THE CUFFING

DONNA of the BIG TOP by BEULAH POYNTER

BEGIN HERE TODAY DONNA GABRIEL and MADELINE SIDDAL who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are circus performers. Years earlier Madeline ran away from her grandfather's home.

When Donna is injured in a fall from the trapeze Madeline arranges for her to be taken to GRANDFATHER SIDDAL'S farm. To please her partner Donna pretends to be Madeline. She falls in love with BILL SIDDAL, Madeline's cousin, and though she is ashamed of deceiving Bill and Grandfather she is afraid to tell them the truth.

Meanwhile Madeline marries CON DAVID, animal trainer with the circus. Although she is terrified of the lions and tigers he forces her to take part in the animal act.

Back on the farm Bill confesses his love to Donna.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVII

Donna moved away a step so that she could look into the young man's face. "Bill," she said, "if we don't marry—what will we do?"

"That's what I've been thinking about day and night," he answered gloomily. "Almost from the first I've been thinking about it. When you fell and were hurt I was even glad enough to hope you might be crippled so that I could take care of you always. Then every day you grew stronger and lovelier and it all became more hopeless." He stared across the orchard, seeing none of the beauty of his surroundings.

"Are you a coward?" Donna asked tensely. "What do you mean?" "If I were a man who loved a woman and knew that she loved me I wouldn't worry about public opinion or anything else. I'd take her and hold her and let the rest of the world go hang."

He gave a sudden boyish laugh and swept her into his arms again. "And that's what I'm going to do, dear. Just that! Maybe no one will ever be surprised that we should marry. And if they do—"

"We shan't always be here. When Grandfather dies—" Her voice was lost under his kiss.

"We'll tell him now. Shall we?" he said after a few moments.

She nodded. Hand in hand they walked through the orchard and across the meadow, their feet sinking into deep, lush grass. Now and then Bill paused to kiss her or give her an ecstatic hug. Manlike, he had let her solve his problem and his spirits had risen with the decision.

But before they reached the house Donna's elation vanished. She had triumphed over Bill's scruples. She knew, though he didn't that there was no real obstacle in the way of kinship to their marriage. But she knew also that there was another barrier far more real and sinister. Conscience bade her to tear it down, to share her secret with Bill and leave it to him to decide whether or not she was worthy to become his wife. Some day he would learn the truth. It was too much to expect that their lives could go on without the ugly secret being revealed. Out of the past would come some person, some memory to disclose the truth. And then what?

Mrs. Planter, standing on the back porch, saw the two approach. With a pair of field glasses she noted their hands entwined and her thin lips curled over her yellow teeth in an ugly snarl. She whirled about and went into the house.

"Amos! Amos Siddal!" she called.

"What is it, Mrs. Planter?" "Amos, I'm no meddler and if you was up and could see for yourself I wouldn't say a word about what ain't my business. Nobody can say I ever interfere where I shouldn't, but when I see blood cousins misbehaving themselves in a way that only a couple that means to get married should, then I feel it my bounden duty to speak out!"

"It never occurred to me, Mrs. Planter," said the old man gently, "that even young couples who intend to be married should misbehave themselves. Suppose you tell me just what these blood cousins have been doing?"

"They're holdin' hands in the field—nothing else but! And kissin' 'em too. I seen 'em with my own eyes and—"

"And a spy glass?" he interrupted dryly. "Well, lands sakes, when there's such carryings-on a body has a right to use field glasses and anything else, I should think."

"So," said the old man smiling, "to hold hands is misbehavior. And a kiss—do you know Mrs. Planter, there isn't anything in life quite so sweet as a first kiss between a boy and girl in love for the first time? I believe their souls sort of fly away from this earth when their lips touch. Poets have written a lot about love and musicians have sung some mighty pretty tunes about it, but I don't think there's ever anything been written or sung that half expresses it."

"My land!" gasped the woman. "Do you mean to tell me you can sit there and rave about love and kisses when it's your Granddaughter and her cousin, Bill Siddal, I'm talkin' about? Cousins! Making love. Cousins!"

"What of it? Hand me my pipe, please. Love is love, Mrs. Planter, whether there's a strain of kin or not. Personally I'd wonder what was wrong with Bill if he didn't love Madeline, and if she couldn't see him for the fine up-standing lad he is she wouldn't be all I'm thinking she is. I wouldn't worry about them too much, if I was you."

"I'm not worrying," the housekeeper sniffed. "I might have known she'd play up to him, though. And of course it's to his advantage to marry her. That'll keep everything in the family, so to speak."

"That will do," Amos Siddal said with unusual sharpness.

Mrs. Planter clamped her lips together. Then with a sniff and toss of her head, she left the room. "Tain't natural," she muttered. "It just ain't natural that he shouldn't care if they marry. He's getting childish. Mebbe he thinks if Madeline marries Bill she won't hanker to go back to the circus, or mebbe there's something else. There's something funny about it all—the way she's changed and everything."

But Mrs. Planter's bewilderment over Amos Siddal's attitude did not prevent her from stealing into the hallway to eavesdrop on the scene that took place when the young couple came in to announce their news.

Donna's face was rather tense and colorless, but Bill's cheeks were crimson as, still hand in hand, they entered the living room.

"That you, Maddie and Bill?" Grandfather asked.

"Yes," Bill answered. "We've something we want to tell you."

"Have you?" Not bad news, I hope.

"It isn't to us. It's—it's wonderful, but you—" Bill stammered hopelessly.

The old man chuckled. He held out his hands and boy and girl stepped forward. "I think I know what you're trying to say. Seems like I can see the light in your eyes and feel that sort of choke in your throat. It's been a long time since I felt that a-way myself but I reckon if you were ever in love and bashful and happy and sad at the same time you never forget it."

He put their hands together and patted them lovingly.

"You know!" Bill gasped. "If I hadn't already guessed it Mrs. Planter would have seen to telling me. So you love each other?"

"Yes," Donna said. The single word carried more feeling than long phrases could have done.

"And I suppose you've been worrying and wondering what I'd think about it. Worrying and worrying whether you had a right to get married. Maybe 20 years ago I'd have said, 'Better say good-by and let time heal the hurt, but I don't feel that a-way now."

Real love isn't so common that we've got a right to crush it. And I'm figuring the love you two children have for each other is the real thing."

"It is," Bill said solemnly. "I knew the first minute I looked at Madeline that she was the one for me and that I'd never care for any one else as long as I lived. I've fought tooth and nail against my love, but it wasn't any use."

"I know, Sonny, I know," murmured Grandfather Siddal. "Maybe it's well you did a little fighting. Sort of proved yourself that Maddie was the girl you should marry. I knew you were going through some sort of a battle, but I couldn't say anything till you came to me to talk it over."

I never dreamed you'd take it like this," Bill stammered huskily. "It makes me feel all kinds of a fool. If Madeline hadn't—" with another chuckle. "Since time began, boy, it's been the women who've shown us men the way. I calculate very few men ever did their own proposing, even if they think they did."

Grandfather interrupted

"You old rascal!" Donna laughed happily. "If the truth must come out, Bill hasn't proposed to me yet, but then neither have I proposed to him."

"Want me to go down on my knees and ask you to marry me? I'll do it if you think it's necessary." Seriously Bill went on, "It means a lot to me, Grandpop, that you feel there's no barrier between Madeline and me. I'm not kidding myself that there won't be talk. The thing that bothers me most was whether you'd feel the way some others are sure to, that it's against nature for cousins to marry."

"Some cousins, yes," mused Grandfather Siddal. "Where they've been brought up together,

Notice to Cream Producers

CREAM SHALL BE PURCHASED ON A GRADE BASIS BEGINNING JUNE 1ST, 1934

The State Department of Agriculture, in conformity with a nationwide movement to grade cream, has issued regulations to grade cream and pay for it on a grade basis, effective June 1st, 1934.

Purchasers Of Cream Are Required To Conform To The Following Provisions:

First and Second Grade Cream as defined herein must be segregated when purchased and a difference of not less than two cents a hundred pounds of butterfat to be paid for First Grade over Second Grade Cream.

First Grade Cream—Shall be defined as follows:

Cream that is slightly sour, clean to the taste, free from objectionable flavors and odors, and free from foreign material or matter, shall contain not less than 25 percent butterfat.

Second Grade Cream—Shall be defined as cream that is too sour to grade as First Grade Sour Cream, and shall be free from foreign matter, but may contain slight off flavors or odors.

Third Grade Cream—Shall be cream that will not qualify as First or Second Grade Cream, and shall include all cream containing objectionable musty, onion or other disagreeable flavors or odors, or foreign scrap butter, that would render it unfit for human consumption.

Third Grade Cream Shall Not Be Accepted At Any

All cream producers are urged to lend their full cooperation to the program by exercising proper precautions on the farm, so that their cream will grade as First Grade; this in order that you can secure the best price, as well as lend your support to a movement that means improvement in the quality of Texas butter.

Panhandle Gas Waste Near Daily Consumption

ESTIMATED AT BILLION FEET DAILY

Source Of Supply Is Threatened With Depletion

By Associated Press
AMARILLO, May 31.—An amount of natural gas slightly less than the daily domestic consumption of the entire nation is wasted every day in the Texas Panhandle field—the world's largest known gas reservoir.

A billion cubic feet—enough to supply the fuel needs of 12,500 families a year—is being popped into the air daily, principally by gasoline absorption plants, in what was recently described to a Texas Senate investigating committee as "the greatest economic crime in history."

Monthly Increase

Each month the average daily waste is being increased by more than 100,000,000 cubic feet and its proportions now are such that it presents one of the gravest problems confronting the Texas legislature, and perhaps one of the most perplexing situations in the nation involving the conservation of natural resources.

Large cities of the west and middlewest—Denver, Kansas City, Chicago, Omaha, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, St. Paul—which get their natural gas through big pipelines from the Panhandle are particularly interested since their source of supply is threatened with depletion.

Important Question

Briefly, the question to be decided by the legislature is whether the immense reservoir, estimated by geologists at 16 trillion cubic feet, is to be conserved for use as fuel for a century, or depleted within a decade or so for the immediate benefit of those in the best position to take advantage of the "law of capture."

Most geologists estimate that the reservoir underlying 1,300,000 acres, 115 miles long and 20 miles wide, is one-fourth depleted. The withdrawal now is at the rate of two million cubic feet daily—450,000,000 to the 19 pipelines, 1,600,000,000 to the gasoline plants, the carbon black industry conserving 450,000,000 cubic feet of the residue, with no increase in the withdrawal, the field would last 16 years. The pipeline companies, however, who own more than half the total gas producing acreage, have threatened to begin "stripping" unless the practice is stopped.

Comes From "Stripping"

The law legalizing "stripping" was passed by the legislature a year ago to provide landowners, leaseholders and independent producers a market for their gas after the pipelines had refused consistently to take ratably from all wells, a practice which is common to the oil industry. Most of the wastage is residue from the "stripping" plants for which there is no market.

Neither the gasoline plants nor the pipelines have offered the farmers and ranchers an equitable market. In the very shadow of the big "stripping" plants and on land adjacent to leases owned by the pipelines are farmers who have had gas wells for a decade and have never realized a dollar from their investments. Meanwhile, their land values have been increased for taxation. Their gas is being drained from under them while their own wells, which they formerly looked upon with hopes for wealth, have become an economic burden. Their neighbors who have no gas wells are better off.

Loss of $100,000,000

From 3,000 to 4,000 cubic feet of gas is stripped to produce a gallon of natural gasoline. At present prices for this product, which is blended in manufacturing motor fuel, it is necessary to strip 6,400,000 cubic feet—a year's fuel supply for 80 families—for the landowner to receive a dollar royalty. The recovery, however, is faster than for fuel, which means more immediate money.

The Panhandle Gas Conservation association, which was organized recently to urge the control of waste, estimates that the stripping of gas and its rapid depletion will entail a loss of $100,000,000 to land owners and royalty owners in the ultimate recovery of both oil and gas, and $16,000,000 to the state in gross production tax alone.

May Not Be Needed

New uses for gas and its value for fuel have entered the already complicated picture. The old statutes provided that gas should be utilized for light and fuel. It already is obsolete for lighting purposes. Meanwhile, carbon black has been given an equal rating with fuel.

"Industry and science are moving rapidly, and the civilization of the next generation may have no use for natural gas," commented the railroad commission in this connection.

Europe's highest dam is in Switzerland; it rises 371 feet and was built to develop hydro-electric power.

- It's time to do something when:
- You can't look a meal in the face;
 - Eating always means stomach pain, distress;
 - Gas, belching, bloating give you daily discomfort;
 - You're nervous; you lose sleep; you're dragging around "half alive."

If that describes you, then you already know baking soda and things like that don't do any lasting good. If you're going to get that stomach back on the job—where you can eat what you like and enjoy it, sleep like a log, feel "like a million dollars"—isn't it common sense to get after the cause?

Every day your body must purify itself of certain poisons and purities that otherwise result in sickness and pain. When it cannot do this vital work properly it must have help. Many already have found this help in Crazy Water Crystals. Thousands of them have written us: "I can eat what I like once more. I am sleeping soundly. I feel ten years younger."

Crazy Water Crystals are taken from a great cleansing, purifying mineral water—they were prepared by old Mother Nature herself. They are not some human being's idea of, now this cleansing ought to be done. Nothing is added to them. Anyone who tells you a different story does not tell the truth.

This cleansing means a great deal more than just moving the bowels. This mineral water—made at home with Crazy Water Crystals—cleanses the system—not just the digestive tract. The part played by the kidneys in this purifying work is as great as, or greater than that of the bowels. And drinking this mineral water increases elimination through the kidneys as well as through the digestive tract.

This explains why so many thousands of victims of other troubles besides stomach disorders—many of the aches in muscles and joints which they call "Rheumatism," "Arthritis," or "Neuritis;" terrible backaches; headaches; loss of sleep and extreme nervousness; and some things less serious, like ugly skin, foul breath, etc.—bless the very name "CRAZY." The way to up-root a trouble like this is to get right at its cause.

We do not believe Crazy Water Crystals are magic. They are not a cure-all. But if your life is being made miserable by one of these troubles give them a thorough, honest trial. Get a package today. Stay with them a month at least. It will cost you only a few pennies a day, at the most. And then let your own common sense tell you how much better you feel.

EAGLE PASS, May 31.—People are more law abiding than the government sometimes gives them credit for, Deputy Customs Collector L. C. McDuff at this port has found out.

A month ago he received instructions from San Antonio headquarters to search thoroughly every fifth automobile crossing the international bridge from Piedras Negras. He put these orders into effect without giving notice to the public and inspectors found only eight sample bottles of liquor, a half pint of Cognac, about a quart of liquor in two packages, four mangos (Mexican fruit), six avocados and three pairs of shoes. The searching begun April 16. The government acted on a rumor that large quantities of contraband was being imported into the United States in automobiles.

Presbyterians Take Lead With First Shutout

VICTORY OVER METHODISTS, 1 TO 0

Clubs Collect Only Nine Bingles Off Both Hurlers

In a tight, but gentle game yesterday afternoon, the Presbyterians regained the lead in the Sunday School Softball league by downing the Methodists, 1 to 0.

Carl Melear was the hurler of the first shutout of the season. This was the first game in which he had pitched, but he tossed them like a master, fanning five, which is indeed a feat in softball. He allowed but five hits and one base on balls.

Marvin Bryan, for the Methodists also did a neat job of it, allowing only four hits and fanning one. He issued three free tickets.

'Red' Lampkin scored the only run, and even it was not earned. He got in on a single to right field. Wilfred Jones, new to the game, muffed the ball instead of holding 'Red' at first.

The game was marked by almost errorless fielding. The infields of each squad did the major share of the work, and did it well. Not half a dozen miscues were made, which is almost remarkable in this fast game.

Manager Harry Delaney, who plays second base, seemed optimistic over the showing by his Methodists. 'What we will do to those Christians,' he said, or words to that effect. The Christians visit the Methodists this afternoon. Tomorrow, the Methodists take on the Baptists.

It's more thrilling. Bass, at certain times of the day absolutely refuse underwater lures and it is then that a bass bug made of cork, hair or feathers, dancing around on the water, will raise them from their haunts in cool, deep water.

In early morning and late evening too, this type of lure is especially effective. Usually, during these periods, the water is calm, and, when manipulated with the rod tip, the bugs jiggle around and raise quite a fuss on the surface.

Hair-bodied bugs seem to have the most effect, due, no doubt, to numerous light flashes sent through the water by tips of the hair as they ride on the surface.

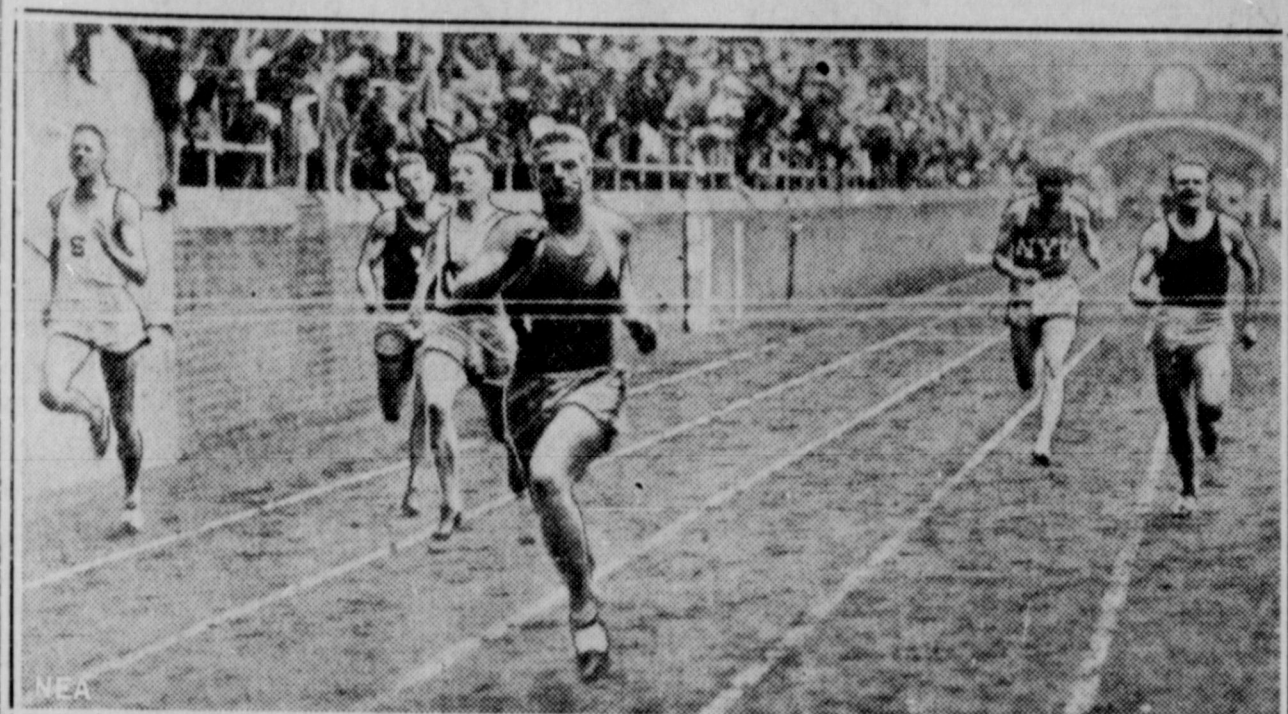

Bass bugs are rather difficult to handle with a long leader and on a light trout rod. They should be used with a six-foot leader—not tapered—and a bass rod with plenty of backbone.

Toss the bug out into still stretches directly over weed beds or near edges where the bank drops off into deep water. Twitch the tip of the rod spasmodically, and the bug will commence its hula-hula.

The strike, when it comes, is smashing and the angler should be ready to set the hook immediately with a flip of the wrist.

COWBOY BOOTS 'WE KNOW HOW' Made to Order Expert Shoe Repairing for Ladies and Gentlemen

HARRY GRAYSON

Jess Willard picks Max Bear to beat Primo Carnera, 'provided he is in condition.' ... After what happened to Willard when Jack Dempsey bolted from his corner at Toledo, the Kansan knows the result of a giant being struck by lightning ... Dempsey still is a tough teacher, even for such a rough young man as Bear ...

Belts were presented to both Barney Ross and Tony Canzoneri when a nationwide vote, conducted by the magazine, 'The Ring,' to determine the best boxer who had done most for boxing in 1933, resulted in a tie ... To keep his parents from learning that he was a fighter, Jimmy McLarnin launched his career under the name of Billy Lane.

Umpire Donnelly refused to permit Julius Solters to take first base in Cleveland the other day, when the Red Sox outfielder claimed he had been hit on the hand by a pitched ball ... Solters had to retire from the game ... It developed that his hand was broken ... Hit batsmen frequently find it difficult to convince bluecoats ... Bill Terry didn't get to first base in a similar case early last term, even though he suffered a broken wrist that kept him out of the Giant lineup for six weeks.

No Secrets Between Warstler and McNair

Harold Warstler attributes much of the good fortune he and Eric McNair are enjoying as a double play combination to their trying to keep the ball in sight all the time ... 'I always see the ball when it is hit to McNair,' explains the Rabbit, who has been the live wire of the Athletics' infield since a charley horse put Dib Williams in the dugout during the city series with the Phils ... 'Some shortstops whip the ball to second baseman so fast that they lose sight of it, and that fraction of a second is enough to give the runner a chance to plunk his spikes in first base ahead of the throw' ... When Connie Mack obtained Warstler from the Red Sox, he intended to ship him to the Portland Coasters ... But now Philadelphians go all the way back to Eddie Collins and Jack Barry in recalling a pair of keystone killers like Warstler and McNair.

Imagine the tribulations of American Association pitchers facing the Millers in that Minneapolis park with the short right field fence ... Not satisfied with having Choe Hauser, who bids fair to break his all baseball record of 69 home runs, Mike Kelley has landed Buzz Arlett from Birmingham ... Arlett is such a sorry flycatcher that he was sent south by Baltimore after leading the International League in runs batted in with 146, in home runs with 39, and finishing third in hitting with .343.

Black Gift's Dam Found In Livery Stable

Trainer Bob Smith comes up with one pleasant surprise after another for Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, owner of the phenomenally successful Brookmeade Stable ... Mrs. Sloane, keenly interested in breeding her own champion, did not know she owned Relance, dam of Black Gift, until two weeks ago, when Mack Garner rode the 2-year-old to a smashing five-furlong victory over a fine field of juveniles at Jamaica in the remarkable time of :59 1-5. 'Where is the dam of that colt?' she inquired, enthusiastically ... 'Right in that barn,' replied the veteran Smith, pointing to the Brookmeade quarters ... Smith traced Relance to a livery stable in Washington, and purchased the mare for $250, following a splendid performance by her son at Harve de Grace.

Last fall when young Leon Carter, now superintendent of Mrs. Sloane's farm at Upperville, Va., could not afford to keep Black Gift and Relance, Smith arranged for the colt to run under the white and royal blue crosses of the Brookmeade string, and Relance was sold as a saddle mare.

The first counterfeit 'greenback' in the United States was one imitating the ten-dollar bill of 1862. It was circulated the same year.

THE WINNER!

Wild Bill Cummings of Indianapolis yesterday moved into first place among race drivers of the nation when he captured the 500-mile Memorial Day classic at Indianapolis Speedway. Cummings set a new record for the event when he covered the distance in 4 hours, 46 minutes, 5.21 seconds, for an average speed of 104.865 miles an hour.

Spring Race Meet Opens June 7 At Panhandle Course

PANHANDLE, May 31.—The eyes of Texas will be on Panhandle June 7 when the spring meet of the Southwest Race Meet and Fair Association begins its four-day session.

Interest is better than ever before and officials expect that record breaking numbers will attend.

Over 200 horses are expected to be entered in the four-day racing events, and some of them are now in the stables here.

New permanent improvements are being completed on a recently purchased 40-acre site, on the west edge of Panhandle. The grandstand will seat over 2,000 people. Large stables, housing 60 horses each, are being built. The new five-eighths mile track will be one of the fastest in the state.

A big free barbecue will feature the first day's program.

Pari mutual betting, in conformity with the state law, will be featured during the meeting.

Six or seven running races will be held daily, beginning at 2 p. m.

It is said that the first clock was invented by Pope Sylvester II in 996 A. D.

HEAR CANDIDATES SPEAK

WE wish to take this opportunity to urge everyone in Memphis and the surrounding territory to hear Joe Bailey and James V. Allred when they speak here on Friday morning and Saturday afternoon, respectively.

Not that we desire to support these candidates, or would advise anyone else to do so—that, of course, is your own business—but undoubtedly they are well acquainted with political situations as they are today. They will point out some good facts, make instructive comment and possibly offer reasonable solutions to some of the problems of government.

Too, they will make numerous promises. But experience probably has taught most of us not to pay too much attention to them; therefore, no one will be injured or disillusioned by campaign talk.

The speeches, if taken with a grain of salt, should be instructive and interesting.

Bailey is in the race for United States Senator—just how far we would not venture to say. He, then, will discuss national politics and affairs.

Allred will discuss state politics and problems, since he seeks to climb up behind the table at which Mr. Ferguson now wields a mighty pen.

One local candidate for public office says, "Listen to all others; consider what they have to say, but vote for me." This may be applied to all candidates. By listening to all of them, we can obtain a fairly good idea of the political situation as it stands today, but we must consider many other things, notably a candidate's qualifications and what he can do for us, before we make a selection.

Especially in the state race should the people of West Texas look to the man who best can care for their interests. This section has been overlooked so completely by the rest of the state in Texas politics that it's time a "new deal" were declared. The best manner in which this can be accomplished is to aid in the election of the man who is most interested in West Texas and who best can serve US!

POINT OF VIEW

THE Italian newspaper Il Popolo d'Italia, which is owned by Mussolini himself, foresees the decline and fall of the United States. Why? Because the birth rate is falling.

This, says the paper, shows a "paralysis of energy" and will result before long in national decadence.

"Within several generations," it adds, "the births and deaths will be equal, and then the crumbling of America's skyscrapers will begin."

Before getting too gloomy about this, it is well to remember that Mussolini is constantly telling the Italians about the beauties of a high birth rate; and when one recalls that Italy is already overpopulated, and that further population pressure can only add to the disastrous tensions of European politics, one suspects that America's falling birth rate will prove less dangerous than Italy's rising one.

THE OLD AND THE NEW

THE blue plains of the mid-Atlantic offered a fascinating and uncommon sight not long ago—the spectacle of a race between an old-time square-rigged sailing vessel and one of the fastest of modern ocean greyhounds.

The four-masted bark Abraham Rydberg was coming up from Australia to England, carrying grain. She was flying before a moderate gale at a prodigious clip—and suddenly she found herself alongside the Mauretania, going the same direction.

And while the Mauretania's passengers lined the rails, the skipper of the bark cracked on all sail and, for a time, actually held abreast of the great liner.

In the end, of course, when the wind moderated, the steamer drew ahead, and the "race" was over. But the event is a deeply interesting illustration of the fact that, when conditions are just right, the wind-jammer can hold her own with the best of them—for a little while, anyway.

Andrew Carnegie, of course, had nothing directly to do with the establishment of the World court. But inasmuch as the world court represented the most successful effort so far to provide a way to settle disputes among nations without war, it is an embodiment of his ideals.—Thme Texas Weekly.

We simply could not possibly get away from economic independence among nations if we wanted to. The whole emphasis of civilization involves the concentration of the world in an ordained economic destiny.—The Texas Weekly.

THE IMPOSTER

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 Democrat Washington Correspondent

Washington, May 31.—"Doc" Calver, who ministers to the bunions and tummyaches of the U. S. Congress and dashes to the floor of either house whenever a member collapses from overeating or overheating, will soon be Capt. George W. Calver, U. S. N.

He is only a commander now. And since a grateful Congress wishes to reward him for long, faithful—and free—medical service, this is a minor to-do about it reminiscent of the stormy rumbles which are always heard from the army or navy whenever a president seeks to raise the rank of a medical officer attached to the White House.

But presidents always have had their way in such cases and you can depend on Congress to take care of Calver. The amiable, bespectacled "Doc" is really an officer of the House though he also handles senatorial ailments.

He was assigned there by the Navy Department in 1928 and two years ago the House took complete control over him with a measure which made him transferable only by House request.

He has an official automobile and three naval enlisted men for assistants. The House has voted unanimously for his promotion to a captaincy—which means a lot more pay—and the bill is in conference.

Other naval officers pout enviously—as they did when President Wilson raised Comm. Cary T. Grayson to a rear admiralcy and Hoover promoted Lieut.-Comm. Joel T. Boone to a commandership, dissolving a naval personnel board which had passed Boone up.

And just as army officers pouted when Harding boosted the celebrated D. Charles E. Sawyer from private life to a brigadier-generalcy overnight and when Coolidge gave Major James F. Coupal a colonelcy.

Roosevelt is the first president in a long time to go without the services of a full-time White House physician.

Garner Turns Hermit
 Speaking of health, there's the sad case of Vice-President Jack Garner, one of Calver's most illustrious patients.

There's nothing much the matter with Jack's health at the age of 65, but he just can't get the exercise he craves and he has about four extra inches of girth which he hopes to get off this summer down at Uvalde, Texas.

The story behind that is that Garner long ago found he could not go places without being pestered to death. He used to walk around the Capitol every day, which is about half a mile.

HEALTH

BY DR MORRIS FISHBEN
 Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

You may call it "barber's itch," when you see an infection of the skin in the region where the beard is distributed. But to your doctor it can be one of many sorts of conditions, such as an infection with the pus germ called staphylococcus, infection with ringworms, or even a mild form of tuberculosis.

The doctor distinguishes between these various forms of infection, because the method of treatment depends to some extent on the nature of the germ that causes the disease. For instance, the remedy that might be particularly suited to the pus germ might be the proper remedy for attacking the tuberculous germ, and an entirely different type of remedy would be used for the ringworm.

The three conditions have this in common—they may be caused by the insanitary conditions while shaving, either alone or in a barber shop.

The pus germ causes a tiny blister which soon becomes filled with matter and bursts. When that occurs, the spot is covered with a crust. The pus-infected material spreads and the infection spreads with it.

Most infections of this type will clear up with mild treatment by ointments of ammoniated mercury. In other serious cases, it may be necessary to use stronger antiseptics, which a doctor will prescribe according to the nature of the infection.

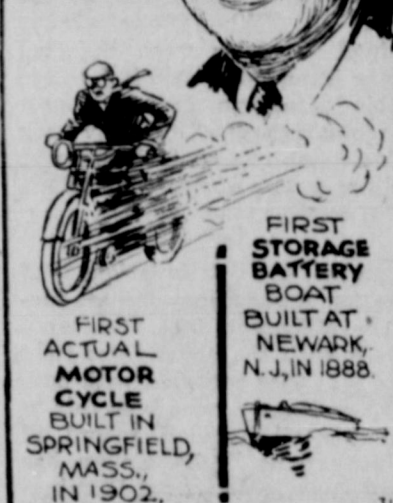

The chief way to get results in this type of infection is to treat each one of the eruptions the moment it is found and to be careful not to spread the infection with fingers, towels, or razor. In fact, it is better to stop shaving while the infection is on. When the infection goes deep, the situation may be much more serious, resulting perhaps in small abscesses.

The ringworm is more likely to involve the neck and is seldom seen on the upper lip. This form occurs in well-defined patches and is not likely to be irregularly spread throughout the beard. When the condition is found to be ringworm, the treatment involves the use of remedies particularly adapted to attack on this organism. In this condition, also, it is necessary to stop shaving and pull out the infected hair roots each day to aid healing.

 OF the 531 electors invited to the Roosevelt inaugural, all were Democrats except 59 from the six "Hoover" states. George Handee built the first machine that was especially designed as a motorcycle. Previously, these machines were bicycles, to which motors were attached. A battery of 56 cells ran the boat "Magnet," a 10-hour charge keeping it going for 60 to 70 miles at 10 miles an hour.

Quite recently specialists in diseases of the skin have found that use of X-ray is particularly valuable for infections of this type. However, the X-ray must be used with great care by one who knows the chance of harm as well as good.

Infections of the face, like infections elsewhere in the body, are best controlled by proper attention to hygiene and general health. The diet should be simple and not such as to cause constipation or extraordinary looseness of the intestines.

Some exercise outdoors, sunlight, and regular hours of sleep also are helpful in building up general resistance of the body.

Don't Let Trivialities "Get You" --- They May Obscure Bigger Worries

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
Thornton Wilder once used an expression that I thought summed up all the philosophies of life.

Two words—"merciful trivialities", that was all.

We have a habit of thinking that such things as a spot on the new dress, the lamb arriving too late to stew for dinner, or a snub by the great Madam Jones, make life just too awful to bear.

Twenty times a day we declare that it's just one thing after another and we are sure we are picked by the jinx for a regular picnic ground.

What actually happens is this. Whether the "trivialities" are pleasant or unpleasant they are brain savers and life savers, because they keep us from brooding over the bigger problems of life.

The spot on the new dress that buses us with soap and water or cleaning fluid for an hour may put that persistent cough of Jean's in the back of our minds. The delinquent meat that keeps our eyes on the clock from two to three and gives us a good chance to blow up the butcher, as often as not should have a rose on its wrapper because if it had been on time we might have walked the floor for another more tragic reason. Would Charley be making that sale his boss said his job depended on? Madam Jones' snub has set our blood to boiling but how "merciful." For one day at least we have dropped the veil over the mortgage interest.

That these tinier flings of fate are annoying we must concede. But they serve their purpose. They relieve by substitution—by changing the course of thought. One small worry is a good temporary antidote for a bigger one, and the mind gets sick running in the same "worry" groove uninterrupted for too long a time.

Therefore I believe many of us women could sit down and think a bit.

Are we allowing these daily upsets to loom too large? Are we making mountains out of molehills and the family unhappy because every little thing gets us?

It is the easiest thing in the world to become a chronic complainer. Dear only knows the average woman's day at home is one long train of either "merciful" or "unmerciful" trivialities, depending on the way she looks at them, but why let the cumulation of small matters sour and embitter her?

The day of the average man, too, contains many annoyances and disappointments, perhaps he has not as many as his wife has to contend with, but perhaps he has more.

At night these two meet and if they have not grown up emotionally and must have someone to blame their troubles on they will almost certainly go for each other.

Eventually it is the end of love because it is the end of peace. The children dread the verbal barrage, and children invariably pay the big price.

What a blessed thing it would be if we learned to laugh at trouble occasionally and could take some of these "trivialities" in fun.

Mrs. O. K. Webb and children, Mrs. Jack Boone and Mrs. C. G. Bumgarner are visitors in Amarillo today.
