Lions Club Install Officers At Last Meeting

Club Closes Second Successful Year of Organization

The Eldorado Lions Club closed a successful second year since their organization. The club being only two years old has done some great work since its organization. All new officers were elected for the coming year, taking the place of the ones that have served for the past two years. Under the leadership of Joab Campbell and the club has been very successful in performing their duties that the president put on them.

Work Very New At Time of Organization

The work of the Lions Club at the time of its organization was very new to all of its members and with a small number of thirty charter members, the Club began to grow and reached the number of forty in a short while. The number has decreased considerably at the present, due to many of the members moving away and other causes for them to drop out.

The club was organized the first of May, 1928, with a few of the San Angelo Lions coming to Eldorado and getting the required number to receive the Charter from the Lions International at Chicago. All of the members took hold of the work at once and pledged the other brother members that the club would grow instead of die as had all other civic organizations that had been organized here for the past years.

The work of the club since the organization has been very commendable. They have brought about some very important improvements in the city affairs. The club, the weak as it was only sponsored the work and with the aid of the citizens of the county have never failed to complete what they have started.

The first work of the club was sponsoring of the Boy Scout Movement in Eldorado and this is one of the most important Movements among the younger boys that could possibly be backed by any organization. The work on the street lighting was another important factor that was sponsored by the Lions Club of Eldorado. The club furnished a committee to see the officials of the West Texas Utilities Company in regard to the installation of the lights on main street of Eldorado. The Company installed the light free of charge and the committee from the club made up enough scripions from the business houses to pay the necessary amount for the monthly power used by these lights. The street paving project was brought up by the members and then carried out by the city officials. The incorporation was secured through the talk brought out of the meetings of this club. Everything that is possible for the betterment of the community is sponsored by this club and with the aid of the good citizenship of the county, the good work will be carried on.

The officers installed were E. C. Hill, President; H. G. Parker, Vice-president; John F. Isaacs, Secy-Treasurer; Frank Bradley, Lion Tamer; C. D. Knight Tail Twister and Fred O. Green and W. O. Alexander Directors. The old officers retiring in favor of the officers mentioned are Joab Campbell, President; J. A. Whitten, Vice-president; L. T. Barber Secy-Treasurer; Fred O. Green, Lion Tamer; Frank Bradley, Tail Twister; and John F. Isaacs and E. C. Hill, Directors. The new officers have pledged themselves to carry on the work that the club has been engaged in for the past year and have a bigger and better club at the end of the next year than at the present.

Work on a proposed highway across the county running east and west is the main work of the club at present and with the new officers taking charge the members of the club think that it will take new life and if put over will be one of the greatest achievements that the club could possibly have made any time.

SANITARY MEAT MARKET

Moved to New Home

The Sanitary Meat Market that has been located on the north side of the Main Street has moved its new home just across the street in the Joe Williams building. The new place of business is a very much larger place and will give Mr. Rounds owner of the market a much better place for the keeping and preserving of his meats.

San Marcos Academy Honors Eldorado Girl And Boys

San Marcos Academy offers many honors and medals for pre-eminence in scholastic work, military work and in conduct; and these honors can be won by any student who fulfills the special requirements for each case.

Estelle Johnson, Jack Whitten and Morris Whitten of Eldorado carried off several of these honors at the commencement on May 30th, all of which were for excellence in scholarship. Estelle Johnson received the medal given to the member of the eleventh grade class, for making the highest average in the class, her average being 91 1/2. She was also awarded a silver "A" emblem for having made all "A's" for one term this past year; and she was given the scholarship to a institution of higher learning.

At this time, the Cum Laude Society took in seven new members, three of whom were Eldorado people. They were Estelle Johnson, Jack Whitten, and Morris Whitten. This is the honor organization of the school, and members of the graduating class are elected to membership on the basis of their superior scholarship in subjects in the senior year. Only those are eligible who stand in the first fifth of the class.

Ladies Given Free Access to Course First Day

The Miniature Golf Course that has been installed by Elton Ellis of this city was opened Thursday. The opening day the ladies were permitted to play free. This is a very up-to-date little course, being constructed on the same plans as those in San Angelo and Christoval. It is an eighteen hole course, with a par of forty-one, with one water hazard and several holes that will be difficult to play in par.

Schleicher County Fair Assn.

Parts Of County In Need Of More Rain

The ranges on some sections of Schleicher county are in fair condition but according to reports from various parts some of the ranchmen are in need of rain. The high winds that have been raging over the county since the drought breaking rains in the latter part of April have sapped the ground of a greater part of the moisture that it held. Some sections of the county, however, have been receiving light showers and some have been lucky enough to get some hard rains, some amounting to as much as two inches. The farmers are in need of some rain in sections but the greater number seemed to be satisfied at the present time.

Conditions prevailing in the county at the present are somewhat around normal. With the exception of the low price being paid for wool the ranchmen are in good shape. Wool has been selling from twenty two to twenty seven cents per pound, a little bit higher than some of the ranchmen predicted at the opening of the spring months, when it looked as tho a dry year was on.

RECREATION CLUB MOVES

TO NEW HOME

The Eldorado Recreation Club that has been located in the corner building next to the post office has been moved to the new building recently purchased by J. C. Crosby next door to the City Barber Shop. The old hall had five tables up to date but since the move has been made there is not enough room for the five and only four are now in use.

The town of Eldorado is again seeming like the "used to be". Many faces of our young people who have been away to school have returned for the summer months at home.

Some of those returning home are Estelle Johnson who has been attending the Baptist Academy of San Marcos, also Jack and Morris Whitten of the Baptist Academy of San Marcos; Vivian Reagan, who has been attending the Fine Arts School in San Angelo; Alvin Lueddecke, of A & M College, of College Station; Winice and Prince Murphy who have been attending A & M College also, Edward Ratliff of Texas Tech, of Lubbock; Hayne Graves of Texas Tech of Lubbock, Lena and Lelia Parker, Thelma Parker and Roscoe Parker all of Sul Ross, Alpine Texas, Mary DeLong of McMurry College, Abilene, Texas.

Mr. Otto Souer, who owns a nice farm 20 miles West of Eldorado, was in the city Wednesday trading and meeting friends. Mr. Souer has put in about 250 acres of his 640 and is getting a good crop up, we are glad to have such men with farming ability in our midst.

Fisherman Return With Large Catch

Eldorado Fishermen Get 200 Pounds of Fish From Pecos River

A crowd of fishermen returned last Sunday from the Pecos where they reported and brought home around two hundred pounds of fish. The gang caught a total of twenty-two fish, two of the number weighing forty pounds. This is the largest amount of fish that has been brought in the one town this season.

The crowd went to the Pecos river just below the high bridge where they set their snares for the big ones and had very consistant luck. The trip lasted from Tuesday morning until Sunday.

The Big Ones Get Away

Every time a fisherman returns from a trip to the river he has a tale of woe to relate about the biggest fish he ever saw getting away. But during this trip there were several good catches but the biggest fish in the world was not hung on the lines and consequently there could not be a real fish tale when the hook specialists returned, but we can say that the fish brought home were the best bunch of fish that has been caught in several seasons in this country, taking all the averages together.

The crowd consisted of Charlie, Ervin and Bill Mund, Marvin McDonald, Lester Henderson, Claude Meador Oran Nicks and Edgar Spencer.

There is only one regret that the writer has in reporting this fine fish catch is that he did not get any of the fish.

San Angelo Relay Team Brings Home The Bacon

The San Angelo relay track team coached by Bill Bissitt of San Angelo have just returned from a trip to Chicago to the National Track Meet, bringing home with them the honors of defeating all comers in the relay and breaking a record that has been standing for sometime. This bunch of runners are widely known all over Texas and have set marks for the future footsters to shoot at, at the Texas University meets at Austin. The runners and Coach was accompanied by Blondy Cross, famous sports writer of the San Angelo Standard. Blondy has been the mainstay in the help of putting these boys from the high school of San Angelo where they are today. He was the promoter of the trip to Chicago where the boys could show their stuff, by always having it before the people in the sports column of the San Angelo paper.

All West Texas should be proud that this honor has been brought to them through the work of Orr, Odum, Brothers, Jones, Bissitt and sport scribe Blondy.

Santa Fe Train Service To Sonora Starts July 1

More Old Buildings Being Torn Away

With the tearing away of several of the oldest buildings in Eldorado another step has been added to the large building program that is under way in this city. The foundation for the Sam E. Jones building is being built this week. The old houses that have weathered many storms both in the business and in many other ways. The old corner where the Eldorado State Bank building formerly stood is being torn away and will be replaced by new fire proof buildings, a credit to any town. The entire block will in the near future be classed as an equal to any in the larger cities.

This corner has been for many years a fire hazard which has held much improvements of our little town up but the barrier to future building progress in Eldorado is now being taken away and nothing will hinder the building program that is under way at present in a big way.

Drilling Still Going On In J. A. Whitten Oil Test

Drilling at a Depth of Approximately 6600 feet, Gas and Oil Still Showing

The Phillips Petroleum J. A. Whitten No. 1, was reported to be drilling at a depth of approximately 6600 feet Thursday with the late showing of oil and gas still holding its own. About 700,000 cubic feet of gas is reported to be coming out of the hole and the oil is still about the same as it was last week. Drilling has been in a black shale since the last showing, but reports received Thursday morning are that the drill has found another sand. Considerably depth has been made since the drilling has been resumed immediately after the showing was found. Very little trouble has been encountered and the hole is holding its own very well and very little caving has been noticed. The caving of the hole has been the trouble in making hole for some time and only a few feet could be drilled without cementing which caused much delay in deepening the test rapidly. Another showing is predicted by the geologists between the depth of 6400 and 6600 feet. Crowds of people can still be found around the well awaiting a chance to see the greasy fluid spout over the top of the rig.

Leases and royalty sales have been very slow during this late excitement. The companies seem to be just a little bit afraid to "crack" down at this depth but if paying oil is found considerably price is believed to be paid. No comparison in the excitement on the late showing and the one last summer when thousands of people visited the well when it came over the top for the first time and royalties and leases went as high as $100 per acre and some even higher.

Eldorado Couple Return From Trip To Virginia

Mr and Mrs S. E. Jones returned Tuesday from an extended trip to Charlottesville, Virginia, where Mr. Jones was a delegate of the Brownwood Presbytery to the Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church. The Rev. R. K. McCall of San Saba also attended the assembly and made the trip with Mr. and Mrs. Jones.

Mr and Mrs Jones went to the national capitol and other places of interest while on their journey. Mr. Jones is one of the prominent ranchmen of Schleicher county having previously lived in McCulloch county. At present he is having a new brick business house erected on the main street of Eldorado on the lot adjacent to the new theatre building which is owned by T. E. Jones, a brother.

Mrs J. C. Crosby and daughter Miss Kathleen Crosby have returned to their home in Eldorado from Waco where Miss Kathleen has been in school.

BORN To Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lawhon Jr a niece baby girl June 2. mother and baby are doing well in hospital in San Angelo.

Work On Line Now Is Near Completion

Santa Fe train service to Sonora will commence July 1 on completion of the three million dollar line out of San Angelo over the old Orient property.

W. H. Rochester, engineer who had charge of the construction work until a few weeks ago, wrote this information to the Eldorado Success in a letter received here Thursday. Mr. Rochester, who is now on construction work out of Amarillo, said schedules would soon be available, with workmen now levelling track, completing station in intervening towns, and getting all in readiness for operation over the branch from San Angelo.

Skeleton plans for a major celebration to mark the beginning of train operation have been taken up by the Board of City Development here, it was indicated Thursday. The entry of a special train carrying the first passengers into Christoval, Eldorado and Sonora will be the basis of a special celebration, it is thought.

A fourth of July rodeo is planned at Eldorado three days after the first train is scheduled to operate on a regular schedule into the Schleicher county capital, and a related celebration is contemplated for Christoval at the same time.

Details of the part the city of San Angelo will play in the south will be announced soon, it was said. D. H. Berry, manager of the Board of City Development, of San Angelo now in Philadelphia on official business, is planning extensive participation on the part of San Angelo and has shown that that city will co-operate with the three major towns along the new route in making an occasion of the project that was a dream twenty years ago.

Ford Prices Again Reduced, Says Trail

Wire From Ford Motor Company In Detroit Authorized a Big Slash in Prices

R. T. Trall, local Ford dealer, announced this morning that he was in receipt of a wire from the Ford Motor Company in Detroit to the effect that Ford Prices had again taken a tumble. With this new reduction the Ford Motor Company again becomes the sensation of the automobile industry.

During the time the Model A car was being perfected motordom experts freely expressed their opinion that the Ford Motor Company would never regain the lead that it had held for over twenty years. These same experts now predict that the time is not far off when Henry Ford will sell fifty percent of all automobiles sold.

Mr. Trall in describing the latest Ford gave the following as the car's new features; new body lines and colors, rustless steel for exposed metal parts, fully enclosed, silent brake system, four Houdelle hydraulic double acting shock absorbers, Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, quiet acceleration, ease of control, 55 to 65 miles per hour, smoothness, balance and security at all speeds, unusual number of ball and roller bearings, 40 different kinds of steel, tyrod economy, reliability and long life and good dealer service after you buy the car.

"Ma" Ferguson will open her campaign at Polton on June 7. Press releases of what she will do are coming out this week to practically every paper in the state. They are being sent from the Froom office. Jim's been in the newspaper game for a long time; he and his wife make good copy, and evidently he knows something of the fine art of outguessing the average editor into giving him some free advertisement.

Yes Jim's a great hand at getting plenty of free publicity.

They're Back Again

By Albert T. Reid

A Couple of our Most Undesirable Citizens.

THE TARIFF AND POLITICS

President Hoover on April 16, 1929, more than a year ago, asked Congress to make some limited changes in the tariff law, especially for the protection of agriculture and as a part of his program of Farm Relief. The response of Congress was to throw the whole subject to the tariff wide open and inject the tariff issue again into national politics.

The Senate seized upon this opportunity to make another effort to ar-rogate all Governmental power to itself and to make the President a rubber stamp. The Senate coalition under took to write into the tariff law a provision that all decisions of the Tariff Commission should be subject to affirmation by Congress. Such a procedure would keep the tariff to the front a political issue all the time, at every session of Congress. What the President specifically asked for in this respect was a simplification of the Tariff Commission provisions of the law, so that readjustments in rates could be made with less delay than is now the case. The Senate's plan would have resulted in immensely longer delays and would effectually have ruined all the efforts of leaders of both major parties in the past then years to put tariff-making on a scientific basis.

The Senate also inserted into the tariff bill a provision for a rebate on exported farm products.

The House of Representatives stood fast against those two provisions of the Senate's, and the Senate has finally yielded on both points. It was not statesmanship entirely, however, that dictated the House's attitude. It is largely politics in the simple, plain sense of the word. Every member of Congress comes up for reelection this year. Every member has got to explain to his constituents how come some other part of the country got some more out of the tariff bill than own district did. For the tariff is, after all, a local issue; it is bound up in sectionalism and selfish interests, and one result of all the agitation of the subject in Congress during the past year has been to increase sectional bitterness to a degree we have not known in America for decades.

The only convincing answer any member who voted for the tariff bill can make, when the schedules unsatisfactory to his constituency are criticized, is that the rates in the bill are not permanent. The tariff Commission and the President can change the rates whenever it is shown that they should be changed in the interest of international parity. Nobody broadly speaking, is satisfied with the rates in the bill itself; but everybody who believes that a scientific readjustment of rates by an expert Tariff Commission is the proper way to handle the tariff question will accept the bill, whatever its defects, so long as it has that provision of flexibility in it.

It is perhaps too much to hope that this will be the end of Congressional tariff making, but the country would be better off if that proved true.

CUT WORMS DAMAGING COTTON IN SCHLEICHER

Considerably complaint can be heard over the county that the cut worms are bothering the young cotton that is just coming up. The damage is being done mainly in the fields where feed stuff was planted last year. The fields that had cotton planted on them last year is not affected by these worms according to he reports given out. Many of the farmers will have to plant a great deal of their cotton over, which will endanger the harvest of a good crop next fall by an early freeze.

Some of the farmers of the county seem to think that he cotton will do just as well planted as late as June 10 to 15th but if the early freezes hit this fall the crop will not have time to mature. Although some of them report good crops harvested heretofore on late planting.

WRIGHT'S PARAGRAPHS

Well look what another week has brought out. A whole field of good timber for governor, the question now is who will be the right one to cast your pearls before. We have some excellent friends who have always supported the Ferguson, when they were wet, and since "Ma" has come out on the driest platform of any, they are still for her, if "Ma" gets the dries and we both, she ought to be elected. Just how dry she can make the dries believe she is, is yet to be seen. For us, we still eat crow, we are for that man of righteousness Tom Love.

If you haven't attended the meeting at the Methodist Church, you are the loser, Bro. Neal is a forceful speaker and makes his messages plain enough for any one to understand.

C. B. Reagan and L. T. Wilson are planning a fishing trip in to Mexico. They expect to catch all the "bigguns" and have some to spare. Just why they have to go over in Old Mexico to catch the fish has not been explained but we presume they can catch more frogs for bait. Anyway Carl said something about having better bait over there.

Elmer Bruton, keeps on telling us that its going to rain, but some way it still on the road.

The Rev. Bob Schooler of Los Angeles, was recently sent to jail for an imaginary contempt of court. But after reading the evidence we fail to see the proof of the pudding. But Bob is greater by his incarnation and the judge that sentenced him stands in the same position that old Pilot did, who found Christ guilty and allowed him to be crucified.

The Whitten oil well is expected to be a producer by this writer at an early date, wouldn't be surprised to see it spout over any old time.

Well since heck was a pup, he had to be a dog, old heck died several years ago, did not live to see the old wooden fire trap in the heart of Eldorado give away to modern prosperity and new building, but they are being moved away, they have served their day and have given way to modern ideas. Eldorado continues to grow and new business continues to come and the prophecy of the Success 20 years ago is being fulfilled. We have not worked in vain.

Tattooing Chickens

Chicken theft has become so common in Travis county since chickens have become aristocratic birds, that tattoo marks are being branded into the wings of the fowls to prevent thievery. This is, said to be effective. Write Walter E. Davis, county agent Austin, if you want to know how simply it is done. But enclose a stamp for reply.

Crowd the Playground

The town of Mertzton has bought a 45 acre river-front playground to which it invites "all Texans" If Mertzton will adopt the tactics that Ozona is using to get N crowds to its July 3-5 fair, the park will have to be enlarged. The fair association there offers "Free lunch each day at noon hour, consisting of barbecue, beans, bread, pickles, tea and coffee" in unlimited quantities. It's just the West Texas brand of hospitality.

San Antonio to San Angelo

The survey is being made and work will be started on the gaps that will give San Antonio direct rail connection with San Angelo as soon as San Antonio raises its allotment of the capital stock. If San Antonio is as alert as it should be, it will not be content with that but will start a movement for a line from Brownwood to Cross Plains to connect with the road that is to be built to that point from Abilene and thus open an entirely new trade territory.

THE DEADLY AUTOMOBILE

The cost to the people of the United States of automobile accidents in 1929 was more than $850,000,000, according to the chairman of the traffic accident statistics of the National Street and Highway Safety Conference, Mr. J. H. Parmelee, whose authority we nearly double the number of deaths from that cause in 1920. And so far quote states that 33,060 persons were killed in motor accidents last year, an increase of 8 percent over 1928 and in 1930 the rate of fatalities is increasing.

These fatal motor accidents are not a peculiarity of any particular section or of any class or size of community. On the whole, there are fewer of them in the large cities than in the country districts, in proportion to population. The temptation to careless driving to be obeyed, is much greater than in crowded traffic, as every motorist knows.

Statistics compiled by the Nebraska State Press Association for 1929 show that in that state, where population is less concentrated than in almost all of the rest of the states and there are only two or three really large population centers, there were 365 motor fatalities last year, besides 123 persons disabled, in 3,336 automobile accidents.

Every victim of a motor accident is a victim of somebody's carelessness. Out of the total number of accidents in Nebraska last year by far the most were collisions between two cars. There is never any possible reason for a collision except carelessness on part of one driver or both. Sixty-three of the dead in Nebraska were pedestrians, struck by cars. Thirty-nine deaths were of motorists trying to beat a train across a railroad crossing. Twenty-six were killed while speeding. Twenty-four died in skidding accidents. Twelve deaths resulted from trying to pass another car, without swinging wide enough. Blinding headlights forced 127 cars off the road, killing ten persons. Twelve were killed by reckless driving.

The remedy for this increasing toll of death on the highway is partly in improving the roads, eliminating blind curves and dangerous crossings, but mainly in a closer supervision of the census to drivers. Today in a few state children, mental incompetent, cripples and irresponsible persons are forbidden to endanger the lives of others by driving cars. In most states, however anybody may commit manslaughter by this means without restraint.

TEXAS AND TEXANS

Getting Texas Gas

The rigors of winter in Illinois and Indiana are to be tempered by Texas gas. When pipe line was laid from the Texas Panhandle gas fields to Kansas City a year or two ago the country was amazed that Texas could undertake to supply Kansas and Missouri with natural gas. A number of Texas gas and oil industries are now affiliated with the Insull interests, it is announced, to extend gas pipe lines about 1,000 miles into the Great Lakes States. Texas seems to have enough gas to heat the entire country for many years to come and to enrich hundreds of the State's citizens under whose lands this gas is located.

It Can't Be Done

A few Texas papers seem to be taking seriously the recent proposal of a Texas congressman to divide Texas in order to give the South larger senatorial representation. While it is true that here might be some advantages in a division of the State into several weak little states, it will probably be several centuries before Texans will ever agree to tear apart the five points of the Lone Star flag around which there is so much tender sentiment. Texans have too much pride in its history and traditions, in its topmost position among the States to sacrifice its greatness merely to acquire some temporary political gains. The Empire State may be a bit unwieldy because of its bulk but disdains suggestions of division.

Presidio's Magic Growth

Presidio the Rio Grande river town of the "Big Bend Country," of Texas, would probably have been a straggling border village forever if the Santa Fe had not decided to extend its lines there. The terminal of the railroad is about two miles from the center of the old town, which will likely move to the railroad if it is mindful of its own interests. A "magic" little city is already springing up here awaiting the whistle of the railway engine, and as that will be the only port of entry between Del Rio and El Paso, a fine town will soon grow up there. With its great resource as yet untouched, the "Big Bend" needs only closer touch with the outside world and more money for development, and these the Santa Fe will be a great factor in securing.

New Braunfels Growth

There is not much surprise that the new towns of Texas in sections just recently developed are showing marvelous growth in the census returns, or that towns in which conditions have been unusually favorable in the last ten years have increased rapidly, but when it is announced that New Braunfels thought by many to have been fully grown a quarter of a century ago, should have increased from 3,200 in 1920 to 6,241 in 1930 occasions some surprise. It is true that the area of the town has been extended, but so has that of other towns, where the suburban population has justified extensions.

The secret of the New Braunfels growth, in a community long ago thickly settled, which has had no boom of any kind, has been solely the energy, the enterprise and the pride of the people who make its citizenry. They have made New Braunfels an attractive town, a magnet for home lovers, and have worked untidely and incessantly for everything for the good of the community, investing their efforts and their money in every worthy enterprise. A visit to New Braunfels and a talk with its people will show how it is done.

Calculating in Miles

The lower Rio Grande Valley has shipped this season more than 25,000 carloads of fruits and vegetables and at least 5,000 carloads must have gone out by trucks. If it could all have been shipped by one train, that train would have reached half way across the State of Texas. The total shipments approximate $24,000,000. If stretched out in one dollar bills end to end, the receipts would make a greenback ribbon from the valley to New York. Only three counties comprise the part of Texas known as the Lower Rio Grande Valley or about one-eighth of the area of Texas. Texas certainly has possibilities, but it is difficult to apply ordinary figures to them. Try it for yourself.

Laredo Onion Shipments

Farther up the Rio Grande, Laredo has shipped 1,600 carloads of onions, so many onions that the market price became unsatisfactory to the growers. That section is now marking the largest crop of cantaloupes it has ever grown and expects to increase the crop next season.

Crystal City, which wasn't even on the map until a few years ago, has marketed a $2,000,000 crop of spinach—3,267 cars of it—and about a half million dollars worth of other vegetables.

Great irrigation plans along the Rio Grande and its tributaries, from Presidio to its mouth, including the Winter Garden district and the Medina river project, will make South Texas noted as the leading winter market place of the country.

BRIDGE PARTY

Mrs. Melvin Crabb entertained the Eldorado Bridge Club on Thursday, May 29, 1930.

Three tables of club members and guests were present and after playing six games of Bridge high score club member was Mrs. Joe Williams and high guest was Mrs. Terry Crain, high cut was Miss Annice Putman.

Lovely refreshments were served in two courses, a delicious salad course followed by peach ice cream and cake. Club members present were Mesdames Lewis Ballew, L. T. Barber, H. T. Finley, Jim Hoover, Joe Williams and Miss Agnes Wright.

Guests present were Mesdames A. P. Bailey, Seth Ramsey, Terry Crain and Misses Annice Putman and Margaret Tisdale and the hostess Mrs. Melvin Crabb assisted by Ruth Nix and Annie Pearl Finley.

Unlimited Market Area

Irrigation and market gardening are not limited to the territories just mentioned. Hundreds of carloads of potatoes have been shipped from Eagle Lake, cars are being loaded with tomatoes in DeWitt and Wilson counties; fruits and vegetables are maturing for market all over East Texas, Central Texas, North Texas.

There is not a river penetrating the State along which plans are not being worked out for irrigation. While Texas has grown remarkably in the past ten years, the next ten give promise of marvelous development. Let's tell the world of the great opportunities that Texas offers.

Shipping by Millions

One plant farm in the Winter Garden District has shipped over 30,000,000 onion, cabbage and tomato plants this year to points all over the United States and Canada. Such work helps to make Texas as far-famed.

Cucumber Pickles

The United States Department of Agriculture says that about 3,000,000,000 cucumbers are profitably grown in this country every year for pickles. Cucumbers growing on a scale large enough for co-operation marketing is becoming a profitable Texas industry.

Canning Blackberries

There is a blackberry canning plant at Comanche that will be operated continuously through the season with berries grown on the sandy land of that county. Lindale, the noted berry center of Smith county will have a Texas competitor soon in Comanche county, but the berry market is a large one, and the whole world likes canned blackberries.

ENTERTAIN WITH BRIDGE

Misses Lodice and Annice Putman entertained a group of their friends with Bridge at the apartment of Mrs. Jim Hoover on Tuesday, June 3. Four tables of guests were present and after playing five games of bridge high score prize was awarded Mrs. Woolridge, of Arkansas. Guests present were Mesdames Luke Thompson, and mother Mrs. Woolridge of Arkansas, Carl Crowwell, of San Angelo, H. T. Finley, Van McCormick, Jim Hoover, L. T. Barber, Lewis Ballew, Joe Williams, V. T. Tisdale, A. P. Bailey, Melvin Crabb, Terry Crain and Misses, Gladys Patton, Ora Sproul, Agnes Wright and hostesses Annice and Lodice Putman.

ARGOTANE IMPROVES LOCAL

MAN'S HEALTH

"For the past year I have suffered very much from constipation." Tom Woolard, of 143 Koehler Court, San Antonio, Texas, told the San Antonio representatives of the Argotane company in a recent conversation.

"I was in such a bad condition," continued Mr. Woolard, "that I was forced to take strong purgatives almost nightly in order to keep going. Being so badly constipated, my whole system became full of poison, and that made me feel tired and sluggish most of the time. Most of the food I ate soured on my stomach and caused indigestion pains. My liver was torpid and I just didn't have the normal amount of pep and energy."

"Argotane was recommended to me as the thing I needed, so I started the treatment, and I must say that the results I have more than justified the recommendation."

"I can now eat anything in perfect comfort, for the food doesn't sour and I haven't had indigestion pains since the first few doses of Argotane. My constipation has been relieved and, on the whole, I feel much better."

"Argotane has improved my condition so much that I am glad to recommend it to others who may be suffering as I did."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Eldorado at the Hoover Drug Co.

Miss Nobody from Nowhere

BY ELIZABETH JORDAN

SIXTH INSTALLMENT

She arranges with Marcel's friend, the janitor of a dingy little apartment house on the East Side of New York, for a small furnished apartment. He tells her not to be frightened if she hears the young woman who occupies the next apartment come in very late in the morning. Eve wonders what sort of a place she got into.

Now Go On With The Story

The third night in the new quarters was another nightmare. For the mental fog did not lift. She was not to be relieved from it, then, in the three days. She did not realize how great her hope had been, how strongly it had buoyed her, till she felt this staggering blow of disappointment. But time, even three days of it, does something for one at twenty-three. The nightmare was not so bad and hope's whispers were louder. This whisper would last long. This could not last long it might end at any minute.

In the meantime she would occupy herself as much as she could. If it were to last, a reconstruction of life would be necessary. But as yet she closed her ears to the sound of battles in the future. If she must fight them, she would be up to them; at least she began to hope she would. But surely she could give herself a week of waiting.

The days were as alike as telegraph poles along a country road. She walked and read and kept her record with brief exactitudes. All the time Memory was at her side like a motionless black figure, seemingly preparing to move, yet never moving. A hundred times a day Eve caught at the trailing end of some suggestion which refused to be caught. She realized that these frantic, futile clutches were wearing her out, yet she dared not discontinue them. At any minute one of them might lead her back.

She sent most of her afternoons in the reading-rooms of the library, walking to and fro from this refuge, for the exercise. Several times she met Miss Davenport on the stairs of the old apartment-house, and was glad to observe that the young dancer had lost her look of acute physical suffering, though her face still had a bluish pallor.

The late afternoon of the fourth day was brightened by a visit from her neighbor. The girl breezed in without waiting for an answer to a rather assertive knock, revealing herself clad in a red Japanese kimono, with slippers and silk stockings to match. Her bobbed hair, which was naturally wavy, shone from a recent brushing. Eve observed with pleasure as she rose to greet her that there was no frowziness in the appearance of the new-comer. She was as immaculate as a red carnation, and she had the grin of a friendly puppy and a taking air of camaraderie. Nothing about Nher suggested the stricken figure of a few nights before.

"Hello," she began, and added ingratiatingly, without giving her hostess a chance to reply, "got any cigarettes you can spare?"

"No I don't smoke. I'm awfully sorry."

Miss Davenport sighed. "I'm out," she said. "I'll have to send Smith to get some."

But she made no move to leave, and Eve smiled at her, pathetically glad to have this cheerful guest enter her tragic No Man's Land.

"What's your line?" the caller suddenly demanded.

"My line?"

"Yep. Your spiel," the other explained. "You gotta have eats, ain't you? How d'you pay for 'em?"

"Oh, you mean how do I earn my living?" Eve's sense of pleasure in the interview perished. "I'm resting now," she said in a tone that forbade further inquiries; but she softened it by asking interestedly, "What do you do?"

"Me? I dance at Jake's."

Miss Davenport gave the information, and went on with the gusto attending an evidently entrancing subject. "Jake's" it appeared, was not what you'd call one of the town's swell joints. Neither was it a tough one. Eve inferred that it lay in comfortable security somewhere between these extremes, and the speaker added that Jake himself was a good egg.

"You don't need a letter from your pastor to get into Jake's but you sure get kicked out quick if you don't behave yourself while you're there," Ivy enthusiastically testified. "You shake a loose ankle, too, don't you?" she ended, so suddenly that Eve was startled out of her caution.

"I don't know," she admitted.

"Huh?"

"I mean I don't know whether I'm a good dancer or not."

That brought another stare. Then Miss Davenport rose.

"You come into my joint an' I'll soon tell you," she remarked with decision.

She led the way back to her own quarters as she spoke, in superb assurance that she would be followed. Eve hesitated only an instant before accompanying the other girl across the hall.

Miss Davenport's "joint" seemed at first like the ghost of a room, in which the added spectator of a piano grinned at the visitor out of the shadows. The place was clean but cluttered. A tall mirror stood in one corner, and a phonograph in another corner supplemented the musical atmosphere lent by the piano.

Miss Davenport wound up the phonograph. She put on a record and the little room was filled with dance music, which the hostess at once began to dance a fox-trot.

"Know this?" she demanded.

"I . . . think so."

"Try it."

There was something in the music that was not unlike the hostess, and the guest responded to them both. She rose and took a few steps, at first tentatively, then with conviction.

"And you didn't know whether you could dance?" Miss Davenport jeered.

"Kno wthis?"

She began to dance a rather intricate Charleston, and Eve shook her head.

"I'm afraid not."

"Well, try it."

Her persistence, though odd, was friendly, and Eve tried it.

"Not so good," the hostess admitted.

"This is the way, see?"

She went through the steps and made a few suggestions, put her guest twice through the dance, and dropped into a chair with a sudden look of exhaustion.

"I'm all in," she admitted. "It gets me that way, these days—even a little of it. Ain't it the limit, when I've always been so well? . . . Say, what's your name anyhow?" she interrupted herself to ask.

"Personne."

"Person? I thought that's what Smith said 'twas. All right. Listen, Miss Berson, it's get down to cases. I ain't been doing this for my health you know—draggin' yo uin here an' puttin' you through a rehearsal. It's business, see? What I want to say is—you're out of a job, ain't you?"

Well, I'm the lapa can get y ouone!"

She was so beamingly satisfied with her little ruse and its success that Eve was touched.

"It's awfully good of you," she said warmly, "but—"

"But nothing. It's with Jake!"

Eve shook her head.

"You're more than kind," she said. "I can't thank you. But dancing isn't my line."

"You ain't great," Miss Davenport frankly admitted. "But you're good. An' you got a nice look about you. You'd suit Jake like a poached egg suits toast. He likes 'em re-fined."

Eve laughed.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but it's out of the question. Thank you a thousand times, just the same. This world seems full of Good Samaritans."

Eve gave much thought to Miss Davenport's suggestions in the week that followed. If this thing was going on the time for reconstruction work must soon come. She must tackle the job of living. She must do something to earn money. She had paid seventy-five dollars for less than a month's rent—far too much. She could not live indefinitely on that remaining two hundred dollars. What wage-earning possibilities could she consider?

A second call from Miss Davenport answered these questions.

At ten o'clock one night a week later a sharp tap on Eve's outer door was impatiently repeated before she could respond to it. The door opened before Eve could reach it, and the impulsive young person on the threshold projected herself into the room.

It was Ivy Davenport, as clearly dressed as a Christmastreet and clearly dressed for Jake's; but the expression on her impish face was one of acute agony.

"Say," she asked without preface, "got a hot-water bottle?" As if in explanation of this abrupt request she clasped her side with her hand and lurched across the room, dropping with a groan into the nearest chair.

"One of my attacks," she brought out between stiff lips. "I get 'em every now and then, dame 'em an' they're just hell. I started out thinkin' I'd get over this like I do sometimes, but I hadda come back. They ain't killed me yet, so I guess this won't."

"But it'd help an awful lot if I could crawl into bed and make a pet of a hot-water bottle."

"I'm terribly sorry," Eve hurried to her side. "I haven't a thing."

Ivy bent and twisted under a spasm of pain.

"Let me help you to bed," Eve said quickly. "Can you get back if I give you an arm?"

"I guess so . . . but don't rush me!"

The girl stood up with a gasp, leaning heavily on the supporting arm.

"I'll put you to bed first. Then I'll run out and get a hot-water bottle. I suppose there's a drug store near here. Perhaps I can get something else, too. What helps you most?"

"I got some medicine, but nothing helps me like the hot-water bottle does. I took mine to Queenie Morria's, Sunday night, and forgot it the next mornin'. Whatcha you know 'bout that? The one thing I ain't never wot out since these attacks began . . ."

"Don't try to talk."

Eve helped her back across the hall and into Ivy's bedroom.

"You're awful good," Ivy groaned, lending herself to the ministrations like a helpless child. "I'll feel better soon's I'm between the sheets."

Addressing her was a simple process, and Eve performed it easily. She feebly indicated her pajamas lying across the foot of the bed, and Eve hustled her into them.

"It's a shame to leave you do all this," Ivy muttered. "But if I bent I'd never straighten out again."

"I'm glad to help you."

Eve got her into bed. As she did so she wondered if she had been a nurse in her previous state of existence. It was pleasant to discover that she could do things efficiently. It bolstered her self-respect.

"Now I'll go for the hot-water bottle," she told the patient. "Keep still till I get back. Hadn't I better call a doctor, too?"

"No, I don't want no doctor sharp-ly almost roughly, and Eve felt a deepening of her strong fellow feeling for this other girl who so obviously shared her dread of the profession.

Before she left the apartment, she put the water on to boil. When she got back she filled the bottle and gave it to the sufferer, who settled it into place with a groan of relief.

"Most of the pain's here," Ivy said vaguely indicating a region between her waist and her heart. "But none of the fool doctors could tell me what makes it. 'Twon't last much longer now, but I'm all in when it's over."

I'll sit here till you feel better. The amateur nurse drew an easy chair close to the bed. "Don't talk. Just relax and try to go to sleep. I'll be here when you need me."

FOOD SPECULATORS ATTACK FARM BOARD

Private Interests Begin Expected Attack on Farmer-Owned Co-operatives

One of the things which every intelligent person knew would happen as soon as the Federal Farm Board got itself organized and into action, has happened.

The knockers have begun to knock. Criticism of the Board, of its methods and policies, of the law under which it operates, were expected. They were inevitable. Something new is being undertaken, and anything new always brings to the front the interests which do not want anything changed.

Some of the criticism is honest, some comes from disgruntled farmer organizations and groups, who didn't want the Farm Board plan in the first place and don't want it now. Some comes from political farmers who want to embarrass Washington for political purpose of their own. And a good deal of it comes from private interests who see their control of the grain trade, the livestock trade and their hands and into the hands of the other commodities, slipping out of farmers themselves.

The attack upon the Farm Board by the United States Chamber of Commerce is the one which has got the most publicity. The chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States is Mr. Julius Barnes. Mr. Barnes is also one of the largest private dealers in wheat in the United States. He does not want the wheat trade to pass out of the private hands. Neither do the private dealers in other agricultural commodities who joined with Mr. Barnes in denouncing the Farm Board Act. They included representatives of the National Poultry and Egg Dealers' Association, the Michigan canning industry, the Philadelphia Wool and Textile Association, the Boston Wool Trade Association, the American Association of Creamery Butter Manufacturers, and numerous similar organizations of business men.

Mr. Dan A. Millett, investment banker and stockman of Denver, Colo., was selected by the chamber to lead the attack, the essence of which was that it would be better to go back to first principles, with no artificial interference with economic laws; to abolish tariffs an dall artificial aids to business, labor and industry. Mr. Millett's philosophy seems to be expressed in the following quotation from his address: "Let no man think that living standards of America can be permanently maintained at a measurably higher level than those of other civilized countries."

That expression indicates the point of view of the business and speculative interests which are opposing any form of relief for the farmer.

The effective answer made by C. C. Teague a member of the Farm Board was:

"We have been measurably successful for over 100 years in keeping the living standards of American labor and American farmers above the peasantry of Europe and the earning power of American capital above that of Europe and I do not believe that our people are yet ready to abandon that policy."

The operations of the Board that have brought about the most criticism are those in wheat and cotton. During October and November there was a stock panic when probably 50 per cent of the supposed values of industrial stock was squeezed out. The country has been suffering from the effect of this ever since; wheat and cotton were headed in the same downward direction.

In an effort to prevent any further serious decline in these commodity prices the Farm Board offered to loan to co-operatives $125 a bushel on wheat and 16 cents a pound on cotton with the customary grade, various terminal markets. This proved effective for several months, but later when there was a sharp decline in the price of wheat the Board, under the terms of the agricultural marketing set authorized an emergency stabilization operation was to take off the market quantity of wheat was necessary to prevent any considerable decline in the price.

In accordance with its announcement last October the Board continued making these loans to the wheat and cotton co-operatives over a period of more than six months, regardless of the fact that the market part of this time was below the loan values. The policy of fixed loan values on cotton and wheat, together with the subsequent stabilization operation in wheat, undoubtedly saved a panic in these commodities which would have cost the farmers of the country many millions of dollars, and if this depression had been added to the business depression caused by industrial stock losses it perhaps might have cost the country billions of dollars. This action was taken in a national emergency and in the opinion of the Board was entirely justified and in the interest of all the people even if later this action cost the taxpayers some money.

Another form which the attack upon the Farm Board is taking is the widespread effort to convey the impression that its operations will increase prices to the consumers of farm products, the idea apparently being to get city people, who are strictly consumers. (Continued on page four)

After reading the Richland Spring, Eye-Witness of May, 29, 1930 we have fully decided to see that underground wonderland, as Cavern, that has recently been discovered and explored. They have lighted up 50 of the rooms and are working on another. The biggest Cavern in the world in the biggest State in the Union.

The Mertzton Star reports the sale of about 250,000 pounds of wool, the price ranging from 24 1-2 to 28 cents. The Rockspring Record reports the sale of 60,000 pounds of long wool by the Rock Spring Livestock Loan Association at 25c per pound. The bids of approximately 7,000,000 pounds of short wool was rejected.

The Editor of The Sterling News Record glories in the fact that he is living in 1930, and no in them good old days of old.

VITAMINS IN COTTONSEED MEAL

Cottonseed meal has been found to be rich in vitamin G, the vitamin necessary for the prevention of pellagra, a nutritional disease of people fairly common in some parts of the South. The discovery was made by research workers in the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, United States Department of Agriculture, while studying the value of cottonseed meal in the nutrition of animals. Cottonseed meal was found also, to be rich in vitamin B, the vitamin which prevents beriberi, a disease of people.

LEVEL THE CORNFIELD

Farmers in the corn-borer area who plan to use the newly developed corn-stalk shaver and the side-delivery rake in clean-up work next spring will do well to remember the requirements of this machinery when cultivating the corn crop this season, say the agricultural engineers of the United States Department of Agriculture. The last cultivation should be in the direction of planting to favor the best performance of the stalk shaver, and the field should be laid by with as little ridging of the rows as possible to make raking more satisfactory.

JOHN I. SMITH OPERATED ON AT BRADY

Mrs. John I. Smith returned home from Brady Wednesday morning and reports that Mr. Smith who was operated on at a Brady Sanitarium last Friday for a rupture, she reports that he was on the table 4 hours but was doing nicely when she left. We trust that he will speedily recover.

COTTON CONSUMPTION

Power laundries are important consumers of cotton products, consuming approximately 52,000 bales of cotton annually, the United States Department of Agriculture says. Cotton is consumed in the form of wash nets, twine, padding, sheeting, laundry bags double-faced, felt, and cover duck. Wash nets alone account for 14,900 bales of cotton.

Tom Love will open his campaign in Austin on June 14. Just a week prior to Love's opening, Earle B. Mayfield will invade Central Texas, the Austin is not on his itinerary. Mayfield perhaps will speak in Austin at a later date, it has been intimated from his campaign headquarters.

The former United States Senator is returning eastward this week from an extended tour through West Texas where his platform pronouncements met with wide-spread approval. His program was hailed as one that is designed to assist in the future development of the state to its greatest possibilities.

MURDER

One person out of every ten thousand is murdered every year in the United States. That does not mean that your chance of not being murdered is only ten thousand to one. For the ordinary peaceable citizen the chance is nearer a million to one that he will die at the hands of a murderer. Most of the murdered victims are themselves potential murderers. In probably half of the killings it is a question of which criminal got the drop on the other.

I lived several years in Chicago, many years in New York. My work as a newspaper man took me into the most dangerous parts of both cities at all hours of the night. I never felt the need of carrying a weapon and I never knew of anybody not a crook, who was sober, unarmed, and not displaying signs of wealth to tempt a footpad or a burglar, being murdered except by some crazy man, which might have happened anywhere.

heard in the land, but it is the voice found a new and cheap way to make methanol, usually called "wood alcohol." The Department of Commerce broadcast that news to every producer of methanol in America. Only one paid any attention; he sent a man to Germany to find out more about it. The others sat tight until, a few months later a shipload of the new new Berman methanol arrived in New York, to be sold at less than the American cost of production. Then the manufacturers demanded to know why they had not been told. They simply had not listened.

All of the old plants for making methanol had to be scrapped and new ones constructed to make it by the new process, and the man who had listened to the prophets was the first American in the field with cheap methanol.

MOON

The hottest object anywhere near the Earth is the Moon. Also it is the coldest. Observers using the 100-inch telescope on Mount Wilson have been measuring the moon's temperature for a year. They report that the parts of the moon on which the sun shines are hotter than boiling water, and the side away from the sun is at least 254 degrees below zero.

The reason for this is that the moon is a dry, dead mass of cooled-off lava of this scientific research worker discovering new processes which will revolutionize some industry, and of the trade commissioners reporting these new developments to manufacturers.

A short time ago one of the Government's trade commissioners reported from Berlin that German chemists had or melted rock. It has no water, no vegetation, no life, nothing to make could temper the rays of the sun. If it were not for water vapor in the earth's atmosphere we could not live on it. The blanket of vapor keeps the heat from the sun from burning us up in the daytime, prevents that heat from escaping at night.

One way astronomers can tell whether other planets than our are probably inhabited or not is by studying their atmosphere through their great telescope. The only one on which it seems possible for life as we know it to exist is Mars. When the new 200-inch telescope is finished we shall probably get some evidence as to the population of Mars.

Eldorado Loses Close Game To Sno-White

Locals Fail to Hit in Pinches

The Eldorado baseball lost a very close decision last Sunday afternoon, when the San Angelo Milkmen invaded the home diamond and took a 2-to-1 decision from the home team. The visitors made their total in the first and second innings when a wild throw by Haynes to first, which would have retired the side but consequently it permitted the winning run to be scored. Haynes retired in the first of the third in favor of Wild Bill Trotter, who held the visitors to two hits the remaining seven innings.

Although the home club out hit the visitors six to five, they could not hit the offerings of the San Angelo pitcher when a hit was needed. Eldorado had many chances to tuck the game in their own bag but the bats that have been ringing out base hits that have won two slugging matches this season were silenced completely when they were needed most.

The lone tally came in the seventh inning when Kerr doubled to right center, and Haynes followed with a single to the same place.

The game was played in a hard south wind, causing many would be hits to turn out as put outs, the home club getting more than their share of these breaks.

This puts the home club in the five hundred per cent column, winning the first two and losing the second and third fractions.

The Eldorado team will leave their back yard for the first time, when they motor to Menard to try their hand with the team there. These two teams have always put on good exhibitions of baseball and it is a good promise for another good game.

FOOD SPECULATORS

ers, lined up in opposition to the producing farmers.

The law under which the Farm Board operates directly charges the Board not to support cooperative organization or stabilization operations to a point that brings on any distress to the consumers. Another reason that consumers need have no fear is that it is not possible to get a monopoly in food products because of the ease and quickness with which producers can get into agricultural production, the small amount of capital required and most of the always available land inviting the producer whenever there is an opportunity for profit. Therefore, any attempt to arbitrarily raise prices to a level where unreasonable profits are given the producer that will defeat the attempt and bring disaster to the producer.

The old speculative system of distribution has been proved oftentimes wasteful and inefficient. It has often failed to pay the producer a living price for his products and at the same time the consumer has often had to pay high prices. On the other hand it has been demonstrated that in many cases where producers are organized into effective cooperative sales organizations they have been able to prosper and at the same time not to put a burden on the consumers of the country.

Middle Life Suffering

THREE years ago, I was in bad health," says Mrs. J. B. Bean, of Kirbyville, Texas. "I was going through a critical time, and I suffered a lot. My back hurt almost all the time, and my legs and ankles ached. My head hurt me until sometimes I would be almost past going. As I had used Cardui before, and knew how much I had improved after taking it, I got a bottle and started taking it. I continued to use it for several months. After awhile I regained my health, and I feel that I could never have gotten through that awful time without Cardui."
