Fuel Is Given To Bonus Army

To Speak Here Determined To Go To Washington "And Wait" Big Spring found herself with 200 new residents whose wish to be temporary as possible and to be on their way to the national capital was graciously granted by officials Friday evening when the motorized division of the California "bonus army" drove in, gassed for gasoline and lubricating oil and parked itself on East Third street to await the fuel.

When City Manager Spence and Mayor Pickle were found to be out of the city T. W. Ashley, president of the chamber of commerce, and Sheriff Jess Slaughter "stood good" for the gasoline and oil. Mr. Spence arrived, however, by

"When anyone asks for help as a veteran," said Bryant, "make him produce evidence of having been in the army. Make him show an honorable discharge."

Bryant recently uncovered two men pretending to be bonus marchers. They had never seen service.

"It is in justice to the people of Big Spring that I make this request," he said. "I do not want to see our citizens hoodwinked. If there is doubt about some person asking aid, call me or any Legion member."

He quickly made an arrangement with the Howard County Refining Company, Mr. Ashley, local agent of the Texas company, furnished a tank truck. The Couden company furnished some men and a place to do the re-fueling.

All Gassed Up. After four hours of hard work by the corps of Couden men, Mr. Ashley personally, L. W. Croft, local legionnaire and a number of others, the last of the long line of automobiles was sent on its way to Sweetwater.

When the work was finished 800 gallons of gasoline and 41 gallons of lubricating oil had been issued for traveling rations to the Californians. The City of Big Spring agreed to pay the cost.

Texans Arrive With John Garner Mule

CHICAGO (AP)—Gordon Fetter and Orville Scheidt arrived Saturday dressed in cow puncher clothes and embraced with a mule they alternated in riding across the country.

The mule's back bore the sign "Port Isabel, Texas, to Chicago for John Nance Garner."

Fetter explained that "we tried other candidates but the mule balked. She gained thirty pounds with the Garner sign on her."

Roosevelt supporters and opponents entrenched for a battle over the two-thirds rule. Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois released the Illinois delegation vote. Roosevelt managers said it meant 25 more votes for the New York governor and rendered his nomination on the first ballot certain but their claims were disputed.

A brisk prohibition argument developed among the nine members of a resolutions sub-committee named to write a tentative party platform and it adjourned its first session without action any plank. A majority of the sub-committee was believed to favor prohibition plank calling for submission of retention or repeal to the voters.

The resolutions committee Saturday night held a long session in which drys and wets argued prohibition. Boos and applause greeted the talk of Bishop James Canon Jr. for a dry plank. Pierre Du Pont, Delaware, urged rapid submission.

CHICAGO (AP)—Crystallization of a long awaited bill if Gov. Roosevelt of New York is nominated without the customary two-thirds majority gave pro-convention activities of Democrats a whirling start here Saturday.

The coalition took organized form during the day as several more party stalwarts sided against abrogation of the two-thirds rule at this time.

For the moment the fight over the rule was the big question of the convention, enveloping to a large degree all hopes of opposing factions at war over Roosevelt in his bid for the party leadership.

A round robin pledging signers not to support any candidate not receiving two-thirds of the convention votes was drawn up by anti-

RAMON NAVARRO STARRED IN "HUDDLE" PLAYS DIFFERENT TYPE OF ROLE; OPENS TODAY

His Portrayal Of Tony Amatto, Tough Italian Mill Hand Who Enters Yale—Brings Many Favorable Comments

Ramon Navarro attempts a radically different type of role in his new starring picture, "Huddle," which will start today at the Ritz Theatre.

His portrayal as Tony Amatto, tough Italian mill hand who enters Yale University, gives him an opportunity for some of the most aggressive and virile action of his career. He spent weeks with a coach to learn football technique. In scenes of Varsity games, Navarro plays in a lineup with many famous All-American and noted stars, including Ernie Pincart, Jess Hibbs, Dale Van Sickle, Don Hill and others.

"Derby Day" Depicted—Many actual camera scenes at Yale University were used as an authentic background for the production which contains many of the old traditions of this famous institution. The celebrated Derby blooded with the fervor of the Italian race. He wins a scholarship while working in a steel mill and attends Yale against his father's wishes. His pride makes things very difficult for him until he becomes a football hero and wins athletic honors.

He is accepted by many students, but is still unpopular socially. Rosalie, daughter of the president of the mill in which Tony worked, is still his ideal, but his workaholic has become insufferable to her.

The manner in which contacts and experiences help Tony to find himself form a gripping theme for the picture, which was adapted from Francis Wallace's story. The strong supporting cast includes such well-known players as Madge Evans, Una Merkel, Ralph Graves, John Arledge, Frank Albertson, Kane Richmond, Martha Sleeper, Henry Armetta, Ferike Boros, Rockcliffe Falkow and Joe Sauer, Sam Wood directed.

Kay Francis Opens Week At The Queen

'Street Of Women' Vehicle For Popular Brunette Player

Kay Francis has one overwhelming thing that has gone unfulfilled for three years. Each year she fondly hopes she will be able to satisfy it. And each year her work has made it impossible.

She longs to visit Havana. Kay is an indefatigable and enthusiastic traveler. She has visited most of the countries of western Europe more than once. She knows her England, France and Holland well. By the time Havana found a place on her mental itinerary, however, pictures had begun to usurp most of her time, particularly that part of the year when Havana is a good place to visit. Winter is the season in the West Indies, of course, and winter is a star's busiest season in the studios.

Since her entrance into filmdom in 1929, Kay Francis has hoped against hope that the studios program would afford her a sufficient leisure interval to make even a hurried trip to the Cuban capital. Before that she couldn't afford it. "I think it must be the Spanish blood of my great grandmother stirring in me," laughed the vivacious, drab-haired star, as she sat on the set between scenes for her present Warner Brothers starring vehicle, "Street of Women," which will be shown today, Monday and Tuesday at the Queen theater.

"But I'll get to Havana one of these years—if I have to take a sabbatical year from acting to do it!"

Tallulah In 'The Cheat' At Ritz Tuesday

Irving Pichel Plays Opposite Miss Bankhead Here Two Days

Tallulah Bankhead, star of "Tarnished Lady" and "My Sin" in both of which talking features, she scored individual triumphs far beyond the plot opportunities, has a role minutely fitted to her enigmatic, excitement-craving self in "The Cheat," a modernized Paramount edition of Hector Turnbull's industry box-office leader of silent days. She has the role created then by Fanny Ward.

With Irving Pichel, gifted character artist most recently featured in "An American Tragedy," and "The Road to Reno," in the "branding" role originally done by Sessue Hayakawa, there is no reason to believe that this feature, to be headlined at the Ritz theater week beginning Tuesday and Wednesday will not prove as popular as its non-vice predecessor.

George Abbott, who directed "My Sin" and "Secrets of a Secretary," gets the same assignment here. The story tells of an alluring woman intrigued by the love-making of a mystic man of oriental culture. In spite of the fact that she is happy and satisfied with her husband, she permits this flirtation and a gambling debt to draw her into the power of the intruder. He writes a check to pay one of her obligations. In the meantime money is provided with which she cancels the check, but the enslaved lover refuses to consider her promise filled. The later sequences reveal how she is branded and the dramatic suspense, which follows when her vengeful shooting of the tormentor, brings herself and husband to a notorious position in court.

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

Another conference with Lois Madison, the skipper of the city all-star nine that will uphold the honor of Big Spring in the Carnival of Values, brings forth the news that the draw will be held in the office of the Big Spring Herald on Saturday evening at approximately 8 o'clock, maybe a few minutes later and by no means a second earlier. Mr. Madison himself will be on hand to supervise the proceedings and all other managers are requested to either be present or have an officially appointed proxy present.

Ten teams are at present registered with the barber shop magnate for play. Outstanding among them are Forsan, Coahoma and Big Spring. Ackley and "Monk" Pritchard of Fairview may hurt his team to one or two victories.

Lorraine has been tendered a special invitation to be on hand. One of the players on their undefeated nine is none other than "Blacky" Adams, who has slugged in many a run while in a Big Spring uniform, playing on both the shop and West Texas league teams.

One of the news dispatches on hand announce that a third fight between Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling is planned "to settle definitely the heated controversy over their supremacy."

According to 85 per cent of the experts in ring-side seats Tuesday night among them such men as Gene Tunney, James J. Corbett, Paul Goddard, etc., the issue was settled decisively then. Their decision, it might be added, did not agree with the vote of the judges that gave the heavy-weight championship to the Boston savior.

"I was never more surprised in my life than when Humphries announced that Sharkey had won," Corbett, one of the greatest heavyweights of them all writes, "and for a minute I could not believe my ears."

And Gene Tunney, the man who converted retreat into an offense with his punches while peddling backwards at high speed, gave exactly ten of the fifteen rounds to the German counterpart of Jack Dempsey.

Gallico stated that he had heard all of his life that a foreigner could not get a square deal in America, especially in New York, but this was the first time he had ever had reason to believe the tradition.

"If such was the case it was impossible for the German fighter to gain the judge's decision, the Rhineland fighter to be happy to know that Schmeling, like Dempsey, is more popular in defeat than he was in victory and that great sports writers like Sparrow McGann whose fight stories are read eagerly by millions radio authorities like Stugger Cox and Graham McManes, and veterans of the ring like Corbett, Tunney and Loughran all were eager to dispute the countryman's decision."

Big Spring's surprising "in-and-outer," George Dabney, registered the most startling victory of the city play yesterday by defeating Bill Savage 6-1, 5-1 in the second round. Dabney was doped to win by a slight margin, if at all, but as usual went against routine to win handily. Savage, a good net player, was unable to cope with the fast, fat drives Dabney whipped over.

Finals for a thorough test of his surprising strength.

There is a tradition in baseball that the club in first place on July 27 will win the pennant of their respective league. In the National loop the Chicago Cubs are hanging on to first place, but there is exactly six and one-half games between Roger Hornsby's club and the last place Cincinnati team. The Cardinals are in seventh place. In the American league the Yankees have a 19-12 game lead over the Detroit Tigers, and if Connie Mack's Athletics, in third place, wish to repeat their triumph of the last two years Meigs Grove, Earshaw, Fox and Simmons had better begin in a hurry.

In the Texas league, which will be undoubtedly split within the week, Houston is two and a half games behind Beaumont.

'The World And The Flesh' Romance Of Russian Revolution

The explosive war-time career of a famous "mystery ship" is re-incarnated for the purpose of numerous scenes in "The World and the Flesh" latest George Bancroft picture, which comes to the Ritz Theater on Thursday next for a one day run.

The ship is the Playa de Ensenada, one-time American army transport, which was subsequently used for many months as a North Sea scourge of rapacious enemy submarines in those submarine-infested waters, during the world war.

In making the scenes for "The World and the Flesh," the Playa de Ensenada was used in and out of San Pedro Harbour, California in the pier and sea sequences of this film, a romance of a Red pirate in the days of the Russian revolution in 1917.

The Ensenada has a 65-foot beam and was constructed to be a transport. After several trips across the Atlantic she was re-equipped with numerous hidden guns and sent out as a camouflaged mystery ship to trap enemy submarines.

The method of entrapment, as explained by a student of warfare, was for the Ensenada to surrender apparently to a submarine. Many members of the crew would take to life boats and when the submarine came to the surface to take over the ship, the hidden batteries would blaze out, sinking the sub-sea raider.

Operating in this manner, the Playa de Ensenada succeeded in sinking six submarines. Her sister ship, similarly equipped for sea warfare, accounted for four of the wolves of the sea.

George Bancroft is seen as the captain of this vessel. In the changing fortunes of the hectic days depicted by the film, Bancroft subsequently becomes, in turn, a stoker working in the hold of the ship—and later the master of the vessel again.

Five-hundred Russian extras were used in the atmosphere scenes of this production.

Miriam Hopkins heads the supporting cast which includes Alan Mowbray, George E. Stone, Mitchell Lewis, Oscar Apfel and Reginald Barlow.

RAIL TRANSPORTATION IS EFFICIENT AND ECONOMICAL

● THE RAILROAD is the most efficient and the most economical transportation agency the human mind has ever devised.

The ability of commercial trucks to operate with various charges for their services has been because they are not required to carry all kinds and classes of freight. The truck can choose its freight and is privileged to reject that which it cannot handle, either because it is not equipped for such heavy service or the rates are too low, to be profitable. The railroad CANNOT DISCRIMINATE but must accept all freight offered it.

In 1930 the shippers of Texas paid the railroads $225,223,142 in freight charges. If the same volume and character of traffic had been carried by trucks it would have cost the shippers, according to the best available data on trucking costs, $900,000,000, or four times as much.

What will be the effect on the shippers of Texas if only the traffic which the trucks cannot handle is left to the railroads? If traffic paying the higher rate is taken from the railroads by the trucks, it will be necessary for the rail carriers to increase their rates on the low grade traffic or go out of business. The total transportation bill will be greatly increased.

The railroad rate structure is a composite designed for the purpose of enabling the free movement of ALL ARTICLES OF COMMERCE, making it possible to bring even the cheapest commodities into general use and distribution. Were it not for the low rates made available by the railroads on many low grade commodities and raw materials, their distribution and use would be impossible and all commerce and industry would be seriously affected.

● THE RAILROADS CANNOT SUBSIST ON LOW, GRADE TRAFFIC ALONE.

High Taxes, Low Farm Crop Prices Chief Interests Of Citizens Out In Small Communities In Nebraska

By RALPH H. TURNER
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., (UP)—High taxes, unemployment, absurdly low prices for farm products, the high cost of government—these are the political thoughts that race through the minds of men who live along the rich lands of the Missouri valley in south-eastern Nebraska. There is a confusion about it all.

The residents of this town and Falls City, farther south, do not necessarily talk in terms of political partisanship. But they are emphatic about the realities of today, and they say these realities are the things that should concern politicians.

The moral or constitutional phases of prohibition are decidedly secondary, although they say in Falls City it might be a good idea to legalize the sale of liquor, because perhaps this would mean more jobs and government revenue would lighten the tax burden. "We have 3,000 customers in the bank and 1,000 in the drug store," says the farmer's bank. "I see them all from time to time. They say government expenses must be cut, that taxes are too high, and that we must live like we did back in the 90's. They don't talk much about prohibition. They talk about how much money is spent in Washington and about low prices they get for their corn and wheat and cattle and hogs and their fruit. Why, one man told me today, he had had to sell his eggs as low as five cents a dozen."

Up walked J. W. Haberg, one of the 5,000 customers, who is agent here for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, and also owns a farm. "The taxes on my farm last year," he said, "were $422.97. Back in 1922 they were about $100. The government should stop spending money and reduce taxes."

On the opposite corner, J. C. Thygeson, proprietor of the drug store, remarked that business would be bad until the farmer got more money for his produce. "But Hoover's done as well as anyone could," he added. "Down in Falls City, like this town, about 7,000 in population, the people talked much the same way. 'A lot of the people are sore about it,' thought A. B. Rose, who conducts a corner store. 'Taxes are up and prices are down. They think prohibition maybe should be repealed because then the government could tax liquor.'"

"The money goes to the bootlegger now," remarked I. J. Gelsin, owner of the People's Store. "So long as people are going to buy liquor, anyway, why not let the government get the money for it?"

W. A. Crook, owner of a hardware store, said: "I'd be indicted if I told you what I thought. The government is full of racketeers."

Prison System Packing Plant In Operation

HOUSTON, (UP)—The Texas prison system's $100,000 packing plant, built by convict labor to furnish meat for all state institutions, began operating today on the new unit at central penal farm near Sugarland in Fort Bend county.

Prison Manager Lee Simmons, W. A. Paddock, chairman of the prison board and members of the board witnessed the opening. Gov. Sterling was unable to attend.

Capt. E. J. Flanagan, manager of the farm, said the plant will supply 35,000 pounds of meat daily to inmates of the prison system and other state institutions. The new $250,000 unit also includes a cannery and a modern barracks to house 260 prisoners.

Eighteen Candidates File Expense Reports

AUSTIN (UP)—Eighteen candidates for public office filed their first campaign expense accounts with secretary of state Jane Y. McCallum here.

Frank Putnam of Houston, candidate for governor, listed campaign contributions received as $47.20, expenses $45.40. "Balance in the treasury, $1.80," read the account.

George W. Armstrong, steel manufacturer who seeks to succeed governor Ross S. Sterling, received no campaign contributions, according to his account. His expenses totaled $1,701 of which $115 was spent for radio advertising.

Mrs. Ida M. Darden, candidate for congress-at-large, placed 1 listed total expenses as $1,100.50, of which $310 was spent for postage. Campaign contributions totaled $540. The largest contribution listed was $250 from John H. Kirby, Houston.

L. A. Seymour, Austin, candidate for commissioner of agriculture, listed total expenses at $37 and contributions at $25.

Judge George W. Barcus, candidate for re-election as associate justice of the 10th court of civil appeals, Waco, spent $109.13 for printing and $143.28 for stamps, his account showed.

The time for filing early campaign expense accounts ends Saturday evening.

Huey The Kingfish
HUEY LONG'S claim that he is the kingfish of Louisiana politics is not without foundation in fact.

This was made evident anew recently when the legislature tried a resolution calling on Long to go back to Washington and attend to his duties as a senator and quit meddling with state politics.

The vote by which this resolution was tabled was 71 to 12, indicating that the Long grip on the Louisiana legislature is just as firm as ever.

The resolution recited that "Long's place is in Washington and he should not be here trying to steal credit from the governor."

Probably the United States senate would table the same resolution by a similar majority. Long isn't exactly popular with his fellow-senators and the senate would prefer that he stay in Louisiana and meddle in state politics to his heart's content, so long as he remains absent from Washington.

Single-Track Speeches

NEWSPAPERS have made the interesting discovery that Al Smith's animadversions on the Hawley-Smoot tariff, made on the occasion of the Jefferson Day banquet in Washington April 13, were exactly duplicated—word by word phrase by phrase—by Mr. Roosevelt in his St. Paul speech April 15.

It is an interesting example of great minds running in the same channel. Maybe, Mr. Smith points out that he spoke first, which seems to pass the buck to Mr. Roosevelt.

What happened possibly, is that Messrs. Smith and Roosevelt—or whoever wrote their speeches for them—got most of their ammunition from one of the handouts with which the democratic national organization floods the country. The remarks on the tariff were copied verbatim. How else can you explain the coincidence? Certainly Mr. Roosevelt would not consciously plagiarize from Mr. Smith, seeing as to how the present New York governor has no particular reason to ape or compliment the former New York governor.

The incident is an interesting commentary on American political methods—and politicians. Do politicians—even the ones who aspire to become president—do their own thinking, or do they parrotlike accept as gospel the lucubrations of others? The practice of hiring a back to write your speeches is not an unusual one in political ranks.

Woodrow Wilson is the only recent president who escaped the suspicion that somebody else wrote his speeches. Whenever Wilson had anything to say, he said it in Wilsonian English. He had a single-track mind, but it was the Wilson track.

Edgar E. Witt Favors John Garner, Opposes Liquor Referendum

AUSTIN (UP)—Lieut. Gov. Edgar E. Witt here declared the nomination of John N. Garner for president and not prohibition was the most important task before the national Democratic convention.

Delegates to the convention have no authority to declare the party for repeal, Witt declared. "Certainly the delegates from Texas are not authorized to vote for such a plank in the platform. The Texas delegates are instructed to vote for a referendum on the issue of repeal," he said.

Lieut. Gov. Witt will join the special train for Chicago at Dallas Friday afternoon.

Seeks Office

Ed T. Murphy

Ed T. Murphy, of Polk County, who is a candidate for the Railroad Commission to succeed Pat M. Neff, resigned, was in Dallas Headquarters today planning his opening meeting at some East Texas town, as yet undetermined. It is probable that the opening of the Murphy campaign will be held in Madisville, the home of his close friend and former legislative colleague, Representative Henry Turner.

Murphy's Dallas headquarters are in charge of another of his legislative colleagues, Representative Ray Holder of Lancaster. Murphy and Holder were classmates in the University of Texas twenty years ago and there has always been a warm friendship between the two. Holder today assured Murphy that a large number of the Dallas County votes would go for the Polk County man, as there was a definite movement to settle on Murphy because of his long experience in state affairs and because of his familiarity with the work of the Railroad Commission. Murphy was a member of the various legislators which wrote most of the laws fixing the duties of the Commission through his legislative contacts with the work of the Commission.

In his East Texas opening speech Murphy will say that he is for the strictest economy in the operation of the Commission, but that he believes that it should act promptly and without delay on all matters before it, and thereby save litigants and the state much expense. Murphy will also say that he is for the regulation of the public utilities in this state and that if elected to the Commission, he will follow his spirit and the letter of the law in their proper regulation.

Another section of Murphy's opening speech will say that he favors the conservation of the natural resources of the state and that proper proration is the only remedy to save the oil fields so that all of the people of the state may benefit.

The Physician - The Minister

---The Men Who Are The First to Greet You and the Last to See You

Most of us saw the light of day and were brought through many early trials and troubles by the faithfulness and skill of the family physician. And aside from our families, no two individuals have a more important part in the drama of life. The physician is usually the first and last—the first to greet us and the last to serve us. Do we attach proper significance to the responsibility of the physician? Perhaps—or perhaps not.

Regardless of individual opinion on this point, it is a fact that there is no profession—and no business—in which the entire period of preparation is gone through without remuneration and but few, if any, require even an approximate length of time. Circumstances and human nature combine in making it difficult for the young physician to establish a profitable practice for a considerable period after he is fully qualified to serve.

The physician, like the minister, serves humanity because of their desire to do something for their fellowmen. Do physicians rush to a plague stricken country for the same reason men follow a boom? You know differently. Neither do they answer your call at midnight or later for the two or three dollars fee. They do it because they are serving an ideal.

Show your interest and appreciation by being fair. You are not asked to do more, but let's stop side-tracking the bill we owe our doctors. Let's meet it on the first of the month just like we do the gas and light bills. Perhaps those would not be paid so promptly but for the knowledge that they would be 'shut off', but be just as fair to the man whose overhead has trebled and who has, if at all, only slightly increased his fees.

MELLOWED 80 MILLION YEARS

While 30-ton monsters lumbered over OKLAHOMA

DEEP in Oklahoma lie the producing sands of the Cambrian and Ordovician Ages—in some places more than a mile below the surface. Out of them comes the rich Cambro-Ordovician crude oil which is refined and blended into Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil—crude oil which had already mellowed for millions of years when dinosaurs lumbered their clumsy way above its hidden reservoirs.

Being the oldest of the Mid-continent crude oils, Cambro-Ordovician crude has had the full benefit of Nature's age-long mellowing and filtering process. Together with the other crudes with which it is blended, it averages more than 80 million years of Nature's priceless treatment.

In process of manufacture, Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil is not only de-waxed—it is also freed from non-lubricating petroleum jelly, a process which requires chilling the oil down to as low as 60° F. below zero.

Have the nearest Sinclair dealer change your oil to Sinclair Opaline according to the Sinclair Law of Lubrication Index. Notice how quietly your engine runs. Then, at the next draining period examine the used Opaline. Observe how it still holds its rich lubricating body—how little oil has been used up!

REMEMBER: Sinclair offers you your choice—Sinclair Opaline, made from the oldest Mid-continent crudes, or Sinclair Pennsylvania, made from the costliest Pennsylvania grade crude.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

by Laura Lee BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CHERRY DIXON, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with DAN PHILLIPS, newspaper reporter. She quarrels with her father about Dan, leaves home and, taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her.

They are married and for the first time Cherry finds out what it means to love. Her struggles with household work are discouraging. DIXIE SHANNON, movie critic of the News, is friendly with Cherry. She meets handsome MAX PEARSON, who also works on the News.

Cherry receives a letter from her mother enclosing a check for $500. She returns the check because pride will not let her keep it. A young woman living in the same apartment building attempts suicide and is taken to a hospital. Cherry sends the girl some flowers, and while down town meets Pearson who takes her to luncheon.

Dan undertakes to write a short story, becomes discouraged and leaves it unfinished. Two days later Cherry is summoned to see a caller.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXV

He was a young man wearing a chauffeur's uniform. Cherry caught sight of him before she had reached the foot of the stairs and rushed forward.

"Martin! Is anything wrong?"

The young man hesitated. "Dr. Knowles sent me, Miss Cherry," he said. "He said I should bring you home. It's your mother—she's been sick all week and today—"

"Mother! You mean—oh, Martin, you don't mean—you don't mean it's serious?"

"All I know is you're to come at once," the chauffeur told her gravely. "The doctor's been there since morning. He said—"

The last words were lost as Cherry went flying up the stairway. She called over her shoulder, "Just a minute! I'll be right back!"

It was scarcely longer than that until she was stepping into the big Dunbar limousine. Martin closed the door after her and took the wheel. They spun around a corner and the car's speed increased. Martin, the perfect chauffeur, was driving more recklessly than Cherry had ever seen him.

Still it was not fast enough. "Can't we go faster?" Cherry urged. "Can't we hurry?"

There was no answer. The big car was certainly traveling above the speed limit. Cherry covered in one corner of the rear seat. Her face was pale, her eyes dark with fright and anxiety.

"It can't be!" she told herself over and over again. "It can't be! Mother's going to die! God, wouldn't do a thing like that. Oh, why does it take so long? Why can't we hurry?"

Her two hands were clenched tightly together. The words she had been mumbling formed themselves into a sort of prayer. Mother—hurry—must get well—save her!

They echoed through the girl's brain. "Mother—hurry—must get well—"

The car whirled into another street. They were half way there now. A truck, heavily loaded, was coming toward them. It swerved suddenly to avoid another vehicle, and Martin barely kept the fender of the limousine from brushing

"There, darling!" Sarah whispered gently, "don't take it so hard!"

The girl buried her face in Sarah's apron. Suddenly the tears, long pent up, streamed down her face. Cherry wept quietly, her shoulders shaking with the deep sobs. She had never faced death before. She had scarcely thought about it. Now in the face of this terrible experience she was realizing how deep had been her love for her mother. Happy times in her childhood—all the joy that had come into that big house that mother had brought.

"I can't bear it—Sarah!" she cried brokenly. "I—can't bear it!"

The older woman murmured reassuringly. Cherry's weeping continued, gradually becoming quieter. They heard a door open and close. Cherry looked up and saw Dr. Knowles coming toward them. She arose.

The doctor nodded. He said, "Good afternoon, Cherry. Glad you're here. Shall we go where we can talk?"

He motioned toward Cherry's own bedroom farther down the hall. The girl followed, dabbing at her eyes to dry them and clinging to Sarah.

"Why won't anyone tell me how she is, doctor?" she begged. "Why won't you let me see my mother?"

"Now, now!" Dr. Knowles began. "Don't be hysterical. You're letting your feelings run away with you."

"But, doctor—"

"Your mother is very sick," Cherry, the doctor went on. "It's best to face the facts. For years she's gone on believing she was in good health while all the time this condition was coming on. It's her heart."

He stopped at the stricken look on the girl's face. "We're not sure how serious this may be," he went on slowly. "A little while ago she dropped off to sleep. That's why I gave orders she wasn't to be disturbed. It's the first sleep she's had in 48 hours. Perhaps it will save her. I sent for you, Cherry, because—well, I thought you'd want to be here."

"Of course! Oh, doctor, surely you can do something! You mustn't—you mustn't let anything happen—"

"We're doing everything possible," he assured her. "I've had two specialists here for consultation. She has splendid nurses. You may be sure that everything in our power will be done to bring her to a speedy recovery."

"Doctor," Cherry faced him directly, "you're not just—saying these things to make me feel better? You really believe she has a chance?"

Dr. Knowles put a hand on the girl's arm. "I told you the condition is serious," he repeated. "I've thought—well, if she rallies as I hope she will after this rest I thought your being here might do a great deal. She's missed you these last weeks, Cherry."

The girl had turned away. "I know," she said miserably. "I know!"

"I'm leaving now," Dr. Knowles announced, "but I'll be back within an hour. If there's the slightest change the nurse knows where to reach me. The best thing for you to do is to try to quiet yourself. I'll let you see your mother just as soon as it's wise."

He was gone. Sarah, who had been listening all the while, came across the room.

"Maybe if you'd lie down, honey," she said softly, "you'd feel better. You'd best do like the doctor says and try to just be quiet."

Cherry shook her head. "I couldn't, Sarah. But don't bother about me. I'll be all right."

The older woman put her arms around the girl. "We've got to pray!" she said fervently. "It's only the Lord who can help us now. We've got to pray he'll spare your mother, darling."

Cherry's face seemed to have taken on a mask-like quality. "Yes," she said as though she had not understood the words, "pray. That's it." Her voice had become a monotone. "That's what we have to do—pray."

She sank to the luxurious satin cushions of the chaise longue. Sarah regarded her uncertainly for a moment and then turned and left the room.

For Cherry it was the beginning of a vigil that seemed endless. She sat amid surroundings that had once been as familiar as her own features in the mirror. The room was done in rose and blue. The ivory-tinted furniture. That window looking out over the garden. This carpet, soft as down beneath her feet. All of it was exactly as it had been and yet everything was so different.

"I'm to blame," the girl told herself bitterly. "It's my fault. If Mother dies I'm the one who'll be responsible!"

The tears would not come now. Cherry sat immobile as a statue. Once when she heard footsteps in the hall she arose and went to the door. It was the nurse again. She put a finger to her lips and shook her head.

Cherry returned to her seat. After a time she heard steps again and knew it was the doctor.

Sunset came and then dusk. The sky outside was darkening with someone entered the room.

"Father!" Cherry exclaimed, half-rising.

The man on the threshold said grimly, "Dr. Knowles is waiting." (To Be Continued)

"Martin! Is anything wrong?"

The young man hesitated. "Dr. Knowles sent me, Miss Cherry," he said. "He said I should bring you home. It's your mother—she's been sick all week and today—"

"Mother! You mean—oh, Martin, you don't mean—you don't mean it's serious?"

"All I know is you're to come at once," the chauffeur told her gravely. "The doctor's been there since morning. He said—"

The last words were lost as Cherry went flying up the stairway. She called over her shoulder, "Just a minute! I'll be right back!"

It was scarcely longer than that until she was stepping into the big Dunbar limousine. Martin closed the door after her and took the wheel. They spun around a corner and the car's speed increased. Martin, the perfect chauffeur, was driving more recklessly than Cherry had ever seen him.

Still it was not fast enough. "Can't we go faster?" Cherry urged. "Can't we hurry?"

There was no answer. The big car was certainly traveling above the speed limit. Cherry covered in one corner of the rear seat. Her face was pale, her eyes dark with fright and anxiety.

"It can't be!" she told herself over and over again. "It can't be! Mother's going to die! God, wouldn't do a thing like that. Oh, why does it take so long? Why can't we hurry?"

Her two hands were clenched tightly together. The words she had been mumbling formed themselves into a sort of prayer. Mother—hurry—must get well—save her!

They echoed through the girl's brain. "Mother—hurry—must get well—"

The car whirled into another street. They were half way there now. A truck, heavily loaded, was coming toward them. It swerved suddenly to avoid another vehicle, and Martin barely kept the fender of the limousine from brushing

HOMER HOOPEE

WHAT IS HOMER UP TO? AS THE OLD BOY IS LED BY THE SAVAGES TO WHAT SEEMS CERTAIN DEATH HE SUDDENLY STOPS DOWN AND BEGINS WAVING HIS HAND BACK AND FORTH OVER THE GROUND. ASTONISHED BY THESE STRANGE ACTIONS THE SAVAGES HALT THEIR MARCH TO THE SACRIFICE! EVERY EYE IS ON HIM AS HE SLOWLY MOVES BACKWARD TO THE WALL OF A HUT.

ARRIVING THERE HE AGAIN STOPS, AND IN THE DUST DRAWS A CIRCLE ENCLOSEING HIMSELF.

HIS STRANGE ACTIONS HAVE THE SAVAGES SPELLBOUND.

WITH EYES CLOSED HE STANDS SILENT FOR A MOMENT—ALL EYES FASTENED ON HIS SLOWLY MOVING HAND.

HOMER HAS ACCOMPLISHED THE FIRST PART OF HIS DESPERATE EFFORT TO ESCAPE DEATH. HE HAS STOPPED THE RUSH TO THE BURNING STAKE AND CENTERED THE ATTENTION OF THE SUPERSTITIOUS SAVAGES ON HIS WEIRD ACTIONS.

Home Town

Usually, in any town, when a movement is started for any kind of additional expenditure by the city government...

A report of the proceedings of the budget-making conference in Lubbock shows just how far off the real problem these citizens are...

Of course, if unfortunately, this or any other town has citizens who object is not so much to the municipal expenditures as to those who are in the municipal offices...

Big Spring citizens should bear in mind these facts:

1. Bonded indebtedness of the city was all voted by the people, not by the city commission and city manager.

2. The last bond issue was voted in June, 1931, before a good portion of our present city officials were elected.

3. The city tax rate was not raised this year but income from tax payments cannot provide for payment of bonded debt voted by the people.

4. Part of the water department revenue in addition to current tax revenue must be used to pay off bonds and interest upon them or, else, default on the debt voted by the people.

5. The city must, in fact, pay operating expenses out of part of the water department revenue, after using all tax income and some of the water revenue to pay bonded debt.

Two cars were left beside the court house at Odessa, it was reported. Odessa citizens served the travelers a meal and provided some fuel.

Robertson and Guthrie expressed surprise that two or three merchants in a town west of here, the name of which they said they did not know, had closed their stores when it was reported the bonus "army" was approaching.

"This army is absolutely under control," said Guthrie. "Not once since leaving Los Angeles have we had a flat fight, not once have we seen cards or dice, not once has any member of this outfit been found intoxicated," he declared.

Local men who helped re-fuel the party was courteous and apparently appreciative of treatment here.

At Cleveland Newton Baker, the most talked of compromise nominee in event Roosevelt's candidacy goes on, said "nomination produced from a majority riding roughshod over established traditions of the party would be deeply embarrassing both to the party and the candidate."

"Southwest Review"

This number is truly a southwestern magazine. It includes a crayon drawing of Col. Chas. Goodnight for a frontispiece, intended as an illustration for J. Evetts Haley's article about that stalwart pioneer figure; it contains two articles relating to the Mexicans, one on the Mexican child by H. T. Manuel, of the University of Texas, and another on the return of Mexicans to Mexico by Edna Ewing Kelley, of Waco. Hilala Perini, a protégée of Mrs. Henry, whose Louisiana writers colony is famous in this section, has contributed a series of Louisiana sketches. R. M. Schindler, an architect of Los Angeles and Elizabeth Willis DeHuff, wife of the head of the government Indian school in Santa Fe, extend the territory of the authors. The leading article, "Bolting the Party" continues with that series of political articles in which the magazine has been indulging of late, for the sake of variety as well as reader-interest. "FRONTIER TIMES" July Issue The steady run of articles in this magazine prevents one from worrying that pioneer material will ever give out. Mr. Hunter has always probably more material on hand than he can use. "Old Days in the Old Army" by Lydia Spencer Lane continues a sketch of Texas army outposts from a woman's point of view. Other articles as intriguing as their titles are: "Steve Moss Passes On"; "Chipeta and Chief Ouray"; "Texas Stayed Confederate"; "Prehistoric Texas"; "Lee at Ringgold". A brief review of kidnaping cases makes an interesting article, and another on "Packer the Cannibal" reviews a famous Denver trial and scandal.

Mrs. Felton Smith Is Re-commissioned As Pythian District Deputy

The Pythian Sisters met at the Odd Fellows' Hall Friday evening for a regular business meeting. Mrs. Felton Smith's commission as district deputy of the El Paso, extending from Big Spring west was announced. Mrs. S. M. Stinson was made temple deputy. There was a good attendance.

Patriotic Party Given By Mrs. King For Club

Mrs. J. S. King was hostess to the members of the Delta Egan' Arcum' Bridge Club Friday afternoon for a very delightful and pleasant patriotic party.

Washington's birthplace; and in the prize wrappings. The refreshments consisted of red white and blue brick ice cream, served with angel food and fruit punch.

Mrs. McKee made club high score and received six green glassware salad plates. Mrs. Lee made visitor's high and received an ice box pitcher.

The guests were Misses Edmond Notes (Mrs. C. S. Dittz, W. M. Ford, Frank Thomas, W. W. Pendleton, A. Knickerbocker, Robert E. Lee and W. H. Remede).

The club members attending were Mrs. Kin Barnett, Mrs. W. L. McKee, Miss Mary Allen and Miss Elsie Jeannette Barnett.

Women Attending Chicago Convention Consider Dress As Well As Candidates

By MAXINE DAVIS CHICAGO, (UP)—For the first time in their voting lives women have an iron hand beneath a velvet glove. The velvet glove takes a good many forms: Lace mitts inherited from Crinolined ladies of the old south; Long rich gauntlets straight from the Parisian; neat new fifty-nine cent cotton covering knuckles that sometimes show the wear of dish-water and broom. But they belong to the hands of women potent in a political convention for the first time since the passage of the suffrage amendment.

Mrs. Daniel O'Day, widow of a Standard Oil millionaire, a charming woman in black costume, and wide brimmed hat and black and white scarf, is in the Roosevelt camp. There also is Mrs. Clarence Dill, who is always remembered as "General" Rosalie Jones, a New Yorker before she married the senator from Washington. Mrs. Dill is a cool, efficient woman. She is always well-dressed for the conferences. Today it was a beige cloth suit, lined with navy and beige print, with a shiny straw turban, through which a saia ribbon threaded, concluding in a pendant ivory ornament.

Alfalfa Bill's Lone Scout There was only one woman at "Alfalfa Bill's" headquarters, Mrs. Fred Spaulding, state vice-chairman. But she was effective, in a tan linen suit, cream-hued eyelet blouse, beige Bangkok hat and in her pocket a fluggy big handkerchief of cream and peach tones. Governor Ritchie's advance guard included a decorative young person who floated about, to the distraction of the working delegates in a confection of peach chiffon bordered in black lace, a cape of peach and the same broad black lace. Her bobbed blond hair was sleekly marcelled and around her throat glittered a chandelier necklace of pearls, brilliants, and black enamel. She was Miss Adole Stamp, dean of women at the university of Maryland. With her was Miss Lavinia Engle, delegate-at-large and member of the Maryland legislature. Miss Engle was wearing an evening gown of green and brown printed chiffon, with a cow neck, while she campaigned for her candidate.

Miss Helen Hayden, of Fort Worth, is visiting Mrs. Frances McNew Glenn.

Mrs. Northington Entertains For Mrs. J. Q. Kirby

Mrs. J. S. Northington entertained at a bridge Friday afternoon with a delightfully informal party for three tables of players. She named her sister, Mrs. J. Q. Kirby, of Bowling Green, Ky., as honor guest.

Shasta daisies and orange gladioli furnished the room decorations. Orange sherbert was served with white leed cakes and fruit punch.

Mrs. Stephens made high score and received a pewter salt and pepper set. Mrs. Kirby was awarded a pewter pitcher.

For tea Mrs. W. W. Crenshaw and Mrs. B. C. Jones came in to visit with the honoree and the guests. Those playing cards were Misses Frank Pool, E. O. Ellington, Bob Austin, Walter Pike, Albert M. Fisher, H. G. Whitney, E. D. Merrill, Jake Bishop, C. E. Shive and Fred Stephens; Misses Spencer Leatherwood and Clara Pool.

Mrs. Eddy made high score and received a jardiniere. Mrs. Baith and Mrs. Slaughter won the cut prizes for their respective tables and received novelty pitchers.

The honorees were presented with Rose Marie bud vases. Miss Florence McAllister, another sister of the hostess, assisted in the serving.
