E Pluribus Unum

By WALTER LIPPMANN The banking difficulties which have arisen in several parts of the country are not an unfamiliar experience of the American people.

The sharpening of the crisis on the day of the inauguration is bringing home to the people, as no amount of mere talk could, that the problem of recovery is not one of devising ingenious plans in Washington and then of having them magically put into effect.

The most fundamentally reassuring fact at the present time is the manner in which the country has made up its mind to support the new Administration. This state of mind does not rest upon any belief that Mr. Roosevelt is a superman or that his Administration will be omniscient.

Chatterton's "Frisco Jenny" Opens At Ritz Theatre Today

Robb-Rowley Unit Program Is Presented

Greatest Of Dramatic Attractions Attains New Heights

Another of the unit programs exploited as road show attractions by R and R Theaters is offered by the Ritz Theatre Sunday and Monday. The feature unit of this program is Wilson Mizner's real life story of the erstwhile Lady of Diamonds of the Barbary Coast, Jenny Sandoval, whose sobriquet, "Frisco Jenny" was a name bandied about from Shanghai to the Bowery for a score of years. Ruth Chatterton departs from her recent drawing room portrayals to play the role of "Frisco Jenny" with Donald Cook, Louis Calhern and James Murray in leading supporting roles.

Other units of the show are the newest Stan Laurel-Oliver Hardy comedy, "Towed In Hole"; "Isle of Isolation," depicting beauties of Bali, enchanting land of Goona Goona, whose women are the most beautifully formed natives in the world and where the honey moon precedes the wedding; and the indispensable news reel.

Twenty-six years have elapsed since the disastrous San Francisco earthquake, the background for the opening scenes of Frisco Jenny. Wilson Mizner, vagabond newspaperman, wit and raconteur, witnessed a murder on the night of April 18, 1906—the murder of Ed Harris, crooked gambler and did not wish to get mixed up in this affair. Drink would make him forget. Entering Jim Sandoval's resort on the Barbary Coast, where Jenny was cashier, Mizner drank. And seeing other things he wished to forget, drank again and yet again. To help him forget.

Mizner was the last of Jim's customers to depart on that fateful night. He left as dawn was breaking; but stopped in his tracks as he was leaving to witness a heated argument between Jenny and her dad, Jim. And saw Jenny struck to the floor.

The slap sobered Mizner somewhat. Must have—or Mizner would not now remember things he tried so hard then to forget. Scarcely had the echoes of that resounding slap died down when Mizner heard that other ominous sound: a terror-striving roar; and through the striking doors he saw a city being rocked to death. Only the dawn held steady as the earthquake destroyed San Francisco. Turning to flee for his life, Mizner saw that Jenny had regained her feet but that Jim's life had been crushed out by a falling beam. In the danger of the moment, Mizner thought he had forgotten the many events of the long night.

But they clung to memory, and "Frisco Jenny" is the chronicle of that awful night, more awful dawn and subsequent happenings in the life of the girl whose father slapped her down. That girl's story is one grand drama filled with every emotion a woman can possibly experience. It is her richly emotional story which is told in the powerful drama, "Frisco Jenny."

CHATTERTON SEEN AT DRAMATIC BEST IN "FRISCO JENNY"

Scenes from the Strand's new drama, "Frisco Jenny," starring Ruth Chatterton. Never has this grand artist been more human, as she portrays the role of a victim of circumstances who sacrifices her life to save her son from moral disgrace. Supporting Miss Chatterton in this picture are James Murray, Louis Calhern and Donald Cook. "Frisco Jenny" is the feature of four units of a new R & R Road Show Program being presented at Ritz Theatre today and Monday.

Richard Dix Here In 'The Great Jasper'

Unusual Plot Makes Picture Highly Entertaining One

"The Great Jasper," a domestic drama, whose story covers a period of 20-odd years will be shown Friday and Saturday at the Ritz. Once the crowd catches the drift of its theme, which presents Jasper Horn in the paradoxical role of a handsome, philandering libertine, who while enjoying his wild-oats life to the fullest also was thoroughly friendly to his wife and little son, the patrons follow his gad-about career from horse-car driver to world famous fortune teller, who read for "ladies only" with interest.

Human interest, which generates a rather broad comedy twist, is the keynote. The audience is let in on the fact that Jasper likes the gay things in life. Also it knows that his wife, Jenny, is wise to as well as disgusted with his carryings on and fearful of what they will lead to. It's evident from the moment he first meets Norma, wife of his aged boss, that she is going to be another lady added to his string.

Then the story veers. Unable to effect an understanding with his wife after an indiscretion which informs the audience that Jasper is the father of Norma's eleven year old son, he takes his own boy to Atlantic City. There he clicks with Madam Talma, a fortune teller, who, when she dies, leaves her business to him. His wife joins him, but when she learns what kind of career he is following, she quits for good and takes Andrew with her. They both prosper, Jennie running a restaurant and Jasper as Jasper the Great, eviscerator of all fortune tellers.

The children grow up. Andrew is in love with Sylvia. Roger returns to America as a great orchestra leader and after a gay evening which sees Jasper and Norma together again, Roger takes Sylvia to the old country home, where he tries to put on the same kind of an act that characterized all his father's relations with women. Jasper vainly tries to tell the boy not to follow in his footsteps, but then suffers a stroke. The climax is a reunion of Jasper, Jennie and Andrew with the father issuing a

Social Club Is Scene For New Picture

'Strictly Personal' Tells Story Of Ex-Convict And Family

"Get-acquainted clubs," meeting places for the shy and lonely, which have been the subject of denunciatory editorials and ironic wise-cracks in newspapers and magazines, become theme for a movie for the first time in "Strictly Personal," drama featuring Marjorie Rambeau, Eddie Quillan and Dorothy Jordan, which comes to the Queen theater Wednesday and Thursday.

"Strictly Personal" is the story of an ex-convict who wants to go straight, and his wife, and the daughter of another convict who is his ward. They operate a "get-acquainted" club of the betsy Romeos and Julietts may find companionship, and even mates. It is run strictly on the level until a confidence man recognizes the convict and muscles in by threatening to expose him. He converts the establishment into a place there and the changes he observes in the people he knew and loved eighteen years before, give Mr. Arliss a rare opportunity to display his talents for both kindly humor and depth of feeling. His daughter's affair with the ambitious mechanic and his own mature romance with the deserted queen are parallel love stories of unusual charm and power.

All of this is told in settings as yet unmatched in luxury and beauty, making "The King's Vacation" the most important of all the Arliss pictures to date. The comedy is entirely modern with a series of surprising incidents.

none-too-scrupulous rendezvous for persons of amorous disposition, and proceeds to devote his own attention to an apparently wealthy widow who frequents the place. When the latter, believing him in love with her, confesses that her jewels are her only possessions, he bursts into hysterical frenzy; strangles her and steals her gems. The picture reaches a breathless climax in his attempt to carry off the convict's ward in his escape, and to throw the blame for the murder on the convict himself.

Edward Ellis, who won fame in "I Am a Fugitive" plays the role of the convict, with Marjorie Rambeau as his wife, Dorothy Jordan is their ward and Eddie Quillan her boy friend. Louis Calhern is the menace.

Ice Age Ended 8,500 Years Ago
STOCKHOLM (UP)—The ice period in Sweden ended 8,500 years ago, according to Ragnar Lidén, Swedish geologist. Mr. Lidén is fixing the age of the different geological periods, uses as an almanac the high river banks of the large river Angermanalven in northern Sweden, in which he has found regular strata of loam that enabled him to follow the geological developments of the land through the ages. About 8,500 years ago, Lidén states, the land was 250 meters lower. When the ice melted away the land level rose gradually, while the river cut itself down between the rising banks on which annual rings like those of a tree appear and form a reliable calendar for the geologist.

O'Brien Trains George Arliss To Play Here

'Smoke Lightning' Plays At Queen Theater Friday, Saturday

While George O'Brien lays no claim to being an astronomer, he has had considerable experience as a discoverer of new stars.

During his screen career, the Fox Films actor has chosen at least half a dozen girls as leading ladies in his various productions who have subsequently climbed to the heights in film-dom's heaven. Janet Gaynor, for example, played opposite O'Brien in two pictures, "The Johnstown Flood" and "Blue Eagle," before she soared to stardom in "7th Heaven."

Helen Chandler, Marguerite Churchill, Madge Bellamy, Cecelia Parker, Conchita Montenegro, Lucille Browne and other screen actresses essayed some of their first leading roles as O'Brien's heroines before they had their names in electric lights. While many actors now prominent in western pictures obtained their starts before the camera in O'Brien films.

Three of the principal supporting players in the star's latest Fox vehicle, "Smoke Lightning," which is to open next Friday and Saturday at the Ritz theatre, likewise are comparative newcomers to screen circles. But if precedent holds good, they are due to become well known to the public.

Nell O'Day, Betsy King Ross and Frank Atkinson, form the trio in ed in minor roles in "King of Jazz" question. Miss O'Day, who appeared in "Rackety Rax," plays her first lead opposite the star and according to film critics shows exceptional promise as a future celebrity.

Betsy King Ross, the nine-year-old equestrienne from Texas, makes her debut in the picture, and her remarkable riding ability is heralded as one of the outstanding features of the production. Frank Atkinson, the British comedian, has appeared in a number of recent films but has his first important role in "Smoke Lightning" as O'Brien's cowboy companion. David Howard directed the picture, an adaptation of Zane Grey's novel, "Canyon Walls."

A Word About Your Gas Water Heater

Most people pay little attention to their gas water heaters as long as they are giving perfect service. A few minutes inspection regularly will assure you better hot water service, and lower gas service charges for operating it.

The hard water of West Texas quickly forms a scale or sediment inside of the heating surface which prevents transfer of heat. If you will drain your water heater once every month this will get rid of a great portion of this scale and prevent it from accumulating to such an extent as to stop up the openings... it will also require less gas to heat the water thereby making a savings on your gas service charges. If you notice your burner is burning high all the time, yet your water is cold or only warm it means that the circulating pipe inside your tank is corroded and stopped up. This presents a serious, high-priced waste of gas. Call a plumber at once and have him clean out the tank and circulating pipe.

We have moved our office to 112 East Third Street, in the Douglass Hotel Bldg. It is the room formerly occupied by Grissom-Robertson Dept. Store. Gas Service statements should be paid at this office.

Barbara Stanwyck, in New Type Of Role With New Leading Man, At Ritz In "Ladies They Talk About"

Barbara Stanwyck, in a new type of role and with a new leading man, will make her appearance on Tuesday and Wednesday, in her latest Warner Bros. picture, "Ladies They Talk About."

As a dashing and attractive bank bandit, cool, worldly wise and hard-boiled, who matches her wits against police and prosecutor, Miss Stanwyck interprets a role far removed from her recent characterizations.

For the first time in her life also, she appears as a platinum blonde, although this is in but a few sequences where she uses a blonde disguise while holding up a bank.

Preston S. Foster, who played a crook part in "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang" and "Killer Mears in 'The Last Mile,'" has been graduated from heavy parts to play his first leading role for Warner Bros. opposite Miss Stanwyck.

He has the role of a young evangelist, who is infatuated with the beautiful young bank bandit he is trying to reform.

The story is a revelation of the life of women prisoners in the California prison and is based upon actual prison experiences of Dorothy Mackaye, the actress and co-author of the play. She served a term in the institution after the death of her husband in a tragic brawl that stirred Hollywood and the theatrical world a few years ago.

For the accurate and colorful background for the unusual scenes within the prison walls, a replica of the women's section of the institution was constructed on the Warner Bros. lot. In order to make both atmosphere and action correct, a former inmate of San Quentin prison, a woman of high intelligence, was engaged to act as technical advisor throughout the picture.

The story is that of a beautiful girl who turns crook, robs a bank is caught and sent to prison. She holds a fatal fascination for a young evangelist, who she uses as a tool to assist in the jail break of two of her pals. The plot foiled, and believing the reformer is also a stool pigeon, she seeks vengeance when released. But when he refuses to turn her over to the police after she has shot and wounded him, and she finds he had not revealed the plot, she is swept off her feet by the intensity of his love.

There is an excellent supporting cast which includes Lyle Talbot, Dorothy Burgess, Lillian Roth, Claude Eburne, Harold Huber, Ruth Donnelly, Robert Warwick, Helen Ware, De Witt Jennings and Robert McWade.

Ritz Stars

with ideas that, in respect to the immediate crisis at least, do not, I believe, differ radically in principle from the final convictions which the best minds of the outgoing Administration have finally reached. The new Administration has also, at least nominally, the confidence of the people and a clear majority in Congress. The question, therefore, is whether it can organize its political power to carry out its ideas. For good ideas will be of no avail unless there is sufficient political power behind them to make them effective.

The history of the Hoover Administration, shows how easy it is to dissipate political power, how quickly a nominal majority can melt away, how suddenly the control of Congress can be lost. My own belief is that Mr. Hoover lost his power when he failed to discipline his party in the writing of the Hawley-Smoot tariff. Certainly it is true that once Congress ceases to respect and obey the President, it is almost impossible to restore the president's authority.

For that reason the Roosevelt Administration will meet its crucial test at the very beginning of the next session. Either it will establish undisputed command of the Democratic majority and the course of legislation or it will be overrun and destroyed by the factions of which its nominal majority actually consists. That is why it is so necessary to insist, even at the risk of tiresome repetition, that the paramount issue before the country is whether the people will arouse themselves to demand that there be a concentration of authority in the hands of the President during the period of the emergency.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN
Policy and Authority

It would be vain to suppose that it is possible at a time like this to arrive at a just estimate of the outgoing Administration. The verdict which was pronounced in November expressed the natural desire of the people for a change of conditions. The verdict which the historians will pronounce in several years will depend not only upon information which we lack, or in our nearsightedness overlook, but also upon subsequent events and upon the philosophy and temperament of each historian. It is not for us to attempt to anticipate them, and at this moment the chief human aspects of the Administration which man will wish to think about are the prodigious labors, the dogged devotion and the great sincerity of the President's efforts in the last year.

Of a few things in the later judgment can we be at all sure. Yet there can be little doubt, I think, that when the genuine historians come to be written scholars will not treat the Hoover Administration as a thing in itself. They will be compelled to look upon it as the final chapter of the first phase to the post-war era. For it is as clear as anything can be that the economic debacle was prepared by the commitments, the policies and the events which followed the Armistice, that what we have been living through these fifteen years was the first false reconstruction and that what we now have confronting us are its political and economic consequences. The economy of the world was dislocated by the war. In the peace treaties, in the debt settlements, in the tariff legislation, in the management of the currency, credit and investment, the statesmen, the financiers and the industrial leaders created a structure which did not bring peace and perpetuated and emphasized the dislocations of production and trade.

The people followed these leaders willingly and even the opposition parties hardly dared to question the basic principles of the post-war regime. Yet this regime, which was described as a return to normalcy, proved in fact to be the attempt to create an enormous abnormality. Nations tried to hold in permanent inferiority other nations as strong as or stronger than themselves. Nations attempted to collect huge debts and refused to accept payment. Nations sought to expand their trade and to strangle the trade of their customers. It was a crazy regime, and after it had produced the greatest inflation in history it collapsed, in 1929. The history of the Hoover Administration is a record of the attempt to deal with this collapse.

This record seems to me to fall into two parts. In the first part the Administration still had the political authority derived from its great victory in 1928. During this period it was actuated by the belief that the post-war structure, in all its essentials, was normal and sound. In the second part the administration came gradually to the realization that much of the post-war structure was abnormal and unsound. But by this time it had lost the confidence of the voters and its political authority. In the first period it did not wish to make any important readjustments of policy. In the second period, which began, broadly speaking with the Hoover moratorium, it could not make them effectively and promptly because of the discontent of the people and the distrust of Congress. There never was a time when the Administration had both a realistic policy and actual power. When it had power its policies were of the new era; when it had revised its ideas to meet the situation, it had lost the command of Congress.

The only reason for restating these familiar truths at this time is that they carry with them so direct and important a lesson for the incoming Administration. The policies which Mr. Roosevelt described as the new deal provide, judging by the evidence available in the Democratic platform, the campaign speeches, and the important appointments, a realistic course of action in dealing with the situation. They are based on the recognition that the task which has to be undertaken is the second post-war reconstruction, that this task involves not merely the liquidation or the revision of the erroneous commitments of the first reconstruction, but fundamental changes in the basic policies of that first effort.

Thus the new administration begins with essentially sound ideas.

INAUGURATION DAY

The scene enacted in the national capitol Saturday recalls the inauguration of Mr. Roosevelt's distinguished democratic predecessor, Woodrow Wilson, the war president. The picture at the left shows Mr. Wilson taking the oath of office, March 4, 1913. While only President and Mrs. Roosevelt will reside in the White House, members of their family are expected to be frequent visitors. Below is a family group. Seated, left to right: President Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt, holding her granddaughter, Joan Dall, Mrs. Curtis Dall, holding Curtis Jr., and Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, the president's mother. Standing are Mrs. James Roosevelt, Franklin Jr., James, John, Curtis Dall, son-in-law of the president, and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt.

The historic white mansion, at the right, its shimmering image reflected in a pool in the spacious lawn, today has a new master and mistress.

Total Nominations For Month Reported At 17,100 Barrels

Daily allowable production of Howard-Glasscock county oil field was ordered raised from 14,900 to 15,900 barrels Saturday morning by R. D. Parker, chief oil and gas supervisor.

Reliable reports were that purchasers from the field nominated a total of 17,100 barrels per day for March. Nominations during February were 13,700 barrels daily.

Cosden Oil Company was understood to have been a prime factor in the movement for a higher allowable. Cosden raised its daily nomination from 4,500 to 5,200 barrels.

Shell was understood to have raised its nomination from 2,600 to 4,000 barrels daily and Col-Tex from 3,000 to 4,000 barrels daily.

Humble's daily nomination of 3,100 barrels remained unchanged. Magnolia, which runs only its own production nominated the usual 500 barrels.

Confidence In Stability Of Local Banks Shown By Citizens' Remarks

One Man Says Faithless Depositors Should Be Blacklisted—Order Defended By Others

Confidence in stability of local banks and a minimum of fear was expressed by a majority of persons interviewed at random Saturday by a Herald reporter regarding the five day banking holiday in Texas.

Some regarded in frivolous manner casting it aside with a joke. Others viewed it in an optimistic manner. Scarcely any one regarded it as the collapse of the financial system.

If any panicky feeling exists, it is judiciously suppressed in most cases. Only two large depositors were reported as fearing loss of their savings. Small depositors may want to place their savings in their socks, but no few of them Saturday said their money was far safer in the bank than in a sock.

One man proposed (everybody has a proposal) that banks invite all faithless depositors to come and get their money. Moreover, he suggested that banks compile a blacklist of such patrons, making it impossible for them to get their money deposited in another bank.

Not Hurting

"This bank holiday is hurting me d— little," laughed another. "Getting along fine, no ill effects for me," commented still another. "Least of my worries," boasted a carefree sort of chap.

Regarding the financial moratorium seriously but optimistically, one gentleman scoffed at men who saw no need of such action. "It is easy to see why Texas needed a bank holiday," he said. "Corporations operating in Oklahoma, Louisiana, and Arkansas where moratoria were already in effect were meeting their payrolls for all four states with money taken solely from Texas banks.

"While our local banks are in excellent condition, they could have been effected by silent runs on large banks by big corporations. Banks all over the state use many of the larger banks as depositories." He predicted banks of the state would open for business Tuesday morning, but with a restriction preventing depositors from drawing more than a certain

LaMode Replaces Maurice Shoppe

D. L. Tobolowsky will be in charge of La Mode when it opens here Thursday replacing the Maurice Shoppe. The La Mode here is under the same ownership as the popular Abilene ladies' ready-to-wear shop of that name recently opened in Abilene.

The Maurice Shoppe will be closed Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday while Tobolowsky and his assistants dispose of all present stock, recondition fixtures, and rearrange the entire store to open Thursday morning with new stocks and a new name.

A complete line of new merchandise has been selected by New York and California buyers, according to Tobolowsky. All smart spring styles will be handled as well as millinery, shoes, hosiery and accessories.

For more than fifteen years Tobolowsky has been engaged in this line of work. He was formerly associated with the La Mode in Abilene.

Local Solons At Work On Measure To Protect Banks

Senator Arthur P. Duggan and Representative Penrose E. Metcalfe, representing Howard county in the state legislature, have informed E. Reagan, president of the South Plains Bankers Association, that they were working as hard as they can to do their part toward solving the banking situation.

A telephone call to Mr. Reagan Saturday from Mr. Metcalfe and a telegram received by him Friday night from Senator Duggan showed that the order closing Texas banks was issued not because of any critical situation within the state but for protection of the state from dangers created by business banks of other states had been closed.

Mr. Metcalfe said that he believed

ASSUMES LEADERSHIP

Standing in front of the capitol, before the throng of well over 100,000, Roosevelt solemnly pledged himself to "assume unhesitatingly the leadership of this great army of our people dedicated to disciplined attack upon our common problems."

"It is to be hoped that normal balance of the executive and legislative authority may be wholly adequate to meet the unprecedented task before us," President Roosevelt said. "But it may be that an unprecedented demand and need for undelayed action may call for temporary departure from that normal balance of public procedure.

"I am prepared under my constitutional duty to recommend measures that a stricken nation in the midst of a stricken world may require. These measures, or such other measures as congress may build out of experience and wisdom, I shall seek, within my constitutional authority, to bring to speedy adoption.

"But in event congress shall fail to take one of these two courses, in event the national emergency is still critical, I shall not evade the clear course of duty that will then confront me.

"I shall ask congress for one remaining instrument to meet the crisis—the broad executive power to wage war against the emergency, as great as the power that would be given if we were in fact invaded by foreign foe.

"Plenty is at our doorstep, but generous use of it languishes in the very sight of the supply," he said. "Primarily this is because rulers of exchange of mankind's goods failed through their own stubbornness and own incompetence, have admitted their failure and abdicated"

West Texas Chamber Of Commerce Proposals To Cut State Expenses

By MAX BENTLEY
More than one hundred public expenditure committees (the number is 17) throughout West Texas all affiliated with the Central Public Expenditure Committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce headed by Van Zandt Jarvis, Fort Worth—are bailing this week on recommendations of the regional chamber's state budget committee, touching the problem of appropriations by the 43rd legislature for the support of the state government in the 1933-35 biennium.

The matter comes before the affiliated local committees in form of a referendum submitted by the state budget committee whose members are: C. M. Caldwell, chairman; O. C. Coles, J. O. Jones, and D. A. Bandera. Results of the referendum will be laid before the Central Committee headed by Mr. Jarvis as the policy of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in the vital question of taxation and revenue raising.

The referendum has been received in Big Spring by Joe Kuykendall, chairman of the local public expenditure committee, and W. W. Inkman, Pat Roberts, T. R. Currie, R. P. Shismaker, L. E. Lomas, George Whitt, members, and are expected to be acted upon at once. If all committees throughout the territory vote, an expression will have been secured from nearly 1,000 West Texas business men, to be duly passed along to their senators and representatives in the legislature.

This district is represented in the legislature by A. P. Duggan, Senator, and P. E. Metcalfe, member of the lower house.

Recommendations
Recommendations of the State Budget Committee, appearing on the referendum form are:
(1) That appropriations from the general revenue fund, not exceeding $22,000,000 be made by the Texas 43rd Legislature to Judiciary, Departmental, Eleemosynary and Educational budgets for the 1933-35 biennium.

(2) That any and all new revenue producing measures be proposed, unless passed to take the place of existing revenue producing and tax measures which have been abolished.

(3) That a new state constitution be the basis of reorganizing our state administrations and our county government.

The state budget committee notes: "We feel that some such program as we have outlined must be adopted by our West Texas Federation of Public Expenditure Committees if we are to attain at Austin any results in curtailment of expenditures; any results in avoiding new taxes; and any results in presently reorganizing our state administration. Unless concerted action is taken by the citizens, a much greater biennium budget than $12,000,000 might be adopted. There is also great confusion about new taxes, and about securing the benefits to the state of the reports of the Efficient and Economy Committee."

Proposal No. 1
As to the proposal No. 1, the WTCC state budget committee points out that its recommendation of a $22,000,000 budget is approximately in line with that recently submitted by the state

How To Meet Expenses Now Steers' Worry

Basketball Team Goes Ahead With Plans To Enter State Meet

Finances now present the perplexing problem to the Big Spring high school Steers.

With the second bi-district crown in three years resting on their heads, George Brown's charges are preparing to entrain for Austin Thursday where they will compete in the final state meet. But district and bi-district play proved less remunerative than officials of the high school anticipated. Scarcely anything was cleared above expenses on the three game series with the Hamilton-Pied Piper. The magnificent sum of $8.12 was placed on the right side of the ledger as the result of the Buckaroo clash.

Breckenridge held the locals to a fifty-fifty agreement on gate receipts. It cost the Steers $35, no more, no less, to make the trip to Breckenridge. For their trouble they received half of a $22 gate. The final game here drew an $88 crowd. Of this amount half went to Breckenridge, $10 went to the referee, and the remainder clinked into the cola coffers. Result, $8.12 in the championship fund.

Friday afternoon and evening the high school faculty, aided by faculty members of other schools, staged their annual program of delightful nonsense. Total receipts netted in excess of $80, the bulk of which will be used to purchase awards for members of the Steer squad.

How and when the needed cash for the Austin trip will be raised is undetermined. The Steers will be entitled to a nice rebate as bi-district champions, but to what extent that will help defray expenses is unknown.

A fund raised by assessing each team entered in the interscholastic race one dollar prior to December 15 and $2 after January 15 plus receipts at the state tourney and will be prorated out to competing teams after expenses for staging the meet have been deducted.

Officials are going forward with a faith that somewhere a fairy godmother or dad will pop up and care for this terrible item of expense. They are laying plans to take ten men to the state tourney and of course, Coach Brown will tag along as usual.

SPOTLIGHT

CHAPTER XLVII

It was a day when the rehearsal had been particularly tedious and tiring. No one could please Brady. He halted Sheila's dancing a dozen times, made her repeat, criticized brusquely. The chorus stood watching in awed silence. Sheila alone was unperturbed. She could dance and she knew it. The girls in the chorus were frightened because their turn was coming. If found Brady found no much fault with Miss Shayne's dancing what would he think of them?

Sheila danced on. Her feet beat out the tapping rhythm, whirled, stamped and skinned across the stage. There was a fixed smile on her face. The ringlets on her hair curled tightly on her damp forehead. Brady nodded his head to the rhythm. He was standing with one foot on a chair, one hand beating out the time. Some times he would go far back in the pit of the theater, watching. Sheila. Some times he would about approval, though harsh criticisms were more frequent. Sheila didn't mind. She knew Brady was severe because he demanded the best. She repeated tirelessly until he suddenly announced they were done for the day.

She went to her dressing room happily. Brady must be satisfied with her work or he would not have ended the rehearsal. That in itself was a triumph. It gave her confidence and there is no quality more precious to the actor or actress.

A chorus girl timidly offered condolences for Brady's harsh words. Sheila laughed. "I don't mind," she said. "Bill's all right."

She was weary, though. Every muscle seemed to ache. She must go on with this tireless work until she could dance without thinking about it, until the routine seemed effortless.

There were solo rehearsals and full chorus rehearsals daily. Then came full cast rehearsals. At last Mandrake announced, "We are ready for Atlantic City. The show looks to me like a flop." He always said that delectably before his outstanding successes.

The company traveled to Atlantic City for the tryout week. There were more rehearsals there. Sheila endured less of sleep, weariness, the electric resistance that always precedes an opening night. There were wins for her from Dick. She had positively forbidden him to be present for the first performance.

"I can't do my best with you there," she told him. "Wait until we bring the show to New York."

The first night came and the show was not, as Mandrake had predicted, a flop. It was praised glowingly by the newspapers. Sheila's name was in the headlines.

The company journeyed back to New York and Sheila thought that she had never been so tired. "It's a good thing," another member of the cast told her. "We get so tired we don't care whether the show goes over or not."

Sheila did care. It was not for her own sake but for Blind Timmy. She felt that she must be a success for Timmy. And for Dick, too. She knew Dick would be proud of her. He had always praised her, believed in her ability. She visualized him in the audience, sliding from his orchestra seat to come to her dressing room between the acts. She could see him with Trevor, perhaps, or Dorothy, following every tap of her flying feet as she skinned over the stage. Oh, yes, she wanted to be a success for Dick!

And so at last the opening night arrived. There was Sheila's name in the big electrical sign, "Sheila Shayne in 'Flying Flaps'." There was her picture in the newspapers. Sheila, she, starring in "Flying Flaps."

Sheila went to see her late in the afternoon. Sheila had been in bed most of the day, resting in accordance with Mandrake's orders. Eve tried to relieve Sheila's worries.

"Just think tonight is another rehearsal," she coaxed. "Remember you're in Atlantic City again. You were a wow there!"

"I know. But New York is different."

"You won't be. You'll be a knock-out. Everybody says so."

Eve departed soon and Sheila tried once more to sleep. She could not. She lay with her eyes closed, thinking about Dick. She had not heard from him since morning. At 5:30 Sheila would arise, dress and eat a very light lunch. An hour later she would drive to the theater. Her maid would be there, putting about the dressing room, arranging each cosmetic, each bit of apparel in readiness.

She was just leaving when the telephone rang. Sheila heard Dick's voice over the wire. "Scared?" he asked. "I was when I saw your name in front of the theater."

"Oh, no!" she told him stoutly. "Not a bit!"

Sheila was shaking. Once in her dressing room Sheila barred all company. She was frightened, terribly frightened, and much depended on her regaining her composure. Her hands were key to the touch. Lacy, the maid, quiet and cheerful, comforted her. "You're going to be a big success," Lacy insisted. Sheila found herself dressed for the first act half an hour before the curtain would go up.

"Here are some telegrams," the maid told her, holding out a stack of colored envelopes.

There were telegrams from friends scattered throughout the country. Almost all of them were actors and actresses, people she had known during her years of tramping. It was good to read their gay, encouraging messages.

There was a knock at the door and the maid answered. Mandrake came in. "How're you feeling?" he asked.

"Scared," Sheila admitted.

"That's fine! I've never known a successful star who didn't have stage fright before the curtain. But you've nothing to worry about. You're going to be a big hit, little girl. I'll stake my last dollar on it."

"Don't! You might lose!"

Dual Personality Taken In Film, 'Fisco Jenny' At Ritz Theater

Ruth Chatterton, while playing the part of the same person throughout the First National picture, "Fisco Jenny," which comes to the Ritz Theatre Sunday and Monday, is really enacting a dual personality. For in the opening part of the story she takes the part of an innocent girl of seventeen and follows it through the years into maturity. And the characters of the young girl and the hardened woman are as far apart as the beauty of the early dawn and the darkness of the night.

In the title role of "Fisco Jenny," a tale of the old Barbary Coast along the Embarcadero of San Francisco when its bright lights blazed forth its glitter and its shame, along about the time of the great earthquake and down to the present, Miss Chatterton passes through a quarter of a century of time.

Her role calls for a gradual transition of character, both physically and spiritually, over the years, in which she changes from the innocence of the vice district. It is a high tribute to Miss Chatterton's art that she develops this callousness of the moral fibre in the aging process with no abrupt or obvious change, but makes the character appear to be the natural and gradual outgrowth of its environment.

In the actual make-up for her part, the most unusual feature is that practically none was required for the role of a girl of seventeen, but was used to emphasize the passing of time. An ash blonde wig is used by Miss Chatterton, the other principals. Then Sheila again, swooping like a gay bird toward the footlights. Blind Timmy was with her, flushed and reluctant.

"Author! Author!" came the cry from the audience. It rose to a crescendo. Where was the author?

Sheila heard Mandrake's voice beside her. "Go with him, Sheila," the producer was saying. "Here!"

She turned. Amazed, unbelieving, she found herself looking up at Dick Stanley!

Sweetwater's Chuck Wagon To Figure In Ft. Worth Stock Show

SWEETWATER — Sweetwater's famous old time Chuck Wagon, bearing one-hundred or more brands and the fifty-two year old D. E. chuck box and equipment, will hit the trail for the Ft. Worth Fat Stock Show and Cattlemen's Convention, Friday, March 10. It will participate in the Pioneer Barbecue given at Wichita Falls, and officials and later be in the Pioneer section of the exposition parade, after which it will be "camped" in the lobby of a leading hotel.

Accompanying the wagon will be Horace Wade, Sweetwater business man and old time cow cook, Julian Moody, a well known wagon boss of the early eighties, John Selman, wagon boss for the SMS Flat Top Ranch, and John M. Hendrix, wrangler for the Sweetwater Chuck Wagon association to whom the wagon belongs.

Since the organization of the association last May, the Sweetwater Chuck Wagon has traveled more than a thousand miles, having visited the Texas Cowboy Reunion at Stamford, the State Democratic Convention at Lubbock, the Golden Jubilee at Wichita Falls, and entertained at Midland in October, the cattlemen of that section.

On these trips it has served chuck wagon meals to around three thousand people, making no charge. The organization was formed to perpetuate the traditions of the old time cow outfit and visits all gatherings where cattlemen are to be found. At each place visited, numbers of old timers visit it and recall having eaten at the D. E. wagon on the South Plains in New Mexico in the early eighties.

Permian Basin Has Potash Supply Large Enough To Supply Nation

Two Plants Already In Operation In Eastern New Mexico, One With 120 Tons Per Day Capacity

SAN ANGELO—During the period the United States was at war with Germany, the world's chief source of potash, its supply of the mineral was temporarily cut off. In the succeeding years, however, the government has been exploring and developing its own natural resources with the result that today the United States has the largest potash deposits known to the world and could supply its own needs on short notice.

The first potash mining ever done in the United States is under way now in the great potash-bearing Permian Basin, which is 600 miles long and 300 miles wide and lies principally in eastern New Mexico and West Texas. Two companies already are producing and several others hold leases. The largest of the producing plants has a capacity of 120 tons a day, or more than 40,000 tons annually.

Prior to 1931, when Texas production was started in a small way, about 61,000 tons annually was being produced from saline beds in California and from the residue of molasses factories in Baltimore, both sources having been developed by government investigation following the wartime experience. The nation was consuming then, and is now, about 400,000 tons yearly, most of which comes from France and Germany.

During the war the price skyrocketed to $55 a ton, and was $60 at any price. The prevailing price now is about $10 a ton. No figures are available on the extent of the deposits, but engineers have estimated that the supply will not be exhausted during the century. Land Commissioner J. F. Hinkl of New Mexico has estimated that deposits in Eddy County, New Mexico, alone may yield 20,000,000,000 tons, from an eight-foot vein which underlies about 2,000 sections, or over one million acres of land.

Test Holes Sunk By U. S. This vein is of sylvite, which runs from 25 to 32 per cent pure potash. Still larger deposits of polyhalite, which contains a smaller per cent of potash, are found in the Permian formation, especially in West Texas. So far, government reports show, it has not been profitable to produce, polyhalite in competition with the sylvite deposits, which are more easily accessible and more productive.

One test hole sunk by the United States Bureau of Mines in Lea County, N. M., penetrated 1 foot of almost pure potash. Two dozen of these test drills were made by the government in the last six years, and private companies have sunk 42 tests, 40 of them in Eddy county and two in Midland County, Texas.

The Permian Basin has earth layers similar to those in Alsace and Germany, from which potash is mined. Claims are made that the deposits were discovered accidentally through the sinking of an oil test in 1923 which was unproductive of oil but revealed potash in large quantities.

In times of peace potash is used principally in the manufacture of fertilizer. As an example of its importance to agriculture, farm experts claim that a ton of wheat takes 12 pounds of potash from the soil.

Lamesa's Annual Banquet Different

LAMESA—"It was different" is the expression of Lamesa citizens the morning after the annual community-wide banquet and pageant. No speaking, no reports, no boasting of what had been accomplished by the Chamber of Commerce nor any committee, but for the after-dinner entertainment, which was strictly a home affair. For one and one-half hours 500 people participated and listened to the story of the Development and History of Texas Under Six Flags, presented under the direction of Mrs. Matt A. McCall, who is the kindergarten instructor for the local schools, and the central committee, consisting of Rev. W. H. Wallace, Jr., pastor of the First Methodist Church, Dee Hull, Lions Club, W. K. Crawley, Luncheon Club, J. E. Haynes, Chamber of Commerce.

"Building From Within," the community's slogan, put into practice; return of old-time patriotism in these days of help from the government, and a desire to get away from the usual Chamber of Commerce type of annual banquet prompted this sort of program, according to the Central Committee.

City authorities have purchased a new pump of the type installed last summer at the wells south of town that not only will pump 300 gallons per minute but also clean sand from the wells and greatly increase their production. Odessa Has Large Crowd For Exhibits

Stock And Poultry Shows Attracts Visitors From Other Towns

Odessa had a young Fort Worth Fair Thursday, the crowds who saw the exhibit said.

The program started with a parade in which Odessa school children participated. It was said to have been a mile long, and included many clever stunt cars. A show was then given on a roped-off street which drew hundreds.

Hundreds of people also saw the poultry show. This feature of the Odessa exposition included many of the finest birds ever seen in this section of West Texas, visitors declared. Pet rabbits also were a feature of the exhibit. A pet stock show was a third feature of the general exposition.

The large crowds thronged the cattle exhibit barn, where as fine Herefords as are shown in the big city exposition were seen. Hogs and sheep were also shown.

The chuck wagon dinner given by the American Legion post drew a lot of the hungry, many of whom were personal guests of the Odessa chamber of commerce and of John M. Olat, who donated a beef to the Legion post. The chuck wagon dinner was a delicious spread of "food that sticks to your ribs" the cattle men said.

The show was under the auspices of Taylor White, vocational agriculture teacher of the Odessa high school, and success of the exhibit was attributed to the Odessa school's vocational agriculture class, in which about 30 Odessa youths are studying to be cattle-men and farmers. "Runt" Stangor of Texas Tech was the chief judge, and for the benefit of Odessa boys and visiting vocational agriculture high school boys from Colorado and Breckenridge, he lectured on merits of the cattle show.

Faculty Forgets Dignity, Throws Stage Party Full Of Hilarity In Stunt Night For Benefit Of Team

Members of the high school and other faculties forgot their dignity Friday afternoon and evening and staged another of their stunt nights which are fast gaining a reputation for fast, light entertainment.

Some may never be able to live down their performances before five hundred school children in the afternoon and a good crowd of adults in the evening, but disgrace was brought in a good cause. Between eight and ninety dollars raised will go to purchase awards for the members of the high school basketball team and to help finance the Big Spring entry in the state meet.

An enthusiastic audience applauded liberally while rapid moving skits were presented. Entertainment was of the most varied sort of nonsense, something truly different.

"Ain't She Sweet"

D. H. Reed, dapper shiek, and Flossie Low, Main street cutie, brought down the house in their novelty number of "Ain't She Sweet." Reed twirled his cane in a manner becoming a bashful swain of the nineties while his partner exhibited curves a la Kate Smith. The audience made them do it again.

The mock opera was well received, George Brown starring as Pop-eye and Frank Eiter carrying the heavy role of Wimpy. Marie Johnson as Olive Oyl had the crowd sobbing as the curtain descended on the musical scream.

Clad in dresses that grandmother once wore, several teachers, led by Della K. Agnell, presented a picture for the world like a motion picture of thirty years ago.

One of the most colorful events was the Japanese scene with Marie Johnson as soloist. Draped in brilliantly hued kimonos, the group sang "Japanese Sandman."

Skits Is Popular

The yesterday and today skit proved very popular. Applause greeted the repeated appearances of the HaCha serenaders, chorus, mixed quartet, and Will Olsen and his educated harmonica. Will's jig-

Joe Sanders To Lead Orchestra For Monday Dance

JOE SANDERS

Joe Sanders, pianist-director and vocalist of the famous Nighthawks Orchestra, who brings the nation's popular radio band to the Settles Monday night 10 p. m. to 2 a. m. through arrangements made with Music Corporation of America, is the son of a ranchman and was born at Thayer, Kansas.

Joe received his early education in Belton, Mo., and attended high school in Kansas City. His first professional job as an entertainer was singing in a Kansas City night club, and the first number he ever sang was "Until the Sands of the Desert Grow Gold."

From the cabaret young Sanders joined the choir of a Kansas City church where he studied grand opera arsis and oratorios under the direction of David Grosh, famous baritone singer. For a while he was a member of the Kansas City Opera company and the Civic Oratorio Society. It was then that he learned the art of art of musical arranging.

The William Jewell College Male Quartette next beckoned to the young singer and he toured the western states in Chautauqua. Next we find him in Detroit with a quartette called "Us Four," which was popular at the Frontenac Cafe. In 1915 he came to the Edgewood Gardens in Chicago. During the war, while on leave

Maytag Executive Visits Southwest

F. L. Maytag, founder of the Maytag Company, Newton, Iowa, manufacturer of washing machines, and chairman of its board, will visit the Texas and Louisiana distributor, Maytag Southwestern Company, 2115 Griffin street, Dallas, Texas, for several days beginning Monday, March 6.

In appreciation of Mr. Maytag's visit an "Honor Scroll" containing names of managers, dealers, and salesmen having achieved a sales record in a four weeks' contest will be presented to Mr. Maytag at a luncheon meeting of Maytag men at the offices of the distributor, Tuesday.

"Mr. Maytag, although above the proverbial three score and ten in years is still aggressively 'young' both in appearance and in activity, is not only highly esteemed by his own organization, but by the entire washing machine industry," Walter Rogers, president of the Maytag Southwestern Company, said.

"To many men of the Maytag organization, whom he has helped to success he is not regarded as the chief executive of the Maytag Company but more as a second father," the distributor concluded.

Mr. Maytag is an inveterate traveler, and has often said that he gets more pleasure out of visiting "his boys" than vacationing, seeing the show places of the world, etc. He comes to Texas after a series of meetings on the Pacific Coast.
