Six Men Run For Council

Six men have filed for the three places which will be open on the City Council during the April 5 election. The three places are now occupied by Vida Mercer, Ray Lewis Ballew and Bobby Sykes and the six candidates are David Vannett, Nick Robledo, Charlie Niblett, Bob Lester, John Callison and John D. "Rusty" Meador.

Robledo is a native of Eldorado and attended school here and at Angelo State university. A minister for the past 13 years, he is minister of the Assembly of God Church here. A football fan, he and his wife, Edna, have five children, Melva, felemena, Nicky, Elizabeth, and Michelle. Robledo says he is running for City Council "to see some improvements in the city limits, especially street paving. I would like for the people of Eldorado to consider me as a fitting councilman," he concluded.

Callison is a native of Pax, W. Va., where he attended high school. He served with the U.S. Navy for two and a half years in the Pacific Theatre during World War II and graduated with a degree in accounting from West Virginia University. He and his wife, Jo, then taught school at an Indian Reservation. He became controller of the Dentler Division of Pet Milk Inc., working for that firm ten years in Houston and five years in San Antonio. He moved to Eldorado six years ago, associated with the Western Auto SStore. He is now owner of the Dairy Mart, enjoys golf and is a volunteer with the volunteer emergency service. He and his wife have three children, Sussan Stark of Ballinger, Michael who is a teacher here and Russell who is a college student and two grandsons.

Callison said he is running for the council to "work toward improving the town as a whole," adding "I would like to see more cooperative effort between county and city governments."

Niblett is a native of Oklahoma, has been in Eldorado for the past 17 years. He attended high school in his native state and Southeastern College in Oklahoma. He served two years in the Korean War and worked for Halliburton for 15 years. He also worked for Cardinal for five years. He is now co-owner and vice president of Quadra Corp. here, which has been in business for the past year and a half. He and his wife, Cathy, have three children, Elizabeth Lloyd, Cherie Rodriguez and Ashley. "I feel like I can contribute to bettering city government and devote as much time as necessary to accomplish the needs the city has," he said.

A native of Eldorado, Meador graduated from high school here in 1968 and holds a degree in public communications. He worked in Dallas about four years for Energy Publications, Inc. and transferred to Houston for two and a half more years before moving to Eldorado. He works with oil and gas leasing with Meador Land Company. Meador and his wife, Dawn, have one son, Regan. He is the organizer for the First Methodist Church and a volunteer with the emergency service. "Eldorado is experiencing some changes and people who are willing to work with changes should be on the council," he said.

Vannett is a native of North Dakota and has been in law enforcement for the past 17 years. He moved to Southwest Texas in 1971 and to Eldorado from Sonora in December of 1977. He established a mobile home park and opened the Bar-B-Que House and car wash. He has four children, Lynelle

Nixon of Eldorado and Donnie Vannett both of Eldorado and two other children who are living out of state.

"Since I have moved to Eldorado and having been involved with the city utility situation for mobile homes and other businesses, I have observed the city utility system is lacking, outdated, antiquated and in need of repair. I hope to be able to contribute toward modernizing and repairing to replace present inadequacies and feel that the oilfield work will remain in this area for some time. I feel Eldorado will grow considerably necessitating future planning to remain ahead of influx and be able to have sufficient water, gas and other city services to accommodate the growth without shortages. I feel it is time to take advantage of the obvious growth and whatever revenue might generate through the oilfield to make necessary changes as soon as possible," he said.

Lester is a native of Colorado City and moved here when he was four years old. He graduated from school here and then attended McMurray University in Abilene and Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos. He then lived in Colorado City and worked in Snyder. He returned to Eldorado to work for Northern Natural Gas Co. in 1971, where he is a shift operator. He and his wife, Nancy, have no children. He is also a volunteer with the Schleicher County Emergency Service. Lester said he is running for city council because he feels, "It is easy for a person to take things for granted and if he gets involved, he has a different perspective and makes a better citizen. And that is why I am running for the council."

SWC District Is Reorganized

The Eldorado-Divide Soil and Water Conservation District has undergone a complete reorganization following the loss of the Tom Green County portion of the District.

Steve Williams, acting chairman of the board of directors for the district, explained the loss of the country involved.

"For several years we've been working toward organizing a soil conservation district for Tom Green County. That county has been divided among 3 districts for many years. This has hampered a lot of progress in effectively carrying out a conservation program that is thought out and developed by local farmers and ranchers."

Two of the conservation districts involved gave up some of their territory for the new district. The Eldorado-Divide District gave up the land area roughly from Twin Buttes south to the Schleicher County line.

"This new district will help Tom Green County work out a program designed for the local people and their particular conservation problems," Williams said.

In the process of this reorganization, the Eldorado-Divide lost two of their incumbent directors from Tom Green County. These were Voy Lee Butts and Herman Allen.

"We've rezoned the District to create the five zones and positions on the board of directors required by State Law," Steve continued. "De Lux and I have been appointed by the State Soil and Water Conservation Board to fill the zones 2 and 4 positions on the local board."

Jimmy O'Harrow, the incumbent director for zone 3 is seeking re-election to his position in an election to be held on March 27.

"On March 27, at 2 p.m. in the Memorial Building, we are going to have an election to fill the director positions for zones 1, 3, and 5," Williams said.

To be eligible for a position on the board, an individual must own land in the zone he represents and actively involved in ranching or farming. All landowners in the zone are eligible to vote in their respective zone election.

Tax Board Elects Officers

Officers for the newly created Tax Appraisal Board in Schleicher County were elected during the board's first meeting held last week.

Billy Williams will be chairman, Floyd Butler, will be secretary-treasurer, and members are Mike Moore, Bob Bradley and Rueben Minor.

During the meeting, the board discussed possible sites for an office, procedures to get bids on reappraising property in the county to present to the school, hospital, county and city governments.

Council Discussing Eldorado Gas Rates

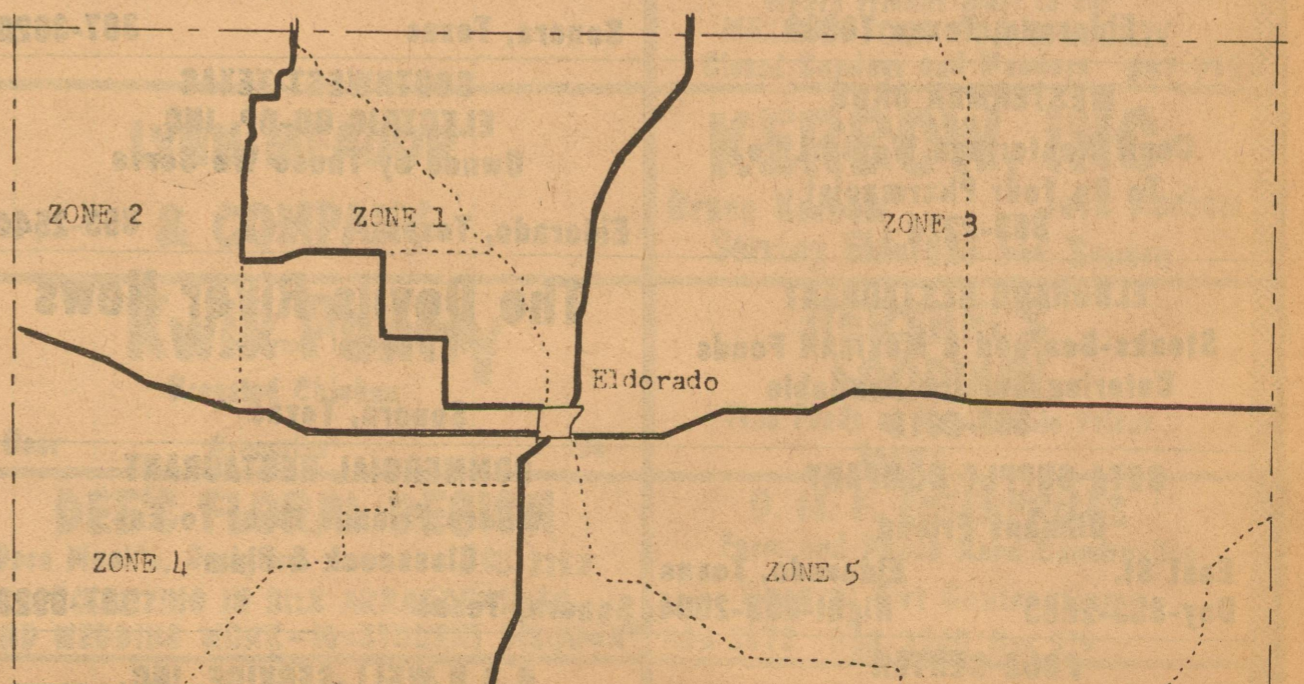

Equalizing local gas rates for residents for the major topic during the meeting of the Eldorado City Council last week. During the past few council meetings, councilmen have studied neighboring towns' gas rates and discussed the inconsistency of the local rate. At the present time, the gas rate is on a declining scale after the initial use of 2000 cubic feet. Rates range from $1.2 Tcf (thousand cubic feet) to 55 cents Tcf, determined by the volume purchased by the resident. Because this arrangement discourages conservation and low volume users pay more for their gas than a heavy user, the city is studying equalizing the rate for all users. The city council is not anticipating increasing local gas rates at this time.

An emergency supply of gas was also discussed during the meeting. The city secretary has contacted Intra Tex Gas and Producers Gas for an emergency supply of gas. Intra Tex has agreed in writing to allow the city to purchase gas; however negotiations must be made with Producers to deliver the gas if possible. The council hopes to have an emergency supply possible by fall or winter of this year.

After a brief discussion, the council agreed to provide the Schleicher County Emergency Service with $1,400 of revenue sharing funds, which is the only city fund budgeted for public health. The money will go toward the purchase of the new ambulance recently acquired by the service. The donation will leave a balance of $1430 in the fund, after $12,000 was used to repair the Hill Street ground storage tank.

The council also agreed to accept a bid for a 20 cubic yard refuse collection unit from Davis Truck and Equipment for $30,250. Immediate delivery was possible and the truck is here now. The old unit will be kept as a backup unit.

New Zones For SWC District

Our Lives Are Only Transient On Earth

EDITOR'S NOTE--This is part of a sermon given by the Rev. Dan Adams during the funeral service for Mrs. Leonard (Alma) Lloyd. It is being run because Rev. Adams had several local persons ask him for a copy.

I suppose everytime I think of someone who has lived a good life, a loving life, a careful life, a responsible life, amidst the shadows of hardship, toil and work, and especially in the times that have gone on (some of you remember those days when things weren't as easy as they are today), I suppose everytime I think of that I think of the Twenty Third Psalm, things weren't easy in the days of the psalmist. They didn't have the medicines, and the communications, and the transportations, the clothing, the health foods, the diets, the knowledge of the body that we do. And indeed everynight was a trauma. They weren't sure they would have much food to get through the winter. And yet this psalmist wrote "The Lord is my shepherd I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures, he leadeth me beside the still waters, he restoreth my soul. He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness, for his name sake." And certainly the life of the psalmist was anything but the life where there was no want, where there were green pastures, where there were still waters, and where there was any effort to restore the soul. I like the way this psalmist ties in his understanding of God, and the way that God works in his life by restoring his soul, by giving him mercy, by loving him, by being with him. I like the way he ties in the idea that God is with him, with his idea that I must be a righteous person. "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil for thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me. Thou preparest a table in the presence of mine enemies, thou anointest my head with oil, my cup runneth over." That's a lot to say from a person who is very close to starving to death. "Surely, goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life. I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever." That's a pretty good resume of our faith brethren. If we really understand the will of God in our life, then we understand that we're the ones that are to live in righteousness according to his leading, his following, and his promise.

His promise is not for earthly riches, his promise is not for health instead of sickness, his promise is not even for bodily healing, his promise is not that we won't have sadness and that we won't have suffering. His promise is that we'll "Dwell in the house of the Lord forever." Even though I've known Alma for only a couple of years, I've known her to be that kind of a person. I know she suffered. I know her life was hard. I know she never had a lot of things in the way of physical goods. But, she had a whole lot more than a lot of us, in the love that she shared with her family; in the meaningfulness of life that she found in common things. She was smart.

She knew from day to day where her help for her need came. She was one who feared the Lord. And I know that today it's a comfort to all of us to know that she is in the hands of God, a loving father, one who has sustained her through these years. And one, who now, has taken her unto himself.

God continually reminds us, brethren, in hours such as this, that our lives really are transient upon this earth. That we can do a lot in the world to make ourselves famous and powerful, we can gain a lot of status and a lot of prestige, and gain a lot of wealth. We can do all of those things that the world calls successful. But the hour comes, and now is, with this family, when we realize that the lone, individual, mountain top experience, when we stand all by ourselves, naked in the sight of God, is the only thing that really matters in life. I'm comfortable thinking of Alma. Because I know that she knew how to put first things first. I know that she was one who knew what was important in life. I'm not so sure about some of the rest of us. If this memory means something to us, let us take this example, and go out into the world and become ministers for the good news that Jesus Christ is alive and active, is our redeemer and our guide and our shield. In all of life.

is here, God is with you, his holy comforter, his spirit, is here to dwell in your hearts, to change you into another person. I've often heard my father remark that it was only after the death of my mother that he felt he became a really effective pastor and preacher. It may only be after the death of your mother that you have a deeper understanding of what life and it's spiritual realm is all about.

Focus On Small Business

"I know the Federal, state and local governments spend billions of dollars each year to buy goods and services from private businesses. But it seems to me there are still too many services being done by governments that could be done faster and cheaper by private commercial enterprise. What is being done about this government competition?"

The Small Business Administration (SBA), which serves as an advocate for the Nation's small businesses, recently began public hearings on this very subject to determine if governments are harmfully competing with private enterprise. The answer is yes. They are. At a hearing in Des Moines, Iowa, for example, dozens of witnesses pointed out that governments, which spend about $100 billion a year on purchases, probably spend at least $10 billion to operate commercial and industrial facilities business. Government agencies are going to have to go through an education process to make sure that private enterprise gets a fairer share of the government contract dollar and that governments only perform services "in-house" that are not available from the private sector. The Des Moines hearings were the first of their type to be conducted by SBA. Witnesses described their personal experiences concerning government intrusions into business activities generally regarded as belonging to the private sector.

such as research and testing labs, print shops, day care centers and sale of consumer goods through military post exchanges. SBA estimates that perhaps $2 to $3 billion of these goods and services could be bought from small

The Small Business Administration wants to do document complaints of unfair government competition with small business and wants suggestions on how governments can reduce their commercial activities.

RELIGION and the REASONING MIND
 QUESTIONS that ought to be asked. ANSWERS that are rarely given

Why Does God Permit Suffering?

This is perhaps one of the most important questions reasoning men can ask of religion: WHY DOES GOD PERMIT SUFFERING? The answer is simple in its concept, but complex in its detail. God intends for man to be free to choose and to be intelligent in his choice. For this to be possible, man must be informed (through experience) of the results of two actions: obedience and disobedience. Therefore, man's education comes in two parts. We all have had only one-half of our education: experience with evil. The other half of man's education will be during Christ's Kingdom on earth when all men, then resurrected, will experience the results of obedience. Of that time (quite contrary to present conditions) it is written, "The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." (Isaiah 11:9) Also, "They shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them." (Jeremiah 31:34) That will be the other half of man's education. Then, fully informed, he will be able to choose life. He will want to choose obedience. He will find God's character so beautiful that he will find disobedience intellectually unreasonable! Man, through disobedience, brought upon himself his present suffering; but God, in Wisdom, is using it for man's ultimate benefit. Thus it is written, "Surely the wrath of man shall praise thee; The remainder of wrath shalt thou restrain." (Psalm 76:10) In short: God is doing something. He is waiting for the earth's desirable population to be reached while He is letting man learn the horrors of sin. Then He will shortly set up His perfect Kingdom on earth for the benefit of man. His creature. (Matthew 6:10)

Bateson in Dallas.

Report Changes

"Many people fail to receive their social security checks," according to Frank Upp District Manager in San Angelo, "Because they neglect to report changes in their situation." "People are also overpaid or underpaid for the same reason," he continued.

Mr. Upp then went on to explain that the major goal of the social security administration is the timely and correct payment of benefits to persons who are eligible under one or more of the programs it administers. He emphasized that these efforts, however, can be hindered by the very persons they are designed to help.

He continued by showing that when a beneficiary fails to report a change or event which may affect eligibility, it is difficult to assure correct and timely payment. Therefore, it is most important that the beneficiaries remember the responsibilities which accompany these benefits.

Some of the more important events to report are: A change in address or living arrangements; a change in family size or composition, (including marriage, divorce or separation); and, the birth or adoption of a child. A disabled person should report returning to work or an improvement in his condition.

A change in schools or in student status needs to be reported by those drawing student benefits. Persons designated as representative payees must inform the social security administration of any changes concerning the beneficiary, such as changes in legal guardianship or when the payee would no longer have responsibility for the individual's care and welfare.

"Prompt reporting is the only way you can assure yourself that the benefits you receive will be accurate," stated Mr. Upp. He then emphasized, "if you fail to report something or you make a false statement, you could be penalized by fine or imprisonment. You may also lose some of your checks if you don't report changes promptly."

Reporting changes is not difficult. "Simply call, the San Angelo Social Security office at 949-4608. If you are not sure if a change or event needs to be reported, please contact the office for assistance."

MICROWAVE MAGIC

I've had quite a few requests for information on microwave cookery from people who received the ovens for Christmas. If you have a new appliance I hope this will help you understand its operation and also provide some new uses for you. If you have had one for some time, use it as a quick review.

In microwave cooking microwaves are absorbed by the food, with the energy of the microwave creating friction which rotates the molecules and produces heat.

The amount of time needed to cook a particular food is directly related to the food's starting temperature, volume, density, moisture content, fat, and sugar content.

Refrigerated and frozen foods require a longer cooking time than the menu time guide indicates since it is based on food at room temperature.

As the volume of food increases, the cooking time is increased somewhat proportionately.

Light, porous items, such as bread and pastries will absorb microwave energy faster than a more compact moist item of the same weight, thus requiring less cooking time.

The higher the moisture content, the longer the cooking time required.

Foods containing high fat and sugar levels heat very quickly thus requiring less cooking than foods with low fats and sugar levels.

Contrary to popular belief, food prepared in the microwave oven is not cooked from the inside out. Microwaves cook from the outside of the food toward the center, therefore, this is the reason behind several techniques of cooking.

Always alternate cooking times and standing times when defrosting. The standing time allows heat to be conducted toward the center for a more evenly defrosted product.

Because food continues to cook after being removed from the oven, a standing time is needed before serving. The temperature of the food rises during the standing time because of the continued heat transfer, so food is removed from the oven before it reaches a serving temperature. The recipes give the standing time when it is necessary.

Because the outside edges of food tend to cook first, stir some food mixtures during the cooking period. Stir from the outside toward the center.

Arrange food in the oven in the shape of a ring or circle, leaving spaces between the food items. The hole in a ring creates more outside edges. When arranging food on a plate or cooking dish, place the larger and thicker part of the food toward the outside edge of the dish and the thinner and smaller part of the food toward the center. This helps to eliminate overcooking.

Spotlight On Business

O. B. Singelton Operates Motor Grader.

DMF Begins Operations

Because of a new need for road and dirt contracting in the county, there is a new business in Eldorado, DMF Enterprises which does dirt and caliche work, general dirt contracting and farm and ranch road maintenance and construction.

DMF has several six yard dump trucks, one 22 yard dump truck, one large cat loader, one small case loader and one motorgrader.

The company, which gets its name from its owners, Davis, Miller and Faull, also sells and hauls good grade caliche, black dirt, crushed rock, remix and fill.

Purpose of the operation is to fill a need to do jobs that the county can no longer do and to do them at competitive prices below oil field prices.

Temporary phone numbers for the business are 853-3045 and 853-2872.

Biggs Is New Chairman

Glenn Biggs, chairman of the Board and chief executive officer of San Antonio's first National Bank, and a native of Eldorado, has been elected chairman of the Board of Trustees of City Public Service, gas and electric utility serving the Greater San Antonio, Texas area.

By virtue of his election, Biggs, now heads the policymaking body for a municipally-owned utility system which serves 325,000 electric customers and 255,000 natural gas customers in and around Bexar County. He and four other Trustees administer an organization with total assets of $1.4 billion and annual revenues exceeding $427 million.

A member of the CPS Board since June 3, 1974, Biggs was vice chairman of the Board at the time of his elevation to chairman. Under Board rules, he can continue serving as a Trustee until 1987.

Riggs attended public schools in his hometown of Eldorado, Texas, then earned a bachelor of arts degree at Baylor University. He held a number of important positions in the fields of industrial development, state government and insurance before becoming president of the First National Bank of San Antonio in 1970. Early in his business career, Biggs handled the real estate transaction which led to the creation of Guadalupe Mountains National Park east of El Paso on the Texas-New Mexico border.
