BIG FIELD DAY AT J. F. RUNGE'S WELL ATTENDED

The Second Annual Field Day of the Eldorado Divide Soil Conservation District was held at the J. Forrest Runge Ranch Friday, 225 registering for the event. The purpose of the meeting and the theme of the day was encouraging of interest in grass and grass improvement.

The meeting opened with general assembly at 11:00 a. m. At that time, Ben Osborn, on special assignment in making of range cover evaluation, demonstrated his machine—a rain applicator, which gauges the rain run-off and soil loss. The machine, which is the only one of its kind in existence, is composed of a tank mounted on a truck, with motor which pumps water to spray over an acre, simulating rain. By applying this "rain-fall" on bare ground and on good cover, the difference was brought out.

At noon a barbecue dinner was served by Mr. Runge to 225 guests. In the afternoon Bill Rountree, head of the local office, was master of ceremonies. He called on Mr. Runge, chairman of the board of supervisors, to make a talk on grass conservation, and on John Royl, supervisor of Menard, also on the same subject. Other speakers were Dave Foster, who is in charge of soil conservation at the SCS Grass Nursery at San Antonio, E. B. Keng, of Sonora, district conservationist, who talked on brush eradication, Dr. Young, head of the range department at A. and M., who talked on grass, grass roots, and management of grazing grasses, and Dorsey Hardeman, who talked on conservation.

The men then went to the field, where they stopped at a pasture which had been deferred a year. There they noticed how the better grasses were coming back in the rocky draw. Then they went to an upland site, and checked range conditions for cover, moisture, penetration, temperature, and range improvement. A final stop was made to demonstrate an upland site in poor and fair condition, learning there that the range will come back; the fact that better grasses were replacing the undesirable was pointed out, also the fact that there was more litter. Back at the house, Mr. Runge served watermelon, after which the group visited for awhile, then dispersed to their homes. Many expressed opinion that interest in the subject of grass had been stimulated and that the meeting was better than last year's good meeting.

The office personnel from Eldorado attended 100 per cent: Bill Rountree, Harry Lawson, Lloyd B. Johnson and Lilburn Hazelwood. Office personnel and supervisors from San Angelo, Sonora, Menard, Brady, Junction and other places were also in attendance, as were a large number of interested farmers and ranchers from West Texas. An editor from a magazine published by Humble was present and took pictures to be used in a future issue of their publication.

CRASH AT LOCAL AIRPORT FATAL TO OIL MAN

A crash at the edge of the Eldorado airport proved fatal Thursday evening to a former San Antonio attorney and oilman.

The victim of the crash was M. L. Massingill, 63, who died instantly. He was on his way to San Angelo in his plane when the accident occurred.

The accident was reported by Kenneth Doyle, a welder, who was near the airport at the time of the crash, and turned in the fire alarm. He said that the plane was a North American Navion and passed over the field once and then, apparently coming in for a landing, crashed about 200 yards west of the north-south landing strip. It did not burn.

The Ratliff ambulance being out on a call, a Cox ambulance from San Angelo was called and Dr. Brown from Sonora summoned as Dr. Holcomb was out of town at the time.

Massingill had attended Baylor University and the University of Texas, after which he practiced law in Ft. Worth. Before moving to San Antonio, he was a partner in a law firm with D. O. Belew in Ft. Worth. Massingill won especial renown for his golf playing while at Fort Worth. He was several times city champion and stood high in state and national amateur golf ranking. He was a four-letter man at the University of Texas and a member of the Exchange Club in Texas. He was a Shriner and World War I veteran.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Cordis Herring of Ft. Worth; a daughter, Mrs. Nancy Noland of San Antonio, and one grandchild.

Services for Massingill were held Saturday morning at San Antonio.

COOKING SCHOOL TO BE STAGED HERE NEXT WEEK

How would you like to cook your family's meals simply by turning a switch? Today, the homemaker can accomplish just that—cook a complete meal by just turning a switch. Mrs. Abigail Andrews, widely known Home Economist, will demonstrate the most recent and proven developments in modern cooking at the All-Electric Cooking School which will be held Thursday and Friday, July 13th and 14th at 2 p. m. at the Memorial building.

Mrs. Abigail Andrews

Mr. J. M. Pennington, West Texas Utilities Company local manager, has issued an invitation to all the housewives in Eldorado and the surrounding area to be his guest at the school which is planned as one of the biggest and best ever conducted here.

The two day school, sponsored by the West Texas Utilities Company, will be conducted by Mrs. Abigail Andrews, a senior Home Economist for Frigidaire Sales Corporation. Mrs. Andrews will be assisted by Loreen Moursund, Home Service Advisor for WTUCo's San Angelo district and by other members of the district staff.

Mrs. Andrews, who will present the very latest in food preparation and time saving methods, is a graduate Home Economist with more than fifteen years of practical experience. She has recently had special training in food preparation, preservation, and quick-freezing techniques at the nationally famous Frigidaire Home Economics Department at Dayton, Ohio.

Each day recipes and favors will be given to homemakers who attend the school. All the food used in demonstrating the modern electric way of food preparation will be presented to women attending the school.

Local Young Bank Clerk Recalls 14 Months' Experiences In Korea

J. C. Linsley, bookkeeper at the First National Bank, finds today's news about Korea unusually interesting. He spent 14 months in Seoul as a chief clerk in the United States Army of occupation.

Linsley arrived in Seoul the first of February, 1947, about a year after the occupation forces had moved in. He was a chief clerk in the billeting department of the United States armed forces in Korea.

Some of the things he learned about Korea came from education courses in camp, and some from general observation during the months he spent in the capital city.

"They'd get all of us together, and some missionary or advisor who had lived there a long time would tell us what we should know—things like how to act when visiting in the natives' homes, why we must eat every bit of food they serve us or risk offending them, etc.," says Linsley.

It was in mingling with the Koreans in the streets of the city, and in seeing them as they lived in town or country, that he gained much of his information concerning their interests and standard of living. The city of Seoul has some streets laid off according to the average plan for a city of that size—but these streets are surrounded by blocks of poor huts, with no streets, no alleys, and only trails leading through them. The population is unusually dense, the houses are only huts, and all are crowded close together, facing in all directions.

Many things show how extremely poor the peasant class of people are, he states. The average farmer lives and works under the most primitive of conditions. He uses oxen and wooden plows to raise his rice crop. He lives in a primitive hut of straw and dobe, and in general appearance looks as though his food supply was only at the subsistence level. Interspersed thru this poor country are the rural villages and small towns, composed of tiny straw and dobe huts, built helter skelter with no streets or alleys or sanitary facilities. The prosperous farmer is the one who has a good dirt floor, dobe walls and straw roof for a residence.

Linsley remembers the hundreds of refugees who had come into Southern Korea from North Korea, Manchuria, and Siberia, to escape from the Communists. These created a problem everywhere. Housed in tents and old buildings in refugee camps, they could be seen there, sitting on bags containing their belongings, or using such a bag for a pillow as they lay on the floor; some could also be seen living in dugouts along river banks or hills, eking out an existence in some way in these primitive living quarters which they entered through an old door or other covering at the opening.

"The children were pitiful," says Linsley, who remembers the little girls in their ragged ill-fitting dresses, and the little boys in tight trousers and black caps. Linsley relates an incident to show the low regard in which the Koreans hold human life. He was with a unit motor pool in a slum area of the city, where there are many dope addicts and other outcasts of society. Coming from guard duty at daybreak on a winter morning, he was horrified to discover a corpse of such a derelict lying in the street, evidently unclaimed and to all general appearance unidentified.

The first person who touches a corpse is responsible for it, according to Korean custom, which explains why no one will come to the rescue in a case like this. Linsley and the others were shocked at what they saw but passed on. Two weeks later he had occasion to return that way. The corpse was gone from the street—but the feet were protruding from a pile of refuse near by! This happened twice, states Linsley. Hungry men could often be seen near army camps, carrying pails on their arms to be filled from the garbage cans, then scurry off with their food. Practically the only means of heating in business buildings and homes is the charcoal burner. The climate is much like that of the United States, with hot summers and cold winters. A few burned wood, but there are few trees left to furnish fuel. Conditions everywhere seem primitive. Linsley remembers the women with their loads on their heads, the men with loads on racks fastened to their backs, others pulling rickshaws which are the city's taxis. While there are some modern buildings and residences, the majority of them are old and primitive. Many go to church. There are some Christian churches. Linsley remembers that he went to the Chung Dung Methodist Church at which an army chaplain preached to soldiers and dependents and Koreans, the white and native populations joining in religious services in about equal numbers. He recalls that the natives took home with them the leaflets prepared for them in their language. Many Buddhists could be seen entering and leaving their shrines also at any time of day. Linsley describes the Koreans as Oriental in appearance, with the dark yellow skin of the Chinese and Japs. He says that while some now wear western clothing, some of the men wear trousers with blousy leg, fitted tight at the ankle, a straight jacket, and a round hat with straight brim. With a standard of living which permits no luxuries, the girls and women are unattractive, spending their lifetime with no money for cosmetics or becoming clothing. Merchants were canny enough to make a bid for occupation force dollars. Linsley especially remembers a street called Black Market Street, which was a mass of people so close together that a car could not move through, and which offered silks and jewelry on the store counters, to shoppers who had the money to buy them. There was Communist trouble at intervals. With Seoul 30 miles from the 38th parallel, much was heard in the city about trouble between the Rightists (Communists) and the Leftists. Linsley remembers watching the demonstrations put on in the city streets by the opposing parties. These often got out of control and there would be fighting, and soldiers would be alerted to help put down the trouble. There was friction often during the time Linsley was stationed there. As most of the natural resources were located in Northern Korea, controlled by Russia, and the capital city received its hydro electric power from there, electricity was sometimes cut off until the differences could be temporarily ironed out. In recalling the state of poverty in which the majority of the Koreans live, Linsley remarks, "You would expect us to fight for our own country, because we have such a lot to fight for, but I wonder why those Koreans would fight much to defend their land, when they have so little to give their lives for."

GRIM CALMNESS DESCRIBES MOOD OF NAT. CAPITOL

By Cong. O. C. Fisher

A grim calmness pervaded the Capitol last week as the Korean situation was watched with an interest reminiscent of war days. The President's dramatic and historic announcement that we would use military force to protect Formosa and South Korea was received in Congress with jubilation and approval. The extension of the draft law for a year—a few weeks ago somewhat controversial—was passed by the House with but four dissenting votes a few hours after the President's announcement.

The invasion into South Korea was not unexpected. It had been forecast for months, and many had urged the President last year to tell the world we would lend military assistance to South Korea if it should be attacked. But it was announced months ago that both Formosa and Korea were not considered essential to U. S. defense. Now, however, the picture has changed and little Korea has become the symbol of freedom, of the right to live in peace and security in a world surrounded by Communist brigands.

If you will look at your map you will see that Korea is a peninsula jutting out into the sea of Japan, a hundred miles from Tokyo. It is bounded on the northwest by Manchuria for some 500 miles, and its landed area is within 100 miles of Russia's Vladivostok. In area it is a third the size of Texas but with more than four times as many people.

Korea is highly strategic militarily from the standpoint of both Russia and Japan. Long ago Korea became to Japan "a dagger pointed at her heart." In fact Russia and Japan fought two wars in the past over control of Korea, with Japan winning the 1904 contest. So, in 1910 Japan annexed the peninsula and it remained that way until the close of World War II.

Back in 1943 the United States, China and Great Britain pledged at the Cairo Conference that Korea would become independent. And later Russia subscribed to this pledge at Potsdam. But meantime at Yalta in 1945, a secret agreement is reported to have been made for Russia to capture North Korea to the 38th parallel, when she entered the Japanese war. The U. S. was to occupy the southern part. The theory was that the military occupations would be temporary and that a free democratic government would be set up. We complied with our part of the bargain and withdrew our 80,000 troops in January of 1949.

a free election or join in any sort of united government. Instead, a puppet government in the North was set up, asserting control over the south as well. A free election conducted by the United Nations created the Southern Republic, and it claimed jurisdiction over the north where the Russians would not permit an election.

In the meantime the United Nations took a hand to try to break the stalemate. A U. N. commission was sent to Korea to get the facts. But it was stopped at the 38th parallel and was not allowed inside the Russian dominated portion. The election in the south followed.

Moscow claimed its troops were withdrawn from Korea in December of 1948.

Now the UN has condemned the recent invasion, and the United States, supporting the UN declaration is giving military aid to the embattled southerners.

General consensus here seems to be that if Russia throws her full military support behind the invasion, the south will be overrun. But most people think Russia, through her puppet, is simply probing a soft spot in the free world to find out how far they can go without having the free world hit back.

But now the free world is hitting back. If the free world had hit back at Hitler and at Japan in the 30's, perhaps World War II could have been averted. And Russia has now been told that this kind of monkey business will not be tolerated by Uncle Sam; that appeasement is out; that a show-down on the effectiveness and integrity of the UN is at hand; that the Russian postwar crimes against free people will be challenged around the world.

As one observer said, the future of the free world is at stake. We have a chance to stop the Russians today without war; if we fail to make the most of that chance, then on some future day, as surely as the sun rises and sets, we shall have to try to stop them with a war that could end in the ruin of our civilization.

Miss Harper Honored At Coffee Saturday

Mrs. L. W. Steen, Mrs. Claude Meador, Mrs. S. D. Harper and Miss Edda Lou Meador were hostesses Saturday morning at a coffee which announced the approaching marriage of Miss Emily Ann Harper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Harper, to Homer Cleveland Wolfe of Kermit.

The announcement was made on small white napkins with "Emily Ann and Homer, July 29, 1950," inscribed on them in green.

The table, which carried out Miss Harper's chosen colors of green and white, was laid with a white lace tablecloth and centered with glads, fern, and feverfew.

In the receiving line were Mrs. D. E. DeLong, Miss Myrta Bob Harper, Mrs. S. D. Harper, and Emily Ann.

Misses Ebba Ann Finley and Jane Mund poured coffee, and Miss Joyce Burk and Mrs. Henry Speck, Jr., alternately presided at the registrar, where 105 guests registered during the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ray of Odessa and Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Edmiston spent three days this week end on the Llano River.

Buck Bailey, Coach At Washington U., Visits Relatives Here

Buck Bailey, brother of Mrs. Mattie Cozzens and former resident was in Eldorado this past week visiting and attending the Mias Amigas Club meeting.

Mr. Bailey is head football and baseball coach at the University of Washington in Pullman and had just returned from an intercollegiate baseball tournament in Omaha, Neb., where his Washington State baseball team took second place, beaten in the finals by the Texas University team.

Mr. Bailey also visited in Ozona while in this part of the country with his brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Bailey. While in Ozona he made a talk for the Lions Club, in which he stated that boys from the Southwest mature faster and that the best high school football teams in the United States are from Texas. He stated that he could use some of the bright prospects of today, but according to a new Pacific Coast Conference ruling, member schools cannot solicit players from other areas.

Mr. Bailey is a great football star of yesteryears but is better known in these parts for his prowess on the baseball field.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pool of Girvin spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Turnbow and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Turnbow.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Wheeler and Mr. and Mrs. Sam E. Jones left Saturday evening on a vacation trip to Mexico City.

New Type License Used For Renewals

With the issuance of the new Texas operator, commercial and chauffeur license forms, holders of the old type of permits are confused as to how renewal should be done, it was announced recently by the driver's license division of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

The top part of the old type should be torn off and mailed with a money order to the division at Box 4087, North Austin Station, Austin. Operator's permits must be renewed every two years, while commercial and chauffeur licenses require renewals every year," it was pointed out.

In the new type of permit, holders will be notified by the department 30 days in advance of the expiration date of their licenses. The new forms went into effect in February.

The new type will be issued when request for renewal of the old permits are made.

Mr. and Mrs. Clemens Sauer spent last Thursday night in Fort McKavett fishing.

wonder if it could be possible for a balloon to come all the way from Texas to Florida. Well, I sure found one of yours afloat in the Gulf of Mexico off Clearwater Beach, Florida, while I was swimming, Sunday, June 18, 1950." He sent the balloon along too, and asked them to write him, if they knew how the balloon got there. Well, we don't know how it got there, and we are not much surprised. This Texas gas (hot air) stretches over a lot of territory sometimes.—Eden Echo.

Church Bid Considered

At the morning service this coming Sunday at the Big Lake First Baptist Church, members will vote on the recommendation of the building committee that the church accept the proposed bid of Joe Tharp, San Angelo contractor, for the erection of a new building, it was learned from Billy Boyd, chairman of the committee.

Mr. Tharp's bid calls for a completed building with an Austin stone finish at an approximate cost of $88,224.00 which will include architect fees, plumbing and electrical work.—Big Lake Wildcat.

Menard To Vote

Menard County Commissioners' Court met in a special session on Monday and ordered two bond elections for Saturday, July 22, same date of the Democratic primary. One order calls for an election on the question of the issuance of $80,000 in bonds for hospital purposes. The second calls on election to decide upon the issuance of $50,000 worth of bonds for park improvements.

Representatives of the Menard Community Project Committee, with Chairman Henry Reeve as spokesman, appeared before the court and requested that the petition on file be modified by dropping the swimming pool from the proposed community project, thereby cutting the original figure of $80,000 to $50,000.—Menard News.

Water Shortage

A shortage of city water is in prospect for Robert Lee soon unless rains are forthcoming.

In the meantime Thornton & Son are busy with their contract for laying new water mains and building a water treatment plant at the Mt. Creek lake site.

City officials plan to run a new 2-inch water line to the north part of town at once. They hope to use water from the new lake within a few weeks even though the filtering plant will not be finished by that time. The lake now has 45 acre feet of water.—Robert Lee Observer.

Oglesbys Celebrate

Last week Mr. and Mrs. Sam Oglesby celebrated their 63rd wedding anniversary at their beautiful home on the outskirts of Mertzon.

District Organizes

First steps toward compiling the "program and plan" of work for the newly created Crockett County Soil Conservation District were taken by the board of supervisors at a meeting at the courthouse Monday evening.

The program and plan as finally written will constitute one of the most complete surveys of all past and existing conditions within the district and from the information thus compiled the district's soil saving and range improvement planning will be planned and followed by co-operating ranchmen.—Ozona Stockman.

New Wildcat

Latest official information on the status of the J. K. Davis and others No. 1 Mrs. W. Faulkner oil test well on the Sutton-Kimble boundary line, which is creating widespread interest, was not available at press time but all indications are that it will open a new field on the North Llano.

The one subject on which there is general agreement is the probability of further exploration in the immediate future. Royalty buyers have enough faith in the possibility to be paying from $50 to $100 per acre, it is reported. Buyers are scrambling to locate open land, although most of the western part of Kimble has been under lease for years. It is rumored that four additional locations are being made.—Junction Eagle.

Advertising Travels

We believe with most business men that it pays to advertise. But we think the Harris Motor Company is overdoing it a little, especially in distance. And we find a man way down in Florida who seems to agree with us. Here is the story:

In November, 1949 when the Harris Motor Co., displayed its new Fords the kids were given balloons with the Company's name and address on them. Some of the balloons were filled with gas and thrown out the back door. Last week the local firm received a letter from a man in Clearwater, Florida, which is near Tampa and St. Petersburg, saying in part, "I

GIVE THE PERSON YOU ARE TELEPHONING TIME TO ANSWER

Wait at Least 10 Rings

Very often the person you are telephoning cannot drop everything to answer the telephone. So, when telephoning, it's a wise policy to wait a minute—that's ten rings—before hanging up.

This gives the person you are calling a reasonable time to answer. You'll also be likely to complete a lot more telephone calls this way. And your consideration will help us to serve everyone more efficiently by cutting down the number of "in-completed" calls. So always wait 10 rings—won't you, please?

your Best Foot forward

WE think you'll agree that the whole story of an automobile isn't told in its power, its room, its styling, even in its ride.

There is the all-important point about what a car does to you—and that's where ROADMASTER really shines.

For you can't slip into this bonny beauty's broad seats without feeling like somebody pretty special.

When you take its neat wheel in your hand—when you cut loose, with a toe-touch, the rich baritone of its big Fireball straight-eight power plant—when you feel the smooth surge of its Dynaflo-cushioned take-off—Man, then you know you've got a real automobile!

And don't overlook this: That graceful sweep of chrome along the fender—found on no other car made today—is a mighty eye-catching note of distinction.

Those four Ventiports, too, cause many a head to turn—they mark you unmistakably as the owner of the biggest and best Buick built—a car as fine and rich as any man has need for.

There are a lot of good, solid, dollars-and-cents reasons for making ROADMASTER your choice over any other car: Its size. The commanding performance of its 152-hp Fireball valve-in-head straight-eight engine. Dynaflo Drive standard: A ride that's quite matchless in its gentle softness. Distinguished styling from bold, protective front end to gleaming "double bubble" taillight.

But if you're ready for a car that's more than just an automobile—if you want one that puts your best foot forward in any company—that's the real reason for seeing your Buick dealer quickly—to talk turkey about a ROADMASTER.
