Deal Closed for Gin to Be Built

C. L. Cooke of the American National Bank tells us that arrangements have been made with Dallas parties to put in an up-to-date gin plant here. This will be welcome news to farmers who have planted cotton on the strength of previous assurances that a gin would be built, but which failed to grow into anything more tangible.

Mr. Cooke says he has official confirmation of their representative's actions from the firm that is to install the gin, in the form of a telegram received Saturday, which was followed by a letter. A local lumber concern already has an order for cement and crushed rock to be used in the concrete work.

The machinery is of the Lummus make, and is the latest thing out. It will be housed in a fireproof steel building. The whole outfit has been erected at Dallas and used for demonstration and display purposes, and will be shipped to McLean as soon as it can be dismantled. It is identical to the new plant being installed by the Farmers Gin Co. at Shamrock this year.

The McLean gin will have one of the best bolly attachments on the market and will be run with a large oil engine.

New Catholic Church at Slaton

Slaton.—Announcement was made by Rev. J. M. Keller, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church of this city, that his parishioners will erect a modern new church building forty by eighty feet at an early date, and that plans are already being drawn by an architect. The old church building will be remodeled and used by the Parochial School which the Catholics will establish in Slaton this fall.

Light Rain Yesterday

After trying its best for several days to rain here, with no success save showers too light to settle the dust, a refreshing rain came yesterday morning. There was not enough of it to wet the ground much, but it makes the weather much cooler and refreshes everything—weeds, crops, folks, etc.—and we are glad it happened. Maybe we will get a good one in a day or two.

Rice Residence Almost Completed

C. S. Rice has all the work done on his new home on Second street except the interior woodwork and plastering, which should be finished in a short time. This is the first concrete dwelling to be built in McLean, and will be one of the nicest homes in town when it is completed.

New Filling Station

C. L. Woods & Sons have workmen busy this week, installing a new gasoline filling station at their garage. They have an underground storage tank that will hold several barrels of gas, and an up-to-date pump. They also have a portable tank for cylinder oil, which is fitted with a hand pump.

Large Crowd Enjoys Picnic at Upham's

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Upham entertained a large crowd of people at their home west of town on Monday with a picnic, with a big basket dinner at noon.

Unlike most picnics of this sort, everybody was invited, and there were about 200 people present. The Uphams entertained this large crowd in their usual hospitable manner, and the event will long be pleasantly remembered by those who attended.

Grocers Curtailing Delivery Service

McLean grocers think they have been giving a delivery service that is too good, and have announced a set of rules that will save them much inconvenience and expense, and will cut out a lot of free errand running that they have been doing heretofore.

It is an obvious fact that with gasoline at 35 cents a gallon, it costs money to run a delivery car, and when a grocer makes a special trip to deliver a package of chewing gum or a bar of laundry soap, the delivery costs more than the sale amounts to.

One grocer says he often has to make a delivery before the customer gets up in the morning, so that he might have birdseed for breakfast. Another complains that customers will phone to the market for meat, and order a loaf of bread from the grocer, requesting that he bring the meat too.

Grocery buyers have ignored the old adage, "don't ride a horse to death just 'cause he is willin'," and in this case the horse has finally balked.

Recital Thoroughly Appreciated

The music and expression recital by Mrs. Boyett's and Mrs. Back's classes at the Mission Theatre Tuesday evening was interrupted when the clouds came and it looked so much like rain, and only about half the program had been rendered. The program was finished Wednesday evening.

Those who had not been keeping up with the progress the children have been making were surprised to find the different numbers so good, and enjoyed the program immensely.

Erecting New Business Building

Jno. Mertel, for several years well known to everybody who wears shoes or has them repaired, is putting up a new wood frame sheet iron building for his repair shop and stock of shoes, on the east side of Main street. Last week we announced that John had installed a new machine with which to sew on shoe soles, and we are wondering what he will be doing next.

Only Free Beef at Barbecue

A number of McLean people who went to the picnic at Shamrock on Monday were disappointed to find that no dinner was served, and there was nothing to eat but some free barbecue. This was due to a misunderstanding of the advertising matter that was circulated, announcing the picnic and the attractions that were to be. In last week's Shamrock paper the following statement appeared: "The American Legion does not want it understood that the organization will prepare and serve a free dinner, or any dinner at all, at the picnic next Monday. Barbecued beef will be furnished free to everyone, but people must furnish all eatables at their own cost. It is planned that dinners will be brought by the people other than meat and served on the ground if they so wish. Sufficient barbecued beef will be prepared to serve all who attend."

Back Club Girls Meet

On June 29th the Back Girls' Canning and Poultry Club met at the home of Miss Lelia Back and held an all day meeting.

The first year girls canned a jar of berries, and the second year girls canned a jar of beans.

Mrs. Neely gave the girls further instructions in making aprons, caps, and cup towels.

We had a fine meeting, but are sorry to report that our secretary, Miss Catherine Corum, was sick and unable to be present. We decided to meet with Miss Ruth Henderson next month. PRESIDENT.

Ollie Hommel, who operates a garage in Alanreed and does his bit to keep motorists broke, was seen in the city Sunday evening. McLean seems to have a peculiar attractiveness for Mr. Hommel, as he comes here often. When asked why he didn't move to McLean he seemed pleased with the idea and said he might do it. The wisdom of such a change is obvious, as he would then avoid the inconvenience of frequent trips to this place.

Found Skeleton in Field Long Cultivated

Joe H. Hurn and family returned Monday from a short stay on their stock farm near Mobeetie. The farm is four miles west of that place. While there the skeleton of a man was unearthed in the field that had been in cultivation for fourteen years. Mr. Hurn has owned the place nineteen years. No one has been missed in that section during this time and it is supposed that the remains are those of someone connected with the old fort at Mobeetie which was among the very first in this western country. The remains were in a good state of preservation and appeared to be that of a man of about forty years judging from the teeth. The idea of the remains being that of an Indian is doubted because the remains were found in a low place or sag in the sand, when the red man always chose a high place, hill or knoll for his burial place. If the remains are those of an Indian, he evidently was made a "good" one through the unerring aim of a frontiersman in the early days of settling the Panhandle.—Clarendon News.

See Her in "Pollyanna" Mission Theatre, Saturday, July 17th

If you have read Eleanor H. Porter's Novel, "Pollyanna," you will not miss seeing this picture. And if you have not read the book you should not fail to come out and enjoy the prettiest, most wholesome, story by an author of today.

SYNOPSIS

THE story of a little girl who, by making it her religion to be always glad, gradually brought home to those among whom she lived the fact that the spirit of gladness is the best philosophy in the world.

Pollyanna Whittier's first ten years of life were spent in a rude home in the Ozark Mountains where her parents had gone in search of health. Her mother did not live long, however, and Pollyanna was raised by her semi-invalid father, whose resources were very limited, but whose love for her was boundless. From him the child absorbed the characteristics of "gladness," and learned to temper the hardships and sorrows of life with what they called "The Glad Game."

When Pollyanna was ten years of age, Mr. Whittier followed his wife to the Great Beyond, and the little orphan then went to live with her mother's sister, Polly Harrington, in the New England village of Beldingsville.

Now Aunt Polly was a very determined sort of person who had never married—'tho' 'twas said she had nearly married Dr. Chilton years before. However, she had pulled her hair severely, set her mouth in an uncompromising line, made herself a power in the local Ladies' Aid, and preached long and positively her detestation of flies and muddy feet.

Poor Pollyanna was unfortunate enough to reach her new home in a dreaching rain storm, and when Nancy, the housemaid, ushered her into Aunt Polly's presence, the heart-hungry, lonely, little girl threw herself—streaming clothes, muddy shoes and all—on the silk bosom of Aunt Polly.

Consequently, Pollyanna's impression on her relative was not of the best, and from then on, strive as she would to please, every effort seemed to bear the wrong sort of fruit.

She tried to persuade the Ladies' Aid to adopt a stray orphan boy whom she had discovered, but they firmly believed more credit would be theirs if they continued to fill missionary barrels with useful and useless articles—so Jimmy Bean, the orphan, for the time being was left almost homeless. "Almost"—because Pollyanna sneaked him into the basement to sleep on a pile of old sacks.

In her overtures to Nancy, Old Tom, the gardener, and to all the villagers Pollyanna was infinitely more successful than with her austere aunt. She taught them to play "The Glad Game," and they all loved her for it.

Even crabbed old Mr. Pendleton, the town's rich man, opened his heart to Pollyanna when he recognized her as the daughter of the woman he had loved in his youth.

The climax of the child's efforts to reach Aunt Polly's heart came the night of Aunt Polly's birthday. Aunt Polly spent the day in one of her annual trips to the nearby town, and Pollyanna prepared to receive her with a surprise party, attended by the entire population of Beldingsville—little and big, black and white.

Upon her arrival, Aunt Polly, although properly surprised, failed to appreciate the honor done her, and proceeded to chase everyone out of the house.

As a climax to all this wild excitement Pollyanna received a good sound spanking from Aunt Polly.

Oftimes it seems a catastrophe is required to bring about the greatest good—and so it was for little Pollyanna. She tried to save a child from the wheels of Pendleton's auto, only to be run down herself. Although she escaped with her life, the lower portion of her body became totally paralyzed and as a result of this misfortune it seemed that she would never be able to walk again.

Aunt Polly, her eyes fully opened by this catastrophe, was now very, very sorry for the way she had treated her little niece. Aunt Polly was kindness itself, for the full meaning of "The Glad Game" had been brought home to her with compelling force.

Although the specialist Aunt Polly had called in held out no hope for the child, Pollyanna insisted that Dr. Chilton could help her. Finally Aunt Polly's awakened love for her little niece overcame her pride, and she allowed the physician who years before had been her sweetheart to attend Pollyanna.

And Pollyanna's faith was justified! One day in spring, after months of treatment, the villagers crowded around the gate while inside Aunt Polly, Nancy, Old Tom, Dr. Chilton, Mr. Pendleton and Jimmy (who, by the way, had been adopted by Mr. Pendleton as a surprise for Pollyanna) anxiously watched Pollyanna's first attempt to walk without crutches. Her muscles were weak and trembling, but her confidence was supreme and she managed to go the length of the room before falling into Aunt Polly's arms. This proved to the satisfaction of all that Pollyanna would walk again.

The spirit of gladness came back to the household of Aunt Polly, and as time went on and Pollyanna became stronger, the romance which had been shattered in the days of long ago between Aunt Polly and Dr. Chilton again burst into flame. In the end they decided to make up for the years they had lost through their foolish estrangement. And Pollyanna and Jimmy picked up their happy childhood again, determined to play "The Glad Game" for the rest of their lives—together.

Statements From Business Men Who Are Employing Our Graduates and From Visitors Who Have Seen Our School

Here are a few extracts from letters of prominent business men who have had the proof as to the ability of our graduates.

"Having employed several of your graduates, I think your institution the best of its kind in this country."

"Of the seven young men you have sent us, six remain in our service and the other has just joined the Navy. All are making good."

"As you know, I have had a number of your students in my office. I take this opportunity of saying that every student that I have had from your school shows superiority of training over students that I have had from other schools."

"We have one of your graduates as stenographer in our legal department at a handsome salary giving entire satisfaction. The work is extremely difficult, requiring the greatest skill and accuracy. She reads her notes like print. We wish to commend your school for turning out such excellent graduates."

"If all of your graduates are as proficient as the three young men we have in our office you are certainly doing a great work for not only the young people, but the business men as well."

"We have several of your students and all of them understand their business. Your courses are thorough or they could not take hold as they have done for us."

"If the several graduates of your school that have been in our employ are fair samples, I cannot recommend your institution too highly."

Following are the names of some of the many prominent people who have visited our school, many of them give free lectures to the student body, and what they say of the Tyler Commercial College:

Mrs. Curtis, Pres. Texas W. C. T. U., "Wonderful institution."

Mr. Edmond C. Peters, International Y. M. C. A. Sec'y from Russia, "I wish to commend your school on magnitude, cleanliness and discipline; the best I have ever seen."

Mr. Rothwell, Gov't Inspector Vocational Education, "It is wonderful."

Dr. Hizzell, Pres. Texas A. & M. College, "A great institution."

Mr. Fogleman, of the Chautauqua, from Sheldon School of Salesmanship, Chicago, "A most wonderful business training institution."

Your Home Town First

Work for your own town. Beautify it. Improve it. Make it attractive.

The world war, the treaty of peace and the prospective tariff and all such things are important subjects, but what's the good of cleaning up the world unless you sweep your own door sweep?

The city whose main street is dirt, scum looking, cluttered, unswept, suffers much.

Such a city wants to be cleaned, recreated, made a thing of beauty, so that people will come for miles to see it.

The best advertisement of your business is the town you live in.

Towns get reputations, as well as men.

Make your town talked of all over the State.

It will thus draw people.

And where the people come there is prosperity.

It does not take money.

It takes something that is scarcer.

It takes co-operation.

Get together.

Organize for civic improvement.

Develop the civic nerve.

Kid your town of one sore eye after another.

Clean up the vacant lots and plant them in garden.

Make a cluttered yard a dirt track.

Make public opinion too hot for those who will not help.

It helps.

It will promote law and order.

It will help to the education of your children.

It will draw factories and other business enterprises to your locality.

Shiftness, untidiness, dirt and selfishness, as shown in your streets and buildings, react upon your people.

Such things make your boys and girls grow up hating their home town.

Make your town a children's paradise, something their memory will lovingly turn back to.

Look after your amusement, your parks, your playgrounds, your theatres, and all your other means of communal enjoyment.

Make your home town happy.

It pays.—Dr. Frank Crane.

THE MELTING POT

Evabelle Long in a Dramatic Recital

Evabelle Long is coming on the second day of chautauqua. We consider her engagement one of the really big events of our summer's program. As an entertainer she has few superiors on the American platform. In her first minutes before you, she will win every heart in the audience.

In her dramatic recital of that great drama, "The Melting Pot," a four-act drama written by Israel Zangwill, her character delineations are so real that you are lost entirely in this great drama.

"The Melting Pot" is recognized as one of the greatest dramas ever written.

Evening of the second day.

Hog Famine Looms

Kansas and Oklahoma have been very short of hogs the past year, 1910, and this year the shortage is July 25 per cent greater than it was last year, says T. J. Hunter in the Stock Yards Journal.

Many farmers have cut down the number that they usually feed, while others have quit the business entirely. The worst part of it is that there is now an alarming shortage of brood sows. Farmers have been letting their brood sows go to market along with the rest of their pigs. The source of supply for hogs is now rapidly being exhausted. When conditions change and farmers begin to look around for a few sows to raise pigs they will not find them very easily, and scarcity will be reflected in greatly increased prices for those that they do find.

The farmer who is raising no hogs or but a few, and is so situated that he can add a few, may well be prompt in taking such action. One of the most successful farmers in Oklahoma recently told me that he had always made it a practice to buy when his neighbors were selling and to sell when his neighbors were buying, and that much of his success was the result of that practice. It is a time now to buy, it is time to buy good ones.—Oklahoma Daily Live Stock Reporter.

For Sale.—My stock of groceries and entire fixtures: also coal bins and public scales. Want to close out as soon as possible. J. H. Bonek, Ransdell, Texas.

DR. CHAS. M. SHEPHERD

Patriotic Lecture by a True Patriot Evening of the Third Day

Dr. Chas. M. Shepherd is an orator of the modern type with pleasing voice and delivery. In his lecture on "The Genesis of the American" Dr. Shepherd takes up separately the principal traits of the five leading nationalities that are combined in the American.

He shows how these various types combined to form the greatest character the world has ever known. Dr. Shepherd is an orator of wonderful magnetic power, able to move his audience at will, from laughter at his Irish stories to intense appreciation of the serious. At times the atmosphere created is so sacred that the audience dare not applaud the points made. His magnetic personality, powerful voice, manly physique and character command the rapt attention and admiration of his audiences.

We are delighted to have Dr. Shepherd on our chautauqua program, evening of the third day.

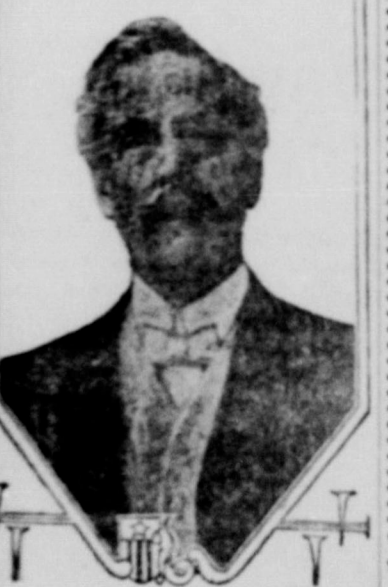

The last day of our chautauqua is a big musical festival. Assisting in this festival will be Frank Lucas, famous talented young Italian, master of the piano-acordian.

The piano-acordian is one of the most popular instruments today, one of the most difficult instruments, a whole orchestra in itself.

Until you hear him play this remarkable instrument, you will little realize the wonderful musical possibilities that it possesses.

Lucas renders the classic and popular numbers, serenades, ballads and classics of his native land. We consider Lucas a wonderful addition to our chautauqua program.

Lucas makes records for the Edison Company.
