Eagles Top Brady In Friday Scrimmage

The Eldorado Eagles went through a light scrimmage with the Brady Bulldogs last Friday evening, and to those spectators who attended that appeared mighty impressive. The Eagle JV also made a strong showing and proved that this might well be the year of the Eagle.

In the varsity scrimmage, a potent defense stunned the Bulldogs and held them scoreless for the evening. The Bulldogs drove deep into Eldorado territory twice, once being stopped on a fumble, and once being stopped when they failed to capitalize on a fourth and short situation. Eagle defensive back Mike Griffith pulled a Bulldog pass out of the air and raced some 50 yards to the endzone to lead the Eagle defensive attack.

The Eagle offense seemed just as impressive as the defense against the Bulldogs. On the first series of downs the Eagle drove inside of the Bulldog 20 yard line, before losing the ball on a pass interception. The Eagles drove into Bulldog territory several times during the night, each time behind the sure passing arm of quarterback Keith McCormack and the breakaway running of halfback Tommy Martinez.

The eagles scored the only offensive touchdown of the evening, when Floyd Faye dashed in from the three yard line. The Eagle's field long march was highlighted by a fourth and short at one point, several long pass plays to ends Mike Griffith and Ronnie Hall, and some timely rushes by Ed Willoughby.

All in all, the scrimmage was a huge success for the Eagles, as was the "Meet the Eagles" hosted by the cheerleaders.

The Eagles will hold another scrimmage this week with Robert Lee. Action is set to get underway at about 7 o'clock in the evening in Steer Stadium at Robert Lee. The preceding week the Eagles will open the regular season of play by traveling to Rankin to play the Red Devils in a Friday night tilt.

Telethon Gets Eldorado Center

When the Jerry Lewis Annual Labor Telethon get underway at 9:00 p.m. Sunday, August 31, Eldorado for the first time will be served with a pledge center for your contributions to fight Muscular Dystrophy. Responsible for the MDA efforts locally is pledge center chairman Jym Trimble.

Trimble wishes to urge all the citizenry of the Eldorado community to support the telethon. He adds, "in a small community such as Eldorado, the hand usually extends way past the heart. If a child was born in Eldorado tomorrow with MD, you can bet that many people of the community would be there to help that family. I ask for your support so that the MDA (Muscular Dystrophy Association) can continue its research effort to find the cure and prevention of muscular dystrophy."

The pledge center will be located downtown in the offices of the Schleicher County Leader. Each and everyone of you is cordially invited to drop by and visit with the local telethon staff. During telethon hours, your pledges will be taken by dialing 853-2032 here in Eldorado.

A few volunteers are still needed and if you would like to offer your services as a volunteer see Mr. Trimble.

Once again this year, the telethon will be aired on KCTV channel 8 in San Angelo. The telethon will start at 9:00 p.m. Sunday, and last through 5:30 p.m. of Labor Day. The national telethon center will be set up in San Angelo at KCTV as well.

This year's star studded line-up will include Blondie, Charo Wolfman Jack, Peter Marshall, Erma Bombeck, Virginia Capers, Joey

Heatherton, Abbe Lane, Julius La Rosa, Jerry Lee Lewis, Lorne Luft, Jack Palance, Cliff Robertson, Mel Torme, Ben Veree and many more.

The telethon supports MDA's research and patient care programs for children and adults afflicted by any of 40 neuromuscular diseases. MDA sponsors a nationwide program of more than 200 free diagnostic and treatment clinics. Its worldwide research includes more than 750 individual projects and 10 major research/clinical centers in the US and England. MDA's income is derived almost entirely from public support. The Association neither seeks nor receives government grants or fees for services to patients, their families, or the community at large.

Caution Urged In Holiday Driving

The Texas Department of public Safety has urged motorists to be "exceptionally careful" during the long Labor Day weekend because of the increased volume of traffic which can be expected.

Colonel Jim Adams, director of the DPS, said "Labor Day. The last holiday of summer, becomes the last holiday-period-for far too many Texans and many more have their holiday ruined by a traffic accident. "Out Statistical services Division of the DPS, has predicted that 45 persons may die during this 78-hour period. In order to provide maximum protection for the driving public we are placing additional Troopers on the highways. Most will be in well-marked, black-and-white units, although unmarked units will be utilized to detect those determined violators who make the highways unsafe for others." He also said they will be especially watchful for drunken drivers.

Col. Adams said we can easily overcome the predictions if motorists comply with the speed limits, use their seat belts, avoid driving while impaired by alcohol or drugs and watch out for the other driver.

TSA Urges 55 On Labor Day

Texas Safety Association's vice president for traffic, James R. Halverson today urged motorists to drive 55 over the Labor Day weekend, August 29-September 1, because "driving unhurried most often means arriving unhurt."

"Driving 55 will improve your chances of reaching your destination safely, and you can enjoy the ride more knowing you're traveling at a safe speed," Halverson said.

Halverson noted that the chance of fatal accident at 55 mph is 1 in 33, while at 70 mph the risk is 50-50, of 1 in 2. Over the 1979 Labor Day weekend, 45 fatal accidents caused 49 deaths, according to Texas Department of Public Safety statistics.

Traveling 55 mph will also get you where you're going in a reasonable length of time, Halverson pointed out.

"55 mph is not too slow. A 100-mile trip at 65 mph takes one hour, 32 minutes. At 55, it takes one hour, 49 minutes—a cost of 17 minutes. It seems to me that a 17-minute delay that greatly increases one's chances of arriving safely is acceptable," he said.

Touching on the economic practicalities of the 55 mph speed limit, Halverson reminded drivers that it is cheaper to drive 55.

"Department of Transportation studies show that cars get 17 - 40% better gas mileage at 55 than at 70 mph. For the average car, that translates into approximately 50 more miles per tankful. Smaller, fuel efficient cars get even better fuel savings," he explained.

Slower safer speeds also save money in other ways besides reducing gasoline costs, Halverson continued. For instance, the New England Mutual and John Hancock insurance companies both report reduced life insurance premiums due to a significantly lower big-way death rate—40% lower according to the National Safety Council.

Furthermore, in Texas, the 55 mph speed limit has reduced accidents to the extent that residents save $2 billion annually in hospitalization, loss of income and medical care, Halverson said.

"55 is the smart speed to drive over the Labor Day holiday—and everyday—if you're interested in saving lives, gasoline and money," Halverson reiterated.

The Call Of Abram

The first eleven chapters of Genesis cover about 2,000 years-half the length of time covered by the entire old testament. The spirit seems to hurry over all the events at the dawn of history until it comes to Abram and then stops and devotes fourteen chapters to this one man. The reason is obvious the "Father of the Faithful" play an important role in the history of redemption. Though the line of Shem, God now singles out one man through whom he can work. With Abram we are introduced to the history of God's chosen people, Israel, who were to be a witness to the entire world of the one true God and through whom the promised Redeemer would come.

The call of Abram was personal. He was not to take his father or any of the rest of his family. It was a call for separation. Many times we are called to separate ourselves from our loved one and ourselves from loved ones and our friends to follow God, but we have a promise that He will go with us, and we know that some day he is coming back for His own that we might dwell with him forever. Our lives must be regulated by other affections than those which arise from the relationships of flesh and blood; we must walk by faith, or the unseen, with God's commands and presence guiding us. Our families may often wonder why we don't do the same things or walk the same way they do. But the reason is that we have received that call for separation, just a Abram did.

The promise God made to Abram was as follows. His seed would be as the sand of the seashore and as the stars of heaven. His name was to be great. God would bless those that blessed him and curse those that cursed him.

Windfall Profits Tax:

IPAA Seeks Legal Action

A legal suit to overturn the Windfall Profit Oil Excise Tax has been filed by a legal committee put together by the Independent Petroleum Association of America and the Mountain States Legal Foundation. The suit was brought in the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals in Casper, Wyoming, because it's believed that court would be much friendlier than the Fifth Circuit Court in New Orleans.

The suit is based on the theory that all taxing is "taking". When the government services, James Watt, President of the Mountain States Legal Foundation, said the oil excise tax has been levied on one specific group without any pretense of just compensation and violates the U.S. Constitution. The Fifth Amendment prohibits taking property without compensation.

In other tax news, a

Windfall Profits Tax on gas has been proposed. The chief economist for the Joint Tax Committee of Congress, James Wetzler, will call for the tax on natural gas in the September issue of the National Tax Journal. Wetzler calls for gas decontrol coupled with an excise tax on the so-called windfall. Recent increases in world oil prices make a $35 barrel of oil equal to gas at $6 per thousand cubic feet. The current ceiling prices in the U.S., however, is only $2.50 per mcf. about 50% of the gas will be decontrolled in 1985. Wetzler proposes to tax the decontrolled gas and make an appropriate distribution of offsetting tax cuts.

PBPA said more than a year ago that if the oil excise tax passed, natural gas would be next. If the Windfall Tax on gas passes, we wonder what will be next.

Wallace Attacks Fed Bureaucracy

Texas oil wells will likely pump two billion barrels less in the Eighties and the nation's economic and energy problems will multiply because of congressional and federal bureaucratic actions in recent years, the senior member of the Railroad Commission declared today.

Commissioner Mack Wallace, in comments before the monthly statewide oil and gas hearing, blamed a recently imposed tax that singled out the U.S. oil industry for creating the specter of sharp production losses in the nation's Number 1 energy state.

"They did give us the Windfall Profits Tax, hailed energy official asserted.

"Only 13 drilling rigs are operating in Alaska this month," he reported. "That compares to 991 in Texas, 455 in Louisiana, and 123 in California."

Wallace faulted Congress for allowing itself to be diverted from the primary issue of producing more energy in the U.S.

One of the first moves Americans can make to free themselves from "bondage" to foreign oil is to stop listening to promoters of no-growth and radical environmentalists who have "propagandized this nation to a near standstill," he maintained.

The Texas "experience" refutes presumptions that responsibility and careful development of natural resources is incompatible with environmental quality, Wallace said. He explained:

"In Texas we have drilled more than 600,000 holes in the ground searching for oil and gas hundreds of thousands of miles of pipelines have been laid to serve America. Indeed, our Texas experience has shown that oil and gas exploration can and does take place under environmentally sound conditions. I, personally, would never be a part of laying waste the lands of Texas."

Cleere Speaks To Desk & Derrick Club

by Frances Dodd

August has certainly been a busy month for us. On Aug. 5, Bernice Cleere came and spoke to us on "The Fundamentals of Drilling and Oil or Gas Well".

Mrs. Cleere said, "Drilling for oil and gas is expected to be at the highest rate since 1956. If this drought continues, farmers and ranchers will not be able to add as much to the economy and the petroleum activity in this vicinity will have to carry the load."

Her highly informative speech carried us through the history of drilling up to some of the terminology used in today's drilling procedures.

We're looking forward to more visits from Mrs. Cleere and the members from the San Angelo Desk and Derrick Club who accompanied her. Our special thanks to you, Bernice Cleere.

We were really proud to enter a float in this year's Sutton County Days Parade. Decorated in the club colors of black and gold, we featured half the desk and the derrick with some of our members dressed for the oil patch and some in office attire.

The fun really started

Saturday at the Sutton County Days celebration. We had a baseball dunking booth. With the hot August sun beating down on us it was really a relief to drop from the board into the water. Participation by both dunkers and dunkees was high.

We would especially like to thank Steve Swift with HNG Oil Co., Coach Virgil Burge, Dennis Sowell, youth director at First Baptist Church, Mike Kinard, Glenda Lowe and Candy Nelson for volunteering to take a dip for our club. Our thanks also goes out to all the children who helped.

Our next club meeting will be held Sept. 2 at 7:30 p.m. at the Amoco Building. It will be our pleasure to welcome Martha Sublett of Leonard Hudson Drilling Co. Inc. of Pampa as our speaker. Mrs. Sublett is the Region V Director of the Association of Desk and Derrick Clubs (ADDC). She will present us with our certificate of affiliation with the ADDC.

This would be a great opportunity for those of you who are wondering what we're all about to come and find out. The way we feel about it is "Greater knowledge, greater service."

PBPA Against Windfall Profits Tax

Jimmy Carter campaigned for the office of the presidency in 1976 on a platform of personal honesty. He said, "Trust Me. I will never lie to you."

The Permian Basin Petroleum Association believes the so-called Windfall Profits Tax is bad for the petroleum industry primarily because it's bad for the country. We also strongly believe the tax is bad for the American people because the resident lied about what the money would be used for, and who would pay for it. When President Carter first proposed the tax, he said the money was needed to produce alternate energy sources for the future. Well when the liberal, anti-free-enterprise got through with the bill, only 15% of the $227 billion dollars was set aside for energy development. And, 95% of that will go to major oil companies, while 85% , or 193 billion dollars, can be spent by future Congresses anyway they want to.

The President also said the big oil companies would pay the tax. He knew that was not true. Along with the tax, prices for crude oil produced in the United States are being allowed to gradually rise to world oil prices. Thus, the oil companies are paying the tax with the increased income from the rising oil prices, and the public is paying for the higher priced oil.

The oil producer is realizing about 20 cents on every extra dollar of income from decontrolled prices. The Federal Government gets the excise tax profits. We think it's time the American people demand the excise tax be repealed, and let the energy producers go full steam ahead with this important task.

The rig count last week was 329, one year ago it was 247.

Petroleum Briefs

Compiled By Jym Trimble

Petroleum discoveries continue to be on the upswing for this year in the state of Texas. Texas operators reported 83 gas and 40 oil discoveries during the August 1-15 period of this year according to the Texas Railroad Commission today. In the year earlier period, 53 gas and 28 oil discoveries were filed with the state's regulatory agency. Seven of these gas discoveries and eight oil discoveries were located within the immediate area of Sutton and Schleicher County.

New applications for permits to drill oil and gas tests totalled 1,272 in the first half of August compared with 1,035 in the same period of 1979. Through the first seven and one-half months of 1980, operators have reported 914 oil discoveries, against 806 and 297 oil discoveries in the year-earlier period. Successful exploratory and field completions in the seven and a half months of 1980 total 7,614 oil and 3,354 gas, against 4,984 oil and 3,480 gas completions in the same period last year.

State leases in offshore and coastal Texas petroleum provinces produced 48,569 barrels of crude oil during June 1980 in contrast to 54,372 barrels in May and 70,698 barrels in the same month of 1979. Offshore drilling activity has not decreased during recent months, but all other aspect of offshore production have continued to drop for the eighth month in a row and for quite a considerable amount as far as yearly totals are concerned.

The Railroad Commission today set the Texas Oil production rate for September 1980 at 100 percent of market demand for the 43rd month in a row and the 99th time since the Commission first went to the ceiling level in April 1972.

Septembers permissible rate of output is calculated to average 3,421,327 barrels daily with actual production estimated at 2,510,00 barrels daily. Actual production in September 1979 averaged 2,647,527 barrels daily. September 1980 nominations for the purchase of Texas gas totalled 24, 414,998 Mcf daily. September 1979 gas nominations totalled 24,049,049 Mcf daily. This an increase of one percent from the previous month, and a one and one-half percent increase from 1979 nominations.

-ps-

The Railroad Commission Natural Gas Policy Act Section today reported that as of Aug. 8 Texas Oil and Gas Operators have filed 26,125 applications for determinations of new gas well production and pricing categories under the federal Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978.

Through August 8, the Commission has approved 14,786 applications for the requested NPG categories. Seven applications have been denied, while 14,089 applications have been transmitted to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Scleicher County Agricultural Notes

Extension Service Notes

Winter pastures have always been important to cattlemen, but this is one year when they could really give a lift to beleaguered producers.

"Due to the season-long drouth, most producers must try to develop winter pastures to ease feed bills," contends Don Dorsett, a forage specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Keys to successful winter pastures include good seedbed preparation, early planting and a good fertility program, says Dorsett.

He advises planting adapted varieties of wheat, oats, rye or ryegrass in September so that livestock will have grazing in both fall and winter.

"Early planting is essential if pastures are to provide grazing before Christmas," says Dorsett. Winter pastures make their best growth during optimum temperatures and plenty of sunlight in the fall months. Once cold weather hit, winter pastures make only limited growth.

As far as fertility is concerned, the specialist recommends at least 70 to 80 pounds of actual nitrogen and 40 to 50 pounds of actual phosphorus per acre at planting and a topdressing of 50 pounds of actual nitrogen in late February. He points out that adequately fertilizing winter pastures can be money well spent.

"An acre of winter pasture can produce three tons of high rotein, highly digestible forage under a good fertility program," Dorsett points out. "Since each ton of pasture equals a ton of 18-20 percent protein cubes, that's $400 to $500 in feed value."

While winter pastures are expensive, they have an excellent feed value that could be the salvation of many livestock producers this fall and winter, contends the specialist.

Besides providing cattle with adequate feed and water during a drouth, livestock producers must also ensure needed minerals and vitamins.

As natural green forages disappear because of heat and inadequate rainfall, so do natural sources of vitamin A and phosphorus, according to Dr. Larry L. Boleman, beef cattle specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Vitamin A is needed for normal development of bones and maintenance of tissues and vision. Boleman said in early stages, vitamin A deficiency is characterized by night blindness. In later stages, cattle become less alert and lose their appetite.

Boleman also said vitamin A-deficient breeding cows may continue to have estrus but fewer cows become pregnant. A serious deficiency in a pregnant animal may cause abortion, birth of a dead calf, or weak or blind calves.

Synthetic vitamin A may be mixed with feed, injected intramuscularly or administered in controlled drinking water. Cows require 40,000 international units daily per head, yearling cattle 15,000 and calves 5,000, said Boleman.

He said lack of phosphorus is the major mineral deficiency. A supplement, like bonemeal dicalcium phosphate or monosodium phosphate, should be available at all times.

Monosodium phosphate may be added to the drinking water and is an excellent method of supplying phosphorus. Commercial mixes containing no more than ratios of one or two parts calcium to one part phosphorus are considered good supplements, said Boleman.

Granular salt should be available as a lick at all times except when salt is fed to limit feed consumption. In most instances feeding a separate mineral supplement is preferable, except where salt is used in combination with bonemeal to control blowing.

The lack of rain experienced in Texas this year is evident among deer populations in the Texas Hill Country and Rio Grande Plains. There are fewer deer and with smaller antlers than would occur in normal years. Both factors relate directly to deer food supply, according to Dr. Dwight Guynn, Area Wildlife Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Uvalde.

"The lack of rain means less green forage for deer to feed on," says Guynn. "This lack of feed has caused many deer herds to starve."

He explains that 30 to 60 percent of some deer herds in the Hill Country and South Texas were estimated to have died from starvation resulting from the drought. A shortage of food supplies for deer resulted in poor nutrition for does prior to and during fawning. Consequently, the survival of this year's fawn crop is expected to be low.

Buck antler development is also highly dependent on ample food supplies and a high intake of nutrients. Because of the drought, antlers may be smaller than those produced in past years with more rainfall.

However, the outlook for ranchers and hunters may not be as bad as some project, Guynn feels. Many areas of the Hill Country and some parts of the South Texas brush country have been experiencing overpopulations of deer in recent years. In short, there were too many deer for ranges to support in good condition, resulting in large numbers of small "inferior" deer.

Guynn says reducing the deer population has been difficult to achieve through legal hunting season harvests. "An average harvest in the Hill Country is about 10 percent of the herd," he notes. "But a 25 percent harvest is necessary to keep the herd from increasing and a harvest over 25 percent is needed to decrease the size of a deer herd significantly."

Since females represent the "reproductive factory" of the herd, does as well as bucks should be harvested to maintain a good balance of deer and forage. Past hunting harvests averaging 10 percent of deer herds has led to continually increasing deer numbers and nutrition problems.

Guynn believes the drought has accomplished what many landowners and hunters have been unable to do—reduce deer numbers significantly. "With lower deer populations at more manageable levels, landowners have a better opportunity to balance their herds with the available forage on rangelands," he says.

What this means to hunters and landowners, the Texas A&M University wildlife specialist notes, is that deer may not need to be protected from hunting this fall. In fact, hunting may be more effectively used to manipulate deer numbers and buck-doe ratios this fall than in past seasons. In some instances, continued harvesting, specifically does, may be what some areas need to hold the lower deer numbers in check.

A census of deer numbers and buck-doe ratios are considered the most reliable methods for landowners to determine how many deer should be harvested on a particular ranch. Information on census techniques is available from county Extension agents, who along with Extension wildlife specialists, can provide census analysis and forage availability information to help landowners determine a suitable number of deer to harvest this season.

Cattle Sales Increase

Decline among pastures and range in many areas of the state were at least partially responsible for a nine-percent increase in the auction of cattle and calves between May and June.

June auction sales were up two percent over last June's figures.

Figures from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service also showed that more sheep, lambs and goats moved through Texas auction barns compared with June 1979.

Sheep and lamb sales showed the sharpest increase with 132,000 head moving through auction in June.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said this figure was a 52 percent increase over last June and a 38 percent increase since May.

Goat sales showed a slight increase—42,000 head in June, compared with 40,000 a year ago and 37,000 in May.

Hogs were the only animals to decline. Sales during June totaled 44,000 head, eight percent below June, 1979.

Reports from Washington

The future for more than half of all America's working men and women rests with the future of America's small businesses. Small business is the backbone of our economy, providing the jobs and the goods and services vital to growth and our future well-being. And the opportunity to start a business, and work to make it prosper from the ground up is an economic freedom central to our way of life.

Small business is family business. Not only are many of America's smaller companies owned and operated by single families, but American families rely on the goods and services produced by them to maintain their livelihood and a rising standard of living.

As important as small business is to our economic well-being, it is being destroyed right before our eyes. Federal tax and regulatory policies are placing the Nation's small businesses on an endangered species list.

Make no mistake about it! The survival of our local entrepreneurs will determine the survival of our country's economic system.

As recently as 1969, small companies across the country provided 71 percent of all new jobs. That now has declined to 43 percent. And the reason is not because big businesses are creating more jobs — but because small businesses are creating fewer jobs. We can point the finger of blame squarely at Washington for this disillusioning fact. Our Nation's businessmen paid some $100 billion last year alone to comply with Federal regulations. That is a $100 billion that was not invested in new plant and equipment, new products or new jobs. And that is a $100 billion that the Federal government soaked up like a sponge.

Each year the costs of regulatory compliance grow because government continues to grow. In any one year, Congress on the average enacts some 600 bills into law. The great majority entail spending more money, and regulations which implement legislation. During that same annual period, 9,000 administrative rules are issued by the Federal government. Almost 100 agencies are in place for the sole purpose of issuing and implementing rules and regulations.

Seven years after the Great Depression, the Federal Register was filled with only 3,400 pages of regulations imposed on business by Washington. Forty years later, the Federal Register filled 65,000 pages.

Regulations are only half the problem. Excessive taxation is stifling incentives vital to growth, and jobs creation. These problems would be hard to overcome in the best of times. But in today's recessionary economy, with double-digit inflation, and double-digit interest rates, the Nation's small companies are edging close to ruin by trying to meet Washington's dictates, and a payroll at the same time.

Without the ability to predict costs, or the likelihood of fair profit, businessmen simply cut back on production and investment. Larger concerns, with greater resources, can weather hard economic times. Small businesses cannot. Operating on slim profit margins to begin with, many are forced to close their doors when too much government and too much taxation work hand in hand.

We must take some immediate steps if our small businesses are to have a fighting chance. The first is reductions in taxes and liberalized depreciation schedules to allow small companies to invest and expand.

This must be coupled with efforts to relax the regulatory grip the Federal agencies have on business. Reducing record-keeping requirements and setting easier compliance timetables will free more resources for productive purposes.

Spurring the enactment of sunset laws, which would place the burden of proof on an agency or regulation to justify its usefulness, would also greatly further efforts to get Washington out of every facet of American free enterprise.

No business is as important to this country as small business. If we are going to ensure its survival, recognizing the most serious threat to its future is the starting point. We need look no farther than Washington.

Turner Elected To Angus Ass'n.

Amy Kay Turner, Eldorado, Texas, has been elected to membership in the American Angus Association, reports Dr. C.K. Allen, executive vice-president of the national organization with headquarters in St. Joseph, Missouri.

The American Angus Association, with some 38,000 active life and junior members, is the largest beef gattle registry association in the world. Its computerized records include detailed information on nearly 10 million registered Angus.

The Association records ancestral information and keeps records of production on individual animals for its members. These permanent production on individual animals for members. These permanent records help members select and mate the best animals in their herds to produce high quality, efficient breeding cattle which are then recorded with the American Angus association. Most of these registered Angus are used by the U.S. farmers and ranchers who raise high quality beef for U.S. consumption.

TSGRA Notes

Congratulations are in order—for the people of Del Rio, their neighbors in the surrounding countryside, concerned private property organizations, Texas state officials and the Texas congressional delegation. All these people and more joined in opposition to a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service scheme that would have set aside much of Devil's River and San Felipe Creek as "critical habitat."

Opponents of the proposal claimed, and with the utmost justification, that the only thing really "threatened" was the private property rights of landowners in the target area. That included homeowners and businesses in Del Rio whose property was in imminent danger of flooding without some of the flood control structures the minnow scheme would have prohibited.

All that is over now, at least for the time being. F&WS director Lynn Greenwalt advised U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler's office Wed., Aug. 13, that his agency had dropped its "threatened species" and "critical habitat" proposal. Loeffler called the victory a "tribute to individual and community involvement," and "proof that with concerted effort, we can fight the federal bureaucracy and win."

He cautioned, however that the scheme could still be resurrected at some future date, and urged continued vigilance against further federal encroachment into the rights of private individuals.

The entire federal proposal had a ring of comical futility about it, though it was admittedly difficult for most of us to see it that way at the time. Even a monkey cutting capers loses some of his humorous qualities when he's waving a loaded gun.

The Texas Sheep & Goat Raisers' Association and the scheme's other opponents clearly demonstrated during the public comment period that F&WS had no grounds for their attempted actions in the minnow case. Their figures were wrong—where they had any, their knowledge of the minnow was almost nonexistent, their assurances were frightfully hollow, and their motives were suspect, if not transparent.

Still, they almost got away with it—because the very people who were charged with making the final decisions on the proposal were the same ones who dreamed it up in the first place. And they're not used to having their plans thwarted—certainly not by common American Citizens.

So how did we win? Credit some of it to the current political climate. Judging from the number of bumper stickers showing up nowadays reading "I'm mad, too, Eddie!", a goodly share of the nation's citizenry has had a gullet-full of this type of federal foolishness. People have seen far too many essential projects stymied by ridiculous regulations, they've felt the federal fist in their own facws increasingly in recent years, and they've stood by in trembling rage watching taxes take more and more out of incomes worth less and less.

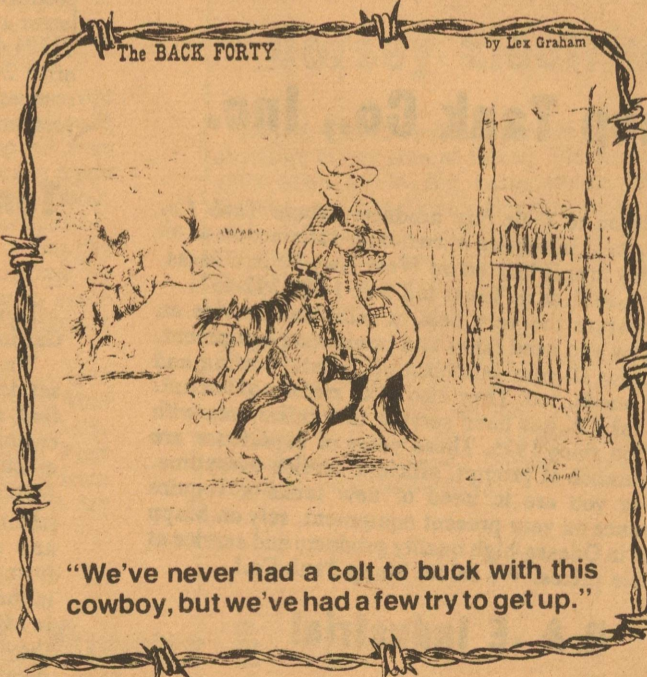

But why should all this suddenly come crashing down on a bunch of bureaucrats who're only trying to tie up a few thousand acres of private land in a relatively remote area of West Texas? Because the intended victims of that tie-up reared back on their hind legs and bared their teeth. And because allies many of them didn't even know saw an opportunity to take a stand beside them.

Residents of the Devil's River area say they're planning a "Freedom for Devil's River" victory celebration soon. It may just be the precursor or many other similar celebrations all over the country. Del Rio's as good a place as we can imagine for it all to start.
