Masons Start Building Fund With $5,000

The new building program officially launched by the Eldorado Masonic Lodge last Thursday night has gotten off to a flying start and is meeting with enthusiastic support.

J. T. Jackson, worshipful master, reports that $5,000 was collected on the initial kick-off and that pledges and cash are continuing to come in. Members who were not present at the recent meeting are now being contacted and pledge cards will be offered to those who wish to pay in the future.

Committees are to visit nearby Lodges which have recently erected new buildings, in order to get ideas for the new hall here. It will be built on lots which the Lodge already owns just north of the court house square, near Earl Parker Motors.

The unit voted to give a $200 scholarship to a graduate of Eldorado High school who is planning to enter the teaching profession. Seniors or graduates who are interested should write a letter of application to the Eldorado P-TA in care of Mrs. Edwin Jackson.

Mrs. Ed Meador introduced the program leader, Rev. Dan Sebesta, who presented a poem, "The Family Circle."

Room count awards went to Mrs. Royster, 2nd; Mrs. Humphries 5th; the 8th, and the 10th.

FIRE DAMAGES OLD HOUSE

The Dora Riley house on the Menard highway was extensively damaged by a fire at about 4:00 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Prompt action by the firemen prevented the blaze from becoming large enough to endanger neighboring property. The fire burned the rear room where the kitchen was located and did slight damage to the remainder.

The house has been vacant for the past several years. It is one of the oldest houses in Eldorado, having been built in about 1905.

Cotton Crop Just Shy Of 5,000 Bales

Awfully close — but not quite. Apparently Schleicher county is not going to come up with a 5,000-bale cotton crop for the 1960 season, but it will be awfully close.

At the Mikeska Gin Monday the total stood at 4,950 bales, and there were a few who were still picking. But the loads now are getting few and far between.

As the weather warms up most farmers are eager to start farming for the new crop and are abandoning some cotton that might have been picked if earlier conditions had been more favorable.

EAGLE CHEVROLET ACQUIRES OLDSMOBILE LINE HERE

The process of merging these two General Motors lines on the local level has been going on since December.

"With addition of Oldsmobile to Eagle Chevrolet, we are in better position than ever to serve your motoring needs, whether for service or a new car," the proprietors stated this week.

Ruth Parker Winner of Bausch & Lomb Award

RUTH PARKER

Throughout the United States, educators recognize the annual Bausch & Lomb Science Award as evidence of superior scientific aptitude.

In announcing Ruth Parker as the 1961 winner, Principal Frank Kemble of Eldorado High School, said, "These Awards are especially significant. Today, everyone realizes the importance of the study of science in our secondary schools. The Bausch & Lomb Honorary Science Award provides appropriate recognition to Senior students with the highest scholastic standing in science subjects."

The Science Award, a handsome bronze medal, is presented at graduation in more than 7,000 schools. Since its introduction in 1933, there have been 140,000 winners. Surveys have revealed that more than 30% of the winners have been encouraged by the Award to follow scientific careers.

Winners of the Honorary Science Award are eligible to compete for Science Scholarships, sponsored by Bausch & Lomb Incorporated, at the University of Rochester. Three or more Scholarships are provided annually. Stipends are based on need and have a total combined value of $21,600. The Award winner is usually selected early in January, so that his or her application for the Scholarship Competition can be filled out and returned to the University before the March 1 deadline.

The Bausch & Lomb Science Award and Scholarship Programs have been officially approved by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Health Letter

Austin.—Credit Bull Mooser Teddy Roosevelt for starting what still stands as one of the most vital single phases of personal health protection. As President in 1908 he ordered periodic health examinations for all army officers.

A "periodic check-up" is simply a careful medical study of a presumably health person, performed regularly by the family physician to detect disease or body malfunction in an early stage. Early treatment reduces suffering and prevents some diseases from becoming chronic, and perhaps incurable. Besides detecting disease before it becomes too deeply-rooted, the check-up serves as a basis for better health practices for the patient and his family. The physician can discuss such problems as diet, exercise, rest, work and play habits, and other activities which affect health.

How often and what type examination should be given varies with the patient's age, sex, occupation, heredity, past health, place of residence, and economic status. Says the American Society of Pediatrics:

"The normally healthy infant should be checked about every six weeks during the first year, every three months during the second year, and once a year from the sixth to twelfth year."

Most medical authorities believe that from about 12 to age 40 or 45, annual health check-ups are adequate. After 45 some doctors advise examinations every nine months. These time schedules, keep in mind, are suggested for normal people without previous serious or chronic illness.

No single examination can be applied to all persons, but all check-ups include a medical history, the actual physical examination, and may include certain laboratory and x-ray procedures as determined to be necessary.

The medical history gives the physician clues as to what he should be especially alert for when he begins the examination. It will include such things as social and occupational habits, past illnesses, present symptoms. Armed with this advance knowledge the physician can frequently detect the possibility of disease long before abnormal physical signs become apparent to the patient. (A weekly feature from the Health Education Division, Texas State Department of Health.)

Unwanted Choice Avoided?
The House of Representatives of the Texas Legislature has stalled the proposal of putting a tax referendum up to the voters of the state at the April 4 special election.

Although we are heartedly in favor of letting the voters of the state express their opinions on tax proposals in a referendum, we are not overly sad or disappointed that it may not come about. We have felt that the proposal would give the voters only an unwanted choice of three evils, or in order to get a state-wide sales tax across, two even less acceptable taxes (payroll and income) were brought along side for a choice. In other words, we would be choosing not the tax we favored, but the one we disliked the least out of a limited choice.

Our main question has been, are these three tax proposals the ONLY and last resorts? Is there another way open? Could we have more than these three choices? The voters of the state might show preference to some of the proposals that have been beaten down time and again by lobby groups. No, we are not disappointed that the referendum has stalled, for it would have definitely brought on one of the three evils. Now the door is still open to other suggestions, ideas and proposals. The best thing we can do now is to let our representatives know how we stand.

We just hope now that it appears the referendum will not be able to get on the April 4 ballot, that the Legislators will not take an about face, decide to have the referendum at a later date—adding a huge cost of another special election. —Van Horn Advocate.

On Legalizing Horse Racing
They're getting ready to present another racing bill to Texas voters. It will be a local option deal whereby Texas cities would be permitted to decide whether they want legalized racing and betting. If and when it reaches the amendment stage where the entire state will be asked to express itself, we will carefully avoid comment on the thing altogether. It is not for us to tell Houston, Dallas and San Antonio what to do.

But we can guarantee this: if the big cities want a first-class way to punish themselves, but good, they will adopt racing and see an instant decline in their economy. Pari-mutuel betting is the handiest means of breaking about a fifth the population there is. Proponents of the bill talk about the tax revenue resulting to the state; what they don't talk about is that for every million dollars in taxes created, two or three times that amount will be drained from the purses of racing fans. It's getting tax relief the hard way.

In cities such as New York, Los Angeles, New Orleans and Miami where enough transient money circulates, the frightful impact of racing isn't felt too strongly. But in most cities it's sheer murder! Personally, the infrequent trips we make to the tracks are loaded with fun but short on profit. It's a poor place to make money. —Mason County News.

By this time a hundred years ago the entry of Texas into the Confederacy was almost a certainty. The secession convention, meeting in Austin, had approved an ordinance of secession by a vote of 166 to 7, seven delegates to the conference of seceded states in Montgomery, Alabama, and federal property to the tune of more than a million dollars had been handed over to Confederate sympathizers.

The ordinance of secession was submitted to a vote of the people of Texas on February 23 and became effective on March 2, the anniversary of Texas' declaration of independence from Mexico.

The seven delegates to the Montgomery conference, who arrived in Montgomery after the organization of a provisional government, included Thomas M. Waul, Williamson S. Oldham, John Gregg, John H. Reagan, W. B. Ochiltree, John Hemphill, and Louis T. Wigfall.

The federal property in Texas was surrendered on February 16 in San Antonio by Brevet Major General David E. Twiggs, commander of the U. S. Army's Department of Texas.

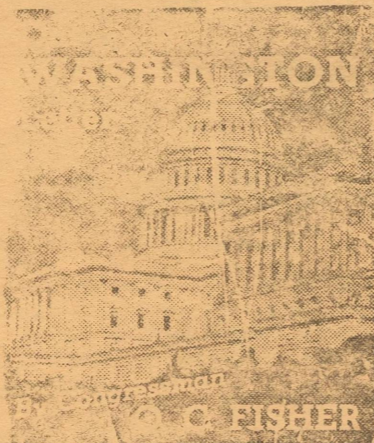

By the terms of the surrender agreement, General Twiggs turned over more than 20 scattered army outposts in Texas along with their supplies, equipment and troops. The troops, numbering about 2,700 were later allowed to march to the coast with their personal possessions and take ship for movement to Northern territory.

General Twiggs, who was later cited by the United States secre-

Fort Stockton United Fund officials have announced a final effort to reach the organization's goal of $16,326, following a meeting of directors and officers Monday night.

After hearing campaign chairman Tom Stovell report that the drive was $5,000 short, the officers and directors volunteered to finish work on advance gift cards, beginning immediately.

The deadline for that portion of the effort was set at March 18. —Ft. Stockton Pioneer.

The House Un-American Activities committee, which has for years been a thorn in the side of Communists and subversives in this country, is sure to get approval of requests for funds to carry out its functions during the next year.

Unfortunately, there has been quite an upsurge of criticism of the committee, most of it traceable either to the Commies or those liberals who, wittingly or unwittingly, have been taken in by Communist propaganda.

Of particular concern is the ravings from certain University campuses. Student groups at such places as the University of Southern California, Harvard, the University of Nebraska, and others, have rallied to the support of the committee critics.

But when hearings were held before the House Administration Committee that recommends funds for the committee, only two appeared to raise questions about the Un-American Activities committee.

After all the phony arguments and misrepresentations of the liberals are heard, the American people can be assured that the overwhelming majority of the members of the House of Representatives will continue to give full support to the Committee.

Battle lines are forming in Congress for the drive to reduce the 27½% depletion allowance in the oil industry. A show-down may take place on the issue this year. It is most important to the stability of the economy of the oil-producing states that the present allowance be continued.

Actually, experience has shown that the 27½% figure is about right. Studies reveal that exploration costs, the average life span of oil wells, and other considerations, make the allowance at about the present level both fair and equitable.

tary of war as a traitor, was next to the Army commander General Winfield S. Scott in seniority. He was a native of Richmond County, Georgia, and would have been in line to replace General Scott if the latter resigned. Twiggs resigned from the U. S. Army, saying he refused to fight against fellow Southerners, and became a brigadier general in the Confederate Army, commanding the Louisiana district.

The 100th anniversary of the surrender of U. S. forces in Texas was noted in special ceremonies recently when descendants of some of the men involved re-enacted the event in San Antonio. A bronze plaque noting the anniversary was unveiled near where the surrender took place.

Jefferson Davis was inaugurated as the president of the young Confederate union in special ceremonies in Montgomery, Alabama, the provisional capital of the new nation, February 18, 1861.

On the 100th anniversary of that date, Montgomery attorney T. B. Hill, impersonating Davis, led a parade to the state capitol to re-enact the inauguration.

Dressed in long dark coat and high hat, Hill waved to crowds lining the streets from his horse-drawn carriage. The band played "Dixie" and throngs of top-hatted men and hoop-skirted belles watched the re-enactment.

I still have a good supply of sketches of the Confederate flags and the selected reading list which I will send to those addressing a request to me. Please enclose a stamped and addressed envelope.

Austin.—Both pro- and anti-sales taxers declare they're in a better position now that Gov. Price Daniel has dropped his support of the payroll tax plan.

Pro-sales taxers say this will leave the Legislature practically no choice but to pass a general sales tax. But opponents say it clears the way to getting down to "numerous other plans."

In his message dropping the payroll tax, the governor also said that he felt neither a sales or income tax had a chance of passage. But he recommended instead the State Finance Advisory Commission's second choice plan, extension of excise taxes.

Under this plan, new items to be taxed would include restaurant meals, gas and electric household appliances, jewelry and watches, soft drinks, building materials, business machines, home and office furnishings and boat and automobile parts.

Taxes on these items would be increased: motor vehicles, gasoline, air conditioners (to include central systems), cosmetics, beer, liquor, wine, and boats and motors.

Elective Insurance Board

A proposal to grant the people the right to elect the members of the Insurance Board has been introduced by Rep. David Read of Big Spring.

The appointive Board has been under severe criticism for several years, especially since it suddenly increased insurance rates on motorists, based on traffic violations.

Bill is patterned after the law requiring the election of the Railroad Commissioners. It is the sponsor's belief that the public would be given more consideration if the insurance posts were elective positions.

Auto Insurance Plan Hit

Texas' merit rating plan for auto insurance came in for heavy criticism as the Senate Insurance Committee considered a measure calling for extensive changes.

Sen. Grady Hazlewood of Amarillo declared that, at present, it's not how you drive, but whether you get caught, that determines your insurance premiums.

Under a revised plan sponsored by Senator Hazlewood, insurance premiums would be raised only for more serious traffic violations. No penalty points would be assigned for anything that happened before January 1, 1960.

In taking apart the present plan, Senator Hazlewood said it is inequitable because among other reasons, (1) it doesn't apply to commercial vehicles such as trucks, taxis, etc., and (2) traffic tickets aren't passed out as readily in small towns as large ones.

No one appeared to disagree with his view.

Water Bill Passed

A bill to raise the amount the State Water Development Board can lend for local water projects gained final passage from both Houses.

It will become law with the governor's signature. Governor Daniel favors the bill, called it "a great step forward." Bill will allow the board to lend up to $15 million for any one water project.

Another water measure under consideration would allow the state to buy conservation storage space in Texas reservoirs, saving and selling water that would otherwise run off. It is in the form of a constitutional amendment and is sponsored by Sen. George Parkhouse of Dallas.

Supporters hope to gain legislative approval in time to have it put on the ballot at the same time as the run-off in the special senatorial race.

Women Lose Round

Women's rights advocates lost by one vote an effort to get their proposed constitutional amendment sent immediately to the Senate floor.

Instead, the amendment designed to wipe out with one stroke all differences in legal treatment of men and women was sent to subcommittee.

A large delegation of women came to plead for the measure. Objectors said a law-by-law approach should be taken to avoid legal chaos.

School Day Increase

House passed to the Senate a bill which would increase the time during which a child may be legally compelled to attend school.

Present requirement is to attend school from 7 to 16 years of age for 120 days each year. House bill would change the age limit from 6 to 16 years of age and the school year to 180 days.

At the request of Rep. Jack Woods of Waco, the House removed a provision that would have required 17-year-olds to stay in school.

Job Classification Approved

A bill to assure "like pay for like work" among state employees has moved to within one step of final House passage.

Sponsored by Rep. John A. Huebner, Sr., of Bay City, the bill enacts a job classification system and raises the salaries of workers receiving less than the standard salary for those in their category. No salary cuts would be made.

Estimated cost of the required raises under the measure is $450,000 a year.

NEWSLETTER

From U. S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough Dear Fellow Texan:

As a member of the Education Subcommittee of the Labor and Public Welfare Committee who has had the privilege of giving detailed study to the need for strengthening our national education effort, I strongly support the basic aid to education program outlined by President Kennedy in his recent message to Congress.

President Kennedy said, "The human mind is our fundamental resource." We might correctly add that the brainpower of Americans that is not developed to full potential constitutes a tragic waste of our nation's and each individual's most valuable natural resource.

In patterning his public school assistance program after S. 8, the bill which passed the Senate last year, the President has followed a sound approach which will be fair to school children in all of the 50 states.

It is noteworthy that the proposal retains the stipulation that state or local school boards have an option on whether the national funds will be utilized for classroom construction or teacher pay increases, or both. It absolutely safe-guards local control of the schools.

Under the proposed formula, a total of $142-million in national assistance would be extended to improving educational opportunities of Texas school children over the next three years. It provides $21.40 per student in average daily attendance for a total of $40.2-million the first year; $24.38 per student for a total of $47.3-million the second year, and $29.19 per student for a total of $54.4-million the third year.

A key point of the President's message, which the Legislature of our own state of Texas and all other legislatures should heed was: "Each state will be expected to maintain its own effort or contribution; and every state whose effort is below the national average will be expected to increase that proportion of its income which is devoted to public elementary and secondary education."

There is no denying that we need to strengthen our public schools for Texas boys and girls. We have a shortage of some 4,400 classrooms, nearly 5,000 students are attending less than full day sessions, and 6,500 teachers are teaching with substandard credentials.

All of us may have some different ideas on how or where our educational effort must be strengthened. But surely none of us can be in disagreement with the candid, powerful, 14-word opening sentence of President Kennedy's message: "Our progress as a nation can be no swifter than our progress in education."

Improving our public schools demands action at the local, state and national levels of government.

The need is so great that none of these levels of government acting alone is likely to be able to meet the requirements, and all acting together are not likely to do too much.
