is coarse and thick, removal is much easier than when it is fine and downy.

In this procedure the person who is removing the hair puts the needle point into the hair follicle and turns on the current. The hair is pulled out with a forceps immediately after.

After the treatment, it is customary to wash the part with alcohol and to apply a mild antiseptic powder to prevent secondary infection. It is customary in this method to use the treatment in intervals of five to seven days.

Where a few scattered coarse hairs are involved, the difficulty is not great. But where the entire body is covered with superfluous hair or where large areas are involved, it is desirable to limit the hair removal to those areas where its presence seems particularly unsightly.

There may soon be television between New York and Philadelphia, but there's some doubt whether Congress will expose itself by permitting the lines to go on down to Washington.

New York's Harlem is raising a quota of volunteers for Ethiopia's army. The depression has qualified many by rendering them barefoot.

New York will save nearly $3,000,000 a year through various court reforms, although it has already saved a lot by excluding Tammany Hall.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON, July 23.—That unusually noble experiment in which the New Deal undertook to recognize the consumer—and even give him a tiny voice here—is languishing close to the point of death.

Consumers never did get organized—as farmers, workers, and industries have organized. Thus their official representatives in NRA, AAA, and NEC found themselves only a group of brave generalists with no army to support them when the fighting grew hot.

That was a bit embarrassing, because every time the boys and girls devoted to the consumer cause have stuck their necks out, tendency of the rest of the government, reinforced by sneers from the lobbyists, has been to regard them as a general nuisance.

The consumer advocates learned in time that this was a government for producers—farmers, wage earners, manufacturers—although they did get in some pretty good licks.

Now the NRA Consumers' Advisory Board, which used to oppose price-fixing and production control in NRA codes—occasionally with some success—has withered on the vine with the rest of NRA.

Unit Officially on Shelf

The consumer division of the National Emergency Council, whose chief job was to foster some 200 county consumer councils over the country,—most of which never did get going—and which they with facts and advice, is officially dead until further notice, if any.

Most of the several-score councils, some of which operated brilliantly in preventing gouges in milk, coal, and other products in big cities, goes unanswered.

There has been a movement to make the NEC division a strong unit, co-ordinating consumer protection activities, and give its chief a chance to speak up for consumers in major New Deal councils. This lost much of its strength when Mrs. Mary Rumsey died.

The NEC unit collapsed when an executive appropriation ran out. Atty. Gen. Homer Cummings is said to be trying to decide whether it might be continued with NRA or NEC funds, but he doesn't seem to be working very hard at it.

THE NOSEY GUY

What has become of the old-time spitter—the man who could expectorate (American for spit) tobacco juice and hit a crack in the floor ten feet away every time? He was an expert—an artist in fact. He would take a chew of Star Navy, hold his mustache (an almost obsolete word) out of the way with two fingers, give a hissing sound and presto the target would be hit without spraying his shirt front or the surrounding territory. It was more entertaining to watch an expert spitter than a knife-thrower in a side show.
