WANTED — A DIVORCE

Certain citizens of the Texas Panhandle and of Northwestern Oklahoma who don't think their section is getting a square deal at Austin and Oklahoma City have put forward a plan to organize a new state. Sixty-nine counties now included in Texas and Oklahoma would be joined together as the state of Texlahoma.

The proposal brings to mind a similar one that was agitated some fifty years ago in the same region, but for a different reason. It was shortly after the invention of barbed wire, and landowners in the plains section were fencing their holdings. Many of the large cattle owners of the region violently opposed the practice. They were for the open range because it was a source of free grass and also because fences interfered with the driving of cattle overland to market.

Someone suggested that Congress be petitioned to create a new state, a cattle commonwealth in which the building of fences, except to a very limited extent, would be forbidden. The idea took hold, and for a while enthusiasm for the state of Cimarron ran high. Other than holding a few meetings, nothing came of it. Cattlemen finally became reconciled to the passing of the open range, and the building of railroads made it more profitable to ship cattle to market than to drive them.

An accumulation of grievances against the older settled portions of the two states is responsible for the new proposal. It arises from a feeling of geographical as well as political isolation. For many years residents of the Texas Panhandle have complained that their section does not receive due recognition from the state government, and that the rest of the state neither understands nor cares about their problems. Apparently the same feeling prevails in the outlying section of Oklahoma.

Probably it would be useless to deny that the resentment of West Texans is justified to some extent. Complete homogeneity is impossible in a state as big as Texas, and especially in one that was originally settled by people of such diverse cultural backgrounds. As more Texans make use of the state's vast mileage of improved roads, sectionalism tends to disappear, but there are fundamental divisions of economic interest difficult indeed to eliminate.

Apropos of the Texlahoma proposal, the Dallas News declares that the situation complained of is real and should be met "whenever our much be-patched constitution is revised." The News suggests that it could be met by dividing the state into several natural regions and arranging that each have its own autonomous government in local affairs, with the government at Austin bearing the same relation to the federation as the Washington government does to the several states.

Such an arrangement would require readjustments much less drastic than a subdivision into different states would entail, and undoubtedly it would be more economical to maintain. It has become evident that the maintenance of 254 county governments in Texas is a useless extravagance which detracts from governmental efficiency. The separationist movement started by disgruntled West Texans won't be carried to its proposed conclusion, of course, but it may hasten the redivision of Texas into a sensible number of regional administrative units.—Galveston Daily News.

COMBATING LYNCHING

The Senate filibuster against the Costigan-Wagner anti-lynching bill, which has now shelved the bill, has been in one respect an exception among filibusters. The addresses of the southern Senators opposing this bill have been lengthy, but in the main they have stuck to the subject, have discussed it seriously, and have contributed, along with the speeches of the advocates of the bill, to public information on the problem.

There is no question but that the object sought in the Costigan-Wagner bill is a wholly commendable one. The suppression of what President Roosevelt has called "a vile form of collective murder" and the establishment of orderly processes of criminal justice are aims in which most citizens instinctively co-operate. Yet honest opinions may differ as to the most effective methods.

No greater injustice could be done to many leaders in the South than to assume that because they oppose a federal anti-lynching bill they condone and defend lynching. Tremendous strides have been made by the South in recent years in building up a sentiment against mob lawlessness and toward reducing lynching. This has been done by dealing with the subject as a state and local question.

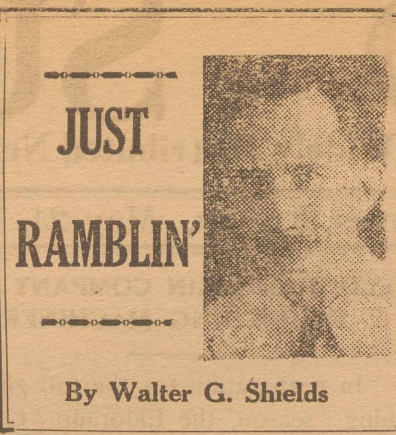

Senator Edward L. Costigan has done well to emphasize that his bill is not aimed at any section of the United States. The facts are that a considerable proportion of lynchings have taken place outside of the South in recent years. It is also a fact that in whatever locality it occurs, such a travesty on justice is a smirch on the national reputation and hence to some extent a national concern.

How properly to couple this national interest with local and state sentiment for law and order without antagonizing and vitiating that local sentiment—on which, in the last analysis, the suppression of lynching depends—is the crux of the problem.

"I realize," said Senator Hugo L. Black of Alabama, "that it may be impossible to appeal to those who think they know more about the problem than those who live with it. People have always been anxious to impress the ideas of those who live a thousand miles away upon the local habits, manners and customs of those whom they do not know."

Eleven states of the union have laws laying financial responsibility upon the city or county in which a lynching occurs, as it is proposed to do federally. Critics of the federal bill hold that more will be accomplished by application and extension of these state laws than by raising the bogey of federal interference.

Unmistakably the bringing up of the Costigan-Wagner bill for debate has had a useful effect in focusing the attention of the nation on this problem. When and if its enactment would present a genuine agreement of public purpose, including a substantial portion of southern sentiment and a realistic determination of northern states to deal with the same manifestations in their own borders, it may well become law.

For the greater part of the past week our ramblin' has been confined to the stretch of sidewalk between the old location of The Success office and its new home. We'd ramble down to the old location, and in a few minutes we'd be seen ramblin' back escorting a linotype, or a press, or a box of envelopes, or a pair of scissors, or some other of the thousand and one items that go to make up the equipment of a newspaper. The moving took time, and there were lots of things to move, so our ramblin' has been confined to very narrow limits this week.

The moving of The Success has attracted more attention than a three ring circus, or a couple of real lively dog-fights. It looked to us like the majority of the population of the county were interested onlookers. And we appreciate the fact that every one of the witnesses of the move was ready and willing to grab a hold and help us rattle the machinery, when need arose. Our friends showed a spirit of co-operation which pleased us mightily, and we hope to make use of that same spirit a good many times in the future, and for more noble and important causes than the moving of printing machinery.

With everybody pulling together the machinery got moved and set and ready to run, and with everybody pulling together in another way, Eldorado and Schleicher county will move forward and take their rightful place in the eyes of the rest of the state, and command the attention and the interest that this part of Texas deserves. But it will take co-operation and pulling together and advertising to do it.

But aside from all that, the shop is moved and we are beginning to feel at home in our new location. We've got lots of room and lots of light, and a far more conveniently arranged place to work than we've had before. We hope you'll come in to see us and look over our new home. Lots of our friends have already been in, and all are welcome. We're right proud of the new location and will be glad to show you around.

Even the machinery seems to appreciate the move, and runs better than it has run heretofore. In fact, we think the move was worth all the trouble and labor it cost. It's been something of a strain getting everything ready to get the paper out on time this week, but it looks like we're going to make it.

And in our new home, the aim of the management of The Success will always be, as it has been in the past, to give the people of Eldorado and Schleicher county the very best newspaper that it is possible to put out. We want you to feel that it is your paper, and the management wants to meet and get acquainted with every subscriber. Come in to see us, at any time. We won't be too busy to give you a cordial welcome to the office, and we'll appreciate the opportunity to meet you and get acquainted.

But it is of the utmost importance meanwhile to preserve that local and state sentiment which is now exerting the most effective pressure against lynching.—Christian Science Monitor.

BETTER HOUSING DAY
PLANNED JUNE 15th

Washington, May 22.—With definite arrangements already made in 26 states to break the ground on model homes projects as a part of the observance of National Better Housing Day on June 15, scores of additional projects in other localities are being reported daily. It is hoped that on June 15 approximately two thousand new dwellings will be started.

National Better Housing Day has for its purpose the focusing of public attention on home ownership and home building.

Construction of these homes will get under way simultaneously, and when completed they will be open for public inspection for a stipulated period. A great majority will be eligible for financing under terms of the mutual mortgage insurance plan established under the authority of the National Better Housing Act.

In connection with the ground breaking ceremonies in many localities, programs are being arranged with the help of the better housing committees which are in operation in over 7,400 communities.

While the model homes started on June 15 will be open for public inspection, the homes will eventually be sold. They will be practicable and livable, and of the high type of construction as to both materials and workmanship, required by the regulations governing the mutual mortgage insurance plan.

No money will be advanced for model home construction by the Federal Housing Administration.

STUDENTS RECEIVE TYPING AND SHORTHAND AWARDS

A number of local typing students have qualified for typing certificates at rather high speeds. These certificates are given by the Eldorado high school, and are signed by the commercial teacher and the superintendent. A student may qualify for a certificate only by writing a 15-minute test with three errors or less, which is a very high standard of accuracy. The first certificate is awarded for 30 words per minute and an additional one may be secured at every five words per minute higher speed, that is, 35, 40, 45, 50 etc.

The highest award won up to the present time is by Cecil Newlin, who on May 2 wrote at the rate of 50.3 words per minute for 15 minutes with only three errors. Clarice Lee is next in line with a rate of 47.6 words per minute with three errors. Others qualifying for the higher certificates are:

Doris Fish, Zona Clare Koy, and Delores Fish.

In the stenography class, or second year typing students: Inez Bruton has won a certificate from the Gregg Publishing Company given on ten-minute tests, writing at the rate of 55.9 words per minute with three errors. John E. Rodgers has qualified for the 50 words per minute certificate from the Gregg Publishing Company with a rate of 52.0, with three errors.

Three students in the shorthand class have successfully passed the 60-word per minute shorthand transcription test. This year is the first time that any shorthand student has been able to pass this test.

The test is sent out by the Gregg Publishing Company, and is five minutes in length. It is dictated to the students at the rate of 60 words per minute, is taken down by the students in shorthand, and is then transcribed on the typewriter. A student, in order to receive a certificate, must turn in a transcription at least 95 per cent perfect.

The three students and their percentages of accuracy were:

Doris Fish, 7 errors, 97.6 per cent; Clarice Lee, 11 errors, 96 per cent; Delores Fish, 13 errors, 95.6 per cent.

These percentages are especially when the fact is considered that the material must be dictated without ever having been seen or practiced by the students.

The club will meet on June 6 with Mrs. Mitchell.

The government's present silver program contains the seed of great good, and at the same time it involves possibilities of great damage.

Wisely pursued, strengthening the value of silver can be of very great aid in stabilizing the world monetary systems. It is likewise beneficial in that it stimulates the depressed mining industry, and vestment, employment and general industrial development.

On the other hand, over-hasty action in forcing silver prices up inevitably brings with it the fear of inflation, which is in itself a great detriment to the course of recovery.

To prevent motor damage when you

...you must have oil of high film strength!

DID YOU know that idling along at 10 miles an hour or picking up suddenly can cause as much motor wear as high-speed driving?

All three put extreme pressure on your connecting rod and crankshaft bearings. If your oil does not have enough oiliness and film strength to withstand these high pressures, your motor parts suffer damaging wear. That's why you need oil with the greatest possible oiliness and film strength.

Straight mineral oils have no more oiliness and film strength than they had 10 years ago. Some, because of over-refining, have less!*

Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil has more oiliness and 2 to 4 times more film strength than straight mineral oils! The Germ Process—adding concentrated oily essence to highly-refined, paraffin-base oil—puts into this oil more film strength and oiliness than any oil possesses naturally, no matter what crude oil it is made from!

That extra film strength and oiliness enable Germ Processed Oil to stay on the job and prevent wear under the most extreme pressure and heat. It helps Germ Processed Oil give long mileage with greater motor protection, as proved by the famous Indianapolis Destruction Test.

Germ Processed Oil protects your motor another way. Because it penetrates and combines with metal surfaces, it forms a "Hidden Quart" that stays up in your motor and cuts down wear during the starting period.

Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil is the oil you need in this day of slow city driving, speed on the highway and sudden acceleration everywhere. It protects your motor and saves you money!

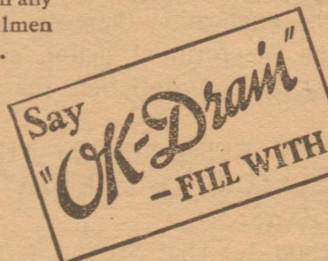

*MOTORISTS WHO KNOW THESE FACTS WILL SAVE MONEY!

Motor oils refined by the usual methods have some oiliness and film strength, but they may form carbon and sludge, which lead to expensive motor repairs.

Other oils may form almost no carbon and sludge, but are so over-refined that they are robbed of oiliness and film strength they need to prevent motor wear.

Germ Processed Oil is refined to eliminate carbon and sludge troubles and then the Germ Process adds extra oiliness and 2 to 4 times more film strength than any straight mineral oil, as tests on Almen and Timken machines have proved.

Lady's Painful Trouble
Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'do-less.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me."... San Angelo Firms Who Boost This Section

C. M. Kenley, Hudson, Terraplane, Packard

C. M. Kenley, with offices and showrooms located in San Angelo at 119 E. Concho, phone 4650, is dealer for the famous Hudson, Terraplane, and Packard motor cars, handles a line of good used cars and offers an expert repair service on any make of car.

Mr. Kenley, the proprietor, and his associates are always on the alert to see that the patrons get the most metropolitan service, and the Hudson, Terraplane and Packard motor cars are handled in the efficient manner that their superiority and enviable reputation merits.

The new Hudson which is now on display in their sales rooms carries with it, of course, all of the positive assurance of sound enduring value suggested by the name, Hudson. It is a car as fine as the great geniuses of the automobile engineering world can produce.

The new Terraplane sells itself every time it makes its dashing appearance on the road, or highway. The contrast between it and the other cars is so marked that the desire to own one is bred then and there. But that desire is nothing compared to the delight induced later on. If its only charm was the charm of appearance, the attraction would soon wear out. But the Terraplane is just as unusually attractive as it looks. One after another it reveals these unusual qualities even before it gets under way.

Just to sit in a Packard and look about reveals first a quality all Americans love—compactness, conservation of space, neatness, artistry and a complete elimination of all unnecessary elements.

Mr. Kenley and his assistants are courteous and accommodating and will be pleased to show you the advantages of owning either of these wonderful cars.

ST. ANGELUS HOTEL

Hotels Thru the Ages

Since the dawn of civilization man has required shelter. Travel in the days of our forefathers was an arduous and painful process, mainly because of the fact that accommodations for the weary traveler were few and far between, and where they did exist were usually very unsatisfactory.

Consider the ancient Roman. When he went traveling, servants were sent on ahead to arrange for quarters in distant cities. This was very inconvenient and expensive. Next came the old inns with their barn-like lofts and unsanitary sleeping conditions. What a far cry to the modern hotel system!

Today one need only step to a phone and make reservations at such fine hotels as the St. Angelus Hotel, located in San Angelo at W. Beauregard and Irving, with phone 4101, which is one of the most metropolitan hotels in this section, containing clean and modern rooms at reasonable rates. In the comprehensive review of progress we deem it quite appropriate to mention as the pride of West Texas people the St. Angelus Hotel, for it strives to infuse its service with the comforts of home, and conveniences which the traveling public must have. It has a reputation of being particular in its appearance and appointments, and the care of the guests and strangers in San Angelo which possesses an advantage in referring to this hotel.

Unobtrusively, quietly and considerately, you are served year in and year out by a family of capable employees and executives, working harmoniously together, with just one objective in mind; the good will and satisfaction of the guest.

We assure our readers that at the St. Angelus Hotel in San Angelo they will receive the good treatment they desire.

Jean, Custom Tailor

Huff and offers splendid service in the general tailoring business and makes a specialty of remodeling suits for ladies and gentlemen. If you have bought a suit and it does not fit you as it should, take it to him and he will be able to remodel it and make it fit as it should.

Jean The Tailor occupies a very distinctive place in the creation of smart wear and conducts a fashion center for men and young men from all over West Texas.

Jean The Tailor knows how to measure you and how to make clothes after having taken your measure. It is one thing to go to a tailor who knows his business, and quite another thing to go to one that turns out work no better, if not worse, than the ready-mades.

Clothes made by Jean The Tailor have an individuality and nifty appearance about them that are not found in any other garments made in this section, and give the wearer an appearance of thrift and prosperity. When you buy here you can do so with the confidence that your suit or overcoat will fit you as it should and that the workmanship and material will be of the highest quality and well worth the price that is charged for it.

Maurice Shoppe Offers Complete Stock

The Maurice Shoppe, located in San Angelo at 204 S. Chadbourne, phone 4922-3, is one of the most complete ladies' ready-to-wear stores in West Texas.

Individuality and distinctiveness of design are noted in specialties and ready-to-wear from this establishment, and this is in a large degree responsible for the extensive trade of the store.

In the Maurice Shoppe is found not only the styles and materials in most popular vogue today, but the most conservative of modiste garments that have met with universal approval. As regards prices, you will find that these garments, which hang in graceful and becoming lines, are offered at most reasonable figures, for which this store enjoys the patronage of the community. It is the most popular ladies' store within many miles among people of every walk of life.

No sooner has any style been accepted by the nation, than it at once makes its appearance in the Maurice Shoppe in San Angelo, and is presented in a variety of materials for the choice of the people of West Texas.

The service at the Maurice Shoppe is individual. The salespeople are students of the types of people, the correct styles of the day, and of excellent judgment, thus being able to aid in the selection of garments that are becoming.

Curry Drug Company

The Curry Drug Co., conveniently located in San Angelo, at 107 S. Chadbourne, with phone 5544, is one of the most up-to-date and progressive in this section and has obtained a reputation for honesty and courteous treatment of its large and ever growing list of patrons, and its personal interest in all persons in need of the store's service. For this reason the store is popular and its popularity is increasing daily.

Good quality, honest prices and courteous treatment have been responsible for the success of this well known firm. Many lines of goods are handled at this store. Included in stock are toilet articles of every description.

The prescription department uses only the purest drugs, and each prescription is compounded by a registered graduate pharmacist.

It is the Curry Drug Co.'s policy to give out-of-town customers the same service as they render the city trade.

The first requisite of any successful business must be courtesy, then quality at the right price must be offered. This has been the Curry Drug Company's policy in conducting its business. They have directed their efforts to the end that their store might be headquarters for anything in the apothecary line.

Husband: "I am glad you read the ads. That's why our grocery bills are so small each month."

Wife: "That makes me think; have you paid our subscription to The Success?"

Husband: "I'll do that tomorrow."

TRENDS FAVORABLE IN STATE BANKING

Recent Figures Indicate Large Increases in Deposits and Invested Funds

Improvement in the condition of state banks in almost every respect during 1934 is shown by statistics recently assembled, Robert M. Hanes, President Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina, points out in an article in "Banking" published by the American Bankers Association. The figures on which this statement is based were gathered by the Committee on State Bank Research of the association from reports furnished by state bank supervisors throughout the country.

"Ever since 1921 the number of state banks has been declining," Mr. Hanes says. "Between 1931 and 1934 the decline was rapid. Figures for December 31, 1934, showed that the downward trend has not yet ended, but the decline last year was the smallest in twelve years."

There are now, he says, about ten thousand state banks, which term includes all state chartered institutions with the exception of mutual savings banks. The article continues:

"Even more significant was the ending of the decline of deposits in state banks which had been going on since the collapse of the stock market boom in 1929. In recent years for which figures are available the drop has been particularly abrupt. Total deposits in state banks declined from $20,395,762,000 on December 31, 1931, to $15,424,823,000 on December 31, 1933. The record for 1934 shows a recovery to $17,508,766,000 at the year-end."

Significance of Increased Deposits

"It is particularly gratifying to note the expansion of deposits, since it was their decline which made necessary the liquidation of investments, the calling of loans, and all the other phenomena which go under the name of 'deflation' and have brought banks so much criticism in recent years. It is now plain that this was due to efforts of the banks to place themselves in the position of enough liquid assets to meet the growing demands of depositors for the return of a part of the money which had been placed on deposit."

"That this is true is borne out by the movement of invested funds of state banks, which has paralleled that of deposits. These invested funds (loans and discounts plus investments) for state banks, dropped from $20,291,320,000, at the end of 1931, to $14,915,773,000 at the end of 1933. By December 31, 1934, however, they had recovered to $15,769,510,000. All of this gain is accounted for by the increase in investments during 1934, the expansion amounting to approximately $1,300,000,000."

"As for loans and discounts, they registered a slight drop again in 1934, but the rate of decline was much smaller than in previous years, which in itself is progress. Whereas the drop in loans and discounts amounted to approximately $3,300,000,000 in 1932, and to approximately $1,300,000,000 in 1933, it was less than $500,000,000 in 1934."

"In another respect the balance sheet figures for December 31, 1934, were especially impressive. Bills payable and rediscounts of the state banks, which at the end of 1932 had reached a depression high of $669,709,000, had dropped by the close of last year to the low figure of $32,101,000. One must search the records as far back as 1917 to find bills payable and rediscounts of state banks at a lower figure. Moreover, it is reasonable to expect a further reduction of such borrowings during the current year."

TO FOIL BANK CROOKS

NEW YORK.—The American Bankers Association Protective Committee has developed a plan of bank inspection to bring out exposure hazards or weak spots in respect to attacks by criminals based on its long-established, nation-wide experience in investigating bank burglaries, holdups and sneak thefts.

The inspection covers eighty leading questions and seventeen recommendations which are instructive in the prevention of such crimes. These relate to such subjects as the use of alarms and other protective equipment, also the condition of windows, doors, skylights and other entrances which have facilitated the early morning entry of bandits who kidnap bank employees from their homes during the night, or break into the bank premises and bind and gag the employees.

BANKERS HELP

"Save the Land and You Save the Man" is the essence of a suggested agricultural program recommended by the Arkansas Bankers Agricultural Committee. "Beware of impoverished soil. It leads to impoverished homes," says a statement sent to the banks to be distributed to their farmer customers. "To help nature save the land, build up the soil, by:

- a. Stopping soil erosion.
 - b. Planting legumes.
 - c. Raising livestock.
 - d. Developing pastures.
- "Look ahead with confidence—know what you are doing, therefore:
1. Draw up a farm inventory.
 2. Keep a record, daily or weekly.
 3. Budget expense, and keep within it."

CHANCE FROM DROUGHT TO FLOOD

Seventy soil conservation experts gathered in Colorado Springs to talk about dust storm problems remained to discuss the flood control.

The incident dramatizes the swift change in conditions a few hours of rainfall have wrought. Within the past few days, copious rains have fallen on the "dust bowl" and elsewhere throughout the Southwest. Dust has been converted into mud. Channels that were dry for months are filled to overflowing.

Emergency hospitals hastily established for the treatment of dust pneumonia victims have been closed. Farmers who were in the depth of despair a week ago wait exuberantly until fields are dry enough for planting.

In some localities the life-giving rains assumed the proportion of cloudbursts, accompanied by wind that took a number of lives. Throughout the entire country deaths by wind and water total 20 as this is written and Red Cross workers are moving into the field in response to calls for emergency relief.

A season or two of normal rainfall will reveal the extent of the permanent damage inflicted by wind erosion during the months of drought. If the damage proves to be less than expected, the federal government will be strongly discouraged from going ahead with the contemplated program to combat wind erosion. But the rain has not eliminated the conditions which contributed to the drought problem; it has only temporarily alleviated them. Prolonged deficiency of rainfall will bring recurring dust storms until permanent measures are taken to control wind erosion.
