Back From Funeral

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Sudduth and son, Ollie Neille, returned Saturday afternoon from Tulare, Calif., where they attended funeral services on Tuesday for Mrs. Sudduth's brother-in-law, Jess Williams, husband of Mrs. Sudduth's oldest sister, Lorena. Mr. Williams died suddenly Aug. 2nd of a heart attack.

On their way, the Sudduths stopped in Lovington, New Mexico, for Mrs. Sudduth's sister, Mrs. Dollie Joplin and again for her brother and his daughter, Ray Taylor and Phoebe, in Lincoln, New Mexico.

The group stayed one day longer in order to visit the Redwood forest in Sequoia National Park and they also visited the petrified forest in Arizona on the return trip. The group were gone for a week.

Post Script

Heavy, black, vicious-looking clouds have been tantalizing the people of this county for a week but have produced only scattered sprinkles.

Last Saturday Mrs. J. H. Emmons joyfully reported that two inches had fallen on their place south of town on the Sonora road. It probably stopped at their fence line—we've heard of no other similar report.

Yesterday a cool norther blew in which was much enjoyed, after 100-above for many weeks.

About 3-tenths of an inch of rain fell here during the night.

Building going on:
A. E. Prugel is building a 26 x 40 foot house on the Tisdale place.
Tom Dempsey is remodeling and adding to his house in the northeast part of town.

Following a few work days last week end, the new Assembly of God church building on the Menard highway is taking shape nicely.

Walls are up and roof rafters were in place and decking was being put on early this week. The structure, which is located across the highway from Doc's Courts, should be closed in from the weather before long.

The Rev. Johnny Griffith stated that he hoped his congregation can be using the building by this week end, and work on it will continue on through the summer.

From the Sanderson Times:

"Another need is for the people of this area to become aware of the fact that here in the midst of one of the largest sheep-producing areas of the state—lamb or mutton is one of the hardest to come by in the local markets.

"Now we don't blame the butchers. They try to keep what people customarily buy and ask for. If there were a need for stuffed snails here and enough people wanted them, we feel sure they would be available.

"People here just haven't been asking for lamb because lots of people don't know that lamb is supposed to be eaten and that it is delicious meat when prepared properly.

"What is needed, then most, we feel, to bolster the eating of lamb and the making of lamb available in local markets, is for an 'eat more lamb' project to be launched. We will be glad to publish—as space permits—a recipe or two a week until we have pretty well covered the field of methods of lamb preparation.

"We feel that the lamb growers, the markets, and the people are missing out on a good deal possibly. EAT MORE LAMB!"

Yes, and a similar campaign was put on here over two years ago, with just so-so results. It just seems that Texans are big producers, but poor consumers, of lamb.

Probably I could blame it on my bifocals, but in any event I have a confession to make.

Right after the rain shower last Saturday I went out and checked my rain gauge and then went around telling everybody that it showed 1.20 inches.

Noticing the big drouth cracks still in the yard on Sunday, I decided to check the gauge again.

To begin with—it's a new gauge—rigged up different from my old one that broke. There's this glass tube which sets in an aluminum holder. When you glance at it quickly it always looks like it's got an inch of water in it. So, this time I pulled the glass tube out and took a good look. There's not more than 2-tenths in it.

No wonder the lawn didn't green up over night. I turned on all the sprinklers again.

CoOp's 18th Annual Meeting Is Another Unqualified Success

Hundreds of members and guests turned out Tuesday night at the court house and Memorial Building for the 18th annual meeting and election of directors of the Southwest Texas Electric Co-Op, Inc.

Following the serving of barbecue by Orland Harris and 4-H boys and girls, the meeting was called to order at 8:00 o'clock by Winston Sheen of Menard, president of the Co-Op. J. Forrest Runge as secretary read the minutes of the 1962 meeting.

Louis D. Gayer, attorney, presided at the election of directors in which J. Forrest Runge, Frank Bond, and Joe D. Strauss were re-elected. The three names were submitted by the nominating committee. Dr. Womack moved that they be elected by acclamation and Peyton Cain seconded it, after which the vote was taken.

An innovation this year was the presentation of service pins to present and past directors & their widows, and to Co-Op personnel.

Manager Don McCormick awarded 5-year pins to Mrs. T. W. Johnson, Mrs. Ford Oglesby Sr., and Walter Pope III. Also to Ernest Hill, P. K. McIntosh, Ed Willoughby, W. R. Bearce, J. V. Drisdale, Lake Tankersley John Childress, Jeff Owens, and Joe Strauss.

R. A. Harrell was awarded a 10-year pin and 15-year pins went to W. W. Sheen, Joe B. Edens, Frank Bond, and Louis Gayer. J. Forrest Runge received a 20-year pin.

Co-Op employees honored with service pins were Evelyn Pennington, L. D. Mund, Jimmy Martin, Bill Maness, Victor Kent, and Jerry Perry, all of whom received 5-year pins.

Given 10-year pins were Louise Kuykendall L. L. Kinser, Earl Hicks, Joe Griffin, Doyle Easterwood, Monroe Allen, and Fred Butler.

J. C. Schooley, Jerome Mitchell, Elton McGinnes and Don McCormick received 15-year pins.

In his manager's report, Don McCormick cited the attendance at this year's meeting as an all-time high, since 790 plates of barbecue were served. He also cited the Co-Op as being proud of the safety record of the employees, who had gone the past year without a lost-time accident. He recognized Charles K. Moore of Austin and Tom Cahill of Austin who took a number of pictures for Texas Co-Op Power magazine.

Two films, "Safe Living In Your Community" and "Chimp Steps Out" were shown, with L. D. Mund as projectionist.

The meeting closed with door prizes being given out. Claudia Meador, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Meador, drew the names for the following prizes, name of winner followed by donor:

Electric ice cream freezer, Mrs. J. Forrest Runge; S.W. Co-Op; Electric percolator, Henry Speck Jr.; S.W. Co-Op;

Judgment Urged On 70 MPH. Roads

Austin.—The director of the Texas Department of Public Safety warned motorists today "not to take the new, higher speed limits too literally" when they go into effect August 23.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr. reminded that "there are a multitude of circumstances and situations under which even the old limits were too fast for safety."

"With more than two-thirds of the Texas highway system under a 70-mile-per-hour daytime maximum speed for passenger cars and 65 miles per hour at night, we wish to appeal to all Texans to exercise keen judgment and drive reasonably and prudently regardless of what the signs say. The law prohibits driving a vehicle too fast for existing conditions.

"The Department of Public Safety believes that the objective of speed legislation is to contribute to the efficient movement of traffic on the highways. We feel the new law will help to accomplish this, and our objective of enforcement is to secure substantial compliance with the speed law by all users of the rural highways. The prima facie speed limits fixed by the Legislature or established by zoning authority will be construed to be the maximum permissible speeds under normal conditions, and speeds in excess of such limits will be considered illegal.

"Our enforcement personnel will stop and initiate appropriate enforcement action against all persons observed by them to be committing clear-cut and substantial violations of the speed law."

Garrison urged motorists to be particularly cautious in assuming the higher night speed limit of 65 miles per hour. He said research by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads shows that increasing night speeds from 55 mph to 70 mph doubles the accident involvement rate, and that the severity of accidents increases rapidly at speeds over 70 mph.

"We repeat that serious problems may develop with the new speed laws unless the driving public accepts and applies them with a high degree of responsibility to themselves and their families and others," he said.

"And we would like to emphasize at this time that traffic deaths are running far ahead of last year already, with an increase of about 100 deaths. Unless we can hold the line against this trend, we will wind up with an all-time high traffic death toll in 1963."

Commissioners Set Budget Hearing

At their meeting this week, the Schleicher County Commissioners Court set September 9, at 10:00 a. m., as time for a public hearing on the 1964 budget. The hearing will be held in the Commissioners Court room.

Attends Funeral

Mr. and Mrs. Delwood Blair returned home Monday night after attending the funeral of Mrs. Thomas Nixon of El Monte, California.

Mrs. Nixon died Friday, Aug. 2, after a long illness. She was about 35 years old and was the former Zelma Ruth Key, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Key, former Eldorado residents, who moved to California several years ago. Mr. Key once operated the pool hall here. Mrs. Nixon was a niece of Mrs. Blair, Mrs. Parrent, Joe and Skeet Griffin. Other survivors include her husband, a 12-year-old daughter and her mother.

Interment was in Forest Lawn cemetery in Los Angeles on Monday, August 5.

Return From Tour

Mrs. T. P. Robinson Sr., Mrs. W. T. Whitten, and Mrs. V. G. Tisdale are back in Eldorado after a six-week tour of Europe and the Far East.

According to Mrs. Tisdale, the highlights of the tour were England, Holland and Switzerland. In Switzerland they toured the Alps, which she described as "most beautiful."

She said they also enjoyed the tour of the Holy Land which included a breakfast in the Garden of the Tomb where a group sang such songs as "In the Garden" and "Jesus Paid It All," and other historical points in the land.

First Bale Brought In Here Yesterday

The first bale of Schleicher County cotton of the 1963 crop was brought in to Mikeeska Gin at Eldorado yesterday by Pat Finley.

A bale weighing 523 pounds was ginned from 1980 pounds of seed cotton, which also produced 800 pounds of cotton seed.

Hot, dry weather during July and August has hastened opening of cotton bolls. Normally the first bale in this county does not come in until September.

Lions Club Meets

C. J. Hahn presided at the meeting yesterday of the Lions Club. Guests were Neil Tarvin of the Social Security office in San Angelo, and Kenny Phelps of Eldorado.

Coach Earl Barnett reported plans complete for football practice to start Monday for the Eagles, since 30 high school boys and 20 junior high underwent physical exams Tuesday night, and between 15 and 20 more are expected by the time school starts. Local coaches were among the 3826 from over the state of Texas who were in Houston last week for the coaching school.

C. C. McLaughlin was re-instated as a member.

Firemen Called Out

There were two grass fire alarms this past week to which local firemen responded.

The first one came Sunday and was out in the county at the Edmiston Bros. place. The next day, Monday, they were called to Jimmy Martin's here in town. Prompt action both places prevented major damage.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sauer and Paul, Louise, John, and Mary, came in Saturday to visit here through this week with relatives and friends. Mr. Sauer left Sunday night to return home, while the rest of the family remained for a longer visit.

Mrs. Audrey Leben of Fairfield, Texas, has rented an apartment from Mrs. Roy Andrews and is spending a week in Eldorado.

'The Birds' Directed By Alfred Hitchcock

Advertisements for "The Birds," the motion picture which comes to the Eagle Drive-In Theatre screen Sunday and Monday nights, have shown director Alfred Hitchcock saying, "It could be the most terrifying motion picture I have ever made." It is in Technicolor.

Paid commentators and paying customers are trying to read parable into Hitchcock's "The Birds." They should be reminded that a similar effort has been made for centuries on a play called "Hamlet" with the scholars just reaching the conclusion that what Shakespeare wrote, or, rather, rewrote was a fashionable "revenge" play.

Mr. Hitchcock has concocted a horror film and that is merely that. It has deceptively the tone of his pseudo-moralistic suspense pictures. Villagers and tourists around Bodega Bay, north of San Francisco, are properly terrified by the plague of unfriendly feathered creatures. A church-going mother with two small children thinks God must be punishing wickedness. The Bodega Bay town snot likewise would blame hostile Providence but Mr. Hitchcock, in a merely terrifying mood, leaves no doubt that "The Birds" are just the birds. They will go away.

Nobody involved has more than a smudge of wickedness, anyhow, against a record of fairly wholesome human nature. Yet, the fat gulls, finches, starlings, sparrows and crows gather in awesome numbers and attack lethally in rhythmic waves.

A cool, impudent blonde named Tippi Hedren is pecked on the head when sportingly transporting a pair of caged love-birds to the little sister of a man she met in San Francisco. That's the sinister start of it. The little girl (Veronica Cartwright) is sweet. Her mother (Jessica Tandy) is a nervous, panicky widow. The pretty schoolmarm (Suzanne Pleshette) carries a torch for Mitch Brenner (Rod Taylor) but is far from psychopathic about it. She deserves kinder fate than to have her beautiful and provocative person gouged and ripped by the preying birds.

The Tides Restaurant, Bodega Bay's social center, debates the attacks with skepticism. Thanks to Ethel Griffes' wry ornithology, they employ with academic freedom until the swarm does come. The center of Bodega goes up in flames like San Francisco from the earthquake.

Screens are placed over chimneys, fires lighted, doors and windows boarded, yet the birds, if they put their mind to it, can smash the strongest barriers. They also have the sneaky habit of lying in wait until some unsuspecting person thinks they have departed and ventures helplessly into the open.

Miss Hedren moves with grace, never offends and registers the fringes of characterization of a good-hearted but brittle playgirl.

Miss Tandy has one moment worthy of her when she is shocked speechless at the sight of a neighbor who has been barded to gory death. Mr. Taylor as the hero is the rugged, rough-hewn competent type.

Mr. Hitchcock is a great producer and director of melodrama and it is interesting how much more horrible he can make a horror film than the other nature-fakirs with their men from Mars and their reptiles from Charles Darwin.

Hitchcock makes good use of the North California hills and woods in color and of hundreds of crows silhouetted on a school grounds play swing with virtually no color at all.

He is also a master at "counterpointing." Resort country scenery against death and destruction; happy children playing against the distant mobilization of the birds for an onslaught; astringent disbelief in street corner conversation. And the last shot may be Hitchcock's last laugh.

Only the scream of birds and the screams of humans engulf the soundtrack. No soothing music is attempted.

While Hitchcock's ending may be strictly for the birds (it's a low-keyed "nothing" that suddenly puts the viewer deep in the news reel when he's waiting for the final reel), the rest of his film is strictly for people.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

by Tiny Godwin

Schleicher County Agricultural Agent

Farmers and ranchers are reminded that claims for federal gas tax refund must be submitted before September 30th.

This refund is on the four cents per gallon excise tax paid on gasoline and diesel fuel used by operators on farms or ranches during the period July 1, 1962 to June 30, 1963. This refund has no connection with claims for refunds sent to the State Comptroller's Office.

Special Form 2240 is the proper one to submit, and have been mailed to operators who reported in 1962. Producers who have not received form No. 2240 in either case may secure one at the county agent's office.

Pecans are falling from the trees quite rapidly during July and August. The same is true in all of Texas; this being due to hot dry weather and atmosphere conditions.

Your next pecan insects to be concerned about are the walnut borer and the webworm. Use malathion or DDT in a spray solution.

People are usually willing to meet each other half way, but their judgments of distance vary considerably.

There were 13 screwworm cases reported in Texas last week. This compares with 2287 reported a year ago and the reporting system had not adequately been set up.

The famous Texas "dog days" are upon us. It's a strain to get excited about anything, including screwworms. Besides, the news seems to be all good, so why worry?

The time to prevent fall build-up is now! There are fewer screwworms now than at any time since March. The production of flies has been stepped up to 130 million weekly. It is only logical that co-operation and assistance coupled with sterile flies released should prevent a fall build-up from occurring, or at least limit it to the extent that it can quickly be brought under control.

Without your vigilance during hot and so far dry August, the screwworm fly could zoom right back in a wet September as of last year.

Vials are available. Send in those samples and the last mile can be covered quickly. It's up to you!

Ranchers and farmers should be careful in turning in livestock on sorghum and johnson grass this time of year. Here are some statements of fact.

Prussic acid results from the hydrolysis of a glucoside which is normally present in actively growing plants of the sorghum family.

The splitting of the glucoside into prussic acid only occurs in dangerous amounts when the plant's growth is interrupted by inadequate moisture or frosting. There are several factors that influence the production of prussic acid in the plants. The following factors should be considered in controlling losses from this poison:

1. The type of plant to be grazed. All members of the Sorghum family, including Johnson grass, sudan, milo, forage sorghums, and all the hybrids of this group of plants are potentially hazardous under certain circumstances. The young plants, or second growth suckers, are more likely to cause trouble than older plants nearing maturity.

2. The fertility and tith of the soil. The more luxuriant the plants are growing, the higher the level of the precursor glucoside they will contain, and the more likely they are to be dangerous if their growth is interrupted.

3. Weather conditions. Interruption of growth by moisture stress may be due to depleted soil moisture, or due to the plant losing moisture through evaporation faster than it can transport from roots to leaves. This situation frequently occurs when the temperature and wind velocity are high and relative humidity of the air is low.

When there is a shortage of available soil moisture, plants may remain toxic for extended periods. However, when moisture stress is caused by excessive moisture loss, plants may be toxic only during the period that they are wilted.

4. Grazing management. Hungry animals turned into a sorghum field in the hot part of the day might fill up rapidly on wilted forage and be poisoned, but if turned in early in the morning while the plants were normal would likely fill up and lie down before wilting reached a dangerous point. Regardless of the time of day, animals should be watched closely for an hour or two when turned in on pasture of this type. Should any animal become restless and breathe fast, all animals should be removed immediately. Death or recovery from prussic acid poisoning can occur within a few minutes.

Vacationists never learn. They always take too many clothes and too little money.

WHAT BIRD IS THIS?

By Ruth Parker

As autumn nears, and with it the hunting seasons, it would be good to turn our attention to some of the birds that will be game for the hunter's rifle. In this area the bird most hunted, both legally and illegally, will be the Mourning Dove (Zenaidura macroura), for it is the most prevalent game bird in Schleicher County.

The family Columbidae consists of doves and pigeons of which there are 289 wild species in the world, 15 in North America, and 9 in Texas. Because of a general lack of knowledge about the Columbidae, I should like to go into some detail to tell you how to distinguish between the 6 species of this family to be found in and near Eldorado. The Mourning Dove is, of course, our most prevalent and easily recognized species. Its color may vary through all shades of brown to a blue-grey. The surest characteristics that distinguish it are the tail, which is long, pointed, and fringed with white, and the whirring noise made by the wings as the dove flies.

The Inca Dove, which in recent years has come to be quite populous about most of our watered areas, is a grey-white scaly-looking dove. In flight it has flashing rufous wings and a dark tail with white sides. The Inca is about 2/3 the size of the Mourning Dove.

Even smaller than the Inca Dove is the Ground Dove. It is only slightly larger than a sparrow, has a black tail and, like the Inca, flashing rufous wings. The White-winged Dove has been known to occur along the rivers of eastern and northern Schleicher County. About the size of the Mourning Dove, it has a large white wing patch. I should like to know about any records of this species in the county.

The Rock Dove, or domestic pigeon, is also seen quite often in and about the town. Generally it is considered to be much like a domestic fowl, and it may be found in many forms and colors. It is not uncommon, however, to find a wild or feral Rock Dove.

The most uncommon of our Columbidae is the Band-tailed Pigeon, a resident of the Trans-Pecos. Last Saturday, August 10, as I was boring, one of my more observant friends pointed out a rather large, unusual looking bird which was sitting perfectly still on the ground. The bird was somewhat larger and heavier built than a Mourning Dove. It had a yellow bill with a dark tip and yellow legs. The nape of its neck was white. The bird was a Band-tailed Pigeon, the first one ever recorded in Schleicher County and probably one of the most uncommon visitors to be in the area for many years. The Band-tailed Pigeon normally inhabits the trees in the mountains of the Trans-Pecos from heights of 5,000 to 8,000 feet, descending only rarely to lower levels in the winter. Why a certain individual suddenly visited the center of the Edward's Plateau in mid-August I do not know. Had the bird acted a bit more tame, I might have thought that some Pigeon fancier brought one back from the mountains and tamed it; yet the bird appeared to be wild. One could speculate all day about rarities; for that is one thing that makes the bird world so fascinating. But it is better to go on to the more common species and to the more practical aspects of bird study.

The Mourning Dove is in many respects a particularly interesting bird. It breeds throughout most of North America, building a flimsy nest on a low horizontal branch. Occasionally a dove nest may be found on the ground. The winter is spent in the Southern States and as far south as Central America. For food it relies mostly upon weed seeds and grain shaft. For that reason, large populations of Mourning Doves are characteristic of overgrazed and abused land where the better perennial grasses have been destroyed or depleted and where many shallow rooted annuals have sprung up. The Mourning Dove is one bird that has profited by man's foolishness. But that is not to say that one will never find a Mourning Dove on good range; it is simply to say that the general state of land over a wide area covering all of West Texas and much other territory has been conducive to increased populations of Mourning Doves. Nor is this increase in dove populations to be confused with the dove's habit of roosting in great numbers in suitable habitat. Often a dense growth of scrubby trees or a well-protected area near a field will provide an excellent roosting ground for thousands of doves at a time. I personally have seen as many as 400 doves within an acre in such a roosting area; and I have seen them fly from their roost out into the pastures and fields in search of food and water only to return in even greater numbers at sundown.

The Mourning Dove is a game bird only in the Southern states where it is most numerous and where it may be found both as a resident and as a migrant. In the northern states it exists only as a summer resident in small numbers. Should any banded doves be shot, the bands along with a record of the date on which they were shot and the place should be sent immediately to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Washington, D.C.

The Mourning Dove is many things to many people. To some it is sport, to others beauty. To some its haunting call is peace; to some it is love; to some it is sadness. To all it is a thing of beauty and a symbol of nature's quiet.

Grass Experiments Made By Hwy. Dept.

Austin.—A research program is helping the Texas Highway Department solve two contradictory problems: How to make grass grow better, and how to keep it from growing at all.

Plant scientists from the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Transportation Institute at Texas A&M College are working with the Department's engineers and landscape architects on such problems.

They are studying improved planting materials and techniques to establish vegetation. Permanent vegetation is needed along highway roadides to keep soil from washing on deep cuts, high fills and ditches. It also curbs wind erosion, while serving a safety function in delineating the edge of the highway.

At the same time, researchers are seeking better ways to prevent growth of grass and weeds on paved shoulders. Unchecked growth of Bermuda grass and other plants can cut the life expectancy of paved shoulders from 20 down to three years.

Varied soil and climates of Texas require a wide variety of plants for roadside erosion control. Range and pasture grasses like green sprangletop and buffelgrass are being tested for use as highway plantings instead of slower germinating Bermuda grass, which to now has been commonly employed alongside Texas highways.

As better grasses are developed by agricultural scientists, especially for drier regions, they will continue to be tested for planting under highway conditions.

The cooperative research effort on grasses doesn't foreshadow replacement of colorful roadside wild flowers now enjoyed by travelers in Texas. To the contrary, the trend is toward even greater use of many kinds of landscaping plants for safety—they reduce driver fatigue—as well as beauty.

Nevertheless, plants which invade and grow within paved areas of highways are a costly nuisance for engineers and maintenance personnel. Cooperative research has pointed the Highway Department to use of several agricultural herbicides to prevent growth of grass and weeds through pavements.

Viewed either way, the two-sided problem of plants along highways is a grassroots one. Today's research points to ultimate solutions which will result in better, more economical and safer highways for Texans on the go.

Cheers for Peanut Butter and Jelly

SCHOOL DAYS . . . and youngsters vote again for their perennial lunch box favorite — peanut butter and grape jelly — of course!

Mother approves too because this duo is quick-n-easy to prepare, economical and nutritious. Peanut butter is 26% protein, the nutritional element needed for proper growth, and rates high in the B vitamins and iron as well. The jelly helps supply plenty of energy needed for top performance during a hectic school day. Try these new ideas the next time you team peanut butter and jelly.

DAFFY DOUGHNUTS — Cut plain or sugared doughnuts in half crosswise. Spread one cut side with peanut butter, the other with grape jelly. Sprinkle peanut butter with a few raisins. Put together as for a sandwich.

FOUR STRIPER — For one sandwich, combine 2 tablespoons peanut butter, 1 tablespoon jelly and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Spread on white bread. Top with a slice of whole wheat bread. Cut in four strips. Wrap for school lunch with white and whole wheat bread alternately, to get striped effect.

PEANUT-JELLY ROLL — Use a roll instead of bread for your sandwich. Split roll. Spread 2 tablespoons of peanut butter on one half. Sprinkle with corn flakes or your favorite cereal. Spread 1 tablespoon jelly on the other half and put roll together.

Assembly Of God Church

Pastor Johnny J. Griffith says, Watch the Assembly of God Grow! The Assembly of God Church building has taken on some changes in the past few days and will soon be usable for services.

Our Sectional Presbyter, The Rev. R. E. Maxwell of Mineral Wells, Texas, and one of our fine men from Abilene came and worked one day, and we are enjoying the ministry of one of our Elders and Bible teachers, Rev. A. E. (Lionie) Whitworth, of North Fort Worth Section, who is giving us some of his gatherings and revelations on the subject of "Harmonizing Controversies Without Compromise," in our regular services on Sundays and Wednesdays. We will be so happy to have all the peoples of our fair city and Commonwealth, visit us in our Services now being held in the residence just west of the church being constructed; but hope to be in the unfinished building by next Sunday, the 18th. We hope that you can come and hear and see the Power of the Divine, preached and demonstrated in a most effective way. —Rep.

Austin.—Texas Youth Council's parole division will triple in the next six months or so. But the problem of trying to help "reform school" graduates become useful citizens is still great.

Until September 1, five state parole officers are responsible for some 1,800 juvenile parolees spread out over 169 counties. That's a ratio of one parole officer to about 357 parolees, compared to national standards of one officer to 40 parolees.

Staff will increase to 10 on September 1—a ratio of one to 178. On March 1, 1964, when five more are added, ratio will be down to one parole officer to 119 parolees, spread over the Lone Star State.

Biggest number of parolees is centered in big cities where the general rate of crime is always higher. More than a third of the paroled children are in Dallas, Harris and Bexar counties; another 238 in El Paso, Jefferson, Tarrant and Travis counties.

About 154 are in Nueces, McLennan, Bell and Lubbock counties. But sizeable juvenile parole populations are centered in smaller counties, such as Cameron, Brazoria, Grayson, Ector, Galveston, Gregg Hale, Hidalgo, Howard, Midland, Hunt, Navarro; Potter; San Patricio, Smith Taylor, Wichita and Williamson. Some counties only have one paroled child. But the state is responsible for every one it has "retrained."

First Aide

State Regulatory Loan Commissioner Frank Miskell appointed Robert C. Duke, Houston attorney, as Deputy Commissioner and General Counsel of the new state agency.

Duke formerly served as acting Securities Commissioner in the Secretary of State's securities division. The regulatory bill takes effect on August 23. Some 2,000 loan companies operating in Texas will have to file for state licenses at that time.

Insurance Hearing

A State Insurance Board hearing on proposed rules for regulating credit insurance—which pays off a man's debt if he dies, or makes the payments when he is disabled—drew a big crowd. One controversial point was a ceiling rate of 90 cents per $100 of insurance.

Some insurance company executives insisted the ceiling should be no more than 60 or 65 cents per $100. But one spokesman thought the 90-cent per $100 rate was too low and recommended $1. Some loan companies said they now give credit insurance free. They feared the proposed rules might outlaw this practice.

A second hearing with new proposed rules will be aired on September 10.

Money Men

The Legislative Budget Board, lawmakers who make the Legislature's financial decisions between sessions, recommended $4,644,000 worth of state building to Governor John Connally.

Plans approved included one by the State Hospitals Board to equip a genetics lab and follow-up clinic on mental retardation in the State Psychiatric Institute at Houston; new dormitories for Gatesville School for Boys, Gainesville School for Girls and Crockett School for Negro Girls; and several prison system units. Authorization was recommended for $25,000 worth of partitioning to provide 23 new offices in Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr's department.

But the board balked at Texas A&M University's request to spend some $100,000 on a home—exclusive of land and furnishings—for A&M President Earl Rudder, to replace the one destroyed by fire. A compromise recommendation of about $60,000 for a 4,500 square foot home was the outcome.

Cities Growth Formula

About 200 city attorneys, city engineers and city councilmen gathered in Austin to hear a Texas Municipal League explanation of the Texas Municipal Annexation Act, which will become effective on August 23.

Annexation act sets out "extra-territorial jurisdictions" dictating the extent of a city's growth in any three-year period. For cities of less than 5,000 population, the extra-territorial area extends a half mile beyond city limits; cities of 5,000 to 25,000, one mile; cities 25,000 to 50,000 two miles; cities 50,000 to 100,000, three and a half miles; and cities of 100,000 and up, five miles.

But a city would not have to expand all the way around its rim.

It could swing arcs or fingers out to desirable areas for growth and obtain the annual area allocation of 10 per cent of its square acreage in these areas.

School Land Board

Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler, Governor Connally and Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr, members of the State School Land Board, make and revise leases on public school lands, including river beds, bays and inlets of the Gulf of Mexico.

Attorney General requested that he be removed from the land board. After August 23 he will be replaced by a private citizen of his choosing. Before Carr leaves the board he will sign the deed which conveys state-owned land on Padre Island to the federal government for a national seashore.

Short Snorts

Rep. Sam F. Collins of Newton asked to be allowed to serve as a state representative without pay, when he accepted a job as assistant to General Manager John W. Simmons of the Sabine River Authority.

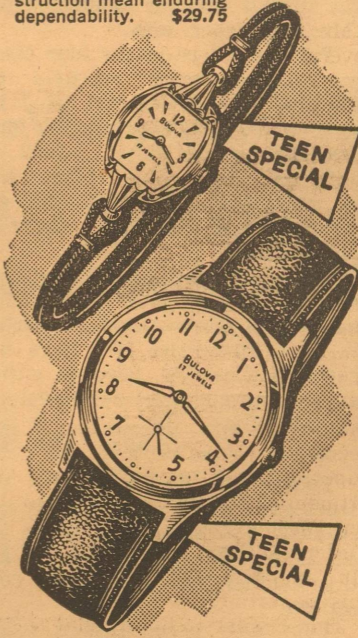

Governor Connally appointed Hudson Davis of Borger as Canadian River Compact Commissioner, and R. Leighton McKinney Jr., of Denison, Interstate Compact Commissioner for the Red River.

The State General Revenue Fund finished July with $19,500,000 in the black.

Our WASHINGTON Letter

By Congressman O. C. FISHER

The United States does the strangest things at times. Now is sort of "hepped" on the idea of going overboard with every possible scheme to force integration in all aspects of every-day life, we are spreading our program to far away South Africa.

Adlai Stevenson told the UN the other day that because the USA does not like the racial policies followed by South Africa, this government would refuse to sell that nation any more military weapons.

It would seem that we would do well in this country to tend to our own business, try to solve our own domestic problems, without injecting ourselves into those of other nations. South Africa has fought on our side in several wars and has stood with us and the west in practically every contest that has developed in the United Nations. That country, instead of being a so-called neutral, is a committed country—committed to fight and die, if necessary, on the side of the free world in this great struggle against communism.

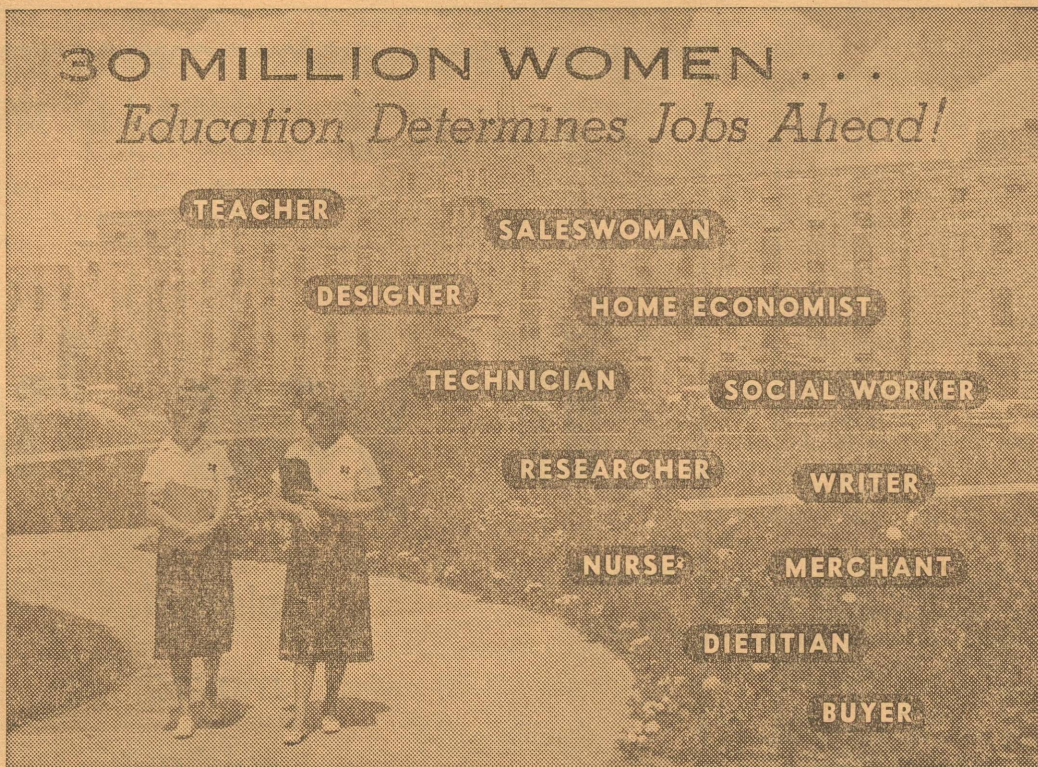

It hardly makes sense for us to now gratuitously take it on ourselves to insult a great nation in an attempt to placate Ghana and other African countries. Yet, that is just about what it amounts to.

If we were in a hot war with Soviet Russia, we can be sure that the United States would sell and give South Africa all the weapons they could use in the struggle for survival. Yet now we do the stupid thing of attempting to prevent a friendly ally from maintaining military strength when a hot war could break out at any time.

There is, however, a precedent for this. We did about the same thing in our dealings with Portugal, except that we did not go this far. By voting against Portugal with respect to the Colonial policies in Africa, we antagonized the valuable and friendly nation, and did it on an issue that is really none of our business.

The result is that our relations with Portugal are very strained, and there is a possibility the Portuguese may refuse to renew our arrangements in the use of the Azores.

It would seem that the United States would learn to keep its nose out of other people's business, particularly out of the business of our own loyal friends and allies.

30 MILLION WOMEN . . .
Education Determines Jobs Ahead!

Within the next decade about 30 million women are expected to be holding down jobs, says the U. S. Department of Labor. Women now make up about one-third of the total labor force of 75 million. Modern invention and technological advances will add new jobs to the wide span already being filled by women. Many positions are and will be in the home economics field. Employers indicate that more professionally educated women are needed, and those trained in specific skills as well.

Educators Urge Early Career Choice

Today educators urge students to complete high school, and make an early choice of career so that later training and education can be planned accordingly. One group of young women who have a head start, reports the National 4-H Service Committee, are 4-H members.

1.3 Million Girls

At some time during club membership, nearly every one of the 1.3 million girls now enrolled in 4-H receives some training in her dual role of future homemaker and career woman.

Sewing, meal planning, nutrition, home management, interior decoration, fashion and consumer education are among the projects in which 4-H Club members participate.

They start in 4-H as young as 9 years of age, and many remain for as long as 10 years. Volunteer adult and junior 4-H leaders supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service head the local clubs.

Helping to encourage these future home economists, scientists, writers, mothers, teachers and business women are two corporations that annually contribute funds, educational literature and technical assistance to the national 4-H clothing and the foods-nutrition programs.

Scholarships Help

They are Coats & Clark Inc., which this year will help 12 girls with their college education by way of $500 national clothing scholarships.

General Foods Corporation will give six $500 scholarships to top-ranking club members in the 4-H foods-nutrition program.

Chicago Delegates

Both firms will bring to Chicago as delegates to the week-long National 4-H Club Congress state award winners from all 50 states and Puerto Rico—102 in all. Here they will be honored by their hosts at elegant parties and banquets.

During the week-long congress these talented teens will hear prominent educators and noted speakers. Along with 1300 fellow 4-H'ers they will participate in several challenging and inspiring events. For most, it will be the first trip to a big city.

Coats & Clark and General Foods are but two of hundreds of private enterprises helping the youth of this country achieve future goals.

"THAT OLD GANG OF MINE"

The women were Winnie Hainline of San Antonio, Allene Laroux of Snyder, Marjorie Wheeler of Ballinger, Vera Mae Wilkinson and Theopal Wiginton, both of San Angelo.

They brought along old albums and spent most of the afternoon going through them, and talking over memories revived and having a wonderful time being together again.

Wylie prepares for more growth

When Wylie, Texas planned civic improvements, its progressive citizens went all the way. Showing a population increase of 34% over 1960 census figures of 1804, Wylie set out to prepare for even more growth.

They launched a street paving program, downtown business modernization, construction of a new school, new bank building, new residences and a new post office.

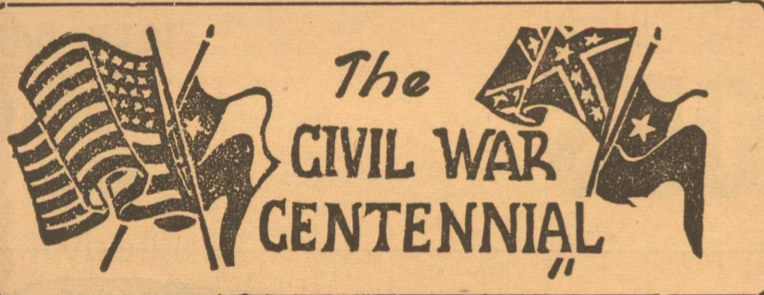

This combination of public and private improvement is well under way today, as shown in the "before and after" facelifting photos above. The Wylie story is another reason we say big things are happening in General Telephone towns.

These towns are on the move. Community improvements are under way, local resources are being developed, new businesses, new industries are coming in. OF THE SOUTHWEST

By Dayton Kelley
Mary Hardin-Baylor College
Belton, Texas

The Centennial of the Battle of Gettysburg attracted so much attention during July that many were not aware that a similarly important drama of the Civil War was being commemorated at the same time at a place called Vicksburg.

The city of Vicksburg, the key to control of the Mississippi River, fell to the Federals under Grant on the same day that Lee conceded defeat at Gettysburg and turned his Army of Northern Virginia southward again.

After these two disastrous defeats, the fortunes of the Confederacy began to wane and never again was there to be much hope that the War might be won by the men in gray.

While all the activity was going on up in Pennsylvania, in commemoration of the three-day battle in Federal territory, folks down in Mississippi were commemorating the end of an even longer battle—the months-long Siege of Vicksburg. There were the usual commemorative ceremonies plus historical seminars, field trips to historic sights, a salute to the ladies of the Confederacy, a Confederate ball, a parade and then the highlight of the five-day observance—a mammoth fireworks re-enactment of the Siege of Vicksburg produced on the Mississippi River front.

Did you know that there is not a marker or monument of any kind at the site of the grave of Col. Franklin Terry, the leader of the famed "Terry's Texas Rangers"? Colonel Terry was killed in the very first battle his rangers had with the Federals, but his name carried his name and made it famous throughout the War.

The Colonel, along with members of his family, is buried in Houston's Glenwood cemetery, but no marker calls attention to either the burial place or to his great contribution to the War effort. Monuments have been erected to Texas Confederates who might be considered of lesser stature and we think the state owes a debt long overdue here.

Recommended Reading for This Week: A few weeks ago, we mentioned in this space W. M. Morrison's "Texas Book Prices" and its usefulness to readers interested in publications relating to Texas in the Civil War. Now comes a priced Check list from Thomas Yoseloff Company entitled "Books Relating to the Civil War." Compiled by John McBane, this new bibliography is the only one of its kind listing dealer price ranges and is therefore valuable to both dealers and purchasers. Other features which we like are the sections dealing with regimental histories, Lincolnia, and Confederate imprints.

Looking ahead to see what events will be commemorated next year—100 years after they occurred—we have especially appreciated John M. Gibson's "Those 163 Days," the account of Sherman's March from Atlanta to Raleigh in the fall of 1864. Published by Coward-McCann, Inc., "Those 163 Days" quotes liberally from diaries, letters and memoirs of both Rebels and Yankees telling of terror and destruction that is almost unbelievable.

Looking back—to Gettysburg—we believe George R. Stewart's "Pickett's Charge" which Premier Books has just brought out in a 75 cent edition to be the finest account of that momentous event in print. The pocket-size republication is the latest in Premier's Civil War Classic series, all of which should be in any buff's library.

And we're looking forward to the appearance this month of "Rebel in Blue," a novel by Herman Toepferwein of Boerne which William Morrow & Company is publishing. R. Henderson Shuffler, Director of the Texana Program at the University of Texas, says "Until this book came along, I thought the writing folk had poked their pencils into every nook and cranny of the War Between the States and had explored most of Texas. Yet here is a fresh, informative and highly readable story of Texans in the Civil War, historically accurate in detail."

We'll tell you more about this new Texas item later.

'List of Adrian' Is A Suspense Thriller

Getting right to the point, it must be noted that the current Eagle Drive-In Theatre attraction is the best in its field since "The Manchurian Candidate" and that you must see it from the beginning. The picture is "The List of Adrian Messenger," and director John Huston has made it as tight a thriller as the superb Philip McDonald suspense novel. Its local showings are tonight and Friday night.

Messenger is a British war veteran who gives a retired detective friend a list of names to check out to see what has happened to the men in it.

The sleuth, played by George C. Scott, learns all but three have met accidental deaths. But before he can pass the information along to Messenger, the plane carrying Messenger has been blown out of the sky—and Messenger is now a name on his own list.

The search to find the common link among the 11 men, and to save the other three before a madman completes his cross-offs, was electrifying enough within the pages of a paperback.

But given the range of a John Huston camera, and the priceless gimmick of putting five top Hollywood stars into disguised roles, the "Messenger" movie becomes a fast entertainment message. The five are Kirk Douglas, Tony Curtis, Burt Lancaster, Frank Sinatra and Robert Mitchum. Long-time movie fans will be hard-put to identify them. Huston even put himself in a brief scene, but without make-up.

"List" has the earmarks of a movie of considerable ingenuity. The director was John Huston, now and whimsically a resident of Ireland. Leading roles were cast largely from Hollywood and the actors include George C. Scott, Jacques Roux, Gladys Cooper, Huston's son Tony, John Merivale and then such familiars of English origin as Dana Wynter, Herbert Marshall, and Clive Brook hauled out of retirement at 71. Kirk Douglas' company is the actual producer.

The cast:
Anthony Gethryn...Geo. C. Scott
Lady Brattenholm...Dana Wynter
Marquis of Gleneyre...Clive Brook
Sir Wilfred Lucas...H. Marshall
Raoul Le Borg...Jacques Roux
Inspector Pike...Bernard Archer
Mrs. Karoudjian...Gladys Cooper
Derek...Tony Huston
Adrian Messenger...John Merivale
and
Tony Curtis, Kirk Douglas, Burt Lancaster, Robert Mitchum, and Frank Sinatra in character roles.

Lynda McGinnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elton McGinnes, is expected home soon from Crosbyton where she has been working this summer in the A.S.C. office and staying in the Floyd McGinnes home. She will resume her studies at North Texas State University at Denton in September.

$27 MILLION

... has been spent recently for commercial construction in our service area.

... more proof that the Center of the Southwest is one of the Nation's fastest growing regions.

Recently published figures of industrial expansion in our service area reached a huge $28 million.

Add to that another vast expansion figure and you have an even more impressive total.

$27,000,000 was spent on new commercial construction and for expansion of existing businesses in the same time period, in the same WTU service area. This is why we say "The Center of the Southwest" is one of the Nation's fastest growing regions.

Such industrial and commercial expansion, plus civic and other improvements, strengthen our conviction that this region faces growth unlimited.
