

MEDITATIONS
By the Editor

So many things are happening fast—or have happened while we were indisposed—that it keeps us busy asking questions of those with whom we come in contact in an effort to find out what it is all about.

It might be well to dwell for a time on business institutions coming into Eldorado.

For instance: There is the new Cosden gasoline agency to be located at the site of the former Johnny Isaacs station out on the highway toward Sonora and now reported owned by W. P. Gibson of Big Spring. Storage tanks and pumps have been installed and the station redecorated, but no agent or operator named to date.

It is understood that the old barber shop location in the Richey building, formerly the Keel building, is to house a new beauty shop. Operators are to be Misses McAlpine and Yates. This has not been confirmed, but the building is being prepared for housing the new enterprise.

There is Mrs. Jane Jones who is taking over Lee's Cafe near the schools and redecorating same for an opening, Sunday, May 20.

Other new businesses are to be opened in the near future, but official details are lacking as of this date. However, right now it looks as if Eldorado may have a consistent growth in the months to come.

Just what the outcome of the petition for signers for a new telephone system (dial type) amounts to today, we do not know as it was impossible to get an accurate check on the number signed at press time. There is some opposition to the proposal, however, as expressions have been made that some of the lines to some places should be borne by the telephone company and not by the telephone patron, as they feel they are having to pay too much for the service. Just what this opposition amounts to cannot be determined now. All who are interested in securing this service should see the committee cir-

Locker Plant Plans Submitted to W. P. B.

Inquiries have been many in regard to the progress of the proposed frozen foods locker plant for which applications were taken for locker boxes recently.

John B. Stribling, who is to install the plant, was a caller at the Success office late last week and reported that he was on his way to Dallas where he would present the application to the War Production Board at that place, following granting by the government agency of a request to present the application to the Dallas office instead of the San Antonio office.

In a statement to this paper Mr. Stribling expressed the belief that the project would be approved and final arrangements would be made soon after to begin erection of the plant.

Firemen Receive Emergency Burn Kit

Chief Palmer West of the Eldorado Volunteer Fire Department announces this week that the department now has the emergency burn kit for which a public donation was recently taken to purchase. The new kit is complete in every respect and is to be kept ready for public use at all times in case of burns inflicted to local citizens. "This kit belongs to the public," said Chief West, "and it should be used in case of burns."

Firemen have had foresight in realizing the need for such a kit and took necessary steps to secure this emergency equipment which consists of forearm or wrist splint, arm splint, leg splint, hand or foot splint, fire-proof wool blanket, sterilized bleached muslin sheet, pint foille, hot pads in rubber covers, absorbent gauze compresses, triangular bandages, mottaplen applicator viols — castor oil for the eyes, 4 in. by 6 yds. gauze bandages, plain gauze pads, foille spray gun, bandage scissors, camel hair brush for spreading foille, safety pins, amonia inhalants, and 4 oz. jar foille.

A kit of the same kind is also kept at the Shell Pipeline Station.

Another vital piece of emergency equipment is a snake-bite kit which the fire department is now maintaining.

Marine Sgt. Lewis Kerr Writes Of First Carrier Base Attack Against and Over Japan Proper

Marine M/T Sgt. Lewis E. Kerr, writes under a "South" date line to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Kerr, telling of attacks on Japan proper by his branch of service.

The Marine writes: "Maybe now I can set your mind at rest on where I have been up to a certain time and some of the things I've seen and done. On the morning of Feb. 16 we launched the first carrier base aircraft against and over Japan proper. From before day until after dark our planes dropped ton after ton of bombs on Japanese airfields and aircraft factories. They went over, dropped their loads and returned for more and repeated the process. They also shot down what enemy aircraft they encountered and strafed any worthwhile targets they found.

"This kept up throughout two days. The sea was rough and the weather was cold and rainy. I can well imagine the surprise of the Japanese on awakening on the morning of Feb. 16 to find us right on their doorstep. The opposition was surprisingly light. Our ships ran onto a couple of picket boats which were sunk with few survivors. I saw some of them and they didn't look at all like Sons of the Rising Sun. They looked pretty wet and miserable to me. The ships made a nice fire with pillars of smoke rising high into the air. Also saw some of the air crew from planes shot down over the task force. They looked like they were pretty glad to be piced up.

In these two days I think I can safely say that we destroyed at least one-third of Japan's entire air craft production—at least temporarily. This action will go down in history—at least I shall never forget it.

"We withdrew from that area on the night of the — and on the morning of — launched our planes against Iwo Jima. They picked out the big guns, air fields and what targets they could find including a lighthouse. This came on the morning of the 19th and lasted through the 22nd without stopping. You can use your own imagination as to the destruction wrought. We supported the invasion of Iwo Jima by the Marines throughout the capture of the entire island. Here we met with stiffer opposition than we did on Japan proper. Some enemy aircraft shot down by the task force got close enough or guns opened fire.

February 24th found us back on Japan's doorstep again. Guess they were more surprised than ever to see us back so soon. This trip we hit targets that we were unable to reach the other trip. By this time the morale of the Japanese people should have hit a new low. Again the weather was quite stormy and cold. The roughest sea that I've ever seen. We pounded their homeland throughout the 24th and 25th. One of the largest targets was Yokohama and the harbors and shipping there. Many ships were caught and sunk; most of them being merchant ships and small craft—not many ships of war.

"We later launched our first aircraft against Okinawa. They caught a few ships and went about the business of "softening" the gun emplacements. The anti-aircraft was heavy and accurate.

"This is all that I can tell for now. Don't worry."

Painter of The Herds

(From Dallas Morning News)

That sturdy inhabitant of the western plains in the frontier era, the Texas Longhorn, will not be forgotten as long as Frank Reaugh's paintings are preserved. Mr. Reaugh, whose oils have been acclaimed in many countries, was one of the first to appreciate the broad Texas plains and their Longhorn herds as subjects for art. He knew these half-wild cattle intimately, and he succeeded in catching the atmosphere and attractions of their surroundings: the brushy plains, the mountains and mesas and valleys.

Born in Illinois on the eve of the Civil War, he came to Texas when he was 15, and on a ranch in Kaufman County, began herding the cattle he later was to become famous for painting. His interest in making pictures began in boyhood, but he had to dig his first instruction out of books. By the time he was 23, he saved enough money for an art course in St. Louis, and later he studied in France and Holland. But instead of painting portraits for big fees, he came back to Texas to immortalize the shaggy Longhorns.

Annual exhibits of Reaugh's paintings at the State Fair of Texas began in 1890, and three years later his work received high acclaim at the Columbian Exposition in Chicago. Of forty paintings sold from the art exhibit there, two were his. Soon he was exhibiting in the museums and galleries of other cities. But he stuck to Dallas and made his expeditions to the plains from his home.

A Bad Mixture

(From Industrial News Review)

Before condoning the expenditure of billions of tax dollars, duplicating on every sizeable river in the nation the tax-exempt hydroelectric power projects such as dot the Tennessee Valley, American taxpayers should make sure they know what they are getting for their money. The Clarksburg Telegram of Clarksburg, West Virginia, turns to one of history's greatest scientists for an answer:

Since we are indebted to Edison more than any other man for the development of the electric industry, his views of hydro power are particularly interesting . . .

"In an article published January 5, 1929, Mr. Edison said:

"Water power is a political issue, not a business one . . . There is far more danger in public monopoly than there is in private monopoly, for when the government goes into business it can always shift its losses to the taxpayers. If it goes into the power business it can pretend to sell cheap power and then cover up its losses."

"Further along in the same article the 'wizard of Menlo Park' summed up his views on government in business by relating an experience he had during World War I. He said:

"When I was in Washington during the war I needed to have a special article made up for me out of tin. It was not at all a difficult thing to make and there was at hand a Navy shop entirely equipped to make it. I wanted that article in a great hurry. I kept sending messengers over to the bureau and they brought back encouraging reports of progress. In four days the article was delivered. Some time after I was curious to ascertain how long it would take to make the article in my own shops. So I sent for one of my tinsmiths and told him what I wanted. He delivered it in two and a half hours. I think that is just about the ratio of efficiency between government and private operation in some cases."

"The government never really goes into business, for it never makes ends meet. And that is the first requisite of business. It just mixes a little business with a lot of politics and no one ever gets a chance to find out what is actually going on."

Governmental business ventures are not confined to the subject above described, but many other industries are and have felt the pangs of unfair competition for years. The printing industry is no exception.

Reese Says Turkish Mohair Bought To Keep Out Of Nazi Hands; Brought $1.00 Per Pound

By Congressman O. C. Fisher

Right now the big question bothering Texas goatmen is what effect in dollars and cents the sale of the Turkish mohair will have on our own domestic market.

The long expected sale of the 7-million pound stockpile of Turkish hair was completed last week and went to five buyers. It brought 35 cents a pound. This may well mean that the mills will use just that much less of home production. So the effect on our own prices will depend largely on the ability of the market to absorb this additional amount. Fred Earwood and Frank Montague inspected the Turkish clip, and I believe they consider it of such quality as may be competitive with our Texas fiber.

This Turkish mohair was bought nearly two years ago by this government and Britain from Turkey in order to keep Germany from getting it. Ben Reese of the Foreign Economic Administration tells Germany bid so high for the wool that our agents had to pay a dollar a pound to keep the Nazis from getting it.

Texas producers have insisted all along that it is unfair to our own growers to sell this imported hair in a way that will reduce the price at home. The Turkish clip having been bought here purely as a war measure, why shouldn't the entire nation share equally in the damage it's sale will do to the market? As it is, I fear our own domestic growers will absorb most of the blow, whatever it amounts to.

We have repeatedly urged that every effort be made to sell this imported lot to some of the foreign countries, and thereby keep it off the American market where it is not needed. Reese has reported to me that during the past three months his department has tried to sell to France, Spain and Mexico, Russia, and other countries, but to no avail.

The FEA official explains that the preceding year Britain handled all the Turkish fleece and by agreement the U. S. had agreed to dispose of the batch brought here last year.

MOHAIR FUTURE

This brings up the question of how imports, tariffs, synthetics, and the like, may affect the American producer in the near future.

Will the use of Turkish mohair cause private importers to seek more of the cheaper fiber in the future, now that the mills will have a good sample of how it can be used and marketed?

Moreover, what about the proposed authorization for a 50 percent reduction in tariff on mohair wool, etc. now pending in Congress? The authorization itself might not mean a reduction, but it would be a threat.

Normally, American Angora growers, of whom 85 percent are in Texas, produce about all the mohair our domestic market will use. That fact, coupled with the fact that our quality is the highest, has resulted in but little occasion for competitive imports.

In 1937, 894 thousand pounds were imported, 90 percent coming from South Africa. The following year only 106 thousand pounds came in. In 1940 the figure was 252 thousand pounds, with 166,000 of that coming from the Cape Town country. Of the 900 thousand lbs. in 1942, practically all came from the same place. The following year that figure was stepped up to one and a third million pounds. There is a sprinkling that comes in from Mexico and Argentina each year.

HOME PRODUCTION ADEQUATE

From these figures it is apparent that our own growers who produce better than 20 million pound a year just about fill the needs of our domestic markets.

After having spent a lot of time and money improving the quality and building up a stable market, the growers are entitled to continued reasonable protection by the government against outside competition which would tend to drive prices down and upset the high standard that has been achieved.

Sound international trade should be confined, for most part, to exchange of goods that are non-competitive. If every country could sell every thing it produces abroad and buy everything it uses abroad, where would the gain be? Obviously, there would be a net loss in shipping and handling costs as applied to goods available on the spot. In the final analysis, American prosperity depends on our great domestic market.

The future of the Texas mohair grower is bright. It must be kept that way.

"I believe in facing facts!"

Son Of Eldorado Couple Military Governor Of Leipzig

Col. Jim Dan Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Hill of this city is now military governor of Leipzig.

Col. Hill left Superior, Wisconsin, with the National Guard in October 1940. After training in Louisiana he attended a field artillery school at Ft. Sill, Okla., and became commander of a field artillery regiment in England.

For "exceptional services of war" rendered during the liberation of France, Col. Hill was named to the Order of the Legion of Honor, grade of Chevalier, by the provisional government of the French republic. The award carries with it the receipt of the Croix de Guerre with Palm.

The colonel also holds the Air Medal for participation in 35 aerial flights over France from shortly after D-Day until Sept. 3 adjusting fire on enemy installations and performing reconnaissance work.

An official release telling about Hill's assignment relates: "the war ended for Leipzig—and the million or more German civilians crammed in it seemed glad.

"Tens of thousands of civilians turned out as if for a parade to watch the American First Army's triumphal entry. Many waved and shouted greetings to the doughboys

Rent Control Moves In On Christoval

Christoval residents last week found that the town had been placed under rent control, following Army personnel seeking living quarters in the vicinity.

V. H. Wright, OPA rent representative, stated last week that persons opening their premises for renting must register with the San Angelo Rent Control Office.

This is an OPA regulation and must be observed, Wright said. Registration forms may be obtained at 301 San Angelo National Bank Building.

Wright also said any landlord who purchases any property from another for the purpose of renting must register with the San Angelo office with 10 days of the purchase of the property or the acquiring of the rights to the property. All correspondence concerning that property or adjustments in the rent of the property will then be mailed to the address on the registration blank.

Will you hold a
for your country?

HERE IN AMERICA, when a neighbor needs help, it has always been the custom for all the folks to pitch in and give him a hand. Many a harvest would have been lost without the help of a husking bee.

YOUR COUNTRY NEEDS a fat-salvage bee right now! Millions of tons of fat have been used up to supply the thousands of battlefield and home-front needs in this war. And there's still a lot of war ahead!

A PLEA TO EVERY WOMAN! Our country is calling on you, the women in small cities and towns and on the farms, to save every drop of used fat. Your used fats are desperately needed to meet our country's requirements.

So scrape all pans and roasters. Skim soups and gravies. Keep your used fats in a tin can—any kind will do. Save meat trimmings and plate scrapings in a bowl; melt them down and add the liquid fat to your can.

When the salvage can is full, take it to your butcher. He'll give you 2 red points and up to four cents for every pound. If you have any difficulty turning in your used fats, call your Home Demonstration or County Agent.

Needed this year: 100,000,000 more pounds of used fats

Approved by WFA and OPA. Paid for by Industry

Texans In Washington

General Ira Eaker, a distinguished Texan who has a leading part in cracking from the top Hitler's so-called impregnable fortress of Europe, was recently returned to Washington. General Arnold, the Commander of the air forces, has been ill, and General Eaker was brought here to become Arnold's deputy.

Eaker, a son of Y. Y. Eaker of Eden, was a guest of the Texas delegation at a meal at the Capitol the other day. A three-star General, the Texan is a fluent and interesting speaker. He has just returned from an inspection tour of all the Pacific bases.

If General Arnold retires, as is rumored, General Eaker may take over as the Commanding General of all our air forces.

Lt. Robt. J. Finlay of Fife has been in a Naval hospital in Philadelphia recovering from injuries suffered in action. He was on the S. S. Samuel Parker, which received a special Gallant Ship citation recently from Admiral Land.

The Texan's Share In The War

In addition, Finlay served on the Benjamin Wisener, which survived a heavy enemy attack. Finlay has been cited for his service.

Lt. Hugh H. Welch of San Angelo, is now attached to the public relations branch of the Navy in Washington. Welch has just returned from two years at sea during which he took part in a half dozen of the big Pacific naval battles.

Among other service men who have visited us in recent days have been: Maj. Elgean Shield of Santa Anna, who has made a distinguished record in the India-China area; Pvt. Keith Whitt, who once served as assistant chief of police at San Angelo; T. P. ROBINSON, JR., of Eldorado and Ensign Frank H. Hood of San Angelo.

Job Office For Vets

The War Manpower Commission is establishing a network of employment offices for the convenience of returning veterans. I have been informed that five such offices are to be opened in the 21 Congressional district, in addition to existing employment offices. These will be located at Fredericksburg, Del Rio, Kerrville and Coleman.

Meat Raiders

We hear more and more in Washington about the wartime increase in wolf and coyote depredations in the ranch country.

For years the Division of Predatory Animal Control of the Interior Department has been aiding states and counties in the fight against the coyote. The total federal contribution for this has run around three quarters of a million dollars a year. It is matched by state and local funds.

This spring, with half the trappers off to war, coyotes have made the most of their chance.

Despite the handicaps, 108,000 coyotes were killed in the West during 1944. But they are breeding far faster than they are killed. That means another post-war problem for many—killing off the war-crop of these lamb killers.

Mrs. H. E. Dannheim 4-H Club Sponsor

Mrs. E. H. Dannheim was appointed Senior 4-H Club sponsor when the Schleicher County Home Demonstration Council met in regular session Saturday, May 12, in the office of the Home Demonstration Agent.

Four Clubs were represented and roll call was answered by 9 members with the presidents reporting on their club's activities since last council meeting. Others present included Mrs. Pittman and two visitors, Mrs. Archie Mittel and Mrs. Claude Bradshaw.

A library report was given by Mrs. J. E. Spencer, a card of thanks read from Miss Virginia Ryan, and a marketing report given by Mrs. Bill Davis, chairman of that committee, who gave the prices of good quality pineapple.

The second Saturdays of each month was chosen for the time for cookies to be sent to the Red Cross and it was voted for all reporters, including 4-H Club reporters to meet 30 minutes before council meetings for the next four times, for a problem discussion.

A recreation period was led by Mrs. Spencer. Refreshments of cake and punch were served to the group by the Bailey Ranch Club.

Texans of the famed 36th Division set new records in Naziland recently when they spearheaded the final allied drive against the fanatical Germans caught in last-stand pockets. They added many hundreds more to the list of prisoners taken by the division, and topped their many battle accomplishments by capturing German General von Rundstedt, the former Commander of Hitler's western front forces.

The high-ranking Nazi, who planned the surprise attack of the bulge last December, told his captors that he was retired, and his story was borne out by the fact that he was in civilian clothes when taken.

If all the Germans forced into "retirement" by the 36th Division were laid end to end, it would probably be good for the world... and the line would be long enough to reach around Hitler's once-powerful but now beaten homeland.

A Texan also helped capture the infamous Dachau prison, where the Nazis held more than 32,000 men, women and children in conditions too horrible to describe.

When men of the 42nd and 45th Divisions rolled up to the concentration camp on tanks, long-tom rifles and every other sort of vehicle that would carry troops, Lt. Col. Walter Fellenz of San Antonio was in the front of the line. Fellenz and his fellow Americans quickly took over the horror camp and freed its hords of pitiful captives.

And back in Texas, a warning was issuing against any let-down at the end of the European war. Judge Ben H. Powell, president of the United War Chest of Texas, reminded Texans that the big part of the war... that against Japan... still must be won before our men can come home to rest on their laurels.

"Our boys will be transferred to the Pacific as soon as possible," he said, "and must keep on fighting until the Japs are conquered. They will strike hard and fast, for a hard and fast attack means a quicker end to the war—and fewer American casualties.

"It is our job here at home to strike hard, too, in our campaign to support our fighting men. The war chest is now laying plans for its annual drive for funds with which to support the USO, War Prisoners Aid, and the 19 other agencies of the National War Fund which serve our fighting men, our allies, and war victims throughout the world.

"As the fighting men do their job abroad, so must we do ours on the home front."

Texas air fighters in Italy took time off recently to celebrate Texas Independence Day with a dinner staged at Naples. Before a Lone Star flag made for them by Red Cross girls, Sgt. Cope, Capt. L. S. Wilkerson, Bill McGill and Maj. James H. Parks sliced a large cake imprinted with the words "The Eyes of Texas." Then they ended the celebration by singing Texas songs.

Ora (Jiggs) Davis of Detroit, Michigan, is here for a visit with his mother, Mrs. Ora Davis and to attend the graduation of his sister, Katherine. Mr. Davis is employed by the Don Hollister Associates.

Foods Class Saved Surplus Foods

The foods class in the Home-making Department under the direction of their instructor, Mrs. Bill Sproul, have done an excellent job in helping save surplus food commodities.

During March, they canned six bushels of apples and 64 quarts of carrots to be used in the school lunch room. About the time this work was completed the War Food Administration shipped twelve large bags of beets to be used in the Eldorado school. The girls decided it was an excellent opportunity for the boys to learn a little about canning. With the aid of four high school boys, the home-making students put up 42 jars of pickled beets.

This work is profitable because it not only furnished free food for the school lunch room but it gave students excellent training in learning the methods of canning, preserving and pickling foods. This experience of co-operative planning and working is invaluable training for high school youths.

Mrs. Annie Sellman of Rochelle is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. W. E. Humphrey.

1943 Cotton Crop To Go In Pool If Not Redeemed By August

The local Triple A office announces the following bulletin from the War Food Administration:

"All of the 1943-crop loan cotton which is not redeemed by August 1, 1945, will be placed in a pool, as provided in the loan agreement,

"Just think! Wheaties—and peaches!"

The Premium Won't Break You
—The Loss May!

and sold in an orderly manner by the Commodity Credit Corporation. On final liquidation of all cotton in the pool, the net proceeds— if any, after deduction of all advances and accrued costs, including storage, insurance, and handling charges will be distributed among producers whose cotton has been placed in the pool in proportion to their interest. No payment will be made to the producers at the time the cotton is placed in the pool, and after August 1, 1945, individual producers will not be entitled to order the sale of the particular cotton which they placed in the pool.

"The average 1943 loan rate for 15/16 inch Middling cotton, not weight, was 20.06 cents per pound," the communication concluded.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mace and daughter, Iretta Faye visited the past week-end in Hedley with Mrs. Mace's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Floyd.
