Between 8,000, 10,000 People Here Yesterday

Streets of Memphis were thronged yesterday with the largest crowds to visit the city during the past year. It has been estimated that between 8,000 and 10,000 people were in the city during the afternoon to attend the November Trades Day feature that has been heralded for the past several weeks.

Merchants report the best single day's business during the past 12 months. Present plans of many of the Memphis merchants are to repeat the Trades Day event in the near future, possibly in the week after Christmas Day.

FIRST REPORTS OF DEATH IN TYPHOON

Four Fishermen Are Drowned; 20,000 Left Homeless

MANILA, No. 15.—Four fishermen were reported drowned off Catbalogan, Samar island, in the first accounts of the loss of life in yesterday's devastating typhoon.

Estimates placed the homeless at 20,000 in the town of Naga, provincial capitol of Luzon island.

Telegraphic communication between Manila and 11 provinces, mostly to the south, was completely disrupted.

The storm was the worst of the many that have struck the Archipelago in the last six weeks.

Manila escaped the full force of the blast, but was swept by winds reaching a maximum of 48 miles per hour. Heavy rains flooded some districts, resulting in the dismissal of schools, the halting of shipping and the stopping of railroad service.

MEDICAL SOCIETY TO MEET FRIDAY

Four County Group To Hold Regular Monthly Session At Memphis Hotel

The Four County Medical society, composed of Hall, Donley, Collingsworth and Childress counties, will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night at the Memphis hotel here.

Following the dinner that opens the session at 7 o'clock tomorrow night, Dr. D. C. Hyder will read a paper on "Indication for the Aschheim Zondek Test of Pregnancy," and Dr. O. R. Goodall will report a case of "Hymenatresia."

Several important business matters will come up for consideration at this meeting, it was announced.

TYLER, Nov. 15.—The body of Marion Estes, younger brother of Carl Estes, Longview publisher, was taken from a wrecked automobile on the Tyler-Dallas highway today.

He apparently had been dead for some time.

ENGLAND SEEKS TREATY POINT WITH JAPAN

Equality in Principle Or Not in Actual Tonnage

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Great Britain let it be known today that if Japan rejects her proposal for navy equality "in principle" she will not grant Japan equality in actual tonnage of their fighting crafts.

This indication, from authoritative source was contained in a statement that England still seeks methods of approaching a compromise on the difficult question of a new naval treaty, but she will not go beyond recognition of equality in principle for Japan.

Britons and Americans here for the preliminary parley said that reports that their countries were considering agreements were false.

DIRECTOR HERE TO STAGE PLAY

Miss Virginia Booth Arrives To Take Charge of Direction of 'Oh, Professor'

Miss Virginia Booth, of the Sewell Production company of Atlanta, Ga., arrived in Memphis this morning to begin work selecting the cast of "Oh, Professor," to be given at the High school auditorium Thursday and Friday of next week.

The play is being sponsored by the Business and Professional women's club and is to have a cast and choruses composed entirely of local talent.

"Oh, Professor" has been enthusiastically received wherever it has been presented. It is packed with laughs and beautiful choruses.

Dorcus Society To Have All-Day Meet

The Dorcus Society is to have a homecoming anniversary meeting tomorrow at the home of Mrs. W. E. Johnsey. All members of the society will gather at the home of Mrs. Johnsey in the morning for an all-day meeting.

A covered dish will be prepared by each member and each will be prepared to spend the day quilting and sewing.

Every member is urged to attend to make the homecoming the biggest meeting of the year.

Four Are Burned To Death as Fire Razes Town Home

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Henry Russell Browne, 74, retired woolen commission merchant, his wife and two servants were burned to death today in a fire that destroyed his five-story town house.

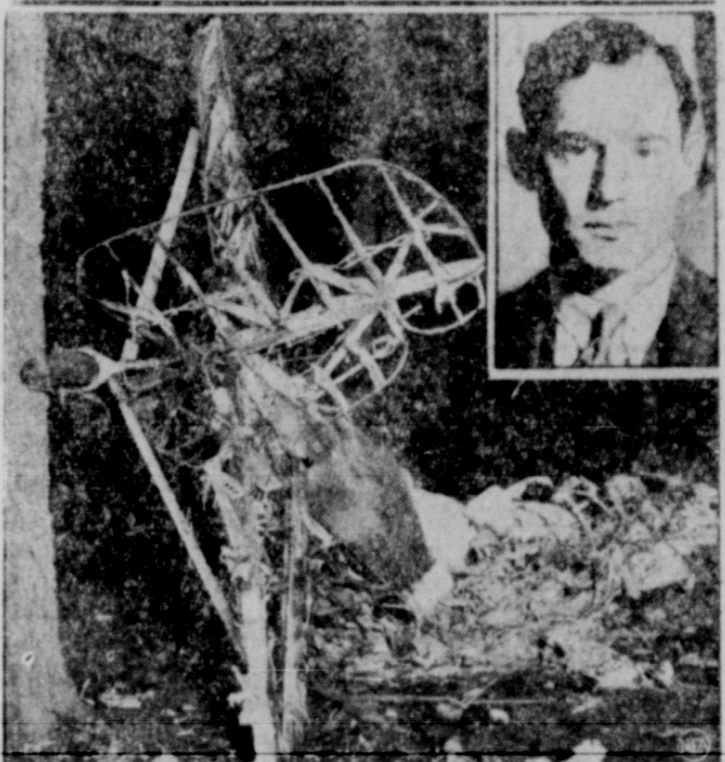

The victims were trapped when a fire roared up the wooden front staircase, spreading out at each floor.

MRS. YATES IS 'HIT' WITH VISITORS

Second Session Tomorrow Afternoon At Ritz Theatre

The Happy Kitchen Cooking School, sponsored by The Democrat and conducted by Beulah Mackay Yates, nationally recognized authority on cooking and kitchen problems, opened this afternoon at the Ritz Theatre with more than 200 women from over the Memphis Area in attendance.

The annual event that marks the outstanding feature of the year for housewives continues tomorrow afternoon with the second session of the school at 2 o'clock. The final demonstration school will be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

All sessions are being held at the Ritz Theatre and all women in the entire area are urged to be present as guests of The Democrat.

Programs To Change

Those who attended this afternoon's session will find that Mrs. Yates will have a different and more interesting group of demonstrations and hints tomorrow. Saturday's program also will vary so that there will be no repetition throughout the school.

With a pleasing personality, ability to make friends readily and business-like manner of going about her tasks so that no time is wasted, Mrs. Yates made an immediate "hit" with the women who were present at this afternoon's session.

Fines Total $20 And Costs, Slot Machine Charges

Fines totaling $20 and court costs were paid Tuesday in county court by C. E. Powell, of Pampa, on four separate charges of lottery. The fines assessed were for $5 and court costs in each case, according to county clerk records.

Powell is alleged to have been the owner of 13 slot machines and dice machines confiscated by members of the sheriff's department in an early morning raid on local business houses where the machines were being operated.

Many Memphians To Dance With Ben Bernie

Many Memphians will trek to Amarillo Saturday night—and they have good cause to do so.

They go to dance to the tunes of Ben Bernie, "the ole maestro," and all the lads and to hear the "wise cracks" of the smooth-tongued Bernie, which has made him one of the air's most popular entertainers with "all youse guys and all youse gals."

Ben Bernie will play for a dance at The Nat from 10:30 p. m. until 2 a. m. Saturday night and Sunday morning. Preceding the dance, he appears in concert at the Amarillo city auditorium.

For the people of the Memphis Area dance tickets are now on sale at The Democrat. Because of the huge crowd, the number admitted to The Nat may be limited, so tickets should be secured early. Admission is $2.50 per person. Concert tickets range upward to $1.50.

CLUES LACKING IN DEATH OF CHILD

Police Doing 'Everything Possible' To Solve Mystery

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 15.—While law enforcement agencies were doing "everything possible" today to solve the mystery of the abduction and murder of Dorothy Ann Ristelhurst, Attorney General J. Carlton Loser said that "at present we have no tangible facts on which we can base satisfactory conclusions about the matter."

The child, who disappeared from her home in September, was not heard of again until a body, found in a shallow grave on a hospital ground was identified yesterday as that of the missing girl.

Widow of Former Governor Is Dead

PALESTINE, Nov. 15.—Mrs. Thomas M. Campbell, widow of the former governor of Texas, died here today after an illness of several weeks.

Mrs. Campbell was born in Bolton, Miss. She was married to the late Governor Campbell in December, 1887.

Nazerine Church To Hold Revival Meet

A revival meeting of the Nazerine church of Memphis will begin Monday evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, it has been announced. Rev. Barber, of Plaska, will conduct the meetings at the local church on Montgomery street.

Buford Hammond, of Memphis, will have charge of the singing services.

The Claw of the Forgotten Murder

by CARLETON KENDRAKE

BEGIN HERE TODAY When CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, is found dead DAN BLEEKER, publisher, employ, SIDNEY GRIFF, famous criminologist, to solve the murder. Morden had been investigating the affairs of Frank B. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent, following the arrest of an impostor claiming to be Cathay and accompanied by a girl called MARY BRIGGS. The day following Morden's death Cathay dies of poisoning. Griff learns Morden had visited the apartment of ALICE LORTON who has reported the disappearance of her roommate, ESTHER ORDWAY. Griff questions Alice and instructs detectives to shadow her.

Griff and Bleeker go to the apartment occupied by KENNETH BOONE, friend of Alice's. Boone denies knowing Morden. Griff moves toward another door of the room and Boone threatens him with a gun.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIX Dan Bleeker's voice was strained harsh. "Drop that gun," he said, "or I'll make a sieve out of you."

Boone hesitated. Boone's gun was covering the criminologist. Griff was cool and smiling.

"You don't want to do that, you know, Boone," Griff said. "The place is surrounded. We took that precaution before we came up. There are two detectives downstairs. You can't possibly kill us both. You may stand some chance of beating the other murder case but you stand no chance of beating this."

The door of the closet burst open. Alice Lorton pushed her way into the room, disregarding Griff and Bleeker, running straight to Boone.

"You're just going to make things worse. Let me sum up the case the way it stands. Morden is murdered. His body is found in an abandoned subdivision. It had been taken there in an automobile and dumped. Obviously, a woman wouldn't have had the strength to carry the body to the automobile and dump it. We know something of Morden's movements on the day he was killed. We have absolute proof that he was in the apartment of Esther Ordway. We locate that apartment and find a young woman there who swears that she is Alice Lorton, a roommate of this mysterious Esther

Every housewife has a laudable desire to be a perfect hostess. * The perfect hostess must know about foods, their selection, preparation and serving. * The Cooking School sponsored by this newspaper is a source of this knowledge * Ladies who attend the school will learn about the perfect cup of coffee, how to make it and how to serve it. * The lecturer uses and recommends Admiration Coffee, of course. That is the fine, winey blend that pleases the palates of more people than any other blend, because it is scientifically blended, of the world's choicest coffee beans, roasted just right and packed in a way to preserve its freshness. * You can now get Admiration Coffee, vacuum packed in glass jars (the most efficient commercial vacuum yet attained in any kind of container). Ask your grocer to stock Admiration packed that way if he does not have it on his shelves. * The lecturer at the Cooking School will tell you about the advantages of using coffee, vacuum packed in glass jars, and the dozens of uses of the jars that are so easy to open and easy to close, after the coffee has been used up. * For those who prefer a mild, mellow cup, Bright & Early Coffee, at a few cents less per pound, makes a delightful cup.

Ordway. "She can't make her story quite convincing enough until after she's planted a few more alibis, so she gets you, Boone, to go down to Summerville and write a letter to Esther Ordway to which you sign the name of Robert Chelton and in which you mention Alice Lorton. She thinks the authorities will get that letter and that it may help establish her secondary identity. The weak point in her whole alibi is the bank account that is kept under the name of Esther Ordway. She tries to clean that account out and get the checks delivered as soon as the account is closed out and balanced. It took a day or two to do that. The fact that a Saturday intervened enabled us to get the checks when they were ready for delivery. "That gives us all we need. We can get the bank to identify Esther Ordway as being this young woman. We can show from her signature that she is. We can identify the letter from Summerville as having been posted by Robert Chelton. The hotel man can identify him. We can show that Kenneth Boone was in direct communication with Esther Ordway, by the check made in his favor and his endorsement on the back of that check. Also, the bank will remember cashing it. "Now suppose you people act sensibly and tell us the truth. Why did you kill Morden, Esther?" "I didn't kill him!" she flared. "I'll take the responsibility for that," Boone said sullenly. "Kenny!" she screamed. "Don't say that! You don't know what you're talking about!" Griff stared steadily at the young woman. "Suppose," he said, "you tell me the truth?" She made a gesture of resignation. There were, however, no tears in her eyes. She stood slim, straight and white-faced. "I didn't kill him," she said, "but Kenny thinks I killed him." "Aw, Esther," he muttered reproachfully. "Don't interrupt, Kenny," she said. "You keep out of this." She turned to face the criminologist with dry-eyed defiance. "You can believe it or not," she said. "I found Morden in my apartment and found him dead. I don't know how he got there. I should have telephoned the police, but I lost my head and telephoned for Kenny instead. He said there was no reason why I should get mixed up in a scandal; that we could leave him there until dark and then dump the body some place." "That," said the criminologist, "is all right so far as it goes. It doesn't go far enough." "What do you mean?" "I mean," he said, "that your reason for not telling the police isn't credible. Even Kenneth Boone, who is infatuated with you, didn't believe it. You can't expect us to believe it and you can't expect the police to believe it." She was silent, white-lipped. "Go on," Griff said, "tell us the truth." She shook her head in mute, white-faced negation. "You can question me all you want to," she said, "but you won't make me change my story. That's the only reason that I did what I did. I didn't want the newspaper notoriety." Griff's eyes were staring steadily and appraisingly at her lips as she talked. "Did you," he asked, "know who Morden was when you saw him?" "No," she said. "Did you have an idea?" "No." "You searched his pockets?" "No." Griff's smile was cold and cynical. "I'm not entirely certain just who you think you're protecting, Miss Ordway," he said, "but I want to assure you that your attempted protection is simply going to make things harder for both of you. Why don't you tell the truth?" "I am telling you the truth." "You haven't," he said, "told me the truth at any time since I've come in contact with you. You lied to me most dramatically and almost convincingly. . . ." "Only about not being Esther Ordway," she said. "About Esther's disappearance, with all of the weird story about her having taken her pictures, the photograph album, and the way she was dressed when she left. About how she happened to pick you up when you were down and out, and all of that stuff." She remained silent. "Lay off of her," Kenneth Boone muttered thickly. "You can't pin a murder rap on her." "Shut up!" Griff snapped. There was an interval of silence. The eyes of all three men were focused upon the girl's face, a face of an invalid's hand. The orange make-up on her cheeks

Business Failures Continue Decrease To Be Represented At Cooking School

Special To The Democrat. AUSTIN, Nov. 15.—There was the usual seasonal increase in commercial failures in October as compared with September, but a sharp drop occurred from the corresponding month last year, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. A total of nineteen failures was recorded for October, against eight for September and 34 in October last year. Liabilities totaled $164,000 in October, compared with $3,193,000 in October last year, a decline of 95 per cent. In September, 1934, total liabilities were $57,000. Average liabilities per failure totaled $8,632, 21 per cent greater than in September but 91 per cent below that of October last year.

During the cooking school, sponsored by this newspaper, the Duncan Coffee company, makers of popular blends of America's favorite beverage, will be represented. Each day some woman will have a chance to carry home a pound of admiration coffee, and find out just how delicious a cup of coffee can be. The lecturer has an interesting story to tell those who attend the cooking school, about the romance of coffee, the many important world events that group themselves about this wonderful beverage and the industry which produces it. Then too, she will explain why admiration coffee is a favorite drink of coffee lovers in Texas. She will demonstrate the right way and the wrong way to make a pot of coffee; something many women do not know.

By Associated Press. SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 15.—With the unofficial tabulations complete except for a few absentee ballots, Senator Bronson Cutting, Republican candidate for reelection, last night had a lead of 1,311 votes over Representative Dennis Chavez, Democrat. The totals were Cutting 75,818; Chavez 74,507. Five counties which have not yet completed a canvass issued 471 absentee ballots, but, in other counties, only a small percentage of those issued has been returned. Chavez has not conceded Cutting's election.

From this plant came the start of the now world famous plantations in Mexico, Central America and Brazil.

The growth of the coffee industry in the Western Hemisphere has been enormous. Nations to the south of us, gather much of the revenue to maintain their governments from that industry. Three Cyclone Regs Out With Injuries Friday

'PATCHED' CLUB TO GO AGAINST QUITAQUE

Final Sectional Tilt May Turn Into Real Battle Here

The Cyclone has stopped cheering itself as the new sectional champion and gone to work to win that title instead of just accepting it as a gift from the other teams in the division.

The club practically won the crown when it defeated the Wellington Skyrockets, 12 to 0, recently in a great display of defensive as well as offensive football.

Tomorrow night they complete the campaign within the section, going against the Quitaque eleven at Fair Park stadium here at 8 o'clock.

Three Regulars Injured

The Cyclone, on paper, is on odds-on favorite, but there is a hitch that the "dope" does not consider and that has the club worried no end. After weeks of rapid improvement, with every player advancing almost in leaps and bounds and the team looking more like a champion every day, the Cyclone suddenly is beset with injuries, as revealed yesterday afternoon by Coach Chesty Walker.

Two outstanding performers will be out of the game entirely tomorrow night and a third is likely to see little or no service. With this condition prevailing, the Cyclone is expecting trouble tomorrow night and anticipates a battle that two weeks ago would have been taken extremely lightly.

Springer, Grimes Out

Ross Springer, lanky wingman who has been one of the main targets of Jack Norman's passing, will be out for the second straight week following an injury in the Wellington affair that left him wearing a mask that resembles that of the "invisible man." He received a broken nose.

Cecil Grimes, regular tackle, earned a place on the reserve bench (as a spectator) last week against Clarendon when his hand got mixed up in a play that didn't turn out so well and emerged with a broken bone.

After almost a year without infections of any kind, the injury "jinx" piled up a little more trouble when Bud McAbee, guard, showed up with an infected leg this week. Coach Walker stated yesterday that McAbee's chances of getting into tomorrow night's affair depends upon the manner in which the injury responds to treatment today and tomorrow.

Club 'Patched Up'

With these difficulties, and a few bruises and bumps that have attacked other members of the squad, Walker returned to work this week with the idea of patching up the club as best he can for this week's tilt.

With a week intervening before the district bout, which will be played on Thanksgiving Day, the Cyclone is expected to be in good condition again provided they get through tomorrow night's clash without further mishap. The week of idleness certainly will be welcomed by the club.

Baking Powder To Be Used Correctly For Best Results

Because of the increased efficiency of K C and some other baking powders in use today, representing about 80% of the baking powder consumed, they should be used properly to produce best results.

Knowing that baking powder leavens cake it is natural to assume that adding an extra half teaspoon to the amount specified in a recipe will give a cake greater lightness. The fact is that too much baking powder may cause shrinking in the center, tough, gummy crust, coarse dry crumb, or cake that runs over the pan.

For best results it is a good plan to follow two simple rules: First, always use the amount recommended on your baking powder can. With K C one level teaspoon-full to a cup of flour is sufficient. This proportion has been worked out as best for that particular type baking powder. Second, measure carefully an excess amount of any baking powder does not produce best results. A level teaspoon means that you must level off with a knife.

K C baking powder, which is used by Beulah Mackay Yates in The Democrat cooking school, is manufactured by baking powder specialists who make nothing but baking powder — under the supervision of expert chemists of national reputation. The quality is always uniform.

Used according to directions it will produce the finest of baked goods. K C is one of the most economical and efficient products entering the kitchen. The manufacturers will mail, postage paid, a copy of the K C cook's book for the name and address with a certificate from a can of K C Baking Powder, Re-

Here's Why I Prefer GAS

"I like gas in my home because it's so convenient. In my kitchen a complete meal or even a quick snack doesn't take long. Gas provides instantaneous heat—there's no waiting for the fire to "get hot". My oven control prevents baking failures even when I'm in a hurry, and I usually am. Gas is clean, too. After the meal there's no "mess" to clean up around my stove. Most assuredly I prefer gas for heating. Heaters in my home may be turned off or on at will. I have heat just when I want it and where I want it. Our bathroom has an automatic gas water heater. When hot water is being used maximum heat is automatically provided. At other times just a small flame keeps our hot water supply at the right temperature. Quite a saving there. And my Electrolux—what a joy it is! A tiny gas flame makes more than enough ice for our household and keeps all perishable foods ultra-fresh as well. No noise, no fuss and bother. All these conveniences cost so little every month. Considering the advantages, our gas bill is surprisingly low.

END OF EMERGENCY RELIEF IN SIGHT

PRESIDENT Roosevelt yesterday appointed a committee to co-ordinate all leading activities of the government, with the view in mind of cutting down on emergency recovery units.

Although no action is likely to be taken before the first of the year, the move heralded the beginning of the end of emergency relief on the part of the federal government.

The dropping of all recovery measures will be slow, some, such as the Bankhead cotton control act, probably lasting another year and the completion of others, including power projects and land reclamation, taking much longer. But the death knell has sounded.

The first move seems to be the closing of the government's books on the Home Owners Loan corporation. It appears that no more funds will be asked for this body, but action will be taken upon existing applications for the three billion dollar funds.

At first federal agencies are expected to be consolidated, with a view to absorbing the emergency units gradually, as the recovery campaign permits. In this manner the different agencies will slowly disappear, with single bodies doing a wider range of work but cutting the amount done in each branch.

This indicates only one thing. The administration evidently feels that the time is approaching when there will be no emergency, and we will be back "on our feet", again moving along at a normal pace. Then, no doubt, we will hear more about balancing the budget than we have ever heard before.

The announcement that was a forerunner of the passing of emergency recovery measures came on the heels of the statement by Roger W. Babson that "we are on the way back to prosperity", adding that the fundamental conditions have slowly improved during the past year, bad situations are constantly being cleared up, private and corporate debts reduced and "the decks being cleared" for a return of good business "as soon as political and labor leaders come to their senses." He also stated that there is available for expansion today more money than ever before in the history of the country; labor troubles are dropping off sharply; the total income of the farmer for 1934 will be in excess of six billion dollars, one billion greater than a year ago, and that employment and payroll totals have risen sharply.

ELECTION SHOWS NEED OF PARTY PLANS

THE New Year will have come, probably, before people get through talking about what the election signified. Just now we have the rather amazing spectacle of an administration winning the support both of those who feel that it is heading in the direction of change and of those who believe it to be the one secure bulwark against change.

That is to say that Mr. Roosevelt, in some manner, has contrived to draw strength from liberals and conservatives alike. The liberals believe that he is going to amplify and continue those changes inherent in the New Deal; the conservatives believe that he will make as few changes as possible, and that anyone who might be put in his place would most certainly go farther to the left.

These exceedingly contradictory developments make it very hard to figure just what the election may have meant.

The administration continues to enjoy public support, in a quite unprecedented way; and yet this solidarity is more apparent than real, since it includes the support of two diametrically opposite schools of thought. Mr. Roosevelt cannot forever continue to be the darling of the liberals and the white hope of the conservatives.

All of which is just another way of saying that the much talked-of realignment of parties cannot be postponed much longer.

Liberalism and conservatism are not words of very exact meaning. Nevertheless, they will have to do for want of better ones; and sooner or later they will have to be the unofficial labels of our two chief political parties, with one party standing for the one attitude and the other for its opposite.

For what the New Deal needs more than anything else is a critical and intelligent re-appraisal that goes to the fundamentals beneath it. It did not get that in this recent campaign. It cannot be until the two parties stand for something more than just two groups of assorted officeholders and office-seekers.

REPLIED THE ELEPHANT

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 The Democrat's Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Long distance political predictions now are likely to be as inaccurate as those made after the election of 1928.

No one denied then that we were in for eight years of Hoover. But along came a stock market crash, the depression, the Roosevelt election, the New Deal—with its little surprises such as abandonment of the gold standard—and now this unprecedented Democratic landslide in an off year, which threatens the existence of the Republican party.

The Forgotten Party
 These unexpected events have come along so rapidly as to make monkeys of the professional prophets. There isn't any sign that the accelerated tempo of national affairs is not continuing, so the best you can do is to point out the direction the wagon was traveling when last glimpsed.

The New Deal landslide was the product of widespread restlessness, a great popular hope reposed in Roosevelt and continued reaction against a Republican party which didn't offer anything but unpleasant memories and nonconstructive criticism.

Few insiders here predict even a partial recovery for the G. O. P., unless it changes character or, in any event, anything but an overwhelming Roosevelt re-election victory in 1936.

We're On the Gallop
 The country mentally and politically, is on the move. There is a mass movement away from conservatism and no one knows when or at what point it will stop. Reaction isn't anywhere on the horizon. One of the election's clearest lessons is that the voting masses won't stand still unless they're hatched and that they don't mind galloping ahead of the New Deal. Unless Roosevelt succeeds in his ambition to make everybody happy, there's likely to be a lot more such galloping.

Probably none of the results is more significant than the amazing fact that Upton Sinclair received more than 700,000 votes for governor in California. A year ago, anyone who had predicted that would have been considered mad. The Sinclair vote was greater than that of any previous Democratic candidate for state office in California and would have been still bigger except for the prodigious, expensive, and quite unparalleled effort of conservatives to defeat him.

The Third Party
 When Wisconsin elected the LeFollette brothers as senator and governor they turned political

HEALTH

 Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Chronic Bright's disease is a condition in which the kidneys lose their ability to excrete fluid and waste matter from the body.

Obviously the main thing that a person can do in such cases, is to aid the kidney by giving it less work to do. At the same time, however, the body should be provided with enough nutritive material to take care of its demands for energy and growth.

It is also possible to eliminate toxic materials from the excretions, so that progress of the inflammation or disorders of the kidney will stop and give the tissues a chance to recover. One kind of toxic material is that developed by germs and their poisons. Therefore, a person with chronic Bright's disease, or inflammation of the kidneys, should try to get rid of infections in the tonsils, the teeth and other portions of the body.

He should make certain that elimination of waste products through the bowel takes place regularly. In addition, he should have a diet which will balance the amount of food needed with the ability of the kidneys to get rid of waste material.

The human body has more kidney tissue, liver tissue and lung tissue than are regularly needed for its functions. Because of this great reserve power, it is not necessary to cut the diet down greatly in the early stages of Bright's disease.

Meat or fish once a day, avoidance of extra salt on food, and limitation of fluids to two quarts a day is about all that is necessary. Later on, if the disease advances, additional restrictions may be desirable.

However, even when the diet is cut down greatly one must always try to get enough protein for rebuilding broken down tissue and enough calories to take care of the body weight. If eventually the kidneys break down so much that signs of uremia appear, the treatment is exceedingly difficult.

Vomiting may cause the loss of chlorides and other materials that are necessary. Under these circumstances a competent doctor will be able to treat the symptoms that develop.

Story of Tobacco Sauce Making Is Interesting Tale

In 1852 a man by the name of Gleason (who had remained in Mexico after the close of the Mexican war) came to New Orleans and while there gave R. McIlhenny the seeds of some peppers, which he said had especially fine flavor and grew in the state of Tabasco, Mexico.

A social gathering of these classes each Friday night adds greatly to the enjoyment and the interest being shown.

Most of the classes in the city are operating on a three-hour schedule, meeting five times each week. About 50 percent of the classes here meet at nights, usually at the home or business houses of the teacher, the supervisor said.

This week, Mr. McMurry is particularly calling the 19 teachers' attention to the fact that he government week closes on Thursdays. Thursday's classes are to be included in the next week's schedule of work reports, he said.
