THE ELDORADO SUCCESS OCTOBER 11, 1029

THE BANK'S PART IN THE FARM PROBLEM

By H. LANE YOUNG

Member American Bankers Association Agricultural Commission ONE of the most discussed and least understood questions regarding the farmer's problems is the part the bank has played, or is to play, in financing the farmer. The basis of co-operation between the two, however, is a very simple one.

Both sides are subject to criticism for the condition that exists today. The major share of the blame rests on those banks that have failed through disregarding fundamental principles in loaning other people's money, that have encouraged the farmer to expect bank loans without first putting his business on the earning basis which would justify a bank to lend him money.

One of the underlying reasons for the failure of so many country banks has been the existence of too many banks. With the limited business of the community divided among too many banks it was impossible for them to make enough money to justify the employment of officers with the proper ability to manage the bank successfully. Then the scramble for business was so hard that good judgment and foresight were forgotten in granting loans, with the resultant failure of the weaker institutions.

In the future, banks are not going to loan the money of their depositors without the kind of security that can be immediately realized upon in case the loan is not paid, or unless the applicant presents a sound and successful record of business operationwhether that business be manufacturing, merchandising, or farming. Farming-Banking Interdependent

This is a perfectly obvious attitude, because country banking cannot be successfully and profitably carried on unless farming is successfully and profitably operated-the two businesses are dependent upon each other. There is no longer any question that the time has arrived for these interdependent businesses to reach a common ground of understanding of the requirements that both must meet for their mutual welfare.

There is no doubt but what the future prosperity of the farmer and the basis of cooperation between banker and farmer is the intelligent diversification of crops. It is necessary, how- absolutely be prevented. The three ever, to have the right conception of major objectives of all inter-bank or. diversification.

The mistake that many farmers have made in attempting to diversify has been to invest too much money, time and land in a new and untried crop-sometimes a hazardous crop, or or eliminate all forms of losses so that one for which no immediate market greater rewards may accrue to bankhas been developed, resulting in a loss exert such depressing influence on prices the general price relation should be improved. If this occurs the individual farmer should also benefit. "It is here the government is proposing a novel attempt in economics. Through stabilization corporations for each commodity it is proposed to make possible the handling of the surplus so as to lessen its disturbing influence on prices. With non-perishable products such a program is, of course, conceivably possible, but one wonders what would happen if a stabilization corporation had to handle a perishable crop in great quantities. "Is it going to be possible for a stabilization corporation to stabilize?

would be one thing if it had merely to stabilize the American situation, but often that situation is complicated with world conditions. Perhaps the very fact that such a stabilization corporation is in position to function may have a steadying effect on the market. "Markets respond to psychological stimuli as do individuals. The very fact that the government has now definitely stepped into the breach with all of its resources available to make the new plan work will exert undoubtedly a strong stabilizing effect.

"It would be presumptuous to fore cast what the ultimate effect of the new act will be. It can, however, be definitely stated that in the present plan much of the philosophy that had been so drasticall; criticized as eco. nomically unsound has been eliminated. The existing plan is worth trying. It will undoubtedly cost the Federal treasury no inconsiderable amounts of money, but if it produces the hoped-for result it will have been well worth while."

By FRANK W. SIMMONDS, American Bankers Association

In considering the banking situation throughout the country, the fact should be kept in mind that while one bank in ten failed during the past eight years, it is far more important that nine banks out of ten, operating in the same general field, serving the same communities and meeting almost identically the same problems, weathered the economic storm of readjustment successfully. This achievement cannot be ascribed to any element of luck, but rather to consistent adherence to sound banking principles and profitable practices. Through worthy and efficient management they met the issues and problems confront. ing them, squarely and successfully. Banking is regarded as the keystone of our entire business structure, hence bank failures are rightly regarded as intolerable public calamities that must ganizations, whether local, county, district, state or national, are to make banking safer for all concerned and. through increased efficiency in bank management and supervision, to lessen ing and better service to the public.

Disregarding the primary and essential principle of farming-namely, increasing earnings by decreasing the cost of production through the practice of building up soil by crop rotation and intensive cultivation, is responsible for a large share of the farmers' trouble today.

As An Agriculturalist Sees Farm Board's Job

The new Agricultural Marketing Act approaches farm relief from a materially different point of view from that | and the solution of banking problems, of former bills before Congress in recent years, says Dean H. L. Russell of Wisconsin University College of Agriculture in the American Bankers Association Journal.

"It contains a new idea, fraught with the greatest possibilities-the organization of a Federal Farm Board," he says. "It has been possible for farm cooperatives to borrow from Federal. aided institutions before, and at a ma. terially lower rate than city business men had to pay for working capital, but this is the first set-up made by the government in which a commission has been carefully chosen to give undivided attention to an effort to solve the problems of a farm group. "It is hard to conceive of a higher degree of responsibility than must be assumed by this commission. No board ever created by congressional action has been clothed with as wide plenary powers. It is authorized not only to advise but to execute, to plan and put its plans into effective action, to. buy and hold, to dump, to dip into the Federal treasury to accomplish its ends with what would be almost un-Imited resources to any private commercial concern. The board's only lob is to succeed, and no governmental agency even during the war time emergency had a wider latitude. "Many will think the farm relief program will be universally applicable to the individual land owner or oper ator. Such procedure is far from the case. Aid is to be extended through cooperative organizations by making it possible for such groups to obtain cash advances to hold crops so as to permit of more orderly marketing. "While the primary relation is with cooperatives, the individual or unor ganized farmer will also profit by the year banking is becoming more of a activities of his organized fellows. If a stabilized program of merchandising is able to eliminate the surpluses that sional standards banks in city, county or district groups undoubtedly constitute the chief line of defense against bad banking practices. They have demonstrated that they are the principal factor in bringing about reformation in banking regulations. improvements in banking methods and the observance of sound banking principles. For many years the primary purpose of a clearinghouse association was the clearance of checks, but today it is the clearance of banking ideas Clearinghouses supply the local machinery essential for setting up and putting in practice necessary stand-ards and uniformities. 'There are now 435 clearinghouse associations in cities, towns, counties and groups of group-minded than ever before. Banking is combining the best elements of competition with sound group action. By virtue of this combination, individual thought has much wider possibilities of expression. In general, group action has not stifled but has stimulated individual thinking and initiative. Better inter-bank organization and relationships afford st by clearing houses would have uncoubtedly saved many institutions that have suffered failure in the past. The clearing house activities of the American Bank ers' Association are conducted for the purpose of encouraging ever widening cooperation along fundamental princ ples and practice among bank through clearinghouse associations Bankers in every city, county or dis trict can, through the agency of a clearinghouse, promote better, safe and more profitable banking and also

Eldorado Eagles Defeated By Junction Eagles

On last Friday, the Eldorado Eagles went to Junction to play the Junction Eagles. The players arrived in Junction at about 10:30 o'clock. They ate lunch and then rested until 3:00 o'clock and then went out to the football field. The game started at 3:30.

Junction kicked off and the game was on. During the first downs, Junction ran through the Eldorado lines as if it wasn't there. uur Local Livic and Lommercial Liuds Their Value and Importance to Community Growth

For centuries men and women who have been recognized as leaders in the business, industrial or civic life of communities have associated with like-minded individuals in some form of organization with a view to improving business and social conditions.

They can be rightly called the SERVICE GROUP for the service they render ALL of their fellow citizens. That group embraces Chamber of Commerce, Church Clubs, Merchants and Manufacturers' Associations, Secret Societies in fact all organizations which are intended to serve the individual and society.

Eldorado has derived many benefits from its local clubs, but the full benefit can only be derived if you, your neighbor and everyone in town give them the support to which they are entitled. Our Clubs awaken in their members, as well as in the public at large, a sense of civic duty, not only as it affects public matters but also as it pertains to the welfare of the individuals in the community. They should be bakeed by a membership that represents the whole social and business element, rather than ...

They work not only to help the community to a higher standard of living and to promote better business conditions but also to induce people to come here to live and to attract worthwhile industries. Their work results in better health, better wages and more money for all of us ti spend and save.

Our clubs ore working for YOUR welfare: your duty is to help support them to the full extent of your means Recently Remodeled th anu bility.
