Physical Exams Monday For Football Players

A change in plans for physical examinations for this fall's football players has been announced by Coach Douglas Jung, and by Dr. Dyer and Dr. Blackburn of the Eldorado Clinic. The date has been changed from August 13 to August 6, this coming Monday evening.

All returning members of the Eagle team, as well as prospective new members, and Jr. High football players, are asked to report at 6:00 o'clock Monday evening at the local clinic for the required physical exams.

As pointed out in last week's Success, a new Interscholastic League regulation is now in effect which calls for physical exams for Jr. High players as well as for older boys. So all Jr. High age boys who plan to come out on Coach Whitaker's Eagle team are to report Monday night.

Eagle team workouts start on August 20, and the Eagles' team will be organized and workouts started after school opens.

Zuni Indian Rain Dance Gets The Job Done

John Dyer, senior veterinary student at A&M, is working this summer for the government in disease eradication near Gallup in New Mexico.

His parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Dyer of Eldorado, received the following letter from him this week, which gives an interesting description of his experiences among the Indians:

"I'm on the Zuni Indian Reservation right now, still dipping sheep. Have dipped 15,000 and have 10,000 more to go. Hope that we can get through by time for the Ceremonials. When the Ceremonials start the Indians won't be very interested in dipping sheep.

"Every day I eat with the Indians who are working the vat I'm supervising. Almost always they have the same thing: mutton, homemade bread (hard), warm soft drinks and watermelon. In the morning we pick out a lamb to give to one of the squaws. At noon we all squat around some tarps and dig in. After we eat, the squaws eat and clean up the mess. I really enjoy it, but if you studied the sanitation it might be harder to enjoy.

"Last Wednesday we saw a rain dance at the Zuni Pueblo. About 30 men were standing side by side, padding their feet to the drums, shaking rattles and chanting. Their dress was weird. All wore masks, (topped with green leaves), furs, and a lot of jewelry. It was a very colorful sight to see. I wanted to take a picture, but because it was a religious dance they would not allow it. Well anyway, they danced till late in the night and—believe it or not—it rained the next day."

When Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Dyer moved to Eldorado from Kerrville about a year ago, one of the first things the doctor did was to let it be known that he was interested in buying a piece of Schleicher county land.

Land for sale is not a surplus commodity in our county and it took the doctor nearly a year to find a place he could buy. About a month ago he made a sale agreement with Edgar Spencer for his 440-acre stock farm about four miles west of Eldorado. It took some time to get abstracts and other papers brought up to date, but the deal was closed recently.

In addition to the Spencer place, Dyer also purchased from Thomas Baker his adjoining 20-acre tract which was at one time the location of the Shell pumping station.

The Baker property includes a large brick structure which was formerly the Shell pumping station.

Now, as everyone knows, there is nothing more fun than looking at a good big building and then making plans on how you would remodel it into a residence, and the doctor and his wife have already entered enthusiastically into the project. They have engaged an architect to help them draw up plans and one of these days work will get under way.

It is a huge building which was constructed to stand for all time, and it will be interesting to see what they come up with when remodeling gets under way. The building presumably went up back in 1928, the year that Shell's 10-inch McCamey to Houston pipeline went on stream. In its heyday, the station was a county showplace with landscaped grounds and several cottages for the engineers and their families.

With our subscribers: Hubert V. Graves' new address in Brownsville is 24 Acacia Drive. Jim Steward is now in Lubbock at 716 31st Street. Alma Sauer has moved to 45 W. 27th in San Angelo.

A transient printer came by and called on us Sunday, looking for work. A common occurrence in the "old days" this is the first time we've had such a visitor in many years.

August 20 Probable Date For Completion Of New Iraan Road

R. A. McCulloch, resident highway engineer from Sonora, reported yesterday that one course of crushed rock base had been applied on the last 5-mile gap on the Iraan road. The second course of base has already been started and will be completed next week.

McCulloch estimated that the black-topping should start by August 15—and it is a job that takes but a few days.

On this basis August 20 can reasonably be expected to be the completion date.

Plans made over ten years ago called for this road to ultimately be an extension of State Highway 29. Now we learn that plans may go even further—that it may ultimately become an extension of U. S. Hwy. 190.

Band Practice To Start August 22nd At School

Glen Matthews announces that summer practice for the Eldorado Eagle band will begin on Wednesday, August 22nd, and continue for about two weeks until the opening of school.

Wildcat Well Set

Western American Oil Co. and Midco Oil & Gas Co., Midland, will drill a 6,100-foot wildcat in Schleicher county, eight miles east of Eldorado and two miles north of the Page field, but separated by dry holes and depleted producers. It is the No. 1 Will Loveless.

Location is 330 feet from the south and 660 feet from the east lines of 5-EEE-Thos. Cartwright survey.

It is 1 5/8 miles southeast of Tucker Drilling Co. No. 1 Loveless, a 5,944-foot failure, abandoned on Nov. 28, 1960.

A colorful street parade at 6:00 p.m., heralding the opening of the fifth annual Junior Rodeo, will make its way through the business district of Eldorado shortly after 6:00 p.m. tomorrow (Friday). The two-day event is sponsored annually by the Eldorado Riding Club of which Horace Linthicum is president, and is staged at the roping arena.

Occupying a prominent place in the parade this year will be the six candidates for rodeo queen. They are: Linda Nixon, Shane Henderson, Tissie Enochs, Deanne Hext, Mary Lee Tisdale and Sherry Yates. One out of this group will be crowned queen during the closing performance Saturday night. Judging will be done on horsemanship.

John Bonner of San Angelo will officiate as field judge for all events of the show, and Ezra Trotter of Barnhart will be the announcer.

Arrangements for the street parade will be under the direction of Bob Skurlock and Tucker Clark. The concession stand, which is always a busy place during the show, will again be handled by Mrs. Dee Love and Mrs. Tucker Clark.

There will be three age groups for both boys and girls. For those 12 years old and under, the entry fee is $5.00.

For ages 13 to 15 the entry fee is $10.00; and from age 16 to 19 the entry fee is $15.00.

Soon to Be Completed--- Sketch Showing New Iraan Highway and its Relationship to the Heart of Texas

The CIVIL WAR CENTENNIAL

By Dayton Kelley
Mary Hardin-Baylor College
Belton, Texas

Sunday, August 12, will be a memorable day for the citizens of the little town of Comfort in the hill country south of Fredericksburg. On that day they will hold a memorial ceremony for those of their number who in 1862 were ambushed by the Confederates while trying to reach Mexico, the first stop on their way to join Union forces in the North.

The men, mostly German emigrants with the oath of allegiance to the United States fresh upon their lips, could see no reason to repudiate that oath in favor of the Confederacy. After much planning, they met on Turtle Creek near Comfort, elected Fritz Tegener major in command, and set off for Mexico.

They got as far as the Nueces River in Kinney county where they were ambushed by a Confederate force commanded by Lt. C. D. McKee and 19 of them were killed or wounded in what later became known as the Battle of the Nueces. The wounded were shot and left unburied along with those killed in the skirmish.

Nine more were captured a few days later and shot and an additional eight were killed while trying to cross the Rio Grande the following October.

After the War, in 1865, some of the citizens of Comfort went to the battleground and gathered up the remains which were still unburied and returned them to Comfort where they were put into a mass grave. A massive monument, said to be the only one in Texas to Union soldiers, was erected over the mass grave.

When this department visited Comfort recently, the monument had been freshly white-washed in preparation for the memorial service on Aug. 12. In fact, the whole town seemed to be busily preparing for the event which is expected to draw several hundred visitors.

to the hill country town of 1,000.

We were preceded to Comfort by columnists and writers from all over Texas including George Dolan of Fort Worth, Stanley Frank of San Angelo, a reporter for a San Antonio newspaper and even a photographer for Life magazine. We, like every other writer who comes to Comfort, sought out Guido E. Ransleben, the scholarly town historian.

Ransleben, who for many years was sales and advertising manager for Pioneer Flour Mills in San Antonio, is now retired and spends his time both writing and collecting Texas history, particularly that of the German settlements of the hill country. His book, "A Hundred Years of Comfort in Texas," is truly a work of love and an excellent centennial history of his home town. Of course the part we enjoyed and appreciated most is his chapter on Comfort in the Civil War which includes an impartial account of the Battle of the Nueces.

Ransleben, along with several others from the Comfort area, recently visited the site of the battle near Brackettville which local residents now refer to as the Dutch Battleground. The party had a difficult time finding the site since there is no marker and the old timers who remember the place are gone. Ransleben hopes the state will see fit to erect a marker during the centennial period.

The historian-author has put many hours into plans for the memorial ceremony and a top-notch program has been arranged. Dr. Rupert N. Richardson of Abilene, vice-chairman of the Texas Civil War Centennial Commission, will be one of the speakers. Other features of the program which begins at 10:30 a.m. include a wreath-laying ceremony, the pledge to the flag, and the singing of two German snogs which were probably sung at the Nueces the night before the ambush. The two old songs are hymns and Ransleben recalled that survivors of the massacre said later the night was spent in singing and merry-making.

During the program the Stars and Stripes will be raised upon a new flagpole being erected near the monument by the Volksfest Association of Texas at a cost of about $500. The association, with headquarters in San Antonio, each year erects markers and monuments noting achievements of German-Texans.

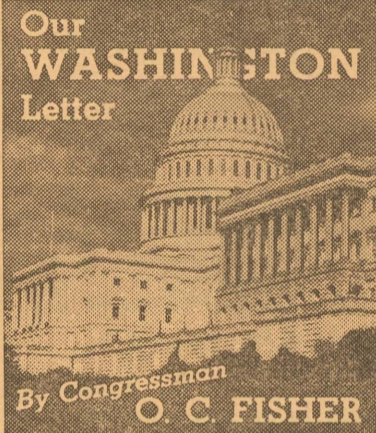

Following the morning program at the monument, which will be closed with the singing of America, lunch will be served in the city park, after which there will be band music, choral singing, and "old fashioned visiting," Ransleben said.

The entire day's activities will highlight a theme on "loyalty", the principle for which these Texans died a hundred years ago and which is inscribed on their monument in their native German tongue—"Treue der Union,"—Loyal to the Union.

Random bits of interesting information picked up in Comfort: Fritz Tegener, the commanding officer of the Unionists, survived the massacre and later served as a member of the 11th Texas Legislature. On the day we stopped in Comfort, author Ransleben had just received a picture of Tegener from the old warrior's granddaughter, Mrs. C. A. Maas, of Dallas.

Some of the survivors of the massacre later made their way afoot to Monterrey and on to Veracruz in Mexico. Here they boarded ship for New Orleans and enlisted in the 1st Texas Cavalry Regiment, the United States Army. They arrived home in 1865 and were mustered out in San Antonio.

Our WASHINGTON Letter

By Congressman O. C. FISHER

It's time to adjourn. Seldom in modern times has there been so much indecision and confusion about what the Congress should do about this or that. For one thing, the Congress has never before been bombarded with so many requests from the White House. During this session alone the President has made 285 requests, of which 20 have been granted.

Major proposals are floundering, many defeated or limping along in attempts to stay alive. The over-ambitious farm bill was killed. Medicare under social security, a political patent medicine prescription for the ills of the elderly, has been deposited in the legislative ash can. A new Department of Urban Affairs, designed to channel more federal funds into metropolitan areas, was decisively licked in the House early in the session.

The $2 billion public works stand-by proposal, a major New Frontier idea, which would have granted the President the power to decide if and when he would order new projects initiated, is not likely to survive. And the same is true of the President's request for stand-by tax-cutting authority, to be used if, as and when he might choose.

A Communications satellite bill, which passed the House almost unanimously, is bogged down in the Senate where a hard core of extreme liberals are opposing it, headed by Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon. It's a good bill and is sure to pass the Senate handily if and when a vote is taken.

The President is reported to be withholding judgment on an economy-priming tax cut this year. That comes in the wake of Administration efforts to raise taxes more than $2 billion a year to help pay for its medicare proposal, which was defeated in the Senate by a two-vote margin. Faced with an estimated $7 billion deficit during this fiscal year, it is difficult to justify a decrease in taxes unless the loss in revenue is off-set by a retrenchment in spending. And every request that has come to Congress has called for more spending.

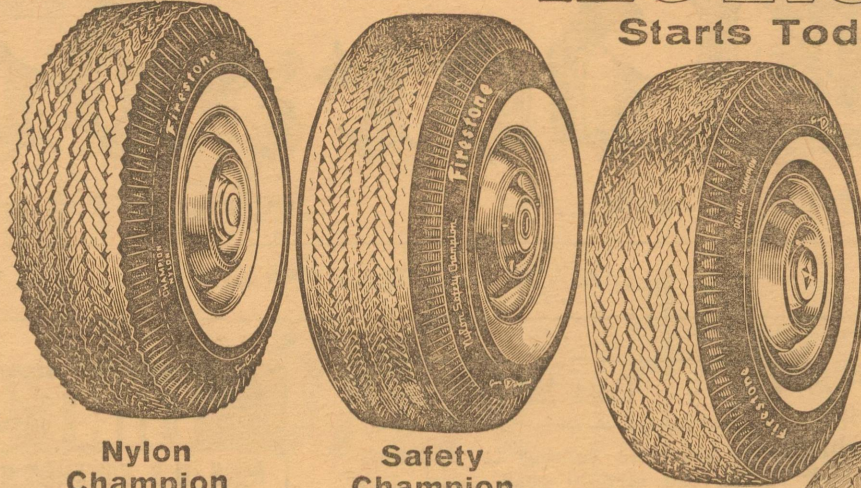

Boiled down, there can be no doubt that the country would be better off if after passing the essentials, the Congress would pack up and go home; cool off listen to the people for a few months and then come back and start over again.

VACATION PLANS MADE

Miss Melissa Sutherland of Monahans is visiting her sisters, Mrs. Bill Hubble and Mrs. Jimmy Harris and their families. BAPTISTS GO TO PAISANO

The Paisano Baptist Encampment opened Monday for its 42nd consecutive camp meeting at Paisano Pass near Alpine. Those from Eldorado's First Baptist church who are attending are the T. P. Robinsons, the Billy Frank Blaylocks, the Weldon Davises, J. C. Ratliffs, and Carroll Whites.

T. P. Robinson, J. C. Ratliff, and Weldon Davis are assisting in the preparation of the meals. It takes about 15 steers, weighing about 1,200 each, to furnish beef for each encampment. About 1500 pounds of bacon and two tons of potatoes plus many sacks of flour and lots of other things go to fill the some 20,000 plates. Meals are served cafeteria style.

One of the dominant features of the encampment area is the Mitchell Tabernacle, a domed structure seating 1,800 persons. It has no inside poles to obstruct the view and its sides open up so hundreds more can see and hear from the outside.

All property belongs to the Baptist General Convention of Texas and Paisano Baptist Assembly, Inc., and is worth more than $100,000. Baptists and visitors attend each year from all over the state.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

Shifts Continue In Farm Real Estate

College Station.—The average value per farm in Texas increased from $48,378 to $64,950 between 1959 and 1962, according to C. H. Bates, economist of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

In this same period, the average size of farms increased from 631 to 710 acres. This year the land on the average Texas farm is worth $59,302. Buildings are worth an additional $5,648. The average value for land and buildings is about $91 per acre, he said.

The rate of sales of farm land accelerated some during the last year also. The number of farm title transfers in Texas rose from 51.8 per 1,000 farms in 1960-61 to 58.2 in 1961-62.

A study by USDA's Economic Research Service shows the average value per acre of farm real estate reached a new high of $123 per acre in the U. S. in 1962, five per cent higher than in the previous year. The average farm has 336 acres, and is worth $41,400. About $32,800 of this is accounted for by land, and the balance, $8,600, by farm buildings, Bates said.

Five San Marcos bowlers took second place in the state bowling competition held the past week end in Beaumont, and established some individual records also.

The five members of the Spudnut Shop bowling team are: Gene Eubank of Sonora and Roosevelt, Clifford Nixon, Roy Guyon, Sonny Wright, and Bill Cassidy. Outstanding bowler of the Beaumont group was Eubank who rolled a 678 series for an average of 226 pins per game.

Tourist Traffic Declines In Texas

Austin.—The decline of the Texas tourist industry slowed slightly but did not stop in 1961.

The annual Tourist Industry Report compiled by the state's official tourist agency, the Texas Highway Department, revealed recently that the number of tourists visiting Texas dropped for the fourth straight year.

Total visitors to Texas during 1961 were 8,408,000, a decline of some two per cent below the 8,600,000 who visited the state in 1960.

Last year's guests spent only $440 million in the state as compared to 1960's total expenditures of $457 million.

The reason for the continued sag is the tourist advertising programs of other states, said Herbert C. Petry, Jr., chairman of the Texas Highway Commission.

"Aggressive media advertising programs by other states continue to lure prospective visitors away from Texas—a state which has no funds as yet for media advertising," Petry said.

Mike and Donna Wilton of Fort Sumner, New Mexico, have been visiting in the James Page home for some time. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Wilton, came after them last Monday and visited a few days also.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Page are vacationing in Colorado.

Austin.—Gov. Price Daniel and water conservation leaders are launching a campaign to win voter approval of Constitutional Amendment No. 4 on the general election ballot November 6.

Daniel's Statewide Water Conservation Committee will meet on September 10 to map the campaign. Other statewide organizations are being urged to join the effort.

This amendment would allow the Texas Water Development Board to use part of its $100,000,000 water loan fund to pay for the added height needed to fully utilize dam-sites in Texas.

Story is this: When cities or the Federal government build reservoirs, there may not be enough demand for water in the area to build the dams to their full height. Water studies have indicated that in 20 to 50 years, the full yield of all presently-proposed reservoirs will be needed to supply the 21,000,000 Texans expected by the year 2010.

But if the dam and reservoir are built only to meet present or near-future needs, there will be greatly increased costs later on, since recreational and other developments will have to be built around it. Cost could run two or three times as much, then, to buy the developed land and raise the dam.

In the long run, sponsors argue, the amendment would save Texans many millions. If it passes, the Development Board could pay for the added cost now and hold the water storage space until cities or industries in the area need the water and are willing to pay for it. Then the revenue can be used to pay off the long-term bonds the Board issues.

Two samples of the need are in the news these days.

Lavon Reservoir near Dallas was built mainly for flood control by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers. Now more space is needed for water supply purposes.

Today, however, the North Texas Municipal Water District, which supplies water to 10 cities in the area, will have to pay about 60 to 70% more than it would have cost them in the first place.

Cooper Reservoir on the Sulphur river is being delayed, right now, because cities in the area just can't raise the money to build it to full size.

Population Zooming

State Health Commissioner J. E. Peavy estimates that Texas' population passed the 10,000,000 mark Friday.

He based his prediction by computing births, deaths and migration since April, 1960.

At that time Texas had a population of 9,579,677. Then Texans registered 570,250 births and 176,500 deaths, or a natural increase of 393,750.

Assuming that the 1950-1960 rate of migration has continued, 26,500 more people have moved into the state than out, during the calculated period. That would give the state a total population of 9,999,927 on July 26.

Dr. Peavy figured Friday was "10 Million Day," since more than 400 people are added daily by the excess of births over deaths.

National Seashore Urged

The Legislative Beach Study Committee, headed by Sen. Robert W. Baker of Houston, endorsed the creation of a national seashore area on Padre Island during a meeting in Galveston. He urged immediate legislation to implement the recent law passed by the U. S. Senate.

Committee is composed of Sen. Culp Krueger, El Campo; Sen. A. R. Schwartz, Galveston; Rep. Neal Caldwell, Alvin; Rep. Don Garrison, Houston; John Mehos of Galveston; Jack E. Walker of Baytown; George T. Camp of Beaumont, and C. T. Parker Jr. and W. B. Edwards of Houston.

They expected to meet again in the fall to prepare a report for the Legislature.

Safety Plan Lauded

Governor Daniel credited organizations such as the Junior Chambers of Commerce and the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs with awakening public interest in the use of safety belts in automobiles. Jaycees and members of TFWC have been conducting safety belt campaigns.

On The Screen . . . 'Satan Never Sleeps' Is On Sunday & Monday

Pearl S. Buck, a knowing writer on China in days just preceding Mao-Tse-tung, conceived this East vs. West romance of unblendable factors. Dedicated Father O'Banion (William Holden) saved the life of pert, fragrant Sui Lan (France Nuyen) who thought, thereafter, that her life belonged to the missionary and could not get it through her head that he didn't want it on more than humanitarian terms.

With this valid theme to go on, Director Leo McCarey has come up with the movie version of "Satan Never Sleeps" which will be shown Sunday and Monday nights at the Eagle Drive-In Theatre. The production is two hours long and is in CinemaScope and DeLuxe color.

The Russian-prodded Chinese Communists are coming as Holden takes Miss Nuyen to the mission of aging Father Bovard (Clifton Webb), whom he is to replace.

They collide with the Reds, led by Ho San (Weaver Lee), once a devout student of Catholicism, an aspirant to priesthood and fanatically anti-Christian. When he ponders the values of Communist deceptions, he is roundly scolded for "thinking" by his Russian mentor (Martin Benson).

The booted colonel murders in cold blood and burns homes and churches. Mr. Lee later has a change of heart, accompanies Miss Nuyen back to safety, marries her tenderly and baptizes their child born out of wedlock with the name of "Ho-Banyun" after Father O'Banion.

Mr. Holden's attitude is mixed. He is pleased by snatching two brands from the burning and also to get Miss Nuyen out of his hair.

Miss Nuyen, with her exotic looks, is the most dimensional character McCarey permits. She sounds notes of Oriental psychology. She can't understand why Holden doesn't grab what is so freely offered and doesn't even suspect the reason.
