"Citizen" Mobley now

It used to be, for the last four years anyway, that once a month, Raymond Mobley could be found at city hall, presiding as mayor of Eldorado.

However, Mobley did not run for the honorable spot and is now just "citizen Mobley."

"I enjoyed it, but I'm glad it's over," he grinned broadly from under a red Exxon cap. "I wouldn't give anything for the experience, but I'm glad to be out of it for a while.

over his face when asked what he would be doing Tuesday nights from now on. "Oh, I'm gonna stay at home and watch the T.V." was the quick reply, with a hearty laugh.

Eldorado has seen several improvements made during Mobley's tenure as mayor, mostly in the gas system. "People don't realize that our gas loss is terrible," he commented. Adding that improving the gas system was top

City Faces Many Financial Problems

Many changes in city government are being looked into after a new man took over the mayor's seat on the city council this week. J. Patrick Ragsdale, an employee of Atlantic Richfield, and the new mayor, outlined some of the problems and solutions facing the city.

"We have a lot of problems," he began. The first and foremost problem he noted was "lack of funds to be able to do what we need to do.'

He said there is a possibility of adjusting the utility rates and adjusting the ad valorum taxes in the city for additional income. "We adjusted the utility rate not too long ago," he said, "but the cost of replacement parts and labor are eating into the additional amounts considerably."

Ragsdale feels "a definite need for three pieces of new equipment right now. But I don't want to see the city assume a large indebtedness right away. We need to be able to pay for it as we go." The three items mentioned include a dump truck, a small maintainer for cleaning alleys and the edges of the streets "with some degree of regularity" and a fire engine which will meet state specifications.

Another problem the new mayor cited is the gas system. "We have made rapid strides in replacing lines in the last three years," he admits, "but there are still lines that need to be repaired." He added that the gas lines from the city limits to Page field should be evaluated and corrective measures taken to meet federal regulations. "We can either install devices to prevent corrosion or replace the lines with plastic line," he said.

The water system poses another problem for the new city government. "I want to assure people that even if our water system does not mechanically meet the standards of the Texas Health Resources agency, the quality of our water is still good.

"We spent a good sum of money last year completely renovating the water tower. We sand blasted and painted it and chipped the inside out.'

A new idea being considered by Ragsdale is the forming of a municipal court for a "means to enforce ordinances as they are in the books. We have many ordinances," he said, "but we have no means of enforcing them."

Something About by Jannette Wilkerson "THE PRIZE EGG"

This time of year the world begins to take on the appearance of an Easter Basket. Fruit trees are like large bouquets of fragile pink blossoms, surrounded by new, fresh shades of green. More each day the air is filled with the familiar song of returning birds to begin once again the cycle of life each spring signals. The winter chill is replaced by a new warmth that penatrates deep into the Earth, and every living thing is stirred to renew the urge to 'grow.' Every year Old Mother Earth puts on a 'Brand New' display of fresh beauty for her inhabitants, if we'll just take the time to enjoy it.

Spring is the time we start to have faith we can accomplish 'this year' the things we weren't able to last year. We're never too young or too old to spark a new attitude from within that will affect the world around us. I know it sounds like I'm saying, life is a bowl of Easter Eggs, but why not? If you really try to accentuate your positive, it just might be possible to eliminate your negative. It sure couldn't hurt to try, and we sure have a lot of positive going for us. Here in West Texas we have a head start on the rest of the world. We have clean air, sweet water, people who care, and our most precious possession; room. We have the space to see things as they should be, an ageless place to take a walk by the river, pick wild flowers for your kitchen table and hear the beautiful sounds that awake a memory.

Easter is just around the corner and the stage is set for another year of living, and how we play our individual parts is up to us. In our frantic search for the "Prize Egg," we just might find out it's been in our basket all the time, and we just haven't slowed down long enough to realize it. What I'm trying to say with all this 'arm-chair philosophy' is, life is short; so take time to smell the flowers.....

And that's something to think about this

The unincorporation vote failed, as most of you know. The consensus seems to be that if there had been a few more days left for the public to better inform itself, it would have passed. Be that as it may, the city will be faced with more and more problems and the city dwellers will be forced to carry a greater tax burden if this community is going to develop and grow. As an example, for the city to gain certification of its water supply, an expenditure in the neighborhood of $115,000 minimum must be spent for new elevated storage and repairs to existing facilities, plus the hiring of an additional operater for the water department.

The unincorporation issue did prove one thing, however, and that was that the San Angelo Standard Times does care about us. They even cared enough to editorialize on the issue and give it lead space on their editorial page. More

The kites flown were 'home made' by the scouts and their fathers as a joint project. All the kites got up, but for a short time, as the gusty wind took some off on its own and others fell due to torn paper and broken sticks. The kites were judged by a panel of 3 judges on 5 catagories. Each scout receiced one or more award ribbons. The three judges were Mr Gaston, Mr Ball, and Mr

It's Easter once again, and all that the time means to the Christian world is in our thoughts. As we look about us and see how Mother Nature is dressing for the occassion, it reminds us that it is a beautiful time for us to dress ourselves in spiritual renewal, and a time of re-dedication of our lives to the principles that Christ brought us. So, we'll see you in church on Sunday, folks. Happy Easter, everyone.

This week I have some ideas for you on food in the future.

Undoubtedly, in the fairly near future, the technology to replace human foods with pills will become a possibility.

Gourmet cooking, as a creative hobby, will probable take on the status of an art form. By 2001 over half of all meals will be prepared outside the home. By the year 2076, 75% of all meals will be prepared outside the home. These meals will be as economical as meals prepared in the home

Preplated meals with serving size portions will be common in the food service industry and in the home. Thousands of meal combinations will be available to assure adequate variety for everyone. Homes, institutions, and fast service eating establishments will use meals preplated and cooked at large meal assembly centers. These meals probably will continue to be distributed and stored in the chilled or frozen state; they will be reconstituted or warmed

Warehouses and supermarkets will decline as we enter

Century 21. Automated warehouse delivery systems will appear. Increased standardization of food items and forms will mean that food supplies can be ordered by telephone or computer station. Routine deliveries of food from the automated warehouses will be made to homes. Food and staples will be containerized to speed delivery through curb side receivers. These home delivery containers will be used to package wastes according to appropriate recycle classifications. These waste-filled containers will be picked up by the vehicle making delivery of new supplies; they will

Most familiar foods will continue to be available in the City's financial problems

He is also planning a weekly staff meeting with city secretary Phil Olson and water superintendent Marvin McAngus so that "I will know what their problems are. "I would like to express my appreciation to the people of Eldorado for their support of me and I pledge I will do my best," he concluded.

Citizen Mobley

will see to that, because the state health department will make periodic checks on it.'

Talking about the future of the city, he said, "The thing that would please people the most is paving streets. Of course, the county came in during February and did a lot of improvements, but our streets are still in sad shape."

However, the problem of leaking gas lines, a new water tower and the bad condition of the city's streets are now off "citizen" Mobley's shoulders and were passed on to Pat Ragsdale, the new mayor as of last Monday night.

"It's been a pleasure. I enjoyed it," said Mobley. "If I did any good, I'm glad. But if I made any mistakes, it was through ignorance.'

"I'm just glad to be out of it," he repeated.

Nursing Home News

There was big "Doins" here in the Dining Room last Saturday afternoon. Elnora Love, daughter of Bessie Andrews, celebrated Bessie's 85th birthday with a lovely party.

As we all know, Bess has relatives, as the old saying goes, "under every rock" in Schleicher County, and quite a few were here for the party.

There were many of her Eldorado friends here, also, to wish her many Happy Returns of the Day. The dining room was full. For many years, Bess has invited friends to her home on her birthday, and they would spend the time singing old familiar songs and Gospel Hymns with Bess at the piano, so this birthday was no different.

With Bess at the piano, we all sang many Gospel Hymns, and some of them

Knucklebusters Lose Two Games at Wall

The Eldorado womens volleyball team, better known as the Knucklebusters, got off to a bad start during the Wall tournament Saturday.

The opposing team in the first round was the number one seed, Jerry's Angels

(The Angelo State University Rambelles during their off season).

The Knucklebusters started out really well with an early 8-2 lead and it looked as if Jerry's Angels were in for a surprise.

But the Eldorado team had to give in to higher skill and more experience on the other side of the net. The local volleyballers lost the first game 15-10 and the second game 15-5.

EARLY SEASON INSECT CONTROL ON COTTON

Early season insects of cotton are those pest insects which attack cotton from the time of plant emergence to the first 1/3 grown squares. These remarks will deal chiefly with an insect control philosophy as applied to early season pests of

There are two or three pest insects which fall into the earlyseason group (thrips, cotton aphids, fleahoppers, leafhoppers). Among entomologist, there is a divided opinion as to need for control of these early season pest. Available data on this subject seems to suggest that under conventional cotton production the need for control is not justified. With indeterminate cotton varieties the yield seems not to be increased by controlling these early season insects. With the more determinate variety or short-season concept, there may be some justification for control. However, control of these insects in any situation should be on "as need" basis determined by frequent field inspection, rather than as a pre-plant or planting time application of systemic insect-

Again, there is some disagreement among entomologist as to the use of preplant or planting time systemics. However, my philosophy is that seldom should control be recommended irrespective of current insect populations.

Justification for preventive control must come from such consistent and heavy damage in an area that on an average control is profitable. In the case of early season insect pest of cotton, we simply do not have the consistent heavy damage that would warrent preventive control.

These preventive treatments then should be avoided wherever possible because of the expense involved, because of the ever present danger of resistance and because of the contamination of soil and water.

TOMATOES BIG ITEM IN LOCAL GARDENS

To many Texans gardening means growing tomatoes. Growing tomatoes in the backyard garden can be a fascinating and rewarding venture or it can be a very frustrating one. A sickly tomato plant which produces few if any fruit certainly doesn't help anyone's gardening spirit. For homeowners growing tomatoes for the first time, some simple advice might help many of them avoid common pitfalls.

First, homeowners should not grow tomatoes unless they can be placed in an area that receives sunlight for at least six hours a day. Tomato plants placed between tall shrubs, under trees or between buildings simply won't produce a good tomato crop

Second, good soil is essential for good growth and high yields. Often, poor soil can be improved with liberal amounts of organic matter and by proper fertilization. A dark, heavy clay or even a fine sand can be improved by working three to four inches of organic matter into the soil where the tomatoes are to be planted.

If only a few tomato plants are to be grown, a space at least two feet square should be prepared for each plant. The soil should be worked to a depth of at least 12 inches. Liberal amounts of organic matter and a small amount of fertilizer such as 10-20-10 or 12-24-12 should be mixed into the soil where the plant is to be grown.

Variety selection is of utmost importance and is one of the keys to growing tomatoes successfully. Select varieties that resist many of the common diseases. Better Boy. Fantastic, Spring Giant, Homestead, Big Set, Porter, Terrific of the small-fruited Small Fry are excellent for most areas of Plants can be grown at home or purchased at local retail outlets. When buying plants, the homeowner should check closely for suspicious spots on the leaves which could be one of the many foliage diseases that are common to tomatoes. Short, stocky, dark green plants are best.

When the transplants are set in the garden, they should be planted somewhat deeper than they were originally growing. Plants grown in peat pots or peat blocks should not be removed, but rather the entire container planted. Sometimes it is helpful to break out the bottom of the pot, but avoid damaging any of the roots.

When setting tomato plants in the garden, use a starter solution to assure adequate fertility during the early stages of growth. Starter solutions can be purchased at local garden centers, or can be made by mixing one to two level tablespoons of a complete garden fertilizer in a gallon of water. About one cup of the starter solution should be applied in the transplant hole prior to planting.

For the best results, the transplants should be set in the garden on cloudy days or late in the afternoon. The plants should be protected from adverse conditions such as high winds or excessive heat for a week or so after transplanting.

Almost all tomato varieties should be staked, trellised or caged for best results. Any method is good if it keeps the fruit off the ground. Fruits allowed to contact the soil often develop fruit rot.

Beef Supplies Tightening Despite Some Reports

A noted livestock marketing specialist points out that sometimes certain marketing information gets misused, causing confusion to both producers and consumers.

So Dr Ed Uvacek with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service attempts to set 'the record" straight.

"Despite some claims about 'a large supply' of beef at the present time, actual figures show this is not the case," points out Uvacek.

"Federally inspected slaughter through March 5 was running 3 per cent below a year ago. This came despite 10 per cent larger marketings of fed cattle in January and another increase in February. Obviously, a substantial drop has occurred in cow and nonfed cattle slaughter so far this year," explains the Texas A&M University System specialist.

All this adds up to the following: total beef production will be down the first half of 1977, fed cattle supplies will probably be light for March and April, and nonfed beef production will also be light, especially

There's More To Gardening Than Planting

Once you've started a vegetable garden, general straw, compost or leaves or maintenance practices with old newspapers can should not be overlooked, help keep a garden weed says Sam Cotner, horti- free.

When your vegetable seedlings are established. they must compete with weeds and among themselves for survival. When you plant too many seed, you may have to thin your seedlings to insure a proper

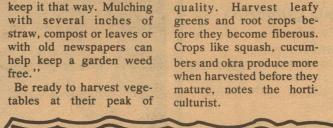

"Don't be discouraged by having to destroy some of your vegetables. Some plants may be transplanted from spots which are too thick to fill in missing plants. Crops such as onions, peppers, eggplant and tomatoes are most successful when transplanted," points out Cotner.

When thinning crops like cucumbers, squash or okra, it's better to pinch or cut off the unwanted plants than to uproot them. Pulling them up may damage the roots of plants you wish to keep, notes the horticulturist.

'Also, give attention to fertilization," says Cotner. Root and leafy green crops require large amounts of nitrogen. Put sidedressings of nitrogen on these plants of one to two pounds of ammonium sulfate per 100 feet of row. Harvesting mustard and turnip greens signals the proper time for a sidedressing. By carefully applying nitrogen after harvesting these crops, you can get regrowth from the same plants.

Crops like tomatoes and okra may require sidedressing with a complete fertilizer -- one which supplies nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. Use two to three pounds of a fertilizer such as 10-10-10 per 100 feet of row. Do not apply the fertilizer too close to the plants because it can damage the roots. After applying the fertilizer, work it lightly into the soil and then water your garden.

"The gardener should also be on the lookout for weeds that can reduce crop yields," points out Cotner. "Once the garden is clean,

A Message from Eldorado Ministerial Alliance

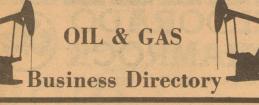

"I dreamed of journeying to the City of Everywhere. When I arrived it was cold and there were flurries of snow on the ground, but I immediately noticed that no one in the city wore shoes. I asked the manager of the hotel where I stayed the reason for this strange practice. 'What practice?' he asked. 'Why,' I said, pointing to his bare feet, 'why don't you wear shoes in this town? Don't you believe in shoes?' Believe in shoes, my friend! I should say we do. That is the first article of our creed, shoes. They are indispensable to the well being of humanity! Such blisters, cuts, sores, suffering as shoes prevent! It's wonderful!' 'Well, then, why don't you wear them?' I asked, bewildered. 'Ah,' he said, 'that's just it. Why don't we?'

Later, while walking around the city I saw a large brick structure of imposing proportions and I asked a passerby what it was. With great pride, he stated, 'That is one of our outstanding shoe manufacturing establishments.' In amazement I asked, 'You mean you make shoes there?' 'Well, not exactly,' he said, 'we talk about making shows there and, believe me, we have one of the most brilliant young fellows you ever heard. He speaks most thrillingly and convincingly every week on this great subject of shoes. He has a most persuasive and appealing way. Just yesterday he moved the people profoundly with his exposition on the importance of wearing shoes. Many broke down and wept. It was really

'But why then don't people wear them?" I asked. 'Ah,' he said, putting his hand on my arm and looking wistfully into my eyes, 'that's just it. Why don't we?"

The question is not whether you will be wearing "shoes" on this Easter Sunday but whether or not you'll be wearing officer and a general executive officer for the local them the next Sunday and the one after that and the one after that. Think on it!

Ranch Road 915 Due Special Repair

(San Angelo)- Ranch to Market Road 915 in Schleicher County is to receive 19.9 miles of seal coat under the 1977 Rehabilitation Program recently approved by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission. This special program, aimed at repair of winter road damage, will cost $60 million statewide, and is a result of Texas' worst winter in Highway damage across the State has ranged from flood damage in southern Texas to freeze damage in the more northern areas.

Contrary to what might be expected, Texas' winters may actually cause more damage than colder winters in northern states. This is caused by the rapid freezethaw cycle usually experienced in Texas. Moisture may penetrate the roadbed, freeze, thaw, and freeze again within a 24 hour period. Each of these freeze-thaw cycles causes expansion and contraction, which, coupled with pounding traffic, can cause base material failures and extensive surface damage.

The Schleicher County project begins at US 277 in Eldorado, and proceeds along RM 915 northwesterly 19.9 miles to the Irion County line. The new surface will be an asphalt seal coat varying from 20 to 68 feet wide, varying to match the existing surface width. Estimated cost of the project is $92,200.

Other counties in District 7 receiving projects in the Rehabilitation Program are Coke, Concho, Crockett, Irion, Runnels and Sutton.

District Maintenance Engineer James R. Evans of San Angelo said of the program, "It is very definitely needed to repair water and weather damage to roads. We in District 7 are very glad to receive this

Bentsen Makes Comments On Saccharin Ban

(Washington, D.C.)- Senator Lloyd Bentsen Thursday proposed that the upcoming ban on saccharin be delayed until government scientists can determine whether the risks in using the artificial sweetener outweigh the benefits.

Bentsen Thursday joined in cosponsoring legislation introduced in the House and Senate in response to a decision by the Food and Drug Administration to prohibit the use of saccharin. "The problem lies with a 19 year old law, known as the 'Delaney Clause,' which requires the F.D.A. to ban a food additive if any appropriate test shows that the additive can induce cancer in man or animal. In the case of saccharin the test was conducted in Canada; an experiment in which rats were fed an amount of saccharin equal to human consumption of 800 cans of diet soda a day," the Senator said.

"I do not seek repeal of the Delaney Clause. I seek, rather, to amend it so that our scientists can use their judgment before imposing any ban."

The legislation would give federal officials discretion to evaluate the relative benefits and risks involved before making a decision to prohibit the marketing of a assumed her new duties as of April 1.

Specifically, it would permit the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to determine whether the risks of continued use outweigh the benefits of such use. The bill would also postpone the ban on saccharin until such an evaluation can be made on it.

"There are an estimated 10 million diabetics in this country for whom sugar is poison and for whom saccharin is the only sugar substitute available, Bentsen said.

"One out of four Americans is overweight and suffers from a greatly increased risk of heart disease and arteriosclerosis. For them, saccharin is essential and I believe the government ought to weigh the benefits of its continued use against the risks before imposing any ban," Senator Bentsen said.
