

Sterling Not To Call Special Session Soon First Of Two Trade Tours Scheduled For Wednesday

Visits To Be Made Towns North, East

Carnival Of Values To Be Advertised; Second Tour On June 27

Wednesday at 8 a. m. a motorcade will leave Big Spring on the first of two trade trips advertising Big Spring and the "Carnival of Values" June 30, July 1 and 2.

The long list of state office candidates who will speak here during the carnival was increased one when Dan Jackson, El Paso, accepted an invitation to address the public June 30. Jackson is a candidate to succeed R. E. Thomson, also of El Paso, as congressman for this district.

Efforts are being made to secure the local American Legion drum and bugle corps as part of the first trade day trip Wednesday. The Kiwanis club quartet has been invited to aid in the excursion, and if present plans mature, R. C. "Bob" Fyeat will also furnish entertainment as a member of the motorcade personnel.

Victor Fiewellen, in charge of the affair, issued an appeal for all who possibly can to go on the trip. He said Anderson Music Company would furnish a sound - equipped truck to be used on the excursion. The truck will precede the main caravan a few minutes in each town, making preparatory announcements. A crew will distribute literature and placards advertising the "Carnival of Values".

The caravan will leave here at 8 o'clock on Wednesday, arrive in Cosahoma at 8:30, Wabok at 9:00, and in Colorado at 9:30. Stops will be made in all places. From Colorado the motorcade will go to Lorraine, arriving at 10:10. Roscoe will be reached at 10:40 and Sweetwater at 11:00.

Here the Big Spring boosters will turn back to Roscoe, veering northward and stopping at noon in Hemphill. Plans call for a forty minute stop in Snyder for lunch at 12:40 p. m. No schedule for the afternoon has been made, but Gall, Lamesa, Sparenburg, and Ackerly will be visited and invited. The caravan is expected to return to Big Spring by 6 p. m.

An old saying in West Texas that it always rains "fifteen minutes before the country goes to hell," is recalled by the San Angelo Standard-Times in an editorial of Sunday which lists some conditions that faced the region ten years ago, and the events following that crossed the dark shadows of a decade ago.

Yesterday over coffee we chatted with a man who has been traveling this section of the state for a number of years. He is one of those men who know first-hand the condition of retail merchants.

"My company recently asked me how I'd like to take another district, in a more densely populated section of Texas. I told them I was not interested. I have seen West Texas tide through bad times before. I have no fear for the future. In fact, most of my customers have reflected a little improvement in their business in the past month," said this man, a resident of Big Spring, from which he covers his large district.

The conversation recalled to our minds an idea that has occurred to us a number of times. That is that Big Spring will have a fine opportunity of attracting as permanent residents a large number of traveling men when business begins to revive as it must do sooner or later.

There are a number of things that a town can do to make these men like them enough not only to "Sunday" in their hotels but also to move their families in and work their territories from there.

One West Texas city a few years ago had more than 325 traveling men headquarters in her. That city lost sight of the value of those citizens and gradually another

Big Spring And Sweetwater Golf Teams Take One-Sided Victories In Sunday's Sand Belt Matches

Big Spring and Sweetwater golfing legions advanced upon the leaders in the Sand Belt Golf Association with one-sided victories over Texon and Odessa respectively on the local course Sunday afternoon.

Featuring G. R. Porter's 5 up and 4 to play victory over Pat Kelly, a semifinalist in the Rivercrest tournament two weeks ago, and Obie Bristow's 4 up and 3 to play decision over Jack Batterswhite, young finalist in the West Texas tournament last week-end, the local niblick winners defeated Texon 31 to 13.

G. A. Harvey, Texon, won the No. 1 match over Shirley Robbins 3 up and 2 to play and the local pair of Doc Aiken and Theron Hicks lost low ball to Perry and Folk of Texon 2 up and 1 to play to account for the only points dropped by the Big Spring players.

Charlie Nix, J. C. Southworth, and Ed Hennig led the Sweetwater golfers to a clean sweep of their matches with Odessa.

The battle between Bristow and Batterswhite featured the day's play. Despite a hard wind blowing over the course the Big Spring coach played very near par to route the Texon schoolboy star, grabbing birdies on three holes on the front nine to go three up and coasting to a victory. Porter accounted for Kelly in a surprising fashion to give the locals low ball over the latter and Harvey. The Texon No. 1 player won from Robbins with a 53 as the Big Spring ace played some of his poorest golf of the year.

Complete results: Harvey (Texon) beat Robbins (B. S.) 3 up and 2. Porter (B. S.) beat Kelly (Texon) 3 up and 4. Bristow (B. S.) beat Batterswhite (Texon) 4 up and 3. Coffee (B. S.) beat Isbell (Texon) 3 up and 2. Aiken (B. S.) beat Perry (Texon) 4 up and 3. Hicks (B. S.) beat Folk (Texon) 1 up (twenty holes). Watson (B. S.) beat B. Kelly (Texon) 3 up and 2. Latson (B. S.) beat Thompson (Texon) 2 up and 1.

Preliminary Bathing Girl Revue Is Set

Big Spring Beauties To Be Seen Thursday Night At R & R Ritz

Big Spring's stock of feminine beauty will be displayed on the stage of the R. & R. Ritz Theatre Thursday evening when the local preliminary of the "Carnival of Values" bathing revue is held.

Two of the fairest this city has to offer will be picked from the field entered to participate as the Big Spring representatives in the carnival revue. Winner of the carnival contest will have her expenses, and her escort's expenses, paid to Mineral Wells where she will compete for the prize of Miss West Texas.

Merchants may enter girls under their firm name by seeing L. D. Davenport at the Josephine Shoppe. However, girls may enter independently, it was stated. The revue of Thursday will be started at 8:30 p. m. in connection with the Ritz's picture with Barbara Stanwyck in "Shopworn."

Nile Wright Found Guilty

Extortion Plot Brings Verdict Of 15 Years At San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO — Nile Will Wright was found guilty Monday of robbery by assault with firearms in connection with extortion of $75,000 from R. W. Morrison, millionaire rail magnate, May 17, 1930.

A ninety-fourth district court jury here sentenced him to 15 years imprisonment. The verdict was returned after nearly forty hours of deliberation.

J. D. Conner, who pleaded guilty to participating in the extortion, is now serving a 15-year sentence. T. B. Edmondson, a third member of the band, was promised immunity for turning state's evidence.

Elbow Women To Sell Food At Carnival

Booths On Court House Lawn To Raise Funds For Delegates

The Elbow Home Demonstration club, one of the most active in West Texas, will have booths on the court house lawn during the "Carnival of Values" here June 30, July 1 and 2 at which sandwiches, "red-lemonade," other cold drinks and delicacies will be served.

Two County Offices Will Be Closed For Saturday Afternoons

Beginning June 25 the offices of county school superintendent and district clerk will be closed Saturday afternoons. The office of the clerk will reopen on Saturday afternoons during the latter part of August, but the county superintendent will likely not follow this policy until September 1.

It was announced by Mrs. Pauline Cantrell Brigham, county superintendent, the one dollar state apportionment received recently had enabled her office to pay part of the teachers' salaries. No teacher in the county holds more than one check against the state apportionment fund. Very few hold checks against delinquent taxes. Other apportionments amounting to five dollars will be received in July and September, she said.

Wedding Of Interest Is Solemnized

Miss Ruth Cardwell Becomes Bride Of Robert W. Matthews

The wedding nuptials of Miss Ruth Cardwell, of El Paso, the niece of Mrs. J. O. Tamsett and formerly a resident of this city, and of Robert W. Matthews, of El Paso, were performed with the impressive ring ceremony at the Presbyterian Church Sunday evening.

The church was beautifully decorated with baskets of summer flowers in the pastel shades that the bride loved so well. Orchid thistle blossoms and pink carnations were placed in baskets tied with huge bows of pale yellow tulle. At the altar was a handsome bouquet of pure-white Easter lilies.

The bride was very becomingly dressed in a gown of blue silk net with a ribbon sash of blue and pink. Her hat was of blue with pink bows and her slippers and mesh gloves of pale pink.

She was attended by Mrs. A. L. Kent, of Gibson, La., her cousin, as matron of honor, who was charmingly gowned in turquoise blue crepe combined with transparent blue velvet, and Mrs. Guy Tamsett, who wore a very attractive dress of orchid crepe. Both wore picture hats of white trimmed with the colors of their gowns and carried "calla lilies."

Little Miss Lorena Brooks, dressed in a yellow frock, untied the tulle gate as the wedding party came up the center aisle.

Little Miss Florence McNew, in a lovely green dress, was the dainty little flower girl. Master Billy Kent, in a white suit, carried the ring in the heart of a lily. Mrs. Omar Pitman presided at the organ and accompanied Mrs. Robert Parks who sang softly, "Because" and "I Love You Truly" before the processional. Lohengrin's wedding march was played during the processional and Mendelssohn's wedding march, during the recessional. During the latter part of the ceremony Mrs. Pitman played very low and sweetly "O Perfect Love."

The bride was given away by her grandfather, Can Powell. With the groom entered Guy Tamsett, cousin of the bride. The other groomsmen were Harry Williamson, Emil E. Fahrenkamp, Frank Jones, Omar Pitman.

The bride is the descendant of one of the pioneer families of Howard county. She was educated in the Big Spring schools being graduated with the class of 1919, of which she was salutatorian. She did her college work at the University of Missouri, at Columbia, Mo., where she obtained her B.A. in 1923. For the past several years she has taught in the public schools of El Paso. Her mother has made her home with her there.

The groom is the son of Robert Matthews of El Paso. He received his education in the schools of Denver, Colo., and El Paso. For the past several years he has been manager of the market at the Post Exchange at Fort Bliss.

Immediately after the ceremony the wedding party and intimate friends of the bride journeyed to the home of Mrs. Sam Nabors for an informal wedding reception.

A lovely two-tiered wedding cake loomed in green and topped with a miniature bride and groom, was sliced by the bride and served with punch.

Immediately after the reception Mr. and Mrs. Matthews left by motor car for a two-weeks' honeymoon trip in the mountains of Northern New Mexico.

Calles' Wife In Hospital

Mexican Leader's Mate Has Intercranial Pressure

NEW YORK (AP) — Ex-president Calles of Mexico and his wife arrived here Monday. Senora Calles was taken immediately to French hospital. Some time after her arrival it was announced authoritatively that she was suffering from intercranial pressure, which may be caused by a tumor or meningitis. Her condition was regarded as serious though not critical. Decision as to whether an operation will be attempted awaited final diagnosis Tuesday.

TRAIN DELAYED

Defender And Challenger

Max Schmeling, top, world's heavyweight champion, will defend his title in a 15-round bout Tuesday evening against Jack Sharkey, below, chronic challenger who has "popped off" several chances at the title. In spite of past records Sharkey is favored by most observers to beat the German. However, it is agreed that this probably will be Jack's last chance to become undisputed world's heavyweight champion.

Absentee Vote Rules Changed For This Year

AUSTIN — New provisions for voting by mail have been added to the absentee voting ballot law, to apply in the July 23 primary election for the first time. The new law was passed in May, 1931.

In cases where a voter is in his home county between July 3 and July 20, he may go to the county clerk and secure a ballot, mark it and leave it with the county clerk.

After July 3 the absentee voter is now permitted to write to the county clerk of his home county and ask for a ballot, sending his poll tax receipt or exemption certificate along to show his eligibility to vote. The blank ballot will be mailed him, and then can be mailed back to the county clerk to be passed on to the election judges for counting in the results of the primary election.

The law makes these provisions, then adds "clerks affixing the duties of the county clerk in furnishing the ballot, verifying the poll tax receipt, and transmitting the absentee ballots to the election judges."

The new law extends to many who will be out of their home counties the opportunity of casting their votes this year without having to go to the county, either on election day or during the absentee-voting period fixed by the old law and retained in the new.

The Rise Of Hitler

THE PROSPECTIVE elevation of Hitler and his Nazi dictatorship in Germany will rewrite the history of the Versailles treaty.

If Hitler gains control, overboard will go reparations. France could like it or lump it. About all she could do would be to reoccupy the Ruhr—and that is an unprofitable gesture. She would be unable to interest England, Italy and Poland in her efforts to enforce collection of reparations. On the contrary, France might find her former allies in open opposition to any warlike move against the Rhineland.

The next Hitler step probably would be destruction of the Polish Corridor, to throw in the side of East Prussia. That might lead to more serious consequences than abolition of reparations. Poland and France would join to maintain the Corridor.

Either or both these Hitler objectives probably would have the passive, if not the active, support of Italy.

The ascendancy of Hitler would break the stalemate that now exists in Europe. What that might lead to in the end no one can say, but it would convert Germany from a prostrate nation into an active consumer of raw materials and goods. It would prove beneficial to America's foreign trade.

REFUSE TO DEMONSTRATE

Two Women Save Curtis From Discarded Vice-President List

CHICAGO, (UP)—Two women did much to save Charles H. Curtis from the limbo of discarded vice-presidents.

His fighting sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann, carried on a campaign for months, with a driving whirlwind finish, to have him retained as running mate of President Hoover.

Mabel Walker Willebrandt, heroine of 1924, and loyal despite differences with other members of the party, went to the bat when defeat seemed imminent to Curtis, helped prevail upon the Pennsylvania delegation to change its vote, and gave the aging vice-president re-nomination to office.

Curtis' entire career has been affected by the political loyalty and support of women. Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, vice-chairman of the republican national committee, was largely responsible for his place on the ticket four years ago when she made a fight characteristically more effective than spectacular to name him as second on the Hoover slate.

The cornerstone of his whole life has been his sister's unflinching and militant support. She did not fail him here. At the close of a country-wide speech making campaign of months, she came to Chicago to crystallize and add backbone to his support.

That she was fully aware of the seriousness of the situation was often reflected in her face. When nominations for vice-president began, she leaned forward with her hands on the railing, clasped so tight they showed white at the knuckles. Not until the Pennsylvania delegation changed its vote did her face relax into a smile.

When New York gave its tremendous vote to General Harbord, Dolly saw the years behind, all the years of struggle for her brother. First she was his secretary. She nursed his invalid wife, was a second mother to his children and climaxed her career of helpfulness in her Herculean fight for his re-nomination.

Mrs. Gann and her husband were chilly toward the press after the "victory" and he complained that he had been called "Mr. Dolly Gann" and that Mrs. Gann had been "pestered." Mrs. Gann at first indicated she would not comment but finally observed that she was "never worried about the result for one instant."

Mrs. Willebrandt stepped suddenly into the breach. She declined to second Curtis' nomination, but gave up this lip-service for more practical activity.

In Texas he might be considered Exhibit A, of the "reason why" when Texans begin to pay 40 extra federal taxes a day, on food, drink, travel equipment, necessities, luxuries, income and death.

He draws government pay. He travels at government expense. He has assistants and an office staff, paid by the government. He makes speeches, to gatherings, big and little. He is an expert. He is in the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, in one of its numerous regional offices.

Mr. Tutt proposed to the Chamber of Commerce that he will make it a distributing center of his valuable government treasures. He gave it a list of such valuable docu-

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN
The Prohibition Plank

CHICAGO—Under cover of a smokescreen of dry slogans the Republican party has abandoned national prohibition. So effective was the smokescreen that it may take some time before the drys realize how complete was their defeat and the wets how imposing was their victory. In the convention hall itself the galleries which were full of wets hooded and howled while the drys were winning and the drys on the floor applauded fervently the decision which marked the end of the Republican party's adherence to national prohibition.

What is it that the Republicans have declared? They have declared that Republicans in the House and Senate should vote for a resolution submitting a Twentieth Amendment to the states. They have pledged themselves to specify that the ratification of this new amendment shall be considered not by state legislatures but by specially elected state conventions "adequately safeguarded so as to be truly representative." This can mean only one thing, that they pledge themselves to see that these state conventions are more truly representative than are most of the state legislatures. In other words they declare that the over-representation of rural districts and the under-representation of cities which is characteristic of most legislatures shall not prevail in the state conventions.

This pledge is from the point of view of the practical difficulties of amending prohibition an incalculably important victory for the wets.

The Twentieth Amendment which the Republicans propose to submit to these state conventions would supersede and, therefore, would in fact repeal the Eighteenth Amendment. The essence of the Eighteenth Amendment is that it prohibits, and does not merely give Congress the power to prohibit, the manufacture and sale of liquor. The new Twentieth Amendment would take prohibition completely out of the Constitution. Whatever the phrase makers may choose to call it, this is repeal, and it constitutes an absolute victory on the fundamental principle for which the opponents of the Eighteenth Amendment have always contended.

The Twentieth Amendment would not only repeal constitutional prohibition but it would deny to Congress the power to impose legislative prohibition. For the Republicans have committed themselves to the principle that the states may legalize liquor, not merely beer and wine but all liquor, if they wish to do so.

The Twentieth Amendment would however grant certain powers over the liquor traffic to the Federal Government. These powers would be of two kinds. There would be a grant of power to Congress to make laws and to set up enforcement machinery to protect dry states against the invasion of liquor from the wet states. There is no dispute as to the desirability of giving Congress this power. The only difference of opinion is whether it is necessary to amend the Constitution in order to provide the powers. Some think that the old Constitution vests in Congress all the authority needed; some deny that it does. There can be no possible objection to reaffirming the power if it exists or of granting it if it does not; it is generally agreed that Congress should have the power to protect dry states against invasion. Senator Morrow, who made a profound study of this problem, advocated an amendment which "would vest" in the Federal Government power to give all possible protection and assistance to those states that desire complete prohibition against invasion from the states that do not.

But the Republican platform goes further and proposes to vest more power in Congress. Here the language of the platform is vague, but what the authors probably had in mind was to give Congress the power to declare principles to which the states must conform in legalizing liquor. Their intention, it appears, is to give Congress the power to say that no state may, for example, legalize a system under which liquor is sold for consumption in public places, or conversely that no state may legalize a liquor traffic conducted for private profit.

Here is matter for considered debate, and I for one can see no point in making a snap judgment. I should like to see a draft of the amendment which the President would accept as conforming to the language of his platform.

The main point is that this new amendment can go no further than to grant Congress the power to regulate. It cannot prohibit. It cannot give Congress the power to prohibit. It cannot embed any particular kind of regulation in the Constitution. Since the new amendment can only be a grant of power, it must substitute for the iron inflexibility of the present system a flexible system responsive to public opinion such as prevails in all other civilized countries. The worst that Congress could do under the new amendment could be corrected at any time by a majority vote of Congress.

The wets would be unreasonable if they refused to consider this proposal and to examine carefully the arguments for it which Secretary Mills set forth so cogently in the debate.

I left the convention hall early Thursday morning feeling that the anti-prohibitionists had won so great a victory so suddenly that they have not yet adjusted their minds to their new position. The wet galleries were certainly as fanatical and as ignorant and as intolerant as the drys ever were in the days when they were in the saddle. There is danger here, and the wet leaders should stop and consider.

They should remember that it is one thing to fight resolutely to win and another to refuse to make peace with your opponent. It is true that the wets have only won one battle in a campaign which must be fought out in Congress and in the states. But they are in the ascendant, and they will make a great mistake if they take a stand which offers the drys no choice but to resist to the bitter end or to surrender abjectly. My view is that the moot point of this platform—whether or not to grant Congress power to determine the principles upon which the states may legalize liquor—there is no sacrifice of principle in a conciliatory attitude. There is nothing in the proposal to grant Congress a limited power to regulate the liquor traffic which any self-respecting opponent of the Eighteenth Amendment and of the policy of prohibition need hesitate to consider with an open mind.

the MAYTAG Saves You Money

MODEL A
PRICED AT ONLY $89.50

Many have found that a Maytag's actual saving in laundering costs will more than equal the easy payments on the washer itself.

Think then, how many times the Maytag will pay for itself through the years! Because this is no "one year" washer. It's a fact that Maytag washers have given service for the equivalent of fifty—sixty—seventy years in the average home.

Come in and learn how little it will cost to own a Maytag.

Tigers Slash Toyah 30-4

Subia Holds Visitors To Four Hits In Sunday Game

Strange grounds drove the Tigers wild Sunday and they pounded the ball like savages against Toyah Texas for a 30-4 slaughter. Never after the first inning was the Toyah team able to check the local Mexican squad.

Subia, twirling for the Tigers, kept his few base blows well scattered. He was picked for one run in the first, one in the fourth, and a couple more in the sixth.

While this was going on the Tigers were indulging in a fine assortment of singles, doubles, triples and seasoning the mixture with a few home runs. Behind a barrage of extra base knocks, it only took the Tigers seven innings to do their thirty run damage.

Doty was the only Toyah man who could solve Subia's slants. Three times out of the four he faced the local buster, he hit safely. But he was the only Texan who could handle the situation.

The two Garcias, A. and J. respectively, accounted for four hits each. A. Garcia added to his glory with a four base blow. El Cruz was the bludgeoner master for the day. Twice he clouted home runs, each time with the bases loaded.

Score by Innings:
Toyah 100 102 0-4
Tigers 184 048 5-30
Batteries—Toyah, Davis, Rubio, and Doty; Tigers, Pjero and Subia.

THE BIG NEWS is on the inside page too

Probably you read the front page of your paper first. But think how soon you forget the "news of the day"—and how long you enjoy the things you buy because of some item in an advertisement.

Almost always, there is big news for you somewhere in the advertising columns of this paper. Look for it. Here's a piece that tells how to make a nicer angel cake—a note on the new models of the car you hope to buy, next—news of fashions and furnishings, of hardware and hats... Interesting, intimate, often dramatic news that really concerns you and yours.

Remember that size alone is not a measurement of value. Often an advertisement in small space will offer just what you want at a saving. So form the good habit of reading the advertising section of this paper carefully. It will save you time and money. It will make your home healthier, wealthier, happier.

Read and you will find!

NEWS OF THE DAY IN PICTURES

LATEST PHOTOGRAPH OF HOOVERS

This new picture of President and Mrs. Hoover was made at the White House in Washington while the republican national convention was in session in Chicago drafting a platform and renominating him as its 1932 standard bearer.

G. O. P. DELEGATES WILDLY ACCLAIM PRESIDENT HOOVER

In a noisy, gay demonstration, delegates to the republican national convention at Chicago gave President Hoover a new pledge of their support when he was renominated for the presidency by Joseph Scott of California. In a shouting, dancing, holiday parade around the Stadium which lasted for half an hour, state standards vied with each other for a place in the joyous line.

NEW CINDERELLA OF THE MOVIES

Dorothy Wilson, 19, may not believe in fairy tales, but she is the heroine of a present-day Cinderella yarn. A native of Minneapolis, she was employed as a stenographer in Hollywood when a director saw her and forthwith assigned to her the lead in a forthcoming picture.

KIDNAPER GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

Crucified by the officers who captured him despite a flight to South Africa, Marshall Deputy (left), 37, alias Martin Dewey, is shown in court at Kansas City, where he pleaded guilty to the kidnaping last winter of Mrs. Nell Donnelly, wealthy garment manufacturer, and was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Ben Tarte (right).

'Let 'Em Grow'

Gangster Sought

That was the order given three weeks ago to men of Grand Island, Neb., to add realism to the county's 75th anniversary celebration. Clinton John, (above), a court clerk, claims his beard is the curliest and most unruly of any in the large "whisker club."

Frank Nitti (above), the "enforcer" of Al Capone's old liquor syndicate, was sought for the machine gun slaying in Chicago of George "Red" Barker, gangster, who aspired to succeed Capone.

LEADS HOOVER DEMONSTRATION

The California delegation, headed by Gov. James Rolph Jr., started the first demonstration for Herbert Hoover at the republican national convention in Chicago. Waving the California state standard and singing "Hoover Again," Governor Rolph led a parade of state delegations for 15 minutes around the Stadium. He is shown shaking hands with Mabel Walker Willebraadt, a delegate from California.

HOOVER AND CURTIS POSE

This Associated Press telephoto shows President Hoover and Vice President Curtis together for the first time since their renomination by the republican national convention. The President is patting "Weeje," his Norwegian elk hound.

BANNERS WAVE FOR HOOVER

State delegations waved their standards, paraded and sang for President Hoover in a jubilant demonstration lasting 15 minutes at the republican national convention in Chicago. Cries of "Hoover Again" resounded through the Stadium.

DELEGATES WHOOP IT UP FOR HOOVER AT CONVENTION

The first demonstration at the republican national convention was halted by Permanent Chairman Snell (on speaker's stand, waving) as "the one man in America who has furnished leadership in this great crisis." With state standards flying, delegates led California to a parade around the huge Stadium singing "Hoover Again." The show lasted 15 minutes.

New G.O.P. Chairman

Following the Chicago convention the republican machine was reorganized quickly for the 1932 campaign with Everett Sanders of Indiana as the new chairman of the national committee.

Turkish President

SNELL SALUTES DEMONSTRATORS

Chairman Snell waved an enthusiastic greeting to the noisy parade of state delegations which passed the speaker's stand after President Hoover had been renominated at the republican national convention. At the left may be seen Lawrence Richey, one of President Hoover's secretaries.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

By SAUNDERS LOUI BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHERRY DIXON, 19 and pretty, falls in love with DAN PHILLIPS, newspaper reporter whom her wealthy, aristocratic parents have forbidden her to see. When Cherry learns Dan's telephone number she steals out of the house to meet him. Her father discovers this and threatens to send her to California. Cherry defies him and orders her to leave.

She goes to Dan, tells him what has happened and asks him to marry her. The ceremony is performed that night by a justice of peace.

Cherry looks for an apartment but is discouraged to find them so expensive. Dan works late one night on a tip that TONY TOSCALLI, gangland chief, is coming to Wellington. Cherry unconsciously gives this news tip to a reporter on the rival newspaper. The other paper gets the story and Dan's boss threatens, "One more slip and you're fired."

DIXIE SHANNON, movie critic, helps Cherry find an inexpensive apartment. Dan and Cherry move from the hotel. Cherry finds housework and cooking trying. Their first dinner guest is MAX PEARSON, handsome friend of Dan's. When he and Dan arrive they find the apartment filled with smoke, the dinner ruined and Cherry interars. All three go out to dinner. Cherry dances with Max.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XX

It was a week after the dinner party that had proven such a failure. Cherry Phillips, down on her knees scrubbing the bathroom linoleum, straightened up and dropped the dripping mop back into the pail. She surveyed her work, then with a groan wrung out the mop again and applied it to the floor.

There! It was done at last. Wearily the girl got to her feet. She lifted the heavy pail to carry it to the kitchen but as she turned caught a glimpse of herself in the mirror.

Cherry put down the pail and studied herself. What a sight she was! She had cleaned the apartment from floor to ceiling but it appeared that all the dust and dirt she had scrubbed and scraped away must have clung to herself. The towel pinned about her skirt in place of an apron was blackened with grime. Her printed silk frock had once been attractive but she had worn it for housework until it was frayed and soiled. Another towel pinned about her head concealed her hair except for a few stray wisps that straggled forth grotesquely. There were black smudges on her face and arms and one finger was shrouded in a bulky bandage. That was where Cherry had cut out herself the day before.

"You're a disgrace," she told the image in the mirror. "You look like something the cat dragged in," as Sarah would say. Only no self-respecting cat would have anything to do with you because cats keep themselves clean!"

Another time Cherry might have found her clown-like appearance amusing. She did not smile today; she was too tired. Wearily she picked up the scrubbing pail, carried it to the kitchen and emptied it. She saw that the hands of the dollar alarm clock, painted bright yellow, pointed to after 5 o'clock.

"Time to be starting supper," she thought automatically. No matter how hard she worked cooking or ironing or mending—no matter how busy the day there was always 6 o'clock and the evening meal to be prepared.

She filled a pan with water and started to peel potatoes. What if Dan did find her looking such a sight? She was too tired to think about her appearance—or to care.

A sharp rap sounded on the door. "Anyone home?" a crisp voice called. "It's me—Dixie!"

Cherry reached for a towel. She was drying her hands as she drew the door back.

"Hello, Dixie," she said. "Come in."

The girl on the threshold smiled brightly—and instantly the smile faded. "Sarina above!" she exclaimed in a horrified tone. "What have you been doing to yourself, Cherry Phillips?"

Cherry shrugged. "I've been cleaning house," she admitted. "The place gets awfully dirty and I've been at it all day."

"But, my dear, you're a wreck! Why don't you hire someone to do the cleaning? That's what I do—"

The other girl shook her head. "We can't afford to hire anyone," she said. "Anyhow this is my part of the job. You see there are two of us to live on Dan's salary. You have only yourself."

Dixie nodded sympathetically. She dropped into the nearest chair. "Well, you're a game kid. I'll say that, but you're wearing yourself out and it doesn't pay. Listen, I like Dan and all that but take a little advice from a girl who knows. You'll regret this slavery."

"Aren't you rather cynical?"

"Maybe. Did you know I was married once? Oh, yes—blushing bride, showers of rice, 'love and obey' and all that! Keeping house in a kitchen love nest. Well, it lasted six months and I was a fool to stand it that long."

"Why, Dixie, I didn't know—"

"Oh, it was over and forgotten long ago. You see I was dumb enough to fall for an actor. Handsome brute all right but as soon as we were married he stopped working. I kept my job and paid the bills until one day he got his dates mixed. There was a certain red-head—and well, that was the end of that! A nice quiet divorce and Dixie's been a wiser girl ever since. But, Lord, what am I going on this way for? I didn't mean to narrate my life history!"

"I'm sorry," Cherry said sympathetically.

"Don't waste sympathy on me. Think about yourself. The point is you ought to be getting out and having some fun. And don't forget heaven's sake, let Dan find you looking like Topsy herself! Better start scrubbing. It's going to take a long time to excavate that face."

Obediently Cherry began her ablutions. "I wish I were clever like you," she said. "I wish I could get a job and earn money."

"Be glad you don't have to," the other told her shortly. She laughed. "I've been raving so much I almost forgot why I came. Can you and I come up for a little bridge to-night? Jack McAllister's coming over and I thought we'd have a party. He's the press agent at the Capitol Theater. You'll like Jack. I'll make a Welsh rabbit—it's my one and only culinary achievement and am I proud of it!"

"Of course we'll come," Cherry said. "I guess you're right, Dixie. I have been staying in too much."

"Good. I'll expect you around 8. That'll give you time to get out from under that black mask. Well, I'll have to scram. Lots to do in the next two hours."

Dixie departed. Cherry decided on gent's day next week. Because I've borrowed from everyone in the office until I can't raise another nickel and I'm ashamed to ask for it. Fun? Would it interest you to know that I turned down a poker game with the boys tonight to come home and spend the evening with you? And I did it because by working all evening maybe I can write a story that will bring in some extra cash!"

The girl was subdued. "I—I didn't understand," she said slowly. "Of course I'll tell Dixie we won't be able to make it."

The meal proceeded. It was not an appetizing dinner and neither of them were in communicative mood. When they had finished Cherry cleared the dishes away and went upstairs to make excuses to Dixie.

She returned to find Dan sitting before his battered typewriter, a stack of fresh copy paper at his side.

As quietly as possible she went about the work of washing the dishes. She tiptoed whenever she crossed the floor. Now and then the typewriter keys rattled, followed frequently by a terrific banging that could mean only that the writer was "xing" out his previous work.

An hour must have passed while she sat huddled in the big chair pretending to read. The silences between periods of typing became longer.

Suddenly, with a loud "Dann!" Dan jerked the paper from the machine. He jumped to his feet, tossing the crumpled sheet to the floor. Without another word he grabbed for his hat and coat and banged out of the apartment.

chance to become undisputed world heavyweight champion.

The going battle later in the week, on his former course, may be another "set-up" for Sarazen, if he keeps the control, the punch and the putting touch he showed in the British open championship. Unless he is wind and dined too much in the meantime, Gene should start the U. S. open as the shortest-priced favorite since Bobby Jones retired.

Sarazen will pair with the champion and probably his strongest rival, Billy Burke, during the first two days. If either happens to slip, MacDonald Smith, Leo Diegel, Wiffey Cox, George Von Elm and quite a few others will be ready to set the pace. No. 1 along the dark-horses now is T. Phillip Franklin, the alma Englishman who has been playing sensationally since he quit the amateur ranks.

Mrs. Tyree Hardy Honor Guest For Lovely Luncheon

Mrs. Robert W. Parks was hostess Saturday at a lovely two course luncheon in the lounge of the Crawford Hotel honoring her sister-in-law, Mrs. W. T. Hardy.

Pink roses and baby's breath made the floral centerpiece for the beautifully appointed luncheon. Small bridal place cards were part of the decorative notes.

After the luncheon the guests spent the time in conversation. Those present were: Meses W. T. Hardy, Harvey Williamson, E. W. Lomax, Libby Coffee, Monroe Johnson, W. B. Hardy, Hilo Hatch, Otto Wolfe; Meses Nancy Dawes, Gertrude McIntyre, Agnes Currie, Helen Hayden and Andrea Walker.

Relief Measure For Colleges Of State Outlined

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN - A three-way relief measure for Texas state colleges, the people and taxpayers, has been proposed by Sen. Ben G. Oneal of Wichita Falls, chairman of the joint legislative tax survey committee.

The state pays the cost of providing facilities and plant for education in the university and all the colleges.

The legislature several years ago cut the registration fees down to $30 per term - less than actual cost of registration and record-keeping administration in some of the institutions.

Now Sen. Oneal believes, this limit ought to be taken off, and the state institutions allowed to charge reasonable registration fees. The relief, in his opinion this would afford would be:

Reduce amount of cost per student paid by the state.

Shift some of the registration back to the numerous excellent denominational and endowed schools, thus checking increased appropriations required to maintain more than a dozen state institutions.

Permit the denominational schools, now hard-pressed, to more nearly pay their way, and thus relieve the numerous drives upon the citizens who already are paying taxes for support of the state institutions.

"The state does not owe graduates of its colleges free education on through the Ph. D. degree," Sen. Oneal declared, expressing belief that fees should be scaled upward to bear more of the cost of the extensive graduate work now done at taxpayers' expense.

Mrs. J. F. Leeper Is Hostess For Clever Shower

Mrs. J. F. Leeper and her daughter, Miss Alice Leeper, were hostesses Saturday evening for a very clever shower honoring Miss Ruth Cardwell, of El Paso, who was married Sunday.

The rooms were artistically decorated with the slender graceful blossoms of the gladiolus.

After the guests had arrived a depression game was announced, at which each was told to give her remedy. The honoree's remedy suggested a "bread" line which the hostess told her to follow. It led her to a huge pink basket covered with crepe paper and ribbons and filled with attractive gifts.

While the bride-to-be was opening the gifts and admiring them, Miss Verbena Barnes read a clever poem she had composed in honor of the occasion, which mentioned all the names of the girls of the honoree's graduating class. This was followed by a toast to Miss Cardwell by Miss Elzie Jeannette Barnett.

During the refreshment punch was served with cakes on which were in pink, were the words, Bob and Ruth.

The guests were: Meses Cardwell, Agnes Currie, Naomi Lee, Clara Pool, Helen Hayden, Marion McDonald, Elsie Jeannette Barnett, Andrea Walker, Verbena Barnes; Meses G. Cardwell, A. L. Kent, Cecil Wasson, Bob Parks, Harry Williamson, Frank Powell and Willard Read.

Bride And Groom Honoree At Very Lovely Breakfast

Mrs. Robert Parks was hostess to Miss Ruth Cardwell, of El Paso, and members of the wedding party Sunday morning for a lovely breakfast at the Crawford Hotel.

The table was set in a private dining room. The lovely floral center piece was of roses, columbines and baby chrysanthemums on a silver.

Place cards represented brides and grooms.

The guests were Miss Ruth Cardwell, Mr. and Mrs. Omar Pittman, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Tamsett, Mrs. A. L. Kent, of Gibson, La., Mrs. Grace Cardwell, of El Paso, Mrs. William Robinson, of Toyah, Miss Agnes Currie, Robert W. Mathews, the groom, and his father, R. Mathews, both of El Paso, and Can Powell.

State Legislative Group Hard Put For New Revenue Source

AUSTIN - The federal government has "so nearly taxed everybody to death" that the Texas joint legislative tax committee is hard put in finding anything else to propose to tax, or any group of citizens or branch of industry that could stand any state tax increases, Sen. Ben G. Oneal, chairman of the tax survey, has indicated.

Sen. Oneal said the tax survey committee delayed adopting any proposals or program until it had seen what congress taxed, and that it has found the federal revenue act practically covered the entire field.

The tax survey is designed to adjust inequalities in taxation, and find sources which have been escaped a fair share of the tax burden; and to propose both revisions and reductions where possible.

Highway Bids To Be Taken

Much West Texas Work Included In New List

AUSTIN - The Texas Highway Commission advertised for bids on construction projects estimated to cost approximately $1,800,000. Lettings were set for June 20 and July 1.

Bids on projects asked by counties included:

Andrews: 12.7 miles grading, drainage structures and culch base course from Andrews to Gaines county line, highway 137.

Crocket: 15 miles culch base course, from Ozona east to Sutton county line, Highway 27.

Pecos: 13.8 mile culch base with single bituminous top, from Fort Stockton east and 24.6 mile culch base with triple bituminous top from 7.2 miles west of Fort Stockton west to Reeves county line, all on highway 27.

Runnels and Coleman: 14.9 mile culch and waterbound broken stone macadam base courses, from Ballinger east to Talpa, highway 22.

All-Stars In Victory Over Forsan 5 To 4

Madison's All-Stars Open Campaign Sunday Afternoon

Lois Madison's all-star city team won its first game of the season over Forsan 5 to 4 on the Forsan diamond Sunday afternoon.

The locals scored four runs in the eighth inning to cop the contest when a rally by the Forsan All-Stars in their half of the frame fell one run short of tying the score. Payne went the route for the city club, and with the exception of the eventful eighth was never in danger.

Bandit Robs Angelo Store

Unmasked Man Changes Mind About Buying, Takes Cash

SAN ANGELO - While others looked on unsuspectingly an unmasked bandit took $100 in cash from a clerk at the Piggly Wiggly number 5 grocery Saturday night. The robbery occurred at 10 o'clock as the store was closing.

The store, on North Chadbourne Street, at Twenty-third, twice before has been the victim of burglars, quantities of groceries and other merchandise being taken.

"Give me your money instead and be quick about it," the robber, small and well-dressed, told Leon Hallman, the victim, as he started to hand over a requested package of cigarettes.

Checks Are Saved

The cash in sight was given the man, but about $37 in cash and a large amount in checks in another compartment of the cash register were purposely overlooked by Mr. Hallman.

R. M. March, meat cutter and Bud Long, a customer, standing a few feet away, did not know anything had happened until the presumed customer had sauntered out the front door and around the corner and Mr. Hallman exclaimed that he had been robbed.

Automatic Was Used

A .32 or .35 calibre automatic pistol was used by the robber. He partly shielded the gun under his light brown suit.

Police said the hijacking was the first here since the "toy pistol" robbery of a filling station on West Beauregard three months ago.

County's First White Visitors

So Far As History Records, The Beales Colonists Were First White People To Leave Record At Spring

By LETA EDGAR

(Reprinted by permission from The Dallas News.)

There is a page missing from the early history of Texas, and research up until the present time has failed to produce anything definite regarding the lives or fate of its characters. What happened to the colony of one hundred Catholic families brought to this country from Massachusetts and New York by Dr. John Charles Beales during the years 1824-25 and settled somewhere in Western Texas near the banks of a river?

This question may always remain unanswered.

Dr. Beales failed to keep a permanent record of the history of the colony after it had been located upon the Beales and Royuela grant, and one can only conjecture what really occurred in the lives of the brave little band of colonists who came to conquer, but remained— it is thought—to perish.

In 1824 and up until the time of the Texas Revolution, Spanish land grants were being commonly issued. Enterprising persons from all sections of the United States and foreign countries, spurred by ambition, schemed to embark upon building empires in the great southwest. Of all the grants issued, the 60,000-acre grant secured by Dr. John Charles Beales, an Englishman from Massachusetts and Jose Manuel Royuela, a native of Estiello, Mexico, has probably caused the most controversy legally and the most speculation historically.

NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE UNDER ORDER OF SALE

By virtue of an order of sale issued out of the District Court of Howard County, Texas, on 13th day of June, 1932, on a judgment rendered in said court on 17th May, 1932, in favor of Wm. B. Currie in suit and cause No. 2111 on the docket of said court against T. C. Miller and H. F. Taylor, jointly and severally, for the sum of $2252.87, with interest on $2048.07 thereof from 17th day of May, 1932, at the rate of 8 per cent per annum and 8 per cent interest on $204.80 thereof and costs of suit and foreclosure of vendor's lien on Lot No. 12 in Block No. 53 in the town of Big Spring in Howard County, Texas, I did, on 13th day of June, 1932, at 2 o'clock p. m. levy upon said lot and parcel of land, and on 8th day of July, 1932, being first Tuesday of said month, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. at the courthouse door of said county, I will offer for sale and sell, at public auction, for cash, all the right, title and interest of the said T. C. Miller and H. F. Taylor, and each of them, in and to said property.

Dated at Big Spring, Texas, this 13th day of June, A. D. 1932.

where the town of Big Spring is located today. This was the starting point of the grant. They followed the banks of a stream winding in a northwesterly direction, according to Dr. Beales, in order to locate on sites on the Beales-Royuela grant. Until a few years ago, a large rock stood near Big Spring with a very old inscription designating the spot as a landmark at the place of beginning of this grant.

The remaining description of the grant is given as follows: "From thence it shall proceed along the parallel of the 32nd degree as far as the eastern limit of New Mexico. From thence it shall ascend to 185 north on the boundary line between the provinces of Coahuila, Texas and New Mexico as far as twenty leagues south of the River Arkansas. From thence it shall run east to the meridian of the 102nd degree of longitude which is the western boundary of the grant, petitioned for by said Col. Ruben Rosa. And from thence it shall proceed south as far as the place of beginning."

Therefore, a portion of Southern Colorado, Eastern New Mexico and Western Texas were included in the grant that Beales attempted to colonize, and the counties in West Texas that now remain a part of the original grant include Dallam, Hartley, Oldham, Deaf Smith, Bailey, Cochran, Yoakum, Gaines and Andrews.

Married Governor's Daughter It was doubtless the idea of Dr. Beales to place the colonists somewhere in the Panhandle territory. Just how far northwest the colony migrated or just where they pitched camp was not actually left as a record by Dr. Beales. He informed the Governor of Mexico as well as his partner, Royuela, that he had established his first contingent of Catholic families not far from the banks of a large river, and left them amply provided with supplies, plowshares, horses, cattle, firearms and ammunition. He related that the colonists bound themselves to comply with conditions; to take up arms against savage Indians and any other enemies, and to prevent the United States on the north from trading with the Indians.

Then he returned to Santa Fe and met LaGrande who had just returned from the first surveying expedition of the grant. It was at this juncture, we gather, that Dr. Beales acquired possession of Jose Royuela's part of the land grant; he then went back to Coahuila and married the daughter of the Governor. Rockwell's "Spanish and Mexican Law" contains forty-eight articles bearing upon the terms of the grant, and also vague information regarding the arrival and settlement of the 100 Catholic families from the East.

We next learn that LaGrande set out upon a second surveying trip but it is supposed he perished or was killed by Indians for he never returned. There is a legend that the Rio Grande was named in his honor because of his brave exploring expeditions.

Dr. Beales, during this time, returned to New York to secure the second contingent of 100 Catholic families, but this mission was never successfully completed. The Texas Revolution intervened and he was prevented from bringing the families into Texas. Whether he actually brought a portion of the families by boat or whether they came by land, was never known, for if they did arrive, they were forced to return East. Records show that Dr. Beales returned to Coahuila and reported his ill luck. The Governor of Coahuila must have been a good-natured person, for he assured Beales that due to the revolution in Texas, he considered that the Beales grant colonization contract had been carried out in good faith and presented him with a deed to that effect on March 14, 1832, signed by himself in the city of Leon, Mexico.

It was furthermore asserted by the Governor that since Beales had handed out a title containing from 177 to 423 acres of land for farming and grazing purposes to each family in his colony, he had done his duty by them. The colonists were to mark their boundary lines and establish permanent corners. A book was to be kept in which should be written titles and distribution of lands, names, boundaries, and the book to be preserved in the archives of the colony. This reverts to the question, did the colonists live long enough to keep such a record?

Apparently, everyone was satisfied with colonization arrangements except the colonists. Nothing has developed out of their whereabouts from this time on. The late Col. Charles Goodnight of Goodnight, Texas, knew Dr. Beales and considerable regarding his land grant. Goodnight related during his lifetime, according to a pioneer of Amarillo, that Beales even up until the time of his death worried about the fate of his colony, for he asked Colonel Goodnight to make a search for the families. Colonel Goodnight related to the Amarillo pioneer: "I searched over the Panhandle country and even down in New Mexico for many weeks at a time on three occasions but could find nothing concerning Dr. Beales' ill-fated colony. I could not traverse the entire Beales' grant horseback on one trip, so I finally gave up the search as I felt confident the families had met with disaster. The whole country was alive with Apache, Comanche and other Indian tribes at the time the colonists settled here and it is possible they were massacred."

Colonel Goodnight was one of the twenty-five original members of the Interstate Land Company, a Colorado corporation, which developed out of the early Beales grant, and he assisted in fighting the United States courts in an attempt to hold the land. Before the Interstate Land Company obtained the land, preceding titles to the grant were "Jose Manuel Royuela assigned all rights and title to Dr. John Charles Beales, Oct. 11, 1832. Dr. Charles Beales willed to James Alfred Graves Beales, a son; Adelaide Kerrison Joffrey, a daughter, and Anita Exter, a stepdaughter, all his property, share and share alike, July 2, 1873. James A. G. Beales, Eugenia K. Beales, Adelaide K. Joffrey, J. Hamilton Joffrey and Anita Exter transferred this grant to Newton B. Childs of Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 17, 1886. The latter transferred the grant to the Interstate Land Company of Denver, Dec. 12, 1886.

The decision rendered April 6, 1891, maintained that Dr. Beales' kingdom of land was not his kingdom really, but belonged to the United States. The decision on the part of the authorities in Washington at that period might have been influenced by the fact the Texas Revolution was followed by the Civil War and the feeling toward the rebels of this country was not particularly lenient. It was unfortunate, too, that a hot-headed cowboy from West Texas, in an argument over the matter with the Secretary of the Interior, is said to have whipped the Secretary. The Secretary sent troops to Texas to oust those claimants who had refused to relinquish the land.

Graves in Hutchinson County Mrs. Leora Coble Roberts of Amarillo, whose grandfather, E. G. Bullard, was one of the earliest settlers in Wichita County, states she believes that the Beales colony really migrated as far northwest as Hutchinson County and established homes along the banks of the South Canadian River. She states that her grandfather Bullard often spoke of the Eastern colony that had migrated into the Northwest country.

"My grandfather was postmaster at Tokasana and I recall when I was a small girl, fifty years ago, that mail directed to Fort Griffin and Fort Elliott often came from the East to our little village of Tokasana. The mail would be brought by stagecoach to our post-office and grandfather would attempt to get the mail routed out in order to reach the colony in Northwest Texas. Several years later, letters came to our post-office addressed to Hutchinson County. We never learned whether the mail ever reached the proper persons, but we did know that Catholic people had followed tributaries to the Brazos River and on to a post on Red River, near Canyon City today. We often heard that a small Spanish village had been erected on the banks of the South Canadian river after I married and moved to Hutchinson County I was interested to find the remains of this early village. There were signs of irrigation ditches, huts and even growing corn. There were, also several graves. I have always believed this to be the colony of Dr. Beales, which, after privation and considerable suffering, finally perished or was killed by Indians."

Mrs. Roberts' son-in-law, W. T. Cobles, now owns the famous Turkey Track ranch located in Hutchinson County where the early village was situated 100 years ago.

A few years ago, George Rowland, who lived in Hansford County, which adjoins Hutchinson County, explored the Adobe Walls ruins also on the Turkey Track ranch. These ruins played an important part in the battle of Adobe Walls which did not take place until 1874. Mrs. Olive K. Dixon, widow of Billy Dixon, who was present at the battle of Adobe Walls, states that her husband often spoke of the early colony that had once lived near Adobe Walls. "My husband said he had found traces of such a colony in 1868 when he first camped along the banks of the South Canadian," she said.

George Rowland, remembering the mystery of the Beales colony, spent several days digging into sand banks along the river and was rewarded by finding a very old grave which contained the bones of three persons, bits of homespun garments yellowed with age and a small gold cross inscribed with a single genuine diamond. The cross was about two and one-half inches in length and is supposed to have belonged to a Catholic priest. This would confirm Mrs. Roberts' belief that the Eastern colony had brought one or more priests with them, and so certain is Mrs. Roberts that this could have been the Beales colony in question that she says: "I'm an old woman now, but the evidence in Hutchinson County coincides so perfectly with the Beales land grant enterprise, I should not be surprised if continued research would reveal this to be the last home of the ill-fated colony."
