

On The Divide

One of the most common greetings heard on Eldorado streets in recent weeks, goes something like this: "Well, have you heard any news from the oil wells." Etc. etc.

Speaking of oil wells, W. O. Alexander, local banker says that he believes there is plenty of room in his back yard for a rig.

The Lions Club should be complimented for their efforts in sponsoring a Clean-Up campaign in the city. Still harboring dislikes for scrubbing behind the ears as a barefoot youth, most of us still have to be coaxed into cleaning the nooks and corners of our premises each spring.

We have heard it said that city officials plan to enforce traffic laws in the city and to stop parking in the center of Main street. Our streets are wide and roomy, but not wide enough to permit large trucks to stop in the middle and still have ample passageway for traffic on each side.

Parking in the center of the street creates a hazard for pedestrians and might result in serious accident. As more and more people come to Eldorado, our traffic problems become more acute, and it seems fitting that precautions are now taken to avoid possible accidents.

While Eldorado citizens swelter under a hot summer sun, A. D. Richey and party on a tour to the west coast and Canada, are enjoying cool breezes and chunking snow-balls out in Wyoming, according to a telegram received Wednesday afternoon by Hank Bowman.

The telegram follows:

SHELL WINS FIRST HALF BALL SERIES

The Shell Pipe Line softball team cinched the first half of the local series Monday night when they chalked up a victory against the Wool House boys. The first half of the series ends Friday. To lead the field of five teams, the Shell team tacked up twelve victories and lost only three games.

Wednesday night of this week Menard All-Stars visited our town for an interesting game, and walked away with an easy victory of 11-0 over our superior players.

Tuesday night, the Doodle Bugs blossomed out by winning a nice victory over the Gas House Gang, one of the stronger teams of the league.

At the weekly luncheon of the Eldorado Lions Club last Wednesday, the club passed a resolution to the effect that the club would not continue to sponsor the softball leagues of this city. The club will continue to maintain a team in the league, but this decision was made in order to relieve the organization of any possible financial responsibility.

God takes deeds for achievement. "Thou didst well," he said to David, with this plan to build a house, "that it was in thy heart. Mrs. Clark Is Recovering From Serious Burns

The condition of Mrs. J. S. Clark, who is in a San Angelo hospital suffering from severe burns received when fire swept a laundry here last week, is said to be steadily improving, in a report received by the Success Office Thursday.

Mrs. Clark, who received dangerous burns about the arms, face and back when she entered the burning building to save some of her belongings, was rushed to a San Angelo hospital where her condition was said to have been critical for some hours.

An oil stove in the kitchen in the front of the building was said to have caused the fire which swept the Help-Self Laundry around noon last Thursday. Flames spread rapidly throughout the building but the fire was brought under control by volunteers before much damage had been done to the building.

Finished clothes in the front of the building were destroyed but machinery used in the laundry was not damaged.

Prospects Bright For Two Fields In County

Harold B. Opp's No. 1 J. T. Jackson well, five miles west of Eldorado, which promises to be the opener of a second oil pool in Schleicher county was holding main interest here Thursday as tubing was being run for a test. Casing was set at 4,061 feet, the total depth, yesterday. Swabbing was scheduled for this morning and tubing run. A test of the well is expected to be made by the week-end according to the opinion of drillers.

Lone Star No. 1 Humble-Page, established itself as first commercial producer of the area Sunday when it flowed 11 to 12 barrels-an-hour through a 3-4 inch choke on tubing following a retreatment Saturday with 1,000 gallons of acid. The well is being run at less than half the yield of last Sunday, due to limited storage. The oil was being trucked to a refinery at Mertzon this week. It is understood that negotiations are underway to connect the well with the Shell Pipe line which runs a short distance from the well.

Dismantling of a spudder at Shell Oil Co., No. 1-B. Page, one mile west of Lone Star No. 1, had been ordered discontinued, it was reported. Drilling was stopped last week at 105 feet in lime. Abandonment of the well was announced Monday, the lease expiring August 17. It was not learned whether or not drilling will be resumed.

Lone Star No. 1 Shell-Page, only active test in the area, stopped drilling Wednesday at 5,723 feet, it was reported. A Schlumberger electrical survey will be made of the well, any porous zones being revealed. These will be tested through gun perforations that will be made in the 6-5-8 casing after the pipe is run to the bottom and cemented. This test will likely require a week, it is understood.

Floyce Sherrod Is First Gold Star Girl Of County

Floyce Sherrod is the first Gold Star girl of Schleicher County 4-H clubs, according to an announcement recently received by Margaret Stewart, C. H. D. A., from Onah Jacks, Girl's state club agent.

A gold star pin is awarded to one girl in each county provided there is a girl eligible which is different from the awarding of Gold Star pins previous to 1938. Formerly the pins awarded to 100 girls of the state ranking highest and this was done principally on a history that the girl wrote of her club work.

Floyce was selected through a committee composed of chairman of Education committee of the county home demonstration council and two girls selected by the council chairman. This committee visited each candidate and from these selected the winner of the county.

Floyce will be awarded the gold star pin soon.

PURGING THE PAYROLL

Governor Lehman of New York has signed a bill which bars from school teaching and civil service jobs in that state all persons who advocate the overthrow of the government "by force, violence or any other unlawful means."

He also approved another bill which makes it unlawful to wear in public a uniform similar to that worn by military or other organizations of a foreign country.

It is unfortunate that a situation exists which makes the passage of such laws necessary, but it is becoming more and more evident that something must be done to curb unAmerican activities which are so widespread in the United States.

Changes in our governmental policies may always be effected by lawful means, which is through the ballot. But patriotic Americans should not tolerate the abuse of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights by persons who would destroy our democratic institutions.

Such persons are deserving of no encouragement or sympathy. They are a greater menace to the United States than any prospective foreign foe. Certainly they should be excluded from the public payroll, and especially from the teaching staffs of our public schools.

When Rev. Joseph Moffett of London finished preaching a sermon to ex-convicts, he found that his watch and chain and wallet, containing $30, had been stolen.

THE USE OF PERFUMES

Perfumes are said to have been first used by early barbarians to kill the offensive odor of burning flesh offered as a sacrifice on their altars. This was not so much because the pagans were themselves fastidious, but in order that the gods might not be offended by an unpleasant smell. The use of church incense logically followed in the course of time.

According to an authority on the subject of perfumes, quoted by Princess Kropotkin, ladies of ancient Greece used different scents for different parts of their bodies. Later the idea prevailed that a woman should use one distinctive perfume exclusively.

It is related that perfumery was introduced into England during the reign of Queen Elizabeth by a Count of Oxford, who brought it from Italy. Court ladies in the time of Louis XVI of France

AUSTIN.—The people of Texas won another notable victory over the special interests and Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, when the House of Representatives rejected for the sixth time the lobby-inspired sales tax constitutional amendment last weekend. With adjournment set for Wednesday, June 21, the opinion of best informed observers here, as this column is written over the weekend, was that the plan to freeze a $50,000,000 tax program into the Constitution was finally dead. Proponents, led by Ely Thornton of Galveston, gave notice they would seek once more before adjournment to suspend the rules and reconsider House defeat of the constitutional sales tax plan, but in view of the fact that proponents lost strength on the latest attempt, most observers here gave them only an outside chance. Preponderance among informed opinion was the session would end with no taxation legislation.

Worn by the long session, both House and Senate set a precedent by adjourning until Monday, after the Thursday test vote in the House. This automatically doomed all bills not already out of committees, and also spelled death for many measures on the calendars of both houses, as special rules went into effect.

Senate Passes Fair Trades Act
The Senate filibuster which has blocked passage of the so-called "fair trades act" sponsored by Senator Franklin Pears, and financed by out of state manufacturers and wholesalers finally broke down, and the bill sailed through the Senate to final passage. The house quickly concurred in Senate amendments, and sent it to Gov. O'Daniel, who is expected to ask Attorney General Gerald Mann for an opinion before signing or vetoing it. O'Daniel pledged his support to such a law during the campaign, but later indicated, in a speech at Houston he didn't favor it, so, as usual, observers were in a quandary as to what he might do with it.

Source of some of the pressure which has been put on in Austin for the bill was revealed as it went through, as coming from the whiskey interests. The set-up for distribution of liquor in the United States is widely different from that which existed before prohibition. Today, most liquor is distributed through wholesale drug organizations, and in Texas, much of the retailing of liquor retail drugstores. The national wholesale chains have been controlling retail prices on liquor in Texas for more than a year, by means of an agreement among themselves, under which they supply liquor retailers with a bathed in crushed strawberries, washing off the fruit with fresh milk. Madame Pompadour is said to have spent $100,000 a year for perfumery, which seems a bit extravagant.

It is rather surprising to learn that Napoleon was the greatest male user of perfumery in history, and that "in three months of 1806 he soaked up 162 bottles of eau de Cologne."

But artificial odors were frowned upon by the British parliament of 1770 which passed a law providing that "any girl, woman or widow who shall entice any man to marriage by an aid of perfume shall be subject to the same penalty as that in force against sorcery, and the marriage shall be declared void."

To prove her nerves are steady, Mrs. Corrida Davis, 85, walked a girder across a bridge at Muncie, Ind.

A youth who snatched the purse of Mrs. Richard Inkelas of Salt Lake City returned it several hours later, saying: "Here's your money, lady; I'm ashamed of myself for taking it"

The first triplets on record to join the nation's sea service are Abraham, Isaacs and Jacob Taylor, 19-yearold sons of an East Tennessee coal miner

A Mississippi man recently offered to sell to the state of Kansas a remedy for tornadoes for $500.

George Wilson of Los Angeles, unable to extinguish the flames when his car caught fire, took pictures of the burning machine and sold them to a local newspaper.

"suggested fair price" schedule at which each brand of liquor should be sold at retail. Retailers who violate this "suggested price" schedule find their supply of liquor cut off. Newspapers in the larger cities have aided the scheme, which many lawyers declare is an open violation of the Texas anti-trust laws, by refusing to accept advertisements from "cut price liquor stores which offer liquors at prices lower than the wholesalers' "suggested fair prices." In Texas, millions of dollars worth of liquor is sold through drugstores for "medicinal" purposes in dry territory, and it is amazing what an epidemic of illness prevails in the dry towns on Saturday nights. The liquor folks believe that the "fair trade act", if signed by the Governor, will enable them to control the price of liquor 100 percent, forcing "cut price" liquor stores into line or out of business, and giving the sanction of law to the present practice which many believe is outside the law.

Senators who voted for the bill on final passage included Aiken, Brownlee, Collie, Graves, Hardin, Hill, Isbell, Kelly, Lanning, Lemens, Martin, Metcalfe, Moffett, Nelson, Roberts, Shivers, Spears Stone of Galveston Sulak and Winfield.

We Introduce THRIFTANE a new, leaded quality GASOLINE in the lower-price range

... and by so doing, we step right out in front. Now, Humble Service Stations and Humble dealers give buyers in the lower-price range LEADED QUALITY at thrifty price ... We felt that the time had come when the majority of automobile engines, old as well as new, required a leaded quality gasoline; and so we put our lowest price gasoline in step with the times ... But when you buy gasoline, remember that the presence of lead is not the only criterion of quality; the basic motor fuel to which the lead is added must also meet specifications for other desirable qualities ... The new Humble Thriftane meets guaranteed quality specifications ... So, whatever the car you drive, whatever the price you pay, you will find, at Humble Service Stations and dealers a leaded gasoline for your car, for your pocketbook: Thriftane—it's good; Humble Motor Fuel—it's better; Esso—it's best ... Next time, fill up at the Humble sign!

And
THEN ANOTHER
By Fred Gipson

MEXICO, D. F. I finally give up. I flop myself down upon one of the many stone benches along the Paseo de la Reforma, one of the main thoroughfares of Mexico City. My dogs are barking, long and loud.

A man can get in that shape mighty easy here in Mexico, especially if he's a stranger like me, with all the curiosity of a kid or a pet 'coon. He'll go here, looking there, trying to see in a few days all that millions of people in centuries of time have created and accumulated here in this vast valley of fantastic beauty, until the first thing he knows he's whipped down to a nub. Then he'll begin to realize that he couldn't see it all, if he lived a thousand years. Then he'll go sit down and rest. I rest. But I still can't keep my eyes off the Paseo. And I can't keep my mind from working.

I look down the street to the tall Mexican statue of liberty. And I think: "Along this street has ridden one of the boldest and greatest of all adventurers, old Meaximilian, one time conqueror and emperor of Mexico. Likely, he was a fool, but he was an admirable one. It took a man to conquer all this. It took a woman like Carlota to give him inspiration. And it took the two of them to fill Chapulepec Castle, right up there on Grasshopper Hill, with all the fantastic luxuries and wealth it now contains."

My thinking's cut short. A little black-faced, bare-foot Indian woman comes jogging along the sidewalk. A baby is slung over her back. The baby's in a woolen serape. The serape's tied together and the baby's weight swings from the woman's forehead. The baby's eyes are bright and piercing.

Close behind the two jogs a little Indian man. He, too, leans his head into a serape. His serape is loaded with old rags and papers and banana peelings and filthy boxes, a mighty load of plunder gathered from the gutters and for who knows what purpose. His bare feet and those of the woman slap in rythm along the flagstone paving.

And I start wondering what life holds for people like those three, when a band of little Mexican and Indian boys gather out of the alleys to start a game in the street. It's a queer game, played with a hand-full of apricot seeds and lots of high-pitched argument.

Onlookers gather until half the street is filled with rowdy kids. High-speed taxis hurtle into the crowd. The crowd opens, just in time. The taxis blare through. The crowd closes. The game goes on. The approaching taxis never check their speed, merely blare for right-of-way. The kids, unmoved by the approaching death, never give more than an inch of clearance. The arguments never cease.

A little old man comes pacing along with a whole disjointed bed frame piled atop his head. Sometimes he reaches up with one hand to balance his load, when the crowds are too thick. Otherwise, his arms hang slack. Two native, blanket-wrapped, women stroll along, chattering gaily, all unconcerned about the huge baskets of fruits and vegetables balanced atop their heads. A bicyclist pedals along the street, dodging in and out among the whizzing taxis. On his head is a wire frame of bird cages. The cages are filled with gaily-colored birds. The birds are singing.

From the heaped basket of a sweet-bread peddler a sugared doughnut drops to the payment, starts rolling out into the street. A ragged kid and a cur dog give chase. Taxi horns blare. The doughnut spins to a stop. The kid reaches for it. The dog snatches it out of his reach, wheels and makes for the curb, swallowing the morsel in one gulp. The kid stands in the middle of the street and heaps shrill insults upon the mangy robber. The kid doesn't cry.

The bells in a 200-year-old cathedral chime out. And women, heads covered in black lace, slip through iron-grill doors out into the street and walk toward mass.

And I sit there on the old stone bench on the Paseo de la Reforma and let the sights come to me. And I think to myself that sometimes a man can accomplish just as much sitting and resting his dogs as he can running in fast wide circles. And I know it's a lot less strain on his constitution.

Nobody's Business

Mann Gives Opinion

The opinion of Attorney General Mann on the road bond indebtedness bill, which was in conference over the weekend, was a severe setback to the group of county judges who have been seeking to "divide up" in cash the surplus in the present bond retirement fund. Mann held the present surplus in that fund created by allocation of one cent of the gasoline tax to retire bonds on highways which have become part of the State road system, is a trust fund, and cannot be diverted to other uses by the Legislature. In future, the surplus can be used to retire "dead horse" county lateral road bonds, he held, but the strong lobby which backed the original county judges bill was decidedly more interested in dividing up the cash surplus now in the fund than in getting something several years in the future. Mann held the money would have to be used in reimbursing the counties for the deficit created on approved State highway bonds in the years before the fund was able to pay these charges in full, before any of it could be diverted to county lateral road bond purposes. Final form of the bill, at this writing, was uncertain until adoption of the conference report.

Minority Saved State Ince Before

The action of the minority in the House in blocking the constitutional amendment for a sales tax has good precedent in Texas legislative history. On several occasions small groups have resisted pressure for changes in the Constitution, in the face of severe criticism. Invariably, they have seen their action vindicated and approved by the people. The most recent example was when a $200,000,000 State bond issue for road building was proposed, during the Sterling administration. Less than 60 House members blocked it. Today, Texas is virtually without bonded debt (except for a small balance on the bread bonds) while many neighboring States are burdened with millions of dollars of outstanding bonds, usually issued for highway purposes. And State highway building in Texas has gone forward satisfactorily, paying its way out of current gasoline tax receipts, and furnishing employment to thousands during the bitter depression years.

If Texas is going into the pension business on the grand scale indicated by passage of the liberalized pension law, a sales tax may be necessary to pay it. But it probably will be imposed by statute, not by constitutional amendment.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties. BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep. So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders. You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING!
