Beta Sigma Phi held an All-Male style show on Thursday, April 23rd.

Thanks to the generosity of those who bought tickets, and to those who came to the show, Beta Sigma Phi was able to donate $335.00 of the Academic Excellence Scholarship Fund at Eldorado High School.

We would especially like to recognize Cathy Niblet for the use of all the beautiful stage decorations and flower arrangements, which she graciously donated. Also, thanks to Foxworth-Galbraith Lumber Co. for the Wooden Archway we used for our models to walk through.

Thanks to Stacy Reeves for entertaining us with her wonderful talent and singing throughout the evening. Thanks to Nancy Lester, our fashion Commentator, who made the show even more fun with her hilarious descriptions of our models and their outfits.

And last, but certainly not least, to all the guys who volunteered their time and endured all the clothes, shoes and makeup (plus a little ribbing from friends) to help a worthy cause - We say: "You're the Greatest!"

Since some of our models wish to remain anonymous, we are listing their stage names only (as they appeared that night): Hotchie De Totchie, Roxie Wonders, Collie Mae Cargile, Potsmia La Flor, Alice Chandle, FiFi La Peu, Flossie Yu Teeth, Bambi La Moore, Bubbles La Boom, Tootsie Trample, Gidget Garbo, GiGi Jones, Poopsie La Boob, Giggles Galore, Mavis Marvel, Tammie Tossle, Ursula Underalls, Calvin Crime, and finally our Bride and Bridesmaid.

Again, thanks to all who participated, and maybe there will be more of these in the years to come!

Rabies Update

According to Dr. William Edmiston, this week has been a slow week as far as rabies is concerned. "We only had one case reported last week, and that was a Bobcat east of town," stated Dr. Edmiston.

"Rabies in wildlife is continuing to grow, and this increases the need to vaccinate domestic animals, especially dogs and cats."

Schleicher County is planning to host a Rabies Vaccination Clinic in the near future. Dates will be announced in next week's issue of The Eldorado Success.

National Day Of Prayer

On Thursday, May 7, 1992, millions of Americans will join in a brief period of prayer for the moral rebirth of America. Christians of many denominations or of no denomination will meet at the Memorial Building for a brief time of prayer for our country. Among the participating ministers are David Templeton, leader of the prayer service, Ken Orwell, Paul Lynn, and Hawley Wolfe.

The movement for a National Day of Prayer for America is being spearheaded by Dr. Donald E. Wildmon of Tupelo, Mississippi, founder and president of the American Family Association. Other notables on the national committee include Bill Bright, President of Campus Crusade for Christ, Congressman Bob McEwen of Ohio, Episcopal Bishop William Wantland of Eau Claire, Wisconsin, Dr. D. James Kennedy of Coral Ridge Presbyterian Church in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, and Dr. G. Raymond Carlson, General

Superintendent of the Assemblies of God.

The theme for the National Day of prayer for Moral Rebirth of America is II Chronicles 7:14 "If My people, who are called by My name, shall humble themselves and pray, and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land." The decision will forgive their sin, and will help to call for the day of prayer stems from the widespread social chaos in our country as indicated by drugs, pornography, gangs, alcohol, child abuse, teen pregnancy, violent crime, and other disabling behaviors.

If you would like to join millions of Americans in repentance and in asking for a moral rebirth for America, please come and pray with us on Thursday, May 7, from 12:20-12:40 p.m. in the Memorial Building, or covenant to pray wherever you might be at that time.

Torres Shot

Pete Torres was shot about 6:00, on Saturday, April 25th, while feeding his cows and goats on his land east of town. He was facing due east, tying up his dog, when he heard a shot and felt it hit him behind neck.

"He heard three or four more shots and went to his pickup and honked horn so whoever was shooting would quit," stated Pete's son, Albert. "He got into his pickup and drove in to town. He stopped once to open the gate and fell, bruising his cheek. After laying there a few minutes, he made it back to pickup and drove to town. he was having trouble seeing, so he decided to drive to the Sheriff's department to have them take him to the hospital. After arriving at the Sheriff's department, he decided to go on to the hospital because there were no cars in front."

Pete was transferred to San Angelo, with a broken jaw, and a bullet behind jaw. The doctors thought the bullet had hit the main artery in his neck, so they did emergency surgery from 10:00 p.m.-1:00 a.m.

His jaw was repaired and wired, but the bullet will remain in the jaw. "The doctor's said that it would a lot more trouble to take the bullet out, and that it wouldn't hurt to leave it in, so they left it in," stated Albert.

"We are going to ask the city to move the shooting range and to begin prosecuting offenders, to maybe keep future accidents from happening. My dad lost a horse several years ago the same way, from a stray bullet."

"The shooting was an accident, and we're not mad at anybody, but we want something done about the shooting range to keep this from happening again."

Mr. Torres has returned home from the hospital and is on the road to recovery.

the Agape Assembly of God Church sanctuary located at 502 E. Warner Avenue.

"Evening and morning and at noon will I pray and cry loud and He shall hear my voice." Psalm 55:17.

Water Rights

There is no doubt that a management plan needs to be implemented over the Edwards Aquifer. However, as stated last week in this newspaper, the ruling by the Texas Water Commission over the Edwards Aquifer also affects every aquifer in the State of Texas. The following discussion of water rights is taken from a Texas Water Commission interoffice memorandum:

1. Water in an underground stream is state water.

Texas courts have followed the English common law doctrine of "absolute ownership" of groundwater by the owner of the land surface. Houston and T.C. Ry. Co. v. East, 98 Tex. 146, 81 S.W. 279 (1904). This doctrine provides that the surface owner may withdraw groundwater from beneath the land for use without limitation as long as it is for a beneficial purpose and is without waste. Generally, a person withdrawing groundwater bears no responsibility to neighboring owners for any harmful effects resulting from withdrawal (i.e., no correlative rights exist among the groundwater users).

Under Texas law, all water that is below the surface of the land is presumed to be percolating groundwater, which is owned by the landowner, unless and until it is established that such water is an underground stream or is the

Short, 273 S.W. 785, 787 (Tex. 1925) and include:

*Known and well-defined boundaries which contain the flow of the water;

*A known and well-defined source of water;

*A flow or movement of the water (i.e., current) in a known direction;

*A known destination for the flow of the water; and

*Is of sufficient volume or magnitude (i.e., utility), to be put to beneficial use. See, also, Pecos County WCID No. 1 supra, at 506, underflow of a surface stream. Pecos County WCID No. 1 v. Williams, 271 S.W. 2d 503, 506 (Tex. Civ. App. - El Paso 1954, writ ref'd n.r.e.); Texas Co. v. Burkett, 117 Tex. 16, 296 S.W. 273, 278 (1927); Bartley v. Sone, 527 S.W. 2d 754, 760 (Tex. Civ. App. - San Antonio 1974, writ ref'd n.r.e.). Water that is determined to be flowing in a designated underground stream, is, however, governed by surface water law and is subject to the prior appropriation doctrine. Id.

Texas caselaw provides that an underground stream is state water if it has the same characteristics of a surface watercourse. A.H. Denis, III, et al. v. Kickapoo Land Co., et al., 771 S.W. 2d 235, 236-237 (Tex. App. - Austin 1989, writ denied). Those characteristics are described by the Texas Supreme Court in Hoeffs v.

I would like to share this letter with the community because kit was not the effort of one or two to make the blood drive work. It was the whole community.

Dear Sherry,

Just a note to thank you for hosting the blood drive for the Eldorado Community on Tuesday, April 21, 1992. Your support of this vital community service program is very much appreciated - not only by United Services, but by the many people who need blood each and every day.

As you may already know, we interviewed a total of 89 people and were able to draw 65 units of blood. Because we are able to process each unit into various components this blood is already on its way to helping as many as 195 patients on the road to recovery. That's quite an accomplishment!!

On behalf of all of us here at United Blood Services, especially those staff members who had the pleasure of working at the drive, please pass our gratitude for the warm welcome we received. You made our job a pleasure. We're looking forward to seeing you all again in the near future.

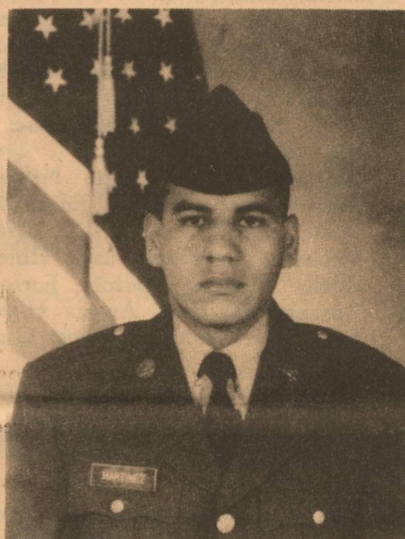

Once again, thanks for your help and please extend our heartfelt thanks to all the generous individuals who gave the "Gift of Life": Daniel Secker (Midland), Rosa Hill, Jana Sterling, Wilma Day, Kenneth Phillips, Nancy Jenkins, Sylvia Sanchez, Lewis Whitten, Dannelle Dunagan, Cindy Stevenson, Sandra Clark, William Hodges, Cindy Cawley, Ricky Gibson, Gary Smith, Catherine

Laugh and Live

In his book, THE COMING ECONOMIC EARTHQUAKE, author Larry Burkett tells of some recent Government spending...

- $49 million for a rock and roll museum
- $500,000 to study the effects of cigarette smoking on dogs
- $84,000 to study why people fall in love
- $50,000 to prove that sheepdogs protect sheep
- $46,000 to determine how long it takes to cook breakfast eggs
- $219,592 to teach college students how to watch T.V.
- $2,500 to investigate the causes of rudeness, lying, and cheating on tennis courts
- $19 million to discover whether belching cows and other livestock harms the ozone
- $107,000 to study the mating habits of Japanese quail

I've said it before, and I'll say it again...OUR GOVERNMENT IS WAY, WAY, WAY OUT OF CONTROL.

Democrats will blame Republicans and Republicans will blame Democrats. Both sides are right!!! There is enough blame for everyone.

The cry to "throw the bums out" is being heard throughout the land. We have been lied to by both parties.

Our first President was named George. George said that he could not tell a lie. Our current President George doesn't seem to have quite that good of a record.

Ode to the Education President

The Education President is what he said he'd be
He would educate our children--set their intellects free.

From the golf courses of Virginia and his fishing boat in Maine
While hunting ducks and turkeys he kept his word again.

He did exactly what he said, IT WASN'T JUST QUOTES AND QUIPS.
Old George the Education Prez taught us to READ HIS LIPS.

Private Applicators Training Held

25 individuals were conducted in a Private Applicators Training and Testing session by Jerry Swift, Extension Agent and Eddie Sosa, Texas Dept. of Agriculture, Wednesday, April 15.

These individuals were up grading their Certified Private Applicator Licenses or receiving training and testing for their 1st Private Applicator License.

After receiving and passing (which all 25 did pass their test) the test, they will now have Licensed Private Applicators License.

With this type of license you can purchase and apply restricted use and state-limited-use pesticides yourself.

You can purchase the chemical and supervise the application of the pesticide. By state regulations you are not required to be physically present at the time and place of a pesticide application. However, you must be available when and if needed.

You are required to obtain 15 TDA-approved continuing education credits (CEUs) to keep your license current. Of the 15 CEUs earned 2 credits must be in labs and regulations and 1 credit in integrated pest management. The 15 CEUs earned allows the license holder to purchase and apply restricted-use and state limited-use pesticides for the next five years. However, during that five year period and additional 15 CEUs must be obtained.

I would be honored to have your vote in the upcoming school board election.

Health News

by Dr. Rico Forlano

In a recent issue of the British Medical Journal it was reported that death rates from heart attacks could be cut by up to 66% by being treated with magnesium therapy. The reason this probably helps is because many people that die from heart attacks have arrhythmias.

An arrhythmia is an irregular heart beat. It is a well known medical fact that people who are deficient in magnesium experience arrhythmias.

A study done at the University of Massachusetts Medical School showed that when patients were given magnesium it quieted their arrhythmias down.

Magnesium therapy is a common heart attack treatment in Israel medical centers and is being tried internationally now. Magnesium is an inexpensive mineral supplement, and does not have any known side effects. You do not need a prescription for magnesium but you should consult your doctor before taking it.

Teacher Appreciation Week

Emphasizing the impact of teachers on the lives of children, Texas PTA is joining National PTA in observing National PTA Teacher Appreciation Week, May 3-9.

Second only to parents, teachers have the opportunity to influence children and to make a difference in their lives in the arenas of social and educational developments said Shirley Igo, Texas PTA president. "The dedication and expertise of Texas teachers is the backbone of our educational system."

"Citing the importance of the classroom environment in setting the tone for student achievement, encouraging positive self-esteem, and promoting the desire for education, Igo pointed to teachers as chief facilitators in providing that environment.

"The endless amount of patience, understanding and kindness exhibited in classrooms each day is only a fraction of the dedication shown by teachers as they mold young minds into doctors, scientists, artists, engineers, and astronauts. And for this success, we have our teachers to thank"

Following are ideas not only to help celebrate National PTA Teacher Appreciation Week, May 3-9, but also to help show teachers appreciate everyday.

*Simply tell the teacher

Thank you for s job well-done.

*Have students create a booklet of personal thank-you notes to the teacher.

*Provide teachers with corsages during National PTA Teacher Appreciation Week.

*Give the teacher a certificate to a bookstore.

*Give teachers a special luncheon away from school.

*Plant a tree or flower in honor of a teacher.

*Give teachers a survival kit filled with items such as: post-it notes, red pens, mints, pencils, adhesive bandages, Lifesavers, felt-tip markers, tissues, washcloths, fruit, etc.

*Ask local businesses to help show appreciation to teachers by "adopting" a teacher for the week and displaying students' work around the teacher's photo.

*Honor teaching as a career by presenting a scholarship to a high school senior who is planning to pursue a career in teaching.

As the largest child-advocacy organization in the state and in the nation, PTA is committed to developing between educators and the general public united effort to secure for all children and with the highest advantages in physical, mental, social, and spiritual education.

Senior Ambassadors

The First Baptist Church Senior Ambassadors met on Monday, April 27, 1992 for a Mrs. Wilkes Boarding House dinner. Those making the last tour, ate at Mrs. Wilkes Boarding House in Savannah, and planned the meal, like Mrs. Wilkes served. Everyone was seated around a large table, and bowls of food were passed "boarding house style."

Mary Etta Stricklan was Mrs. Wilkes, and she was assisted by the group, and everyone brought food. Banana Pudding was served for dessert.

There were 33 in attendance with 3 visitors, Hazel King of Ft. Worth, sister of Opal Parks; and William and Adilene Palmer, of Roanok, La., brother to Corine Hext and Jerry Sanders.

After the delicious meal, Mary Barton Robinson showed slides of the tour.

Minutes were read by Dana Owens after Leon Stricklan called the group to order.

Reports were given and some discussion of the trip took place. The pictures were beautiful and enjoyed by all.

Mohair Conference Set

When the International Mohair Conference is held in San Antonio at the Hyatt Regency Hotel on June 7-10, the key participants will be members of the International Mohair Association and the basis of this conference, a world-wide organization created in 1974 to promote the interests of its membership and of their manufactured mohair products.

The organization, with its headquarters in Ilkely, West Yorkshire, England, is headed by a Texas rancher-businessman, James R. "Bob" Childress of Abilene. Childress, who has ranching interests in several West Texas counties, is formerly a resident of Ozona.

Vice-chairmen of the organization are M.C. Grobler of South Africa and Peter Halstead of Great Britain.

Membership is widespread, and includes mohair producers in the United States, Turkey, South Africa, Lesotho, Argentina, Australia and New Zealand, and manufacturers and processors in Ireland, France, Hong Kong, India, Italy, Japan, Germany, Holland, Rorea, Lesotho, Spain, Taiwan, the United Kingdom, South Africa and the U.S.

The International Mohair Association's programs are financed through membership fees, and its annual budget generally approaches $1 million U.S.

One of its most successful promotional programs in Europe and the Far East has been the acceptance of the certified Mohair mark, which is registered internationally. Various kinds of woven and adhesive labels and hang tags for clothing feature the IMA logo and signify that that products contain a guaranteed amount of mohair fiber.

Other programs include displaying mohair products at large international exhibitions in Milan, Florence, Frankfurt, Brussels and Tokyo.

Childress said the San Antonio conference would bring together most of the world's major mohair producers, processors and manufacturers. The IMA will conduct its annual meeting in conjunction with the conference, he said. Manufacturers will give reports on the different phases of mohair products being produced around the world. In addition, growers from around the world will give reports on current and future production and stockpiles.

Growers are encouraged to attend. Registration is $50, or $100 per couple. The registration fee includes an opening day reception, rodeo, lunch buffet, gala dinner and final party. For additional conference information, registration forms and hotel reservations, contact the Mohair Council of America office, P.O. Box 5337, San Angelo, Texas 76902, or phone (915) 655-3161 before May 1.

Golf Course Good For Community

by Mabel Freitag

Those who are not golfers and do not have family members who are golfers may not have any idea how valuable our County Golf Course is - both to the members and to Eldorado.

The Eldorado Golf Club puts on eight scheduled tournaments every year. Six of those are two day tournaments, two are one day tournaments. Each of those tournaments are attended by 70-75 local and out of town people who pay their entry fees, and have a wonderful time playing golf. Two of Eldorado Golf Club's tournaments include a dinner at one of our restaurants. In addition, Ethicon and Pave Paws each host two one day tournaments. Most of the players in those four tournaments are out of town people.

Every week, the Golf Course has seven or eight players from surrounding communities (San Angelo, Mertzon, Sonora, etc.) that come to play on weekdays. On weekends, many people from Eldorado and other towns come to play.

To Eldorado, this means that even if each person spends only $10.00 while in our town, either getting a coke, buying breakfast at one of our restaurants, or buying a little gas at a station, over $12,000.00 in revenue is brought in. If they come back and eat lunch or stay the night, even more money is spent - here in Eldorado.

One of Eldorado Golf Club's policies is to buy all the food and drinks for their tournament buffets in Eldorado from our local merchants.

One dollar spent in our town circulates a minimum of three times before leaving, according to economists. That means, at the very least, the Eldorado Golf Club brings in approximately $36,000 in buying power to our local businesses, not including any tournament entry fees!

It has always been my feeling, that if our young folks participate in Jr. Rodeo Club, 4-H, FFA, Golf and all the other sports activities which are offered in our community, there will be no time for them to get on the wrong path of life.

Every week, we have more and more of our youth enjoying our golf course, and remember citizens of Eldorado and Schleicher County, our young folks are the one who are going to make our community grow and prosper in the future.

Chamber Tennis Tournament

A Matter Of Prespective

by Jim Morriss, General Manager Texas Electric Cooperatives

We have an unwritten policy in this country which says, stated succinctly and inn oversimplified terms, "Every consumer of electricity shall be subsidized to some extent." The policy has never been articulated in those works, but it has been in place for a very long time.

The extent of the subsidy is not specified because of the nature of the subsidy has been determined on a philosophic rather than economic basis. The amount of the subsidy per consumer is an incidental fall-out figure which varies according to the philosophy applied to the three different segments of the electric utility industry: investor-owned power companies, municipally owned utilities, and consumer-owned electric cooperatives.

The philosophies (justifications) involved are these (again, oversimplified). The electric industry is very "capital-intensive," which is corporate economic lingo for "it requires a lot of money." It also is very long-term, which means it takes a long time to pay for the investment in facilities. Knowing that, the U.S. Congress has seen fit to facilitate the provision of essential electric service to all. That has been done through special consideration of the circumstances in which the service is rendered.

For investor-owned companies, consideration (subsidy) has been in the form of investment tax credits and accelerated depreciation of facilities, for example. Those have been lessened or canceled in recent tax law changes. One that remains is the authority to charge customers for income taxes which the companies may retain instead of remitting to the Treasury. The current calculated advantage of such deferred income taxes represented $5.2 billion of interest-free capital. It's revenue forgone to the Treasury. It's a subsidy. If all of the very high costs of providing electric service and keeping investors interested were paid through rates, consumers would not be very happy.

Municipal systems raise needed capital through the sale of tax-exempt bonds which bear a lower interest rate because the yields are tax-free to the investors; thereby, the cost of capital is much lower for the cities. The taxes not paid by investors in such bonds are revenue foregone to the Treasury and amounts to $857 million on outstanding bonds. It's a subsidy. Since municipal systems are publicly-owned and any utility margins are used for public purposes in the same community, the special finance mechanism is justified.

Electric cooperatives are eligible to borrow capital through insured or guaranteed government loans at below-market rates of interest. Not all loans are funded from the private money market, but when that's necessary, the government, through the Federal Financing Bank, may pay more to acquire the funds than the current 5 percent interest cooperatives pay on the loans. The current calculation of that difference on outstanding loans, plus other expenses of the Rural Electrification Administration, amounts to $542 million. It's a subsidy. The provision of electric service in primarily rural areas costs more because of sparse population. The availability of capital at below-market rates has made it possible to electrify the rural areas of America through nonprofit cooperatives.

Divide the amounts mentioned above by the number of consumers served by each segment of the industry and you get these averages: Subsidy per consumer for municipals is $93; for investor-owned power companies, $62; for electric cooperatives, $42.

When considering subsidies, perspective is important.

Senior Ambassador Tour of the Old South

We were out before sunrise, so everyone sighed,
"We're sure out early for this long ride."
It began in Eldorado for a Southbound tour,
The day to Beaumont was fun to endure.
The night in Motel Six, and dinner with Denny,
Seems everyone ate until they had plenty.
Faye met a friend - Sima was her name,
But seven a.m. leaving put an end to their game
On to New Orleans, after we crossed the river,
Calcasieu Lake at Lake Charles, a port city giver,
Rice fields, then swamps for miles, then over Whiskey Bay,
Saw Lake Ponchartrain and Super Dome, along the way.
The Mississippi River was nine Knot speed, and is 250 feet deep,
And number one, for tonnage ships, a record they try to keep.
The French Quarter, and Jackson Square, eleven feet above the sea,
The thirteen by six block area has music, iron works and Bourbon St., all for a fee.
The Gray line bus took us around, and stopped at the cemetery,
Where folks who die are put in vaults, to sack up a year later, and bury.
There's a dual tree, and a man-made fill, where $200,000,000 homes are built,
The fill was dredged from Lake Ponchartrain, and Mississippi River silt.
The Mississippi travels 2340 miles through 37 states,
Before it gets to New Orleans, which acts as a water gate.
Lake Ponchartrain is 40 by 26 miles square, and only 11 to 15 feet deep,
But the Causeway Bridge is the longest over water, a record it probably can't keep.
It rains a lot in New Orleans, and the drainage system must work,
With 20 pumping stations and 89 pumps, they move water like dirt.
Crossed Ponchartrain on to Biloxi, and the rest stop in Mississippi was nestled in the Pines,
Free coffee, beautiful furniture, and a staircase that winds.
Bay St. Louis and the beautiful coast along the gulf of Mexico,
The Beavoir House was beautiful, and the museum was below.
Jefferson Davis lived there, and wrote to make a book,
He was put in jail when he shouldn't be, because they thought he was a crook.
The Bellingrath Gardens at Mobile was a sight of beauty indeed,
We walked and took pictures of flowers, wishing pictures could go to seed.
We checked in at Econo, where they had brownies and punch for us,
Then some of us ate seafood at Pier Four, out on the Gulf.
We woke up early to move out at seven-forty-five,
After a free buffet breakfast to keep us all alive.
We didn't know we had a magician in our group of twenty folk,
But when Winnie Helen got her panty hose, we knew it was no joke.
We drove to the U.S.S. Alabama, where we went up to the top,
Through porthole doors and narrow passes, where poor sailors had to mop.
I never knew until today that there were Marines aboard a Naval Ship,
There were 85 in number, with three officers, for every trip.
We saw ropes and flags, and even a movie in the making,
We saw burned out rubble and refuse that left us all just quaking.
We moved on to see the Drum, a submarine that came above,
We saw their beds, their work and play, and torpedoes show no love.
There were mines and tanks, and an old B-52,
A P-51 Mustang and helicopters, too.
There was a bridge built out across Pensacola Bay,
We crossed and had a picnic, and saw Ft. Pickens on the way,
Gulf Island had an old Bridge made into the longest fishing pier,
And there were fishermen out there with a porta-pottie near.
We left Pensacola Beach and crossed the Cumbia Bay,
On to Tallahassee before the end of day.
We stayed in Motel Six, across from the Kettles,
The street was awfully busy; they really pushed the pedals.
Jody, Ken and the little girls came from Panama City,
Jody sang and Katherine slept, after chairs were moved by our committee.
Up early to eat at Kettles, and on the road by eight,
Going today to St. Augustine, the oldest city in the state,
Everyone rode the train around St. Augustine town,
Some saw Ripley, some museums, but all saw old things that abound.
The oldest home, school house and store,
the Flagler college and much, much more.
Lions guard the bridge we cross over the Anastasia Isle,
Where we stayed at Howard Johnson's on the beach for awhile.
Some walked the beach while others rested,
We leave late in the morning, though it wasn't requested.
A walk on the beach at sunrise, and then we are on our way again,
With pictures of the beach, lighthouse, pelicans, gulls, and shells in hand.
We drove to Savannah, Georgia by way of Jacksonville,
A lunch stop at McDonalds, where no one ate a fill.
Oglethorpe came to settle Savannah in 1733,
He had 120 settlers, and Indians were all they could see.
Today Savannah is still an old town, with water front walk,
And a 100,000 buildings are being restored, so all the tourists can gawk.
The little sigh's on the highways in Georgia say, "Keep Georgia peachy clean,"
Do you understand what "peachy clean" can mean?
The Savannah River has a new bridge, like San Francisco's Golden Gate,
There are ships, barges, and tug boats, all going under, and no one must wait.

Green Announces Candidacy

To the citizens, parents and taxpayers of Schleicher Co. I.S.D.:

I would like to inform you of my desire to be re-elected to the Board of Trustees of Schleicher County I.S.D. in the election to be held this Saturday, May 2. I wanted to give you some information concerning who I am, some things that have been accomplished in our school system in the last few years and some goals I would like to see achieved in the future.

First of all, I am the mother of four daughters, Cari, Lesli, Amy, and Betsy, who will range in age from high school to kindergarten next school year. My husband, Carrol Green, is the District Conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service in Schleicher Co. I have a Bachelor of Science in Education degree in speech pathology and audiology and a certification to teach speech therapy and special education. Menard Special Education Cooperative is my current employer where I serve in the capacity of Speech and Language Pathologist for Eldorado, Menard, Junction and Rocksprings. For the past seven years, I have served on our local school board and am presently the vice-president of the board. Board members are required by the state to get twenty hours of board training the first year in office and six hours for each additional year of service thereafter. Currently, I have received a total of 104 board training hours, I have attended regional, state and national school board conventions in an effort to keep abreast of current research, methods, techniques and ideas in the field of education.

I am proud to have played a small role in the excellence SCISD has achieved in education. This attainment of excellence is reflected in our steadily increasing TAAS and achievement test scores, in the academic recognition our campuses have received at the state level and in being chosen for the Partnership Initiative Program. Our school system has reached a healthy balance of academics and of extracurricular activities. Teachers continue to be ahead in their fields in the area of professional growth and expectations for student achievement. Technology plays an important part in instruction on all three campuses as seen in the Writing To Read program in elementary and the IITG physical science program being used in high school (to cite only a couple of examples) I could write pages telling about all of the accomplishments our school system has made, but in the interest of space and time I will try to contain it to a few remarks!

A few goals I would like to see accomplishment within our school system in the future are:

1. More support for the Partnership Initiative Program. We have an opportunity to be front runner in education in Texas, and perhaps in the nation. Our administrators and teachers need to be given the support and the freedom to be innovative, to try new methods and ideas, to "reach for the stars." When we become satisfied and complacent about the quality of education, we will become stagnant.

2. More emphasis in educating our younger children in an effort to insure success in learning, keep all children in school until graduation and equip each student to be a productive member of society. This can be achieved in part by having a voluntary integrated, early childhood/pre-kindergarten program in which three, four and five-year-olds not ready for kindergarten would interact throughout the day in activities designed to develop more language, social, listening, thinking and motor skills to enable them to be more successful when they begin kindergarten and first grade. Another strategy for this goal would be using the Early Prevention of School Failure Program which screens children to discover each child's strengths and weaknesses at the beginning of kindergarten and gives teachers and parents suggestions on how to teach to the strengths and remediate the weaknesses of each child.

3. More parental involvement in the education of their children and more use of home liaison personnel. I would like to see classes offered at the school and in the homes that would equip parents to help their children in whatever areas may need extra help. A child has to learn things in a variety of ways and in a variety of contexts before actual learning takes place and "sticks". Parents can be the best teachers of their own children.

4. Expansion of site-based management techniques. This is a context that allows a group comprised of teachers, parents and administrators to problem-solve, set campus goals, etc. instead of administrators or school boards making all decisions without much input from teachers and parents. SCISD has already used this technique very successfully in a number of ways.

5. Continue to improve math programs at all levels. Great strides have been made in this area with the adoption of the Saxon Math program in the elementary school and with the use of Addison-Wesley math program in the middle school. I would like for our math teachers to consider using the Saxon system from kindergarten through twelfth grade to insure continuity of skills taught at each level.

6. Collaborative team approach in helping children with special needs. I would like to see teachers, parents, principals, diagnostician, resource teachers, speech therapist, physical therapist and whomever else would be helpful communicating and meeting together on a regular basis to determine what the best course of action would be to insure that each child with special needs could reach their fullest potential.

7. Expansion of vocational programs. Each student needs to graduate from Eldorado High School with the skills needed to enter the job market successfully. I would like to see our vocational program expand its curriculum to offer training in a variety of job-related skills.

The last issue that I feel the need to address is that of building a new gym and adding on to the existing cafeteria. It was never the intent of the school board to raise taxes to build a new gym. After a careful study and presentation of the facts and needs, it was decided that more cafeteria space was needed to feed our increasing number of students in a more efficient manner and that additional gym space was needed for the physical education program so that there would not have to be three classes of P.E. taking place in one gym at one time. If we can do this by using funds from the fund balance and lease-purchase money from the state, without raising taxes, then it is my opinion that we proceed as planned. If this is not possible, then I would like to let the voters and taxpayers decide by voting on a bond issue to pay for this proposed building program.

I respectfully ask for your vote for school board trustee so that I may continue to serve the children, the parents, the teachers and the taxpayers of Schleicher County.

Savannah River used to be only eight feet deep, today dredged out to 38 feet. One ship comes in that is 15 stories high and five football fields long, on her regular beat.

The waving girl is memorialized because she really cared, She waved for forty-five years, with her dog, and was never scared. Balance rocks in ships were carried to keep balance right, And were unloaded in the river, when the ship had made its flight, So they were dredged out of the river, and made into a street, That's why it is so bumpy and hard on old tired feet. We took a Gray Line in Savannah to be guided around the town, We saw earthquake rods and dolphin downspouts, and iron fence curling round.

The First African Baptist congregation began in 1788, The church had a basement underneath, unusual in the state, In 1982, a renovation needed to be made, Digging underneath the basement, a tunnel was found, dug with a spade. It probably had hidden many slaves in days gone by, When one thing about it, it could bring tears to the eye. There are 24 squares in Savannah, the way the town was laid out,

Each square for community living, livestock, and protection from fighting, no doubt.

We ate lunch at Mrs. Wilkes, a restaurant served family style, With twelve around each table, and food to last a while. We had chicken, rice and potatoes, Macaroni, beets and green beans, turnips with greens, and a bowl of stew, Sweet potatoes, cabbage and corn bread, gravy, limas, with tomatoes and cucumbers, too.

For dessert we had banana pudding and lemon pie, with all the tea we could drink, When we got up, we nearly collapsed - that meal could push one over the brink.

We crossed over Savannah Bridge and into South Carolina state, We went to Middleton Place Gardens, a long walk some could not make. We saw swans swimming on the Lake, and eating from a feeder where azaleas bloom,

An old Mother Swan was setting on a nest: to go near would seal one's doom.

The gardens are the oldest known, landscaped in 1741, Along the Ashley River huge oaks reach up toward the sun. We soon arrived in Charleston, S.C., in good old lazy Days Inn, For a good night's rest from walking, to start over tomorrow again.

We took a carriage ride in Charleston, and saw a lot of the town, They not only have hurricanes, but 400 earthquakes have been round. Earthquake rods, seen all about, actually screw the house back together, We rode to Battery Park behind two mules, in very cloudy weather. It took two carriages to carry twenty, the mules were Melony, Scarlet, Melba, and Rus.

We took pictures, asked questions and looked, while Lisa and David talked to us.

The old slave market place of days gone by, is still a market today, Salespeople come early, make sales through the hours, and then move on the way.

Some houses have porches, but out on the side, while gardens are hid in the back, And if one isn't careful as he walks along, he'll step in a Hugo crack.

Some several stories, only one room wide, two rooms to the floor, they say, But some are real mansions, all old and fixed up, with hitching posts by the way.

Charleston "polishes" the lawns at least twice a week, and all the brass must shine, There plenty of places, when looking for food, for twenty people to dine.

A schooner was waiting for us to go sailing, out on the Cooper Bay, Rain could not stop us, it started then stopped, as we went right on our way.

We saw two freighters loading, and old U.S.S. Yorktown, a Naval ship, Tender, come in, There were crab pots and buoys, the retired Ingham, dolphins and gulls as our friends.

Some rode a trolley round about town where the guide said Hugo was strong, It was 1989 Hugo blew through and put water 5 feet deep, all in places wrong.

Eighty-five percent of all roofs were ruined, an dolphins blew over the Walls, A new slate roof, unbelievable it is, costs $70,000.00 put on, They told us the paint, a lso costly, is damaged in four years and gone.

We crossed Savannah River from S.C. to Georgia state, And later, Chatahoochie River, to Alabama, Georgia's mate. The Tuskegee Institute founded in 1881,

On 1500 acres with 160 buildings, by Booker T. Washington. Booker was once a slave who saw the black man's need, So he called for George Washington Carver, in 1896, to head the Ag. Department seed.

Carver was an orphan baby at the age of two weeks, taken by the Carver's, George was his name,

He had desire to help his brothers, and for them he made himself great fame. Carver made 300 extractions from the lowly peanut, and 175 from the sweet potato,

He made paint out of clay, Marble from wood, and studied the pretty tomato.

The Oaks was the hoe of Booker T., and stands today on the grounds, We saw Negro cloth, Negro shoes, and saw the film, as we made the rounds. In Montgomery, Alabama, for the night in Motel Six,

Up early, breakfast, and on the road, with the crowd to mix. Leon drove all day to Vicksburg, to visit the old courthouse museum, And Rowdy expected us to have catfish dinner with him.

We checked in at Hampton Inn for the night, Then went to a melodrama, Gold in the Hills, quite a sight. A complimentary breakfast at Hampton Inn was our next morning treat, Then out to Vicksburg National Military Park, our guide for two hours, to meet.

We saw a film, stopped and prowled around, Then rode on our bus all over the grounds.

We heard about the Wisconsin "Yankee Buzzard," old Abe, We saw where Thayer's Approach dug to make a raid. We walked on Cairo, and saw that ship, sunk in 1882,

Most of it is still original, just a few big boards were new. We saw the Union cemetery with 17,000 graves, with many unknown, The Federal Park is 1800 acres, where all the battles are shown.

On to Tyler early, where Davises met a cousin, Ann, But they were back by nine o'clock to get all the sleep they can. At 8:00 a.m., the morning of the twelfth traveling day,

Everyone was out early, on the homeward way, Lunch was eaten in Waco, a we traveled the Bluebonnet trail, The total mileage came to 3206, when we got home to piles of mail.

We've seen lots and lots of swamps and water and lots of pretty trees, We've seen rivers, streams, ocean and bays, and felt the Atlantic breeze. We've been bitten by sand-gnats, and seen pelicans and cornerind fly,

We've seen azaleas, red clover and bluebonnets, almost knee high, We've laughed, played and prayed together this week,

We saw red sand, orchards and dogwood at it's peak, If people would grow and bloom with the blessing of God, when it rains in their life,

There would be more love and fellowship and a lot less hate and strife. We are home from our trip, and a good one it was. We enjoyed one day at a time.

So when someone asks, "How was the trip?" Just say, "Everything turned out just fine."

Twelve days are over, the tour is done, And we wound up where we started from.

It All Adds up to Safety

A user's guide to the electrically safe operation of household appliances

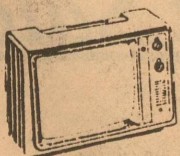

The wrong combination of household appliances can dangerously overload a circuit. Fire, electrical shock and damage to the circuit and the appliance may result. Before you add another appliance to the circuit, be sure that circuit can handle the load.

Step 1: Check your breaker panel to determine the amperage each circuit can handle. The size of the breaker (15 amp, 20 amp, etc.) is the limit of the load a circuit can carry.

Step 2: A breaker or a fuse is designed to stop the flow of current if a circuit is overloaded. Use only fuses and breakers rated for the circuit: never use a 20 amp fuse on a 15 amp circuit.

Step 3: Determine what kind of load your appliances are putting on the circuit. The wattage of the appliance should be listed somewhere on the appliance. Divide the wattage of the appliance by the voltage required (either 110 volts or 220 volts) to get the amperage required to operate the appliances.

Example - a microwave oven uses 1500 watts of energy and requires 110 volts to operate.

amps = watts/volts
= 1500/110
= 13.64 amps

Step 4: Add up the amperages required for each appliance on a circuit. If the total is greater than the load limit of the circuit, remove appliances from the circuit until the total is less than the limit.
