Proderjay Is Held On Suspicion Of Killing 'Ex-Wife'

VIENNA, June 23.—Bruno Barber, head of the international police organization of Vienna, declared today that sufficient evidence had been discovered to support charges of murder against Ivan Poderjay, of the United States. Barber said that because of this evidence he predicted prosecuting attorney's functions of Vienna will be limited to offering the American police an opportunity to come get Poderjay.

Poderjay is held here on suspicion of murder in connection with the disappearance of Miss Agnes Tufverson, of New York and Detroit. The announcement came after police declared they were dropping the investigation of Poderjay, on account of pressure and "more urgent business."

Defying Fair Officials, Dryden Walks Sky Ride

One of the leading attractions of Hall county's 44th anniversary will be the tight wire stunting of Bernard "Bunny" Dryden of Hollywood.

Dryden will defy death on a wire stretched from the top of the Masonic temple to the court house. He will appear twice during the day, stunting on the high wire and also on another only 12 feet above the ground.

Leading Performer

Dryden is recognized as one of the greatest tight wire daredevils. According to a Chicago newspaper, "he is said to be the grandson of the first man to walk a tight rope across the brink of Niagra Falls, and is said to have walked a tight wire over the Royal gorge, a canyon 4,500 feet deep."

Dryden became famous as a tight wire walker last summer when, defying orders of police, he walked a one and one-half inch cable across the famous sky ride at the world fair.

700 Feet High

According to newspaper reports of that famous stunt, Dryden soared nearly 700 feet above the ground. While thousands of thrilled and excited people looked on, he spent two hours and 38 minutes in the trip, sometimes crawling and sometimes hanging by hands in order to prevent cramps.

Dryden said the wind was blowing so hard that at times he had to lay down and hug the wire, which swayed as much as 15 inches.

Gets Kicked Out

According to one report, "Swaying dizzily in high wind, 'Bunny' Dryden walked an inch-and-a-half cable from the east tower of the World's Fair sky ride to the west yesterday—only to lose a good job as a daredevil."

1,850-Foot Expanse

Awe-stricken crowds, expecting every moment to see him plunge 600 feet to his death, watched as the 22-year-old movie stunt man made his way across the 1,850-foot expanse. But if the crowds were worried, Dryden wasn't.

"Dryden who has been employed as a daredevil at the fair for months, frequently had announced his intention of crossing the sky ride cables. Officials not only had denied him permission to risk his neck; they even ordered the guards to be on the watch for him."

Evades Officers

"Undaunted, Dryden bought a ticket and rode to the top of the east tower yesterday afternoon. Evading attendants, he climbed through a trapdoor and found himself six feet from the end of the cable."

"He leaned from the platform on which he was standing and caught the end of the cable."

"Officials, learning of his exploit, broadcast orders for him to come down. But it was 600 feet down, and Dryden kept going.

First Half Terrible

"The first half was terrible," Dryden said, "because of the steep decline. The cable slopes from a height of 600 feet at each end to 350 feet in the middle."

"The wind was so strong I had to stop walking several times and crawl, with the cable swaying as much as 15 inches."

"But facing the blinding sun, Dryden kept on. Sometimes, to avoid cramps, he entertained the crowd by hanging by his hands."

"Then he started on the last lap of his hazardous journey."

Strain Tells

"The strain was beginning to tell now. Spectators who had rented telescopes to watch Dryden's daring walk noticed that his steps were becoming less sure. But he never faltered. On and on he pressed, until he reached the tower at 4:35 p. m."

"Five hundred enthusiastic admirers greeted him."

"Five thousand more—and the fair police—were awaiting him at the ground level. It was half an hour before police could separate him from the hero-worshippers."

Two Performances

"But when they did, they took his fair pass away and banished him from the grounds. When he returned to his stunt job last night he was not allowed to go to work."

"Such is glory."

This is the stunter who Tuesday will perform on the wires here. His first performance will be given at 10 o'clock in the morning and his last act at 7 o'clock at night. It is expected to be the most thrilling attraction of the day's events.

Hall County Commissioners Court Held First Meeting 44 Years Ago

Forty-four years ago today the first meeting of the Hall County Commissioners' court was held.

The court met in session Tuesday, June 24, 1890, in what was termed the "temporary court house," but what was in reality the shade of a grove of cottonwood trees about four miles from the present site of Memphis.

County Judge J. A. Lafferty, the first Hall county judge, presided over the meeting.

The Commissioners court was composed of Judge Lafferty, Pat Wolfarth, commissioner of Precinct No. 1; J. B. Pope, commissioner of Precinct No. 2; R. M. Harrison, commissioner of Precinct No. 3; J. H. Dowry, commissioner of Precinct No. 4; S. A. Simpson, county clerk, and C. A. Embree, sheriff.

During the business session of the initial meeting of the court, Mr. Simpson was ordered to transcript records of Hall county from Donley county, the county of which most of Hall had previously been a part.

As Hall county had no jail at that time, Sheriff Embree was instructed to lodge all prisoners in the Donley county jail until a prison could be built here.

Due to the fact that there were no roads leading to the other counties from here, the court selected a jury to lay out a number of roads.

The first officials of Hall county as taken from the minutes of the initial Commissioners Court meeting were as follows:

J. A. Lafferty, county judge; C. Coffey, county attorney; S. A. Simpson, district and county clerk; C. A. Embree, sheriff; E. R. Clark, county surveyor; T. J. Caraway, animal and hide inspector; Pat Wolfarth, J. B. Pope, R. M. Harrison and J. H. Drury, commissioners, and C. H. Scott, justice of the peace.

Mrs. O. R. Goodall and children have been in Ralls this week visiting in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Clyde Snow.

Outstanding Example Of Western Pioneer Is Found In Late Judge H. E. Deaver

One of the outstanding examples of the type of men who founded and started the building of Hall county may be found in the late Judge H. E. Deaver, who died here in 1921 after some 30 years in the county.

Judge Deaver was one of the early county attorneys, being elected to the office shortly after he came here in the early 90's. He was the father of the present district attorney, John Deaver, and of Temple Deaver, vice-president and cashier of the First National bank.

Judge Deaver was one of the founders of the Hall County National bank and was president of that institution at the time of his death. He was chairman of the school board for a number of years, and he "took a leading part in every forward movement in the county."

His outstanding characteristic was his punctuality. It is said that he never varied over three minutes when filling an appointment.

"The county has been marked by his having lived here," one person who knew him well said. "His influence has as much effect upon the people as any man who ever lived here."

As an example of Judge Deaver's promptness and character, it was said that he had a path from his home to his bank that was so straight a bullet could be shot down it and that housewives were known to set their clocks by his coming and going.

It is to such men as Judge Deaver that the people of this territory owe the fine spirit and influence that have been their heritage.

HARRY GRAYSON

PITTSBURGH.—Major league hockey is moving back into Pittsburgh, the American city that did more for the Canadian winter pastime than all the vast Dominion.

It was about the turn of the century that the Smoky City introduced artificial ice to the whirlwind sport. Even before that time, Pittsburgh was hockey-conscious; one of the first cities in the United States to have teams worthy of meeting the invading Canadians.

But hockey in those days was at the mercy of the weather. It was fine enough as amateur recreation when a cold spell came along, but its possibilities as a lucrative professional venture could not have been realized without synthetic ice that was first produced in Pittsburgh.

Perhaps governors of the National Hockey League bore that pioneer service in mind in their treatment of Pittsburgh interests. At any rate, they have held the Pirate franchise open since 1930, when the club was moved to Philadelphia, where it survived but one season.

For three seasons it has been dormant and actually no big league puck-chasing has been done in Pittsburgh since Frank Frederickson led Benny Leonard's tail-end Corsairs back in March of 1930.

Mellon Millions Available

To successfully support National League hockey now, Pittsburgh requires just two things—a rink and a team. The building is assured, for work started June 18 on a million-dollar structure to seat 14,000. It will replace the ancient Duquesne Gardens, seating only 400. The money bags of Andrew Mellon and colleagues are reputedly behind the venture. As for the players, the same lucre should

Hockey Was His Life

He died as he lived, fighting in the face of odds, reckless of the consequences. His doctors ordered him to take a complete rest after he had suffered a throat ailment. He wouldn't accept a respite, stayed in the game, and succumbed to a tumor of the brain.

Had Gardiner lived, he might have figured in one of the most important of many player deals that are sure to be made before the 1934-'35 race starts in November.

Two years ago the New York Rangers were seriously considering parting with a sum variously estimated at from $25,000 to $50,000 to acquire his services, when Andy Aitkenhead showed signs of slumping. Since then Aitkenhead definitely has failed and two or three other teams are in the field for goalies.

With new teams, new money, and new interest, fresh talent must be discovered before snow falls. But to thousands who have watched the Chicago Black Hawks win game after game on brilliant goal-tending, there never will be another such performer between the "pipes" as was Charles (Chuck) Gardiner.

BURKS, JOHNSEY IN SINGLES BATTLE

Burks, McElreath To Play Harrison-Baldwin Team

Championship matches in the regular singles and doubles round of the city tennis tournament will be played this afternoon at the Memphis Tennis club.

Alfred Burks, the defending singles champion, heads the list of championship contenders, appearing in both singles and doubles as the No. 1 ranking player.

Meets Irvin Johnsey

He will oppose Irvin Johnsey, seeded second, in the singles title match.

In doubles, Burks and Eugene McElreath, the top-seeded combination, tangle with Rabb Harrison and Russell E. Baldwin, unranked pair who overcame the second-seeded team in the first round, for the championship of this division.

The No. 1 team reached the final match Friday by downing J. D. Griffin and Irvin Johnsey in a stiff contest. Although they defeated almost every game and puts up a strong fight, Griffin and Johnsey were able to win only a few and went down in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3.

Consolations Delayed

The championship play - off starts at 4 o'clock, with the doubles tilt going on first. After Burks is allowed a short rest, the singles match will be played. Each match will be three out of five sets.

Consolation play may also be continued this afternoon, but it has no chance to be completed on schedule. For this reason, the title bouts will be given the right-of-way today and the consolations will be decided later in the week.

Loafers Add To Lead In Junior City Loop

Ending the week's play in the Junior City loop, the Loafers yesterday added to their league lead by soundly trouncing the Musicians, 19 to 1.

This one-sided score was made possible by the ridiculously large number of handball errors. Nearly every musician made at least one miscue.

Also the fielding of the victors was tight, at times even sensational. Captain W. C. Crump, for example, made four catches, all of which were so sensational in nature as to make everyone cheer lustily.

The hitting for the winners was led by W. B. McCreary, Gene Hughs, Chester Grimes, and Ronald Melton, with Crump and Cecil Grimes contributing to the scoring.

"Dutch" Bradshaw made the lone, lonesome tally which constituted the band's threat.

Out of the total of 20 hits piled up, only two extended beyond first base. McCreary connected for four bags, and Kunkler for double.

The contest between the Caddies and Loafers, scheduled for yesterday, will be played tomorrow at 5. Other games in the Junior league include:

Wednesday—Baptists vs. Caddies (first game); Baptists vs. Loafers.

Saturday—Baptists vs. Musicians (first game); Musicians vs. Caddies (second game); Caddies vs. Loafers.

Effect Noted In Latest Plymouth Master Six Sport Sedan

The announcement giving details of the special train for Ford dealers and salesmen to leave Oklahoma City July 1 and return on July 4 has been received enthusiastically by Ford dealers in this section.

VOLUME RAISED OF PLYMOUTH OUTPUT

Increase In Orders, Sales As Result Of Price Cuts

Orders for Plymouth cars climbed steadily ahead of production week as a result of the price reductions recently announced, according to H. G. Moock, General Sales Manager of the Plymouth Motor Corporation.

Retail sales also showed an increase for the week ended June 9th, over the preceding week before the reductions became effective.

"The price reductions are stimulating business," Mr. Moock said.

They came here in the spring of 1889. Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Webster still reside here, but Mr. Bradford passed away several years ago.

The first marriage ceremony ever to be performed in Hall county was the simple wedding ceremony of J. F. Harrison and Mrs. Fannie Stroud.

The wedding of Mr. Harrison and Mrs. Stroud took place on August 5, 1890, 42 days after the establishment of the county. J. A. Lafferty, county judge, performed the ceremony.

W. L. Wheat, who moved to Memphis, the only town he ever lived in, shortly after the county was organized, states that during the time he was sheriff he never arrested a man who was drunk. Mr. Wheat was sheriff here during the '90's. There were several open saloons here at that time.

Ford Dealers In This Section Planning To Ride Special Train To World's Fair

The announcement giving details of the special train for Ford dealers and salesmen to leave Oklahoma City July 1 and return on July 4 has been received enthusiastically by Ford dealers in this section.

A representative of the Foxhall Motor company in Memphis will likely make the trip, it was said.

A number of tentative reservations have been made and officials are confident that the Special will leave loaded to the "rails."

While every dealer and salesman making the trip will derive a great deal of pleasure from it, it has been also planned so as to better equip salesmen to sell Ford products.

For convenience of salesmen who are members of the National Producers club and contemplate making the trip, checks covering sales made during the first 20 days of June will be furnished if requested. These checks will be presented prior to June 30.

The trip sponsored by the Oklahoma City branch of the Ford company is the only exclusive Ford-conducted tour of the 1934 World's Fair and Ford Exposition offered in this section.

stated. "Orders have increased to well above the production mark. The factory is scheduled for production of 1,800 units daily.

"Already we have noted a marked upturn in business activity throughout the country. Sales are mounting and running far ahead of the corresponding period last year."

Plymouth deliveries for the week totaled 6,953 units, a slight gain over the preceding week and an increase of 10.5 per cent over the corresponding week in 1933. The corporation shipped 7,405 new cars an increase of 29.3 per cent over the previous week's shipments.

In keeping cool during the summer months choice of foods will play an important part.

The energy requirements are naturally less with warm weather, so the caloric consumption of the winter months should be reduced. The heat and humidity as well as the tendency toward physical inactivity make it unnecessary and inadvisable to provide a diet rich in heat production foods.

However, it is vastly important to eat nourishing foods which are easily digested and will regulate the functions of the body and guard against the annoying digestive troubles. Always keep in mind that the stomach is as sensitive to the heat as any part of the human organism and overloading or overtaxing it in any way may cause much unnecessary distress.

Have Balanced Diet

Try to maintain a balanced diet, using the minimum amount of fat and carbohydrate possible to keep the correct proportions. Protein always is needed to take care of the wear and tare of the body, but because protein foods tend to increase energy production in the system, it's advisable to cut down on them, too.

When the heat is excessive, there are certain types of foods it is wise to avoid. Rich sauces and gravies, fried foods, rich cakes and desserts, hot breads and all kinds of sweets have a decided heating effect on the body. All fats are heat producers and some are difficult to digest as well.

The foods to eat are fresh fruits and vegetables, meat or its substitute not oftener than once a day.

A broad statement that, but it was made by a man who has owned three Chevrolets. It is true that Chevrolet has a wonderful reputation in this respect, and it's also true that a motor noted for its lack of oil consumption is a GOOD motor. Many Chevrolet owners tell us that they drive two and three thousand miles without changing the oil in their motor and without adding any. While such a practice is certainly not recommended, it does prove Chevrolet's claims of performance and economy. Many people will tell you that ANY motor should burn SOME oil. Our answer to that is simply that astonishingly few Chevrolet motor bearings are ever replaced.

There have been numerous price adjustments in the low-priced field lately, and Ford V-8 has emerged in its original position—the world's greatest motor car value. Ford quality naturally is unbeatable because no other automobile under $2,000 offers the V-8 motor that Ford owners enjoy; but that is only one of the many features that cannot be bought elsewhere at Ford's low prices. Ford did NOT follow other manufacturers when they raised prices, which makes today's reductions even more significant.

NOW THAT ALL THREE COST THE SAME

Merit Alone Should Guide Your Choice

On June 5th, Plymouth substantially reduced prices from $10 to $45. Do you realize what this means? It means that TODAY the prices of "ALL THREE" low-priced cars are virtually the same.

True, in some models, Plymouth lists for a few dollars more. But then, in other models, it costs less.

When a new Plymouth is delivered to your door, the chances are that it will not have cost you any more than the comparable model of any other car.

This is important. It means that price is no longer a factor in choosing your car. It means that you can compare engineering values . . . fairly and squarely. Merit alone should guide your choice.

And when you do this, what do you find? You find that Plymouth has self-equalized Hydraulic Brakes and a Safety-Steel Body . . . the two greatest safeguards that any car can have.

You find that Plymouth has patented Floating Power engine mountings plus Individual Wheel (knee-type) Springing . . . to guarantee your comfort every mile you drive.

Each of Plymouth's competitors offers you just one of these features. Plymouth not only gives you all four, but many other engineering advantages.

Miss Florence Wherry Becomes Bride of Otho Fitzjarrald in Beautiful Ceremony

One of the most beautiful and impressive of the June weddings was that of Miss Florence Wherry, when she became the bride of John Otho Fitzjarrald Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Wherry. The ring ceremony was read by Rev. O. K. Webb, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The interior of the home presented an attractive twilight scene in orchid and gold. The vows were taken under an arch formed of greenery and flowers. Bronze candelabra with orchid and gold tapers and large baskets filled with gladioli in pastel shades were arranged on either side of the colonnade.

The pre-nuptial song, "I Love You Truly," was sung by Mrs. M. G. Tarver, accompanied by Mrs. Margaret Morgan. They wore yellow sheer crepe gowns, with shoulder corsages of orchid gladioli.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus, Rev. O. K. Webb entered, followed by the groom and his best man, Ed Foxhall. They wore buttonieres of white carnations. Miss Reba Fitzjarrald, sister of the groom, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a becoming frock of sheer pale yellow organdy, carrying an arm bouquet of pink rose buds and baby breath.

The bride entered alone. She was beautiful in the traditional bridal white of an imported model of all-over lace. She carried a shower bouquet of orange tinted roses, orange blossoms and fern, tied with white satin ribbon.

The bride is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Wherry, and has been prominent in church, club and social life of Memphis. She received her education in the local schools, graduating with the class of 1927.

DONNA of the BIG TOP
by BEULAH POYNTER

BEGIN HERE TODAY

When Donna is injured by a fall from the trapeze Madeline arranges for her to be taken to GRANDFATHER SIDDAL'S farm to recuperate. To please her partner Donna pretends to be Madeline. She falls in love with BILL SIDDAL, Madeline's cousin, and though she is ashamed of deceiving Bill and Grandfather she is afraid to tell the truth.

Meanwhile Madeline marries CON DAVID, circus animal trainer, and takes part in the animal act.

Amos Siddal has a stroke.

In New Orleans Madeline goes into the cage alone with the Bengal tiger. The tiger springs and she is killed. Renfro discharges Con. He is unable to get work and decides to go to the Siddal farm.

From the nearby town he sends a note to Donna. She agrees to meet him the next afternoon.

Mrs. Planter learns of this and writes an anonymous letter to Bill. Donna tells Bill she is going to a neighbor's and sets out to keep the appointment with Con.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

When Donna was out of sight Bill returned to the house. He was strangely restless and uneasy, sorry that he had let her go. Odd that she should have insisted on going to the Adamses through the snow storm when she had never been neighborly with them before.

Bill went into Grandfather Siddal's room. The old man was eating his noon meal and showed no indication of the hard night he had had.

"Looks like a blizzard," Bill said. "Reckon I'd better fix up some added protection for the stock."

"I heard the wind," Amos Siddal nodded. "Is it snowing?"

"Coming down fast."

"The little fellers will like it. Don't you remember when a snow storm was about the finest thing in the world, Bill?"

"Yes. And that reminds me that while I'm about it I'll grease the runners of the bobsled. I don't suppose Madeline has been in a bobsled since she was a kid."

"I never was in one," Miss Perkins murmured, looking up from the tray she held in her lap from which she was feeling the patient. "You put straw in the bottom of the sled, don't you, and cover up with piles of blankets?"

"That's it. And sometimes the whole kit and caboodle gets dumped on the roadside, but no one is ever hurt. Used to be great fun when I was a boy."

The nurse rose and carried the tray to the kitchen. When she returned she stood for a second, studying the young farmer. "Do you ever forget giving up your medical studies, Mr. Siddal?" she asked, picking up some sewing she had dropped in a chair.

"Not since my marriage."

"You would have made a wonderful doctor. I've noticed you often. You never say anything to irritate the patient and your presence always seems to soothe your grandfather."

Bill patted the old man's hand. "We're mighty close—Grandpop and I," he said. "Have lots of things in common."

He added as he turned to go, "I'll be back in half an hour, Grandpop, and then I'll read you the farm news." With a half-sheepish look toward the nurse he bent and pressed his lips against the withered forehead. "You just better hurry up and get well!" he said softly.

One of the baby lambs was sick and this delayed him. It was dusk when Bill, tired and apprehensive of the weather, trudged back to the house. A yellow gleam of light from the living room window threw a welcome glow on the path. He paused in the woodshed long enough to use a broom to brush snow from his shoes and clothing. Then he entered the house by way of the kitchen. By rights Donna should now be helping Minnie with the evening meal.

But Donna was not in the kitchen. Minnie looked up from a pan of potatoes she was peeling and grinned at him. On the table beside her was a motion picture magazine.

"Where's my wife?" Bill asked.

"Dunno."

Calling "Madeline!" he passed through the pantry and corridor. When there was no reply he ran up the stairs. Their bedroom was empty and both her hat and coat were gone.

His watch informed him that it was after five o'clock. "She's staying a long time," Bill muttered. "Too long."

In Grandfather's room he tried to seem casual when he inquired if Madeline had telephoned, but there was a note of anxiety in his voice that could not be disguised.

"Perhaps she tried to," Miss Perkins suggested, "and the storm prevented her from getting the message through."

"That's right. I'll see whether I can get Adamses on the phone."

After some little difficulty Bill succeeded in getting the operator on the telephone. He discovered, as he spoke, that he was shaking and the uneasiness that had hung over him all the afternoon had developed into a definite fear.

Mrs. Adams' voice came over the wire.

"Is my wife still there?" Bill asked.

"Who is this?"

and leaped out of the sled, but the object he had hoped was Madeline proved only to be a log, half-covered with snow.

At the Adams farm he turned around, bewilderment added to his anxiety. A woman, walking, might have wandered off the path, gotten into the woods and become lost there, but an automobile could not disappear completely.

Either Madeline had gone beyond the Adams place or the car had been wrecked and towed away. In the latter case it did not seem plausible that she would not have been taken to the Adams house or that he would not have been notified. Although few of the neighbors knew his wife personally, everyone knew her by sight.

At the crossroads he stopped again. It would be impossible to drive the horses and sled through the growth of underbrush but if by chance Madeline had had trouble with the engine and started on foot for help she might have missed the way and gone in that direction.

A search with the aid of a pocket flashlight, however, yielded no results. Bill climbed back into the seat of the sled and started for home. There he would telephone to town and ask someone to send out a searching party.

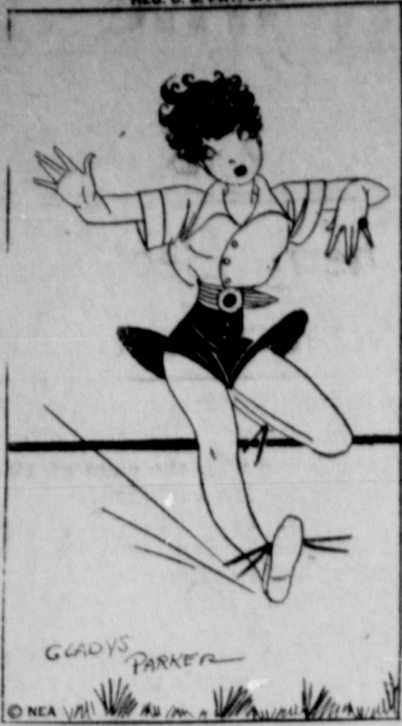

"I wouldn't worry," Miss Perkins said, in an effort to comfort him. "Maybe she decided to go to town and something held her up. She'll be home in a few minutes or she'll telephone—you'll see."

"I hope so." Scarcely knowing what he was doing Bill lifted a pile of mail that lay on the dining room table.

"That came while you were out in the barn," the nurse hastened to explain. "I forgot to say anything about it."

There were catalogs, circulars, a newspaper and a letter. The address on the letter was in unfamiliar handwriting. Bill shoved the circulars to one side and picked up the letter. "Wonder who's writ-

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

It sometimes takes a head start to win a race by a hair.

"Bill Siddal. Is Mrs. Siddal still there?"

"Why, no."

"But she's been at your house today?"

"No. I didn't expect her."

Like a man ravaged by a long illness, Bill moved automatically away from the telephone. Miss Perkins, who had followed him into the hall, gave a little cry at the sight of his stricken face.

"Something has happened," he mumbled thickly. "An accident. She hasn't been there at all."

"Oh, but just a half a mile—"

"Don't let on to the old man. I'm going to get the bobsled and go after her."

It occurred to him that his forethought in oiling the sled and getting it in shape was a grim coincidence. Not once, as he hitched the horses, covering them with blankets and putting blinders over their eyes did he doubt Madeline's word. She had said she was going to the Adamses and she had not arrived there. The only explanation was that there must have been an accident. Perhaps at this moment she was lying in a gully at the side of the road, dead or dying.

A groan tore at Bill's throat. Why had he let her go? He had seen the storm coming. It had already begun when she left. She wasn't a good driver. If she was dead—!

Beads of perspiration formed on his temples and upper lip and froze in the icy air. His hands trembled so that he had difficulty in grasping the reins.

He ought to have Miss Perkins get in touch with Doc Freeman so that he could be on his way out to the farm when Bill reached home with Madeline. No, he wouldn't take time to stop and tell Miss Perkins. Every moment was precious.

He saw the nurse in the open doorway as the sled cut through the driveway, the great lumbering horses lurching and stumbling in the piles of snow. She waved at Bill but he gave no response.

Once out on the open road he drove slowly, his eyes searching, searching for a dark object in the snow. Once he stopped the horses

Formation of County Told in Memoirs of D. H. Arnold

Hall county came into being 44 years ago today - after a rather turbulent attempt to break away from its parent county of Donley.

The story of the formation of the county and the beginning of Memphis is found in memoirs of the late D. H. Arnold, who was one of the founders of the county and a leader in its building for more than a quarter of a century.

Mr. Arnold's story follows: "There was no Memphis here when I arrived in Hall county. The only town in the county was Salisbury, four miles east of Memphis, just where the old road crossed the railroad at the T. R. Franks place. The town consisted of a small board shanty of one room on the side of the hill about 200 yards from the railroad, and a small two room shanty. . . . which was formerly known as the "Simes" place, together with a small depot. This building was used as freight and express office, post office, hotel, chamber of commerce, ect.

"In June, 1889, J. C. Montgomery and J. G. Noel came to Hall county and bought several sections of land in the vicinity of Salisbury and where Memphis now stands, expecting to live at or near Salisbury and engage in the mercantile business. After buying the land. . . . and not being able to procure suitable location at Salisbury at satisfactory prices, they went back to Grayson county. In the following August, J. C. Montgomery returned to Hall county and purchased the northwest quarter of section 10 and laid off the town of Memphis.

"Only a few are left who know from actual experience just how bitter was the strife between the new town of Memphis and the town of Salisbury, as to which would get the county seat. The county was yet unorganized, and the few people here began to line up and take sides with their favorite town. Memphis had no depot, no switch and the railroad company was opposed to the town. . . . Men began to come in and take up the land and expected to raise wheat as a money crop. In the fall of 1889 there was a move made by the Salisbury friends to organize the county, but it was postponed until April 5, 1890, when a mass meeting was held at Shoe-bar headquarters, on Oaks creek. . . .

"From the records of Donley county. . . . A petition applying for the organization of the county was filed on March 10, 1890, and was enacted on that date and granted, and later (written in the same order) the action was retracted. The reason for this retraction is not given in the minutes. . . . This petition is signed by 171 men. On May 12, 1890, a petition signed by 190 signers was filed, and was heard by the court on the same date and granted. This petition asked for the organization of the county and that an election be held at which the county seat would be located and officers elected. The election was called for June 17, 1890.

"On June 23, 1890, the court convened in special session for the purpose of canvassing the returns of the election on June 17 of that month, (It adjourned the following day, after the county was officially named and Memphis was selected as the county seat.

"One hundred and 46 votes were cast for the county seat and Memphis received 84, Lakeview 43, Salisbury 19—Memphis winning by 22 votes.

"The first real school house in Hall county was built at Salisbury late in 1889; in fact, it was not finished until after January 1, 1890. . . ."

Bumper Peach Crop Near Post Expected

By Associated Press POST, June 23.—The James boys, Jasper, Carson and Roy, expect bumper crops of peaches on their farm in the sand hills north of Post. For the first time in several years the fruit promises to be abundant. No frost damage was done and so far no insects have appeared.

Jasper James has over 1,200 peach trees and he expects an average of two to three bushels per tree. Mr. James also has between 400 and 500 apple trees. Carson James has about 500 peach trees and Roy James has several hundred plum trees besides other fruits. All of the farms have small vineyards and grapes this year indicate a good crop.

YELLOW PAGES BRING BACK MEMORIES

Problems That Faced Pioneers Parallel Those Of Today

Worm-eaten, torn and faded, yellow pages of the Hall County Herald, published by W. A. Johnson, bring back today interesting glimpses of the past in Memphis and Hall county.

Interesting indeed are some of the problems that faced the people of 40 years ago, when cotton growing here was in its experimental stage. The parallel of some of them with problems that have arisen during the past few years is also marked.

Printed in 1894

But the only way to draw a picture of this time is to start at the first of the paper and glance through its four pages.

This particular issue is of September 20, 1894. It is number 21, volume 4. The "dog ears" state that the Hall County Herald "is a live, progressive newspaper published in the interest of Memphis, Hall County" and that it should be sent "back to your friends in the old states." They also state that the Herald's job rooms are the best equipped in the Panhandle, that "fine commercial printing is our specialty" and "we compete with the state for fine work and know no superior."

Hot Political Race

Page 1 is taken up by two advertisements and James G. Dudley, chairman Democratic State Executive Committee, one story, written by and given an account of the Democratic convention at Dallas.

"The chief aim of every delegate seemed to be to unify the party upon sound Democratic principles," Dudley pens, "and whilst there was an honest difference of opinion in our own ranks on the question as to how the parity of gold and silver could be maintained, yet all were united and agreed as to the use of both gold and silver as the standard money of the country, and the equal coinage of both metals without discriminating against either, or charge mintage."

After ransacking both populist and republican platforms, Dudley ended by predicting a Democratic landslide, in the following manner:

"With a firm reliance on the principles for which our party contends, and the integrity and patriotism of an intelligent democracy, and trusting in the God of battle, who shapes and controls the destinies of parties and of nations, we bespeak for the democracy of Texas on the 5th of November next a glorious victory."

Prairie Fire

Going farther into the issue, a notice is found that lightning set the prairie on fire on the south side of Wellington. "There was a strong north wind and the fire started off to the south at a fast gait but a heavy rain commenced to fall in about 10 minutes preventing any damage."

Most of the paper is given over to political discussions and to stories that were apparently intended to attract settlers to Hall county.

Other stories appear only in brief form. Here are a few of them of interest:

Cow Thieves

"$200 reward will be paid for evidence that will lead to the arrest and conviction of any parties illegally branding or killing any cattle in the following brands: Shoe bar, right side; Flying T, left side, and 69, left side. (Signed) Bugbee-Coleman, Land and Cattle company."

"In order that we may demonstrate the interest in upbuilding and development of Hall county we have decided to make the following very liberal proposition: To every couple who marry in Hall county and reside in the county the management will send the Herald for six months free of charge."

Montgomery For Sheriff

"We are authorized to announce Scott Montgomery as a candidate for sheriff and tax collector of Hall county at the ensuing November election."

"J. S. Mayfield, the lumber man, spent Tuesday in Memphis looking after his interest. He has great confidence in the future of cotton raising for this section."

"A boat has been made and launched on the mill pond by some of the young men of the town."

"Our cordial friend, G. W. Tipson, is meeting with some degree of success in securing subscribers for that splendid war journal, the

VIEWS CLOSING SESSION OF CONGRESS

Many Bills Passed; Only Estimate Money Spent

BY J. CLAUDE WELLS (Democrat Staff Writer)

The storm is over and senators, congressmen and others are now on their way to their respective homes. Due to the increased amount of printing incident to the last days of Congress bringing out an increased number of bills, the whole government printing office force has been putting in full time for the past three weeks, having only Sunday off for recreation and sight-seeing—and that is the reason no letters have been sent to The Democrat for more than a week. Now, that all have gone back to the five-day week following adjournment of Congress Tuesday night, will try to write more than once a week.

Mrs. Wells and I went to the capitol Saturday night to see the last session—as it was then thought—but due to some of the senators getting cross with each other, the adjournment was delayed. We saw "Hooy" Long in action; and is he an actionist, we ask you, is he? We also heard some great speeches by some of the leading senators, among the number being Pat Harrison of Mississippi, Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Carter Glass of Virginia, who had a verbal tilt with the senator from Michigan. They were surely telling each other things in strong language. At this session Vice-President Garner presided, and when any question was put to a vote he wouldn't give the nays time to say "no," but would say, "the ayes have it."

During the last two or three days of Congress many bills were passed. It would take several mathematicians some time to figure

'Confederate Veteran.' Five Cent Cotton

"W. M. Millam and family arrived home from Parker county Thursday night after a three weeks visit. They report close times below and are all well satisfied that they live in Hall county. They say the farmers there are getting discouraged of raising five cent cotton on thirty dollar land when they can raise just as much in Hall county on five dollar land."

The advertising space was given over greatly to general stores, advertising farm and ranch supplies and dry goods, and to patented medicines. One saloon is advertised. The most unusual of these ads is one proclaiming the latest in summer dress goods, ladies' and gents' low cut shoes and light-weight clothing, on sale at the C. P. Casper iron store.

just how much money was appropriated along with the bills. It makes one shudder to think about "pay day," for the great orgy of spending by the government to bring about good times must some day be paid for by the citizens of these United States. This huge mass of new laws will take time for the public to assimilate and digest, and in the main have given President Roosevelt greater power than any president has ever been given in times of peace.

At its last session congress put the finishing touches on several pieces of legislation of great importance, including the deficiency appropriation bill providing more than two billion dollars for relief and public works; the railroad labor bill, the farm mortgage bill, tobacco production control bill, and others.

It has been estimated that the 73rd Congress, while in session, appropriated from seven to 15 billion dollars, depending upon the estimator. The budget, which was set at the beginning of the session, has been exceeded, although many of the appropriations made were later recommended by the administration, such as the drought relief funds, amounting to nearly half a billion, and the appropriation to the independent offices bill so as to grant more liberal compensation to war veterans and their dependents, and to eliminate some of the wage cuts for government workers. Congress in its session just closed has placed on the statute books measures of vast importance, and followed the recommendations of President Roosevelt almost to the letter.

The Washington Star says in an editorial: "The legislative grist mill during the past six months has been astounding in quantity and quality. The new dealers had their way in many things, although they were blocked effectually in passing legislation amending the agricultural adjustment act to give the secretary of agriculture far-reaching licensing powers over the farmers. Among the most striking measures was that authorizing the President to make reciprocal trade agreements with foreign nations and to lower or raise tariff duties by 50 per cent in order to grease the way for such agreements. No such grant of powers has ever before been given a President . . . The centralization of government in the hands of the President and in Washington has been a gradual process, developing over a long period of years. But never before has such strides been taken in the direction in less than two years as during the present Roosevelt administration. The federal government has stepped into the affairs and lives of every man, woman and child in the country, in a manner so contrary to the old democratic conception of government and freedom as to make the nation gasp. . . . It is the claim of the administration Democrats that these new laws are designed to bring the people back to the fundamentals of American government. This claim, however, is difficult to understand or to swallow. . . . The spending season is now on. The drear and gripping season of payment is still in the future."

Departing from congress and the problems that face the nation. We have the privilege of hearing three of America's greatest bands—U. S. Army, U. S. Navy Marine and U. S. Navy bands, at the capitol, one on Monday night, one Wednesday night and one Friday night, each week during the summer months. The concerts are attended by thousands who literally swarm the capitol steps and grounds.

Herschel Montgomery, Miss Helen Madden, our niece who is now visiting us, Mrs. Wells and the writer drove to Annapolis Sunday—only 30 miles away and viewed the U. S. Naval Academy, the beautiful and majestic Chesapeake Bay, ships and boats of every description plying its waters. We were fortunate in getting permission to see two war vessels that accompanied the Pacific fleet through the Panama Canal to New York recently. One was a destroyer bristling with guns and small cannon, and the other was a submarine. This was a real treat, for we were shown through these vessels from stem to stern, and left us astounded that so much machinery and equipment could be installed in such compact space and still leave room for effective work in times of conflict. From Annapolis we went to Baltimore and "took in" that great American city. Here we saw the great merchant ships and liners coming in from across the Atlantic Ocean, or leaving for foreign ports. Then back 30 miles to Washington in time for supper.
