Ferguson vs. Sterling

An Editorial Study in Contrast, from the Waco News-Tribune.

FERGUSON told Texas Saturday that he knew what was the matter, and that his wife was equipped to save the state.

Governor Sterling has done a remarkably sane job of holding the state fort against depression for two years.

There is much talk of throwing the "ins" out and putting the "outs" in.

Let's be very careful who we throw out and who we put in.

With the re-election of Governor Sterling the state will be assured of two more years of honesty in the handling of its affairs.

There are three figures of primary importance in the present governor's race. They are: Sterling, Ferguson and Moody—the man who, in recent years, has made the Ferguson record clear, and who will stump against him this year.

Ferguson was ousted from office on a SINGLE issue—that of improperly receiving money while governor.

Moody was elected attorney general largely on a SINGLE issue—opposition to justice in the dark instead of at the courthouse—the Ku Klux Klan issue.

Moody was elected governor largely on a SINGLE issue—the American Road Company litigation, in which the name of Ferguson appeared.

Sterling was elected governor largely on a SINGLE issue—the belief that he was the best candidate in the race to keep Fergusonism from returning to the state capitol.

And when Sterling is returned to the governorship it will be because there is no real desire in this commonwealth for a return to the capitol of the gentleman who figured in these two dramas—an ouster from the governorship and the American Road Company controversy.

The financial condition of our state government is perhaps sounder than that of any state in the Union. The average financial condition of Texas people is better—immeasurably better—than the average in the United States.

Things are tight; things may be getting tougher. Can we look to the Ferguson record with any confidence of improvement?

There is a vast difference between promise and performance. Ferguson Saturday promised much—who has he performed? Governor Sterling two years ago promised an honest administration, full time on the job and special favors to no one. Sterling has given what he promised.

The Age of Selection is here

Our times are marked by one vast advantage over all past history—freedom of choice for the average person.

A young man now has a hundred interesting careers to consider. His grandfather had ten. Many paths are open to the scientist, writer, teacher, athlete, business man. When we travel, we often chose between rail and bus and car and plane. Every last thing we buy is one of many offered.

This is the Age of Selection. For advertising keeps us informed. Tells us the special benefits of this, the new features of that. Shows us how to build houses and how to make muffins. Explains why and where and when and how much.

As we read we learn how to discriminate, to recognize worth, to be sure of value received. Before we buy a car or refrigerator or a can of beans, we know what it is and what it offers. Advertising teaches us how to live by this year's rules.

We read advertisements in this paper. They bring you up to date in This Age of Selection.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CHERRY DIXON, pretty, 19, tells her mother she is going to a club meeting but instead meets DAN PHILLIPS, reporter on the Wellington News. Cherry has few friends because her wealthy parents consider most of the other young people of the town socially inferior. She has become acquainted with P. H. Phillips without her parents' knowledge.

She and Dan lunch together and are about to start for a drive in Cherry's roadster when another reporter tells Dan the city editor has been trying to find him. DUKE SMITH, a bank robber, has escaped jail and the city editor wants Dan to find INEZ MALLOY, Smith's sweetheart, and get an interview. Dan and Cherry drive to the apartment where Inez is staying. He enters, promising to return in 10 minutes. When he does not come, Cherry grows nervous and goes into the apartment to find him. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III
 Some of the names above the all boxes listed tipily so that they were difficult to read. Others lacked identification of any sort. Cherry searched the list but nowhere could she find the name "Baker." It must be there, though. "Baker" was what Dan had said. Unless she found the place he'd have come back.

But there was no such name on the list of tenants of the apartment. The girl turned uncertainly. The exterior of the building had proven deceptive. The small square entrance way in which she stood was walled and down at heel. Brown walls with hideous panels of scenic wallpaper on either side. Finger marks smudging the woodwork. The simulated tile floor in need of soap and water.

What should she do? Cherry's fears were rising. It was at that instant that a grimy urchin, capless and wearing a sweater too large for him, appeared on the other side of the outer door and started at the girl through the glass panel.

She drew back the door. "Do you know if some people named Baker live here?" she asked.

The urchin nodded. Traces of some sticky stuff showed on his cheeks. The blue stare of impassive eyes regarded her, but the child did not speak.

"Can you tell me where to find them?"

The urchin pointed a sticky finger to the door at the left. Through its glass portion of the door a short flight of stairs was revealed. Evidently it led to a hall.

Somehow the child reassured Cherry. It couldn't be such a dreadful place if there were children about. Timidly she put a hand on the door. It opened.

She went up the steps gingerly and found herself in a long passage. There was a dim yellow light half way down the hall. Its meager rays showed doors on either side—probably a dozen of them. Gray daylight filtered through a window on the landing where the stairs turned.

The thing to do now would be to knock at one of these doors and ask where the Bakers lived.

Cherry took two steps forward—and drew back in dismay. There were voices, men's voices, raised and angry, behind the nearest door on the right.

The voices continued. One of them grew louder than the others. Oh, there was no doubt that the men were angry. Suddenly Cherry heard the clatter of a key turning in a lock. They were coming!

In panic, blindly, the girl ran up the stairs and turned at the landing. She heard the door open behind her, and the men came out. Breathless, she flattened herself against the wall.

Now they were gone but she dared not go down. Stealthily Cherry crept up the stairs to the second floor. She must find someone to help her. She must find Dan! Marshaling all her courage, Cherry stepped forward. She raised a hand and knocked at the door before her.

She could never remember the rest. The deafening roar of a gun's report, the sharp, stinging sensation in her arm, her own shriek—they seemed all to have happened at once.

Out of the darkness she was able, vaguely, to hear voices. One that was familiar. A pleasant voice. Whose was it? Cherry opened her eyes.

"That's the girl, Cherry! Feeling better now?"

Why, it was Dan who was bending over her! He seemed to have his arm about her.

"Dan—what happened?"

"Never mind about that now. Here, see if you can drink this."

He held a glass to her lips. It was sharp, biting stuff that stung her throat but she drank it. Dan's face looked worried. What was the matter?

Suddenly Cherry began to remember things. That drive down strange streets—Inez somebody whom Dan must find—waiting outside in the car—

Cherry felt a knife-like twinge of pain in her left arm. A little moan escaped her lips. Then she saw that the arm was bandaged and there were blotches of red on the white cloth. Fright widened her eyes.

"Dan—" she began but was interrupted.

"Listen, honey, do you think you can stand up? We want to get you to a doctor. Here, let's see if you can make it!"

She was lying on a davenport in a room she had never seen before. Strange faces were peering at her. Several women, a half-grown girl, the grimy urchin she had seen downstairs and two men. It was not an attractive room and they were not attractive faces. Her arm ached.

"Try it, Cherry," Dan prompted. "I'll help you."

Obediently she tried to rise. The throbbing pain made her awkward. Phillips lifted her, carefully and gently. When she was on her feet she leaned against him.

"I can make it," she said. The girl's voice was almost a whisper. She took a step unsteadily.

"Wait—here's your coat."

They managed to get it around her, one arm in its sleeve and the other hanging loose. One of the women helped Dan. Then, slowly and painfully, they made for the door.

It had been one of the rooms on the second floor in which Cherry had found herself. They reached the hall. There Phillips picked the girl up and carried her in his arms down the stairs. Not until they had reached the entrance way did he set her down.

"Am I hurt much now?" he asked.

"It's pretty sore," she admitted. "Was it a gun that went off?"

Phillips nodded. "Might have been a look-out or just some crazy drunk. Whoever did it was gone when I got there. The main thing, child, is to get you to a doctor's office."

They left the building. Suddenly Phillips brushed around the girl and a little in front of her. "Stay close to me!" he murmured. "And let me do the talking!"

Not six yards away, coming to ward them, was a blue-coated officer and a youth.

"Just a minute there!" the policeman called. Dan and Cherry halted.

"Do you live in this building?" the policeman demanded.

"No."

"Then what have you been doing there?"

"Why, officer, we're looking for an apartment. Stopped to see if there were any for rent but we didn't like the place."

"Oh you didn't? Hear any commotion while you were in there?"

"No sire."

"Sure of that?"

"Why yes, I'm sure we didn't hear anything. Is something wrong? Has anything happened?"

Phillips' tone and manner were completely convincing. With a shrug and noncommittal excitement the policeman dismissed them and entered the building, followed by his companion. Neither Cherry nor Phillips gave the younger man a second glance.

They hurried across the street to the roadster. As Dan was starting the engine the girl said, "Oh Dan—my purse!"

"Can't go back now," he told her. "Not with that flat-foot there! After I get you in a doctor's office I'll come back for it."

Cherry's arm burned painfully

Two great tear drops, unbidden, slid down her cheek. Firmly she gripped her teeth, resolving not to cry out.

Twice Dan's eyes left the road to catch side-long glimpses of the girl's white face. Each time he increased the roadster's speed. Ten minutes later he was ushering her into a physician's office.

"It's her left arm," he told the doctor. "Gon went off accidentally. We tried to stop the bleeding with a tourniquet."

For another 10 minutes there was activity—tense and efficient—in the small office. Cherry's courage foretook her as the wound was probed and cleaned. The bullet had torn the flesh of her upper arm in an ugly, jagged line but had not lodged there.

Weak from fright and from loss of blood, Cherry clung to Dan's hand while the doctor sewed the torn skin in place.

"A quarter of an inch deeper and this would have been serious," the physician told them. His name was Dr. Ryland and, according to the framed diploma from medical school which hung on the wall he

SPORTS ON PARADE

Continuing Its Fight on condition designation of a highway from Abilene southwestward to Coke county, a segment of the Butterfield Trail, the Streetwater Board of City Development has called on Governor Ross Sterling for a personal expression, adding by resolution the following:

At a regular meeting of the Board of City Development on the evening of May 25, a resolution was introduced, seconded and carried that the secretary be instructed to write you inquiring as to your attitude toward construction of the Butterfield Trail southwest from Abilene, paralleling Highway No. 29 and U. S. Highway No. 29, as well as any other highway which might parallel other established highways on which counties and communities are bearing a bonded indebtedness of long duration at a time when every effort is being made to curtail unnecessary expenditures and put the state on a sounder economic basis.

Governor's Candidacy To Be Judged By Sweetwater B. C. D. On Basis Of Attitude Toward Butterfield Trail

Continuing Its Fight on condition designation of a highway from Abilene southwestward to Coke county, a segment of the Butterfield Trail, the Streetwater Board of City Development has called on Governor Ross Sterling for a personal expression, adding by resolution the following:

At a regular meeting of the Board of City Development on the evening of May 25, a resolution was introduced, seconded and carried that the secretary be instructed to write you inquiring as to your attitude toward construction of the Butterfield Trail southwest from Abilene, paralleling Highway No. 29 and U. S. Highway No. 29, as well as any other highway which might parallel other established highways on which counties and communities are bearing a bonded indebtedness of long duration at a time when every effort is being made to curtail unnecessary expenditures and put the state on a sounder economic basis.

Congressmen Use Telegraph Freely As Government Pays Bill

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Senators and congressmen are heavy users of the telegraph. And why not? The government pays for it.

In digging into the jumbled accounts over a recent period, senators were found to have charged up $50,000 worth of telegrams over a ten month period. For an eleven-month period, House members charged up at least $91,967. These figures are incomplete.

These bills, paid out of the House and senate contingent funds, cover all sorts of telegrams sent or received collect by members. While presumably official, the term covers a multitude of messages which would not get by an auditor. The messages are theoretically checked by clerks in each House, but there has been great leniency in construction of the term "official."

In the House, however, an effort is being made to curb abuses of the privilege. The new chairman of the House accounts committee, Warren, Dem., N. C., who recently forced through a resolution to open up the congressional payrolls, has taken a hard-boiled attitude toward the telegraph privilege. He notified all members of the House when he took over the committee last December that no long-distance telephone calls would be paid for under any circumstances. He refuses to approve block or identical telegrams to a list of newspaper addresses. He refuses to approve telegrams of congratulation or condolence.

Once congressmen thought it was quite clever to wire congratulations to new postmasters, new pensioners and new daddies. Political and personal messages are forbidden. No cablegrams are approved now except those sent by delegates representing the Philippines, Porto Rico, Hawaii and Alaska. Yet these rules probably are evaded in dozens of cases despite the vigilance of the accounts committee.

This committee recently found one member telegraphing officials of county conventions in his state congratulations to all persons in his district elected to any public office. One member recently received a petition on the tax bill by 100 persons and he promptly sent a telegram of reply to each. Warren refused to approve this account and collected $50 from the member. He took the position that the petition could have been answered by letter instead of by telegraphing a hundred persons.

Formerly congressmen cabled all over the world at government expense concerning immigration cases in which relatives of constituents were involved. They are now required to make such communication through the state department.

Bills paid by the senate ran as high as $15,110 for one month which was checked. The maximum in the House was $55,002 though this included some back bills. One of the members who is fairly busy said that he seldom found it necessary to use the telegraph. He said practically all inquiries could be answered by letter. But as for the average member, his motto is "Don't write—telegraph."

Among the graduates of Miss Hookaday's School for Girls in Dallas this spring is Virginia McEntire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. McEntire, of Sterling City.

Miss McEntire will be a hostess, with several other members of the class, for a treasure hunt for the Hookaday seniors Tuesday evening. The closing exercises will be held on Thursday afternoon.

Rise In Oil Prices Seen By Landreth

Spread Between Crude And Refined Products Merits Increase

SAN ANGELO—The spread between the price of crude and refined products warrants an increase in the crude market now and a rise of at least 15c a barrel, which West Texas should share 100 per cent, is expected here July 1 by E. A. Landreth of Fort Worth, president of Landreth Production Corporation, who was here Monday on business.

Mr. Landreth believes Mid-Continent crude by the summer of 1933 will be bringing $1.50 a barrel. Oil imports into the United States last year amounted to 80,000,000 barrels while stocks were reduced 44,000,000 barrels. In the event congress levies an excise tax of one cent a gallon on crude and 2 1/2 cents a gallon on gasoline, prospects for which are believed favorable, Mr. Landreth thinks imports will be cut in half and present stocks of both crude and refined products amounting to 200,000,000 barrels should be reduced at the rate of 50,000,000 barrels annually.

These developments are dependent to a considerable extent upon continued curtailment of production and the restricting of any new fields brought in, in Mr. Landreth's opinion. He anticipates uniting of the Hobbs field in Lea county, New Mexico, shortly.

Accompanied by their wives, E. A. Landreth and brother, W. H. Landreth, vice-president of Landreth Production Corporation, visited Hobbs, the Penn pool and other fields to the west and northwest last week-end. They visited Carlsbad Caverns Sunday night, spent the night in Midland and motored to San Angelo early Monday morning, making the 95 miles from Big Spring in one hour and fifty-two minutes.

Two Large Ranches In Reeves County Sold

FECOS—Two large ranches in western Reeves county have changed hands in recent weeks.

George Daniels of Lexington, Ky., has purchased from Matt Grisham of Abilene the old Bid Cowan ranch which lies in northwestern Reeves and Culberson counties. The boundaries of the pasture comprise some 50,000 acres in all, lies about 20 miles from Toyah.

The ranch is well improved and is being stocked with cattle. Mr. Daniels is to move to Toyah to handle the property.

The other deal was the sale of the old Figure Four ranch in Reeves and Culberson counties to Shelby Brooks of Toyah and Van Horn. Mr. Brooks bought the ranch from Matt Grisham of Abilene, and it is one of the best known ranches in these parts.

Baby - of - The - Month Club

Introducing! . . . The Baby-of-the-Month Club as an integral part of the community life of Big Spring under the sponsorship of seven progressive Big Spring business firms! The organization was created through the generosity of these Big Spring business men who believe that too little recognition is given the new heir when he . . . or she . . . arrive to take command of the home.

The 'baby-of-the-month' for June will be determined in this way: The first white boy or girl to be born in Big Spring after midnight of May 1, 1932, will be officially decided as the winner of the gifts. The same plan of selection will be used each of the other months of the life of the club.

In order to qualify, the baby's birth certificate, signed by the attending physician, should be brought or sent without delay to The Herald office. The certificate should show the exact date, hour and minute of birth. As soon as the baby-of-the-month for June has been determined its name will be given to The Herald. Watch for the announcement.

To The Baby-of-the-Month We Will Give A Johnson & Johnson Baby Set

At any of our three conveniently located cut-rate drug stores you will always find a complete line of gifts and needs for the baby, an assortment of baby cards and the finest baby foods.

Give Baby Plenty Of

PASTEURIZED MILK

In welcoming the "Baby-of-the-Month" we would like to give a word of advice to its mother. When it comes time for bottle feedings, use Dairyland Pasteurized Milk to be sure, supplemented with orange or tomato juice. The leading doctors of our country agree that properly PASTEURIZED milk is the only SAFE milk.

Questioned as to the often-repeated statement that pasteurized milk is not the best for babies on the theory that its food value has been reduced, one of the most famous physicians declared that "babies, fed raw and pasteurized milk, show a slight average difference in the net daily gain in weight during the feeding period when given orange or tomato juice. The slight difference might truthfully be said to be in favor of the milk that has undergone the pasteurization treatment."

We will give the "Baby-of-the-Month" a book of tickets (40 quarts) good for Dairyland Pasteurized Milk.

Curability Of Cancer

(Ninth of a series of ten articles on cancer, inaugurated by the State Medical Association.)

The cure of cancer in general depends either upon its removal from the body or its destruction in the body. Surgery accomplishes the former; irradiation by x-rays and radium produces the latter.

The surgical treatment of cancer has established a brilliant record of achievement. It has yielded innumerable cures and has saved many lives.

When a cancer is within easy reach and is quite localized, its direct removal by surgery is a very effective method of obtaining a cure. When a cancer is deep-seated, or is widely spread throughout the body, its removal is not a simple procedure and the effectiveness of surgery is accordingly limited.

The surrounding tissues of the body.

Many cancers, of both the superficial and internal varieties, are cured by the application of radium and x-rays.

The resistance of certain cancers to the destructive influence of radiation limits to some extent, however, the effectiveness of this agency.

In some cases the combined use of surgery and radium or x-rays, or the employment of all three, is necessary to obtain a cure.

In every case of cancer, the early application of correct treatment is absolutely essential for a cure. Time is the ruling factor; and generally renders the decision on the outcome of the disease.

But Frame kept the youthful Wilcox in the background while he roared on to victory.

ABILENE—Fred Frame has raced in Abilene several times, and won some of the bigger purses offered at the program of the West Texas Fair association.

Hard luck marked his first appearance here, in September, 1926, when he drove his Miller over the east embankment. He returned in July 1927, for a victory. The same year he was collecting good money at Wichita Falls and Breckenridge. He last raced at Abilene in 1929.

His victory was called in advance by D. H. Jeffries, who has been the A. A. representative in the local shows. Frame visited Jeffries here May 6, on his way to Indianapolis, Tuesday he was driving the same Duesenberg in which he took second last May. It had been rebuilt by Miller and Harts for the big test, and wore their name in the race.

Formation

The formation at the grave of William Frank Martin was impressive.

After the participants in the service had taken their places Pilot Fuller of American Airways, with Jesse Maxwell, local airport manager, in the rear cockpit; twice flew low over the assembly. Mr. Maxwell released flowers which, in spite of the strong wind, fluttered directly upon the grave and the assembly.

Facing the grave were the Legion Commander, officers of the two services men's organizations, and the colors. Facing them were members of the Legion Auxiliary and Veterans of Foreign Wars. On the left were the firing squad and the drum and bugle corps, on the right were the band and the Boy Scouts. In two columns drawn up behind the colors were members of the American Legion, more than 100 in number.

At the left of the colors stood relatives of William Frank Martin. Members of his family attending the service were Ann Martin and Cora Bull, sisters; Arthur, Dewey and Rube Martin, brothers; Mrs. Rube Martin, sister-in-law, and Gertrude Martin, a niece.

Names of soldiers, sailors and marines buried here, whose names were called before the assembly by Commander Bryant are:

danger is from within, more than from the outside. The unsettled state into which millions of Americans have gone is the greatest threat to continued strength and security of the nation.

Memorial Day should cause us to re-evaluate, as we pay tribute to memory of our soldier dead, to honor them in the greatest way possible by doing our parts as individuals citizens toward strengthening rather than tearing down the government they died to strengthen.

Standing amidst graves of America's military heroes in Arlington National cemetery Monday Former Senator James A. Reed of Kansas said:

"Dreamers may dream the dream and poets sing the songs of an eternal peace—prophets proclaim a millennium which does not come."

"Pale and anemic pacifists denounce the soldier who stands guard upon our shores and gives protection to our homes."

"But it was the men with fib in their souls who gave us all the liberty we have."

"Universal congresses may write their thousands of pledges of eternal amity—these are but paper pacts quickly consumed in hatred's smouldering fires."

Mr. Reed also said: "So long as human passions burn and barbarous races arm for carnage, slaughter and spoils, wise men will put discussing it with the city manager absent, told him that his work was entirely satisfactory, that he had fully lived up to his contract, made when he took the position last August, when he was retained at $4,800 per year or $400 per month.

The reduction places the city manager's salary at $4,400 per year or $366 per month.

This brings a total reduction of the city manager's salary of $1,600 per year since the budget was adopted a year ago. V. R. Smith, who preceded Mr. Spence, was paid $6,000 per year or $500 per month.

The reductions made in the budget as adopted Tuesday night mark the second series of reductions effected by Mr. Spence within ten months. When he came here last August, in the midst of the fiscal year he made reductions totaling approximately $25,000.

Salaries fixed a year ago in the budget for the fiscal year 1931-32 totaled $24,144.90. Salaries fixed in the revised budget last August totaled $17,353.81.

Salaries fixed in the budget for the coming fiscal year total $20,496.91.

The total reduction in salaries since the beginning of the last fiscal year is $23,447.95 or 27.5 per cent.

T. S. Currie, a member of the W. T. C. C. committee, repeated his personal recommendation made at the public hearing that a committee of 12 citizens representing the largest taxpayers be named to confer with the commission on further reductions in salaries and other expenditures.

Billy Davis, who attended the meeting, urged that the city manager's salary be cut to $250 per month.

The tax committee was asked to make its recommendations, by items, in writing. It was agreed that a dozen men, not necessarily the largest taxpayers, might confer with the commission later in regard to the budget.

Cash to be paid for payment of principal and interest on bonds and warrants that will fall due from April 1, this year, to October 1, 1933—19 months—will total $135,538.18.

Sinking Fund.

Cash that must be paid on principal and interest on bonds and warrants to be provided during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1932 will be $87,056.18.

Total revenue estimated for the fiscal year is $165,125.07 of which $60,000 (10 per cent less than collected last year) is expected (for budget purposes) to be collected in city taxes. This leaves a balance of $105,125.07 in revenue. Of this $105,125.07 expected revenue $80,000 ($12,294 less than collected last no faith in paper barricades."

The brilliant orator from Kansas City concentrated a wealth of truth in those few words.

True it is that when nations arm for carnage, slaughter and spoils they are barbarous. But all nations have been barbarous, at least part of the time.

True it is that so long as human passions burn paper barricades will be quickly consumed in hatred's smouldering fires. But that fact renders hatred no less wrong and leaves war, as always, only an evil to combat an evil and no less destructive.

If a pacifist is one who denounces the soldier who stands guard upon our shores and gives protection to our homes then this writer is no pacifist.

If a pacifist is one who tries to nurture in himself brotherly love instead of hatred, unselfishness, tolerance instead of bigotry then we, with millions more, are pacifists.

But we, and each of us, are at best so susceptible to those destructive passions that make wars, no matter how we may try to overcome them, that at best we are unselfish, tolerant only part of the time.

And that is why men fight each other, lie to each other, deceive each other in the councils of diplomacy, in the halls of congress, in the capitols of the states, in factories and fields, in markets and banks, in every town and hamlet, in your town and mine, everywhere, every day.

We can only strive toward such ideals. But the striving is far more worthy than weak submission to the fires that burn ideals, just as Senator Reed said they burned paper pacts designed to prevent war.

Because men are selfish it would be far more effective to seek prevention of war by preventing profit to individuals through war than by mere documents signed by representatives of the great nations of the world.

Teaching Of Spanish Favored By Publishers

DALLAS (UP)—Publishers of more than fifty Texas newspapers were on Tuesday endorsing the compulsory teaching of Spanish in Texas schools beginning in the third grade.

Houston Harts, San Angelo, retiring president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, made the suggestion at a Texas Daily Press league directors' meeting here, as a means of increasing friendship and trade with Mexico.

Wilbur Hawk, manager of the Amarillo News-Globe which last year conducted a railroad excursion to Mexico, predicted completion of the Laredo-Mexico City highway will attract millions of tourists who will drive through Texas.

He predicted that within two years $50,000,000 worth of additional tourist money will be spent in Texas and two or three times that amount in Mexico.

S. W. Papert, president of the league, will go to Mexico City to study the tourist possibilities.

Personally Speaking

Mrs. Anna Mae Lunsberg and daughter, Harriet Ann, have returned from a visit to Baird.

Mrs. W. C. Henley, Jr., who underwent an operation in the Bivings and Barcus Hospital, is doing very well.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Tracy and son, who formerly lived here and moved to Baird are planning to return and make their home in this city in the near future.

Raymond Lee Williams has gone to San Angelo to spend the summer with his mother, Mrs. Todd Crain.

G. L. (Bud) Brown who broke his arm during a fishing trip on the Concho last week while he and J. H. Heffley were fishing, reports that his arm is mending slowly and is still very painful.

Victor Behrens of Abilene, with the Missouri State Life Insurance company, was a visitor in Big Spring Tuesday.

Marshall McCrea, with the American Airways, of Abilene, spent part of Tuesday in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bethell of Tulsa, Okla., and the latter's mother, Mrs. John Sawwater of Grapevine, Tex., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Eubanks. Mr. Bethell is manager of the Southwestern Engraving company of Tulsa, Ok. They will visit here for several days before continuing their trip to points in New Mexico.

Arthur P. Duggan, candidate for state senator of this district, and residing in Littlefield, was a visitor in Big Spring Tuesday in interest of his candidacy.

DO YOU INHALE?

Is this question too revealing for other cigarettes?

WE do not criticize others. We merely call your attention to the fact that the vital subject of inhaling has been generally avoided in cigarette advertising.

Why? What's there to be afraid of? Everybody inhales! Seven out of ten smokers inhale knowingly—the other three do so without realizing it. From your side—you want to be sure that the smoke you breathe in is pure and clean—free from certain impurities.

But from the manufacturer's side—he should be sure of giving you this protection. And if he is sure—he need not worry about the question: "Do you inhale?"

Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question... because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!
