Asks Cancellation Of GM Sales Corp. Business Permit

Mann Alleges Firm Refuses To Open Records For Examination

AUSTIN, May 9 (AP)—Attorney General Gerald C. Mann filed suit in district court here today asking that the permit of General Motors Sales Corporation to do business in Texas be cancelled.

He alleged that the corporation had refused to permit his representative to examine its books and other records as provided by Texas laws.

The attorney general declined to say why he wanted to examine the records, but in the past this procedure has been followed by his department to determine if businesses are abiding by state statutes, especially tax and anti-trust laws.

An investigation currently is under way to ascertain if labor organizations in Houston have violated the anti-trust law. Similar investigations of oil companies, the motion picture industry and other businesses have been held by the department.

The petition was placed on the court's docket and a date for hearing will be set later.

It asserted the sales corporation has subjected itself to penalties provided for in the statutes, which in this case is forfeiture of its right to do business in the state.

The department said General Motors corporation has no permit to do business in Texas, the sales corporation being its merchandising agent.

The Sales Corporation on Nov. 13, 1936, had been granted a permit to transact business in Texas. On April 23 of this year, the petition declared, officers of General Motors Sales Corporation refused a Detroit to allow an assistant attorney general of Texas to examine the corporation's records.

The petition was in the nature of a quo warranto proceeding in the name of the State of Texas.

The General Motor Sales corporation is a foreign corporation incorporated under the laws of Delaware and its home office is named in the petition as Detroit.

BLASTS 'INEPTITUDE'—In a wrangle over reverses in Norway, Sir Roger John Brownlow Keyes (above), an admiral of the British fleet, charged the government with "shocking ineptitude," declaring that the admiral had refused him permission to storm Trondheim from the sea. Sir Roger, a 68-year-old World War hero, was retired from the navy in 1935, but restored to the active list March 4.

By the Associated Press. The current flurry of spring rains spread beneficently into South and East Texas today, heartening farmers, ranchers and city folk who have felt the lack of rainfall for the last two years.

Yesterday the rains came to spotted sections of the Panhandle and North and West Texas; today they moved into San Antonio, Austin, westward to Arizo Springs and Laredo. Each Texas got rains here and there also, with Lindsale reporting 1.34 inches, and Longview .04 inch.

Bexar county (San Antonio) farmers and ranchers hailed a rain of about an inch as assuring good crops and fat livestock for months to come. The rainfall in that section has been subnormal for two years.

The showers were expected to move deeper into the state tonight, touching the coast and the Rio Grande valley, where water shortage has reached a critical stage.

Odesa in far West Texas, meanwhile reported a cloudburst with a fall of 2.82 inches in less than two hours. Streets were flooded and scores of cars were stalled. Monahans and Wink in the same general area had rains of two inches, while Iraan had an inch. The ranges were greatly helped.

Rainfall elsewhere was reported as Austin 11, Dallas 1.88 in 48 hours, Del Rio .36, El Paso .22, Galveston .07, Laredo .20, Wichita Falls .35, Bridgeport .38, Carrizo Springs 1.30, Greenville 1.52, Henrietta .94, Huntsville .14, Kaufman .80, Kerrville .94, Lindale 1.24, Llano .20, Mexia .58, Paris .29, Sherman 1.16, Taylor .32, Uvalde 1.04, Valley Junction .98, Weatherford .74, Corsicana 1.24.

RUSSIAN-BRITISH TRADE TALKS ARE 'UNSATISFACTORY'

LONDON, May 9 (AP)—As authority five source said today the Soviet Union regarded the British attitude toward trade negotiations between Britain and Russia as "unsatisfactory."

The British, in the latest exchange of views over the possibility of entering a commercial pact with Russia, were reported to have asked for exact details of Soviet trade with Germany, including what and how much war materials were being sold to her.

The British also were said to have asked whether Russia would be prepared to supply the same amount of war materials as to Germany.

ABILENE INJURED

MARFA, May 9 (AP)—George H. Likins of Abilene, salesman, was in a hospital here today with leg injuries suffered in an automobile accident last night near Valentine. His automobile hit a bridge abutment, the highway patrol reported.

DIES IN FALL—Webb Miller (above), European news manager for the United Press associations, was found dead on a railway near Clapham Junction station, southwest London. It was believed he fell from a train shortly after it pulled out of the station. He was 48. The death was ruled an accident.

Duce Awaits A Change In War Trend

ROME, May 9 (AP)—Premier Mussolini today told his fascist followers celebrating Army and Empire Day that "only facts" would break his self-imposed silence on the European war.

Il Duce thus indicated clearly to his hearers massed under his Palazzo Venezia balcony that Italy's non-belligerence remained without change until some new development in Europe's conflict plunged this country into war.

Mussolini referred to the declaration of the Italian empire four years ago.

"A great day in the history of our country was that of May 2, 1926," Mussolini said.

"After my speeches you must be come accustomed also to my silence. Only facts will break it."

During Mussolini's address sections of the crowd interrupted his words with shouts of "Tunis!" and "Malta!"

(Tunis is the capital of France's North African possession, Tunisia. Malta is Great Britain's island naval base off Sicily in the Mediterranean.)

An indication of what new developments could change Italy's attitude appeared in a warning to Yugoslavia against accepting British-French guarantees of protection which was sounded in the Bologna newspaper Resto Del Carlino.

Resto Del Carlino said that Yugoslavia was in no danger from Italy and Germany now but it would be impossible for Belgrade to "betray" them by taking a "new political line."

Britain To Step Up Military; Russia Enters Balkan Scene

Chamberlain To Fight For His Office

Commons Adjourns Until May 21, After Meeting Crisis

LONDON, May 9 (AP)—The house of commons recessed today until May 21, leaving the Chamberlain government apparently determined to remain in office on the strength of last night's slim margin of a vote of confidence.

Meanwhile, Britain's war effort was stepped up by a royal decree making 2,500,000 more men available for military service.

Secret Consultations The house rose at 4 p. m. (9 a. m. CST) after David Lloyd George, critic of the prime minister, had defended himself against a charge that, by demanding Chamberlain's resignation, he had encouraged Hitler.

Chamberlain, members of his war cabinet and opposition leaders were reported in secret consultations. Geoffrey Mander, a left winger, said the talks were to decide whether "by getting rid of the chancellor of the exchequer and the secretary for air, the prime minister might be allowed to carry on with partially fresh colleagues."

Mander told the house that this, in his opinion, would be "perfectly useless."

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, and Sir Samuel Hoare, air minister, have been under attack from the opposition, along with Chamberlain.

Beverly Baxter, a conservative M. P., journalist and author, was the man who assailed Lloyd George for "helping Hitler."

Baxter urged him to "form so that his genius and indomitable spirit may be used in the future conduct of the war."

Lloyd George replied that Britain was to blame for Hitler's rise to power and that since 1922 he (Lloyd George) had been urging the World War victors to exert their authority and carry out the pledges they made in the treaty of Versailles.

Richard K. Law, son of Bonar Law, put in another plea for new leadership before recess.

He said Chamberlain was like H. H. Asquith, part-time World War premier; able and loyal, but not the man for war.

EUROPE'S WAR THREATENS TO SPREAD—Arrows on this map show where huge new troop movements may form new fighting fronts when and if the war spreads into further neutral zones. One report, denied in Berlin, said two Nazi columns (1) were moving toward the Netherlands. Other arrows (2) show how German armies might move against Yugoslavia, one passing through Hungary if that nation gives permission. Arrows from Rome (3) show how Italian troops could move into Yugoslavia, where tension is great and 500,000 men are being prepared for emergency. Meanwhile, Britain was reported redoubling efforts to line up Yugoslavia, Rumania, Bulgaria, Greece and Turkey for a united stand against "aggression," and arrows (4) show how allies could pour troops into the Balkans from the Suez arm to back up the small countries there.

City Faces A Housing Problem For WTCC

Listing Of Private Rooms Urged By C-C; Registrations Lagging

Big Spring moved within one week of the opening of the 22nd annual West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention Thursday and found local arrangements lagging somewhat behind general plans for the convention.

One of the most urgent needs for cooperation was in the matter of rooms in private homes. The chamber of commerce renewed the appeal for residents to list rooms for the convention and asked that the organization be furnished with information on name, address, telephone number, whether boys or girls preferred and the price per person asked.

J. H. Greene, chamber manager, said that to date only 18 private rooms had been listed and said that 125 others were needed urgently. He stressed the point that Big Spring has invited sponsors, My Home Town speakers and bands here for the convention and must find some way to furnish quarters for them.

Registrations continued to drag along slowly with little less than 1,000 having been purchased locally. The goal of 1,500 must be reached to insure financial success of the convention, H. R. McEwen, registration chairman, reminded.

Word was received that State Senator Clint Small, veteran leader in the state legislature, would be here for the convention. Meanwhile, the convention program was complete in almost every detail.

Quickening interest in the sponsors activities boosted the number of entries in this field to an even 40, five above the last year total. Moreover, 24 of the two score towns promising sponsors had certified them to headquarters.

Unique in the list of sponsors who will have the added duty of representing her city in the My Home Town speaking contest. Other sponsors certified included Lilly Jack Wafford, Silvertown, Dorothy Lee Taylor, Wichita Falls, Gerry Crow, Albany and Edna Earl Lineberry, Midland. Miss Crow is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Crow, is a junior in Oklahoma university, has represented her city in My Home Town speaking contests and was Albany's sweetheart at the Casa Manana revue.

Miss Lineberry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Lineberry, is a junior in the high school at Midland, and is widely recognized as one of the best drum majorettes in West Texas.

Only new entry in the My Home Town contest was Douglas Bennett, Alpina. However, these were certified for previously entered cities; Hulda Mae Garrison, Vernon; H. L. Sanders, Wichita Falls; Van Moore, Electra; Lois Jordan, Brown; Gerald Bishop, Graham; Virginia Mason, Fort Worth; Bobbie Mae Risher, Haskell; and Bill Alcorn, Brownwood.

Yugoslavia Apparently Asking Help

Soviet Might Cooperate In Opposing Rome-Berlin Axis

BELGRADE, May 9 (AP) Parallel reports of steps toward both Soviet Russian and allied protection of Yugoslavia were viewed today in Balkan diplomatic quarters as evidence of possible Russian-British-French cooperation against the Rome-Berlin axis in this corner of Europe.

Two Moves There is this important distinction in the two reported moves affecting Yugoslavia: the Yugoslavians appear to be turning toward Russia for support while the British and French seek Yugoslavia's acceptance of their proffered guarantee of her independence and territorial integrity.

Whether Yugoslavia is looking for help from Russia as well as from the western powers was not clear. It is possible that her greater inclination is toward the east.

At any rate, the possibility of Russia's entrance into the Balkan picture with a military link to Yugoslavia, at a time when the allies and the axis powers are accusing each other of preparing to invade little countries, might stave off war in the Balkans.

But for how long, or with what other long-range results, no one could calculate.

It was learned authoritatively in Belgrade that a Yugoslav military mission headed by General Vojin Maximovic, inspector of national defense, would leave shortly for Moscow and military consultations with Russian leaders.

The belief was expressed in quarters close to the government that a Yugoslav-Russian military alliance might result from the visit. The prospective mission was linked with a desire expressed here and in Belgrade that the Bulgarians and Yugoslavians join with Russia—mother of Slaves—for defense of the south Slav peoples of the Balkan peninsula, a reminder of the Pan-Slavic movement of the pre-World War era.

The disclosure of the forthcoming military talks in Moscow comes while a Yugoslav trade delegation is renewing commercial relations with Russia. The Yugoslavians had a three-hour interview with Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov there last night.

All this—the commercial, diplomatic and military phases—would represent a reversal of Yugoslavia's anti-communist policy to which she had adhered since the bolshevik revolution of 1917.

Navy Increase Is Approved

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP)—The senate naval committee unanimously endorsed today a house-approved measure authorizing an 11 per cent increase in the navy's fighting strength.

The committee rejected, however, an amendment by Chairman Walsh (R-Mass.) which would become permanent additions to the fleet and be subject to replacement without further congressional action when they are obsolete.

Walsh asked a 5 to 3 vote against this amendment reflected the majority opinion of the committee that changes in naval designs foreshadowed by developments in the European war might be such that the navy ought to consult congress before building replacements.

The bill approved, calling for a future outlay of $655,000,000 to be spent over a period of several years, carried no immediate appropriations. Navy officials indicated, however, that they expected to ask this congress for $46,000,000 to start work on some of the ships involved, if the bill is approved by the senate.

Bankhead, Byrnes On Presidential Roster

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP)—Democratic vice presidential boom for Speaker William Bankhead of Alabama and Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina were coupled today with new calls for President Roosevelt's renomination.

Senator Lister Hill (D-Ala.) forecast the president's selection by acclamation at the Chicago convention, and expressed the hope that Bankhead would be his running mate.

The Alabama delegation is nominally pledged to the veteran house speaker, but he is not an avowed candidate for the presidential nomination. Delegates at large chosen in Tuesday's primary were advertised as the "new deal slate."

Gov. Burnet R. Maybank of South Carolina, here on a state mission, echoed a statement by Senator Adams (D-Colo.) that Senator Byrnes should be on the democratic national ticket.

Byrnes himself discouraged efforts in his state to give him a "favorite son" presidential endorsement.

His colleague, Senator E. D. Smith, told reporters that he would not be a delegate to the national convention if the South Carolina delegation were instructed to vote for Mr. Roosevelt. The president opposed Smith's renomination in 1936.

NEWSMEN COMPLETE STORY ON 90-YEAR PROGRESS OF U. S.

By ED WALLACE.
NEW YORK, May 9 (AP)—Two years ago, two young newspapermen started off on an assignment to delve into the past in quest of a story for present and future generations to read.
 Today, they had completed their task and with it an absorbing tale of adventure, of 10 wars and the behind-the-scenes diplomatic maneuvering that went with them, of death and courage and humor, of the growth of the United States to a world power of the first rank.
 It is the story of the Associated Press from 1848 to 1938.
 Dedicated to Frank E. Noyes, president of the A. P. for 38 years and member of the executive committee through half the life of the organization, the book is the work of Oliver Gramling, assisted by William A. Kinney. They are members of the A. P. staff.
 Through yellowed records—more than 2,000 contemporary publications and decades of reports; a paragraph here, a line there, they traced the development of the A. P. from its modest beginning to modern days; a story that by its very nature parallels the rise of the nation.
 The book will be published in September by Farrar and Rinehart. While not yet officially named, it now carries the working title of "A. P.—Ninety Years of News."

 In swift pace, it details the meeting in early May, 1848, of 10 men representing six of New York's newspapers, and how at that time they decided to pool their news-gathering efforts. This was the beginning of the Associated Press.
 Their organization began functioning in an unpretentious attic office in lower Manhattan. The first general agent, as the general manager then was called, received a salary of $20 weekly. He had one assistant.
 The growth of the A. P. from this small start is traced through to the modern organization with its 1,400 member newspapers, its 280,000 miles of leased wires in the United States alone, and its vast network for the transmission of news pictures by wire, a development which meant pictures at last could be moved simultaneously with news.
 The fierce struggle of the A. P. for existence against ridding competition late in the 19th century, its victory in 1897 and its final emergence in 1900 as the only worldwide non-profit news association all are chronicled.

COURT TO REVIEW NLRB'S ORDER

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8 (AP)—The Texas Company, oil producer, yesterday petitioned the ninth U. S. circuit court of appeals for a review of a national labor board order issued after hearings in Fort Arthur.

One employe was ordered reinstated by the board and back pay was ordered for another, and the company was directed to cease discouraging union membership among its workers.

The hearings were conducted on complaint of the CIO national maritime union. Trial examiners Howard Myers and C. M. Persons, who conducted the hearings, were accused of "bias and prejudice" in the oil company's petition, which asserted that testimony adduced did not warrant the board's conclusions.

TWO HELD IN KILLING OF DALHART FARMER

DALHART, May 9 (AP) — Two men were held today in connection with a stabbing that claimed the life of a farmhand known as "Sama." Sheriff H. D. Foust said he would go to the farm 20 miles north of Dalhart to learn the dead man's name. The stabbing occurred at a cafe here last night. A social security card found on the body bore the name Richard Henry Jones, Jr., of Wichita Falls, the sheriff said. A Dallam county poll tax receipt gave the age as 26.

Sees New Permian Basin Yield In Northwestern Howard County

Opening of a new producing area in Howard county as an added commercial pool for the Permian Basin is seen by Forest Rees, consulting geologist of Tulsa, Okla., who discusses the territory and logs tests have shown in an article in the Tulsa Tribune. The Rees article: The rim of the Permian Basin is obviously about to deliver an additional major oil field to the West Texas district. Like a huge letter U, open to the north, the rim of the Permian Basin of West Texas is a model of geological structures which have produced many major oil fields during the past 15 years. So vast is the West Texas region, and so difficult for the geologist to solve as to local oil structure, that it has required the drilling of many wildcat wells to find the subsurface key beds for control points to extend the geological structure maps. Recently a new segment has been added to the northeastern portion of the Permian Basin, both structure and productively through the efforts of a pioneer geologist and a veteran oil producer, the story of Tulsa. The story adds up a series of events in West Texas oil history. The writer spent the winter of 1924-25 looking over that portion of Texas which lies west of a line drawn from Sweetwater southward to Del Rio. At the close of the year 1926, he completed a subsurface map contoured on the top of the Permian Big Lime, as revealed by more than 600 widely scattered oil tests. Drilling operations followed the

South Ends Year Without Lynching

ATLANTA, May 9 (AP) — The modern south ended its first year without a lynching last night, and today a foe of mob rule credited this new record to effective education, plus swift work of police radio patrols. Mrs. Jessie Daniel Ames, executive secretary of the Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching, said midnight marked the close of the first 12-month lynching-free period since tabulations were started in 1932. In contrast to this is the peak mark of 281 mob killings recorded in 1892. Mrs. Ames said swift action made possible by police radio alarm systems, particularly as used by highly mobile state trooper units, was an efficient and relatively new technique in combatting mobs. She declared the 12 months just past—and the previous year's record of only three lynchings—represented the fruits of long years of campaigning to bring about "lynch-consciousness."

FIFTH VICTIM OF SHOOTING AFFRAY DIES

LOS ANGELES, May 9 (AP)—The death toll in Monday's spectacular South Pasadena high school shooting affray when Verlin Spencer, junior high school principal, went berserk during a school board meeting, rose to five today when Ruth B. Sturgeon, arts teacher, died of wounds in the chest, face and hands. Miss Sturgeon, who was known to have been one of Spencer's school associates with whom he had had several disagreements following a nervous breakdown he suffered from her wounds following the shooting affray. Her death came shortly before the calling into session of a coroner's jury and a grand jury to formally launch a double-barrel inquiry into a strange story of jealousies, friction and intrigue in the administration of the South Pasadena junior high school that preceded the shootings.

Soldiers, Lost In Norway, Take Boat And Sail Home

A NORTHERN BRITISH PORT, May 9 (AP)—Seven British soldiers and two Norwegian seamen told today how they became separated from their buddies in Norway, trudged 200 miles to the coast, sometimes through waist-deep snow, took a Norwegian boat away from the Germans and sailed home.

They said about 100 British troops were fighting twice that many Germans in a battle between mountains in Norway when their band of 15 became stranded.

Guided by the stars and an occasional native, they struck out for the coast, leaving the wounded behind in a Norwegian hospital. Reaching the sea after seven days, they said they found a Norwegian boat in German possession. In the laconic words of one of the men, "Nine of us decided to board the ship and, aided by some Norwegians, we took command."

The bridge, 750 feet long, will be put across the Cupatitzil river between Calzonin and Apancingan in Michoacan state.

AROUND THE COFFEE POT

It was a seller's day at the Big Spring livestock auction sale Wednesday. The stands were filled with buyers waiting for a chance to snap off their choice of cattle, but the supply was limited in proportion. Consigners were on hand with a large number of cattle but were dwarfed by comparison with buyers.

A colorful and fast disappearing spectacle of the old West Texas ended at Lamesa Friday when 1700 head of yearlings were loaded in cattle cars after a drive from the Dean ranch in Dawson county. Although the drive covered only a little better than 30 miles, it was complete with cowboys and the old covered chuck wagon. Some 600 head of cattle were trucked to Lamesa. The yearlings were sold by Tom Good and were consigned to a northern buyer.

Doug Perry and Bob Middleton witnessed the cattle drive Friday. Doug shot up around a hundred feet of film in photographing the moving cattle. He secured some good shots of cookie setting up his camp and serving chow. Mr. Good stayed with the cattle on the drive.

The Wednesday sale served up the best butcher cattle market in Texas with this class bringing up to $9.65 per cwt. Other classes remained steady with a good demand. Stocker calves sold for 10 to 10 1/2, fat cows 5 to 6, canners 4 to 5, cutters 2 to 4 and rannies 5.50 to 5.65. A number of stocker cows sold for $65 and over.

Ned Ferguson was looking over cattle Wednesday for his place near Rockport.

J. W. Eden of Corsicana topped the Fort Worth market Tuesday for mixed stocker calves by receiving $11 per cwt. for 14 heifers and 11 steer calves from his commercial herd. The truckload averaged 268 pounds.

Report from the United States Department of Agriculture on prices paid for stock showed that beef cattle sold for an average of $6.60 per hundred for the month of April, an increase of 10 cents over the previous month. Veal calves went at $8.00; up 20c and sheep remained unchanged. Lambs were down 10c from March.

Babson Talks Of Coalition

CHICAGO, May 9 (AP)—Roger W. Babson, speaking as the probable presidential candidate of the Prohibition party, put the organization in the role of a "coalition third party" today.

The 64-year-old Massachusetts statistician declared at the prohibitionists' 19th national convention:

"Neither of the big political parties will get this country out of the present mess. A new movement must start, not from above, but from below. There must be a coalition of all those interested in putting righteousness before expediency."

He added in a prepared address that "without criticizing either the republicans or the democrats, it is fair to say that both have entangling alliances which make it almost impossible for them to take a stand on moral issues. The new Prohibition Party, therefore, is in a position to serve as such a coalition third party."

HITLER CAUSE OF FREE-FOR-ALLS

NEW YORK, May 9 (AP)—Pro and anti-Hitler sentiment precipitated free-for-alls at two spots on Broadway last night.

At Columbus Circle a soap box orator praised Hitler, a woman objected, a man spectator kicked her, and all three were arrested after many of the 200 spectators pitched into the fray.

At the newswheel theater two men of Swedish extraction booted Hitler. A lawyer and a salesman objected, about 20 other persons joined in the rumpus, and the two men of Swedish extraction were locked up on a charge of disorderly conduct.

CAA Change Is Supported

WASHINGTON, May 9. Budget Director Harold D. Smith declared today that merger of the Civil Aeronautics Authority into the commerce department, as proposed in President Roosevelt's contested fourth reorganization plan, would eliminate existing "functional confusion" in the CAA.

Testifying before the senate reorganization committee, Smith said that the shift would "continue the independence of the regulatory and accident investigation functions" now carried on by the CAA board and the Air Safety Board.

The reorganization plan, already disapproved by the house, would abolish the air safety board and lodge its functions in the five-member civil aeronautics board.

Smith declared that work on the safety board, the aeronautics board and the CAA administration now overlaps, resulting in confusion.

Senator McCarran (D-Nev.), opposing the reorganization proposal, sought, meanwhile, to obtain immediate senate consideration of the plan, but administration leaders sought to delay debate until the reorganization committee completes hearings tomorrow.

NEWSMAN'S DEATH HELD ACCIDENTAL

LONDON, May 9. (AP)—A coroner's inquest decided today that Webb Miller, European general manager of the United Press, died accidentally as a result of a fall from a train at Clapman Junction.

"It is a sad case, a sad end to a brilliant life."

Funeral services will be held tomorrow in the Chapel of Golders Green Crematorium. Miller's ashes will be sent to the United States. His widow and 18-year-old son are in New York.

MARKETS Wall Street

NEW YORK, May 9. (AP)—The stock market whetted its appetite on steel and aircrafts again today, but barely nibbled at many leaders in other groups.

Issues of companies with war-profits potentialities continued to respond to the belief of traders that, as soon as the British cabinet row is settled, the Allies will intensify the conflict with the Nazi and, consequently, come to America with more widespread orders for military materials.

In the minds of speculative contingents also was the likelihood that Washington would put on a big rearmament drive which could stimulate numerous industries.

JAP SHIPS IN AUSTRALIAN WATERS—Tied up at Sydney, New South Wales, are two Japanese whalers. The war in Europe hasn't interfered yet with movement of fishing boats.

IT'S NO LAUGHING MATTER—It's funny to her sister, Beatrice, 9, but Claire Flynn, 3, feels pretty bad because an over-the-wall homer by Hal Trosky in Philadelphia grazed her head.

FICKLE FASHION—Back in 1923 this Poirer gown and Maria Guy hat were chic, but see how Mrs. Harrison Williams who's always on the "best-dressed women" lists, enjoys them now. They're in a style panorama staged in N. Y. for a war benefit.

WHAT'S WHAT IN WATTS!—A few remarks about electric personalities are permitted in referring to this mechanical man and dog who'll be seen at their sparking best at the New York World's Fair, 1940 edition. The dog, with an almost-Scotty chassis, barks, wags his tail, walks, sits, and begs. The man robot weighs 250 pounds, even smokes a cigarette.

ROYALTY—Rose Bloise, 6 months, who won a healthiest baby contest at a Brooklyn, N. Y., hospital, exercised her womanly privilege at the crowning: she talked, freely.

APPOINTED—Rupert Emerson, Harvard professor and authority on colonial government has been named director of U. S. division of territories and island possessions.

Paying For The War

As further study has been given the past week to the ten-billion-dollar budget of Great Britain, one question is standing out in bold relief in the nation's financial maps—how long will it be before the United States is called upon to give financial aid to the Allies?

For the fiscal year ending March 31, 1941, Britain war expenditures alone are scheduled to reach eight billion dollars, and against this is anticipated income of five billion, according to a report from the Administrative and Research corporation's weekly letter. Despite sharp tax boosts, Britain's deficit for the year ending next March will be more than five billion dollars.

Boats in indirect levies on such items as beer, whiskey and tobacco are aimed to reduce domestic consumption and leave that much more reserve for export. Extent of the current direct tax on incomes is shown by the fact that married men with no children now pay $988 on earned income of $4,000 as against $44 on the same income in the United States.

There is a physical limit to which taxes can be increased. And there is no assurance that drives to expand exports will yield adequate results. Most desired, yet most difficult to obtain at the present time are credits from this country. Beyond that there is the assistance which may be given through our refusal to add new tariff barriers or to impose added duties on British imports. What the English would like to do would be to sell us such materials as nickel, tin, and rubber. It is reported that our stocks of these commodities can stand some increase, and it has been known for some time that the British have been acquiring ample supplies as a hedge against the day when cash payments for her vital imports run low. Thus, the British and officials in Washington could circumvent the touchy credit problem in the form of purchases. If the bartering of raw materials for finished war products develops, as it probably will, England will be falling back on a device long ago initiated by Germany.

From all these devices to finance war comes a vital lesson to the United States—they speed the acceptance of totalitarian government. Because of the national desire to win, whole populations are willing to yield their liberties and rights. The requisite of cooperative and co-ordinated action is the subservience of national economy to an authoritative board. Once these controls have been surrendered by the individual to the state, the road back to free economy when war is ended may be difficult.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

WASHINGTON—Mother's Day gift memo: Give her a book, a ponderous, 924-page report of a congressional committee.

It sounds silly, but mothers with sons of military age will love it. They can take a slight of comfort where they least expect it—from the gold-braided boss man of the U. S. Army.

The good news is buried deep in an obscure paragraph of the pound-and-a-half book. Turn to Page 5 of the volume titled:

MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT, APPROPRIATION BILL FOR 1941

Last year's report of your committee contained the following statement:

"The 75-millimeter gun is being supplanted in foreign armies with the 106-millimeter weapon, which has greater range and fires a heavier missile. Our ordnance department is developing such a gun, and undoubtedly soon will be ready to go into production. It is to be the field weapon of the future, the committee questions the wisdom of spending large sums on the old 75's."

LOOK UP, MOM!

To which Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. army chief of staff, open your eyes. Mom, here's your present—typo!

"Concrete fortifications and masonry villages of European battlefields may dictate a need for a weapon firing a heavier projectile than does the 75-mm. gun, but our forces would rarely be confronted with such targets in this hemisphere."

Those five lines of print mean just this: You can take a deep breath of relief. The wisest professional military man in these United States doubt that they'll be drafting your boy to fight in Europe anytime soon.

That's the army's best judgment. They're deadly serious, these big brass hats in the staff command. There is the tremendous job of protecting this country, its thousands of miles of coast line, its vital industrial centers, its 130,000,000 people. It's enough to make any soldier serious, and they give it their best thought.

THE 75'S SUIT US O. K.

But, boiled down, their best thought crystallizes into this portentous set of facts: (1) The 75-millimeter gun is adequate for the U. S. army's needs, because (2) only the concrete emplacements and masonry structures of Europe dictate the need for heavier artillery; so obviously (3) the army isn't figuring on any expedition to Europe.

They're experimenting with the bigger gun, sure. They keep up with the times. They've got to. But they still say the 75's will do.

Read another phrase from Gen. Marshall's report again, for more comfort. "... but our forces would rarely be confronted with such targets in this hemisphere." Repeat it. "... this hemisphere."

Open the atlas, now. Nary a bit of Europe is in this hemisphere, is it? Doesn't look as if the army had any trips across water in mind for Johnny, does it?

Write your congressman for Page 3 of the report. You won't be crazy if you have it framed or sleep with it under your pillow. Nothing very literary about those five lines, but they're mighty important.

So have a swell time come Mother's Day, Mom—you just had a present, compliments of Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, U. S. A.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—The impression you get of Bill Terry and Leo Durocher after reading the sports pages isn't to be relied on too implicitly. As managers of the Giants and the Dodgers they are supposed to be implacable enemies with a craving to see blood spilled every time they see each other.

Actually, they live at the same hotel and are the best of friends. It is true that Terry will not speak to Durocher on those days when Durocher's Hooligans whip the Giants, but neither will Durocher speak to Terry when the Dodgers are defeated.

These little brief flurries of coolness are spell binders for those who observe them, after hours, in their hotel. After their first meeting of the year during which the Dodgers gave the Giants a humiliating 12-0 beating, Durocher planted himself in the lobby and waited for Bill to arrive. Bill showed up presently in something of a somber funk. Durocher, who is known affectionately to his ball playing pals as "Lippy," immediately began making gloating remarks. He stood there with a grin that stretched to the back of his neck, rubbing it in. "Sweet William," as the sports writers dub Terry, swept right on by without appearing to notice this gad-fly. Next day they were back in their usual mood. Come a day—if ever—that the Giants take the Dodgers and the scene will be reenacted in reverse. But those flurries never last more than a few hours.

Bonnie Baker, the miniature Oh-Johnny-Oh Girl, was genuinely bewildered by a story that appeared in the papers about her recently. This story said she and Orrin Tucker couldn't get married because Orrin's family objected to the match. When I asked her about it, she said: "Everybody thinks we are married, or engaged, or in love. I've been with Orrin four years, working with the band. We're good friends, but that's all. You might even say we're too close for anything else. I'm not married, I'm not engaged. I'm not in love. I'm just one of the guys in the band."

A note from "Dude" Higgs says he will come back to America if he ever can find a way to get out of China. Higgs is an American flier who has been training Chinese aviators for their fight with Japan. Once, when he passed through French Indo-China, the French customs officials squeezed the toothpaste out of his tube. "I think they were looking for the Eiffel tower," he says. The most startling news in the note is about a "gift" that one of his grateful Chinese students sent him. He thought it would be a piece of jade, or something similar. But when the gift got there it came in under its own power. It was a concubine. Higgs politely put her on the train back to Shanghai that afternoon.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Ceil B. DeMille has conceded that only God can make a tree, but he has held out for bringing the mountain to DeMille.

DeMille considered going to the mountain; he compared costs of an extensive location with costs of bringing nature home to Paramount; he thereupon decided to stay on his Hollywood throne and pass a miracle.

The miracle has been under way for some days now, and it is one of C. B.'s better ones. "Northwest Mounted Police" needed a mountain forest of tall trees. The picture also needed about 300 husky Indians. So C. B. is getting his forest and his Indians and bringing them to Hollywood. The forest is covering approximately half of Paramount's 27 acres, and other DeMille acts are occupying six of the sound stages, which ought to make C. B. sleep well these nights, for nobody else is so colossal.

The studio has sent a motorcade of trucks to the Big Bear and Lake Arrowhead regions, and they're winding down those mountain roads loaded with forest pines, freshly felled and ranging in height from 30 to 100 feet. There'll be more than 300 of these beauties before they're through "planting."

DeMille wants real Indians, and there aren't enough on Central Casting's lists. He has scouts in Arizona and northeastern California rounding up the tribe.

The forest set, plus the Indians, will fent the budget about $150,000 worth, nothing compared with the cost of taking Garry Cooper, Madeline Carroll, Pauline Goddard and other stars, plus 30 extras and a crew of 250, to Pendleton, Ore., for three weeks as originally planned.

The movie won't all be home work, however. The Master has had his associate, Art Rosson, in the San Jacinto mountains a month filming battle scenes, and Rosson has another location ahead where the San Joaquin and Stanislaus rivers meet in central California.

Earl Carroll is staying home, too, not quite as cozily as DeMille, but still home. Carroll's night spot on Sunset is the adly scene of activities for "A Night at Earl Carroll's," and all the movie's interiors will be filmed on the actual scene, an expedient probably necessary with DeMille spreading himself over the studio precincts. Only the club's exterior has been constructed on the lot, this being considered a necessity inasmuch as the sight of a movie crew working on a public street is always a traffic-stopper.

The Carroll club is a movie studio by day and a club, as usual, by night. They clear out the arches, the scaffolds, the cameras and mikes each afternoon in time for the opening stage show which is just about what the movie is filming.

So far as I know this is the first time a legitimate stage show has been filmed in its native haunt, but it isn't simply a matter of setting up cameras and telling the girls to go ahead and strut and sing. O, no, it's a regular sound stage technique they're using, and the girls do it over and over again.

A Parsian claims to have perfected a typewriter that works automatically—but teaching it to spell and punctuate still remains—Shreveport Journal.

LITTLE SPITFIRE

Chapter 24 Silly Mess

"Read it," the Judge commanded. Brenda took the letter. "So my dear, I'll no longer pretend with you. I've known your secret for months. I may say for years. My heart's beloved, free yourself of the shackles of conventionality, and come to me. Let the dead past bury its dead (after all, your wife has been absent from your side for many years), and turn the page and make a new start. I know, you see; I've known all along; ever since I was a little girl. There! Doesn't that clear the path for you, dearest of dears?" "Maud."

Brenda's hand with the letter in it fell helplessly at her side. The confusion of metaphors, the absurd taking for granted what she wished to believe was eminently characteristic of Maud VanNess; but never would the younger girl have believed the prim old maid would summon courage enough to write the Judge as she had done.

A fearful wave of apprehension began to chill her. Maud had said it had been Brenda's attitude toward life which had broken down her reserves. Was she henceforth to be held responsible for all that went on in the Street? She tried frantically to remember the substance of her conversation with Maud the day she had lunched with her; but it had been such an unpleasant experience that she had quickly forgotten it.

"Well," asked the Judge shakily. "What am I to do about it, Brenda? How am I to answer it? You see, she says you advised her—"

"I didn't! I'm perfectly sure I didn't!"

"At any rate," he continued, not rebuking but more as summing up impartially the acts for the jury. "I've lived on this Street with Maud for nearly half a century, and never a word did I hear out of her on such a subject until you came here!" "Oh, Judge Harper!" she cried forlornly.

"I'm not blaming you, child. I know that. New York, and especially with your generation, and the solemnity and deep respect with which we older folk have held—still do hold—love and marriage have gone by the board." "There were tears in her eyes, but she held her head a trifle higher. "I beg your pardon, Judge, but you're mistaken so far as some of us are concerned; so far as I am concerned I respect love and marriage just as much as anyone can do. And—and I don't think it's fair to hold me responsible for a letter sent you by—a woman who told me herself that she—she—"

"She stopped abruptly, ashamed to betray poor Maud. The call, she thought afterward, went from bad to worse. The Judge was gentle with her, was considerate, but it was perfectly evident he was convinced in his own mind that the daughter of his old friend had been acting upon the advice—general or specific as the case might be—of this young writer from New York who had had a good deal to say about dealing frankly and realistically with life's problems.

Brenda did her best to disclaim any part in the affair but it was difficult to exonerate herself.

"And he's wise, he's known all sorts of people, their motives for doing all sorts of things!" she mused in surprise.

Absorbed In Cacti She put the question to Mac that night despairingly. He had been the last person she wished to know about it; in fact, when the Judge went sorrowfully away just before noon with not a grain of that sophisticated advice on his problem that he had come for, she had planned frantically to keep Mac from hearing of the silly mess.

But it was one of the rare evenings when they happened to be alone for a few minutes in the living room. Isabel had gone out with Eric—dressed in her smartest gown and wearing make-up delicately applied by Brenda's own expert hand. Adelaide was to return from Springfield sometime on the following day.

Mac sat smoking in his favorite leather chair; and suddenly he looked so dependable, so strong, so thoroughly understanding, that the girl found herself pouring the whole story into his ears.

"I've gone over what she said to me—what I said to her—that day at luncheon, five hundred times," she finished feverishly. "And I simply cannot remember one word that would encourage her to write a letter like that!"

"No, of course you didn't encourage her," he answered her. "Back up, Brenda, and I'll prove that you didn't. Remember the evening after you'd talked to Maud? When you and I took a drive together and rowed a little more fiercely than usual? I've no doubt the fight put all previous conversation out of your mind, but it happens that I remember it clearly. I asked you if Maud had told you about the

Are You Listening?

Oh, Mac, I'm beginning to You called her a poor foolish woman; and I said you were a swell sport to let her rave about her delusions to you—or words to that effect. Remember? She was sufficiently cheered to give her own endearing chuckle. (Continued on Page 12)

MINIMUM WAGE OF 36 CTS. PROPOSED IN RAIL INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, May 9 (UP)—A minimum wage rate of 36 cents an hour for the bulk of American railway employees was recommended today under the wage-hour law by the railroad carrier industry committee.

A rate of 33 cents was recommended for shortline railroads with less than $1,000,000 in annual revenue.

In its report to Col. Philip B. Fleming, wage-hour administrator, the committee cited estimates that the 36-cent rate for class one railroads and other employees in the industry would mean hourly pay rate increases for 60,000 of the 1,000,000 workers in this field.

The 33-cent rate for shortline roads, the committee said, would mean increases for an estimated 5,300 of the 17,000 employees affected.

Railroad spokesmen testified during hearings that a 36-cent minimum would cost class one roads $4,908,009 a year, and said the companies were unable to stand that burden at this time. Labor leaders urged a 40-cent rate.

Red Army Moves On Alexandria

By WILLIAM T. RIVES JASPER, May 9 (AP)—Long columns of troops, trained in the army's new "hit 'em hard and dodge" school, smashed into Louisa today to open the $1,000,000-a-day mock war which is giving the American soldier his first peace-time test on a grand scale.

Over pontoon bridges and regular highway structures they crossed the stream, and then darted as far into the interior as possible.

The famed Second division, a stout combat team, cavalry, field artillery and other units rumbled into the enemy country. There it was to harry the numerically superior Blue forces, theoretically a slower-moving group, with swift

Famed Dancer Refused Visa

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ, JR. ZURICH, May 9 (AP)—Vaslav Nijinsky, renowned dancer who knew the heights of world acclaim before mental disorders blighted his career two decades ago, was blocked by the United States consulate today from visiting the United States.

Despite a labor department ruling that the dancer should not be heard because of insanity—a state from which he is emerging gradually—the consulate refused Nijinsky a six-months visitor's visa on the grounds that spread of the war might prevent his return to Europe.

To his wife, Mme. Romola Nijinsky, it was a bitter setback in a two-year fight to take the great dancer to the United States for further treatment from a Viennese physician. Weeping in her hotel room Mme. Nijinsky cried "Vaslav's life depends on America!" "Why does America give me hope and then dash it? The labor department cabled April 22 that my husband should not be refused on grounds of insanity, but now—"

TRANSPORTATION GROUP WILL HEAR WASHINGTON WRITER

AUSTIN, May 9—Ray Tucker, prominent Washington columnist who writes the widely syndicated National Whirligig, has accepted an invitation to speak at the annual convention of the Texas Motor Transportation association in Fort Worth May 16-18, Manager Lynn B. Shaw said today.

Tucker will provide an interesting break in the motor carrier program, discussing war news from the Washington angle. The association's directors will convene again in Fort Worth May 4.

HITLER ORDER

BERLIN, May 9 (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler issued an order today declaring, "I have decided to permit Norwegian soldiers who were taken prisoner to return home."

thrusts and subsequent disappearing acts.

The specific order from Lieutenant Stanley D. Embick, third army commander in charge of the entire maneuvers, directed the Red army to cross the Sabine at daylight "and move rapidly on Alexandria, seize the bridges at that place and cover the concentration of the army. The army will support with combat aviation on call."

The 45,000 men of the Fourth corps—the Blue army—were not idle, however. Frontier guards were stationed along all roads leading into Alexandria. Support from the air, too, was promised in efforts to check the swift enemy movements.

Crossing of the Sabine meant that a war of planning had at last resulted in action. The knowledge gained in laboratory work, in preliminary maneuvers designed to test the efficiency of the army's new "blitzkrieg" tactics, finally was put to the test.

The two corps will be trained in operating over long distances—front, roughly, stretches 100 miles against a mobile enemy, and in maneuvering under combat conditions with combat aviation and mechanized forces.

LITTLE SPITFIRE

By Jean Randall

"We did, indeed!" I believe we—drove in icy silence for something like six miles afterward. But, Mac, you'll admit I was right—about Ned? They're having a simply heavenly time out at the farm with that greenhouse. Ned calls for them every morning and they take a lunch and stay all day. You will admit you were wrong?"

"He took his pipe from his mouth and grinned. "Poor little Brenda! You've got an awful shock coming."

"I?" She spread one small hand above her head. "What is it?" "Ned's so absorbed in cacti and whatnot that he's lost all interest in Alaine; at least in marrying her, I mean. He bought about a million books on grafting and pollenization and Lord knows what else, and when he isn't reading 'em, he's out to the farm experimenting. Sometime he gets up in the middle of the night and drives out just to be sure the temperature is right."

"Not Really In Love?" "How—how do you know?" "Ab was telling me yesterday. Ab's tickled pink, of course. He keeps his twin and he gains a greenhouse besides—to say nothing of those hairy, spiky things he and Ned go into raptures about."

"You see, my dear, Ned wasn't really in love with Alaine. I said so all along. He was lonely, and he had this genius interested in botany without knowing it, and he wanted like everything to insert himself in the twins' partnership. Now he has, and he's happy. So's Ab."

"B-but Alaine?" she stammered, the full import of her wrecked plans dawning upon her. Had she moved heaven and earth to bring Alaine and Ned together, merely to break poor Alaine's heart in the end? "Alaine's happy, too," he comforted her. "The twins, what with no one else living with them and practically no separate interests, were getting on each other's nerves. Now they have Ned to whet their irritation on, Ned to support—financially and otherwise their wildest floral ambitions. All consequently, it is well."

She glanced at him with new respect.

"But how—how did you know that Ned wasn't really in love with Alaine?"

He kept his eyes on his pipe which he was refilling, tamping the tobacco down with alternate forefingers.

"I've been in love myself," he informed her briefly. "I know the symptoms. Ned didn't have 'em!"

"Oh!" she said in a small voice. Silence fell on the room; a silence presently broken by the sound of rain on the panes.

"Any windows up?" he inquired. "I'd better go see. And I'll not be down, Brenda. I've got a lot of work to do before I go to bed."

"But, Mac! You haven't told me what to do about that letter? About the Judge? About—about Maud!"

He stood in the doorway, frowning with concentration. "Do nothing," he said finally. "Especially about Maud. I'll drop a hint to the Judge. Now"—he put up a hand to stop her protest—"it's not a betrayal of Maud's confidence to you. Goah, girl, do you think you're the only 'contemporary' Maud has confided in? She's told me that yarn about the Judge having adored her since her childhood more times than I can count. You leave the whole thing to me," he reassured her.

"Mac, I am grateful! I wish I knew how to—return the favor!"

He said surprisingly: "Trot out those dimples for a minute, to cheer me through my lonely hours of toil!"
